NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. [illegible], EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 6. WHOLE NUMBER 344.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 6, 1858.

Foreign Correspondence.

LETTER FROM ITALY.

ITALY, Dec., 1857.

VINEYARDS AND FRUITS.

Before reaching Capua we crossed a bridge the river Voturno, rebuilt by Frederic II, ie statue is placed near the gate of the city ena Capua, built in the ninth century, was oherously taken by Cæsar Borgia, and 3000 inhabitants perished by the sword. It many buildings of antiquity, united to the nest kind of dwellings, surrounded by s, stables, stalls of fruits and bakeries, all d together, with sculptured fountains, umas and the crucifixion, blended with peculiar to these Italian cities, whose pres- aste seems as much degraded as the an- s were refined. Within 20 miles of Na- the country looks better and more improv- On the road side it appears like one con- d range of garden and vineyards until each the city. The cultivate the vine in differently from those upon the Rhine. they train them upon trees peculiar to this try, whose branches shoot out together the sides of a basket. They cut off the limbs and form a kind of net work which ins the body of the vine, and then extend w of its runners to another tree, which festoons or garlands on the road side, e the rich clusters of grapes are seen sus- ed in graceful wreats to ripen in the sun best advantage. Along the coast of editerranean we saw them in this form we reached Rome e Naples, and here were trimming them every leaf and su- ous branch and fastening the rest for er crop. The grapes here are more deli- than in Switzerland different in form flower. Pears, apple oranges and other , unknown to us, in great abundance.— uts and baked chesnuts are added to the rts of fruits upon our ble.

DEGRADATION OF THE PEOPLE.

drove back through Trno Dell Annun- situated in an angle of the bay, with its s of inhabitants in the streets perfectly shing. In the market place hung the upon the cross, painted & carved in wood, centre of that strange medley, and the close by. These absulities we meet where in the cities of Italy. On the shores thousands of fishermen, with boats fasten- their moorings, and wive and children ed around them preparing for the night; se boats are their only dwellings. They singular, hardy race, with peculiar cos- to distinguish them from their classes, d by the sun, and look as tawny as our Indians. Such crowds of indolent look- ople as filled the streets and suares was tly astonishing: they appeard to live in pen air. The women by the wayside mes were seen knitting and pinning.; never fully understood before the mean- scripture where She hayeth her hands spindle, and her hands holds the distaff;" y have no wheel, but go about the streets g out their threads and windlg on a Sometimes in the door two or three are gether holding the distaff, spining and with great earnestness.

lower class of Italians are a singular They seem to cleave to the sil upon they live and as as earthy as it can them. The luxury of water appears to o charms; and although the bautiful fountains send up their spray from e forms it seldom unclues their foes or and their mules and pigs are privileged at the same door with their children and ves. The lowe departments of mild- x stories high, clse by us, are stales— a palace; and worse, every day, liveied ts and splendid carriages driving up hese y, dirty lanes, while an American would t impossible to liv. Shops of all kinds des are rented beath splendid stries look as if neith elegance or beauty find a decent entrate into them. Steets ples us well as hme are remarkbly w, as a general thing, and houses hig.

EXPENSES OF TRAVEL.

oticed in your pur the expenses of ing abroad, but it exceds all our ca- s—five dollars a d will not clear s hen the discount in cry place upon dr is another drawba.

VISIT TO STUDIOS.

more day in Rome, ith an opportunit iting the studios of the artists, not th n consideration amog which our Amer ave the first claims. A young man b ne of Bartholomew from Hartford, Ct ec by our American actess, Mrs. Sigou vho discerned his genius and encourage persevere, came her a poor boy and ha e his way up, until is productions will with the first compations of the age now in America, hing returned, w or the improvement his health; but es are progressing. Is Eve surpasses e designs of her elustre beautiful as r. Her history is tol at a glance.— sulptured in a most aceful sitting at- ith her head droopin and eyes cast wh the very expressn of penitential nd grief in her beautful features, har towing over shoulds and form of t symetry, while neath her feet and d is pedestal the serpt is twined, with rbled fruit lying upo the ground. The tal pon which she sits as beautiful bas- , with the beginning nd expulsion from ise-each a picture in self, of which ar- er taking copies. Ta whole as a com- on, wrought in the mos beautiful marble, ght by good judges deamed to be classed wors of the highest erit and to rank Powrs' Greek slave. Why do not Ameri- of purely wealth patroise their genuis? tndl of Crawford, of. ell earned fame, d with the sirit of heavy; and although s le this eath, his genis is here breath- hianable tatues, whih will live after monument of his creatre power. His statue f America, wreathed with designed fo the capitol t Washington, ost magnitent figure; is dying Indian nd other mpositions of equal beauty, in his studio among his rich treasures with the immortality of his genius d upon then. His Indian chief, in a posture, ais for the capitol, is a history vanquished race. His sad, dejected ance tells the tale.

distinguished English sculptor, S. Gibson, ndfo worth the attention of travelers. He to have united the styles of the two great sts of modern Rome, Ga[illegible] Thor- His studio is rich in many of [illegible]

Evangeline, from Longfellow's poem, of which he must be proud—a composition, when finished, will no doubt be as much admired for its beautiful design as the poem itself, whose idea of this character is so well represented by the genius of Miss Lander. She has another original composition, which does her much credit—Virginia Dare, the first child born in America—a young girl, the daughter of one who came over in the May-Flower, and was made a captive by the Indians. This lovely composition is made to order—a statuette most exquisitely finished.

We visited an Italian studio of Canova's school, with some of the most beautiful specimens of sculpture in modern Rome. A loan of Arc, designed for France, is one of its finest models, and another beautiful Eve. The purity and freshness of the marble adds much to the beauty of modern sculpture, and renders the studios perfectly charming.

THE COUNTRY AND GOVERNMENT.

The climate of Rome is delightful as far as we can judge, this month being neither too cool nor too warm, but of a right temperature for comfort and health. No city in the world is better supplied with fountains of water bursting forth from antique figures of various forms and fashion—some beautiful and some grotesque. The ancients understood its worth and value by the rich provision left as a legacy to their descendants, who seem to make very little use of the limpid streams, either to cleanse themselves or streets. This country with a different government could be made a earthly paradise—so lovely in climate, so rich in soil—where all the fruits and products of almost every zone could be cultivated to advantage, but lies comparatively a waste; while poverty, ignorance and beggary are met in every pathway. Could the rays of Protestantism shine on this dark, moral world, earth would spring forth into beauty and sunlight brighten its cloudy horizon. Never did the light of pure Christianity shine more brightly in contrast to this outward display of forms and ceremonies: it is to the soul renovated by its power what these beautiful creations of genius are to the artist in its symmetry of parts and finishing touches,

"Which lays the rough paths of peevish nature even,
And opens in each heart a little heaven."

S. B. THOMAS.

The Whale-ship and the Cannibals.

A New England whale-ship foundered in a gale, some years ago, in the Pacific Ocean.—Her crew took to the boats; and after toiling for several days and nights, two of the boats came in sight of an island. One of them was run through the surf, and the crew jumped on shore, making signs to the natives, to express their destitute condition. But no pity dwelt in those savage breasts. Rushing upon the exhausted seamen with their clubs, they instantly killed them, and made preparations to feast upon their bodies, for they were cannibas.—Seeing the fate of their companions, the other boat's crew pulled lustily away from that dreadful spot; and after almost incredible sufferings, were picked up by a friendly vessel and saved.

Some years passed, and another ship was wrecked in the same seas, and near the same island. Her commander had been second mate of the former ship, and was saved with the boat's crew which witnessed the destruction of their shipmates by the cannibals. Again he approached the island, a wrecked mariner, and reduced by hunger and exhaustion to an emaciated state. He recognized the fatal shore, and told his companions of the cannibals who dwelt beyond it. But they were too weak to put out to sea again. To do so was to die. They could but die if they landed; and perhaps the savages might be merciful. Perceiving none of the natives, they hauled their boat up on the beach, and sought the shelter of the adjoining woods, in the hope of finding fruit or berries for subsistence. But, once in the woods, their fears increased. They moved stealthily along, alarmed at the cracking of the dry bushes beneath their feet, and at the rustling of the leaves. Death seemed to speak in every sound, and to leer upon them through every opening glade of the forest. Cold sweats gathered on their sunburnt brows; and more than once they halted, and consulted upon the propriety of returning to the boat; but as often they resolved to advance, especially as they found themselves ascending a wooden hill, which they hoped might furnish them with a nook or cave in which to hide. Thus trembling they proceeded.

They approached the summit of a hill, which was bold and rocky. The foremost of the party ventured from the shelter of the trees to view the island. Cautiously he stole, step by step, to the mountain's brow, till his eye caught sight of the village below. Then, he literally sprang into the air, clapped his hands and shouted, "Safe! SAFE! SAFE!" "What is the matter?" asked his companions, who thought him crazy. "We are safe I tell you, we are safe!" pointing to the village on the plain below. Looking down, the now joyful seamen beheld a church lifting its modest front above the huts of the natives. Then they shared in the transports of their companion. They leaped, they wept, they embraced. They know by the church that the missionary was there. They new that where he lived and labored cannibalism must be dead. They accordingly descended to the plain, and found, instead of a cruel death, the utmost kindness, perfect security, and a generous hospitality. Had those wrecked mariners been skeptics or infidels, would they have needed any further proof of the humanizing and renovating power of the Gospel or of the utility of missions?

A SCRIPTURAL MOTTO.—Down at St. Genevieve in old stone church, and built to last a thousand years. The sculptor was directed to engrave above the grand entrance this passage of Scripture: "My house is the house of prayer." And so he did; but having read the Encyclists to some purpose, he went steadily on with the chisel and graver and completed the verse. Hardly had he put a period to his work when it was discovered by the architect, who ordered him to fill up the offending clause with cement. This done, the beautiful inscription as read of all men: "My house is the house of prayer."

But the years went on, even like the writing of the wall with an unseen hand, now word appeared one day, and the passage ran, "My house is [illegible] use of prayer, but ye have"—and the [illegible], like the White Nile, was [illegible] months elapsed, and with [illegible] the wonder grew, as the cle- [illegible] le by particle: "My house [illegible] se, and ye have made it"—[illegible] ed up the work—"a den of [illegible]

[illegible] in brighten the meadows, [illegible] dness brighten the world.

[illegible] or happen to any man, [illegible] vn fault.

A TSETSE FLY.

Lately, through the researches of Dr. Barth and of Rev. David Livingstone, LL. D., the cloud of mystery which overhung the vast regions of Central Africa has been lifted.

Their books have been noticed in our columns. Dr. Livingstone, as an analyst, brings to knowledge an insect more to dible than the lion, more devastating than the elephant—a little fly. Large districts, of fine water and grazing, are as destitute as the sandy desert of domestic animals; the habitat of this fly is there. We give Dr. Livingstone's description:

"The Tsetse, or Glosina morsitans, is not much larger than the common house-fly, and is nearly of the same brown color as the common honey-bee; the after part of the body has three or four yellow bars across it; the wings project beyond this part considerably, and it is remarkably alert, avoiding most dexterously all attempts to capture it with the hand at common temperatures; in the cool of the mornings and evenings it is less agile. Its peculiar buzz, when once heard, will never be forgotten by the traveler whose means of locomotion are domestic animals; for it is well known that the bite of this poisonous insect is certain death to the ox, horse and dog. In this journey, though we were not aware of any great numbers having at any time lighted on our cattle, we lost forty-three fine oxen by its bite. We watched the animals carefully, and believe that not a score of flies were ever upon them.

"A most remarkable feature in the bite of the tsetse is its perfect harmlessness in man and wild animals, and even calves, so long as they continue to suck the cows. We never experienced the slightest injury from them ourselves, personally, although we lived two months it their habitat, which was in this case as sharply defined as in many others, for the south bank of the Chobe was infested by them, and the northern bank, where our cattle were placed, only fifty yards distant, contained not a single specimen. This was the more remarkable, as we often saw natives carrying over raw meat to the opposite bank, with many tsetse settled upon it.

"The poison does not seem to be injected by a sting, or by ova placed beneath the skin; for, when one is allowed to feed freely on the hand, it is seen to insert the middle prong of three portions, into which the proposcis divides, somewhat deeply into the true skin; it then draws it out a little way, and it assumes a crimson color as the mandibles come into brisk operation. The previously shrunken belly swells out, and, if left undisturbed, the fly quietly departs when it is full. A slight itching irritation follows, but not more than in the bite of a mosquito. In the ox this same bite produces no more immediate effects than in man. It does not startle him as the gad-fly does; but a few days afterward the following symptoms supervene; the eye and nose begin to run, the coat stares as if the animal were cold, a swelling appears under the jaw, and sometimes at the navel; and, though the animal continues to graze, emaciation commences, accompanied with a peculiar laccidity of the muscles, and this proceeds unchecked until, perhaps months afterward, purging comes on, and the animal, no longer able to graze, perishes in a state of extreme exhaustion. Those which are in good condition often sink perish after the bite is inflicted, with staggering and blindness, as if the brain were affected by it. Sudden changes of temperature produced by falls of rain seem to hasten the progress of the complaint: but, in general, the emaciation goes on uninterruptedly for months, and, do what we will, the poor animals perish miserably.

"When opened, the cellular tissue on the surface of the body beneath the skin is seen to be injected with air, as if a quantity of soap-bubbles were scattered over it, or a dishonest, awkward butcher, had been trying to make it look fat. The fat is of a greenish-yellow color, and of an oily consistence. All the muscles are flabby.

"There is not so much difference in the nature of the horse and zebra, the buffalo and ox, the sheep and antelope, as to afford any satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon.—The ass not as much a domestic animal as a dog? The curious feature in the case, that dogs perish though fed on milk, whereas the calves escape so long as they continue sucking, made us imagine that the misebief might be produced by some plant in the locality, and not by tsetse; but Major Vardon, of the Madras army, settled that point by riding a horse up to a small hill infested by the insect, without allowing him time to grnze, and, though he only remained long enough to take a view of the country and catch some specimens of tsetse on the animal, in ten days afterward the horse was dead."

Election or the Pie Spoilt.

The following extract from a characteristic discourse, delivered by a Hard-shell Baptist preacher at an Association held in Harris co., Ga., a short time since, will be found amusing. After premising considerably, and touching upon some of the points of doctrine peculiar to his faith, he grew warm and excited, and held forth, at the top of his voice, as follows:

"My breethren and sistern, (throwing off his great coat,) I'm not a gwine to preach all day because I pull off my coat. I fixed up a pie for the sisters las night, and they wouldn't have it; ah! I'll fix it again, and see if you'll have it, if you please, to-day ah! and it shall be composed of good ingredients, if you please, to-day, ah! and I'll put a little flour, and that's a good ingredient, if you please, to-day ah! and a little chicken a little butter, a little black pepper ah! I've made a many a chicken pie; I know all about it, if you please, to-day ah! and at the last I'll git a little prussic acid, and I'll put a little of hat in ah! and now my sisters would you have such a pie as that? No! and why? Because the last ingredient is poison, and would poison the whole pie ah! There now, my breethren and sistern, we have jest such a pie fixed up these days ah! They'll preach a little predestination, and that's a good ingredient, if you please, to-day ah! and a little election, and that's a good ingredient, if you please, to-day ah! and a little redemption ah! And at last they'll come along with a phial of prussic acid, and say that there was no vital union existing between Christ and his Church before the world began, if you please, to-day ah! And now, my breethren and sistern, will you have such a pie as this, if you please, to-day ah? No! Why ah? Because if you deny this, the doctrine of election is gone, and without election I have no hope, if you please, to-day, ah!"

The power of fortune is confessed only by the miserable, for the happy impute all their success to prudence and merit.—Swift.

A HUMAN HAIR FAIR.

WOMEN BRINGING THEIR TRESSES TO MARKET.

Very few of our gentle readers, probably, ever heard of or imagined such a thing as a Human Hair Fair. As few, perhaps, ever thought of inquiring into the source of the beautiful tresses which are seen every day in those armories of Venus, the windows of hair-dressers. We are reminded, however, by a late French paper, that this is the season the annual Hair-Fair at Morlaas, in the Pyrenees, in France. Morlaas is near the [illegible] of Pau, and it is from a Pau journal that we derive some account of the Fair the present season. The hair-dealers were crowding into the place from all points, from Toulouse, and even from Bordeaux; and the young peasant girls of the neighborhood, famous for their fine and abundant heads of hair, were flocking to the market like sheep, to be shorn of their locks for the adornment of other and prouder heads. Even young husbands accompany their wives, to insist upon their despoiling themselves, for a trifling consideration, of their beautiful heads of hair. Twenty francs is the highest price which is given for the richest head of hair, and a majority of the damsels part with their locks for a tenth part of that sum.

This singular market is held in the open street, and attracts crowds of curious as well as interested persons. Girls are seen to be sheared in public while others are waiting their turn, with their caps in their hands, and their long hair combed out and hanging down to their waists. The shearers are men as well as women. Some of our fair readers will conclude that this must be a degrading scene. But how else could the stock of wigs, and frizettes, and bands, and top pieces, and curls which is needed to prop up the tottering beauty of the sex, be supplied? Tons of black, silken hair, sheared in the manner above described, from the heads of the peasant damsels of the south of France, are imported into this country annually.

There are fairs in other places in the south of France and in Brittany, where adventurous virtuosos buy up and shear the crops of the fair-haired damsels. At first blush it would seem that female vanity would effectually prevent such a traffic as this. But cupidity and indolence are stronger passions than vanity; and fashion even lends its aid to this singular custom of parting with the finest ornament to the person which nature affords.

In Brittany, particularly, where the finest and silkon black hair is procured, it is the universal fashion, from childhood upward, to wear caps so close as completely to conceal the hair. The peasant girls there have particularly fine hair, and in the greatest abundance. It is so common as not to be a mark of beauty; and the people are morally incapable of appreciating it as intrinsically beautiful and attractive. It is a truth which ought not to be told, perhaps, in the presence of all our ladies, that the charming frizettes and tresses which beautify the heads of our blooming belles may possibly have been shorn from Breton damsels of very filthy and loathsome habits.

The Bretons are neither Norman nor French, but more Welsh than any thing else; and they are wild and savage, and as idle and dirty as human nature can well be and exist. The poorer women wear their dresses till they become [illegible] ty, patched, tattered, and ragged, so that the [illegible] rial of which they are made can scarcely be [illegible]. The houses of the peasants are generally built of [illegible] without convenience. The chestnut, which abounds in the country, furnishes, to a considerable extent, the food of the poorest classes. Although inhabiting a fine country, capable of rendering them prosperous and wealthy, the Bretons grovel on in supine idleness and dirt. No wonder the women sell their hair, which is abundant and marketable. The people are accustomed to subsist upon the products of spontaneous crops. In the Pyrenees the people are industrious and frugal, and the women are accustomed to regard a fine head of black or dark brown hair as only a luxuriant burden.

Good News for John Bull.

John Bull is a lucky fellow; he is going to have a new accession of strength in his American country; he is going to have the Mormons all to himself. Early next spring, when the ice melts—so saith Hone Rumor—Brigham Young, with his thirty-seven wives, Lieutenant-general Wells with his wives, the Elders and their wives, and the Saints, big and little, with their wives, are going to shake the dust from their feet, and to find a new Latter-Day Settlement in the territory of the Hudson Bay Company. They will be welcomed; any thing in the shape of a man, with legs to carry him and hands to till the ground, is a God-send to the territory ruled by the Company, and the traders, factors, and governors would give the Mormons the right hand of friendship, even if they brought with them doctrines ten times as monstrous as polygamy.

Well, we can spare them. It is unlikely that the masses of the American people will give way to unreasonable mourning over their departure. Not to put too fine a point upon it, they have been a nuisance here, and have rendered to the United States no appreciable return for the trouble and expense which they have cost us.

Had their rulers displayed as much tact and address in dealing with the General Government as they must have exerted to retain their hold over their own people, they might have opened a question which would have embarrassed the acutest minds in the country. The South, seemingly, might, by judicious management, have been driven into the support of Mormonism. Happily, Providence, according to the proverb, bereft the doomed sect of reason; Brigham Young smoothed the way for his own overthrow.

It only remains for us to hope that the news of their intended peaceful expatriation may not be falsified by future events. The newspaper organ of the Mormon government certainly does not justify the belief that despair has yet seized hold upon the rulers of Salt Lake Settlement. There is the usual amount of profanity, slang, and braggadocio in the elders' speeches, and no small concern lest, in the hour of trial, the faithful saints should be punished where they have sinned—lest their wives should refuse to follow them into a new wilderness, or even join hands with their enemies. In all this, sagacious observers believe they can see nothing more than a desire at all hazards to avoid a final collision with the troops, and to bluster as a means of making the best terms they can with the new Governor and the troops who are ready to enforce his behests.

Heat, gotten by degrees, with motion and exercise, is more natural and stays longer by one than that is gotten all at once by coming to the fire. Goods acquired by industry prove commonly more lasting than lands by descent.—Fuller.

EATING.

[illegible] ll living, though a part [illegible] shot away so as to allow [illegible] r of the stomach, and the [illegible]. Dr. Bunting has made [illegible] ant studies of this singular [illegible]:

[illegible] ted or drawn) butter, and the [illegible] shortening' pie-crust, is not digest- [illegible] is seen swimming upon the sur- [illegible] stomach in the form of a yellow or [illegible] ed grease, and it finally passes off [illegible] ed. The skin of all fruits never di- gests, neither do the stones or 'pits' of plums, cherries, etc. The vanilla seasoning of ice-cream is found to act as an irritating substance upon the stomach, and it greatly retards digestion. In both of these respects, also, the coloring matter of candies are shown to be still worse. These facts are settled simply by looking into the stomach with the naked eye, and viewing all the processes or stages through which the different articles of food must pass in the act of digestion.

"Hot bread never digests. Bear this in mind, reader, if you are accustomed to eat the light and tempting biscuit at tea, or the warm loaf that looks so appetizing upon your dinner table. Hot bread never digests at all; after a long season of tumbling and working about the stomach, it will begin to ferment, and it will eventually be passed out of the stomach as an unwelcome tenant of that delicate organ, but never digested, never become assimilated to or absorbed by the organs that appropriate nutrition to the body. It is, however, a first-rate dyspepsia producer."

We are called a nation of dyspeptics; how can we be otherwise if these observations are facts? we nearly all eat hot bread; this is indigestible; and not only this, but the butter with which it is usually soaked. Could any healthy stomach endure such a mischief for many years?

Dr. Bunting's examinations have suggested some moral facts, also. For examination:

"Anger has the effect to cause the bile to rush into the stomach in a stream. This has been observed with certainly in the case of St. Martin. When he has been suddenly enraged, while lying upon a table, the bile has been seen to rush into the stomach, which was perfectly clear of it the instant before, and in such a quantity as to admit of its being emptied out freely into a cup, simply by turning him over.

"Mirthfulness, at and after a meal, facilitates digestion wonderfully. Take St. Martin to a place of amusement, for instance, after a hearty evening meal, the result is astonishing; digestion is promoted to a surprising degree.—'Laugh and grow fat,' is an adage new seen to be founded upon a physiological truth."

Politeness among Religious People.

Politeness, if we come to the bone and marrow of it, is nothing but a good state of heart, ventilating itself, and coming into outward and visible signs. It is somewhat a deeper thing than bows and smiles, and soft words. Take these all away; let a man be too rhoumatic to bow, let the ague in the face make a smile impossible, and hoarseness take music from his voice; he can yet be truly and essentially polite. He can steadfastly respect the feelings of his fellowmen, and speak of them and to them with such phrases as are framed in the mould of a comprehensive affection.

He can uniformly [illegible] the comfort and convenience of [illegible] to his own; he can let those last entered [illegible] his place at the stove; he can [illegible] a sickly man have a seat in his cushioned pew; he can turn his strong horse out into the snow, rather than scatter the children on their morning way to school. These items any man can do, whether he can enter a room gracefully or not, and the man who does not do them, is prima facia, a sinner, though he may, on investigation, turn out to be simply dull of perception. But these things are due to all men.

There are some things which are due to brethren, if to no one else. One is, we ought not to speak of brethren, and especially of ministers, by the unhandled surname. In class-meeting, "Br. Smith," if on good terms—if not, "the next brother," everywhere else, "Smith!" To our pastor, "Br. Brown;" of him, "Brown."

Now if the brotherate and the pastorate, are anything peculiarly near to our hearts, out of that nearness the mouth should speak. We say of the outside world, "Fremont is defeated," "King is elected," "Root has sold his farm," though ladies need borrow even this usage from men, who in worldly matters are hurried, and have excuse for roughing it. But don't so far forget to "be courteous," as to speak of brethren in Christ, without some decent prefix. Brother is warm and Scriptural, but better say the plain Mr. (nobody ever spells that,) than the blunt raw surname. A successful minister once said, "show that you love the people, and you have made a step toward getting them." And then how coarse it sounds in a christian family, to hear the children all dubbing the preachers and brethren by simple surname. If this is all habit, let us begin the year by undertaking never to speak of a christian brother without the Br. or Mr.—N. C. Adv.

Here is a little gem from Stoddard's recent volume of poems. There are many besides the poet who have bad luck in catching the thoughts which sing about them:

Birds are singing round my window,
Tunes the sweetest ever heard,
And I hang my cage there daily,
But I never catch a bird.
So with thoughts my brain is peopled,
And they sing there all day long;
But they will not fold their pinions
In the little cage of song!

THE TOMB OF CALHOUN.—The venerable widow of the immortal Calhoun visited the tomb of her husband on Sunday last, at St. Phillip's Church, after the congregation dispersed, accompanied by one of the older members of the church and vestry and two ladies. The visit was affecting—the widow never having been in the city since the demise of her illustrious husband—and her simple and unaffected exclamation of, 'And is this the tomb of my husband?' brought tears to the eyes of those who accompanied her, while her own were streaming with recollections of the past, and hopes of a happy meeting in 'the better land!' From the graveyard, the widow then visited the statue, at the City Hall; and, after contemplating it in all its bearings, in melancholy silence, pronounced it a 'very good likeness!'—Charleston News.

CHRIST THE HEAD.—There is a natural gravitation of souls which attracts them to mighty personalities; an instinct in man which tells him he is never so great as when looking up to one greater than himself—to find, and, finding, to rejoice and to be enobled in a nobler than himself. And, doubtless, this instinct in itself is divine.—[Trench.

[illegible] Prices Current.

[illegible] ADVOCATE

15
12

[illegible] EDITOR.

[illegible] PUBLISHED

[illegible] UNITED STATES.

"To shew yo[illegible] said a frie[illegible] a friend, "how l[illegible] of respectable [illegible], have, thing immoral i[illegible] business, I will [illegible] self when I can[illegible] to my parish milulstor with a[illegible] extensive parish, horse. I mentioned to a highly farmer, who told me that by going he knew where [illegible] could be settled a farm a few mi[illegible] from me wanted. I sa[illegible] such an anima[illegible] wanted. should lose no t[illegible] horse in questio[illegible] Now, Sir, with a look of [illegible] na, that will nev[illegible] over and say yo[illegible] would put an ex[illegible] price. But I'll tel[illegible] forenoon I'll driv[illegible] say to the farmer, [illegible] is Mr. Green, our [illegible] minister; I was just going him a bit drive to see the country. And as we gned by our house just by chance, I telled him that you had a bit beast to sell, and although I didna think it wad suit him ava', yet it might do no harm to look at it at ony rate. He wasna for comin in, the minister, for he hadna time: but we have just come in for ae minute, and if the beast's at hame, yo can let us see't; but if no it doesna matter a grain.' Noo, if I say that to him, he'll think we didna heed about the beast, and he'll no raise the price o't. I was quite surprised that a man of good character should propose to a clergyman to become his accomplice in a plan of trickery and falsehood; but when I recovered breath, I told my man exactly what I thought of his proposal, and said I should want a horse forever rather than get one by telling a score of lies. But my friend was quite unabashed by my rebuke, and evidently thought I was a young man of Quixotic notions of honor, of which a little longer experience of life would happily rid me."

DO A LITTLE.

Many Christians conceive magnificent plans of labor and usefulness, and yet accomplish very little good. They overlook the humble walks of activity, and are always on the lookout for great opportunities, and brilliant occasions for the putting forth of power. The true secret of growth in grace and usefulness, is to beware of little sins, and to perform little duties. One who is faithfully and faithfully on ordinary occasions will be prepared to improve more important opportunities, for his moral nature will acquire that discipline and readiness for action which often enables the possessor of a single talent to outstrip the possessor of ten. One of our exchanges has the following just [illegible]

Many a Christian destroys his peace and usefulness, because he is not willing to do little things. He wants to speak and pray well, frequently praying, or not at all. Because he cannot do some great thing, he won't do anything. He must sit in the highest seat or nowhere. Now no brother is fit to do large things unless he is willing to do little things. He must be faithful in the least, or he will not be useful in the greatest. Can you make a good minister out of a poor layman? or a good deacon out of a man who is unwilling to do the least honorable duties of the Church? If all were willing to add a little to the interest of the prayer-meeting, a Sabbath school, or a class meeting, or to the strength and influence of the Church, there would not be so many praying to be excused. If we were willing to be weak, make simple prayers and speeches when we can do no better, we should pray oftener, better, and in every way do more good. Happy is the man who is willing to be little, the servant of all, a door-keeper, bell-ringer, fire-builder, lamp-lighter, anything that will serve Christ in the house of God.

Sextons, Read

The following extract, cut from an exchange, has truth and point, as our own sad experience testifies. As the Rev. Dr. Smith says, we have good preaching, you must "ventilate" both ministers and people.

Many a minister has gone from his pleasant to the church, feeling that he could preach, Jesus and the resurrection, but on entering the pulpit the impure air of a confined house has depressed his spirits, enfeebled his voice, wasted his strength and dulled the minds of his hearers.

Some sextons are very careful to keep the church well aired; but others cannot be made to understand its importance. The minister is a good man, they think, but he has his faults and notions.

By their negligence, sextons have taken away the edge and fire of many a sermon, put many a hearer to sleep when he should have been eating the bread of heaven, and shortened their days and curtailed the usefulness of many a minister of the Gospel.

Let us, then, have "line upon line, and precept upon precept" upon this subject, for it is "vitally" connected with the health and efficiency of the ministry, as well as the health and spiritual welfare of all worshipers.

READ AND REFLECT.—Three things to love—courage, gentleness, affectionateness. Three things to admire—intellectual power, dignity and gracefulness. Three things to despise—meanness, affectation and envy. Three things to reverence—religion, justice, and truth. Three things to delight in—beauty, harmonies and freedom. Three things to wish for—health, friends and a cheering spirit. Three things to esteem—wisdom, prudence and firmness. Three things to pray for—faith, hope and purity of heart.

SLANDER.—Against slander there is no defense. Hell cannot boast of so foul a fiend, nor man deplore so foul a foe. It stalks with a smile. It is a pestilence walking in darkness, spreading contagion far and wide, which the most weary traveler can not avoid. It is the heart-searching dagger of the assassin. It is the poisoned arrow whose wound is mortal. It is as fatal as the sting of the most deadly asp; murder is its employment, innocence its prey, and ruin its sport.

There is nothing purer than honest love, nothing warmer than love; nothing more beautiful than virtue, and nothing more steadfast than truth. These united in one mind, form the richest, the brightest, and the most steadfast happiness.

"Many," says Dr. Chalmers, "are very ready to hear about Christ being crucified, who will not listen for a moment to the proposed crucifixion of their sins for it is really those sins that have the sanction and protection of human law."

...Orleans Christian Advocate.

...in advance.

...ORLEANS:

...FEBRUARY 6, 1858.

...RESPONDENCE.

..., 1858, On Red River.

...pany (good every way, In ...) we left New Orleans on ...ad, barring bars and snags ...umstances, shall be in Mans... (Saturday) night. In a few ... reach Grand Bayou and there ...eral miles out of the bottom. ...high lands, there will be twelve ... An out of the way place is ...at one when you get at it.

...and pleasantly thus far. And why ... not the Lecomte got a horse shoe ... bowl. A horse shoe, that genius ... asked some questions. The most ... solution is, that the superstitions ... from the shape of the magnet, whose ... properties puzzle other than the ... So it is: pass along the street, and to ... sill of nearly every Irish habitation; ... the wharf, to every boat's bow you see a ... worn horse shoe nailed; also, on most of ... drays.

...day we quit the regular channel and went ... (pronounced, Nacitosh,) ... freight and passengers. ... in 1712, the same ... about 1500 inhab... ...two—the third component being as large as the other two, of population.

Here the Spaniards founded a post of trade, communicating through Texas with Mexico. It is famous in the old annals, and I much desired to see. The boat is at home, for here was trained the race horse she is named for, and here lives the man he was named for. We stopped long enough to survey the premises—invaded it, like filibusters, sight seeing. The Cathedral is in rapid course of dilapidation. Here is the residence of the "Bishop of Nachitoches."—About the only sign of life and improvement was the chapel of the Protestant Episcopal Church, nearly ready for the roof: a gothic building, with one tower, audience room 35 feet by 70—cost, when complete, $12,000.—Rev. Mr. Bacon, the pastor, has been industrious and awakened quite an interest abroad, even ... in behalf of this building. If ... merits of the place, but ... excellent clergyman. When he finishes it and pays for, we shall agree to ... the "the Bishop of Nachitoches."

Two striking points in our whole survey, were the ... track and ... The latter attracted notice rationally. These ... are a saving people: they keep a gallows from ... Most communities harbor ... sign of ignominy—the solemn, ... wood. But leaning against the dingy ... in sight, was the gallows, ... for hanging down, as it had been knocked from under the last convict, and ready for the next. The ring for the rope, the timber braces, all there!

This town represents the old regime. Once it was on the river, proper. The situation is ... The pine hills come down to the ... A great bend of the river spread out ... of cultivated land. But, sympathizing with the quickened pace of things in general, the river one night quit its graceful meanders, cut through a short route and Nachitoches waked up—to find itself off the road. ... said, in surprise at seeing ... red stream rushing through a new channel ... Hence the new channel ... that name. In high water the old fills ... enough to allow boats to visit the town.

All things go by comparison, especially steamboats. On the levee at Red River boat looks small and dingy, among the floating palaces—the Natchez, the Princess, the Vicksburg, the Lecomte. It was hard to pass these by and resign ourselves to the Lecomte. But ambition is satisfied at the sensation our steamer creates ... upon waters.

... River has less of the red than I before knew. The red prairies and the red dye ... up toward its source, have been diluted by floods. From the mouth to Alexandria the banks are brimming; in the lower portion running over. All the rich lands have not yet been turned into cotton fields. When a levee system shall have redeemed these broad and rich lands, the continuous cotton domain will be a sight to see.

In our company we are fortunate in having ... persons who are to be our hosts. Mr. ..., an old Alabama friend and his family, are on their way home. Mrs. B——, an accomplished lady, daughter of Dr. Thweatt takes this occasion of her father a visit. From the wharf-boat, at the mouth of Red River, we took our good friend and brother, Zenas Preston, the lay committeeman from ... parish. On such laymen as he much of the development of Louisiana Methodism depends. Currie, of Carroll parish, is ahead; and I hope to meet many others at Conference. Dr. W——, wife and family, make part of our company. Mrs. W——, is a younger sister of the Bishop. ... to say, they have got their consent to ... old Georgia! Not to say leave either, ... try East Texas, for awhile. Rev. Mr. ..., an educated and agreeable Baptist minister, goes out to Marshall, to take charge of a ... school.

... and nights, in a small cabin, make ... of us. We get much interested in each other and lose sight of the rest of ... Love letting fun into our family ... point of ... we ... seamen ... a parcel of card... the game, "Come and let's ... hear to-bor side," and they drew up their chairs. They did hear the other side. To-night we had another sermon by brother Walker.

Yesterday, distributing a bundle of tracts among the deck passengers, I fell upon a clever local preacher who lives in Randolph county, Ala., and is a bell maker, by trade. We had a long talk on the apostolic succession and the whole process of making cow-bells.

My sheet is nearly out—my items, quite. Have'nt seen a morning paper or telegraphic dispatch since Tuesday; pent up, cribbed, cabined and confined. Materials for editorial correspondence are scare, as my readers will, before this, have concluded. H. N. M.

McDONOUGH'S RULES.

Good Rules of Life.—Mr. John McDonough a very rich and highly respected citizen of New Orleans, who died recently, has engraved upon his tomb the following series of maxims, which he had used as rules for his guidance through life. We know not when or where we have seen better reading. Look at them, young friends.

"Rules for the Guidance of my Life, 1804.—Remember always that labor is one of the conditions of our existence. Time is gold; throw not one minute away, but place each one to account. Do unto all men as you would be done by. Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day. Never bid another to do what you can do yourself. Never think any matter so trifling as not to deserve notice. Never give out that which does not first come in. Never spend but to produce. Let the greatest order regulate the transactions of your life. Study in your course of life to do the greatest amount of good. Deprive yourself of nothing necessary to your comfort, but live in an honorable simplicity and frugality."

We clip the above from an exchange. To us, it shows the futility of mere human sagacity, not guided by heavenly grace, in working out the end of life. Very good reading, but very poor living is the result of some of them, while others are true and righteous altogether; a few rules are there which will, if followed, make a poor return of a man's life. Take one: "Never spend but to produce;" and putting a miser's construction on it, you have a hand as tight as a vice. The quid pro quo consideration stops the ear to charity. Perhaps this is a real extenuation if not excuse for the hardness of very thrifty and driving business men. Giving away is a violent exception to the rules and habit of their lives. Everything has been done and accumulated on the principle, "Never spend but to produce"—in kind. If not melted down by love or eased by habitual benevolence, it must be the hardest thing in the world for a man who has made a fortune—every dollar of it—by sticking to the rule, "Never spend but to produce," to turn aside in a single case. Giving a few hundreds to the poor, the afflicted, the distressed, is like throwing money away.

Report of Executive Committee of the Trustees of the Southern University, to the Alabama Conference.

[PUBLICATION ORDERED BY CONFERENCE.]

During the year which is now closing we have been steadily advancing toward the completion of the enterprize in which we are engaged. Our success has been encouraging. The university edifice is ready for the slate covering on its roof; our contracts for the completion of the building are all made; the contractors are on the ground; and the work can be finished in the course of a few months. We expect to open our halls for the reception of students in October, 1858. The people encourage us so much by their confidence and liberality, that we have good ground to hope the large permanent endowment will be in hand in the course of a few years.

We desire to express our entire satisfaction with the agent of the Board, Rev. C. C. Callaway. His industry and self-denying labor have been seen by us and by many of your body; and his success in his ministry, and in his agency, has been very gratifying. We venture to express the opinion that there is no position in which your presiding Bishop can put him, where he will be more useful than in our employment. And we, therefore, earnestly desire his re-appointment, as agent of the university. By his diligence and tact, our funds have been largely increased since our last annual report to your body. In that report we stated our funds amounted to $——. We now have the pleasure of making known to you that these funds amount to the large sum of $261,750 00. The whole is taken in notes, so drawn as to make them as safe and available as any bonds given for value received. Let us continue to have a fair field, and be blessed with your hearty co-operation, and we will soon have an institution of learning of the highest grade in our midst, which shall be a helper in the great work in which you are expending your strength and consuming your time. Our funds for endowment are given to us without any trammeling conditions, so that we may have the university endowed, like our state colleges, without being hampered by scholarships.

The annual meeting of the Board in June was well attended, nearly all the trustees were present. The curriculum adopted at that meeting was carefully examined, and has been published in the papers of the Church. This comprises eight schools or professorships, viz: Moral Philosophy; Ancient Languages; Modern Languages; Mathematics; Natural Philosophy; Chemistry; Biblical Literature; and Law.—The studies or sciences, under these heads, are appropriately arranged, and present to the public a course as full as any university in the land, with the exception of a medical department, which, however, may be added in the course of coming years, in case there shall be a demand for it. By this curriculum, it will be seen that we intend to put the southern university on a basis which will make it rank with the best universities of our country. Students may resort to its halls for the finishing of their academic education, and the alumni may remain in the scientific schools for the instruction ... requisite to prepare them to practice in the several professions.

It is our intention to have all the appliances ... which are necessary for the acquisition of a thorough education. We will have libraries, apparatus, funds, scientific teachers, such as are needful to make the university useful and permanent. A future full of promise opens before us. We are building up an institution which will be sending out its strong influences, and dispensing its rich blessings, long after the present generation shall have passed away from earth. We hope that it will be fostered by the patronage of a liberal population, sustained by the prayers of pious men and women, and become an honored instrument in the hands of the great Head of the Church, in spreading sound learning and true religion over these lands.

L. Q. C. deYAMPERT, Chairman.
E. Wadsworth, Secretary.
Greensboro,' Ala., Nov. 28, 1857.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE ROMISH CATECHISM.

Mr. Editor: I recently procured a copy of "the most Reverend Doctor James Butler's Catechism, revised, enlarged, improved, and recommended by the four R. C. Archbishops of Ireland as a general catechism. Published with the approbation of the Rt. Rev. Anthony Blanc, D. D., Bishop of New Orleans." I find in this Catechism many things hard to understand. In lesson tenth, page 14, are the following questions and answers:

"Ques. What do you mean by the true Church?"

"Ans. The congregation of all the faithful, who, being baptized, profess the same doctrine, partake of the same sacraments, and are governed by their lawful pastors under one visible head on earth."

"Q. How do you call the true Church?"

"A. The Holy Catholic Church Ap. Cr."

"Q. Is there any other true Church besides the Holy Catholic Church?"

"A. No; as there is but one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God, one Father of all, there is but one true Church.—Eph. 4th."

"Q. Are all obliged to be of the true Church?"

"A. Yes; no man can be saved out of it.—Acts 2d, Luke 10th, John 10th, Matt. 18th."

In lesson 11th, page 16, are the following questions and answers:

"Q. Why do we call the Church Roman?"

"A. Because the visible head of the Church is bishop of Rome; and because St. Peter and his successors fixed their see in Rome."

"Q. Who is the visible head of the Church?"

"A. The Pope, who is Christ's vicar on earth, and supreme visible head of the Church."

"Q. To whom does the Pope succeed, as visible head of the Church?"

"A. To St. Peter, who was the chief of the apostles, Christ's vicar on earth, and first Pope and Bishop of Rome."

In these questions and answers much is contained, which is worthy of consideration. But first of all, Is it certain that Peter was ever in Rome? Is there any historic record of this earlier than that of Irenæus, which dates as late as near the close of the second century? Does not Eusebius mention Peter's visit to Rome as doubtful? It may be alleged that many of the fathers credited the tradition. To this I reply; that more than a score of Roman historians record the reign of the Popess Joan.—Really, I am not fully satisfied that St. Peter was ever in Rome. I know that tradition assures us that while there he utterly discomfitted Simon, the sorcerer, who fell from a height to which he had raised himself by magic, in answer to the prayer of Peter: that the fall broke one of his legs, etc. I confess, however, that I am constitutionally incredulous enough to doubt many things for which no better evidence can be produced than mere tradition.—Upon the supposition that St. Peter was the first Pope and Bishop of Rome, it is very strange that St. Paul did not send his salutation to him as well as his other friends in Rome. It is strange, also, that in writing from Rome he makes no allusion to the Pope, although he mentions several who had shown him kindness. How strange does it seem that Luke, who was also in Rome, overlooks the pontiff, and that John says nothing in regard to Peter's supremacy. Clemens Barnabas, Hermas, Ignatius, and Polycarp, are equally silent. Surely, if the Church is correct in asserting that St. Peter was the chief of the apostles, Christ's vicar on earth and first pope and bishop of Rome, she can furnish for him well authenticated credentials of his exalted station. Romanists contend that Peter was chiefly constituted head of the Church at the time Christ said unto him, "And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Protestants understand by the rock, Christ, or the confession of faith which Peter had just made. The rock, it seems to me, is Christ, apprehended by a living faith. Romanists maintain that Peter is the rock on which the Church is built. I object to this, first, because, if the Church is built on Peter, then the Church did not, nor could not exist, until Peter did; but the scriptures teach us the Church existed long before Peter was born. Christ, who said, "Before Abraham was I am," "was with his Church in the wilderness."

My second objection is based upon the language of St. Peter himself, in which he speaks of Christ as the corner stone; but of those whom he addresses, that is the elect of God, "Through sanctification of the spirit," etc., as "lively stones built up a spiritual house." Now, if Peter was one of the "elect according to the foreknowledge of God, through sanctification of the spirit," etc., it necessarily follows he was a lively stone, and built up with those "who had obtained like precious faith," a spiritual house, Christ himself being "the chief corner stone." I am aware that Christ gave the keys of the kingdom of heaven to Peter; but did not our Savior in this language refer to the Jewish custom of placing the keys of the closet in the temple which contained the sacred books in the hands of the Jewish doctors of the law? If so, is not the meaning simply as though Christ had said, Peter, the knowledge of the divine will not be withheld from thee. Thou shalt be fully instructed in the divine will in regard to all that shall be retained and all that shall be abrogated of the enactments of the Mosaic dispensation. Hence, "Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Thus Peter was well qualified for the work of an apostle of Christ. He, soon after the Savior thus addressed him, opened the door of the kingdom, both to Jews and Gentiles.

Romanists affirm that the pope is "Christ's vicar on earth, the supreme visible head of the Church." Now, if I can show that the Church has been at times without a pope, it will follow that the Church has been at times without a supreme visible head. And as the Church consists only of "those who are governed by their lawful pastors under one visible head," it will follow that at times there was no Church. The Church was destroyed; the gates of hell prevailed against it; then the words of Christ were false and Christ himself an impostor.

Such are the absurdities which necessarily flow from the premises. But has the Church been at times without a pope? I answer, manifestly and necessarily so: in every interval between the death of one and the inauguration of another. Should it be said that the vacancies in the papacy, occasioned by death, do not destroy the Church, I cheerfully admit it, on the ground that I believe the Church exists without a supreme visible head; but I maintain that, unless the Church can exist without "a supreme visible head," that the death of a pope destroys the Church. But there have been interregnums in the papacy, which were altogether unnecessary. Was not this the case when Siberius was banished on account of his opposition to Arianism, and Felix elected afterwards in his stead? Was there not likewise an unnecessary vacation when Felix was deposed and Siberius reinstated? If the claims of all the boasted successors of Peter be admitted, Christ has had some very unworthy vicars. I choose to believe, with Pope Leo, Dupin, and others, that such wicked popes are not true heads of the Church and vicars of Christ. But if so, according to the Catechism from which I have quoted, during their reigns the Church was without a visible head on earth. Or that, as the Church consists of "those who are governed by their lawful pastors under one visible head on earth," during the reigns of these wicked popes there was no true Church. And as none can be saved out of the true Church, none were saved during the reigns of all the wicked popes aforesaid. According to the Catechism, we must believe these God-dishonoring conclusions on the one hand or on the other; that some of the most wicked men who ever lived were the vicars of Christ. From this Catechism, "published with the approbation of the Rt. Rev. Anthony Blanc, D.D., Bishop of New Orleans, "Good Lord deliver us."

S. J. HAWKINS.

Opelousas, La., Jan. 15.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE FIRST LIGHT.

"And God said, Let there be light: and there was light." Genesis.

The light that was called into existence at this time I presume was electricity, lightning, perhaps, in the form of the borealis; for we are told that "The earth was without form and void;" and it is known that electricity exercises a most wonderful influence in arranging confused earthy and mineral matter that is mixed with water and free to move. And, like the borealis of the present day, its duration was indefinite. It might have illuminated the earth for years or centuries, or even for thousands of years, and then disappeared for the same length of time; and as the "light was called day, and the darkness night," the time during which it shone and during which it disappeared, was called the first day, and so on for the second and third day.

In support of this supposition, I will quote the 11th, 12th and 13th verses of the 1st chapter of Genesis: "And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth; and it was so. And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the third day." We see from these passages of scripture that trees were not only called into existence, but that those trees grew, and matured, bloomed, bore, and ripened their fruit. Now, as the same reasons did not exist for calling full grown trees into existence, already laden with matured fruit, as did for forming Adam a full grown man, we must conclude that those trees grew and matured, bloomed, bore and ripened their fruit according to the ordinary course of nature; and as all this did take place during the third day, we must conclude that the day was as long, at least, as several of our years.

The sun, no doubt, was created at the time of the creation of the earth, but as the body of the sun is a dark and not a luminous body, it could exercise no influence over the day and night until after it was endowed with the luminous property that it now possesses, which was not until the fourth day, at which time the excess of electricity that pervaded the solar system was concentrated around the sun, and it became a luminous body, and was "appointed to rule the day, and to be for signs and seasons, and for days and years."

M. P. S.

Canton, Mi.

The efforts of Lemen in furthering the Gospel are thus alluded to by a Southern religious journal:

There is in almost every church a great amount of talent, which can only be developed and devoted to religious uses by the most searching revivals of religion. Some large and wealthy churches are very weak, because the talents of their members have been rolled up in a napkin and hid in the earth, while some small and poor churches are very strong because the talents of all the members are in use, and are thereby constantly gaining other talents.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTE—NEXT MEETING.

In view of the next annual meeting of the Educational Institute of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we have been requested to publish the following extract from the proceedings of the last session. The gentlemen herein appointed to present Exercises, Reports, and Essays, it is expected, will receive this notice as official from the Corresponding Secretary.

The Committee on Exercises, to be submitted at the next annual meeting, presented the following report, which was adopted.

The committee to whom was referred the subject of suggesting certain persons who should be requested to favor the Educational Institute with their views as to the most suitable texts to be employed in Southern Colleges and Schools, beg to submit the following as their report:

On Moral Science.—President Wightman, Wofford College, S. C.; Dr. Longstreet, Miss.; President W. A. Smith, Randolph Macon College, Va.; President Rivers, Florence Wesleyan University, Ala.

On Moral Science.—President Anderson, St. Charles College, Mo.; President Wiley, Emory and Henry College, Va.; President Craven, N. C. Conference College, N. C.

On Belles Lettres.—Prof. Shipp, University of North Carolina; President Thomas, Emory College, Ga.; President Everhart, Huntsville Female College, Ala.; President Jonee, Greensboro Female College, N. C.

On Political Economy.—Prof. Sasnett, Emory College, Ga.; President Hamilton, Shelbyville University, Tenn.; President Naff, Tennessee Conference Female College, Ala.

On Mathematics.—President Garland, University of Alabama; Prof. L. Johnson, North Carolina Conference College; Prof. Carlisle, Wofford College, S. C.; Prof. Larrabee, Centenary Institute, Ala.; Prof. Scales, Centenary College, La.; President Miller, Centenary College, La.

On Chemistry and Mineralogy.—Dr. Means, Oxford, Ga.; Prof. Du Pre, Wofford College, S. C.; Prof. Malone, Florence Wesleyan University, Ala.

On Natural Philosophy.—Prof. Tutwiler, Green Springs, Ala.; Prof. Rice, Florence Wesleyan University; Prof. Darbey, Auburn, Ala.; Prof. Dodd, Kentucky Normal School.

On the Latin Language and Literature.—Prof. Gessner Harrison, University of Virginia; Prof. Duncan, Wofford College, S. C.; Prof. Carey, Florence Wesleyan University.

On the Greek Language and Literature.—Prof. Holcom, Centenary College, La.; Prof. Magruder, La.; Prof. Carloe S. Smith, Ala.

On Common School Books.—President Moore, Bascom Female Seminary, Miss.; President Callender, Soulo Female College, Tenn.; President C. D. Elliott, Nashville Female Academy, Tenn.; President Mitchell, Centenary Institute, Ala.; Prof. D. B. Ross, La.; Prof. Pitts, Mansfield Female College, La.; President G. Jonee, Andrew College, Tenn.; President O. S. Smith, Wesleyan Female College, Ga.; Professor Bonnell, Ala.

The same committee presented the following report on subjects for Lectures, Essays, Reports, etc., to be presented at the next annual meeting, and the report was adopted:

Lecture—On the proper method of introducing the Bible as a text-book in Literary Institutions; by Bishop Paine.

Lecture—On the importance of Natural History as a branch of education; by President Guilford Jones.

Lecture—On the necessity of a more thorough and extended instruction in English Language and Literature; by President Everhart.

Essay—On the best method of School Discipline; by Pres. Elliot.

Essay—On the study of the Classics; by Prof. Sasnett.

Report—On the proper time and length of vacations; by Presidents S. W. Moore and J. M. Sharpe.

Report—On the value and importance of Experimental Lectures; by President Hamilton and Rev. Dr. Erwin.

Report—On the propriety and advantages of the non-resident system for college students; by Professor Malone and President Thomas.

Report—On the effects of endowments on discipline and scholarship; by President Anderson and Dr. Keener.

Report—On the Philosophical Classification of the Physical Sciences and the proper method of studying them; by Professors Darby and Bonnell.

Report—On the expediency of providing as far as possible a system of Common School Education by benevolent effort or otherwise; by Rev. Dr. Erwin and Presidents Moore and Naff.

Report—On the proper course of training for Female Colleges and Academies; by Professor Larrabee, President Everhart, and Professor Sasnett.

Report—On University Education; by President Garland and Professor Sasnett.

Essay—On the proper method of teaching Geography.

Essay—On Denominational Education; by Bishop Pierce.

Essay—On the relations of our institutions of learning to Southern authorship in general; by Rev. Dr. Summers.

Lecture—On the Anglo-Saxon element in English Literature; by Rev. Dr. Henkle.

Lecture—On the expediency of establishing purely and distinctively Scientific Schools in the South; by President Craven.

Large Bequests by a Clergyman.

The late Rev. Charles Avery, of Pittsburg left an estate valued at $700,000. He bequeathed $20,000 of stocks in the Monongahela Navigation Company, which pays good dividends, as a fund for the support of superannuated clergymen of the Methodist Protestan Church; $20,000 to the Oberlin Institute Ohio; $25,000 to a school for colored children which he founded in Alleghany City, Pa. $50 to the Insane Asylum in Western Pennsylvania; and $5000 each to the Methodist Protestant Churches in Allegheny City and Birmingham, and the Second Methodist Protestant church in Pittsburg. The total amount bequeathed is $100,000. His relatives were also handsomely provided for. The Chronicle says:

"The remainder of his property, after all expenses and incumbrances are paid, which must amount to over $500,000, is to be divided into two parts—one of said parts to be a perpetual fund for disseminating the light of the Gospel of Christ and the blessings of civilization among the benighted black and colored races of people inhabiting the continent of Africa; and the other, to constitute a perpetual fund for promoting the education and elevation of the colored population of the United States of America and the British Provinces of Canada, to be appropriated and applied by his executors."—Baltimore Patriot.

The Effects of Christianity.—Howard Hill said: "I would give nothing for the Christianity of a man whose very dog and cat are not the better for his religion."

A REVIEW OF HITCHCOCK'S "RELIGION OF GEOLOGY."

By J. H. Smith, Editor of the Southern Era, Salem, Ala.

I would call the attention of the reading public to a consideration of the leading arguments in Dr. Hitchcock's treaties on the "Religion of Geology." The review, which, during the present year, has appeared in consecutive numbers in the Southern Era, contains a complete refutation of those arguments, and deals some excellent blows upon that "divine" geologist for his inconsistency.

A careful perusal of the review under consideration will satisfy any intelligent mind that the celebrated work of Dr. Hitchcock affords greater encouragement to the cause of infidelity than any other work upon the same subject extant. The author assumes that there was created a vast undefined space of time prior to the commencement of the Mosaic account given in the first chapter of Genesis, that an immense period intervened between the beginning mentioned in the first verse, and the creative energy spoken of in the second, and also contends that during that vast undefined interval light existed just as it now does, and the earth gave sustenance to animal and vegetable life just as it now does, and that the formation of strata and calcarous deposits proceeded then just as it now does. He has learned author also assumes that light annihilated and the ancient earth reduced to a chaotic state—prior to the creative energy recorded by Moses. Hence it is to be inferred that the creation recorded in Genesis was no more than a re-construction of the earth from the chaotic ruins of ancient matter. In order to prove these fallacious "propositions" and deduce the phenomena of the earth's crust, he maintains that the animal relics found embedded in the strata are inexhaustible evidences of the great age of the earth. These deposits, it is contended, could no have been formed in the "short period of time which has elapsed since the commencement of the Mosaic record." The theory of Dr. Hitchcock, like that of Dr. John Pye Smith, assumes that the strata in which those animal relics are found imbedded were formed by the abrasion of continents, mountains and islands of granite that existed during the organized state of the ancient earth. The fallacy of this apparent. Those vast masses of granite never could have washed down in the form of sand and gravel, and then have been transported to the depths of the ocean, and afterward to be restored to a granite mass resting on the bottom of the ocean with the bones of animals embedded therein.

The forgoing fallacies and inconsistencies are faithfully exposed by the able and experimentative review by the editor of the Era. The reviewer also made a successful effort to remove the apparent conflict between geology and revelation, and to show that these have a perfect harmony with each other, under the assurance that the Mosaic account of the creation is true. He also logically maintains that all the phenomena presented in the strata of the earth's crust are explainable upon a simple in perfect accordance with the account in Genesis as it is usually understood and interpreted. Hence, those who have read the work of Dr. Hitchcock, and the review of the editor of the Era, will readily discern the grave errors into which the former writer has fallen, as well as the tenable position occupied by the latter.

We therefore recommend that the article under consideration, should be published in substantial book form. The work would necessarily fall beneath the investigation of a much larger number of intelligent minds. It might also be the means of correcting erroneous impressions of those who have been misled astray by the work of Dr. Hitchcock, and of protecting those who are in danger of being misled either by the work of Dr. Hitchcock or that of Dr. J. P. Smith. I hope to see an early period, the entire review in book form, with such notes and appendages as the author may deem necessary. J. W. LAN...

Oakbwery, Ala.

The Law on Selling Liquor.

It may not be amiss says the Brandon Republican, to give our readers a synopsis of the code laws on this subject. They are intelligent and wholesome, but will they be enforced? The people of each county select every year officers who take solemn oaths to discharge their respective duties. These officers in many cases are vain and simple, and officers on the subject of liquor, pending to make them. The evils of intemperance are so great that we had it right and proper to put out the law those who have sworn to administer it. If they choose not to do it the fault is theirs.

Article 5, page 25, of the code, requires every vendor to enter into bond to keep a peaceable and orderly house, that he will not suffer any riotous or disorderly conduct, drunkenness, or gaming, and will not sell to slaves or Indians, bond to be filed in the Clerk's office.

Art. 6, will not allow the license to be transferred or the retailer to be done in any other house than that designated in the license.

Art. 7, gives power to the police or county to revoke the license if the vender violates the provisions of the law.

Art. 9, provides that if the retailer fails to the previous article 5, as enumerated in the bond, he shall be indicted, and if convicted shall be fined less than $2 nor more than $50, and imprisoned not less than one week nor more than three months or both, at the discretion of the court.

Art. 10, forbids keeping open doors for the sale of liquor on Sunday under penalties in addition.

Art. 11, provides no indictment shall be quashed for want of form, and that the kind of liquor sold need not be stated, nor the name of the owner of the slave.

Art. 12, forbids selling to a minor or an apprentice, under a penalty of not less than $100 more than $500 fine.

Art. 13, declares all notes and contracts for liquor less than a gallon to be void and cannot be recovered at law.

Art. 14, requires the Clerk of the Circuit Court under a penalty of $50 to give the District Attorney of Grand Jury a list of all who obtained license within the year.

Art. 17, requires every Justice of the Peace, Constable, Sheriff, and every other county officer because this act to be strictly enforced and to give information of all violations thereof, and because all offenders to be arrested and bound over to answer.

Art. 21, forbids the owners of houses following retailing contrary to law under penalty not over $500 fine and one month's imprisonment.

Art. 22, page 250, requires retailers to take an oath to be endorsed on their license that they will not sell, or barter, or exchange, or permit to be done any liquor with slaves without consent from their master, and their license be revoked.

How to do Good.—Rev. John Scott wrote: "He who wants to do a great deal of good at once, will never do anything."

The use of Sand.—One might as well ask what atmosphere was made transparent for, as to give man, in the heavenly light, perpetual presence of the sublime.—

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

Married—On the 21st ult., at the residence of the bride, by Rev. W. E. M. Linfield, Major W. W. Allen, of Mobile, and Mrs. Irene T. Harris, of Noxubee county, Mi.

On the 5th ult., by Rev. James W. Shores, Mr. George W. Mansfield and Miss Mary Stewart, all of Sumpter county, Ala.

On the 13th, by the same, Dr. James E. Knott, of Lauderdale county, Miss., and Miss Amelia Knott, eldest daughter of Wm. H. Knott, esq., of Green county, Ala.

Printer's fee—the bride's father a subscriber to the N. Orleans Christian Advocate.

On the 1st inst., in Carrollton, by Rev. Jas. D. Parker, Mr. James S. Moffat and Miss Harriet Jane Sawyer.

On the 5th, by Rev. B. Jones, Rev. Robert W. Lambuth, of the Mississippi Conference, and Miss Catharine E. Bridger, of Claiborne county, Mi.

On the 29th Nov., in Dallas county, Ala., by Rev. J. T. Curry, Mr. Moses A. Nunely and Miss Mary F. Speare.

On the 23d Dec., at Fayetteville, Talladega county, Ala., by the same, Mr. Jackson Porter and Miss Josepha Boykin.

On the 24th Dec., by the same, Mr. R. D. R. Watters, of Smith county, Texas, and Miss Sarah J. Barkin, of Talladega county, Ala.

On the 1st. ult., at Fayetteville, Ala., by the same, Mr. Wm. Bradfield and Miss Rebecca Wallis

Special Notices.

EDUCATION.

A Lady, of many years experience in tuition, desires to give charge of a Female School. She is constomed to instruct in the usual English branches, French, Music, Painting, Embroidery, &c. Can give satisfactory reference, if required.

Address "G. M. A., Milldale postoffice, Perren county, Mi," stating terms, location, &c.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st,, a large copiy of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, en 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanecs, Wa append the publishers' notice:

Southern Methodist Almanac for 185—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the Stes and Territories within the bounde of the M. E. Chrch, South.—Besides the usual astronomical metter, this ork contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches tbroughout the world; statistics of religione denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptivo Catalogue of the Publications of the Southrn Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pemplet of 96 pe-ges; price five cents retail.

Stevenson & Owen, Agents.

LIST OF REMITTANCES

Received through the post office for the mths of December and Jannary.

☞ Persons writing to the Office will please observe that business letters are filed by the clk. If they write but three words to the Editor or foubilcation, they must so write it, that it can be separet from the business letters, if they expect the Editor ever to see it.

☞ Those writing to Depositary will plse observe the same rule. If matter for the three deptments is contained on the same sheet, let it be so when that it can be separated, or better still, write it a separate bill; and then if it goes wrong, the fault le t with the writer—otherwise it will be.

☞ In sending subscriber's names always give the Post-office, and say whether they are old or uow.

☞ In changing papers, always name the Post-ce chenged from as well as the one chenged to.

J. Austin	2 00	E. McDowell	1 00
Mrs. Anderson	2 00	L. Martin	2 00
G. Brashear	2 00	J. Meade	2 00
Mrs. Bain	2 00	H. McCellen	2 50
Mrs. Bodle	2 00	W. M. Motley	2 00
J. W. Browder	2 50	T. W. Matthews	2 00
J. Boyd	2 00	J. D. Newsom	2 00
D. Borrow	2 00	C. K. Overby	2 00
R. A. Boyd	2 00	D. Odom	2 00
W. H. Crawford	2 00	G. D. Percell	2 00
W. H. Carter	2 00	J. B. Ramsey	9 00
J. A. Campbell	2 00	L. C. Roberts	5 50
Dr. Constantine	2 00	D. Stevenson	2 00
J. W. Ellis	5 00	Mr. Sadler	1 50
J. E. Evans	2 00	J. P. Steed	2 00
J. Fike	2 00	J. O. Smith	2 00
R. H. Hudson	2 00	J. J. Smiley	2 00
T. L. Hart	2 00	J. M. Turner	4 00
L. M. Hicks	3 00	J. M. Thomasson	1 00
A. Hearon	2 00	E. F. Thwing	1 70
C. M. Howard	2 00	W. Wright	2 00
T. J. Hopkins	2 00	Dr. Wilkins	2 00
R. C Hardy	10 00	J. Weaver	3 00
Dr. Jones	2 00	Mrs. Wright	1 50
A. G. Jordan	1 00	Mrs. Williams	00
H. T. Lewis	2 00	P. Williams	00
J. Milliken	2 00	W. P. White	00
W. McPherson	2 00	S. Windham	00
R. Mitchal	2 00

CALIFORNIA.

The annual statistical report had been published. The following is an abstract:

Total number of school children in the st, between four and eighteen, 37,722; total exit of gold, $49,256,182; total amount of quicksil exported, 21,265 flasks; total value of merch dise exported from San Francisco, $4,415,7 total value of dutiable imports, $4,410,265; tal amount of freight paid on merchendise i ported, $1,275,319.

During the year there have been 125 applic tions for the benefit of the insolvent law in Sa Francisco. The debts of these insolvents amounted to $2,876,899, and the assets to $812,417.

Eighty-two divorce anits were brought in this city during the year, and twenty-five were before the courts which were commenced in 1856. Of the 114 anits, ninety-four were commenced by wives and twenty by husbands.

The total number of claims for lend under Mexican titles in the Northern District of California is 426. Of these 211 are finally settled in favor of the claimants. These claims cover in all 2,469,338, or upwards of 11,000 acres each on an average. Of the remainder, seventy-two have been finally rejected or dismissed; about seventy are yet undecided, and the remainder have been appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The Bombardment of Canton.

A correspondent of the New York Times furnishes us with the following concerning the contemplated military operations against Canton:

We are again on the eve of another struggle. After so long a delay active operations are once more to be commanced. On the 17th of this month the tragedy which was enacted about one year since is to be again brought on the stage in splendid style. Canton is to be bombardad on the 17th, prior to the taking of it by the combined English and French forces. Numerous and immense mines have been laid in the city by the Chinese for the destruction of the assailents, to avoid the effects of the explosion of which Admiral Seymour has determined to subject the city to a severe bombardment previous to entering it. The French are going to co-operate actively and freely with the English in this matter.

They will land a force of about 1300 men at Canton. All the available force of the allies will assist at the attack. Lord Elgin has been up the river to take a final survey of the river, city and fleet before the recommencement of hostilities. The Chinese have about 14,000 troops inside the city, and some 50,000 in the suburbs and immediate vicinity of the city, who are employed fighting the rebels, who are near Canton at this time.

The city of Jeddo is said to contain 1,500,000, people, and to have streets thirty-two miles in length. Some thing of a city is the capital of Japan.

Book Editor's Department.

NEW BOOKS.

Magic, Pretended Miracles, and Remarkable Natural Phenomena. Illustrated with engravings. Revised by Thos. O. Summers, D. D. Nashville: Stevenson & Owen, Agents. Price 30 cents.

This would be an interesting book at any time, but its publication is quite opportune at the present time, when necromancy, astrology, and other kindred absurdities and impieties are reviving and gaining currency. No one who reads this book will wonder at the miracles of either Papists or spirit-rappers. The pictorial illustrations are faithfully copied from those of the London edition. The issue has been postponed in consequence of circumstances which the Editor could not control. It completes the series of fifty volumes, originally issued by the London Religious Tract Society, whose publications are reproduced by some of the leading publishing houses of this country. But as they contain many things not adapted to our meridian and latitude, those which we have issued have all been carefully revised by the Editor: and it is believed none of them are obnexions to any reasonable objection. They were prepered by some of the most gifted pens of the age: they are on some of the most interesting and important subjects; and the fifty which we have issued constitute a convenient, valuable, and cheap library for a family or Sunday-school—the cost being but ten dollars. They are all handsomely bound in uniform style, best English cloth, embossed, gilt backs and lettered. Their titles are as follows: London in the Olden Time; Modern London; Old Edinburgh; Modern Edinburgh; Dublin; Paris, Ancient and Modern; Venice; Switzerland; Australia; Tyre; Ancient Jerusalem; Modern Jernsalem; Life of Cyrus; Alexander the Great; Life of Mohammed; Greek and Eastern Churches; Iona; Ancient British Church; Lives of Eminent Angle-Saxons, 2 vols.; Life of Alfred the Great; Life and Times of Charlemagne; Glimpses of the Dark Ages; Dawn of Modern Civilization; The Crusades; The Inquisition; Life and Times of Wycliffe; Life and Times of Leo the Tenth; Lives of the Popes, 4 vols.; Scenes of the Reformation, 2 vols.; Bible in many Tongues; Our English Bible; Life of Sir Isaac Newton; Successful Men of Modern Times; Magic; Remarkable Delusions; Remarkable Escapes from Peril; Origin and Progress of Language; The Steam-Engine; The Field and the Fold; Wonders of Organic Life; Money; Volcanoes; The Palm Tribes; Plants and Trees of Scripture; The Art of Printing.

THE GENERAL MINUTES.

As we desire to bring out the General Minutes as soon as possible, we respectfully request the Bishops and other Presidents to furnish us at their earliest convenience with complete and correct reports from the Conferences over which they presided. We shall be obliged if they will give us, in every instance, the names of President and Secretary, and the place and time of beginning and ending the session. We have not yet received the Minutes of the North Carolina, Virginia, Texas, East Texas, Arkansas, Wachita, Pacific, and Indian Mission Conferences. We have received the statistics of the Indian Mission Conference, but the numbers at Kiamichee are not given: we hope they will yet be reported—so of the numbers in Eastport Station, Memphis Conference, and Etowah Mission, Georgia Conference, and the answers to Question 16, in the Minutes of the Missouri Conference, and Question 14, St. Louis Conference, and the amount collected for missions in this last Conference. It is probable that none but the Secretaries of the Conferences can furnish some of these items—by doing so they will confer a favor. We shall be also obliged to the Secretaries of the Conferences if they will furnish us complete lists of the Delegates elect, including the Reserve Delegates, to the General Conference, putting the names in order of their election; also the number of votes concurring and non-concurring with the Alabama and Holston Resolutions.

TO THE SECRETARIES OF ANNUAL CONFERENCES.

In order that the statistics of the Journals of the Annual Conferences and those in the General Minutes may agree, attention is called to the following errata. By a careful addition of the numbers in every district, we find that either the wrong figures were put down in some instances, in transcribing from the Journals, or there were errors committed in the adding up, as is frequently the case in the hurry of business at the close of a session. We, of course, shall follow the copy sent us, correcting the arithmetic, unless further advised. In the Minutes of Western Virginia Conference, instead of 8383 white members, 1280 probationers, 183 colored members, we make 7253—1281—253. Mississippi Conference: instead of 1165 we make 1365 white members. Natchez District: instead of 1537 white members, 325 probationers, we make 1510—321; the numbers in Vicksburg Station being reduced by the Rev. C. K. Marshall to 213 and 8. Florida Conference: instead of 951, 832, 1424 white members in Jacksonville, Bainbridge, and Madison Districts, respectively, we make 651, 822, 1426; instead of 979 colored members in Tallahassee District, we make 977; instead of 301 colored probationers in the Conference, we take 1606. Louisville Conference: instead of 1169 colored members, we make 1167 in Lonisville District: instead of 374 white probationers and 49 local preachers, we make 376 and 45. Holston Conference: instead of 178 colored members in Jonesboro' District, we make 0. Memphis Conference: instead of 484 white probationers in Paris District, we make 4, and the Recapitulation is wrong.

The Minutes of the Kansas Mission Conference do not give the names of the preachers remaining on trial, or of those located, or the number of deacons in the Conference; nor are the elders ordered in the appointments. We have written to the president of the Conference for the minutes, but our letter may have failed to reach him.

The Mississippi Code an Profanity and Vagrancy.

The new code of Mississippi has the following:

Art. 340, Sec. 4, says: "If any person shall profanely swear, or curse, or shall be drunk in any public place, in the presence of two or more persons, he shall, on conviction thereof, before any Justice of the Peace of the county where the same may happen, be fined not more than ten dollars for each offence, and shall stand committed to jail until such fine and costs are paid, such fine to be for the use of the county or corporation where the same may occur."

Art. 344, Sec. 69, says: "The following persons shall be deemed and adjudged and punished as vagrants, to-wit:

All able-bodied persons who live without employment, or labor, and have no visible means of support or maintenance;

Any person who shall abandon his wife or family, without just cause, leaving them without support and in danger of being a public charge;

Keepers of public gambling hou etc.;

Any able-bodied person who shall be found begging for a livelihood, and,

Common gamblers, or persons who for the most part maintain themselves by gaming."

Art. 345, makes it the duty of Justices of the Peace on their own knowledge, or upon information, to issue their warrants, have offenders arrested, examine the case and commit him if he does not give bond for good behavior.

THE LECOMPTON CONSTITUTION.

PUBLICATION OF THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The President's message in reference to the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton constitution was transmitted to Congress to-day, and is published in the Union newspaper of this city. It fills three columns of that journal.

The President says he transmits that constitution to Congress at the request of Mr. Calhoun, and he pronounces a large portion of the people of the Territory in open rebellion against the Federal Government. He also says that they were determined to establish the Topeka constitution, and would have subverted the Government long ago, but for the presence of the federal troops overawing them. He argues that the people have been allowed the fullest opportunity of forming their own institutions in their own way; but that they have placed themselves in the position of rebels, and let the elections go by default, because they were determined at all hazards to sustain their revolutionary organization. He insists that they have no just cause of complaint. Slavery was the question which alone had convulsed the whole country, and this question having been submitted to this people by the convention, the whole object and spirit of the Nebraska bill had been observed. The President says, "I am decidedly in favor of the immediate admission of Kansas into the Union, thus settling a disturbing question and withdrawing it from Congress, as is so desirable for the peace of the Union." He then proceeds to argue that the State will have the right immediately after her admission to modify the constitution, that under a Dred Scott decision, Kansas is now as much a slave State as Georgia, that she can be made a free State only by a constitutional provision to be adopted by the people, and that there is thus another reason for admitting the State into the Union. The dangers of keeping the question open are descanted upon. Admit Kansas, says the President, and the troubles concerning her will immediately be localized; besides which, we should then be free to withdraw our troops thence for service in the Uteh.

In the Senate, the message was referred to the Committee on Territories.

In the House, a motion is pending to refer it to the Committee on Territories. The anti-administration party propose to refer it to a select committee.

THE SENATE ON KANSAS AND MINNESOTA.

The Senate, it is averred, is determined to resist the admission of Minnesota into the Union until the Kansas question shall have been settled. Powerful efforts are being made to secure the admission of both under one bill.

The excitement is increasing hourly.

[From the Chicago Times, Jan. 7.]

A Great Mystery Explained—Sane or Insane.

Many of our readers will remember the great excitement caused in this city by the sudden disappearance of Mr. R. M. Mellen, in May, 1855. Mr. Mellen, was the predecessor of Mr. John McNally, in the news depot business, and had a very large number of acquaintances.—During the later part of May, 1845, he left his home, after tea, in apparent good health, and no trace of him could be discovered.

After his disappearance, all sorts of rumors were afloat as to what had become of him. At first it was supposed he had met with foul play, and the river was dragged for his body. Somebody started a report that on the night of Mellen's disappearance, he was seen in a buggy, bound and gagged, sitting between two men, and that the buggy was rapidly driven towards the northern limits of the city. As Mellen was said to have some $500 upon his person, it was generally supposed he had been murdered and robbed, and the police made every effort to obtain some trace of him, but to no purpose.

Very soon a report became current that an insane man was wandering about the woods near Belvidere, and from descriptions of his appearance, furnished by several persons who stated they had seen him, it was supposed to be Mellen, and many of his friends went to Belvidere to investigate the matter. A number of persons volunteered to assist in searching to woods, and very soon the wildest and most exaggerated stories were told of the new Orsom One person had accidently stumbled on his retreat, while looking for cattle, and the wild man, who was represented as stark naked, bounded away with the fleetness of a deer.

A party of children, who were out picking flowers, came across him in a bogged thicket, and after looking at them intently a few moments, and thoroughly frightening them, he plunged into the woods again. One man, mounted on a horse, had chased him across a small prairie, but the wild man was too fleet for the horse, and reaching a small grove, made good his escape. Quite a party of mounted men insisted they had cornered him, when he leaped two or three high fences as easily as could a deer, and finally outran their horses. The circulation of these and similar stories of course soon aroused the whole country, and large parties of horseman scoured the woods in every direction in search of the mysterious being, but to no purpose. They did not catch him, and the good people soon gave up the chase, a majority of them tolerably well satisfied that they had been hoaxed.

Shortly after this the body of a man was found floating in Rock river near Oregon, Ogle county. The body had no clothing, save a pair of pantaloons; it had long matted hair and beard, and was avidently that of a man who had recently, at least, known but little of the comforts or hunanities of life. Several of Mellen's friends went from this city to Oregon to examine the body, and the result was a disagreement as to its identity—one party insisting that it was the body of Mellen, and the other that it was not. The public curiosity was still unsatisfied.

Meantime the police here were actively engaged in trying to ferret out the mystery, but to no purpose. Every body was as much in the dark as ever, and "What has become of Mellen?" was a question far oftener asked than answered.

At the time of Mellen's disappearance, he resided in Division street, nearly opposite the head of Lasalle street, and had a wife and one or two children. He was said to be embarrassed pecuniarily to a considerable extent, and it was also reported that he was jealous of his wife, and had a great deal of difficulty with her. This latter story was, however, indignantly denied by herself and their mutual friends. Mrs. Mellen made every effort to discover her lost husband, but in vain, and time the great cure-all, at least managed her grief, and some three weeks ago, having given up all hope of finding her husband, and believing him dead, she was married to Mr. William Austin, a well known printer of this city, Mrs. M. being Mr. Austin's fourth bride.

The public, which had long ago forgotten, or ceased to think of the "Mellen affair," was considerably exercised by a report that Mellen had returned to the city, in good health and sound mind. From a gentleman who says he conversed with Mellen on the cars, we learn that he reached this city, via the Michigan Southern Railroad, yesterday morning; that Mellen told him he wandered away from the city while laboring under a sudden attack of insanity; that he went from here to Memphis, Tenn., thence to New Orleans, and thence to California; that he worked at various employments there, the last one being that of itinerant preacher to the miners in the "diggins."

Mellen visited his wife, or rather Mrs. Austin, yesterday, and also Mr. Austin. The latter refuses, point blank, to give Mrs. A. up. What the upshot of the affair will be, is not easily guessed. If both insist upon having possession of the lady, a very interesting law suit will doubtless be the result. Mrs. Mellen, or Austin, did not obtain a divorce before her marriage with Austin.

General Intelligence.

Dunkards.—The 'Dunkers,' who abound in considerable numbers in New England, particularly in Massachusetts are German Baptists.—On entering their meeting houses, on Sunday, there is a general kissing all around—the males only kissing males, however, and the females the females. They do not educate for the ministry, but appoint any of their number whom they think has the requisite qualifications.—The 'Dunkers' wear broad-brimmed hats, long beards, and coats of primitive cut, and with no more buttons than are actually necessary.—These are their leading peculsrities of person and worship. They practice abstinence and mortification; and, we believe, deny the eternity of future punishmouts.

Caving In.—The Lake Providence Herald of the 23d says:

We learn that the river bank in front of Ashton, about fifteen miles above this, has commenced caving in very badly, and threatens to carry along with it a large portion of the levee. It is thought that the incursions now going on must finally carry off pretty much all the ground upon which Ashton stands.

We learn, furthermore, that a large extent of levee not far below Napoleon, Ark., has caved in, which it is feared cannot be repaired in time to prevent an overflow, should the river continue rising. If so, the consequences to the lands in the vicinity and in the back country along the Bayou Magon, would prove disastrous in the extreme.

Immigration Statistics.—The figures connected with immigration to the United States present some interesting facts. The whole number of inmigrants that landed at New York during the year was 135,847, against 142,352, in 1856. It is estimated, however, that at least 25,000 returned to Europe during the year, and that among the arrivals were 44,000 Americans. Of the arrivals 78,800 were from Germany, 62,098 from Ireland, 29,502 from England, 5,062 from Scotland, 2,967 from France, 2,456 from Switzerland, 1,789 from Holland and the remainder from various quarters of the world. The amount of specie brought into the United States is about $18,600,000, or $70 per head.—This is an item too often overlooked in noting the movements of specie.

The Utah Expedition.—The Washington correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser says the estimates for the subsistence of troops for the Utah expedition, as based upon the requirements of Lt. Gen. Scott in the order of January 11th, amount to $1,220,000, and are for an aggregate military force of 5600 men, and about 2500 employees. The force of the present expedition is over 1500 men, and embracing civil officers, employees, teamsters, women, servants, &c., it numbers 3000 souls.

Command of the Utah Expedition.—The New York Journal of Commerce, of the 25th ult., learns from "a reliable source" that there is good foundation for the report that Lieut. Gen. Scott will take command of the Utah army, and that it was highly probable he would sail from that port for California in a few days, armed with such powers as circumstances, personal observation and his superior judgment might dictate as desirable.

New York Jan. 19.—The public school house on the corner of Concord and Navy streets, Brooklyn, was burnt this afternoon, owing to some defect in the heater. There were five hundred children in the building when the fire broke out, and the most intense excitement prevailed. In their eagerness to escape seven children were either smothered or trampled to death! Many were only saved by being thrown from the windows and caught in the arms of the firemen and others. The building was the finest school building in the city. It was entirely destroyed.

"The Great United States."—The census of the United States shows that we have two millions and a-half of farmers, one hundred thousand merchants, sixty-four thousand masons, and nearly two hundred thousand carpenters. We have fourteen thousand bakers to make our bread; twenty-four thousand lawyers to set us by the ears; forty thousand doctors to "kill or cure," and fifteen hundred editors to keep this motley mass in order by the power of public opinion controlled and manufactured through the press.

Camels for the Western Territories.—It is stated that a project is on foot to introduce a large number of camels into Texas, Arizonia and New Mexico, at private venture, Lieut. Beale's experiment having proved the vast superiority of these animals over mules for the transportation of passengers and merchandise across the sterile plains toward California.

Printing Plunder.—We see it stated that the gross amount of expense incurred for the public printing, binding, engraving, &c., of the Thirty-Third and Thirty-Fourth Congress has been ascertained to be as follows: Thirty-Third Congress, $2,800,000; Thirdy-Fourth $1,600,000; total in four years, $4,400,000.—Baltimore Patriot.

A Lucky Fellow.—It is stated in a late Irish paper that a baker's porter in Cork, named George Jennings, earning nine shillings a week, has within the past week been declared heir to a property estimated at £3,000,000, together with an estate yielding £50,000 per annum, as the rightful representative of the Jennings, whose property has been for years in the English Court of Chancery.

A Church-Going Dog.—The New Bedford Mercury tells the following: There is a dog owned in Falmouth that has been to church regularly for years, and has also attended punctually all funerals in that town. At the death of his master this dog went to the funeral, and continued to visit the grave for some time, but since that event has never attended another funeral. This dog still continues to go church with his accustomed regularity.

A small printing office was dispatched a few days ago from Paris for Constantinopla. This press is to be worked entirely by the ladies belonging to the harem of one of the great Pachas residing on the Bosphorus. The books intended to be printed are works of amusement, translated from French and English.—The wife of Ribouly Effandi is already preparing a Turkish translation of Thackeray's Newcomes.

A writer in a New York paper calls the attention of navigators to what he states as a fact, that the Gulf Stream has approached, in some sections, nearer to our coast than ever before known, by from 40 to 60 miles, and ascribes to this fact (if it is a fact) an important influence in rendering the winter so mild.

Extravagant.—The Empress Eugenie, of France, recently appeared at a ball wearing jewels whose value was estimated at $800,000, and having flounces of lace on her robe that cost $120,000.

Novel Incendiarism.—A cow broke into a house in Toledo, on Wednesday last, in the absence of the family, and upset the stove, setting the house on fire. The house was burned to the ground, and the cow, being unable to get out, perished in the flames.

Sixty-four Connecticut farmers have given notice to the Mayor of Middletown, that they will, on a certain day, come in with their carts, laden with fuel and provisions for gratuitous distribution to the poor.

Traveling at the West.—A western paper says the only two classes of travelers on our railroads this winter are those who are running away and those who are running after them. Very few ladies have been seen the cars since the panic set in.

The Branch Bank of the State of Tennessee, at Shelbyville, was burned to the ground on the 22d ult. Loss only about $7000 in money, though many valuable papers were destroyed.

The number of bodies dug out after the recent earthquake in Naples, is already 3,655.—It is believed it will reach as high as 18,000 to 14,000 souls.

The gold coinage of the United States since the establishment of the mint in 1792 to the present time is $505,812,940, of which $424,889,738 have been coined since 1849.

It has been calculated by Professor Bache, of the United States Coast Survey, that the waves of the sea travel at the rate of six and a half miles a minute.

Happy Childhood.—Isaac Taylor, in his Treatise on Education, insists on the immense importance to a normal and healthful development of character, that life should begin with a happy childhood. It is in the sphere of a happy domestic circle that the heart's best affections build and blossom, and the elements of manliness and virtue are formed. And is it when existence begins under a cloud; when the child's first experience of life is of unkindness and misery; when want and woe and anger and hatred and cruelty cast their shadows on its birth. Such an existence seems blighted in its beginning. It receives an injury from which it rarely recovers; or if in after life it be partially repaired, there still remains the memory of a wronged nature. The shadow of that early cloud could never wholly depart from the mind. And it is apt to betray its presence in perverted impressions of human nature, and drink gloomy views of life.

Well would it be for man, if on earth the moral laws of God, requiring charity, purity and holiness, were universally obeyed as the physical laws which introduce seed-time and harvest.—Divine mercy in the kingdom of grace is obstructed by man's apathy and indolence, so that, though the sun of righteousness has arisen upon the world, and the dews of truth instilled upon it, the heart of men remains a desert.

Our Daily Bread.—Nothing so clearly illustrates the dependence of men upon the providence of God for their daily bread, as the fact, that while the harvests of the country were never more abundant, there are thousands and hundreds of thousands who are unable to buy what they need, because in the present monetary crisis they have been thrown out of employment, which has hitherto furnished them with the means of support.

When I am assailed with heavy tribulations I rush out among my pigs rather than remain alone by myself. The human heart is like a millstone in a mill, when you put wheat under it, it turns and bruises the wheat to flour; if you put no wheat in it, it still grinds on, but then it is itself it grinds, and wears away.

Loss as Gain.—A poor, simple man once said, "I have lost all my property; I have lost all my relatives; my last son is dead. I have lost my hearing and my eyesight; I am all alone, old and poor; but it makes no difference—Christ never grows old; Christ never is poor; Christ never dies, and Christ never will forsake me."

Speech is morning to the mind. It spreads those beauteous images abroad which else lie furled and clouded in the soul.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of 3d, says:

The week has opened with more general activity, and our leading Southern Staples, Cotton, Sugar and Molasses, have moved off quite freely within the past few days, and at improved prices, while most articles of Western Produce are more readily disposed of at about previous rates.

COTTON—Arrived since the 29th ult., of Louisiana and Mississippi 28,396 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 6125, Arkansas 4375, Mobile 3083, Florida 868, Texas 260; together 42,607 bales. Cleared since same date 16,328 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 2d inst., 379,928 bales.

The business of Saturday was confined to about 4000 bales. On Sunday the Europa's mail came to hand, and on Monday, with a more active and general demand and a somewhat better supply, business was transacted to the extent of about 18,000 bales, the market closing in favor of sellers. Yesterday the demand was renewed with a good degree of activity, but with a less ample supply on sale and still more stringent claims on the part of holders the market presented obstacles to the easy progress of purchasers. A very fair extent of business, however, was transacted, the sales reaching fully 12,000 bales; making a total for the past three days of 38,000 bales, taken for Great Britain, France, the Continent, the North, &c., and the closing prices indicate an improvement since our last report of fully a cent in the Ordinary to Middling grades, which have either been most of the demand within the last day or two. The plain sea port since 1st September (exclusive of [illegible] so classed from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 865,288 bales under the 1,038,131 bales to same date last year; and the actual receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates as compared with last year is 520,715 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 1740 bales to Great Britain, of 21,903 to France, and of 13,538 to other foreign ports.

SUGAR—Louisiana—There has been considerable increase in the arrivals since our last report, but a continued good demand has enabled holders to maintain tolerably firm prices, especially for the Fully Fair to Prime and Choice grades. The sales of the three days sum up about 5500 hhds. We quote as follows:

Inferior	4 a 5
Common to Good Common	5 a 6
Fair to Fully Fair	4 a 5
Prime to Choice	5 a 6
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 a 7½

The Courier of the 3d:

COTTON—The weather was very unfavorable for outdoor business, but some buyers came forward and took 4500 bales at yesterday's prices.

Inferior	5 a 6	Middling	10 a 10½
Ordinary	6½ a 7½	Good Middling	10½ a 10¾
Good Ordinary	8 a 8¾	Middling Fair	11 a —
Low Middling	9½ a 9¾	Fair	nominal

MOLASSES—We hear of a few small lots sold at 20c.

FLOUR—250 bbls superfine St. Louis sold at $4 40.

LARD—66 bbls and tierces No. 1 sold at 8½c.

AT TELEGRAPH.

New York, February 3.—Cotton firm. Flour $4 20 to $4 25. Coffee firm. Wheat very dull. White corn 66 to 68c. Mess pork $15 50 to $15 60. Bacon quiet. Sugar quiet.

Cincinnati, February 3.—Flour $3 60 to $3 75. Wheat 85 to 90c for white, and 8[illegible] to 90c for red. Whisky 15½c. Provisions dull. Mess pork $13 50. Lard, in barrels, 8½c. Hogs $5 50 to $5 75.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Bagging, Kentucky, per yd	13 a 15
East India	11½ a 12
Bale Rope, Kentucky, per lb	8½ a 8¾
Northern	— a —
Beeswax, yellow, per lb	25 a 27
Bricks, Lake, per thousand	10 00 a 12 00
English, Fire	25 00 a 30 00
Bran, per 100 lbs	— a 60
Coffee, Rio, per lb	8½ a 10
Havana, good, pr g'n	12½ a 13
Interior to middling	— a —
Java	15½ a —
Laguayra	11½ a 11¾
Candles, Sperm, per lb	43 a —
Tallow	— a —
Adamantine	20 a 22
Star	16 a 18
Corn Meal, per bbl	— a —
Domestic Goods, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	5 a 6
Sheetings, 4-4 to 8-4	8 a 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	4½ a 10½
Sheetings, 4-4	9 a 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	11½ a 13½
Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	12 a 15
Tickings, ¾ to 4-4	9 a 18
Stripes and Checks	8½ a 16
Denims	7½ a 16
Cottonades	12½ a 25
Satinets	25 a 75
Calico Prints	5 a 15
Jeans, Kentucky	40 a 45
Linseys, Kentucky	30 a 35
Eastern	18 a 22
Duck, Russia, per bolt	— a —
English	10 00 a 16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 pr yd	19 a 27
Dyes, Indigo, per lb	40 a 1 20
Flour, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	— a 4 26
Illinois and Missouri	4 25 a 4 37
St. Louis City	4 30 a 4 33
Feathers, per lb	38 a 40
Fish, Cod, per box	1 25 a —
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 a 14 00
No. 2	10 00 a 13 00
No. 3	8 50 a 10 50
Herring, per box	35 a 55
Fruit, Prunes, per lb	8 12 a 15
Raisins MR, per box	2 00 a 2 12½
Lemons	2 00 a 2 50
Currants, Zante	— a —
Almonds, soft shell	— a —
hard shell	— a —
Furs, raccoon, per skin	5 a 25
Grain, Wheat, per bushel	70 a 1 20
Oats	38 a 41
Corn, in ear, per bbl	— a —
shelled, per bushel	35 a 60
Beans, per bbl	3 50 a 3 00
Gunpowder, common, per keg	4 00 a —
Sporting	7 00 a —
Glass, per box of 50 feet
American, 8 x 10	1 80 a 1 90
10 x 12	1 90 a 2 10
12 x 18	2 30 a 2 60
Hay, per ton	16 00 a 18 00
Hides, W. I. & Mex. flint, per lb	11½ a 12½
Dry salted Mexican	— a —
Wet salted, heavy	4 a 5
Dry, country	7 a 8
Kip and Calf	6 a 8
Iron, pig, per ton	36 00 a —
Country bar, per lb	4½ a 5
English, per ton	85 00 a 95 00
Swedes, assorted	112 00 a 134 00
Hoop, per lb	4½ a 7½
Sheet	5 a 7½
Nail Rods	6½ a 8
Castings, American	— a 6
Lumber, yard prices:
Boards, pine, white, per M ft	25 a 60
yellow	15 a 20
Cypress	25 a 40
Staves, p. o., per 1200	80 a 120
white oak hhd. o	90 a 110
French butts	70 a 95
white oak heading	40 a 50
Lead, pig, per 100 lbs	— a 6
Bar, per lb	7½ a 8½
Sheet	— a 9½
Lime, Western, per bbl	— a —
Thomaston	1 50 a —
Molasses, in the city, per gal	12½ a 18
On plantation	16 a —
Moss, rough, per lb	1½ a 4
Nails, 4d to 20d, per lb	3 a 4½
Provisions, per bbl
Beef, Mess, Northern	— a 15 00
" " Western	12 a 13 00
" " half bbl	8 50 a —
India mess, per tierce	— a —
Prime mess	13 a —
Prime, per bbl	7 50 a 12 50
B. Beef	5 50 a 7 50
Dried, per lb	7½ a 8½
Tongues, per dozen	6 a —
Pork, Clear, per bbl	— a —
Mess	14 a —
M. O.	13 50 a 13 75
Prime	11 25 a 11 75
P. O	— a —
Hoground, per lb	— a —
Bacon, Hams, per lb	— a —
Do. canvassed	13 a 14
Sides	7½ a 8
Shoulders	7½ a —
Lard	7½ a 8½
Butter, Goshen	28 a 29
Western	16 a 18
Cheese, American	8½ a 12
Potatoes, per bbl	1 50 a 1 75
Rice, Carolina, per lb	3½ a 5½
Sugar, Louisiana, per lb
In the City	3½ a 6½
On Plantation	3 a 6
Havana, white	14½ a 16
Yellow	12½ a 13
Brown	11½ a 13
Cuonruche	— a —
Muscovado	8½ a 11
Loaf, Northern	15 a 15½
Loaf, Western	13 a 13½
Crushed, Northern	13½ a 15
Clarified	12 a 12½
Salt, Liverpool fine, sack, cargo	55 a —
from store	85 a —
coarse, cargo	45 a 46
from store	55 a 65
Turks Island, per bushel	11 a 12
Cadiz	10 a 12

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NEW ENGRAVINGS.

Beautiful steel engravings of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The above have just been received at the Depository, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. The size of them Engravings is 20 by 26 inches, printed on the best heavy English plate paper, the India proof copies being faced with fine India paper, delicately flesh-tinted

Price of plate copies.....$1 50 | India proof copies.....$2 00
Colored Copies.....3 00. Nov 14

DR. BAAKEE

TREATS ALL DISEASES FREE OF CHARGE.

Doctor Baakee will also give special attention to the following diseases: Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Croup, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all other di

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

HOME OF CHILDHOOD.

BY SALLIE M. WHITE.

Nowhere has summer sunset's burning blush
Gildamed the rock-crowned hills with coronals
Of sacred light as dear to true, young hearts,
Or tinged the valleys with as soft a glow,
As where the sheltered dingles folded up
The parting sunlight to their quiet breasts.

Nowhere has gentle spring
Tripped over the delicate petals of the flowers
So lightly, that her fairy steppings fell
Like music on my heart, as on the slopes,
Dotted and set with violets; where the boughs,
Quivering with trembling weight of happy birds,
Waved lightly; when in greenwood bowers she stood Veiled from her breeze-lulled slumbers.

'Twas there that summer noon,
A sylvan queen, resting on mossy couch,
Slumbered in beauty like a fair-haired maid
Upon a rosy pillow. The wild flower drooped
To touch the sunny velvet of her lips,
And laughing streams that softly kissed her feet
With waves transparent, dashed the sunlit spray,
In shower prismatic over glistening rocks,
To tinging dells below.

There, autumn voices sang
Their solemn praises in those temples old,
And sympathetic winds, in melody,
Breathed out their hymnings from the hoarse, deep caves,
And through the columned aisles and arches proud,
In swelling music peals, went up to God
In nature's grand doxology.

There, in the glorious night,
Aurora Borealis' mystic fires,
Like burning mountains on a cloudless sphere,
Made scenes of grandeur on the wintry north:
There, in the wintry morn, the rising sun
Glistening in countless diamonds of snow,
Danced merrily on earth's fair winding sheet.

'Twas there my youthful lyre
First breathed its awkward, untaught minstrelsy;
And there its warblings first kept faithful time
To every beat of nature's truthful heart:
First caught the fires poetic that still burn
Prisoned, but not extinguished, in my breast;
And hidden, save when some wild melody
Touches a sensitive string and sends a thrill
From my heart out into my song.

Memories of the past,
Ye come up to my soul as soft and fair
As golden sunshine on the young, green leaves
After a summer rain; or like the dews
Of June's long evening to the thirsty bud,
That gladly in its roseate covering folds
The pearl-drop in its bosom.

Love bathes the drooping flowers
That blossom in the Eden of my heart,
With grateful showers, and the bright, blessed sun
Of sacred promise fast matures the hopes
That through our life and resurrection points
To the loved dust that in the days long syne
Made childhood's home so beautiful and fair;
Now safe within their better home in Heaven.

Waterproof, La.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

[Though an obituary of the subject of the following biographical sketch has already appeared in our columns, this additional and deserved tribute may be allowed.—Ed.]

ISAAC TAYLOR, the subject of this notice, was born in Pittsburg, Penn., in 1774, and came to the Territory of Mississippi in 1780, with his father, who settled near Natchez, in what is now Adams county, Ms., then, under Spanish government. His parents dying soon after their removal to the South, he was left without the means to secure an education, the country at that time affording no facilities in the way of schools. Applying himself diligently to such means as were within his reach, he acquired much useful knowledge and made himself a tolerable scholar. Although left without parental care or religious instruction, he grew up an honest, upright man.

In 1803 he was married to Mrs Mary Simpson. At this early period there were no churches, no houses of religious worship, and the pioneer Methodist preachers availed themselves of the few private dwellings that were offered, in which to preach the word of life.

Isaac Taylor's dwelling became one of the regular preaching places and the preacher's home. His wife united with the society organized in their house, very soon after it was formed. In 1810, under the ministry of Johnson and Sellers, bro. Taylor was converted and united with the Church in his own house. In 1814-15 he joined Gen. Jackson's army, and was in the battle of New Orleans. In 1819 he removed, with his family, to this parish, and has resided for nearly forty years on the place where he died.

For almost thirty years he was a class leader and an exhorter in the M. E. Church. His labor of love was not confined to the house of God; at home or abroad he was ready to work as his way was opened, or as circumstances required. He had always a word of exhortation for the thoughtless and prayerless—a word of kind admonition to the wandering and encouragement for the halting and doubting pilgrim. The command of God, given to his ancient people, was equally applicable to him: "Thou shalt teach these words diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down and when thou risest up." His diligence in thus serving God was abundantly rewarded. His children "grew up as olive plants around" him: he lived to see them all converted. Two of them, a son and daughter, died in the faith after they had reached maturity. His wife, the mother of his children, after sharing with him the joys and sorrows of life for fifty years, was removed to a better country, "rising on heavenly." With a heart softened and subdued by affliction, the bereaved husband and father pressed on in the way of peace, striving daily "to walk with with God;" and as his journey shortened with each hour of life that faded, "a purer light" seemed to "mark the road," shining more and more unto the perfect day.

In the church, money and benevolence won for him the gratitude of the orphan, the widow, the friendless, and the needy. His integrity and uprightness, as a member of society, secured to him the esteem, respect, and confidence of his fellow citizens. He was emphatically a man of peace. Amid the vicissitudes of life, its changes, trials, and inevitable incident to more than four score years, he was never involved in a personal difficulty with any one. He was the friend of all; and lived and died beloved of all. God had blessed the labor of his hands. In his temporal business he was abundantly successful, and died at the close of life, very independent.

One so intimately useful will please, deserves a more extended notice than the limits of a newspaper will allow, but this brief and imperfect sketch must be closed.

About the 20th of December last, Father Taylor was attacked with pneumonia. His sufferings at first seemed quite severe, but gradually grew less, and he seemed quietly and calmly to sink to rest. The writer of this notice was intimately with him, during his illness, and conversed freely and pointedly with him in reference to his hopes and prospects. His trust and confidence in God were unshaken to the last: his hope was full of immortality.

[illegible] in view
[illegible] a dying pillow."
[illegible] Dec. 31, 1857, at 9 o'clock
[illegible] the rest which remains for the people
[illegible] followed in the family burying ground,
[illegible] where he [illegible] no long resided.

[illegible] righteous when he dies,
[illegible] a sweet smell to [illegible]

"So fades a summer cloud away;
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er;
So gently shuts the eye of day;
So dies a wave along the shore."

A FRIEND.

DIED—Nov. 20, 1857, at the age of 25, B. M. COALEY. He was of pious parentage, and could say with the young man in the gospel, "All these things have I kept, from my youth up." Though upright, he felt that all was not well: he had not the peace flowing from an assurance of pardoned sin. In 1854 he joined the Church and lived a consistent member. The writer was his class leader. In the class meeting we had times of refreshing. There he showed a desire to leave first principles behind and go on to perfection. In his sickness, he asked me to pray for him—never that he might recover but that his faith might not fail. Just before dying he said, "Sing." What shall we sing? "Sing

"O for a thousand tongues," etc.,

Raised the tune himself and sung first two verses. He had no fear. The sting of death was gone.

P. GRAVES.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

THE BROTHERS.

BY PHOEBE CAREY.

We had no home, we only had
A shelter for our head:
How poor we were, how scantily
We all were clothed and fed!
But though a wretched little child,
I know not why nr how,
I did not feel it half so much
As I can feel it now!

When mother sat at night and sewed,
My rest was calm and deep;
I did not know that she was tired,
Or that she needed sleep.
She wrapped the covering round our bed,
In many an ample fold;
She had not half so much herself
To keep her from the cold.

I know it now, I know it all—
They knew it then above—
Her life of patient sacrifice,
And never-tiring love.
I know, for then her tasks seemed done—
We all were grown beside—
How glad she must have been to go
After the baby died!

I do not care to deck me now,
With costly robe or gaud—
My mother dressed so plain at home,
And never went abroad.
I do not ever want a shroud
Of linen, white and pure—
She made our little baby one
That was so coarse and poor.

I had another brother then,
I prayed that God would save;
I knew not that I chose between
The prison and the grave.
I did not know, when a'er the dead
So bitterly I cried,
I'd live to wish a thousand times
The other, too, had died.

ABOUT HORSES.

We are about to tell little boys and girls who are in the habit of reading this column something in relation to animals, which we hope they will understand, and which we trust will possess interest for them. Once upon a time we were walking along one of the highways leading into our village. It was a warm, pleasant afternoon in summer, and as we listened to the rustling of the corn leaves, just stirred by a gentle wind, heard the soft twittering of the birds, and looked at the calm blue sky arching overhead, we thought how very good God was to give us so beautiful a world for our home, when all of a sudden we were startled by such a terrible noise, that fearing some danger was at hand, we got out of the way as quickly as possible, and on looking around to discover the occasion of it, we saw three great boys in a wagon. A little pony was hitched to this rattling vehicle, the boys were shouting and laughing at the very top of their voices, and every moment giving the pony a stroke with a long whip which they carried, the lash at each blow making a loud, cracking noise, which seemed to delight them very much, while the poor little animal, almost frightened to death, was doing its utmost to get over the ground. We had often before noticed this pony; it was so thin and poor, that it was enough to make any one feel sorry just to look at it; and now, as it dashed past, covered with foam and sweat, we knew that it was only prevented, by its great terror, from tottering and falling over with weakness. Now, perhaps these boys did not intend to commit a great wickedness; perhaps they were only thoughtless, and did not consider how much pain and suffering they were giving to a creature formed by God for the use and comfort of man. If so, we should be sorry for them; and "even as a child is known by his doings," children who are taught better, should strive by a good example to influence others in the cause of humanity.

Another time a man had a pair of lean, miserable looking horses, in a wagon loaded with barrels of salt. The load was too heavy for them to draw; and although all were exerting themselves to the utmost, they could not stir it an inch. Still the cruel whip, time. On swing at them, and beating again and again, with the whip, which was covered with [illegible] called a carter's whip. At last the poor animals, making a desperate effort to move it, in the attempt one of them ruptured a blood vessel; in a moment, the blood pouring from his mouth and nostrils, had dyed the earth all around, and lying down in the harness, in a few minutes more he was dead.

This you will, perhaps, think was a happy release from its troubles; and so it was, and a signal punishment for the hard hearted owner, who was a poor man, and not in a situation to lose a faithful animal, which had helped him to earn a support for his family. After this we hope he was more merciful; but however this may be, what we wish at present is to urge upon the young kindness and gentleness to all dumb creatures. Even in teaching them to work, or to perform any duty, it is not necessary to be harsh or cruel; and it is surprising to any one accustomed to notice these things, how soon they may be taught to manifest pleasure, rather than fear, at the sight of one who is kind to them; and as the design of this little sketch was to speak more particularly about horses, as they are probably more subject to abuse and oppression than any of God's creatures, we will relate, (as nearly as we can recollect,) an anecdote of one of them, which is told by a christian lady who resided in England.

She was in the habit of sitting in a room, from which a window opened into a park, where a colt was allowed to run in order to eat the grass. One day, while watching his graceful movements, running and playing about, the thought struck her that she would try how far this animal could be taught, by kindness, to manifest gratitude or affection; and she got into the habit of keeping something at hand for him to eat, such as a piece of bread, an apple, or a handful of oats, and of offering it to him, and caressing him with her hand whenever he came near enough to the window to enable her to do so; until at length he became so familiar that he would stand with his head and neck stretched into the room for hours at a time, apparently watching her while she would continue either to read or sew, and in all his gambols he would contrive to keep within sight of the window that commanded a view of his only friend. At length the time came when it was necessary to break him to the use of the bridle and saddle; but the spirited creature threw the groom from his back, and would not allow any one about the premises to mount him until his friend, hearing of it, made her appearance, when, much to the surprise of every one, he allowed her to get into the saddle, and many a day afterwards he carried her along, safely and pleasantly upon his back.

It is not always, however, that creatures without reason display so much intelligence, yet as we have before said, the most stupid of them give evidence that they regard those who are kind to them; and when we think how few enjoyments these poor dumb brutes have in their short lives, how scanty many times is their food, and how severe their toil, every one should strive to avoid making their lot harder than it must necessarily be. If you will turn to the last chapter of the book of Jonah, you will find that God also regards this portion of his creation with a pitying eye. Jonah was angry because God did not destroy Ninoveh, and God told him that he (Jonah) was grieving for a gourd, "which came up in a night and perished in a night." Yet he was angry because he did not destroy a great city, "wherein are more than six score thousand persons, that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle." Thus you see God knew exactly how many little children there were in this city. He had numbered them all. There were six score thousand that did not know their right hand from their left; and also much cattle; so that no one, either great or small, need ever hope to escape his all-seeing eye. And we trust every little reader will remember that, especially if they are tempted to forget him who made them, or to be cruel or unkind to his creatures.—Presbyterian.

A LITTLE METHODIST.

Let me tell the children about a little Methodist. He is only five years old. A short time ago a circus came to our village. When the wagons and animals passed the house where he lived, he ran in, saying:

"There, now, our minister will have to go right away to his room and say his prayers, for the circus is coming!"

While many boys were very glad to go to the circus, this little boy did not even ask to go. Some one asking him why he did not go, he replied:

"Why, I couldn't go, because I am a Methodist."

I wish some of the grown-up Methodists that I wot of would say as much when the circus comes round.

Our little Methodist prays also. One Sabbath, after hearing a boy use bad language, he went to his grandmother, and said:

"Grandma, I want to go into the room and pray for Charley, he has been using bad words."

He went in, and, with tears rolling down his little cheeks, he prayed God "to forgive Charley for saying bad words, and to make him a good boy."—S. S. Adv.

GRATITUDE.—Shall our gracious God watch over us through the heat and burden of the day, and shall we devour the food which he provides for us at night, with hands we have never raised in prayer, and lips which have never praised him?

PROFESSIONAL.

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Worms, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my 9 1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. E. LAURENS.
LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS.

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN P WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. ny2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au2 1y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. V. PAYNE.
Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 46 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. U. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. BURTLETON. WM M. HARRISON.
Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

R. L. WARREN, New Orleans. REMY. C. BUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.
Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 87 Carondelet street, New Orleans. ja28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

T. T. TWITTY.
COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes., No. 93 Gravier street New Orleans. mh18m

BUSINESS CARDS.

O. P. LATTING. B. W. NEUTZ.
LATTING & NEUTZ,
GROCERS, 99 CAMP STREET.
Refer to Messrs. Hitchcock & Latting, Jos Sexton & Co., Paul Cook & Co., and Mr. Charles F. Burkett. n14 6m
JOHN BOLLMS. L. CLAUSS

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. n7s0

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—LADIES—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices. L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN. A. MONTGOMERY.
F. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. GEO. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS.
s19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box, No 386 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS I BELLS II BELLS III BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my18-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
jan18-13t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Manning's & Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS. HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
sp26 55 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 40 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All Kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE and fancy goods, CANE STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES.
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

VAN BIBBER HOUSE,
CORNER CARONDELET AND POYDRAS STREETS,
NEW ORLEANS.
I HAVE leased the above House, and have newly furnished it throughout, and it is now open for the reception of Regular Boarders and the Traveling Public. With an experience of seventeen years at the business in Louisiana and Texas, I flatter myself that I will share a liberal portion of public patronage.
I will also act as Agent for distant friends for the purchase or sale of any article in this market. HENRY VAN BIBBER. o31-3m

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine, our stock before purchasing else where. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the au COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap20-6m

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual

DIRECTORS:

H Huntington,	Charles Bowers,	Job Allyn,
Albert Day,	Henry Keney,	John P. Brace
James Goodwin,	Calvin Day,	Charles J. Russ.

H. HUNTINGTON, President.
R. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
Jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Plantation Drug Store.
JUST received at the Plantation Drug Store of R. H. READ, 84 Common street, per ship Andova, a superior lot of VARNISHES. Also on hand a fine assortment of PAINTS, OILS, WHITE LEAD, PAINT BRUSHES, &c., all low for cash or short paper.
PLANTATION MEDICINES, PERFUMERY, and STATIONERY, at the most reasonable rates.
Also, READ'S COUGH MIXTURE, a pleasant and reliable remedy for ailings of the Throat and Chest. If the article offered does not cure or relieve the afflicted, the money will be promptly returned.
nov 21 R. H. READ, 84 Common street.

EDUCATIONAL.

HOMER COLLEGE.
THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASSIN, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 5th of October, 1857.
FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN P. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. BLOOMFIELD, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLCOTT, D. D., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep26

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 27th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

Emory and Henry College,
WASHINGTON COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
THE Spring Session begins on 14th January, and closes on 9th June following. The College charges for five months, including Tuition, Board, Fuel, Washing, and Incidentals, will be $71 25. For a catalogue or for other expenses, address jan 9-2m E. E. WILEY, Pres't., Emory postoffice, Va.

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 26, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: then S. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas, parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. D. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants,
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.
COFFEE, SUGAR, TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES, RICE,
MACKAREL and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetically Sealed Cans,
WHALE, LARD, LINSEED and CASTOR OILS, STAR and SPERM CANDLES,
CLARET, CHERRY, MADEIRA and PORT WINE, ANISETTE, and other CORDIALS,
SCOTCH and PHILADELPHIA ALE, LONDON and PHILADELPHIA PORTER,
TOBACCO direct from Virginia, SEGARS, Havana and German
SPICES, PICKLES, CATSUPS, PRESERVES, ALMONDS, RAISINS and other Fruits,
ROCK, ASSORTED and FANCY CANDY, TUMBLERS, FLASKS and other GLASSWARE,
LETTER and WRAPPING PAPER of all kinds,
WOOD and WILLOW WARE, MANILLA CORDAGE,
POWDER and SHOT, YEAST POWDERS, SNUFF of all kinds,
and all other articles connected with the general grocery business.
Drugs.
SULPHATE QUININE, ACETIC, CITRIC, TART and other ACIDS,
AQ. AMMONIA, SPIRITS NITRE, HAIR. COPAIBA, English and American BLUEMASS
CALOMEL and all other MERCURIALS, CHLOROFORM, BORAX,
CANTHARIDES, IPECAC, RHUBARB, DOVERS POWDERS EPSOM SALTS
COPPERAS, ROLL and flor SULPHUR, ADHESIVE SELECT POWDERS generally,
PLASTERS, LUBINS and other Extracts, GELATINE,
GUM ARABIC, OPIUM, MYRRH, CAMPHOR, etc., ESSENTIAL OILS,
IODIDE POTASSE, IODINE, STRYCHNINE, MORPHINE, SALTPETRE,
SEIDLITZ and SODA POWDERS, SPONGE, PAINTS, PAINT and other BRUSHES, GOLD LEAF,
LABELS; PERFUMERY, BLANK BOOKS, STATIONERY and all articles used by dealers in Drugs.
White Lead. Agents for the Philadelphia Depot Manufactories, J. P. & W. WETHERILL, L. N. LEWIS,
Agents for LEWIS & BROS. Colors and Zinc Paints,
SULPHATE QUININE, sold only in packages not less than fifty ounces;
MALT and HOPS, a constant supply for Brewers use. a11-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple
He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and rising ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheumatism.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have not tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no ifs nor ands, buts nor buts about it, in nine cases, but not yours. I peddled over a dozen bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of 80. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh is soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle. One dose will relieve any child from worms, and one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and deafness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and it has been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite as well, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

Southern Machinery Depot.
PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES from 2 1-2 to 15 horse power. STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES, from 15 to 50 horse power. PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut 3m 3000 to 10,000 feet of lumber per day.
CORN MILLS, from 14 to inches, made of best French solid Burr Stones.
DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.
WELL PUMPS, to lift any required water from wells 100 ft. deep Rudder and Sole BELTING, Hickerson and Lead PIPE, Carpenters', Blind, Sash, and Carriage Makers' AMERICAN MACHINERY, TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulay SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.
For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. LOWRIER & CO., 98 Magazine street. n7

G. TIEMAN
Merchant-Tailor,
85 GRAVIER STREET,
HAS always on hand a choice and well selected stock of Spring, Winter and Summer goods. Persons in the country wishing to leave their measure can be supplied at any time and on reasonable terms. dec5

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

IT IS NOT A DYE!
MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
World's Hair Restorer
AND
WORLD'S HAIR DRESSING.
THE ONLY PREPARATIONS THAT HAVE A
EUROPEAN REPUTATION!!
The Restorer, used with the Zylobalsamum or Dressing, cures diseases of the hair and scalp, and RESTORES GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL COLOR!
The Zylobalsamum or Dressing used alone is the best hair dressing extant for young or old.
We take pleasure in presenting the following unsolicited proofs that these are the best preparations either in Europe or America. They contain no deleterious ingredients—do not soil or stain any thing.
GREAT BRITAIN.
REV. W. B. THORNELOE, Prescot, Lancashire, says, "Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum are perfect marvels. After using them six weeks, my extremely gray hair is restored to its natural color. I am satisfied it is not a dye."
HAYTI.
REV. MRS. E. C. ANDRUS, *for many years Missionary

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 2. WHOLE NUMBER 366.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 13, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP ST.

Foreign Correspondence.

THE ASCENT OF MOUNT VESUVIUS.

Our party of six, left the city of Naples for a view of this grand phenomena of nature, a volcano, and took a carriage for a drive part of the way up to a place called the Hermitage, occupied by a monk, who keeps refreshments for strangers and a chapel for devotees. We proceeded up the Mount in a winding way, over a most excellent road paved with lava, which affords the traveler a fine view of the country below, with the bay and city of Naples, presenting a prospect of great variety.

We stopped at the Hermitage, where guides with mules were in waiting, if we choose to ride; but our party preferred walking a part of the way, and taking each a guide, passed through a valley of lava which was supposed to have been the crater in the days of Pompey, now filled up with a hard bed of that deposit, without any vegetation. On one side a bold, rough ridge of rocks, of the same material, rose to a vast height, extending a considerable distance around Vesuvius like a wall of defense. We passed along between them in a narrow, rough pathway, composed of cinders thrown down the mountain side, where the streams of lava are seen pouring in every variety of form. In this walk we had a more perfect view of the surrounding scenes, with the lofty summits of Vesuvius above and the Mediterranean below, with the beautiful bay of Naples stretching out into the sea, its placid waters scarcely ruffled by a breeze. The day was perfectly delightful, and the surface of the bay appeared like a mirrior to reflect the glorious sunset, which burst upon our vision as we reached that elevated position, where we stood and watched his last rays as they flashed over the bosom of the deep, making a pathway of light as his broad disc sank behind its dark blue wave and tinged the distant hills with his beams. This view alone was enough to compensate us for our efforts. The deep blue sky above and the after glow of crimson and gold blending with azure around the whole horizon and reaching away up into the vault of heaven after the sun had retired, was extremely beautiful; and although the gray mist had enveloped the city and valley, partially obscuring their sight, yet the soft, violet tints of subdued light peculiar to this climate tinged the hazy mist, harmonized with the magnificent scene, and gave an additional charm to all surrounding objects.

We had not designed ascending the mountain in the night, but had been detained on our way longer than we anticipated. The ascent looked so dark and formidable and the mountain rose before us in such a wild, terrific aspect and fiery brow, that some of our party shrunk at the thought, and proposed to return; but the majority prevailed, and with our guides and military officer we started again to reach the height of this tremendous volcano, throwing out smoke and burning lava roaring down its sides in streams of liquid light. At the base of the last summit we found chairs, like palanquins, to carry us, with an additional number of men, ready to convey us up the difficult and almost precipitous pathway upon their shoulders. Two ladies, with myself and one gentleman, whose strength had failed, took seats in these. Dr. K. and our Irish friend preferred their own feet. The scene was ludicrous in the highest degree. Four strong, swarthy looking Italians, with a mountainous costume, were attached to each palanquin or chair, and when moving up hill looked like a caravan in the desert. We had twenty-five of these wild looking men along in our train, and it was wonderful how they could carry us upon their shoulders up such a declivity, in a pathway composed of cinders, piles upon piles, like those of a smith's shop, only larger and still more rough, without danger, was astonishing; yet they are so accustomed to the business, and every track and turn of the road is so well known, that they bore us along with comparative facility. One of the party, the Irish gentleman, lost his way, made a false step and plunged into this scoria up to his chin, and found it difficult to extricate himself. As we ascended the mountain the flames grew brighter, and the columns of smoke rose like a cloud of amber, floating in graceful curves around its lofty brow, wreathing it with a radiance of unearthly beauty, through which the moon, though not full, shone in a crescent form most brightly,

"Shadowy to set off the face of things,"

And the sky, in relief of this scene of transcendant brightness, was so transparent and clear, that the eye seemed to pierce its inner depths of celestial beauty, giving the smoke and flames in contrast something of the glow and light of Raphael's transfiguration on the Mount. We were landed at the summit with perfect safety, and seated ourselves upon a rock of lava to witness a scene of unparalleled magnificence which lies not in the power of mortals fully to describe. Such a display of splendor, sublimity and earthly glory as burst upon our eyes, never met them before. It was Vesuvius on fire! And there we were with its light and flame all around us! The late eruptions had thrown up two cones, one of them 200 feet high, the other much less, filling up the old crater and forming two new ones! And instead of standing upon its edge and looking down into depths below, we looked up and saw from the crater of the most lofty cone tremendous volumes of lava, like sheets of flame, throwing up 1500 feet in the air and come down in showers of rockets, as if the whole planetary system had left their orbits and gathered here to pave this magnificent cone with stars sparkling in their own radiance. Their light did not go out until another shower followed, which kept one perfect blaze of dazzling light, relieved by a dark ground of cinders, black as ebony, rendering the brightness of the fallen lava more dazzling. These blazing cinders were thrown at a great distance and fell all around us, and the whole heavens were illuminated by their splendor, The smaller cone kept up a ceaseless action, and sent forth its volumes of smoke and lava all the time, though not so powerful; but the whole place was glowing with splendor—too sublimely grand, too vast for the grasp of thought, or of language to express. It was the climax of the majesty and sublimity of God's own works—the display of His mighty power. Nothing upon this earth did we ever see to compare with it, except the Falls of Niagara—one of fire, the other of water, in contrast—the two wonders of the world.

The atmosphere around these mountains was like winter; but this great furnace kept us comfortably warm above, and the rocks of lava being all heated felt warm at our feet. We have had fresh eggs well cooked in the lava rolling below our feet; but the sulphureous odor was strongly inhaled in some places, and its streams had so whitened the rocks on the mountain side and in the valley as to render them visible in the darkness.

We did not like to leave this place of solitary grandeur, and could have remained all night and watched its dazzling splendor, but were compelled to go. We found the descent as singular as the ascent. Our pathway back was almost perpendicular, lying through a bed of sand upon solid ground of lava, which, though ankle deep, would give way and down we would slide several feet at a time, followed by rocks which would fasten our clothes to the sand, out of which we could not extricate ourselves without the aid of our guides, who held each by the hand. We reached the Hermitage, and were refreshed by a cup of coffee, and took our seats again in the carriage for Naples, after one of the most interesting excursions we have ever taken in all our travels in Europe or on the Continent, and with impressions of the terrible sublime never to be erased.

In our drive up we found people living in the recesses of these mountains upon green spots, directly under the crater, without fear. Small huts were seen, and men digging up the soil along the sides of the lava, which served for a fence, to cultivate vegetables; and large flocks of goats were browsing upon the stunted shrubs which grew upon its thin surface. How strange that these places are sought for habitations, when thousands of acres of the most productive soil lies in a waste, uncultivated! They make terraces among rocks, as if land was scarce and population dense; but it suits the cultivation of the vine, and that may be the cause, or the bad government, which makes no suitable provision for the poor.

S. B. THOMAS.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

PROPOSITIONS

To the Bishops and Preachers of the Methodist Church.

BRETHREN: Our Church is inherently strong in organic structure, numbers, wealth, native intellect and active itinerant agency. It is also self-adjusting; and can modify its action to suit the changing tide of events, without losing its identity. It consequently combines as many essential elements for grand moral and benevolent enterprise as any organization on earth. Permit me, with becoming humility, to suggest the propriety of some change in our present system, with a view to the more efficient development of the literature function and moral power of the Church.

For the sake of order, let us first notice the proposed change. Second, the reasons for such change. Third, our ability to make such change. Fourth, the probable results of such change. Let us dispense with all our monthly and quarterly periodicals, and our Tract Society, with all its expensive paraphernalia of agents, agencies, and colporteurs; put all the funds invested in these in a Central Publishing Establishment; and substitute for them a tri-weekly sheet issued on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Each sheet to come out in neat pamphlet form, royal octavo, on good paper, in bold type, and double columns. Make Tuesday's issue the central general organ for the whole Church. In this publish 1st, all the Episcopal correspondence and all matter of general interest and general application to the whole Church. Second, selections from the fugitive productions of sanctified genius—(a substitute for the Home Circle.) Third, one premium tract every week.—(substitute for Tract Society.) Fourth, a regular series of short, racy articles on the civil, social, domestic, moral and religious duties of Christians. Fifth, agricultural articles on field, meadow, orchard and garden culture and improvement. Sixth, such miscellaneous matter as would be suited to a Church periodical. Seventh, obituary notices—Wesleyan in size. Eighth, statistical and exchange tables, telegraph, etc. Make the Thursday's issue a historical repository, and cyclopedia, accompanied by the requisite charts, maps, plates, diagrams and figures for illustration. As this periodical is intended for general instruction, the instruction should be elementary, and simplified to the comprehension of the masses; then it will be intelligible to all. In the Saturday's issue have three departments: 1st, a literary review; 2d, theological review; 3d, a biographical repository. Make this issue such, both in matter and manner, that it shall deservedly stand in the front rank of this class of periodicals. All the editors ought to be ripe scholars, ready writers, and deeply pious—men who could realize that they were touching keys which would give out their notes over the vast expanse of eternity. And every subject treated should be elucidated with frequent and pious reference to the power, wisdom and beneficence of God, (as in the Bridgewater treatise;) so that the reader may be distinctly impressed with the idea, that everywhere he is in society with Godhead: And last but not least, let the first article in each weekly issue of every sheet be a chapter of the sacred Scriptures, with short expository notes. Then shall we have what we need, a sanctified and sanctifying literature.

We have failed, signally, to accomplish what we wish—a general diffusion of sound, sanctifying literature among the masses under our pastoral supervision. The cause must be sought in a defective system. We live in a fast age. With many readers, the habit of mental deglutition is incredibly gormandistic; and there is a corresponding morbid activity in the whole chilopoetic viscera of mental structure requiring fast feeding in this fast age. Weekly and tri-weekly issues are read with avidity, while monthly and quarterly issues, of the same matter, fall stillborn from the press. This accords with the soundest deductions of philosophy; for if the intervals be long between the presentations of a subject to the mind, it loses the chain and its interest in the subject; but if the intervals be short both are preserved. Our monthlies and quarterlies have all had a sickly existence and feeble circulation, and our Quarterly Review is now bankrupt. Hence the importance of a tri-weekly system. It will operate like a great muscular heart in our body politic, which, by its tri-weekly pulsating, will throw a rejuvenating lifeblood current through our whole organization. If this system be adopted, let us abrogate the charters of the local tract corporations, and turn the invested funds over to the central establishment; and to meet our pledges to the stockholders, give them the fine Bible, 7 per cent. per annum in good books, and 3 per cent. per annum in our new periodicals; which would be more acceptable to them than the present system. The probable effect which the new system would have on our local Church Advocates, would be so to abridge the editorial and press work, and size of the sheet, as to bring all to a fair sized one dollar per annum sheet.

To show the necessity of a general Church organ, take one instance. Suppose an important Episcopal communication has to be laid before the whole Church. It is first worked off at one office thence it is sent to six other offices, and the process repeated at each, attended with tedious delays. Then we have seven editors, seven sets of type setters, seven sets of press workers, and seven presses, to do what one can. Give such matter one insertion in a general Church organ, and in a few days our steam-driven 'colporteur'—U. S. mail—delivers it at every man's door. No one will question the importance of the proposed Saturday issue; but some question the propriety of the Thursday issue, alleging, 1st, it will occupy ground which is not an appropriate field for Church occupancy; 2d, even if it were, the subjects treated are those with which most persons are made familiar in schooldays; and 3d, those who are not, are so low intellectually, that on them the labor will be lost. In reply, I ask, Is the general diffusion of sound useful information necessary? Necessary for the development of the mental and moral attributes of the multitudes who are under our pastoral care? Necessary for the well being and progress of society? And is there a corresponding obligation to furnish supply? On whom does this obligation rest? Is the Church of God divinely exempted? As "Stewards of the manifold grace of God," will not our responsibility be measured by the rule, "A man shall be judged according to that he hath?" But the objection assumes that the Church ought to abandon the wide field of science and nature, where, amid the grandeurs and sublimities of the most gorgeous scenery, systems, suns, and planets, with their accurately adjusted centripetal and centrifugal forces; their mutual attractions and relative positions; the nicely arranged particles and relations of organized matter; their thousand varying forms, diversified colors, inherent properties, and elementary nature; and their still more delicate structure, exhibited in animated nature: the field where so many impressive lessons may be piously taught and learned concerning Godhead; where such overwhelming demonstrations of Godlike design, power, wisdom, and beneficence are displayed. What! the Church of God divinely interdicted from the occupancy of such holy ground!" Has secularity alone the divine patent right of occupancy? The second objection is an erroneous assumption: for during school days nothing usually is done but to lay the foundation of education. At that period of life, with most persons, only the lower faculties of the mind—memory, perception and the mental instincts are developed. The higher faculties, conception and the reasoning faculties usually mature and develop later in life; and then the superstructure of solid education is reared, not before. To illustrate: take one hundred persons promiscuously, but in numerical proportion to the numbers occupied in the various pursuits of life. Of the one hundred perhaps five have taken a college course, and the majority went through on the tail of the class; of the remaining ninety-five, about twenty have taken an academic course, the majority of whom are in the tail category; of the remaining seventy-five about twenty-five have had good common school advantages; of the remaining fifty about half can read, write and cypher to the rule of three; of the remaining twenty-five perhaps a majority can read and write their names. Now put the one hundred grown up men and women into one class, and examine them on the subjects treated in the proposed Thursday's issue: in the science and forms of civil and ecclesiastical government; in the history, organization and constitution of the United States; when, where, why, and by what authority was Mason and Dickson's line run; in astronomy, chemistry, natural, mental and moral philosophy, mineralogy, geology, geography, zoology, physiology, ethnology, psychology, arithmetic and general history, and scripture history, chronology, and biography. At the end of your examination you would find, right here in the center of christendom, in the middle of the nineteenth century, a development of ignorance so profound, 'twould almost bankrupt credulity. By bare possibility you might find in the one hundred one ripe scholar in sound English literature. Therefore, all our universities, colleges, academies, and schools to the contrary notwithstanding, to ninety-nine in every hundred the proposed Thursday periodical is an absolute necessity. The third objection is simply an error; for intellectually,

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

To these our periodical would be a skillful lapidary and tasteful florist, bringing the one from the broad ocean of obscure ignorance, and the other from the wide wilderness of uncultivated intellect, into appropriate position to yield moral wealth and moral fragrance. Would this be lost labor? I do not advocate the visionary attempt to make finished scholars of all the multitudes, or the expectation that all will acquire an accurate pronunciation or elegant style of English; but I insist that if the requisite means are furnished, all may, in proportion to mental caliber, store their minds with sound, well defined ideas and, practical information on all the great principles of science, morality and religion. And upon the question, not of propriety only, but of positive duty to those under our pastoral care, is not the Church, so far as she is able, bound to furnish the requisite stimuli and means for self-instruction? At that point our responsibility ends. But some say, why all this expense and labor? the great mass will not read. True, thousands do not read a thousandth part of what they ought to read. But why? Because it is bound in costly book form, and is 10, 50, 100 or 200 miles off: many never saw or heard of it; and if they had it, to one not fixed in the habit of reading, there is something formidable in the size, and the task to read a whole book so horculean that hundreds are deterred from undertaking. But, adopt the broken dose system, put the same matter into a cheap, attractive pamphlet form. Send it fresh and fast to their doors by our U. S. colporteur, and they will get it and read it; and there are one hundred chances that this system will produce a general habit of reading, to one that the book system will. By this system we can, for three dimes, furnish the identical matter which now costs ten dimes. Say we wish to print and circulate 125,000 copies annually of our tri-weekly sheet: for this purpose we will have say 20 suitable editors at $3000 each per annum, one bookkeeper $2500, one superintendent $2500, one hundred operatives at an average of $1000 each; for stationery, paper and fuel say $100,000; other incidental necessary expenses $10,000, and for contingences say $25,000, making in all $300,000. Now, one-tenth part of one per cent. on the estimated $302,000,000 income of our Church would be more than sufficient to pay the expense of the proposed tri-weekly. Certainly a wealthy, religious, intelligent Church, which can afford to spend $3,000,000 annually for self-indulgence—a decent Church, which spends over a million for a single week to snuff, sneeze, puff, chew, dip and spit along the paths of decency—a Church, which, for members and wealth, could almost bridge the Atlantic, or build a double track railroad from New York to San Francisco, or print and circulate the Bible in all the dialects of the whole earth—of the ability of such a Church to print 125,000 copies of a tri-weekly sheet there can be no doubt. The Church should not undertake an enterprize like this with the sinful view to create a revenue; but should make it simply self-sustaining. To this end, we could put the periodicals at one dollar each per annum, or $3 for the three per annum. In our organized capacity we act in contact with about 8,000,000, or 10,000,000 of population: of these nearly half a million of whites are members of our Church. Say that these constitute 125,000 families; of these say 100,000 would be paying subscribers, which would amount to just $300,000 per annum. Or if, by retrenchment, we could save 10 per cent. on our bill of self-indulgence, or two and a half dimes on the dollar of the Church tobacco bill, we would have the $300,000. But to give all this the "go by," I propose that for the next ten years we supply every Methodist family regularly with the proposed periodicals and charge nothing. To do this, I will pledge myself, if the Church will adopt this or some other analogous and equally efficient system, to be one of 30,000 persons to give ten dollars annually for this specific purpose. On this pledge I am ready to enter into bond and security and have the bond recorded in the clerk's office. Come, brethren—bishops, preachers, princely merchants and rich planters, what say you? Shall we, as "Stewards of the manifold grace of God," hold the Archimedean lever in our hands, with power to crane up the masses from the cesspools of stultifying ignorance, and stand still? Who will take the responsibility of answering to God for the delinquency? Shall a Church combining so many of the essential elements for grand moral enterprize—a Church, proud of its position and influence, sneak behind in moral and benevolent enterprize? The providence of God unerringly indicates that if we are true to duty we may have a bright future, and run a brilliant career of usefulness. If the Catholics in our geographical bounds, with their statesmanlike policy, possessed our advantages of wealth, numbers, influence and living machinery of 2200 itinerant agents in the field, they would move instantly for the crown which God in his providence now offers to our acceptance.

But will the probable results justify the adoption of the proposed system? Let us suppose it is prosecuted with energy for ten years: we have then furnished 125,000 libraries for as many families, 30 volumes of 330 pages each, royal octavo, in each library, freighted with "thoughts which breathe in words which burn," treating on all the important subjects of human thought and investigation. In each library may be found all matters of general interest and application to our whole Church, a large assortment of sanctified light literature, 500 premium tracts, much valuable statistical matter, a good supply of racy instruction in specific christian duty, valuable agricultural matter, about 4000 pages, royal octavo, of the best cyclopedia matter, about 1000 of the best historical matter, about 2000 of the best biography, about 6000 of the best review matter in the language, and the whole of the sacred scriptures with expository notes. What a valuable library! and 125,000 such presented to 125,000 families. And best of all, by the wise policy of the broken dose manner in which it was presented, we have kept wide awake an exciting interest; so that it has been read by hundreds of thousands, who otherwise would not have been interested.

Now, to arrive, by induction, at the results: suppose these periodicals had been received into our families when we were growing up, what a large capital of sound, solid information we should have had with which to commence the active duties of manhood. Many of us would have been a full quarter of a century in advance of the stand point from which we started. Now, what this system will do for one—other things being equal—it will do for another, and the aggregate of what it will do for the separate unities is the sum of what it will do for the masses; and by the laws of mental contact and social intercourse the results will go on in double ratio. But to see the ultimatum of good, we must wait for the exhibit of the grand balance sheet of eternity. Brethren, let the world see that we are earnestly striving to do the greatest possible amount of good to the greatest possible number at the least possible expense. Then shall we enlist public sympathy and interest, secure popular favor and confidence, and enlarge the sphere of our usefulness.

I have a supplement to the above suggestions, but unless the suggestions meet with popular favor, it will be unnecessary to publish the supplement.

The above is respectfully submitted by

AN OLD PREACHER.

Fairy Glenn, Dec., 1857.

WITHHOLDING CORN.

Between eighty and ninety years ago there lived in the Connecticut River valley, two farmers, one of whom was named Hunt, and the other Clarke. The former, in early life, had been a man of strong will, and somewhat hasty and violent in his temper. Sometimes he had been seen beating his oxen over their heads with the handle of his whip in a way to excite the pity of the bystanders, and when expostulated with, he excused himself by saying he had the most fractious team in town. By-and-by an alteration took place in the temper of farmer Hunt. He became mild, forbearing; and what was remarkable, his oxen seemed to improve in disposition at equal pace with himself. Farmer Hunt joined the church, and was an exemplary man. His neighbors saw the change, both in himself and his team. It was a marvel to the whole town. One of his townsmen asked him for an explanation. Farmer Hunt said, "I have found out a secret about my cattle. Formerly they were unmanageable. The more I whipped and clubbed them, the worse they acted. But now when they are contrary, I go behind my load, sit down, and sing Old Hundred, and strange as it may appear, no sooner have I ended, than the oxen go along as quietly as a man could wish. I don't know how it is, but they really seem to like singing."

In the course of a few years, the two farmers were chosen deacons of the church, and they both adorned their profession. About the time of their election, a grievous famine prevailed in the valley and the farmers generally were laying up their corn to plant the ensuing season. A poor man, living in the town, went to deacon Hunt and said, "I have come to buy a bushel of corn. Here is the money. It is about all I can gather." The deacon told him he could not spare a bushel for love or money. He was keeping double the usual quantity for seed corn, and had to stint his own family.—The man urged his suit, but in vain. At last he said, "Deacon, if you do not let me have the corn, I shall curse you." "Curse me!" replied the deacon, "how dare you say so?" "Because," said the man, "the Bible says so." "Nonsense," exclaimed deacon Hunt, "there is no such thing in the Bible." "Yes there is," replied the poor man. "Well," said the deacon, "If you can find any such text, I'll give you a bushel of corn." They went into the house, when the man went to the old family Bible, turned to Prov. 11: 26, and read, "He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him; but blessings shall be upon the head of him that selleth it."

The deacon was fairly caught. "Come along," said he, "and I will be as good as my word." He took him to the corn-house, measured out a full bushel of corn, helped the man put it into his bag, assisted him in slinging it upon his shoulder, and just before his departure, being somewhat of a wag, he said, with a twinkle of the eye, "I say, neighbor, after you have carried this corn home, go up to deacon Clark, and curse him out of another bushel."

Letter of Dr. Cartwright, of New Orleans, to Rev. Peter Cartwright, of Illinois.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, July 4, 1857.

REV. SIR—In traveling for health and recreation, I find myself in the new and beautiful city of Davenport, on the 4th of July, and know not how better to celebrate the day than by giving expression to a few thoughts suggested by reading your Autobiography. The work is interesting and instructive, as it gives some account of the labors and sufferings of those early pioneers who planted Gospel vineyards in the great western wilderness, in the face of difficulties sufficient to have appalled the Apostles of old. The only tools they worked with consisted of the Bible and Hymn Book; the rules to direct their labor were contained in a little pamphlet called the 'Discipline,' and the history of the fruits of their labors was summed up in little annual tracts called 'Minutes.' The only sins they preached against were sins specified in the Bible. With these simple means, a few illiterate preachers of the word of God, (as it is written and plain to the comprehension of every man and woman) in a very short time made more converts to Christianity in the valley of Mississippi, and planted more churches than did the Apostles themselves in the whole of Europe and Asia. Of late years, however, the grapes in many of the richest vineyards are turning sour. Wherever this is the case, I have satisfactorily ascertained that the laborers in the vineyards have been using other tools than the Bible and the Hymn Book, and striking at other sins than those designated as sins in the revealed word of God. There was a man hung yesterday in sight of this growing city, and not permitted to see the light of the glorious fourth, for killing his wife. On inquiry I find that the sin that the rising generation in several of the schools and colleges at the northeast are mostly taught to shun, and the loudest thunders of the pulpit roar against, is not murder or any other sin that the Bible denounces, but a new sin lately discovered to be a sin by an aristocratic junta of Exater Hall, London, the sin of slavery.—According to the dogmas of Exeter Hall, slavery is not only sin against God, but a sin so heinous that it would be doing God a most acceptable service to abollish it. According to the Bible, the law from Mount Sinai was compiled to the slaveholding Jews, the Savior of mankind began and ended his earthly pilgrimage in a slaveholding country, and in no instance preached against slavery as a sin.—By preaching Exeter Hall dogmas from the pulpit, and insisting upon them as if they were Gospel truths, and by instilling them into the minds of the young of schools and colleges, as a most essential part of education, the people have been led into angry contentions, and most of the churches have been divided and split into irreconcilable fragments. The only remedy for the evil is to go back to the text books of the early pioneers, and preach no other doctrine than the doctrine contained in them. The Bible has nothing to do with slavery or any other political institution. It is to reform the heart of fallen man, to cast out sin from the inner man, and thus to banish evil from society, whether slave or free, democratic, monarchical or despotic. Hence it is adapted to all forms of government. It would not be a Divine Book if it were only suited to some particular form of government. The Revealed Word, preached in its purity, is all potent to banish sin. You know this to be true because in the early years of your ministry you preached the pure, unadulterated word both to slaves and freemen—both fell before it, and were converted to God.

Whereas the preaching of Abolitionism or any other species of politics, never did nor never can convert a single soul. Instead of purifying the heart, as Bible preaching does, it sows the seeds of infidelity and feeds the evil passions which true religion subdues. The doctrine that slavery is sin against God is no where taught in the Bible, but is simply an ingenious political device of the aristocrats of Great Britain to overthrow our republican institutions and to destroy our northern manufactures. You and I reside in the same great, happy, prosperous and Christian country, whose republican example the monarchists and privileged classes of Europe so much fear. You live in the Northwest and I in the Southwest. The distance from London, through France, Germany and Austria to the Turkish dominions, is not so great as the distance between your home and mine, yet our political interests are as identical now as they would be if we were both back on our native James river and Potomac. But it is the policy of Great Britain to make us believe otherwise if she can. Hence her statesmen have added a new commandment to the decalogue. They forbid slaveholding, they have denounced slavery as sin and have organized societies, both in Europe and America, to enlist the sympathies of the world against the alleged sin and procure its immediate abolition. The abolitionists proper regard you as one of their worst enemies, because you do not concur with them in the means used to abolish slavery. You are opposed to any violent measures to blot out the alleged sin, and in favor of dealing with the sin, if it be a sin, as other sins are dealt with by simply preaching the revealed word of God in its plain sense and reading. But why class slavery among the sins at all, considering it is not so classed in the Bible? Why look for it to fall under the preaching of the gospel, considering that it is not denounced as a sin in holy writ and stands on the same footing as the institution of marriage? You did not derive your belief in the sinfulness of slavery from anything you read in the Bible, and I am sure you did not derive it from the writings, lectures or preaching of the modern abolitionists. You brought the belief with you from Virginia and the South. In former times, a great many people in the slaveholding States regarded negro slavery as a social, moral and political evil. They were led to this belief principally from abstract or theoretical reasoning, founded on the assumption that the negro was a being in every respect like themselves, except in the color of his skin. My father and a great many others fell into this error and emancipated their slaves. But experience proved not only in Virginia but in other States that emancipation, so far from bettering the condition of the negroes, almost invariably made it worse. But the evil did not stop at that. The black freemen became trespassers on the white freemen who had liberated them and on the population generally. Hence the Legislatures of the States, where the blacks were numerous, were compelled in self-defense to put a stop to the experiment of emancipation. It was clearly foreseen, that if the negroes were liberated the whites would have to leave the country or labor, not only for the support of themselves, but for the black freemen likewise. It was also ascertained that they would have to increase the number of prisons and penitentiaries and incur the expense of a strong police force. You left the South before the experiment of emancipation had been fairly tried and proved a failure. Hence you carried with you the old ideas about slavery being an evil.

You may remember something of the Guinea negroes that had been imported into Virginia. If you do, you will remember that in size, actions and grimaces, they resembled the ourang-outang, almost as much as their descendants of the fourth and fifth generation resemble them. A daguerreotype of old Guinea Tom, as I have frequently seen him in the days of my boyhood, with snakes in his bosom engaged in a species of heathen worship, called 'conjuring,' if placed in contrast with a good likeness of his grand children, two of whom were popular preachers, I am sure would be sufficient of itself to show, that whatever evils may be attached to negro slavery, it is fairly entitled to the merit of greatly improving the African race, physically, morally and mentally. If I could send you a daguerreotype, of the third or fourth generation of negroes born in freedom, and left in neighborhoods to themselves, remote from the supervisatory care of the white man, you would see at once that they were rapidly retrograding to the original barbarism from which slavery had raised their grandfathers. The minutes of your conference will prove, that up to the year 1810, the colored communicants in Philadelphia greatly exceeded those of Charleston. When I last examined the minutes, some few years ago, I found more colored communicants in the Charleston district than in all the nonslaveholding States put together. I found also, on examining the statistics of the prisons and penitentiaries of the northern cities, that they have been gaining in the number of black criminals almost as fast as the church has been losing its colored communicants by negro freedom. If the Hebrew names, given to the children of Ham, could be rendered into English with all their original significance, every one would see that they were not only black, but had that type of mind—qualifying them for no other than a subordinate condition in society, or in other words, that slavery is their normal condition and they never can be civilized or Christianized in any other. The whole subject could be settled in a trice—the schisms in the churches healed and our political union cemented, if dealt with, as you dealt with Gen. Jackson, boldly faced, and the truth, however unwelcome, forced upon the public as you forced the awful tenets of the church upon his attention; instead of mincing matters or smothering your Methodist doctrine, (when kindly pulled by the coat in the pulpit by a brother clergyman, and admonished in a whisper of the presence of that renowned personage,) you cried out aloud, his name—the hero stood up before you, and you thundered in his face the awful words that 'God would damn his soul if he did not get converted.' Many of the audience, knowing his impetuous temper, trembled for you, and one of the preachers, after church was over, called on him to apologize, especially for some additional remarks you made that God would make as quick work damning him as he would a Guinea negro. Jackson waived the apologizer from his presence.

The arrow had taken effect—you had come squarely up to his standard of what a minister of the gospel ought to be—viz; to love every body, and to fear no mortal man. He naturally concluded that love for him and every soul around was the moving spring of what might be regarded as intemperate zeal, and he opened his heart to receive the Word as you preached it. When he afterwards met with you he shook you cordially by the hand, and remarked, that he only wanted a few thousand such independent, fearless men to officer an army to take old England. There is reason to believe that as England and the war disappeared in the distance, Heaven opened to his view, and the Word you had so fearlessly preached, prompted him to win the eternal bliss he now enjoys. Andrew Jackson has gone to Heaven and left the work of taking Old England to Young America, and Young America can do it in a short time by the force of example, without striking a blow, if we only had a few thousand, fearless, independent preachers to proclaim the truths revealed in the Bible in regard to negroes, and confirmed by experience and observation, as that would prevent any danger to Christianity and Republican Institutions from the slavery question. The privileged classes of Europe, who have stripped the great masses of their fellow men, bound like themselves, of all the essential comforts of life by taking advantage of their prejudices, and sowing dissentions among them, are trying to play the same game upon the people of the United States that has succeeded so well in Europe and the East Indies; hence they are using the slavery question as an apple of discord—to divide the Union and cheat the Yankees out of their manufactures, by pointing to the flag of liberty over the white man and the whip over the negro—carefully concealing the important truth that the white and black races are essentially different—liberty being as injurious to the latter as it is beneficial to the former. No one knows better than the British aristocracy, British doctors of divinity, British statesmen and philosophers, that the negro is not a white man with a black skin, but a different being, differing in wants and mental conformation.—They know the version of the Scriptures, called the Septuagint, quoted by our Savior and the Apostles, uses the Greek, Ethiopian, where Cush and some other Hebrew words, to designate the negro race, occur in our version, and, conveying no meaning to the English reader. Yet they know that it suits British policy to contend for the perfect equality of the races, and to brand every other doctrine as irrational and anti-Scriptural. Hence the whole current of English literature is filled with Abolition poison to tempt the young republican giant, who is writing the mene tekel of king craft on the heavens, to drink and die.

Yours very truly,

SAM'L A. CARTWRIGHT, M. D.,
of New Orleans.

PERSEVERE.—If a seaman should put about every time he encounters a headwind, he certainly would be a long time in making a voyage. So he who permits himself to be baffled by adverse circumstances, will never make a headway in the voyage of life. A sailor uses every wind to propel, so should the young man learn to trim his sails and guide his bark, that even the adverse breeze should fill its bellying canvas and send it forward on its onward course.

An old gentleman being asked what he would like for dinner, replied: "An [illegible] company; some thing to [illegible] napkin.

A CONFIDENTIAL WORD.—If you would rise in the world, you must not stop to kick at every cur that barks at you as you pass along

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1858.

EPISCOPAL CORRESPONDENCE.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

FEBRUARY, 4, 1858.

This body met Feb. 3, in the Baptist Church, Bishop Pierce presiding. The frost, wind, rain and snow set against us; for we had all of them before 12 o'clock yesterday. Members of the Conference are very generally present. Two died during the year—the venerable Wm. Stevenson, over 90 years old, and bro. McBride, a transfer from Memphis Conference.

This place (the shire town of Desoto parish and named for the great English jurist, as Mr. Womple, who laid it off a few years ago, tells me) has greatly improved since we were here last. The first building that strikes the approaching eye is the Female College. It is a noble building, creditable to the Church and State. Dr. Thweatt, the President, is a member of the Conference, and favors us with his presence and counsels: also, Prof. Pitts. They are doing good here as pastors and preachers, as well as teachers. The recitation and dormitory rooms of the institution are large and eligible. The patronage increases, and the trustees, alive to the importance of the charge they have in hand, are looking to an endowment of at least two professorships. This is necessary to raising the high standard of female education they aspire to.

I know of no better real estate movement, in a town, than a good school. The effect is seen here. Families have moved in, of the best class, for educating their children. Several new houses are building and built. Society, every way, improves and lots are in demand.

Several lay brethren are with us on committees of the whole; the bad weather prevents many of them attending. I mention Col. King, of Bienville parish; D. Lawrence, of Bossier; Dr. Gaskill, of Union; C. Thompson, of Orleans; Preston, of Texas; A. M. Campbell, of Desoto: others are expected.

The committee of the whole, in lay session, met first in the afternoon yesterday, to consider the subject of missions, receiving reports, etc. The main feature of its recommendations is that, as far as practicable, missions and circuits be united in single charges, and two preachers appointed to the joint charge. Having a class of preachers for negroes, and another for whites, is felt to be a growing evil; especially when they labor in sight of each other. Send them out, two and two, and have no caste in the ministry.

The committee meets this afternoon on education. Prof. Scales is here, representing Centenary College; and other matters of interest will come up. The Bishop has consented to be present.

I omitted to state, in the organization of Conference, that J. W. Johnston was elected secretary, and F. T. Rawson, assistant.

Our trip to this Conference was not so bad as that four years ago. Then we had too little, now enough water. The good steamer Lecomte put out her passengers at Grand Bayou, Saturday morning before day. For miles, Red River bottom was overflowed, except the spot we landed on. The Steamer Empress had, some hours before, landed an equal number—say fifteen. Major P. received the crowd courteously and treated them well.

With Mr. H. and two preachers I left in a yawl and took breakfast with Mr. Cole. We went ahead and sent back to the Lake for the company, who came out after breakfasting at Grand Bayou, where they say they breakfasted royally. Instead of a yawl, they were brought to main land by Capt. Ford, free of charge, in a large cotton flat. It was very generous in the captain. From the Lake to this place, is twelve miles of very bad road.

Bishop Pierce did not stop with us, but went on to Shreveport, where he preached last Sabbath and reached us here on Tuesday evening, in company with bros. Harp and Parker.—"Woodsman," as our matrimonial columun will attest, has been on a happy errand and obtained a gift from the Lord. Yesterday was the Bishop's 47th birth day: he looks like he might see forty-seven more. So may it be. H. N. M.

REV. ABNER WINN.

Whereas, in the providence of God one of our number, Rev. ABNER WINN, L. E., has been taken from us by death: And whereas, bro. Winn was one of our most useful and influential members, and a good and acceptable preacher, and in this mysterious providence the Church and community have sustained so great a loss—cut off as he was in the prime of life: therefore,

Resolved, That it becomes us to recognise this visit of God by humbling ourselves before him and striving to be prepared "when our change come." We bless God that he died in the triumphs of the faith."

Resolved, That we tenderly sympathise with his bereaved wife and relatives, and exhort them to follow on to know the Lord, and enjoy "that rest" with him in Heaven.

Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions be forwarded to sister Winn, and also the Nashville and New Orleans Advocate, with a request that they publish.

J. P. HUTCHISON, P. E.
J. H. FRANKLIN, Secy.
North Port, Ala. Conf., Feb. 1, 1858.

INFANT BAPTISM.—Of all the emotions excited by the incidents of life between the cradle and the grave, none can be compared for depth and tenderness to those called forth by the birth and baptism of the first child of an affectionate and happy husband and wife. Delightful sentiments, and yet they are mingled with sadness!—What a mystery is this conjoined miniature image of the parents, the babe itself! What a mystery the world, with its mingled lights and shades, upon which the feeble stranger is to enter! What a mystery the unknown destiny to which it is bound! What a mystery the God to whom it is consecrated! Calculations must be the heart of parents, and the highest motive of love and duty will be the unchangeable sentiment of love until death!—Rev. G.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

LOCAL RELIGION.

A good man once said, upon being asked to go to some place of doubtful propriety, that he could go not where where he could not take Christ with him. This was a wise, pious answer. Every Christian is understood to be, in his measure and circumstances, a representative of the Lord Jesus; so that wherever we feel the Lord could not go, (unless he went to admonish and instruct,) we should not go.—Every Christian is a temple of God: Christ is "formed in him the hope of glory." How careful would an affectionate, an honorable parent be of the place and the company into which he would conduct and introduce his daughter.—Can any mortal, however pure and lovely, be more so than He who was "harmless and separate from sinners?" Surely not. Then ought we not to be quite as careful of the place and the company where we introduce the Savior? Surely.

We have headed our article "local religion," not that we believe that there is any such thing in fact, but that we may say a few things by way of exposing a popular fallacy; for there can be no question but there are many minds that labor under the delusion that their religion not only has "a name," but likewise "a local habitation." This popular theory is evinced by a corresponding practice in the of, alas! too many professing godliness. When one of these, holding to this theory, is in the community where he feels that his religion is citizenized and at home, he is regular in the use of the means of grace and observant of all the proprieties of his Christian profession; but circumstances require him to pass the local boundaries of his religion, which is bounded north and south by so many degrees of latitude, and east and west by so many degrees of longitude.—Having passed these "meets and bounds," he acts as though he was no longer under the impulsion or restraint of Christian obligation.—Now he may neglect his Bible, the observance of the Sabbath, attendance upon the preaching of the word: as for prayer meeting or class meeting, although held in all the towns and cities of this broad land, they are "not once to be named." But he not only omits the established means of grace and regular duties of his profession, but he throws off most of its restraints and betakes himself, like any other sinner, to the circus and the theater, and sometimes places of more questionable character.—Sometimes, too, it is ascertained that these worthies are not particular as to the time they go; and if in this city where Romanism and French manners have made the Sabbath with scores and thousands a holiday instead of a holy day, they will visit such places on Sunday night.

I am aware that it is common to allege, in extenuation, that they went out of curiosity—with a simple desire to learn somewhat of the ways of the world. We think there is such a thing as pushing our investigations too far; that there are certain limits we should not seek to pass; certain facts we should not desire to learn. We don't think one would be excusable in getting drunk, just to learn how drunken people feel; or in attending a duel, just to know, from ocular demonstration, how men murdered each other on the falsely called field of honor. We might extend our illustrations, but we forbear.

I am not inclined to the opinion that these curious people would, within what they esteem the boundaries of their religion and under the observation of their neighbors and pastors, attend a theater on Sunday night, or at all; or a masquerade ball, mixed up with people of more than doubtful reputation, even in pursuit of knowledge, if it had to be done under such "difficulties." They would feel such a course altogether wrong, and, perhaps, would urge as a reason for their opinion that the example would be had where they live, and would seriously damage their claims to piety where they are known. Why would it do so? Only, as I conceive, because the piety and common sense of the good have determined that such things are wrong, and, therefore, forbidden to the pious. But we must never forget that religion is quite as much a matter of conscience as of example. It is a baseless fallacy to suppose that the moral character of an action always, or even most generally, is determined by its circumstances as whether it was publicly or privately done, or whether it is to exert an influence beyond ourselves or not. My idea is, that a certain action is right, because it is in harmony either with the express word of God, or the spirit of it; and contrarywise, an action is wrong, because it is in violation of the express word of God, or its general spirit. This being admitted, latitude and longitude have nothing to do with morality. The obligation to do or not to do a certain thing is co-extensive with our knowledge of its being commanded or forbidden. St. Paul "exercised himself to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward man." This is the great point, not so much what men will think (though the opinions of the good should be respected) as what God will think of my actions. But the characters under consideration, who seem to localize their religion, think, or seem to think, if they are where they will not be seen by those who know them, and that what they do will give no offence to men, that it is no matter what God may think of it; but the apostolic example teaches us first of all to "avoid offence toward God." The man, properly instructed, will remember that the eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the "evil and the good:" that the darkness is as the light to him who is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

But for illustration (and only so can it be supposed:) Let us suppose it could be a matter of indifference what God would think of a questionable action, because it might be productive of no public scandal, yet we could not always hope to escape giving offense to men. Suppose in a city distant from your residence you attend a theater, a masquerade ball, or some more questionable place of resort: some one may see you there who knows that you profess piety, or else some one who will hear it afterwards. Now, what impression think you, you will make upon them? If they judge of religion by you, they will think it a sham; or, if they separate you from religion in general and consider you as an individual professor of it, they will think you a sham. But further: in the midst of life we are in death. We are liable to die any time—anywhere. Now, suppose yourself in some city, far or near from your home; you are in a theater, a masquerade hall, or a billiard room; the building catches on fire; it falls with a fearful crash: or you meet death suddenly some other way. Think what an item it would be for your friends to remember in connection with your profession, your death, and probable destiny. Think what a paragraph it would make in your obituary. "Bro. —— was born at such a time and place, professed faith in Christ such a time, joined such a Church at such a time, lived a professor of religion so many years. Then, when on a visit to such a city, in some catastrophe, or by apoplexy, or disease of the heart, died in the theater, the hall room, or the billiard room. What an awful incongruity!

Will you, my brother, my sister, subject yourself to so dreadful and shameful a possibility? Think on these things, when tempted, and remember, wherever you be, whatever you do, "Thou God seest me."

J. B. WALKER.

New-England Correspondence.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 18, 1858.

MR. EDITOR: Last evening Rev. H. E. Parker delivered an able address before the female charitable society of the Congregational Church. His subject was the relation of charity to the giver, or paradoxically stated, the selfish side of charity. It was indeed a fine discourse. He showed how much joy and happiness our close-fisted gents deprive themselves of. In closing his address he repeated a piece of poetry with such melting eloquence that there was not a dry eye in the house. All wept freely. A report from the ladies of the society was also read. It showed that the society had supplied the wants of fifty-two families this winter. They have hunted up all the destitute families in the part of the city assigned to them, and have furnished them with all the necessaries of life. They have not stopped here. They have undertaken to reform the young men of the city. They have already done much toward it. Many of the young men, through their influence, have been brought to see the evil tenor of their way, and have ceased using profane language altogether. Noble women! May God speed them in their benevolent and christian labors. Their name has become a synonym among the poor and needy for all that is charitable, lovely and christian-like. Let the ladies of every city follow their example, and how many poor and destitute families would be made happy and joyful.

It is customary here for men and women of forty and fifty years of age to attend Sabbath-school. A noble custom! Would it were so everywhere. But how often do we find our young men who have begun to raise a small crop of whiskers, and our young girls (pardon me; young ladies I should have said) just after they have begun to wear long dresses, thinking themselves too old to attend Sunday-school. Fie! Away with all such foolish notions. Let their father or mother bring into use parental authority and compel them to go, if they are minors. I surmise that our Sunday-schools are too much neglected by our ministers. They do not give that attention to them that they should. There would be much more good done, if the preacher would establish a Sunday-school at every Church of which he has charge. I know of a circuit of five different appointments, and there is not a single Sunday-school upon it in charge of the preachers. Have they done their duty?

A few women of Massachusetts have petitioned the Legislature of that State, now in session, to extend the right of suffrage to the women of the State. I cannot believe that any happy wife or kind mother or affectionate sister desires the right of voting. And I am not so uncharitable as to think that there are many women of Massachusetts who desire that right; but on the contrary, I believe if they had any idea that the petition would pass the Legislature, they would flood it with their remonstrances. Those who have petitioned the Legislature for that right are only those of the Lucy Stone stamp. Or they are better known by the name of women rights society. They belong to the school of Garrison abolitionists. They are those who have been stumping the State against slavery.

The political parties are preparing for the approaching election, which comes off in March. Political excitement is beginning to run quite high. Last news heard from Washington is that our Solons have laid Kansas Walker on the table, and taken up Nicaragua Walker. Every one seems desirous to know what will be done with the "gray-eyed man of destiny," as he is called here. W. G.

JOHN WESLEY AND METHODISM.—The first time I had the pleasure of being in company with the Rev. John Wesley was in the year 1783.—I asked him what must be done to keep Methodism alive when he was dead, to which he immediately answered: "The Methodists must take heed to their doctrine, their experience, their practice, and their discipline.

"If they attend to their doctrines only, they will make the people Antinomians; if to their experimental part of religion only, they will make them enthusiasts; if to the practical part only, they will make them pharisees; and if they do not attend to their discipline, they will be like persons who bestow much pains in cultivating their garden, and put no fence round it, to save it from the wild boar of the forest."

ROBERT MILLER.

"He that observeth the winds shall not sow, and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap." Those that are minded either to do good or get good, must not be frightened with seeming difficulties or discouragements. Our work is to sow and reap, to do good and to get good; let us mind that, and let who will mind the winds and clouds. "A lion in the way, a lion in the street:" a very unlikely place, we would say, for lions to be in, and yet it serves the sluggard for an excuse.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

A FRAGMENT.

From eternity God had existed in the illimitable fullness of his perfections and the infinitude of his glorious attributes. Space outspread, perhaps to angels and all the inhabitants of heaven, seemed infinite. But beyond space the God they worshiped dwelt encircled by the halo of his own glory. When floating far off in the azure depths, earth in beauty rose on angels' view. God's benevolence, the theme of all their anthems high of praises just, had crowned Adam lord of all that to earth pertained. On glad wing exulting angels flow, while to heaven's high and flowery plains myriad voices sweet gently rose" as incense more grateful to God than Arabia sacrificed and all her spicy deserts in a flame." The new creation angels smiling saw. Beauty, love, purity and fidelity dwelt in all the groves of earth. And to the angels beholding from the heading skies unswering looks returned. Earth was lovely then. Heaven blessed her natal day. In the smiles of God man walked erect, righteous, holy, wise, immortal, in the image of his Creator. S. J. HAWKINS.

Terrible Details of the Earthquake at Naples.

We find in the London Times of January 9th some additional particulars of the late earthquake at Naples, furnished by its correspondent under date of January 2d:

"I proceed to give further details from the provinces regarding the all-absorbing subject of the earthquake. The official journal of Wednesday night enumerates sixty-one other places which had suffered in their buildings; and many in their population. Under the name of each place is given a description of the disaster, and this last report alone gives the number of several—say 4000 or 5000 additional known to have suffered. Then are described the other casualties—people maimed, crushed; others drawn out alive after a fearful sepulture of eight days, reminding us of how many more might have been saved, had proper exertions been made. The latest accounts, too, awaken considerable apprehension of further disaster. The whole district of Sala is agitated by continual movements of the earth, stronger by night than by day, and these are preceded by fearful detonations. Moreover, about 9 o'clock, P. M., of the 28th ult., and 6 and half-past 7 P. M., of the 29th ult., three strong shocks, lasting ten or twelve seconds, were felt, followed by others less intense. In Potenza, too, on the evening of the 29th, about a quarter to 7 P. M., a strong undulatory shock was felt, and other light ones during the night. No injury was done, but the population all rushed out into some open space.

Here in Naples it is said that since the 16th ult., we have had, up to Christmas eve, 49 shocks, and it may readily be believed. Almost every one finds some trace of them in his house; the shocks, too, which were felt in Potenza on the evening of the 29th, were felt in Naples, and, in some cases, created great alarm. However, every one looks to Vesuvius for safety, and on that night it was in violent movement. People who reside at Resina tell me that during the whole night the shocks from the mountains were of a most violent and continuous character. Every three minutes it appeared as if a desperate man were trying to wrench open the doors and windows. Nothing, however, took place. I have also reports to give you from private persons who have visited the scene of ruin. They describe the country in many places as crossed with fissures, which, at first, had been very wide, but now had much closed. During the whole time of their visit the ground was heaving beneath them. There was universal panic and grief, and no light part of it arose from the fact that there was no one to search beneath the ruins or to bury their dead. I speak of the 21st and 22d ult., that is to say, of six days after the date of the disaster. Letters from Brienza of the 31st ult., say that no relief had been as yet received. My informants, in wandering through Polla, could get no food, and even bread was wanting in many places. Those who were dug out alive—some after six or eight days of living burial—awoke to famine and death. The details which I receive are more horrible than can be easily conceived.

Since writing the above, other and more afflicting details have arrived of the desolation occasioned by the earthquake. Laurenzana, Tito, Brienza, Marsicannovo, have almost entirely disappeared. The King himself says that upward of 15,000 have perished, and from what I have heard, says my very sensible informant, the real number must be nearly double. People who have come from the spot report that the groans of the sufferers were heard from beneath the ruins several days after the disaster, and that, horrible to relate, on some bodies being taken out, it was found that they had devoured a portion of their arms. There were none to aid them, none to excavate the dying, none to bury the dead, none to give bread to the famishing. Thousands of soldiers are maintained at the expense of the state, to support order, but they could not be sent to save thousands from perishing. Many steamers were lying in harbor, the expensive toys of the sovereign, but with one or two tardy exceptions, they have remained snug in port. People cannot refrain from comparing the tardiness displayed on the present melancholy occasion with the promptitude displayed in the month of June last, when rebels landed in Sapri.

The Burning of the Library of Alexandria.

Many Christian writers, either on account of their want of knowledge, or from an unfounded prejudice against the true faith, (except Gibbon, and other eminent authors,) accuse our Caliph of the unpardonable crime of having ordered the contents of the famous library that once adorned this city to be used as fuel for the five thousand baths which are said to have been here. In the first place they ought to have known that Mohammedan tenets teach all true believers to hold papers of all kinds sacred, and never to touch them, even with their feet, nor allow them to be thrown into an unclean place, as they may contain the name of the Almighty Allah—contrary to the customs of the Christians of the present ago, who have no regard even for their Bible, and would use its leaves, if damaged in any way, as useless papers. Secondly, it is quite absurd to think the same Caliph would commit such an act of insanity, who on his visit to Jerusalem as a conqueror, ordered the great university there to be repaired at the public expense, and who would not say his prayers within the grand Temple of that holy place, for fear of its being spoiled by his soldiers following his example. Besides, the General Amru, who was a lover of science and literature, and a man gifted with poetical talent, would by no means make himself an instrument of such an act of irrational madness. Autobiography of a Mohammedan Gentleman.

MAN WITHOUT RELIGION.—Religion is the tie that connects man with his Creator, and holds him to his throne. If that tie is sundered or broken, he floats away, a worthless atom in the universe, its proper attraction all gone, its destiny thwarted, and its whole future nothing but darkness, desolation, and death.

A Romance at Sea.

The Secretary of State at Madrid has communicated to the Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States in Spain the following declaration, transmitted through the Minister of Marine, and made before the captain of the port at Tarragona, by Don Jose Bosch, captain of the Spanish brig Jacinta:

On the 22d of July last, at 7 o'clock in the morning, in north latitude 37 deg. 8 min. and west longitude 34 deg. 30 min., being bound for Spain from New Orleans, after being out thirty-three days, I perceived a boat with people, who were waving a white handkerchief, and pulling in the direction of my brig. Believing they were shipwrecked, I instantly gave orders to bear down to them, and being side by side, they told me that two days before, being out in pursuit of a whale, they, during a squall, had lost sight of their bark, in which they had left behind the wife of the captain, who was the man that was speaking to me, adding that she was in an interesting position, having with her besides a little boy and two other persons.

A little further north I perceived two other boats, all belonging to the American barque Alto, Captain Thomas H. Lawrence, of New Bedford, whence he had sailed 43 days before. The men of the said boats numbering in all eighteen, having been taken on board, exhausted from fatigue, were provided with food and clothing, and seeing the despair of the captain on account of the loss of his family and his vessel in the midst of the sea, I resolved at any hazard to go in quest of them. The stormy weather, the foreign idiom of the captain—which did not permit me clearly to understand the direction where the barque might be found—the time which had passed since they had lost sight of their ship, and my own obligations to continue my course, after having experienced thirty-three days of bad weather—all of these powerful reasons did not induce me to give up my resolution of aiding those unfortunate men and consoling them in their affliction; and trusting to Providence and my good cause, I steered to the North.

We passed the day without perceiving any vessel, and the night overtaking us without having attained our purpose, we passed it with the utmost vigilance, the captain being in a state of extraordinary prostration and anxiety, which increased my determination to continue my enterprise. The dawn of the 23d came on, and my vigilance was redoubled; at 10 A. M. the watch at the masthead descried a sail bearing N. N. E. I immediately stood for it, and with a freshening wind, at eleven o'clock I distinguished a hark. I induced the captain to go aloft, encouraging him and trying to console him in every possible manner, to see whether he could make her out; and at half past eleven, God had crowned my undertaking and fulfilled my wish—it was the bark Alto. The transports of Captain Lawrence were unbounded; he embraced me, and offered me a large amount of money when he should get on board, which I refused, for I would not crown my act by accepting money.

When a short distance from her, I lowered the boats and carried the crew and the captain to their bark, where, in fact, I found a poor young lady, with a babe in her arms, breathless and in the greatest agony.

The captain, after the first effusions of his joy, repented his offers, insisting upon my accepting them, but which I refused, as before; and having received the benedictions of all on board, I returned to my ship to continue my voyage.—La. Cronica, Nov. 17.

DR. JUDSON'S BURMESE TESTAMENT.—The story of the preservation of this precious work, related by Mrs. Judson, might adorn the page of romance. It was taken to Ava in manuscript; and when Mr. Judson was thrown into prison, was secretly sewed up by his wife in a cushion too hard and unsightly to tempt the cupidity even of his jailors, and used by him as a pillow. When, at the close of seven months, he and his fellow sufferers were so rudely thrust into the inner prison, the old pillow fell to the share of one of the keepers, but, finding it probably too hard for his use, he threw it back, and it came once more into its owner's hands. It was again lost when he was driven to Oung-pen-la; and, being stripped by one of the attendants, of the mat which was tied around it, the roll of hard cotton was again flung back into the prison. Here it was found by Mounging, who took it home as a memorial of his teachers, without suspecting its priceless contents. Several months after, the manuscript, which now makes a part of the Burmese Bible, was found within, uninjured.

MUMMY OF NEBUCHADNEZZAR.—It is stated that Colonel Rawlinson, who is prosecuting the discoveries commenced by Layard and Botta, and exhuming from the mounds of the long lost rival cities, Nineveh and Babylon, the instructive remains of this once gigantic power, has lately discovered, in a state of perfect preservation, what is believed to be the mummy of Nebuchadnezzar. The face of the rebellious monarch of Babylon, covered by one of those gold masks usually found in Assyrian tombs, is described as very handsome, the forehead high and commanding, the features marked and regular. This interesting relic of remote antiquity is for the present preserved in the museum of the East India Company. Of all the mighty empires which have left a lasting impression on the memory, none has so completely perished as that of Assyria. More than two thousand years have gone by since the two "great cities," renowned for their strength, their luxury, and their magnificence, have crumbled into dust, leaving no visible trace of their existence, their very sites forgotten.

A CHARITABLE FARMER.—"Uncle Oliver," said the pastor of a country church to an elderly farmer of his flock, "I wish you would carry a load of wood to old Mrs. W., the widow of our Christian brother, who lived so long just beyond you on the road to D——." "I will try to do it," said the farmer, "but to whom shall I look for the pay?" "Read," said the pastor when you go home, the first three verses of the 41st Psalm, and then, if you want any better security for payment, call on me." It was but a few days after that the old gentleman met his pastor, and said "I like that security you mentioned, and have no fear that it will fail me in time of need; for my heart so felt the assurance, when reading it, that I could scarcely close my eyes that night."

KEEP THE SABBATH.—Be zealous on this point. Whether you live in town or country, resolve not to profane your Sabbath, or in the end you will give over caring for your soul. The steps which lead to this are regular. Begin with not honoring God's house; cease to honor God's book, and by-and-by you will give God no honor at all. Let any man lay the foundation with no Sabbath, and I am never surprised if he finishes with the top-stone of no God. It was a remarkable saying of Judge Hale, that of all persons convicted of capital crimes, while he was upon the bench, he found few who did not confess that they began their career of wickedness by neglect of the Sabbath.

Lord Braxford was an eccentric Scotch judge, with a bad-tempered wife. His butler determined to leave, because Lady Braxford was always scolding him. "Why," exclaimed the old judge, "ye've little to complain; ye may be thankful ye're no married to her!"

A RICH REPORT.

A married couple of Cincinnati, after living together for thirty years, recently petitioned the Ohio Legislature for a divorce, without, however, assigning any reason for this abrupt termination of their domestic relations. The matter was referred to a committee, which, in due time, presented the following report:

The petitioners—James and Maria Sutton—do not sufficiently set forth the cause why they "mutually severed and parted;" and after a cohabitation of thirty years, it is necessarily very important to know these reasons. They leave an immense range of inference in the minds of this learned assembly. They might have been dissatisfied with each other's personal beauty, or wearied with their respective mutual attractions. They might have been fighting constantly for thirty years, and at last both being exhausted, and neither being able to "come up to time," they mutually backed out, fizzled and crawled away from the scene of combat. Again, some direful fiend, in moustaches and patent leather boots, may have intruded his fascinating but diabolical phiz into their peaceful, domestic circle, poisoned the happiness of that shrine, and finally caused a separation between the blessed pair, and a connection between his own back and a tough cow-hide. Which of these is the cause of the split, the committee are unable to say.

Again, they are of opinion that two mortal sinners, who have been in purgatory for thirty years, should certainly be put through in one direction or the other, instead of being allowed to return to the terrestrial condition of their former state. A precedent will be found for this course in the case of "Orpheus vs. Pluto," First Pandemonium Reports, 729.

The committee could see no reason why these evidently ancient turtle doves should not peaceably and quietly pursue the course they practiced for thirty years, and mutually return to each other's bosoms; and would advise this course, for reasons as follows:

"For high the bliss that waits on wedded love,
But, purest emblem of the bliss above,
Of one fond heart to be the dove and lord,
Bless and be blessed, adore and be adored;
To draw new rapture from another's joy;
To share each pang and half its sting destroy;
To own the link of soul; the chain of mind
That hearts to hearts and hands to hands can bind,
For ever and ever—amen."

The committee being, therefore, unapprised of the causes of this separation, or its probable monstrous results, can only recommend the House to advise them to "stick it out" for their brief future of this earth. Whatever their difficulties or "embarrassment" may be, whether sentimental or constitutional, the difficulties of the Legislature are both "sentimental and constitutional;" as, therefore, this House "would'nt if it could," nor "could'nt if it would," they recommend the petitioners to the Court of Common Pleas, and to beware of higamy.

Signed by a majority of the committee.

It is sufficient to add that, after a motion to print 250,000 copies made by Mr. West, the report was laid on the table.

Most Extraordinary Case.

A Woman Living over Eighteen Months without Eating or Drinking.—Relative to the case of the woman Mrs. Hayes, of the town of Day, Saratoga county, of whom it is said she has lived now nineteen months without eating a morsel of food, and whose death was recently announced in one of the papers of Albany, the Sandy Hill Herald has the following:

"Mrs. Hayes is not dead, but remains in the condition in which she has been for many months past. Incredible as it may seem, there is little, if any doubt but that this woman has lived for more than eighteen months without eating or drinking. We have not alluded to the case before for the reason of its apparent incredibility; but scientific gentlemen, with hundreds of others, after the closest scrutiny, have become convinced that there is no deception practised, and that the woman actually subsists without food or water. In order to test the matter, a gentleman took the woman to his residence, and parties watched her day and night for one month, who say that she neither ate nor drank during that time, and that on food being introduced into the room, concealed in the pockets of disinterested persons, the woman would immediately go into horrible convulsions. The same effect was produced by persons taking tobacco, or any kind of ardent spirits where she was. The woman is reduced to a perfect skeleton, so much so that by placing the hand upon the abdomen the back bone can be distinctly felt. We are aware that there are instances on record somewhat akin to this, which turned out to be frauds; but if this is a deception, it has been so adroitly practised that every one who has examined it has been duped. Besides, there is no motive for the deception; and it is quite incredible that any person would suffer to the extent that this woman has for the sole purpose of playing upon the credulity of the public.—Viewed in any light, the subject is worthy of the attention of the scientific and curious."

PUBLIC BEQUESTS.—The will of Isaac M. Ireland, lately deceased in this city, provides for the payment of $5000 to his relatives, and, after the decease of his widow, gives all the rest of his estate, which may amount to $5000 more, to the proprietors of the Crombie street Church, "to have and to hold to said corporation forever, the income of which shall be appropriated for the benefit of the poor who may attend said church, under the direction of the standing committee."

The will of the late Miss Susan Marston, also—which makes a pretty general distribution among relatives and others—bequeaths $1000 to a near relative and his wife, which sum, upon their decease, is to go to the city of Salem, the income to be appropriated toward "the support of old men and women." The Samaritan Society and Seamons' Widow and Orphan Society receive $50 each, and the Salem Charitable Mechanic Society a portrait of Washington.

REPLY TO THE SCOFFER.—To a young infidel who was scoffing at Christianity, because of the misconduct of its professors, the late Dr. Mason said: "Did you ever know an uproar to be made because an infidel went astray from the paths of morality?" The infidel admitted that he had not. "Then, don't you see," said Dr. M., "that, by expecting the professors of Christianity to be holy, you admit it to be a holy religion, and thus pay it the highest compliment in your power?" The young man was silent.

BURDEN OF RICHES.—There is too often a burden of care in getting them, a burden of anxiety in keeping them, a burden of temptation in using them, a burden of guilt in abusing them, a burden of sorrow in losing them, and a burden of account at last to be given up for possessing and either improving or misimproving them.

A GOOD WIFE.—The young lady gives rational security for becoming a good wife, who does not apologize when you find her at work in the kitchen, but continues her task until it is finished.

Somebody describes the absurd appearance of a man dancing the polka in this wise: "He looks as though he had a hole in his pocket and was trying to shake a shilling down the leg of his trowsers."

Marriages.

Married—In Caddo parish, La., 26th ult., by Rev. J. C. Burruss, Rev. LINUS PARKER and Miss NELLIE BURRUSS.

On the 2d inst., by Rev. Sam'l Hawes, Mr. JOSEPH M. BEAUCHAMP, of East Feliciana parish, and Miss OCTAVIA ISABELLA FLYNN, daughter of Mr. Simpson Flynn, of West Baton Rouge.

On the 12th ult., by Rev. E. T. Nabors, Mr. JOSEPH FELFORD, of Dallas, Ala., and Miss AMERICA ANN SMITH, of Perry county, Ala.

On the 4th ult., near Galesville, Ms., by Rev. H. D. Berry, Mr. JOSEPH JOHNSON and Miss SUSAN RUSS, all of Hancock county.

Special Notices.

EDUCATION.

A Lady, of many years experience in tuition, desires to have charge of a Female School. She is accustomed to instruct in the usual English branches, French, Music, Painting, Embroidery, &c. Can give satisfactory reference, if required.

Address "G. M. A., Milldale postoffice, Warren county, Ms," stating terms, location, &c.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Long's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

Late News by Telegraph.

Special to the New Orleans Picayune.

STATE PRINTER ELECTED.

Baton Rouge, Feb. 9.—The House passed the normal school bill to day.

The Senate met the House in joint session to-day, when the election of State Printer was entered upon, and Mr. Taylor, of the Baton Rouge Advocate, was elected.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Washington, Feb. 9.—In the Senate, to-day, Mr. Douglas moved that further proceedings with the army bill be postponed, for the purpose of taking up a resolution calling returns of the late election in Kansas. The motion was negatived by 30 to 23.

BISHOP WAUGH DEAD.

Baltimore, Feb. 9.—Bishop Waugh, senior Bishop of the Methodist Church, died here this morning. Bishop Morris, of Cincinnati, succeeds him.

Portland, Me., Feb. 10.—The steamship Indian, which left Liverpool on the 27th ult., has arrived here. She brings intelligence four days later than that received by the Arabia.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

The Indian brings reports of a further advance of ⅛d. per pound in the price of cotton in the Liverpool market. Middling Orleans is quoted at 7d. per pound.

The sales during the three business days since the departure of the Arabia are reported at 30,000 bales.

MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

The marriage of the Princess Royal was celebrated in accordance with appointment; and with most enthusiastic and magnificent ceremonies. The day was universally observed as a holiday; and at night there was a superb general illumination.

New York, Feb. 10.—Cotton has advanced ¼ per pound in this market to-day.

The sales have amounted to 2000 bales. Middling Uplands is quoted at 12c. per pound.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

Baton Rouge, Feb. 10.—In the House to-day, Mr. Allen introduced a bill relative to Massachusetts; one of the provisions of which is, that no debt owing to a citizen of that State shall be recoverable in the courts of Louisiana. It was referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

A bill to repeal the New Orleans election law of last session, and substitutes for it were introduced by Mr. Gray. They were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

In the Senate, Mr. Withers introduced an act to abolish the allowiag of three days grace on sight drafts.

Explosion of the Fanny Fern.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

From the Ciacinnati Commercial of the 29th ult., we extract the following particulars of the destruction of the steamboat Faany Feru by explosion and fire, some account of which has already reached us by telegraph:

Yesterday, at 2 P. M., the steamer Fanay Fera, Capt. Benj. Woodward, boand from St. Louis for Pittsburg, with over three huudred tuns of produce and twenty or thirty cabin nad deck passengers, when at Bosley's Bar, near North Bend, eighteen miles below this city, exploded one (the center) boiler out of three, which passed out on the larboard side, destroying the forward part of the boat. The flames from the furnace spreading with fearful rapidity, the entire boat was soon enveloped in n sheet of fire, and burned to the water's edge, when the hull sauk—the boat and cargo boing n total loss.

We regret to announce that from thirteen to fifteen lives were lost by this deplorable accident—three ladies, (cabin passengers,) two children, three deck passengers, and five firemen aad deck bands.

Captain Ben. Woodward, the commander of the boat, a resident of Newport, is missing, and it is feared was killed or drowned.

The clerks, Messrs. Alfred J. Rogers, and Harry Drum, of Pittsburg, were both scalded—the former, it is feared, was futally wounded. The latter was scalded on the neck, side of the head, and on both arms. They were in the office when the boiler bursted. Mr. Rogers was bathing his feet, and Mr. Drum writing out a manifest. They were blown into the river simultaneously, falling within five feet of each other, and fortunately caught hold of a few floating sticks of cord wood, when they were rescued by a yawl sent to their relief. Mr. Drum thinks he was blown forward, and passed under the boat.

The hurricane deck parted from the cabin and floated out of sight, with three men clinging to it—one of whom, it is hoped, may prove to have been the captain.

The two pilots escaped with slight bruises.

The following persons are known to have been lost:

Capt. Benjamin Woolward, of Newport, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, of Pennsylvania; Wm. Nelson, an Englishman; James Anderson, of Xenia, Ohio; Jas. Maloy, Michael Donohue, Jas. Kavanagh, Thomas Walker, and Robert Biddle, of Pittsburg; a widow lady aud child, unknown: Hanaah Thomas, chambermaid, of Alleghany city.

The following were scalded: Alfred Rogers, of Pittsburg, severely; Harry Drum, of Pittsburg, slightly; Andrew J. Kirkpatrick, slightly; John Flynn, Wm. Paul, John W. Kerr and H. W. Casey, severely.

Local Intelligence.

DR. BOYNTON'S LECTURES ON GEOLOGY.

Dr. Boynton, a distinguished geologist, is giving a course of lectures in this city to large and intelligent audiences. Of the third of the course, the Picayune thus speaks:

The subject of the geological lecture on Monday evening was the formation of the metamorphic or non-fossiliferous rocks. To the scientific student it was perhaps more interesting than those which preceded it, as it defined the constituent elements of these rocks as well as the mode of their formation.

The original melted mass of the globe, said the lecturer, which when cooled became the granite rocks, contained all the elements now entering into the composition of all the mineral, animal and vegetable matter on the earth. But whence came the successive strata which overlie the granite? It was from the disintegration of the granite itself. Thousands and tens of thousands of feet of the original primitive rock have been broken down and scattered, their heavier elements being deposited in one place and their lighter in another. On the cooling of the original melted mass, the lower portion of the crust formed, cooling under great pressure, was compact and heavy, while the surface was porous and light. The lava rock around the great crater of the volcano of Owyhee shows the different condition of the lower portion and the surface of the earth's original crust. Two hundred feet down the perpendicular face of that crater the volcanic scoria is as compact as granite, and when struck by a hammer will ring like an anvil.

On the surface, however, it is as light as cork, and will even float on water. Comparatively small forces would reduce this light mass, and prepare it for its place in the mechanical age of the creation, which now had succeeded the age of chemical action. The high temperature, though reduced so as to permit water to be deposited and rest upon the earth and the violent and constant agitation of the crust itself, bent, upheaved, distorted, wrinkled and broken by the fierce waves of internal fire, were powerful mechanical agents to work out, in the process of time, the plan of the Almighty Architect. Water, falling as gentle rain, from its mechanical action and the acids it contains, in the course of seventy years, obliterates names carved in marble. How much more rapid the wearing down of the newly formed earth's crust, when the waters, with the force of great oceans, were ever rushing from point to point, as the action of the sun and the moon, and the agitations of its own internal fires, became mighty disturbing forces? Broken into minute particles, as sediment, the old granite at length is deposited from the water, and then, acted on by heat from below, and the pressure of the overlying ocean, the whole mass is welded together and becomes stratified rock.

Lying down upon the granite, as the lowest strata of the metamorphic rocks, is the gneiss rock, possessing all the chemical elements of the granite, resembling it in almost every particular, and differing from it only in its crystals, all running in one direction, or in its matter being stratified, instead of the crystals lying in every direction through the whole mass. Subjected to a higher heat, from its position, than any other strata above it, it is nearer in appearance to the granite than anything which lies above it.

Next comes the mica slate, then the hornblende slates, and, finally, the clay slates, all deposited in the order of the weight of their constituent elements.

Clay is the lightest of all the component parts of the old granite, the easiest disturbed, and the longest held in suspension. Just as would have been supposed by the scientific explorer, the clays are deposited last, and form the upper strata of the metamorphic rocks; and their character changes with the change of the mechanical forces in operation, and the chemical powers not yet exhausted.

Nearly all the rocks of New England are of this metamorphic character; and such are the rocks on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountain, and of almost all mountain ranges. Through these new strata cracks and fissures were made by the upheaval of subterranean forces, which are often found injected with quartz. This quartz is the true matrix of gold. As these rocks were pushed up seams to form mountain ranges, the quartz and gold were carried with them. By the action of cold, heat, air and water, producing unequal expansion and contraction on these masses, the gold was liberated and washed down the mountain sides into the valleys and the beds of its winter streams, the coarser particles deposited first, and the finer carried to a greater distance. Gold thus found is worn by the action of water, its angles and edges rounded off; but when found in the quartz vein, it is full of sharp points and covered with rough surfaces.

The lecturer dwelt at some length upon the peculiar features of California as a gold bearing region, and contrasted it with other sections of country with the same geological peculiarities, but without gold in quantities to remunerate the miner. The beautiful views of the country added much interest to this portion of the lecture.

All these rocks, said the speaker, are destitute of any symptoms of animal life. They are below the region of death, for nothing yet lived to die. The earth, in the ages of its cooling, disintegration and mechanical reconstruction has been gradually preparing for the support of animal life. The waters have become pure, the air purged of many of its destructive gases, and now this bleak desolation, this mighty theatre of great and contending forces—is prepared to sustain the best and last creation of him who had laid the foundation of the earth. The next lecture, will trace the order of animal life until this crowning creation, man, walked the garden of Paradise.

LARGE EXPORTS.—There were cleared on the 6th, at our Custom House for Liverpool 20,032 bales cotton in 7 vessels; for Havre 6649 bales in 3 vessels; for Bordeaux 1,028 bales; for Boston 363. Total, 28,072 bales. Two of the vessels for Liverpool carried 10,200 bales, viz: the ships George Washington 5275 bales, and S. E. Pettigrew 4925 bales. There were also cleared for Liverpool, as part of the remaining cargoes, 14,373 sacks of corn, 4380 barrels of flour, 21,850 staves. There was also cleared for Boston 5516 barrels of flour, 1118 barrels of pork; for Havre, 1153 packages lard and 900 bundles hides. A tolerable good day's export.

THE ASSEMBLY OF THE DEAD.—Dr. Reed, a traveler through the highlands of Peru, is said to have found lately, in the desert of Aleoma, the dried remains of an assemblage of human beings, five or six hundred in number, men women and children, seated in a semi-circle, as when alive, staring into the burning waste before them. They had not been buried; life had not departed before they thus sat around; but hope was gone; the Spanish invaders were at hand, and, no hope being left, they had come hither to die. They still sat immovable in the dreary desert, dried mummies by the effect of the hot air, and still kept their position, sitting up as in solemn council, while o'er the Areopagus silence broods everlasting.

LIBRARIES FOR THE POLICE.—A new proposition is started in New York. Libraries of useful books are to be furnished each police station, for the use of the police.

RAILROAD LAW.

The Court of Appeals has recently given an important decision upon the right of a railroad company to lay its track in a public street. A citizen of Syracuse sued the Central Railroad Company for damages, for having laid its track in front of his property. It was contended in opposition to his claims, that as it was a public street, and had been surrendered to the public use by the owners of the adjoining property, the Company had a right to build a railroad through it, inasmuch as this was one mode by which the public made use of it. The Supreme Court decided in favor of the railroad; but the Court of Appeals has reversed the decision, deciding that the dedicating of land to the use of the public as a highway, is not a dedication of it to the use of a railroad company; and that, consequently, a railroad cannot be built upon a highway without compensation to the owners of the fee.

Another decision has been rendered by the same Court in relation to the right of requiring passengers to show tickets. A passenger who was put off from a train on the Erie railroad, for refusing to show his ticket to the conductor, brought a suit against the company. The conductor had once been shown the ticket, and on asking to see it the second time, was assured by another passenger that the plaintiff had paid his fare. But the plaintiff persisting in refusing to show his ticket, was ejected from the car. The Court decided in favor of the company very distinctly and on several different issues, holding that the company had the right to make all needful regulations for their own convenience, and the comfort of the passengers, and among these is the right of knowing continually who are entitled to seats; the Court to be judge of the lawfulness of the regulation as to how often tickets are to be shown, and a jury not to decide whether an unreasonable frequency is required or not.

TERRIFIC FIGHT OF EAGLES.—On Saturday last week, Mr. Jones, the proprietor of the lower steam saw-mill, at Natchez, discovered two gigantic eagles in the air over the river engaged in furious combat. One was the Great Grey American Eagle, and the other the Bald Headed Eagle. In their tremendous struggle they grappled and came down splashing into the river where their fight continued as furious as ever. A steamboat passed over them which submerged and nearly drowned them, and Mr. Jones, immediately coming on them in a skiff, was able to capture and bring ashore both of them, although they were so fierce he was obliged, when on shore, to knock both of them senseless before he could bind them with cords. He will keep both in cages for great national days, celebrations and elections. One can be seen in a cage at Mr. Botto's store, Main street, Natchez, near the corner of Wall street. He is too tremendously fierce to permit actual measurement—the extent of both wings when extended, from tip to tip, is estimated at from seven to eight feet.—Concordia Intelligencer.

TRIUMPHANT SUCCESS OF THE CAMEL EXPERIMENT.—A California writer, giving an account of Lieutenant Beale's wagon-road expedition from Fort Defiance to the Colorado river says:—The experiment of the camels and dromedaries has proved a triumphant success. In opposition to the opinions of many U. States officers, they have shown themselves admirably adapted for traversing the wastes of Western America.—In some instances these wonderful animals went a week, and, in one, ten days without water—not because it did not exist on the route, but from the lack of desire for it, and on the tenth day the animal drank with comparative indifference. They could go, if required, over two weeks without tasting water. Their food is of the simplest and coarsest description; they eat, as they progress whatever grows on the wayside, bending their long necks, and thrusting their heads alike into the narrowest crevices for the cactus, or the stunted verdure, or cropping the leaves from the boughs of the trees, without in the least retarding their speed. Truly they may be called the ships of the deserts, and, when taken in comparison with mules, horses or cattle, which require food almost as regularly as man, they seem adapted by nature to the novel task to which our Government has now devoted them.

STARVING IN NEW YORK.—The following incident, in the New York Times, affords mournful proof of the destitute condition of New York poor:

A lady passing down Broadway, near Fourteenth street, a few days since, when opposite a butcher's stand, was startled by the excited appearance of an intelligent-looking woman rushing toward her, with clasped hands and a look of despair, exclaiming, "I am hungry, I am hungry!" Stepping inside the store, the lady procured for her some potatoes and a piece of meat. The hungry woman quickly gathered the potatoes into her pocket, then seizing the bloody meat, put it to her lips and ate it to the bone! then saying, "I must take this home to Eddie," rushed wildly from the store, leaving the salesman and lady astounded.

UNEXPECTED BUT JUST REBUKE.—The New York Express says:

During the offertory in a certain uptown church, on Sunday morning, the clergyman paused before reading one of the sentences, and remarked in a perfectly clear voice, that was heard in every part of the building—"There are two persons in this church whom I wish to inform that this is not the time or place for conversation." It is needless to state that there was no whispering during the remainder of the service.

FIRE IN A SCHOOL BUILDING AT BOSTON.—On Thursday afternoon, 21st inst., one of the female teachers in the Chapman school, East Boston, Massachusetts, discovered a fire in the cellar of the building, kindled from the furnace, and with great presence of mind privately informed the several teachers in the building.—The scholars in the rooms were dismissed and orderly left the building without knowing the cause. Soon after, and before the two remaining rooms could be cleared, the alarm was given, but the teachers stationing themselves at the doors prevented a rush, and passed all the scholars out safely. There were ten teachers and five hundred children in the building. The fire was confined to the basement, and extinguished without serious damage.

A METEOR.—A substance, supposed to be that of a meteor, has been found on Riverhead Beach, near Marblehead. The Boston Journal correspondent says:

"The substance, when found, was in one solid mass, and covered a space of eight or ten feet in diameter. It was probably in a fluid state when it struck the earth. The substance is of a dark color, and resembles scoria, or molten iron after cooling. The surface is perfectly smooth, and is covered with globules of different sizes, which had apparently been forced upward by the pressure of the vapor beneath. The under surface of the mass is porous. On being broken it emits a strong sulphurous smell. It is in no way affected by the magnet. The whole mass weighed from 600 to 800 pounds."

According to a Belgian paper, the funded property of the house of Rothschild, of Paris, amounts at present to forty millions sterling.

General Intelligence.

NEW ENTERPRISE IN GEORGIA.—Georgia has been the pioneer of the South in manufacturing enterprise. But few persons are aware of the extent to which capital has been invested in this species of industry. In addition to what has been accomplished in cotton and woollen manufactures, there is now in successful operation at Augusta, Ga., a manufactury of porcelain ware. The material (kaolin) is found in great abundance in the vicinity of the works; and the style and finish of the ware is highly creditable.

NOVEL KIND OF MANUFACTURES.—Austrian papers state that a merchant of Vienna has lately presented to the Industrial Union of that capital the details of a series of experiments made by him to manufacture spider's thread into woven tissues. The thread is wound on a reel, and two dozen spiders produced in six months a beautiful and delicate thread, two thousand feet in length. The stuffs manufactured in this manner are described as being far superior to those of silk, in beauty and delicacy of fabric.

It is rumored that the Board of Managers of the Washington Monument, unable to raise sufficient funds to finish it in the style originally intended, have concluded to build it up with bricks and mortar, and plaster it in imitation of marble. We cannot believe that they will consummate this plan. Better have no monument at all, except that (more durable than marble, and of course more durable than stucco,) which is erected in the hearts of his countrymen.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

ECONOMICAL.—The total value of foreign imports at New York, week before last, was $1,804,970. The corresponding week of last year it was $3,980,090. There is a difference, showing that people are becoming reasonable in dry goods and other things.

The imports for the month of January show a fine figure of economy. Thus, 1858, $6,800,188; 1857, $15,090,801—a difference of only a little more than eight millions. If they hold on this way a short time, we shall get out of debt.

A FEARFUL WARNING.—A young lady, twenty-five years of age, of elegant accomplishments, and fascinating qualities of many kinds, arrived in St. Louis a few weeks ago, from Chillicothe, Ohio, on a visit. She had been in the habit of taking small quantities of arsenic, for the purpose of beautifying her complexion, and on Friday last she took an overdose, fell sick, and on Saturday she died.

INCIDENTS AT SEA.—The ship Arctic, which arrived at New York on the 31st ult., from Liverpool, among other mishaps, reports that on the 27th Nov., lat 51.46 lon, 11.30, a ball of fire struck on the deck, where it burst with a tremendous report, knocking down the third mate, carpenter, boatswain, some seamen, and some passengers, but not seriously injuring any one.

VIRGINIA OYSTER TRADE.—The bays, tide water creeks and rivers contain 1,280,000 acres of oyster beds. These beds are estimated to produce 619,520,000 bushels of oysters. Not less than 100,000 tons of shipping are annually employed in the trade; 20,000,000 bushels of oysters are taken every year, of which 15,000,000 are carried out of the State.

NO DANGER FROM THE COMET.—The savans estimate that the new comet recently discovered at Cambridge, is at the present time 80,000,000 of miles from the earth. On the 5th proximo, however, it will be only 11,000,000 from our orbit, but we shall, a full month before, have passed that point, and by the time we return the comet will be far on its journey in the regions of space.

We have news from the Pacific of a most horrible occurrence. The bark Sarah Ann, bound from Chili to the Island of Oceania with passengers and merchandize, was wrecked on an island inhabited by cannibals, and every person on board was devoured by the savage monsters. The details of this frightful calamity had not been received.

PATENTS.—France is the only country in which a greater number of patents have been granted in the past year than in the United States. With a population of nearly 36,000,000, there were issued 5187 patents; in the United States, with a population of 22,000,000 2910. Great Britain and Ireland, with a larger population than the United States issued 2115 during the past year.

LIBERAL DONATION.—The Hon. Alexander Anderson, of New Albany, Indiana, has presented to the American Colonization Society ten thousand acres of land, lying in the State of Georgia. The National Intelligencer says the deed for the same was received at the colonization rooms a few days since. The land lies in an improving part of the State, and is supposed to be very valuable.

The Canadians feel quite offended at the proposal of Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, to annex them to the United States. The Toronto Colonist remarks, that if the provinces must be swallowed, they prefer to pass into the gullet of a Southern gentleman rather than into that of an Ohio lawyer.

FUGITIVE SLAVES IN OHIO.—It will be remembered that, a few years ago, the Ohio Legislature passed a law denying the use of the jails of that State for the confinement of fugitive slaves. The present legislature, it seems, is disposed to repeal the law, and a bill to that effect passed the House on Tuesday.

AN ENTERPRISING GIRL.—Miss Sallie Eolu Renau, an accomplished young lady residing in Grenada, Miss., has memorialized Congress in behalf of the uneducated and indigent daughters of her State, and prays that a portion of its public lands may be appropriated as an endowment for establishing a State female college.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—Orders have been received at the New York Navy Yard, to fit out the Niagara with all convenient dispatch, to be ready to sail for England early in March, to assist in laying the Atlantic cable. Cyrus W. Field, Esq., and Chief Engineer Everett, sailed for Europe Wednesday, in the Persia on business connected with the enterprise.

LOAN TO HAMBURG.—Some idea may be had of the amount of silver coin lent by the Austrian National Bank to the merchants of Hamburg, when we state that it took sixteen double horse wagons to convey it from the bank to the railroad depot for shipment.

A great revival has taken place in the Methodist Churches of Nowark, N. J. Six hundred and eighty-eight persons have recently been converted to the faith.

It is stated that the committee on Roads of the Virginia Senate have agreed to report a bill recommending an appropriation of two and a half millions of dollars to the leading lines of railroads in the State.

THE REGULAR ARMY.—A tabular statement in the Washington Union shows the strength of the U. S. army to be 13,575, including officers and privates.

The Little Rock Democrat states that the entries at the United States Land Office at that place are about 1000 acres per day.

DR. AUSTIN,

RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 6-6m

HOLINESS.—It is holiness we want above everything else; holy principles, holy ministers, holy discipline, holy tempers, holy sermons and prayers, holy habits and conduct. Nothing will compensate for this. If the churches are not advancing in holiness, we cannot be surprised that there are few conversions—little spiritual life.—Ginger.

Do not conclude the Lord is not with you, because things go very contrary, and he does not appear for you: He was in the ship notwithstanding the storm, and the disciples thought of perishing.

THE RIGHT VIEW.—To an indigent person who was perpetually boasting of his ancestry, a successful tradesman of humble origin observed, "You, my friend, are proud of your descent; I am proud of my ascent.

If no sin were punished here, no providence would be believed; if every sin were punished here, no judgment would be expected.

Divine Providence constantly withdraws men from evil, so far as can be done without destroying their freedom.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of 10th, says:

The week opened with favorable weather for business, and it will be seen that quite an active improvement has taken place in Cotton, under the influence of favorable European advices, and that improved rates have been realized, while Sugar also has brought more full prices, but Molasses has fallen back, under the pressure of more free receipts. In most articles of Western Produce there is a fair degree of activity, though at lower prices for Indian Corn, while Provisions, Lard, etc., are firm.

On Monday the Arabia's advices, one week later, were received, reporting an advance of ¼ to ⅜d in the Liverpool Cotton market, with sales for the week of 63,000 bales, of which 15,000 bales were taken on speculation and 4000 for export. The quotations given are 7d for Fair Orleans and 6 11-16d for Middling Fair, and the market is stated to have been firm and active at these figures on Saturday, with further sales of 10,000 bales, and a stock of 385,000. The advices from Manchester were more favorable and money was easier, the bullion in the Bank of England having increased within the week £1,400,000.

These advices were received at an early hour on Monday, and as they quite unexpectedly reported an advance of a ¼ to ⅜d in the Liverpool market and a still more active impulse was given to the demand, which resulted in sales of fully 17,000 bales, mostly before the news was generally known, and at firm prices, while subsequently a full ¼ cent improvement was realized and holders claimed ¼ a cent advance at the close. Yesterday opened with a reduced supply on sale, and the advanced claims of holders being still persisted in they were met to the extent of about 7000 bales; making the total sales of the three days 32,500 bales, taken for Great Britain, France, the Continent, the North, etc., and the prices paid yesterday indicate an advance of ¼ a cent per pound upon the rates current previous to the Arabia's advices being made public, our figures being altered accordingly.

COTTON—Arrived since the 5th inst., of Louisiana and Mississippi 19,506 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 6197, Arkansas 3651, Mobile 2561, Florida 16, Texas 26; together 31,957 bales. Cleared since same date for Liverpool 20,206 bales, Havre 6649, Bordeaux 1078, Brazos St. Jago 70, Boston 3675; together 41,678 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 9th inst., 383,814 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 914,699 bales, against 1,083,927 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 500,918 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase to Great Britain of 11,839 bales and a decrease of 33,028 to France, and of 03,031 to other foreign ports.

The Crescent of the 11th:

COTTON—There was an active demand yesterday and the sales embraced fully 18,000 bales, mostly taken before the Indian's news was made public. Subsequently there were some transactions said to show an advance of ⅛, but the market was too unsettled to admit of quotations.

SUGAR—Prices were ⅛c higher. Fair to Fully Fair 4½ a 5⅛.

MOLASSES—17 a 22c for Inferior to Choice and 25 a 28 and 30c per gallon half bbls.

FLOUR—Ohio $4 25, Indiana $4 87½, Choice Unbranded $4, and Fine $3 75.

GRAIN—Corn 50 a 56c per bushel.... Wheat 52 a 56c.... Oats 41 a 43c.... Bran 60 a 68c per 100 lbs.

PROVISIONS—Pork $15 25 a $15 75 per bbl.... Bacon—Sides 10c, Shoulders 7½c, Sugar Cured Hams 12½ a 13c per lb.... Lard, Prime, 9½c.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

158 CAMP STREET. 158

Mrs. BOYD,

LADIES' EMPORIUM.

ALL KINDS OF SEWING DONE BY MACHINERY FOR

Grocers, Ships, Steamboats, Hotels and Families.

A good Stock of Ladies' Garments always on hand.

EMBROIDERING AND TUCKING.

All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries.

Feb 13.

SAVE YOUR HORSES.

"We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for several Burns, Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.

J. W. HEWITT,

Foreman for American Harndsen's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express."

Gentlemen—"I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him.

Respectfully yours, JAMES DORRANCE.

Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.

feb.13 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

WINER'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE.—Lozenges are not more destructive to vegetation than internal worms are to the health of children. Most of the medicines prescribed for them, are however nearly as bad as the disease; the mercury, antimony, etc., with which they are impregnated being corrosive poisons; not so WINER'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE, an innocuous, purely vegetable cordive, which never fails to remove the disease, and invigorate the general health of the sufferer.

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Winer's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by

J. WRIGHT & CO., 161 Chartres st.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,

116.....CANAL STREET.....116

Would call the attention of

STRANGERS

To their large stock of

PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

All of which they are now offering at

GREAT INDUCEMENTS,

This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at

LOWER RATES

Than any other house will sell. The stock of

BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS

is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at

VERY LOW RATES.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st.

jan16-13t

Southern Machinery Depot.

PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES from 2 1-2 to 15 horse power.

STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES from 15 to 60 horse power.

PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut from 3000 to 10,000 feet of lumber per day.

CORN MILLS, from 14 to 36 inches, made of best French solid Burr Stones.

DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.

WELL PUMPS, to lift and force water from wells 100 ft. deep Rubber and Sole BELTING, HOSE Iron and Lead PIPE, Carpenters' Blind, Sash, and Carriage Makers' LABOR SAVING MACHINERY; TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulay SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.

For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. C. LOWMAN & CO., 96 Magazine street. 3t c

ENGRAVINGS.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The above have just been received at the Depository, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. The size of these Engravings is 20 by 26 inches, printed on the best heavy English plate-paper, the India-proof copies being toned with fine India paper, delicately flesh-tinted

Price of plain copies.....$1 50 | India proof copies.....$2 00

Colored Copies..... 3 00. Nov. 16

DR. BAAKE

TREATS ALL DISEASES FREE OF CHARGE.

DOCTOR BAAKE will also give special attention to the following diseases: Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Croup, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all other diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

He will devote particular attention to the treatment of the Skin Diseases—Lumbago, Scrofula, Rheumatism acute and chronic, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all derangement of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels; and also to all chronic Female diseases. Special attention will be given to the Eye and Ear.

Dr. Baakee has made a new discovery of a Fluid that will produce perfect absorption of the "Cataract," and restore permanent vision to the eye without the use of the knife. Dr. B. can produce one thousand certificates of his perfect success in curing Cancers, old Sores or Ulcers, Fistula, Tumors or Swellings of every description, and without the use of the knife. Special arrangements must be made with Dr. Baakee for the treatment of the last named diseases, as they will require his constant advice and attention. Dr. B. is one of the most skilled and celebrated Surgeons and Physicians now living. His fame is known personally in nearly every principal city in the world.

All letters directed to Dr. Baakee (enclosing a postage stamp, or five cents,) from any distance, correctly stating the nature of the disease, shall be promptly answered, and the patients treated by correspondence, free of charge.

☞ Office hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. DOCTOR BAAKE.

☞ Office, 140 Baronne street, below Poydras street, New Orleans, La

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S

CELEBRATED

GERMAN BITTERS.

PREPARED BY

Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Phila'a, Pa.

WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,

Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach.

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, or Fullness or Blood to the Head, Acidity on the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of a ten years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale is unrivaled by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is extensive, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot fail to satisfy the most skeptical that the remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IN MAKE

DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?

DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?

DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?

DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?

DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?

DO YOU WANT ENERGY?

DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?

DO YOU WANT A BRISK AND VIGOROUS FEELING?

If you do, use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch street Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canada, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT & Co. 26, and 161 Chartres st and general agents for the South.

T. A. WILLIAMS,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Havana Cigarettes. 104 and Entrepot Proof Sales, No. 33 Gravier street, New Orleans. ap16-6m

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	—	13	a 15
East India	—	11½	a 12
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	—	6½	a 8½
Northern	—		a
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	—	25	a 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	16	00	a 18 00
English, Fire	25	00	a 30 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs			a 60
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	—	8½	a 10
Havana, good, pr g'n	—	12½	a 13
——— inferior to middling	—		a
Java	—	14½	a
Laguayra	—	11½	a 11½
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	—	43	a
Tallow	—		a
Adamantine	—	20	a 22
Star	—	16	a 18
CORN MEAL, per bbl	—		a
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¼ to ⅞	—	5	a 8
——— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	—	8	a 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¼ to ⅞	—	4½	a 10½
——— Sheetings, 4-4	—	9	a 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	—	11½	a 13½
——— Virginia ditto, ¼ to 4-4	—	12	a 15
Ticklings, ¼ to 4-4	—	9	a 18
Stripes and Checks	—	8½	a 16
Denims	—	7½	a 16
Cottonades	—	12½	a 25
Satinets	—	25	a 75
Calico Prints	—	5	a 16
Jeans, Kentucky	—	40	a 45
Linseys, Kentucky	—	30	a 35
——— Eastern	—	18	a 22
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	—		a
English	10	00	a 16 50
Am. No. 2 in 10 pr yd.	—	19	a 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	—	40	a 1 20
FLOUR

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful,
By the roadside let them fall,
That the rose may spring by the cottage gate,
And the vine on the garden wall;
Cover the relics and the ruins of earth
With a veil of leaves and flowers,
And mark with the opening bud and cup
The shrine of common hours.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the holy shrine of home;
Let the pure, and the true and the graceful there
In their loveliest luster come;
Leave not a trace of deformity
In the temple of the heart,
But gather about its hearth the gems
Of Nature and of Art.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the temples of our God—
The God who stor'd the uplifted sky,
And flower'd the trampled sod;
When he built a temple for himself,
And a home for his priestly race,
He rear'd each arch in symmetry,
And carved each line in grace.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the depths of the human soul;
They shall feed and blossom, and bear the fruit,
While the endless ages roll;
Plant with the flowers of charity
The portals of the tomb,
And the fair and the pure about thy path
In Paradise shall bloom!

LOOK ALOFT.

In the tempest of life, when the wave and the gale
Are around and above, if thy footing should fail—
If thine eye should grow dim and thy caution depart
Look Aloft and be firm, and fearless of heart.

If the world, who embraced in prosperity's glow,
With a smile for each joy and a tear for each woe,
Should betray thee when sorrow like clouds are sprayed
Look Aloft to the friendship which never shall fade.

Should the vision which hope spreads in light to thine eye,
Like the tints of the rainbow, but brighter to fly;
Then turn, and through tears of repentant regret,
Look Aloft to the sun that is never to set.

Should they who are dearest, the core of thy heart—
The wife of thy bosom—in sorrow depart,
Look Aloft, from the darkness and dust of the tomb,
To the soil where "affection is ever to bloom."

And, oh! when death comes in terrors to crush
His fears on the future, his pall on the past;
In that moment of darkness, with hope in thy heart,
And a smile in thine eye, Look Aloft and depart.

OBITUARIES.

Departed this life Jan. 18, 1858, Mrs Nancy Graves Ramsay in her 59th year. She was the daughter of the late Thomas Yancey, of Caswell county, N. C., where she was born Aug. 19, 1798. Having lost her parents in early childhood, her uncle, the late Hon. Bartlett Yancey, became her guardian, and she became a member of his family, with whom she remained, until her marriage with Andrew E. Ramsay, of Chatham county, on the 7th of Oct., 1817. In March, 1831, they removed to Alabama and settled in Marengo county, from whence they removed to Hunter county in 1848; where she ended her earthly pilgrimage.

The circumstances of her death are peculiarly painful. She arose early in the morning, and attended to the business of the day with her accustomed promptness, and appeared to be in as good health as usual. At supper she was quite cheerful and retired to bed at 9 o'clock, complaining of being slightly indisposed. The next morning she was found cold in death just as she had lain down, having died apparently without a struggle.

Thus she at once "ceased to work and to live." Having been spared for forty years to share the joys and sorrows of her deeply afflicted husband, and seeing the last of her ten children grown, her spirit gently passed away to "the rest that remains to the people of God."

Though we were denied the consolation of ministering to her in her last moments, and of hearing her dying testimony to the truth of our holy religion; yet, by her consistent life we are consoled with the reflection that "our loss is her eternal gain."

She was for many years a member of the M. E. Church.

Died—At his residence in St. Tammany parish, La., Jan. 29, 1858, in the sixty first year of her age, Mrs Cassandra Wadsworth, consort of M. Wadsworth, Esq.

In the Scriptures, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints," and it is no difficult matter to discern the spiritual character of this excellent woman. Raised by pious parents in the fear and favor of God, she professed faith in Christ in the days of her youth, and gave her heart to God in the morning of life. In the year 1[illegible] a profession of our holy religion, joined the Methodist E. Church, and continued to the day of her death a consistent member and faithful Christian. The Bible was her guide, her chart to heaven, and title deed to her inheritance there. She ever kept this blessed book near her side, and her heart was often made to rejoice by faith in its precious promises.

The disease which terminated her earthly existence was a protracted one. For two years she had been deprived of the privileges of the sanctuary, which in health she so highly enjoyed. Sometimes, for weeks at a time, she was confined to her bed, and oftimes suffered much, yet ever [illegible] firmly fixed in God and strong [illegible] she believed that our light affliction here, [illegible] for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Like unto one waiting for [illegible] she kept her lamp trimmed and always burning, and her passports were ever sealed. Often visited her during the past year and was with her when [illegible] for her edification and comfort, [illegible] prayer, which she always seemed [illegible] be said that she was a [illegible] mother and kind neighbor, [illegible] husband, weeping children [illegible]. This Christian mother left [illegible] She had the pleasure, [illegible] of them grown up and doing

Jesse T. Dew.

The Southern and North Carolina Advocates will please copy.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

LITTLE BELL.

A CHILDREN'S ANTHEM.

He prayeth well who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast.
The Ancient Mariner.

Little Bell sat down beneath the rocks—
Tossed aside her gleaming, golden locks—
"Bonny bird!" quoth she,
"Sing me your best song before I go."
"Here's the very finest song I know, Little Bell," said he.

And the Blackbird piped—you never heard
Half so gay a song from any bird—
Full of quips and wiles,
Now so round and rich, now so soft and slow,
All for love of that sweet face below,
Dimpled o'er with smiles.

And the while that bonny bird did pour
His full heart out freely o'er and o'er,
'Neath the morning skies,
In the little childish heart below
All sweetness seemed to grow and grow,
And shine forth in happy overflow,
From the blue, bright eyes.

Down the dell she tripped, and through the glade
Peeped the Squirrel from the hazel shade,
And from out the tree,
Swung and leaped, and frolicked, void of fear—
While bold Blackbird piped that all might hear—
"Little Bell!" piped he.

Little Bell sat down amid the fern—
"Squirrel, Squirrel! to your task return—
Bring me nuts!" quoth she.
Now away! the frisky Squirrel flies—
Golden wood-lights gleaming in his eyes—
And down the tree,
Great ripe nuts, kissed brown by a July sun,
In the little lap drop one by one—
Hark! how Blackbird pipes to see the fun!
"Happy Bell!" quoth he.

Little Bell looked up and down the glade—
"Squirrel, Squirrel from the nut-tree shade, Come and share with me!"
Down came Squirrel, eager for his fare—
Down came bonny Blackbird, I declare;
Little Bell gave each his honest share—
Ah! the merry three!

And while the frolic playmates twain
Piped and frisked from bough again,
'Neath the morning skies,
In the little childish heart below,
All the sweetness seemed to grow,
And shining out in happy overflow,
From her bright blue eyes.

By her snow-white cot, at close of day,
Knelt sweet Bell, with fold palms, to pray;
Very calm and clear
Rose the praying voice to where, unseen,
In blue heaven, an angel shape serene
Paused awhile to hear.

"What good child is this," the angel said,
"That with happy heart, beside her bed,
Prays so lovingly?"
Low and soft, oh, very low and soft,
Crooned the Blackbird in orchard croft,
"Bell, dear Bell!" crooned he.

"Whom God's creatures love," the angel fair
Murmured, "God doth bless with angels' care.
Child, thy bed shall be Folded safe from harm—love deep and kind
Shall watch around and leave good gifts behind, Little Bell, for thee."

London Athenæum.

AN HONEST BOY.

"That is right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little boy. He had just brought him a dollar that lay among the dust and sweepings.

"Always be honest. It's the best policy."

"Should you say that?" asked the boy timidly.

"Should I say what? that honesty is the best policy? Why, it is a time-honored saying. Don't know about the elevating tendency of the thing. The spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"So grandmother taught me," replied the boy. "She said we should do right because God approved it, without what man would say."

The merchant turned abruptly toward the desk, and the thoughtful-faced little boy resumed his duties.

In the course of the morning a rich man called into the store. While conversing, he said:

"I have no children of my own, and I fear to adopt one. My experience is, that a boy of twelve, which is the age I should prefer, is always confirmed in his habits, and if they are bad——"

"Stop!" said the merchant, "you see that lad yonder!"

"With that noble brow?—yes, what of him?"

"He is remarkable——"

"Yes, yes—that is what everybody tells me who has boys to dispose of. No doubt he will do well enough before your face, I've tried a good many, and have been deceived more than once."

"I was going to say," replied the merchant calmly, "that he is remarkable for principle. Never did I know him to deviate from the right, air—never. He would give up a pin. Indeed, he is a little too honest for my employ. He points out the flaws in the goods, and I cannot teach him prudence in that respect. Common prudence, you, well know, is—is common—common prudence—ahem."

The stranger made assent, and the merchant continued to say:

"He was a pariah orphan, taken by an old woman, out of pity, when yet a baby. Poverty has been his lot—no doubt he has suffered from hunger and cold uncounted times. His hands and feet have been frozen. Sir, that boy would rather die than have been dishonest. I can't account for it—upon my word I can't."

"Have you any claim upon him?"

"Not the least in the world, except what common benevolence offers. Indeed the boy is too good for me."

"Then I will adopt him—and if I have found one honest boy in my searches, thank God."

The little fellow rode home in a carriage, and was ushered into a luxurious home, and he who once sat shivering in a cold corner, listening to the words of a poor, pious old woman, who had been taught of the Spirit, became one of the best and greatest divines England ever produced.

I HAVE NO TIME TO READ.

The idea about the want of time is a mere phantom. Franklin found time, in the midst of all his labor, to dive into the hidden recesses of philosophy, and to explore the untrodden paths of science. The great Frederick, with an empire at his direction, in the midst of war, on the eve of the battles that were to decide the fate of his kingdom, had time to reveal the charms of philosophy and intellectual pleasures. Bonaparte, with all Europe at his disposal, with kings in his ante-chamber, begging for vacant thrones, with thousands of men whose destinies were suspended on the brittle thread of his arbitrary pleasure, had time to converse with books. Cæsar, when he had enrbed the spirits of the Roman people, and was thronged with visitors from the remotest kingdoms, found time for intellectual conversation and study.

Boys and girls can have time, if they are willing to improve it, to gain much valuable knowledge, while out of school, without depriving themselves of necessary play or enjoyments.

Suppose every scholar eight years of age should commence reading some interesting books, and read one hour each day, continuing to do so until he is twenty years old; he would have gained more than a year's time, or three hundred and sixty-five days of ten hours each.

Who will try this course? Young reader, will you do it? You can if you will only make the attempt, and thus lay up a vast amount of knowledge for yourself. Now is the time to read.—The Student.

A NEW BABY IN THE HOUSE.

We knew all about it—what all those drawers and chests were filled up with a miniature wardrobe for—why sister Mary had such a fashion of blushing and hiding her pretty tasteful work at the bottom of the basket.

Yes, we all know about it now; the mystery is explained; we've got a baby! a real, blinking bona-fide baby; the intelligence of which was conveyed to me by a round-eyed, wonder-stricken urchin, who was the baby until this morning.

"O, such a wee bit of a squirm!" he exclaimed, "no bigger than a doll, and it nru't got no eyes at all."

Fast as I hurried home to welcome the little stranger, Tommy was there before me, and with eyes bigger than ever, was standing at nurse's knee, evidently trying to solve the question whether baby's fists were doubled up to hit him a punch, or to snub his own nose the wrong way of the world.

A bran new baby! Do you know what its advent is into the heart and home of a happy family? The mother lying upon a bed of sickness which reduces all women, from the queen to the beggar, to the same common level of humanity; the mother that we approach so reverently, feeling that a human soul has been sent from Heaven via her maternal bosom, and that from her hands He who sent it will require a strict account of its guardianship while passing its life through this world of chance and change.

What a responsibility! I think we are seldom conscious of it, or if we were, we, who know to its core every throb of the great world's heart, who have lived through its storm and calm, who know how unsubstantial its pleasures, how poignant its woes—I say, could we know the responsibility of transplanting to its sunshine and its shade, one single blossom from the garden of God, we should pray to be spared that trust we might so ineffectually fulfill.

But then to see our new baby—our beautiful mystery! to see everybody tip-toeing in—everybody but Tommy, who, never having been accustomed to walking on eggs, don't exactly see why he should begin now—to see them all so gleeful over baby, so pitiful over mamma—poor mamma, lying there so pale and wan—to see them joking papa, and calling him a "terrible fellow," at which little Tommy is indignant, and thinks it wouldn't be well for Mrs. Grandy to call him such a hard name. What an interest we take in general, not that we think that anything in that line could hold a candle with ours; and what jokes we tell about other people's babies, until our laughter warns the nurse, who warns us to be more quiet, or leave; to be sure the laughter is confined to Tommy and I, for mamma only smiles the tiniest ghost of a smile; Tommy makes up for it, however, langhing as loud and so long, without the remotest idea but the rough-and-tumble somerset can cool off his merriment; at the exhibition of which enormity nurse gives him a different kind of a propeller which sends him crying to the kitchen. Mamma says "Poor Tommy!" and papa immediately starts for him.

In a few minutes he returns with Tommy and a pair of red eyes, very manfully asserting that papa's boy wasn't going to have his nose put out of joint for all the babies in the world! Then mamma smiles on papa, and papa, when he thinks I don't see him smiles on her, and takes her poor bloodless hand and presses it to his lips, places it in his bosom, till poor me, who don't see him anyhow; who wouldn't be hired to see him, and who has lived long enough in the world to know when not to see, choke up the worst kind, make up for my chamber, and have just a magnificent cry, with nothing in the world to cry for only because everything is so affecting; the sick room in its quietude, the helpless little thing in its cradle, and papa and mamma in their newborn affection. Oh, I tell you a man never is a man till a bit of humanity, bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh, lays helpless in his arms. He never knows himself, till the dear one he has chosen out of the world to walk with him the pilgrimage of life, lies for the first time before him, weak and pale, with a morsel of humanity upon her bosom. The promise they make to their own hearts; that no wrong of their doing shall ever give a pang to that gentle spirit; that no pain of pleasure shall be bright enough to lure their feet from the portals of home; that no word of unkindness shall ever give pain to the mother of their child.

But, alas, (there must be an end to everything in this world) new babies get to be old stories; fresh promises fade in the light of fresher pleasures—and men, being inconsistant ever, would require a fresh baby every week or two, to make them toe the mark of all the promises they so inconsiderately make; and as it would be rather inconvenient for us to accommodate ourselves to such requirements, we must take the will for the deed, and make the most of their repentance for the past and good resolves for the future, while the motive for these resolutions lasts. Babies are a great institution though, at least ours is.

Gay Spanker.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED yh frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
83 Canal St. near Camp.
d12

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices. L. W. LYONS & Co., 83 Canal St. near Camp.
d12

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, F. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. } A. MONDEIMER, GEO. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
s19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT.....
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. HAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Ranipart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box, No 588 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!! BELLS!!!!
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School-house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my18-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeans.
THE Subscriber furnishes LOWER than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS, Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunns & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman G. Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranted. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. FINNEY,
ap26 86 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior, may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

VAN BIBBER HOUSE,
CORNER CARONDELET AND POYDRAS STREETS,
NEW ORLEANS.
I HAVE leased the above House, and have newly furnished it throughout, and it is now open for the reception of Regular Boarders and the Travelling Public. With an experience of seventeen years at the business in Louisiana and Texas, I flatter myself that I will share a liberal portion of public patronage.
I will also act as Agent for distant friends for the purchase or sale of any article in this market. HENRY VAN BIBBER. o31-3m

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprises the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29-6m

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No, 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a25-1y

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell John Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Keney, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Rues.
D. HUNTINGDON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y E. W. RAYNE, Agent

Plantation Drug Store.
JUST received at the Plantation Drug Store of R. H. READ, 84 Common street, per ship Audova, a superior lot of VARNISHES. Also on hand a fine assortment of PAINTS, OILS, WHITE LEAD, PAINT BRUSHES, &c., all low for cash or short paper.
PLANTATION MEDICINES, PERFUMERY, and STATIONERY, at the most reasonable rates.
Also, READ'S COUGH MIXTURE, a pleasant and reliable remedy for ailings of the Throat and Chest. If the article offered does not cure or relieve the afflicted, the money will be promptly returned.
nov 21 R. H. READ, 84 Common street.

PROFESSIONAL.

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.
HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD,
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Wens, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9-1y

EDUCATIONAL.

HOMER COLLEGE,
THE Trustees of this prosperous Institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class, $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASSON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 8th of October, 1858.
FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
O. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALDCLEUGH, D. D., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. D. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

Emory and Henry College,
WASHINGTON COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
THE Spring Session begins on 14th January, and closes on 9th June following. The College charges for five months, including Tuition, Board, Fuel, Washing, and Incidentals, will be $71 25. For a catalogue or for other expenses, address
jan 9-2m E. E. WILEY, Pres't, Emory Postoffice, Va.

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter-half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, is point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. R. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas, parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. G. M. EVERHART. d19 1y

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants,
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.

COFFEE,
SUGAR,
TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES,
RICE,
MACKAREL and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetically Sealed Cans,
WHALE,
LARD,
LINSEED and CASTOR OILS,
STAR and SPERM CANDLES,
CLARET,
CHERRY
MADEIRA and PORT WINE,
ANISETTE,
and other CORDIALS,
SCOTCH and PHILADELPHIA ALE,
LONDON and PHILADELPHIA PORTER,
TOBACCO direct from Virginia,
SEGARS, Havana and German
SPICES,
PICKLES,
CATSUPS,
PRESERVES,
ALMONDS,
RAISINS and other Fruits.
ROCK, ASSORTED and FANCY CANDY,
TUMBLERS,
FLASKS and other GLASSWARE
LETTER and WRAPPING PAPER of all kinds,
WOOD and WILLOW WARE,
MANILLA CORDAGE,
POWDER and SHOT,
YEAST POWDERS,
SNUFF of all kinds,
and all other articles connected with the general grocery business.

Drugs.
SULPHATE QUININE, ACETIC,
CITRIC,
TART and other ACIDS,
AQ. AMMONIA,
SPIRITS NITRE,
BALS. COPAIBA,
English and American BLUEMASS
CALOMEL and all other MERCURIALS,
CHLOROFORM,
BORAX,
CANTHARIDES,
IPECAC,
RHUBARB,
DOVERS POWDERS
EPSOM SALTS
COPPERAS,
ROLL and bor SULPHUR,
ADHESIVE SELECT POWDERS generally
PLAISTERS,
LUDINS and other Extracts,
GELATINE,
GUM ARABIC,
OPIUM,
MYRRH,
CAMPHOR, etc.,
ESSENTIAL OILS,
IODIDE POTASSE,
IODINE,
STRYCHNINE,
MORPHINE,
SALTPETRE,
SEIDLITZ and SODA POWDERS,
SPONGE,
PAINTS,
PAINT and other BRUSHES,
GOLD LEAF,
LABELS,
PERFUMERY
BLANK BOOKS,
STATIONERY and all articles used by dealers in Drugs.
White Lead. Agents for the Philadelphia Depot Manufactories, J. P. & W. WETHERILL, I. N. LEWIS.
Agents for LEWIS & BROS. Colors and Zinc Paints,
SULPHATE QUININE, sold only in packages not less than fifty ounces,
MALT and HOPS, a constant supply for Brewers use. all-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.
He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over nine hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of blues.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and using old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a tumor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANIS, humbug has taken some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warroe street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5-1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

Southern Machinery Depot.
PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES, from 2 1-2 to 15 horse power. STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES, from 15 to 55 horse power. PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut from 3000 to 16,000 feet of lumber per day.
CORN MILLS, from 14 to 36 inches, made of best French solid Burr Stones.
DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.
WELL PUMPS, to lift and force water from wells 100 ft. deep Rubber and Sole BELTING, HOSE, Iron and Lead PIPE, Carpenters', Blind, Sash, and Carriage Makers' LABOR SAVING MACHINERY; TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulay SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.
For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. C. LOWBER & CO., 98 Magazine street. n7

G. TIEMAN
Merchant Tailor,
35 GRAVIER STREET,
HAS always on hand a choice and well selected stock of Spring, Winter and Summer goods. Persons in the country wishing to leave their measure can be supplied at any time and on reasonable terms. dec5.

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished. mh21-1y

IT IS NOT A DYE!
MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
World's Hair Restorer
AND
WORLD'S HAIR DRESSING.
THE ONLY PREPARATIONS THAT HAVE A
EUROPEAN REPUTATION!!
The Restorer, dyed with the Zylobalsamum or Dressing, cures diseases of the hair and scalp, and RESTORES GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL COLOR!
The Zylobalsamum or Dressing used alone is the best hair dressing extant for young or old.
We take pleasure in presenting the following undeniable proofs that these are the best preparations either in Europe or America. They contain no deleterious ingredients—do not soil or stain any thing.
GREAT BRITAIN.
REV. W. B. THORNELOE, Prescot, Lancashire, says, "Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum are perfect marvels. After using them six weeks, my tremely gray hair is restored to its natural color. I am satisfied it is not a dye."
HAYTI.
REV. MRS. E. C. ANDRUS, for many years Missionary to Hayti, now of Martinsburgh, N. Y. The ultimate having seriously affected her hair and scalp, says, "I have derived much benefit from the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum. I have tried various other remedies for my hair, but never anything that so materially and permanently benefitted me, as has Mrs. S. A. Allen's."
J. H. EATON, Pres. Union Univ., Tenn. "I have used Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum for a relative. I am happy to say it prevented the falling off of the hair, and restored it, from being gray, to its natural glossy and beautiful black."
REV. J. E. ROBIE, Editor "Chn. Adv." Buffalo, N. Y. "Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum are the best preparations I have ever known. They have restored my hair to its original color."
REV. J. WEST, Brooklyn, N. Y. "I am happy to bear testimony to the value and efficacy of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum, and also to acknowledge its curing my grayness and baldness."
REV. GEO. M. SPRATT, Agt. Penn: Bap. Pub. Soc., "We cheerfully recommend Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum."
REV. J. F. GRISWOLD, Washington, N. H. "Please inform Mr

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 3. WHOLE NUMBER 300.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 20, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—115 CAMP ST.

Foreign Correspondence.

THE ISLAND OF CAPRI.

NAPLES, Dec., 1857.

Our visit to this island was one of a peculiar character, and deeply interesting both from its position and historical associations, being the favorite retreat of the Emperor Augustus, who adorned it with palaces, aqueducts and baths, and spent some days there previous to his death, and the resort of Tiberius, who erected twelve palaces upon its most elevated positions and committed there some of his most atrocious deeds.

We took a steamer at Naples, passing on our way an American frigate with the stars and stripes flying and a salute of guns booming over the sea. It was a noble ship, proud in its bearing and superior to any other anchored in the bay. The sight of her masts filled our hearts with joy and sent a thousand thoughts back to our native land, more blest than all the nations of the earth. We saw, as we passed along near the promontory of Persepolis, the interesting islands of Nisita, Procida, and the more lofty one of Ischia, which Augustus gave in exchange for Capri, which rises out of the sea, a massive ledge of rocks, in wild and picturesque grandeur, with only two accessible places upon the island. We landed, after two hours sail, at the little village of Capri, composed of fishermen's huts and low, flat-roofed houses clustering along the sloping hills beneath the towering cliffs which shoot away up into the air like the pinnacles of a temple. We followed a winding path up the hill side with paved steps and walled up on each side, reaching a high elevation to another settlement and a large hotel, where travelers are met by a troop of women with donkeys ready convey them to all the necessible places of interest they wish to go. Our object was the summit of the hill called Leo Capo, to see the ruins of the palace of Tiberius, and the Pharos which stands near it.

We all mounted our little animals, with the acquisition of two accomplished English ladies and gentlemen attached to our party, and wound our way up the declivity, with the donkey drivers, who understood their characters and capacities and treated them accordingly with many stripes and blows, crying out in a strange language which the animal seemed to understand by its increased motion, with notes vibrating upon the ear, filling up the picture with sounds as well as sights equally ludicrous and singular. We found the mountain air invigorating and delightful, with the soft and balmy influence of spring to animate our spirits with that elasticity and freshness which gives a charm to all surrounding objects. Every strip of land we saw in climbing these hills was cultivated; even little patches of earth not more than three or four feet wide were terraced and planted with vines or grain. The cactus, which bears a fruit they call the Indian fig, of which the natives are very fond, grew in great luxuriance among the rocks upon the roadside and upon the walls, supplying fruit in great abundance—a kind seen in the fruit markets of Naples. Our circuitous road up these majestic hills afforded us one of the most beautiful panoramic views of the Island beneath in its pyramidal formations and rocky eminences: one, cone shaped, rose to a considerable height, terraced almost to its top and planted with vines, which flourish among the ruins of palaces that once adorned its brow in oriental splendor; and around this vast amphitheater of hills scattered fragments show how extensive were these magnificent structures. We reached the summit upon which they fix the position of the palace built by Augustus, called the Villa Jovis, in which Tiberius hid himself several months after suppressing the conspiracy of Seyanus, now called Palazzo Tiberio. In the foundations of this edifice are massive walls with broken arches which led to the subterraneous rooms beneath the building; winding steps, cut out of solid rock, led us to other apartments where a large cistern, with baths attached to it, were remaining almost entire; above these a passage leading to the brow of the hill, with high walls and pavement of mosaic unbroken. The courts and different floors of the rooms, though broken, were covered with the same materials. We looked out from these ruins upon one of the most lovely prospects on which the eye ever rested; and their association with historical events gave every object a spell of attraction upon we gazed with delight. The bay, stretching out before and around us, studded with islands which rose like gems of beauty from the ocean's bed to adorn its surface, full of poetic allusions woven in its history; Mount Vesuvius in the distance, with its pillar of smoke; the promontory of torreuts in close proximity; the towering walls of Monte Taleruo, which rise on the west side of the island 1800 feet above the level of the sea, crowned with the ruins of the Temple of the Sun; and scattered fragments of palaces on every peak, presented a view of rare elements truly grand and sublime. From this spot we were conducted to Il Salto, or the The Leap, where the Emperor Tiberius plunged the victims of his cruelty from a perpendicular rock 700 feet into the depths of the sea, whose dashing wave soon silenced their death shriek and closed over their mangled forms. To look down from this ledge was fearful, but to associate its terrific aspect with such deeds was truly awful! Wild flowers now fasten their roots in its crevices and bloom undisturbed in their peaceful abode. The daffodil has found a home upon its little shelves and wreathes with beauty its rugged brow.

A monk of the order of hermits lives among these ruins, a pleasant old man, who offered us some flowers which grew upon this cliff. He had some of the marks of austerity about him, was very social and seemed fond of society.

The Pharos was built upon an eminence on the same range of rocks which dipped precipitously in the sea with bold and projecting fronts of great magnitude, where its lofty tower rose upon the sight of the mariner as a beacon of light. We reached its remains by winding steps and enjoyed from its height another view of unrivalled grandeur—of deep and intense interest. We did not visit the two grottoes as we designed, the swell of the sea being too great to enter them. It was with much regret, for they are represented like the beautiful creations of fancy's airy dreams. The entrance to one of them is through so small an arch that the waves fill up the passage. In a clear, calm day it is said to be perfectly delightful: the water, walls and roof assume a submarine color of the most exquisite blue, increasing in brilliancy the longer one stays in the recess; and a person swimming in the water acquires a silvery hue. We saw a shade of this blue tint on entering the boat on our return, on the shady side of the steamer. It was distinctly visible contrasted with the blue wave. Grotto Verde, or Green Grotto, produces the same effect in dazzling green, while the rocks below appear like dark, polished brass.

Our return to the city in the evening, with its lighted streets forming the two crescents in the bay, was like a spell of enchantment. We woke next morning under the roar of cannon, announcing a grand festival to celebrate one of the dogmas of the Church—the immaculate conception—the troops to be reviewed by the king, and service of high mass. Booming of guns was heard alternately through the day, and in the evening a tremendous roaring.

The church edifices of Naples do not compare with those of Rome. The cathedral is a rich, massive structure, built upon the site of the temples of Neptune and Apollo, adorned with numerous columns taken from their ruins. It has some rare specimens of art: a baptismal font, an antique vase of Egyptian basalt resting upon a pedestal of porphyry, sculptured with bacchanalian emblems in bas-relief. The gothic canopy of the cardinals, wrought in marble, with the delicate wreaths entwined around the columns which support it, it is said has no equal. But the chapel of St. Januarius is first distinguished from all the works of art which adorn the temple, for its two phials behind the altar, believed by the superstitious to contain his blood; and the liquifactions, which take place twice a year, are celebrated with great pomp—the greatest festivals of the kingdom. The silver ornaments in this chapel surpass all others in the church. All its statues appear to be of gold and silver. We were not allowed to enter it, but only to look through its doors.

The most beautiful church we have seen is one in imitation of the Pantheon at Rome, with few ornaments, yet so large that it appears to be of no use but to look at, as the chapels on its sides contain seats sufficient for the people who attend mass. There is an Episcopalian clergyman in this city who has a congregation that meets for worship in the house of the British consul, but have no church as in Rome.

We had service one Sabbath in the house where we reside. Rev. Dr. P., of New York, gathered a few Americans, by the consent of our landlord, read a chapter, gave explanations, and prayed with us, which made us feel quite at home in a strange land. O! when will the pure gospel of Jesus, divested of pomp, throw its mantle of love over this country and change its moral character? The cross is every where, but the Virgin is elevated above it. O! could the thousands of children that throng these streets, who appear to live in the open air, be educated as in protestant countries, the next generation would present a different aspect; and those active little beggars, who are trained to the art with accomplished skill, might shine as lights in the land. These poor people are marked with premature old age; for some who cannot have lived over 40 years have the imbecility of 70, and those of 25 look like old men and women, classed among the roving population who appear to have no regular employment. We have seen in these public squares in the evening, hundreds of men, women and children ranged along on seats and others in dense crowds, seeking, perhaps to be amused, or having no homes, like the lazzaroni.

S. B. THOMAS.

Letter Writing in China.

The first year of our residence in China, a fact of which we were witnesses furnished us with the means of estimating the importance and value of a letter in this country. We were staying at the time with a literary man, a native of Pekin, who had left his family eight years before, to take the office of school-master in one of the towns of the South. Many conversations that we had with this Chinese had led us to suppose that he was not of so cold and insensible a nature as most of his countrymen; his manners were kind, and he had the appearance of possessing much more warmth of heart than is common here. One day we were on the point of sending off a messenger to Pekin, and we asked him whether he would not like to take the opportunity of sending something to his family or friends.—After considering for a moment he said, "Oh, yes: I think I shall write a letter to my old mother. I have heard nothing of her for four years, and she does not know where I am.—As there is such a good opportunity, it would not be amiss if I were to write a few lines."

We thought his filial piety did not seem of a very fervent complexion; but we merely told him that he had better, in that case, write immediately, as the messenger was going off that evening. "Directly, directly," he replied, "you shall have the letter in a few minutes," and he called to one of his pupils, who was singing out his classical lessons in the next room,—probably some fine passage out of Confucius, upon the love that children owe to their parents. The pupil presented himself with the proper air of demure modesty.

"Interrupt your lesson for a moment," said the master; "take your pencil and write me a letter to my mother. But don't lose any time, for the courier is going directly. Here, take this sheet of paper," and the pupil accordingly took the paper, and set about writing to his master's mother.

The Chinese mostly write their letters upon fancy paper, upon which are stamped, in red and blue, figures of birds, flowers, butterflies and mythological personages. The Chinese character being always of a fine black, is not lost amidst these fantastic ornaments.

When the pupil had left the room with his sheet of ornamented paper, we asked the schoolmaster whether this lad knew his mother.—"No, not in the least," he answered. "I don't think he knew whether she was living, or had already 'saluted the world.'"

"In that case, how can he write the letter? You did not tell him even what he was to say."

"Don't he know quite well what to say? For more than a year he has been studying literary composition, and he is acquainted with a number of elegant formulas. Do you think he does not know perfectly well how a son ought to write to his mother?"

We had nothing to reply to this; but we understood immediately the difference between filial piety, as it is felt and practiced in China, and as it is so magnificently described, and commented upon in their books.

The pupil, obedient to his master's orders, lost no time. He returned soon afterwards with his letter in an elegant envelope, which he had even the politeness to seal already, so that this amiable son did not even give himself the trouble to read the anctuous expressions of tenderness and respect that he had addressed to his mother!

AN EFFECTIVE SMILE.—A mass of type duly arranged and set up ready for the printer's hands, is practically useless to us; but when its impressions are struck off, when men feel the emotions, learn the thoughts, understand the purposes, are elevated and inspired by the sentiments which that mechanical arrangement of letters, words, bits of lead, serve to disseminate, then the printer's machinery becomes a blessing to the human race. So it is in religion. The forms and types are nothing, until their impressions are struck off upon our hearts, and we experience fervidly, and vitally, the living principles they were intended to convey."—[Bellows.

TROUBLES.

Many troubles can be cut at the root and cease. Many can be strangled. Many can be overcome by direct attack. We should count worldly trouble to be only an excitant, and become by it aroused to an energy and force which otherwise we could not have felt. Such trials are only occasions of victory. Meet and resist them.

Some troubles and trials can be thrown off. Diseases are repelled by great animal vigor. And troubles may be repelled by great mental vigor. Every one perceives this in his own experience. In the morning we can carry the world like Atlas. At noon we stoop and find it heavy. At night the world crushes us down and we are under it.

The very troubles of to-day were about you yesterday and you did not know them. For you were engaged with things which fired the mind with higher excitements. Very many troubles of life are nothing but your weakness. Stand up and they are gone. They are like gnats, which while one is still, settle and bite, but rising up and working, the whole swarm fly off and do but buzz. But the moment the man rests, they alight. Thus activity is exemption, and sleep is defeat.

The want of proper occupation is the cause of more than half of the petty frets of life. And right occupation will be a medicine for half the minor ills of life. A man without any proper aim in life, without moral inspiration, too rich to be industrious, and a prey to the thousand frets of unoccupied leisure, sometimes sets himself to pray against his troubles. Now a man might as well pray against the particles of sand in Sahara, as a lazy man to pray against petty troubles.

Therefore it happens, sometimes, that bankruptcy brings a man what all his wealth failed to give—happiness; for he has real troubles, and trouble is a good medicine for trouble. There is a moral counter-irritation.

Many troubles, unlike the above, that are real, can be mediated by Hope. For so it is, that we can bear much, when the prospect before us is cheerful and assured. If a man lets his troubles come between him and the sun, they will cast a shadow, and interpose their substance too. But if he will put himself between the sun and his troubles, then his own form will fall upon the overshadowed evil and half eclipse it. It is for this that Hope is given. We are saved by Hope, it is said. Hope is an anchor that holds on to the bottom while the storms handle the ship, and enables it to outride the tempest.

Happy is he that has hope. It is a heart-spring. If a man had no elasticity in his foot, and could spring over no pool, nor ditch, nor roughness, but went leadenly through them all, how burdensome would his journey be. But by an elastic ancle he springs over a hundred hindrances, and never knows their annoyance. Many of our troubles should be overs prung.

Many troubles in life cease when we cease to nurse them. We take them up, we dandle them upon our knee, we carry them in our bosom. When they seem to sleep, we wake them up, and insist upon sharpening their point. We ruminate our cud, which was a thistle at first, and make mean and fretful martyrs of ourselves. If one will be unhappy, if bitter is craved by the palate, there is no need for remedy.

Many real troubles there are which will cease the moment our heart accepts them and submits itself to God.

For many, many troubles are but the strain which we endure when God would carry us the right way, and we insist upon going the wrong! When two walk arm in arm, if one would turn and the other would not, either they must pull diversely or else must separate. But God never lets go his children's arms, and if they struggle and hold back they are dragged. Let them submit to be led, nor struggle nor hold back, be that instant the trouble goes.

This is specially true of all troubles which involve loss of property, and worldly comfort, as though that is necessary to happiness, when myriads, the most happy live without it.

Many of our troubles are instantly cured by holding them up in the light of God's countenance. They arise from seeing things in a false light, or from seeing things in the half-light of this world. When they are surveyed in the great sphere—in light of Heaven, they dissolve like snow-flakes.

This is the reason of the experience of many Christians. They go under a cloud, and finally, pressed and burdened, they go to pray—and rising into the presence of God, and filled with hope and cheer, when they begin to think of their petition—it is gone. The air of heaven has health in it. There is peace in the very presence of God. They that touch the hem of his garment, are often as much healed as those whom he takes by the hand!

The same is true of sousic;—a little hymn, child-warbled, has sometimes done more for a man in one moment than all his own philosophy, his strivings, and his labor! For a hymn is like the touch given to the servant's eyes by the prophet. It opens the air, and it is full of God's messengers.

There be troubles that may be worn out. A patient endurance will destroy them. Like tides, they cannot be checked nor resisted when rising. But, like tides, if patiently waited upon, they will turn and flow out of themselves!

Nay, rather let me say that they are inundations of freshets. When God means mercy to the seasons, he sends clouds to the mountains. From their bosom all the mountain-springs nurse, and are full. But when from the fulness of the rain the streams swell, and branch adds to branch its tribute, the over-swollen river spreads wide over all the neighboring meadows. Trees wade deep; bushes, half-hidden, seem cut in twain, and the earth is lost. But with a few days the stream sucks back its waters and drives them out to the sea. Now see the drenched earth all asleep. Mud, mud, mud. But go again in two months and see the children of the mud—grass that waves its little forests—flowers that carry heaven in their bosom—corn and grain that exult in richness and vigor. Troubles come to us like mire and filth. But when well mingled, they change to flowers and fruit.—Independent.

FOSDICK BY A DOG.—A large dog, has been accustomed to get bits of money from his master to go to a meat stall to get his lunch of fresh meat. One day when change was short, his master gave Growler a piece of white paper on which was an order for the meat. The dog after much urging, carried it to the meat stall, and received his food, and so for several days, when thinking one piece of paper was as good as another, he would pick up pieces of white paper and carry them to the stall without applying to his master. It was not long before a long bill came in from the meat dealer; who had such confidence in the dog that he did not think to look at the paper, and the dog himself was very fat. No arrest was made, and the dog occupies as respectable a position in society as ever.—Bangor Union.

THE LITTLE COFFIN.

We cannot imagine anything more exquisite of the kind than this poem, by Mrs. H. L. Bostwick. It is one of those poems that one cannot see to read through:

'Twas a tiny, rosewood thing,
Ebon bound, and glittering
With its stars of silver white,
Silver tablet, blank and bright,
Downy pillowed, satin lined,
That I, loitering, chanced to find
'Mid the dust, and scent and gloom
Of the undertaker's room,
Waiting, empty—ah! for whom?

Ah! what love-watched cradle bed
Keeps to night the nestling head,
Or on what soft, pillowing breast
Is the cherub form at rest,
That ere long, with darkened eye,
Sleeping to no lullaby,
Wittely robed, and still, and cold,
Pale flowers slipping from its hold,
Shall this dainty couch enfold?

Ah! what bitter tears shall stain
All this satin sheet like rain,
And what towering hopes be hid
'Neath this tiny coffin lid,
Scarcely large enough to bear
Little words that must be there,
Little words, cut deep and true,
Bleeding mothers' hearts anew—
Sweet, pet name, and "Aged two!"

Oh! can sorrow's hovering plume
Round our pathway cast a gloom,
Chill and darksome as the shade
By an infant's coffin made!
From our arms an angel flies,
And our startled, dazzled eyes,
Weeping round its vacant place,
Cannot rise its path to trace,
Cannot see the angel face!

MANNER IN PREACHING.

The remarks of Bishop Jones in an address before the Conference, on the importance of a just and impressive manner in preaching, are well sustained by the following, from an English paper:

"There is much in common between the tragic actor and the popular preacher; but while the actor's power is generally the result of a studied elocution, the preacher's is almost always native. A teacher of elocution would probably say that the manner of Chalmers, Guthrie, or Baird, was a very bad one; but it suits the man, and no other would produce a like impression. In reading the most effective discourses of the greatest preachers, we are invariably disappointed. We can see nothing very particular in those quotations from Chalmers which are recorded as having overwhelmingly impressed those who heard them. In short, an accessory which in England is almost entirely neglected, is the secret of Scotch effect. Nor is it any degradation from an orator's genius to say his power lies much less in what he says, than how he says it. It is saying that his weapon can be wielded by no other hand than his own. Manner makes the entire difference between Macready and the poorest stroller that murders Shakspeare. The matter is the same in the case of each. Each has the same thing to say; the enormous difference lies in the manner in which he says it. The greatest effects are recorded to have been produced by things which, in merely reading them, would not have appeared so very remarkable. Halett tells us that nothing so lingered on his ears as a line from 'Home's Douglas,' as spoken by young Betty:

"And happy, in my mind, was he that died."

We have heard it said that Macready never produced a greater effect than by the simple words "Who said that?" It is, perhaps, a burlesque of an acknowledged fact, to record that Whitfield could thrill an audience by saying "Mesopotamia!" Hugh Miller tells us that he heard Chalmers read a piece which he (Miller) had himself written. It produced the effect of the most telling acting; and its author, never knew how fine it was till then. We remember well the feeling which ran through us when we heard Baird say, "As we bend over the grave where the dying are burying, the dead." All this is the result of that gift of genius—to feel with the whole soul, and utter with the whole soul. The case of Gavazzi shows that tremendous energy can carry an audience away without its understanding a syllable of what is said. Inferior men think loud roaring and frantic gesticulation produce that impression which genius alone can produce. But the counterfeit is wretched; and with all intelligent people, the result is derision and disgust."

"CAN'T AFFORD IT."—A voluntary collector for one of the great benevolent interests of the day, called lately, in pursuance of his duty, upon a gentleman with whom he was acquainted—a business man, and a christian, but one who had hitherto excused himself from making liberal contributions on the plea that he "could not afford it." This plea from a man of undoubted wealth, had probably seemed incredible to our friend the collector; but as he now sat in view of the sumptuous parlors, awaiting the appearance of the proprietor, the truth flashed upon him. He felt that the plea had been sincere—the explanation was before him. On the gentleman's entrance, he mentioned the errand on which he had come, adding:

"But I see, sir, that you really cannot afford it, and I cannot think of presenting any claim upon you. Such a scale of expenditure as I see indicated by everything around me, can indeed leave but little, if anything, to spare for the cause of Christ. I must look elsewhere for support to our operations. Good morning, sir."

The collector left, but the arrow he had lodged did not. It was not long before the rich steward sought him, with acknowledgments for the cutting reproof, which had made a profound and abiding impression upon his conscience. He had made up his mind that he could afford to give, and could not afford to squander. He presented the collector a check for $1000, with the assurance that the style of his household should be no longer a scandal nor an incumbrance to his piety.—Examiner.

A CURIOUS WAY TO GET RESTED.—It is a custom in Berwickshire, England, among women workers in the field when their backs become much tired by bowing low down, while singling turnips with short shanked hoes, to lie down upon their faces to the ground, allowing others to step across the lower part of the backs on the lumbar region with one foot several times, until the pain of fatigue is removed. Burton, in his "First Footsteps in East Africa," narrates a very similar custom of females who lead the camels, on feeling fatigued, and who "lie at full length, prone, stand upon each other's back, trampling and kneading with their toes, and rise like giants refreshed." This custom is called "jugsi" in Africa, in our country it is "straitening the back."—Notes and Queries.

MIRACLE WONDER.

The culture of the soil has, in ages, been regarded as an appropriate and congenial occupation for declining life. Cicero, in his admirable treatise on "Old Age," speaking in the Cato the elder, to whom I have already referred, when he comes to consider the pleasures within the reach of the aged, gives the most prominent place to those which may be enjoyed in agricultural pursuits. These, he adds, are not impaired by the advance of years, and approach, as near as possible, to the ideal "Life of the Wise Man." Guided by the light of Nature, he contemplated with admiration that "power," as he calls it, of the earth, by which it is enabled to return to the husbandman, with usury, what was committed to its trust. It belongs to us, favored with a knowledge of the spiritual relations of the universe not vouchsafed to the heathen world, to look upon agriculture in higher aspects, especially in the advance of life; and, as we move forward ourselves toward the great crisis of our being, to catch an intelligent glimpse of the grand arcana of nature, as exhibited in the creative energy of the terrestial elements—the suggestive mystery of the quickening seed and the sprouting plant—the resurrection of universal nature from her wintry grave.

A celebrated skeptical philosopher of the last century—the historian Hume—thought to demolish the credibility of the Christian Revelation, by the concise argument, "It is contrary to experience that a miracle should be true, but not contrary to experience that testimony should be false." The last part of the proposition, especially in a free country, on the eve of a popular election, is, unhappily, too well founded; but in what bookworm's dusty cell; tapestried with the cobwebs of ages, where the light of real life and nature never forced its way; in what pedant's school where deaf ears listen to dumb lips, and blind followers are led by blind guides, did he learn that it is contrary to experience that a miracle should be true? Most certainly he never learned it from sower or reaper, from dumb animal, or rational man connected with husbandry. Poor Red Jacket, off here on Buffalo Creek, if he could have comprehended the terms of the proposition, would have treated it with scorn.—Contrary to experience that phenomena should exist which we cannot trace to cause perceptible to the human sense, or conceivable by human thought! It would be much nearer the truth to say that within the husbandman's experience there are no phenomena which can be rationally traced to any thing but the instant energy of creative power.

Did this philosopher ever contemplate the landscape at the close of the year, when seeds, and grains, and fruits have ripened, and stalks have withered, and leaves have fallen, and winter has forced her icy curb even into the roaring jaws of Niagara, and sheeted half a continent in her glittering shroud, and all this teeming vegetation and organized life are locked in cold and marble obstruction; and, after week upon week, and month upon month, have swept with sleet, and chilly rain, and howling storm, over the earth, and riveted their bolts upon the door of Nature's sepulchre; when the sun at length begins to wheel in higher circles through the sky, and softer winds to breath over melting snows—did he ever behold the long-hidden earth at length appear, and soon the timid grass peep forth, and, anon the autumnal wheat begin to paint the field, and velvet leaflets to burst from purple buds, throughout the reviving forest; and then the mellow soil to open its fruitful bosom to every grain and seed dropped from the planter's hand, buried but to spring up again, clothed with a new mysterious being; and then, as more fervid suns inflame the air, and softer showers distil from the clouds, and gentler dews string their pearls on twig and tendril, did he ever watch the ripening grain and fruit, pendent from stalk and vine and tree; the meadow, the field, the pasture, the grove, each after its kind, arrayed in myriad tinted garments, instinct with circulating life; seven millions of counted leaves on a single tree; each of which is a system whose exquisite complication puts to shame the shrewdest cunning of the human hand; every planted seed and grain which had been loaned to the earth compounding its pious usury, thirty, sixty, a hundred fold,—all harmoniously adapted to the sustenance of living nature—the bread of a hungry world; here a tilled corn-field, whose yellow blades are nodding with the fool of man; there an unplanted wilderness, the Great Father's farm—where he "who hears the raven's cry" has cultivated with his own hand his merciful crop of berries, and nuts, and acorns, and seeds, for the humbler families of animated nature—the solemn elephant, the browsing deer, the wild pigeon, whose fluttering caravan darkens the sky; the merry squirrel, who bounds from branch to branch, in the joy of his little life: has he seen all this—does he see it every year and month and day,—does he live, and move, and breathe, and think, in this atmosphere of wonder,—himself the greatest wonder of all, whose smallest fibre and faintest pulsation is as much a mystery as the blazing glories of Orion's belt,—and does he still maintain that a miracle is contrary to experience? If he has, and if he does, then let him go, in the name of Heaven, and say that it is contrary to experience that the August Power which turns the clods of the earth into the daily bread of a thousand million souls, could feed five thousand in the wilderness.—Edward Everett.

LICENTIOUSNESS OF THE STAGE.—We reproduce from the New York Herald—a paper that ought to know—its opinion of the theater. Does any decent man wish to defend it after this?

Dr. Bellows is a man of too much good sense and experience, to be unaware that there is a foundation for the aversion which quiet people feel for the theater, and for the dramatic profession. That foundation is the indefensible licentiousness of the stage. It will not do, when prostitutes are being represented on two out of every three stages, to tell us that this licentiousness is a thing of the past, that is, dates from last century, that the profession are ashamed of it. We see, on the contrary, that it is becoming more and more an essential part of every new play, and that those plays are most considered by the profession which contain the most filth. The first character which every aspirant to the highest honor on the American stage, of late years, has endeavored to represent, is that of Camille, an unfortunate woman, without a redeeming trait, but her merited affliction; and the actress whose success has been the most marked, this season, has been the one who represented this unhappy creature to the life. The public, then, must not be stamped upon and sneered at, as bigots, because they will not know actors and actresses, or habitually frequent the theaters; they have good reasons for what they do.

The weakest spot in every man is where he thinks himself to be the wisest.

DR. LIVINGSTONE'S STORY OF A LION.

It is well known that if one in a troop of lions is killed, the others take the hint and leave that part of the country. So the next time the herds were attacked, I went with the people, in order to encourage them to rid themselves of the annoyance by destroying one of the marauders. We found the lions on a small hill about a quarter of a mile in length, and covered with trees. A circle of men was formed round it, and they gradually closed up, ascending pretty near to each other. Being down on the plain below with a native schoolmaster, named Mebalwe, a most excellent man, I saw one of the lions sitting on a piece of rock within the now closed circle of men. Mebalwe fired at him before I could, and the ball struck the rock on which the animal was sitting. He hit at the spot struck, as a dog does at a stick or stone thrown at him; then leaping away, broke through the opening circle, and escaped nobly. The men were afraid to attack him, perhaps on account of their belief in witchcraft. When the circle was re-formed, we saw two other lions in it; but we were afraid to fire lest we should strike the men, and they allowed the beasts to burst through also. If the Bakatla had acted according to the custom of the country, they would have speared the lions in their attempt to get out. Seeing we could not get them to kill one of the lions, we bent our footsteps toward the village; in going round the end of the hill, however, I saw one of the beasts sitting on a piece of rock as before, but this time he had a little bush in front. Being about thirty yards off, I took a good aim at his body through the bush, and fired both barrels into it. The men cried out, "He is shot, he is shot!" Others cried, "He has been shot by another man, too; let us go to him!" I did not see any one else shoot at him, but I saw the lion's tail erected in anger behind the bush, and, turning to the people, said, "stop a little till I load again." When in the act of ramming down the bullets I heard a shout. Starting and looking half round, I saw the lion just in the act of springing upon me. I was upon a little height; he caught my shoulder as he sprang, and we both came to the ground below together. Growling horribly close to my ear, he shook me as a terrier dog does a rat. The shock produced a stupor similar to that which seems to be felt by a mouse after the first shake of the cat. It caused a sort of dreaminess, in which there was no sense of pain nor feeling of terror, though quite conscious of all that was happening. It was like what patients partially under the influence of chloroform describe, who see all the operations, but feel not the knife. This singular condition was not the result of any mental process. The shock annihilated fear, and allowed no sense of horror in looking round at the beast. This peculiar state is probably produced to all animals killed by the carnivora; and if so, is a merciful provision by our benevolent Creator for lessening the pain of death. Turning round to relieve myself of the weight, as he had one paw on the back of my head, I saw his eyes directed to Mebalwe, who was trying to shoot him at a distance of ten or fifteen yards. His gun, a flint one, missed fire in both barrels; the lion immediately left me, and attacking Mebalwe, bit his thigh. Another man whose life I had saved before, after he had been tossed by a buffalo, attempted to spear the lion while he was biting Mebalwe. He left Mebalwe and caught this man by the shoulder, but at that moment the bullets he had received took effect, and he fell down dead. The whole was the work of a few moments, and must have been his paroxysm of dying rage. In order to take out the charm from him, the Bakatla on the following day made a huge bonfire over the carcase, which was declared to be that of the largest lion they had ever seen. Besides crunching the bone into splinters, he left eleven teeth-wounds on the upper part of my arm.

A wound from this animal's tooth resembles a gun-shot wound; it is generally followed by a great deal of sloughing and discharge, and pains are felt in the part periodically ever afterwards. I had on a tartan jacket on the occasion, and I believe that it wiped off all the virus from the teeth that pierced the flesh, for my two companions in this affray have both suffered from the peculiar pains, while I have escaped with only the inconvenience of a false joint in my limb. The man whose shoulder was wounded showed me his wound actually burst forth afresh on the same month of the following year. This curious point deserves the attention of inquirers.—Livingstone's Missionary Travels.

Monosyllable Composition.

Shakspeare makes abundant use of monosyllables. There are forty in four lines in "King John," act iii, sc. 3, where the King is punning in his wish to license Hubert to Arthur's murder. He says:

"Good friend, thou hast no cause to say so yet;
But thou shalt have: and creep time ne'er so slow,
Yet it shall come, for me to do thee good.
I had a thing to say. But let it go."

So too, in "Julius Cæsar," act i, sc. 2, in the six lines following, but three words occur of more than one syllable, and one of them is a proper name:

"Now in the name of all the gods at once,
Upon what meat doth this our Cæsar feed,
That he is grown so great? Age, thou art sham'd:
Rome, thou hast lost the breed of noble blood!
When went there by an age since the great flood,
But it was famed with more than with one man!"

Many more such illustrations might be given from Shakspeare's plays. In our language, monosyllables are nearly all of Saxon origin, and are the most nervous expressions of our ideas.

A HOUSE-GOING MINISTER.—There is a charm in the week-day services of a parish minister, which has not been duly estimated, either by philanthropists or patriots. His official and recognized character furnishes him with a passport to every habitation; and he will find that a visit to the house of a parishioner is the surest way of finding access to his heart. Even the hardiest and most hopeless in vice, can not altogether withstand this influence; and at times, in their own domestic history, there are opportunities, whether by sickness, or disaster, or death, which afford a weighty advantage to the Christian meekness that is brought to bear upon them. His week-day attentions and their Sabbath attendance, go hand in hand. It is thus that a house-going minister wins for himself a church-going people.

"Many," says Newton, "have puzzled themselves about the origin of evil. I observed there is evil, and that there is a way to escape it; and with this I begin and end."

It has been said that a chattering [illegible] soul in a large body is like a swallow [illegible] the twitter takes up more room than the bird.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1858.

7000 SUBSCRIBERS BY MAY.

The three patronizing Conferences, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, resolved that this should be done. Two months only remain to perform the doing of it. If each agent, who receives the paper free, sends forward five new subscribers, it is done, amply done, and the Advocate will report to the General Conference 7000 bona fide, paying, solvent, living, reliable subscribers; this, exclusive of copies sent to agents and exchanges.

Brethren, has the field been so thoroughly gleaned that this can't be done?

It is the substantial living point. We must get to it.

Will not a five minutes talk before a congregation secure the five? Try it.

PLEASANT HILL, DESOTO PARISH, LA.—We have something to say about our visit and the enterprise on foot there, next week.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—The Editor, after an absence of three weeks, finds an accumulation of favors, in the shape of letters, communications, etc. They will be attended to. "Have patience with me."

DR. HAMILTON was unable to proceed to Nashville, with Dr. Stevenson on Tuesday, on account of sickness. He has been quite ill, of pneumonia, but under the care of his friend and host, D. C. Lowber, and the skill of his physician Dr. Angell, is at this writing (Thursday) pronounced out of danger.

MINUTES.—We find on our table printed Minutes of the Alabama Conference, held in Selma, December 2, 1857, and those of the Mississippi Conference, held in Brandon, November 18: proper pamphlets both. The former (pp. 48) is full of well arranged information—about the best we get hold of. The latter (pp. 32) is also valuable, but shows signs of being the first in that line and made up in a hurry. It was a matter of surprise to us that Mississippi has not before had her Minutes put in this readable, preservable, consultable and distributable shape; and the result of this experiment must be a continuance of these annual publications. When made up for a series of years and bound you have a rich repository of Church history. One fact we remark upon, that is not specially applicable to the above Minutes. Minutes ought to be a simple, full, bare record of facts by the secretary, without comment. To say, therefore, that brother A. made an able speech on a question and brother B. answered him with a powerful and logical argument, etc., seems to be a departure from this ideal.

CHOICE BETWEEN METHODISTS AND PRESBYTERIANS IN NEW ORLEANS.

It is a good thing and comely for brethren to dwell together in unity; especially in the presence of so many adversaries to evangelical truth as are here. We desire to promote this, and in order to it, to remove offenses out of the way.

The True Witness (30th ult.,) in reply to our declaration (23d ult)—that when our Conference was held in this city, Presbyterians did not invite us "to supply their pulpits on the Sabbath"—as, in part, an explanation why our pulpits were not offered to their late Synod, says that such is not the spirit or practice of Presbyterians:

"It must have been, in this instance, a mere inadvertence, and not on account of any unkind feeling entertained. Certainly there is no such feeling among the Presbyterian ministers here now, none of whom were here at the time Conference met in this city."

That is plain and fraternal, neighbor. We accept it.

But at the other matter of their members harrassing our Church with a lawsuit, the Witness is surprised, and inquired of persons about it no better informed than the editor:

"They had never even heard of the matter alluded to—the whole of which is, as the facts have been stated to us, a matter between individuals, which commenced several years ago, and while both parties were members of the Methodist Church."

The parties were not members of the Methodist Church when the prosecution "commenced several years ago," which has been renewed by them, after various failures, for seven years, and is even now pertinaciously in court. Certain individuals withdrew from the Methodist Church to the Presbyterian, for causes satisfactory to themselves. They were dismissed readily and kindly. Our Church owes them nothing—not a farthing. While with us they were put in trust of Church property, with others, as trustees. When they ceased to be members, as our Church law provides they ceased to be trustees. Their places were declared vacant and filled as Discipline directs.

Now, what course would the high sense of honor and delicacy that prompts gentlemen, to say nothing of Christian charity, have dictated in such a case? These individuals should have said, "We leave you at our own option and return the trusts we held for you. We have found Church fellowship elsewhere. Manage your own affairs." But not so. They bring suit in the courts, to have the members of our Church, who, by the Discipline, were put in their places, declared usurpers, etc., and themselves reinstated in their rights and powers and privileges as trustees of a Methodist house of worship! These individuals are not restrained or rebuked, and one at least has been promoted to office and ordained elder in the Presbyterian Church, while these are going on.

The spectacle often presented in the courts, before the scoffing world and exultant Romanist, has not been flattering to Protestantism; but we are not to blame for it. We must defend our rights. How the Witness could miss correct information, is strange to us; for we have several times also enough elders, (ruling and teaching) in the court room, to organise a pro re nata session.

The thing is odious: it is also notorious.

BROTHERLY LOVE.

It is not like any other love. It is the bond of peace for the whole family of man, as conjugal, parental and filial love keep the unity of single families. It is a manly sentiment—wider than one's immediate kindred, broader than his fireside. Some never know what it is to love a parent; others may not sympathize in the peculiar emotion of a heart yearning over children. There are those who live and die in ignorance of the relation of husband and wife. The feelings of dependence and care, or the tenderer one of the other-half-of-being, have never been called into exercise. But all may "Love as brethren." This obliges all, without regard to sex, age or condition] that is defined by circumstances. The former is based on the relations of men to men, and is universal, unchanging; the latter is incidental, and destined, perhaps, to pass away with the present state. One is particular and temporary; the other general and permanent.

"Love as brethren."—Peter. "Let brotherly love continue."—Paul. A double exhortation: and other texts might be piled upon the same point.

You may or may not love as a father or mother, as a husband or wife, as a son or daughter; but you can and must as a brother. Without your consent the relations are established on which the duty is based. About you are fellow creatures, subject to like passions, infirmities, sorrows, joys and ills, with yourself. In the course of nature and providence your hand can ease their burdens, smoothe their way or increase their happiness, and they can do the same for you. Contrarywise, there may be a mutual annoyance and each be the worse for the other party. Think of it. You are a weak creature, standing in need of all the sympathy and help you can get.

Many a kind turn you can do a neighbor and be none the worse for it. And what if you are a little the worse? Your neighbor is so much the better for it as to compensate, if there be any generous calculation in your heart. The All Father must look down, well pleased, to see his children dealing so with each other.

Those about you are traveling to the same eternity. There, the anxieties and differences and strifes through which our lives are drawn and by which they are vexed will be swallowed up. There, at the solemn bar and the great assize, you will meet your brother. With him, so poor and ill-tempered here, you have outlived beast and bird, earth and sky, sun, moon and stars, and stand side by side, companions forever! Begin now to cultivate him, to know him as your brother.

The poorest, meanest man has a peculiar interest in the eyes of every other thoughtful man. Poor and mean as he seems, he is really greater than his surroundings. Grand and imperishable elements are in him. This is his probation, as well as yours. You may lift him higher or slak him lower; you may throw a cheerful light upon his solitary way or deepen its gloom; or you may pass him by. Remember, in every case, he is thy brother. One origin, one pilgrimage, one end is to both. One image—divine and inspiring the respect of angels—is on both. Nothing can cheat him of immortality; nothing can divorce you as brothers.

Then love as brethren; and though causes will arise to interrupt or dampen that love, resolve and labor against them—reason against them—pray against them—strive against them and "Let brotherly love continue."

Even travelers on a common road find it convenient to be friends. They may be strangers at the beginning of the journey and at the end part for life; but while enduring the perils and fatigues of the way, they interchange relief and cheer. Each finds his account in being self-denying and regardful of the other's welfare. Comity is maintained—courtesy is kept up. And all are the better for it.

How would life's journey be alleviated by this policy! There is policy as well as religion in brotherly love. Policy and politeness are words of the same derivation. Politeness is a part of religion. It oils the machinery of society and eases the friction amazingly. St. Paul says, "Be courteous." Do certain roughmannered people know that it is written in the Bible, "Be courteous." It is there, in just as plain and big letters as "Be holy." Do they know it? It would be well for some Christians, instead of counting themselves holier for what they call their bluntness, and taking pride in despising the small sweet courtesies of life, to turn to the Bible and read, "Be courteous."

And this is one of the helps to a continuance of brotherly love. The intercourse of Christians ought never sink below that of gentlemen. There is a certain margin of rights and feelings that can not be too nicely observed. Infringe on it, and personal respect wanes or personal grievances occur. Reconciliation, on religious grounds, may follow; but a garment often mended is not so sound as one never torn. Liberties must not be taken, under the brotherly plea that war on the brotherly principle. From no class of people has brotherly love suffered more than from the too free and easy.

"Be pitiful." Consider the occasions of the aspects of character and unpleasant actions in your brother, and the consideration will soften your heart. Pity overcomes indignation and brotherly love continues. He suffers more from his sour temper or envious mind than you do. He labors under a sore affliction and hath a grievous wound. Pity him.

"Have compassion, one of another." An estimate will show that men are suffering more from their passions than other natural causes. This comes home to you. You suffer in the same way and ought to be a compassionate judge. Consider thyself, and so pass sentence. In a heat, an angry word is uttered, soon after regretted. Self-interest warps and blinds. You know how it does. Every deed does not proceed from a fixed principle; sometimes impulse is a cause, with thoughtless, fickle man. Such considerations are not far fetched and strained; they are reasonable and necessary to do you justice. They are conservators of brotherly love.

"Forbearing one another in love." God has set the example, in his dealing toward you: follow it toward your brother. Make him not an offender for a word. Deny him not the privilege of reflection on what is past. Give him time. You have been wrong and lived to see your error. There is a strong prejudice in education. From different positions, the same things may look differently. You are not infallible. It is irrational, ridiculous, contemptible to insist that others must see as you do, or forfeit your love. Even if your brother is wrong and knows it, yet it is the infirmity of our nature to give up cherished error slowly. Bear with him, feebly imitating the long-suffering of which you are a monument.

Brotherly love is not merely to be allowed: it is to be cultivated, defended, continued.

METHODIST PRESS.

Rev. N. Head writes for the Richmond Advocate, a sensible article on what a Methodist Bishop ought to be. Among the negative qualifications is one practically important in its settlement:

But there are some things which a Methodist Bishop should especially avoid.

In fixing the appointments of the preachers, he should avoid volunteer counsellors. Those who are most ready to place themselves in such an attitude are, as a general thing, the officious, the self-important, or those who have some selfish end to serve. Such voluntary counsel is absolutely officious and meddlesome. And in its practical workings positively injurious to the itinerant system.—The Presiding Elders are, by the custom of the Church, a board of advisers for the Bishop. Their counsel is legitimate by the common law. And it is presumed that they are best qualified to give advice. But if the Bishop should want counsel which they cannot furnish, then, he of course, may seek for it where it may be found.

The structure and analogy of our ecclesiastical system clearly justify these views. Any other theory or practice, must run down the Presiding Elder's office and make it, not only feeble but embarrassing. The P. E. is, to some extent, responsible; people and preachers hold him so. And he is so—even though the Bishops assume all the responsibility of appointments. By their small number, brief sojourns and necessarily limited knowledge of particular men and places our Bishops must be, more or less, dependent for the information on which appointments are based. The P. Eldership is essential to our system; but such are its sacrifices that, in order to get men of first class ability to fill it, it must be magnified. Many considerations make a station or circuit preferable. If he is to be set aside in the cabinet—that board of advisers—by volunteer counselors, to whom equal or more weight is attached, who would be Presiding Elder? The responsibilities, labors and inconveniences of the post would let it down at once to a class of men who would let it down quite to the ground.

The work undertaken by the American Bible Society, of a moderate revision of the Scriptures, has been noticed by us and commended in its nature and extent. We are sorry it has failed. The New York Advocate and Journal, 11th inst., says:

We deplore its failure as a signal disadvantage to Christianity, and as an example of literary vandalism, which cannot fail to challenge the reproach of the literary world. The only relief to our chagrin is the fact, that the revised copy (the best, we soberly believe, in the history of the English Bible) is extant—it will be kept in public libraries, at least, and will be always hereafter known in the literary history of the Scriptures; if a better day should ever come, in which conflicting parties can harmonise on a revision of the Bible—this will be the model. Let it take its place, then, in obscurity, till its time comes. But as the great object of the Bible Society is to spread the Bible rather than to preserve it from errors, or to correct even admitted errors, and as this ostensible design could not be successful without harmony among its patrons, unquestionably its only wise policy in a dispute like this, was to fall back on its original purpose. We do, therefore, heartily approve its course, while we deeply regret the necessity of it. All good friends of the cause should, we think, at once abandon the dispute, and go to work promoting the ordinary labors of the society.

While these are our views, we hesitate not to express the opinion that the Board of Managers itself needs some revision, and now that several of its members have resigned, the opportunity for improvement might be used. The late dispute has led us to look a little into the ecclesiastical relations of the thirty-six elected managers. We find them to be as follows:

Presbyterians, (O. S.)	15
Presbyterians, (N. S.)	6—21
Protestant Episcopalians	7
Methodists	4
Dutch Reformed	2
Friends	1
Baptist	1

We make no comment.

The Texas Advocate, contains a letter from the editor to Hon. J. Marshall, of the Legislature, bearing upon a question before that body, whether the State shall have a University, and thus foster state pride in her sons, and do things on a grand scale, or leave higher education mainly to Christian bodies. There is an antagonism between the two—unnecessary but real. Some, on a plea of anti-sectarianism, oppose Christianity itself, in all its forms and influences. The letter states, what abundant illustrations confirm, that the state, for many causes, falls here; must always fail; while christian schools continually enlarge their basis. The member of the Legislature, the Governor himself, if a Methodist or Baptist or other Churchman, will prefer his Church institution. Happily, most prominent men are, directly or indirectly, under some Church influence and interested, on the voluntary principle, in supporting its institutions. This draws away the largest patronage to them and of the best character. Yet the state ought to do something. Extending judicious aid is recommended as a solution of the problem:

The question again comes up, can we not, in Texas, harmonize these elements, prevent this antagonism, and accomplish even more than the most successful State university could accomplish? In that event, we should have both State and Christian education.

Suppose the State should endow one male College for each Christian denomination in its bounds, to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, whenever such denomination shall present satisfactory evidence that it has already invested one hundred thousand dollars in the necessary grounds, buildings, apparatus, and other appurtenances of such institutions. This would accomplish what is desired in a State University, viz: the establishment of first class institutions, and a high grade of education for the young men of our State. We should, in a short time, have three or four such institutions in successful operation in the State; while upon any other plan, we may be without them for years.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

This body adjourned on Tuesday, 1 P. M., 9th inst. Bishop Pierce presided with an ability, kindness and impartiality that drew forth a special acknowledgment. The new secretary, Johnson, and his assistant, Rawson, wrought energetically at their oars, and with the experience of the past session will be up to time for future ones. P. M. Goodwyn, the former incumbent, after years of faithful service, claimed the privilege of retirement and devolving the labor on others. A Conference secretaryship is an important but unenviable post. Perhaps more than the chairman himself, a good secretary expedites business. He must be patient, "swift to hear and slow to speak," unless in answer to a call; quick to catch a motion and throw it into shape and place, and withal hold the pen of a ready writer.

THE LAY-COMMITTEES.

The afternoons of each day were occupied in what is called Committees of the Whole, in lay session, in which all business was discussed. Several lay brethren have before been named, as in attendance—to whom may be added Childers and Jordan, of Pleasant Hill, and Dotey, of Caddo. The latter, once a member, seemed almost in place again, so near did the committee discussions approach those of the Conference, as they used to be. This plan works well and promises the best results from larger development. Valuable business suggestions, as usual, came from the laymen who participated in the discussions. The next session is to be held in New Orleans; and as that will be convenient, we hope to see a representative in the Committees from every part of the work. Business thus done up and put in shape by the several chairmen, when reported to Conference, passed understandingly and unanimously.

THE CONFERENCE FACULTY.

Committees of examination, appointed annually, for the first, second, third and fourth years, are superseded by four standing ones of two each, who distribute the studies, by kind, as do the professors in Colleges, and pursue the examinations through each year. This is also working well and is considered a fixed fact, with such improvements as may be made. The professors, (as we may call them) having now been in office three years, were sharp and bright in their departments and made thorough work of it. This is getting to be an understood thing, and those who have neglected their studies find it as well to decline examinations and be continued. If the faculty refuse to pass a candidate, the Conference vote on his case may be safely predicted. Monday and Tuesday were spent in the examinations. The course of study ought to be improved and a proper improvement would call for enlargement. To obviate the excuse, "Could'nt get the books," which was in a few cases true, it was suggested but not determined on, that Conference purchase a set of books for the use of under-graduates.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

Were held in the Baptist and Campbellite and Methodist Churches on Sabbath. In the last the Bishop ordained three elders and several deacons. During the week, services, three times a day, were held in the Methodist Church, and a religious interest was manifested in several conversions and additions to the Church. The Conference love-feast was a time of refreshing. The annual sermon was preached on Wednesday night, by Rev. L. Parker. We were prevented from hearing it, but expected a resolution to publish, as a suitable expression of those who did hear. Rev. S. J. Davies is to preach the next.

VISITORS.

The Rev. John Sale, late of Courtland, Ala., now of Arkansas, was with us, looking hale and happy—a venerable, grey headed man. He belongs to the '76 period of Methodism. Though a member of the Conference, we so seldom have the pleasure of seeing his round and cheerful face, we may mention here father Samford. He resides in Texas and was able to be present but a few days and opened the Conference with prayer. Professors Scales and Stacy represented their respective literary institutions. Drs. Stevenson and Hamilton, of Nashville, contributed to the interest of the session. As this was their first visit in their present official capacities—and we were never in a place so difficult to come at—the Conference feels especially indebted to them for their presence at this time.

ANNIVERSARIES.

The Missionary Anniversary, on Saturday night, realised, besides two excellent speeches from Bishop P. and Dr. H., a collection and subscription of $1900. On Monday night the Tract meeting was well reported of, with a collection of $550. Prof. Pitts called for the banner. Bro. White responded, "No: send Conference back to Waterproof and we will beat it;" and a pleasant looking man, called "Tensas," rather backed up the statement.

The P. Elder, R. Randle, keyed up his district nobly at the anniversary and saved its credit. But the total collection for the year, in all the districts, is lamentably short. Grand total not over $7000.

ADDITIONS.

It is a matter of congratulation that the Macedonian call, "Come over and help us," develops, even in these days, a Pauline spirit. This year the field, upon and white to the harvest, spread out broader than ever, and the Conference was happily able to put at the disposal of the Bishop a larger number of effective laborers, than at any previous time. Within the last three years over thirty preachers have been received by transfer—nearly one-half of the whole Conference. The introduction of this number of new men into a Conference originally feeble, and their assimilation with the older members, gave rise to the usual symptoms. But soon, every one will know his neighbor and the watchmen see eye to eye. The spirit of love, of zeal, of self-sacrificing labor for Christ's kingdom is the solvent that will make of all a homogeneous body. Our transfer brethren are welcome, thrice welcome to these fields that long have waited for their coming. They are an able body of men, having a mind to the work.

MISCELLANEOUS

Everybody has taken a fresh and an even start. The five Presiding Elders are new, two only having one year's experience in the office. Change was the order of the day. The editor, so far as the Bishop could lay hold on him, came in for his portion and has been changed from an African Mission to Algiers. Lest some of our particular friends should think of us as quitting the tripod before the time and leaving this continent, we state here that our Algiers is just across the river.

The claims of superannuates and widows and orphans of deceased traveling preachers were fully met. The only trouble on this point was, how to dispose of a small surplus. It was finally agreed to pass it over to next year's account. Three per cent. on the traveling preachers' receipts, for the ensuing year, to be collected from the congregations, will meet the full demand of these worthy claimants. Before the plan was adopted they never received higher than 42 per cent: after its adoption, the first year 96 per cent., and every year since the full amount.

From the reports and resolutions, published elsewhere, other matters of general interest may be gathered. By this time the most of the pastors are on the way to, or have opened their heavenly commissions among their people. May their bows abide in strength. As they go preaching, may signs follow the word, such as make angels glad. And from the people, to whom many of them go as strangers, we bespeak a Christian welcome. Receive them in the name of prophets; co-operate with them, from the beginning; meet them at the first appointments; and may the Great Head of the Church give a plentiful and glorious Conference year.

WAR AND PEACE.

In a late debate in Congress, on increasing the army, noteworthy facts and figures were brought out.

Mr. Benjamin briefly stated the reasons why he could not vote for the bill, in the course of his remarks saying that the annual expenses of the army were fifteen millions, and there were about fifteen thousand men, which would be one thousand dollars per man.

The senator from Indiana strengthened the statement, saying that though 15,000 was the number allowed, by various circumstances it seldom rose above 12,000 men, and this would bring the annual expense of each soldier up to $1400.

And this is the cost of men, a few of whom only, on the frontier, see service—and fewer still support families.

A colporteur or school teacher will live and do good on half of that amount. The gospel heralds of the land, promoting morals and peace on earth, and preaching glad tidings, do not average half of it. Yet their cost is by many complained of!

Perhaps no poet ever wrote four more truthful lines than the following, by Longfellow:

Were half the power that fills the mind with terror—
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts—
Given to redeem the human mind from error,
There were no need for arsenals and forts.

THE CASKET.—A neat prospectus of the "Centenary Casket," to be published semi-monthly, in Summerfield, Ala., has been received. Its immediate editorial control and management will be entrusted to Miss Louise D. Ellis, supported by members of the senior class of the Institute. Contributions and business letters may be forwarded to Rev. J. T. Montgomery or Rev. D. B. C. Conaerly, there. Terms of subscription, $1 per year. We doubt not it will be excellent in developing the students and interesting the subscribers. The printer's ink will be (by association, at least) redolent of eau de cologne and the paper tinged with coleur de rose. We shall be pleased to have the Casket on our exchange list, and advise the old bachelors and young men, fathers and brothers, to put down their names.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

SHALL WE SUSTAIN OUR GERMAN PAPER?

A PROPOSITION.

MR. EDITOR: I see from recent issues of the Texas Christian Advocate and the "Apologist," that the latter paper, printed in the German language, has been deprived of all assistance from the general missionary fund. Published at the low price of $1 per annum, it cannot be expected to sustain itself, with a limited circulation; and when we consider the failure of the crops in those portions of Texas in which the Apologist circulates among the Germans, it will appear obvious that the Church at large must sustain the paper, otherwise it will be discontinued.

I regard the Apologist as an efficient missionary, and in assisting it, I am persuaded that a first rate investment is made of missionary funds. The paper is ably edited, giving, in forcible language, the peculiarities of Methodism, and is a welcome visitor to the firesides of the emigrants from the "Vaterland." I propose to be one of a hundred to take in the aggregate, 1000 copies of the Apologist the present year. I will take 10 copies, and allow the editor to send them to any address he may see proper. Those who desire to assist in this work, can notify the editor of the N. O. Advocate, who will doubtless receive subscriptions, or they may address D. Ayres, Esq., Galvestou, Texas.

W. P. HARRISON.

Uniontown, Ala.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG MINISTERS.—To be a thorough Methodist preacher, one ought to understand fully the Methodist Discipline. To enforce the rules of the church, one should have a convenient manual, which presents in one connection all points bearing upon a given subject. For this purpose I regard "Bishop Baker's Guide Book in the administration of the Discipline" as an invaluable work, and useful to ministers, young or old, but especially to the young. To be had at Nashville Book Concern.

POPE.

Alabama Conference, 1858.

Louisiana Conference.

The Twelfth Session of the Louisiana Conference convened in the town of Mansfield, La., on Wednesday, the 3d of February—Bishop Pierce presiding.

The following brethren were admitted on trial: J. F. Wynn, H. W. Segrist, Robt. T. Parish, and E. O. Earnheart. Jas. D. Adams and Jno. P. Richardson were re-admitted.

Saml. Webb and S. H. Dockery (local preachers) were elected, and on the following Sabbath (the 7th) ordained deacons.

Uriah Riley (traveling,) and P. P. Mathews and J. W. Reynolds (local) were elected and ordained elders.

The Bishop submitted the "Alabama Resolutions" for the action of this Conference. The resolutions were concurred in by a unanimous vote. Also, a resolution from the Holston Conference to memorialize the General Conference to enact a third restriction, relative to the boundaries of Conferences. The resolution was rejected by a vote of 42 nays, 4 yeas.

Conference passed a resolution recommending the General Conference, to "strike out that part of the Discipline on page 48, relating to the city of New Orleans as an exception to the usual itinerant system, viz: the entire lines 14 and 15, as we regard such exception no longer necessary.

Adopted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That this Conference is deeply impressed with the importance of some form of receiving members into the Church in order to secure uniformity in the administration of discipline as well as for other purposes, and that we respectfully request the attention of the ensuing General Conference to this matter.

J. B. Walker presented the following resolutions on Sabbath Schools, which were, unanimously approved, viz:

Resolved, That in promoting the Sabbath School cause, we are promoting the cause of God.

Resolved, That we will in no wise abate our zeal in behalf of Sabbath Schools, but that the future of our exertions shall be as the past, and yet more abundant in labors of love.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the Sunday School Visitor; that we cordially commend it to the patronage of our people; and that we will exert ourselves to extend its circulation within our bounds.

That the friends of this great and good cause may see what has been done during the past year, we present a few statistics. We have within the bounds of our Conference only 62 schools, 458 officers and teachers, 2699 children, and 1346 Visitors taken.

When we look at these meager figures and the extent of our territory, we need put forth new energy and more vigorous efforts. We heartily endorse and will endeavor to carry out the spirit of the resolutions.

On the first ballot the following were elected delegates to the General Conference, viz: R. J. Harp, S. J. Davies, H. N. McTyeire; on the third, H. C. Thweatt; and on the fourth, J. A. Ivy. Reserves—R. Randle and L. A. Reed.

It was resolved to request the Bishops to change the time of holding our Conference from the first of February to the first of December.

It was resolved to set apart the first Friday in May next as a day of fasting and prayer for a revival of religion in the bonuds of our Conference.

May God help all the churches to observe the day, throughout our bonuds, with that reverence and humility and trust in God, which will secure to the Church great spiritual growth and much glory to our God.

The case of Rev. Wm. Finn, indefinitely suspended four years ago, was taken up; his suspension declared at an end, and he was located at his own request. W. A. Manly and T. M. Penick, were located, at their own request.

SECRETARY.

APPOINTMENTS

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT.—J. B. Walker, P. E.
Carondelet and Wesley Chapel—L. Parker.
Felicity Street and Winans Chapel—J. C. Keener.
Moreau Street and Soule Chapel—R. J. Harp.
1st and 4th German Mission—to be supplied.
2nd German Mission—J. Paulsy.
3rd German Mission—to be supplied.
City Missionary—C. J. Halberg.
Algiers—H. N. McTyiere, and Editor of N. O. Christian Advocate.
New Orleans Circuit—to be supplied.
Baton Rouge—Henry Avery.
Plaquemins and Grosse Tete—S. Hawes and Jesse Fulton.
New River Mission—to be supplied.
Thibodeaux—M. D. T. Fly.
Lafourche and Bayou Black Circuit and Colored Mission—N. A. Craveus.
Atchafalaya—J. Landrum.
A. G. Miller—Principal of Preparatory Department of Centenary College; in connection with Baton Rouge Quarterly Conference.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.—A. B. Fly, P. E.
Franklin and Pattersonville—J. W. Johnson.
Bayou Teche Mission—J. T. Foutaine.
New Iberia—S. J. Davies.
Vermillion—to be supplied.
Opelousas—B. F. White.
St. Landry Colored Mission—to be supplied.
Washington—A. W. Smith.
Ever Green—D. S. Watkins.
Ever Green Mission—to be supplied.
Alexandria—J. A. Ivy.
North Rapides Circuit—Wm. D. Stayton.
North Rapides Col. Miss.—Uriah Whatley.
Harrisonburg—T. J. Mercer.
Columbia—Benj. C. Stegall.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT.—John Pipes, P. E.
Shreveport—J. L. Chapman.
Caddo Circuit—S. J. Hawkins—one to be supplied.
Mansfield and Pleasant Hill—S. B. Suratt.
Grand Cane Circuit—J. F. Scurlock.
Natchitoches—R. Parvin—one to be supplied.
Sparta Circuit—R. M. Crowson.
Red River Circuit—J. C. Reed.
Lake Bisteneau—D. M. K. Collins.
North Bossier—S. S. Scott.
Mansfield College—E. D. Pitts Prof.
H. C. Thweatt, President.
Agent for Mansfield College—P. M. Goodwyn.
Agent for Pierce and Paine College—B. F. Alexander.

OUACHITA DISTRICT—R. R. R. Alexander, P. E.
Miaden—A. E. Goodwyn.
Homer—C. W. Coursey, sup. J. L. Wright.
Farmerville—D. P. Cullen.
Monroe and Trenton, and Colored Mission—T. B. White.
Ouachita Circuit—Uriah Riley.
Bastrop—T. J. Lacey, E. D. Earnheart.
Vernon—C. W. Hodge.
Dugdemona—R. O. M. White.
Winnfield Mission—S. J. Graves.
Sabine Mission—Wm. A. Smyth.
Agent for Homer College—R. Randle.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

LAKE PROVIDENCE DISTRICT.—L. A. Reed, P. E.
Providence Circuit—T. L. Beard, and W. G. Caughey.
Carroll Mission—one to be supplied, H. W. Grist.
Carroll Circuit—F. T. Rawson and J. F. Winn.
Richmond and Madison and Colored Mission—H. Waters and J. A. Miller.
Ion Circuit—J. H. Bonlt.
St. Joseph Circuit—R. Trippett and R. A. New.
New Carthage Mission—E. W. Griswold.
Waterproof—J. B. Adams.
Tensas Colored Mission—J. C. Pitts.
Winnsborough Circuit—T. H. McClendon and J. Upton, and P. H. Doiffenworth sup.
Cicily Island Mission—to be supplied.
Trinity Circuit—J. P. Richardson and R. S. Taylor.
Concordia Circuit and Mission—to be supplied.
Agent for Tract Society—Joel Sanders.
W. R. Davis transferred to Ouachita Conference.
S. D. Aken transferred to Louisville Conference.
Thos. Samford, superannuate.
Elam A. Stevenson transferred to Ouachita Conference.

Marriages.

Married—On the 13th inst., in Jefferson City, by Rev. James D. Parker, Mr. DANIEL JACOB FLEURY and Miss CATHERINE GABB.

On the 2d. inst., at the residence of Mr. Sullivan, in Washington county, Mi., by Rev. W. B. Hloes, Dr. R. A. KING, of Sunflower county, and Miss VICTORIA O. SULLIVAN.

On the 3d inst., in Marion, Ala., by Rev. H. R. Raymond, Mr. JOHN H. CHAPMAN and Miss BETTIE LE VERR, daughter of Rev. E. V. Le Vert.

On the 5th inst., by Rev. James W. Shores, Mr. GEORGE J. HARTSFIELD and Miss MARY C. STEWART, all of Sumpter county, Ala.

On the 1st inst., by Rev. A. R. Scarbrough, Mr. JAMES J. HARTSFIELD and Miss ISABELLA S. COATS, eldest daughter of Major J. G. Coats, all of Sumpter county, Ala.

On the 24th ult., in Claiborne parish, La., by Rev. Jas. Langston, Mr. JOHN L. SMITH, of Union county, Ark., and Miss SARAH J. MCRAMIE.

At the residence of the bride's father, near Cofferville, Ala., by Rev. Wm. H. Carter, Rev. WILLIAM A. SAMPEY and Miss MATTIE E. WILSON.

On the 28th ult., at the residence of Col. Horgrove, by Hon. Robt. Dougherty, Mr. GEORGE REESE and Miss MARY S. WOOLFOLK.

On the 29th ult., in Marianna, Fla., by Rev. Mr. Ferguson, Rev. JAMES O. BRANCA, of the Florida Conference, and Miss CAROLINE T., daughter of the late Mrs. Caroline Lee Henlz.

Special Notices.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS
New Orleans District.

Toreau Street—Feb. 21st, L. F. 22d, Q. C. 23d.
German Missions—Feb. 28th at Piety street, Q. C. 26th at Dryades street.
Baton Rouge—March 6th and 7th.
Plaquemine and Gros Tete—March 13th and 14th, at Bayou Poydras.
Laurel Street and Boullgny—March 21st, L. F. 22d, Q. C. 23d.
New Orleans Circuit—March 22d at Algiers, Q. C. 25th at Carondelet.
Carondelet Street—April 4th, L. F. 5th, Q. C. 6th.
Lafourche and B. Black Circuit and Mission—April 10th and 11th, at Houma.
Felicity Street—April 18th, L. F. 19th, Q. C. 20th.
Atchafalaya—24th and 25th April, at Wesley Chapel.
Wesley, Soule, and Winans Q. C.—30th April.

There will be a District Steward's Meeting at 112 Camp street, March 3d, at 5 o'clock P. M.

J. B. WALKER, P. E.

SECOND ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS
Greenville District, Mississippi Conference.

Bolivar, at Glenooe, March.....13-14
Greenville, at Greenville, March.....20-21
Upper Deer Creek, March.....27-28
Middle Deer Creek, April.....3—4
Vallula, at Duval's Chapel, April.....10-11
Lower Deer Creek, April.....17-18
Sunflower, at Indian Bayou, April.....24-25
Greenville Colored Mission, May.....2

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2. per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 25, 1858.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st, a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

To the Methodists in Mississippi Conference.

We were appointed a committee at the late session of our Conference to publish the Minutes, for the information and benefit of the Church at large. It is your work, and we look to you to defray the expenses of publishing, which we doubt not you will do.

We ask the preachers to please call the attention of their congregations to this notice at once, while the subject is interesting, and send us $10 or $20 from each charge and get a good supply of Minutes for all of your friends. We confidently look to you, dear brethren, to give this immediate attention and send your funds to bro. Abbey, in Vicksburg, who will send your supplies according to your orders.

Your humble servants in the Lord

W. P. BARTON,
H. J. HARRIS,
Committee.

Vicksburg, February 16, 1858.

Thanks to Hon. J. E. Dowdell, for valuable Public Documents—quite and acquisition to our office library.

Local Intelligence.

Thalberg's concerts, at Odd Fellow's Hall, have been the musical entertainments of the season. He is assisted by Vieuxtemps and other celebrities. His concerts, Monday and Wednesday, were overrun by the elite. We have not witnessed such furor since Jenny Lind's time.

THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF LOUIS NAPOLEON.

The Arabia's foreign news contains full details of the attempt upon the French Emperor's life. France's destiny seems to hang on the life of this eminent and shrewd tyrant. And he lives on a magizeme. We condense an account:

The attempted assassination of the Emperor has been the all-engrossing topic of the week in Paris and elsewhere. Addresses to the Emperor are being signed in every quarter of Paris. The working classes evince the greatest eagerness to affix their names. The Emperors of Russia and Austria have addressed autograph letters of congratulation to the Emperor Napoleon. The first of these letters will be delivered by Prince Paskiewitch, and the second by the Prince de Lichtenstein. The moment the news of the attempt of the 14th Jan., reached Rome, Cardinal Antonelli went to the French Embassy to express, on the part of the Pope, his deep feelings of gratitude to Heaven for having so miraculously preserved the lives of their Majesties.

Queen Victoria, in addition to her message by telegraph, addressed a letter to the Emperor of the French, congratulating him as well as the Empress, both in her own name and that of Prince Albert, on having so miraculously escaped the terrible plot which threatened their lives. In return, the Emperor addressed to the Queen an autograph of thanks.

In addition to the epistolary felicitations of crowned heads, the oral congratulations of ambassadors, ministers and officers of the army and navy, the address of the grent bodies of State, &c., there has been poured into the Tuileries a stream of apparently cordial addresses from the citizens of Paris, the provincial municipalities and authorities, forming altogether a demonstration of devotedness to the Imperial regime, which seems to authorize the confidence with which the Emperor speaks of the popularity and durability of his dynasty.

Some of the officials, in their addresses, hinted that the English Government should be called upon to expel those refugees who abused her hospitality by organizing in their retreat plans of destruction, and perfecting their conspiracies. The Emperor, in reply to the great bodies of the State, expressed his firm confidence and belief in their support and devotion. He added that at the same time he was resolved to adopt such means as might be deemed advisible, but should not depart from that path of firmness and moderation which he had hitherto followed.

The French journals had joined in the cry for the expulsion of the conspirators from Europe, and the Paris correspondent of the Times says it was positively stated that a communication had been made by the French Ministry in London to the English Government, demanding the expulsion from England of five political refugees; one or two Italian and the rest French.

The bombs which were thrown at the Emperor's carriage were of cast iron, oblong, and in the form of a pear, and in the widest part from four to five inches in diameter. The shock of one of the caps, of which each had several, on a hard substance, necessarily caused an explosion. The bombs were loaded with detonating powder, and each capable of killing or wounding one hundred persons. It is said that not less than twenty of them were meant to be used. Five minutes previous to the explosions, an Italian, named Pierri, who was expelled from France in 1852, was recognized by the police and arrested.

He was armed with a six barreled revolver and a dagger, and was the bearer of a bomb similar to those exploded. Count Corsini, who was arrested at his lodgings upon information given by his own servant, is said to have confessed that he threw one of the bombs. These parties and two others, Gomez and DaSilva, alias Rudio, also in custody, are supposed to be the chiefs in the affair. A police officer from London had arrived in Paris for the purpose of identifying Pierri as having been connected the affair of Foschini, who escaped from London some time since.

The Emperor exhibited much solicitude for the wounded, and had distributed decorations among the numerous soldiers who received injuries. The adoption of stringent measures in regard to the Italians resident in Paris was contemplated.

The French legislature opened on the 18th Jan. The Emperor delivered a lengthy speech. He thus alludes to the late event:

"I can not conclude without speaking to you of the criminal attempt which has just taken place. I return thanks to Heaven for the visible protection with which it has covered the Empress and myself, and I mourn that even one life should have been lost. Nevertheless, these conspiracies teach more than one useful lesson. The first is, that the parties who have recourse to assassination prove their weakness and impotence by the desperateness of their means; the second, that an assassination has never proved a success—has never served the cause of those who have armed the hand of the assassin. Neither those who struck down Cæsar, nor those who killed Henry IV, profited by the murder. God never permits the triumph of the cause of crime.

"Thus, these attempts can neither trouble my confidence in the present, nor my faith in the future. If I live the empire will live with me, and should I fall the empire would even be confirmed by my death, for the indignation of the people and army would furnish a new support to the throne of my son. Let us then look forward to the future with confidence; let us proceed with anxious thoughts to our task—the good of all and the grandeur of our country. God protect France."

The Southern Pacific Railroad.

At last it appears that the confirmation and security of the charter of this great enterprise are placed beyond all hazard. A letter, we are informed, has just been received at the office of the Company in this city, from Mr. Hall, of Marshall county, Texas, dated the 10th instant, communicating the fact that the first twenty miles of the road had on that day had been completed in the manner required by the charter as a condition of its non-forfeiture. The time required by that instrument for the completion of the distance mentioned, was the 16th of February; and thus, it seems, the charter is saved by a margin of six days. Heretofore, while the charter was contingent, the Southern Pacific Railroad through Texas was a great expectancy. But now the contigency is removed; the charter will doubtless soon be publicly recognized by Texas as unconditional; the railroad will rest on a real and durable foundation; and with the resources and facilities which the munificence of Texas has furnished, it only requires that the enterprise shall be honestly, intelligently and energetically administered to secure in a short time the happiest results.

A talent is perfected in solitude; a character, in the stream of the world.

APPALLING ACCIDENT.

One of the most shocking accidents that it has ever been our lot to record, occurred two days since at Mountain Ash, South Wales, to a man named David Thomas, a lime burner at some lime kilns belonging to the Navigation Coal Company. Having drawn the lower part of the kiln and got out about a cart load of lime, he thought that the burning stones on the top of the perfected lime did not descend as they ought, and he asked his wife, who happened to be with him at the time, if she would go to the top of the kiln and inform him whether they had sunk or not.

The wife went to the top as requested, and seeing that the stones had not sunk, but still preserved a level surface, she called out, "they have not moved a bit." He joined her at the kiln, and taking up a long iron bar, which was kept there for the purpose of thrusting among the stones when any hitch occurred, he went toward the mouth of the kiln. His wife begged him to keep back from so dangerous a position, at the same time reminding him that if the stones should slip he would be drawn with them into the kiln. He said, "Oh, never fear, I will take care of that;" and disregarding his wife's repeated supplications, he stepped forward to the top of the kiln and commenced thrusting at the stones with his iron bar.

For a few moments the mass remained firm and resisted his attempt to disturb it; but upon his increasing the violence of his thrusts they began to descend, and, as his unhappy wife had predicted, to draw him with them.—As he descended slowly the fiery stones closed around him, until at length the lower part of his body became completely embedded in the burning mass. His shrieks were heartrending, and his agonized wife endeavored to pull him out. The state of the kiln made this a work of difficulty and of the greatest danger, and when at length she did seize his hand and endeavored to drag him out, she found to her horror that the burnt flesh yielded to her touch and came off in pieces, rendering it impossible for her to obtain any hold.

The horrors of her situation can be better imagined than described. At length her cries attracted the attention of a number of men who were standing near an adjacent colliery, and who lost no time in repairing to the spot, in the hope of being able to render some assistance. It happened that one of Mr. Crawshay's boats was passing at the time, and the boatmen having laid to to gaze at the accident, a man named Hobbs, ran to the boat, seized the boat rope, returned with it to the top of the kiln, and was preparing to throw it around the body of the unhappy Thomas, who was still slowly burning and writhing in the most intense agony, when the boatman, David Jenkins, ran after him and took away the rope, saying it was useless to burn it, as he could let them have an old one. He deliberately walked back to the boat, leaving the poor sufferer in the midst of the fire, picked out an old piece of rope, threw it to the men on shore, and then went off with his boat. Hobbs, and one or two others, at length contrived to throw the rope around the poor sufferer's body; but, alas! they found that they could not succeed in getting him out. At length some one suggested that an iron bar should be placed under him to lift him out. This was done, and the frightfully charred body of the still living man, some portions of which had been literally burned to cinder, was got out. Of coarse human strength could not survive such suffering, and he died.

Mobile and Girard Railroad.

We were present (says the Columbus, Ga., Inquirer, Feb. 9,) at the meeting of the stockholders of the Mobile & Girard railroad on Tuesday last, at Girard. Col. R. H. Powell was the chairman of the meeting and Col. William H. Mitchell secretary. After several animated speeches in relation to the right of voting, the chairman decided all those claiming stock should be entitled to vote, unless differently ordered by the meeting.

On motion of Wm. C. Gray, Esq., a list of the stockholders was called and an opportunity given for all the stockholders present, to enrol their names.

After the introduction of a resolution in relation to certain charges against the President of the road as defining his powers under the charter, and the rejection of several amendments and substitutes, the following resolutions introduced by Mayor F. G. Wilkins were adopted by a vote of four-fifths of the represented stock:

Resolved, That the stockholders of the Mobile & Girard Railroad Company do approve the action of the President of the said railroad company in removing the depot from Colbert.

Resolved, That the stockholders of said company do approve the change of the route of said road from that known as the Greenville to that known as the Conecah Valley route, and they hereby ratify the action of the president of said road in surveying said Conecah Valley route.

Resolved, That the Board of Directors of said railroad company are hereby instructed to adopt the most prompt measures to comply with the act of Congress granting lands on the Conecuh Valley route be secured to the company.

Resolved, That no subscription to, or earnings of, the Mobile & Girard Railroad, from this point to Union Springs, shall be expended by the Board of Directors, or their agents, on any part of said road beyond Union Springs, except such a sum as may be necessary and proper to pay for the location of said road down the Conecuh Valley.

PROGRESS OF THE AGE.—The great deeds done by men of old, and accumulated discoveries of the ancient sages, have all been surpassed in the last half century. Before the year 1800 there was not a single steamboat in existence, and the application of steam to machinery was unknown. Fulton launched the first steamboat in 1807; now there are three thousand steamboats traversing the waters of America, and this time saved in travel is equal to seventy per cent., and every river in the world is a highway for their encroachments. In 1800 the word "railroad" had not been coined, and to travel forty miles an hour was an impossibility. In the United States there are now some twenty-five thousnad miles of railroad, costing in the neighborhood of seven hundred and fifty millions of dollars, and about thirty-seven thousand miles of railroad in England and America. The locomotive will now travel in as many hours a distance which in 1800 required as many days to accomplish. In 1800 it took two weeks to convey intelligence between Philadelphia and New Orleans, now it can be accomplished in two minutes by the electric telegraph which only had its beginning in 1843.

VOLTAIRE.—Nearly a hundred years ago, Voltaire resided at Geneva. One day he said to some friends, in a boastful, sneering tone: "Before the beginning of the nineteenth century, Christianity will have disappeared from the earth!" Well! in that same house, in that same room where these impious words were spoken, what think you there is to-day? A large deposit of Bibles! The sacred books fill the house from the floor to the ceiling! So much for Voltaire's prediction!

WHAT THEY THINK OF US IN EUROPE.

Among the late items of news from Europe is the effect produced by the Message of President Buchanan. It seems that the steamer from this side arrived at Liverpool late in the afternoon—too late for the Message to be transmitted to London by railroad that night. The news agent telegraphed to London and Paris that the steamer had arrived with the Message, and that he would send on the heads in the course of the evening. The answer came directly—not only from London, but from Paris as well—"Telegraph the entire Message through at once." It was so done. The entire Message appeared next morning in the Post, and in French in the Paris journals. Such an expensive telegram has never been sent—even in this country of telegraph and newspaper enterprise.

There is some reason to believe that the feat was not altogether a triumph of newspaper enterprise; that the Governments paid at least a share of the expense. However this may be, the main point remains the same—the Presidential Message was so vital a matter to the people or the Governments of England and France that they could not await twelve hours to read it, but must have it entire, by telegraph, at any expense, as soon as it arrived at Liverpool. Such events mark epochs in history.

How many years is it since the London Times informed its readers that it had received the Message of "the President of America," but really it was so long-winded a document that it thought it would best consult the wishes of its readers by giving them a brief summary of its contents, and devoting its space to the great murder trial then pending? And how long is it since the French learned that the President of the United States was not identical with the Archbishop of New York, or the Governor of Virginia? We are speking of things remembered by men still young.

This revulsion, which has caused so much distress, seems to have done us one service—it has taught Europe how dependent it is on the U. States. In some instances—in England especially, the crisis succeeding our revulsion seems rather to have been the occasion than the cause of many serious embarrassments; the tight money market which supervened on the receipt of the bad news from this side happened to occur just in time to explode rotten concerns there; but the bulk of the commercial disasters which have occurred in the various states of Europe are directly traceable to our troubles here. They have taught the Europeans that this vast country, of which they know so little and which their Governments affect to despise so much, is rapidly growing into a position of mercantile and financial supremacy, and that, before another half century rolls over, the life-blood of the commercial world will pulsate from and to the great mercantile centers in the United States. These are truths not very pleasant for the old nations to learn; but the telegraphing of the Presidential Message shows that our neighbors are trying to learn them.

THE POOLS NEAR JERUSALEM.

The National Intelligencer has a correspondent at Jernsalem, whose letters are deeply interesting. We detach the following extract from one of them:

There is no Croton river near Jernsalem, from which water can be obtained. In the time of a siege, three soldiers with their picks, in case New York was besieged, could divert the stream to the reservoir, and leave 600,000 people without water. Against this same catastrophe Jernsalem had to contend. Hence the pools Gihon, Bethesda, and others of immense extent were excavated, and still are found within the walls of Jerusalem.

About six or eight miles beyond Bethlehem we saw the far-famed Pools of Solomon. Of these he is believed to speak in Ecclesiastes 2: 6—"I made the pools of water to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees." The three pools cover together about seven acres, and are respectively 25, 39, and 50 feet in depth. These immense tanks or reservoirs are constructed of stones of very great size, and are of great age. Tradition invariably assigns them to Solomon, and we are inclined to that belief.

We much regret that the records are lost that might shed light on the other gigantic piles of hewn rocks and stones which ambition reared so frequently in ancient days. There would be not only the bridge of sighs, but the Coliseum of tears, the baths of blood, the temples of groan, etc., etc. Who can tell what Rome did with those millions of slaves whom Pompey vanquished in the servile war, during which multitudes cruelly perished?

The three Reservoirs are situated on the side of a mountain, so that as fast as the upper one fills, the water overflowing runs into the second, and on its becoming full, it flows into the third. They are at present in miserable repair, none having more than fourteen feet of water. The cement with which the immense stones were laid has become quite as hard as the marble itself, of which they seem to be built.

The conduit, or aqueduct, leads the water about fifteen miles to Jerusalem, always following the sinuosities of the mountain. The ancients did not understand how water followed a syphon of any shape to any point as high as the source. Hence the immense aqueducts at Carthage, Rome and other places were carried along on lofty stone arches for miles and miles.

Here was one cause of the awful suffering in Jernsalem in the time of her sieges. This aqueduct was broken up, and they were compelled to trust to their pools within the gates and the rain that might fall from heaven. But the unchained madmen, under the dreadful curse of sin, poisoned these cisterns, pools and wells. When the presence and restraining grace of heaven are withdrawn, woe! woe! unto that devoted people! If any one desires proof of the doctrine of total depravity, let him ponder the records of the siege of Jerusalem, under Titus, the Roman General, and under the Turks, when held by the Crusaders.

BIRDS IN JAPAN.—Birds are treated very kindly there. They are never killed for sport, and little troughs are scooped out in the tombstones, which priests fill every morning with fresh water for their drink. During the stay of Commodore Perry's ships a number of officers started one day to go gunning. As soon as the Japanese saw the cruel murder of their birds they went to the Commodore and begged him to put a stop to such conduct. There was no more bird-shooting in Japan by American officers after that; and when the treaty between the two countries was concluded, one condition of it was that the birds should always be protected. Take care of the birds. That is what the farmers say we must do in this country. Unless we do, good-by to fruit, for the insects will get the upper hand of us, and eat it up. Let the birdies live, and they will not only cheer us by their beauty and their songs, but destroy the insects and preserve our fruit.

Hon. Edward Everett repeated his address on Washington New York recently to a vast and delighted assembly. The proceeds of tickets go the Mount Vernon Fund. Mr. Everett has already collected $36,000 for the fund, a success never paralleled, we suppose, by a single lecturer.

PERFECT LOVE.

"I will bring the blind by a way they knew not."—Is. xlii. 16.

"I had," remarked Dr. Olin, "diffidentiea respecting our own theoretical views of the doctrine—perfect love. I even joined the Conference with exceptions to it, and stated my objections when a candidate before the whole body. But I was admitted, the Conference expressing the hope that further inquiries would rectify my views. Years, however, passed without any modification of my opinions. But it pleased God to lead me into the truth. My health failed, my official employments had to be abandoned, I lost my children, my wife died, and I was wandering over the world alone, with scarcely any thing remaining but God. I lost my hold on all things else, and became, as it were, lost myself in God. My affections centered in him. My will became absorbed in his. I sunk, as it were, into the blessing of perfect love, and found, in my own consciousness, the reality of the doctrine which I had theoretically doubted."

THE PREACHING OF PAUL.—"I speak the words of soberness," said St. Paul. And I preach the Gospel "not with the enticing words of man's wisdom." This was the way of the apostle's discoursings of things sacred. Nothing here of the fringes of the north star; nothing of nature's unnatural; nothing of the down of angels' wings, or the beautiful locks of cherubims; no starched similitudes, introduced with a "Thus have I seen a cloud oolring in its airy mansion," and the like. No; these were sublimities above the rise of the apostolic spirit. For the apostles, poor mortals I were content to take lower steps, and to tell the world in plain terms, "that he who believed should be saved, and that he who believed not should be damned." And this was the dialect which pierced the conscience, and made the hearers cry out, "Men and brethern, what shall we do?" It tickled not the ear, but sunk into the heart; and when men came from such sermons, they never commended the preacher for his taking voice in gesture; for the fairness of such a simile, or the quaintness of such a sentence; but they spoke like men conquered by the overpowering force and evidence of the most concerning truths; much in the words of the two disciples going to Emmaus, "Did not our hearts burn within us, while he opened to us the Scriptures?"

Dr. South.

One to-day is worth two to-morrows.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current of 17th, says:

The week has opened with a fair degree of activity in most departments of the market, and Sugar has continued in good demand at improved prices, that the price of Molasses has reacted in favor of sellers and that of Pork, Lard, etc., have further advanced. Indian Corn, also, continues in active request for export, but the demand for Flour remains moderate. In our leading staple, Cotton, there has been but little improvement, buyers generally appearing indisposed to go on at the full prices claimed, and yesterday's business was of irregular and lower rates.

On Monday morning the Niagara's advices, from Liverpool to the 30th ultimo, three days later than those previously to hand, were before the public, reporting the week's sales of Cotton at Liverpool to have been 65,000 bales, of which 11,500 bales were taken on speculation and 2500 for export, and the quotations given are 7¼d for Fair Orleans and 6 15-16d. for Middling ditto; indicating an advance within the week of a ⅛d, as reported by the Indian. The whole stock in port was stated at 360,000 bales, of which 196,000 bales were American. Breadstuffs were dull, with the exception of Indian Corn, and money was easier, the bank rate of interest having been reduced to 4 per cent.

COTTON—Arrived since the 12th inst., of Louisiana and Mississippi 28,325 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 4711, Arkansas 4435, Mobile 2158, Florida 204, Texas 262; together 40,035 bales. Cleared since same date for Liverpool 23,422 bales, Glasgow, 2300, Havre 3014, Vera Cruz 590, Trieste 2457, New York 726, Boston 2851; together 35,150 bales. Stock in port and on shipboard not cleared on the 16th inst., 386,107 bales.

Yesterday, passed with a heavy and unsettled market. the Baltic's advices, still four days later, being about due, but some few buyers came forward and took about 6000 bales, at very irregular prices. Indeed there cannot be said to have been an established market for two days past, and it is impossible to give accurate quotations, but we think that the business of yesterday warrants a reduction of about a ⅛ cent in the Middling and lower grades, though we are not aware of any sales of the better qualities below previous figures. The sales of the three days sum up 11,000 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 978,132 bales, against 1,127,207 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 486,183 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase to Great Britain of 437 bales and a decrease of 28,327 to France, and of 44,856 to other foreign ports.

The Crescent of the 18th:

COTTON—With later advices from Europe, past due yesterday, the market wore a heavy appearance, and barely 6000 bales were sold. Prices were irregular and still tending in favor of buyers.

Inferior	5 a 7	Middling	11¼ a 11¾
Ordinary	8 a 8¾	Good Middling	11¾ a 12
Good Ordinary	9¼ a 9¾	Middling Fair	12¼ a —
Low Middling	10¼ a 10¾	Fair	nominal.

SUGAR—The stock was light and the market firm, with sales of some 1200 hhds. Fair to Fully Fair 5 a 5⅛c per pound.

MOLASSES—Prices were firm, and some 1800 bbls were sold at 20 a 22½c for Fermenting to Good lots, and 24 a 30c for Prime and Choice, with 300 half bbls at 28 a 30c per gallon.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, LA.

PRINCIPAL.....REV. WILLIAM McCALLEN, M. D.

THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and thorough. None but well qualified Assistants will be employed in the various Departments. The Religious training of the youth will be an object of primary importance. The Bible will be a text book. But all sectarianism will be scrupulously avoided. The discipline will be strict, but mild and parental. Spelling, Reading, and Composition, so much neglected in many schools, will receive particular attention. The Principal, having graduated in a European University and having been engaged in teaching nearly eighteen years, (twelve of these in Kentucky and Mississippi,) hopes by zealous attention to his duties to merit a share of public patronage. The Music will be under the direction of Prof. Hermann Kunkler, formerly made here by Rev. H. Jones, whose propriety, so admirably adapted to educational purposes, the Principal has purchased. The first term will necessarily consist of only four and a half months, but the expenses—payable in advance—will be accordingly.

REFERENCES—The President and Professors of Centenary College, Jackson, and Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. Feb 20 2t

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. H. CLEGHORN, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $1 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium,

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.

All kinds of Toilet soaps and Perfumeries. Feb 16

SAVE YOUR HORSES.

We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for severe Burns, Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.

J. W. HEWITT,
Foreman for American, Barnden's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express.

Gentlemen—I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him.

Respectfully yours, JAMES LORRAINE.

Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.

Feb. 13 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

WISTAR'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE.—Insects are not more destructive to vegetation than internal worms are to the health of children. Most of the maladies arise from or there are however nearly as bad as the disease; the cure of, antiquity, etc., with which they are hampered being corrective poison; unless Wistar's Canadian Vermifuge administers purely vegetable curative, which never fails to remove the disease, and invigorate the general health of the sufferer.

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Wistar's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by J. WRIGHT & CO., 161 Chartres st.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 13	a	15
East India	— 11½	a	12
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½	a	8½
Northern	—	a
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25	a	27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00	a	12 00
English, Fire	25 00	a	30 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	—	a	80
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 8½	a	10
Havana, good, pr g'd	— 12½	a	13
—— inferior to middling	—	a
Java	— 15½	a
Laguayra	— 11½	a	11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 43	a
Tallow	—	a
Adamantine	— 20	a	22
Star	— 16	a	18
CORN MEAL, per bbl	—	a
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 6	a	8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8	a	12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 4½	a	10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9	a	15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½	a	13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	— 12	a	15
Ticklngs, ¾ to 4-4	— 9	a	18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½	a	16
Denims	— 7½	a	16
Cottonades	— 12½	a	25
Satinets	— 25	a	75
Calico Prints	— 5	a	15
Jeans, Kentucky	— 40	a	55
Linseys, Kentucky	— 30	a	35
—— Eastern	— 18	a	25
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	—	a
English	10 00	a	14 00
Am. No. 2 to 10 per yd	— 19	a	27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40	a	1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	—	a	4 75
Illinois and Missouri	4 25	a	4 87
St. Louis City	4 30	a	4 85
FEATHERS, per lb	— 38	a	40
FISH, Cod, per box	1 25	a
Mackarel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50	a	14 00
—— No. 2	10 00	a	13 00
—— No. 3	8 50	a	10 50
Herring, per box	— 35	a	55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12	a	13
Raisins MR, per box	2 00	a	2 12½
Lemons	2 00	a	2 50
Currants, Zante	—	a
Almonds, soft shell	—	a
—— hard shell	—	a
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 5	a	55
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 70	a	1 20
Oats	— 38	a	41
Corn, in ear, per bbl	—	a
—— shelled, per bushel	— 35	a	60
Beans, per bbl	3 50	a	5 00
GUNPOWDER, common, per keg	4 00	a
Sporting	7 00	a
GLASS, per box of 50 feet.
American, 8 x 10	1 80	a	1 90
—— 10 x 12	1 90	a	2 10
—— 12 x 18	2 30	a	2 60
HAY, per ton	16 00	a	18 00
HIDES, W. I. & Mex. flint, per lb	— 11½	a	12½
Dry salted Mexican	—	a
Wet salted, heavy	— 4	a	5
Dry, country	— 7	a	8
Kip and Calf	— 5	a	6
IRON, pig, per ton	35 00	a
Country bar, per lb	— 4½	a	5
English, per ton	35 00	a	95 00
Swedes, assorted	112 00	a	134 00
Hoop, per lb	— 4½	a	7½
Sheet	— 5	a	7½
Nail Rods	— 6½	a	8
Castings, American	—	a	4
LUMBER, yard prices:
Boards, pine, white, per M ft	25	a	60
—— yellow	15	a	20
—— Cypress	25	a	40
Staves, p. c., per 1200	60	a	120
—— white oak hhd. o	80	a	110
—— French hutts	70	a	95
—— white oak heading	40	a	50
LEAD, pig, per 100 lbs	—	a	8
—— Bar, per lb	— 7½	a	8½
—— Sheet	—	a	9½
LIME, Western, per bbl	—	a
Thomaston	1 50	a
MOLASSES, in the city, per gal	— 12½	a	18
On plantation	— 15	a
Moss, rough, per lb	— 1½	a	4
NAILS, 4d to 20d, per lb	— 4	a	4½
PROVISIONS, per bbl
Beef, Mess, Northern	—	a
—— " Western	13	a	15 00
—— " half bbl	8 50	a
—— India mess, per tierce	—	a
—— Prime mess	13	a
—— Prime, per bbl	7 50	a	12 50
—— R. Beef	5 50	a	7 50
—— Dried, per lb	— 7½	a	8½
Tongues, per dozen	6	a
Pork, Clear, per bbl	—	a
—— Mess	14	a
—— M. O	13 50	a	13 75
—— Prime	11 25	a	11 75
—— P. O	—	a
—— Hoground, per lb	—	a
*Bacon

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

The following old, but exceedingly beautiful poem, will well repay the most careful perusal; every line and almost every word is full of beautiful thought.

HUMN TO THE FLOWERS.

BY HORACE SMITH.

Day-planet that ope'st your eyes with morn to twinkle
From rainbow galaxies of earth's creation,
And dew-drops on her lovely altars sprinkle
As a libation!

Ye meek recumbent who, beguiling lowly
Behind the sprinkle sun, Godly lidless eye,
Throw from your chalice'd sweet and holy Incense on high!

Ye bright enamel that with storied beauty
The floor of Nature's temple tesselate,
What numerous emblems of instructive duty
Your forms create!

Which clustered boughs each floral bell that swingeth,
And tolls its perfume on the passing air,
Makes Sabbath in the fields, and ever ringeth
A call to prayer!

Not to the dome where crumbling arch and column
Attest the feebleness of mortal hand!
But to that fane most catholic and solemn
Which God hath planned!

To that cathedral, boundless as our wonder
Whose quenchless lamps the sun and moon supply,
Its choir the winds and waves, its organ thunder,
Its dome the sky!

There—as in solitude and shade I wander
Through the lone aisles, or stretched upon the sod,
Awed by the silence, reverently ponder
The ways of God—

Your voiceless lips, O flowers, are living preachers,
Each cup a pulpit, each leaf a book,
Supplying to my Sunday's numerous teachers
From loneliest nook!

Floral apostles! that in dewy splendor
Weep without sin, and blush without a crime,
O, may I deeply learn and ne'er surrender
Your lore sublime!

Thou wast not, Solomon, in all thy glory,
Arrayed," the lillies cry, "in robes like ours!"
How vain your grandeur! O, how transitory
Are human flowers!

In the sweet-scented pictures, heavenly Artist!
With which thou paintest Nature's wide-spread hall,
What a delightful lesson thou impartest
Of love to all!

Not useless are ye, flowers! though made for pleasure,
Blooming o'er fields to wave by day and night,
From every source your sanction bids me treasure
Harmless delight.

Ephemeral sages! what instructors hoary
For such a world of thought could furnish scope!
Each fading calyx a memento mori,
Yet fount of hope!

Posthumous glories! angel-like collections!
Upraised from seed or bulb interred in earth,
Ye are to me a type of resurrection
And second birth.

Were I, O God! in churchless lands remaining,
Far from all teachers and from all divines,
My soul would find, in flowers of Thy ordaining,
Priests, sermons, shrines!

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

A POWERFUL WITNESS.

Truth makes a child powerful. As an illustration of this read the following article, from the pen of S. H. Hammond, formerly editor of the Albany State Register:

I witnessed a short time ago, in one of our higher courts, a beautiful illustration of the simplicity and power of truth. A little girl nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner who was on trial for a felony committed in her father's house. "Now, Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath?" "I don't know what you mean, was the simple answer. "There, your Honor," said the counsel addressing the court, "is anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected. She does not comprehend the nature of an oath."

"Let us see," said the Judge. "Come here, my daughter." Assured by the kind tone and manner of the Judge, the child stepped toward him, and looked confidingly up in his face, and with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank, that went straight to the heart. "Did you ever take an oath?" inquired the Judge. The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck, and she answered, "No, sir." She thought he intended to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the Judge, who saw her mistake, "I mean were you ever a witness before?" "No, sir, I never was in court before," was the answer. He handed her the Bible open. "Do you know that book, my daughter?" She looked at it, and answered, "Yes, sir, it is the Bible." "Do you ever read it?" he asked. "Yes, sir, every evening." "Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the Judge. "It is the Word of the great God," she answered. "Well, place your hand upon the Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses. "Now," said the Judge, "you have sworn as a witness; will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?" "I shall be shut up in a State Prison," answered the child. "Anything else?" asked the Judge. "I shall never go to Heaven," she answered.

"How do you know this?" asked the Judge again. The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the Commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." "I learned that before I could read." "Has any one talked with you about your being a witness in court here against this man?" inquired the Judge. "Yes, sir," she replied. "My mother heard they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room, and asked me to tell her the Ten Commandments, and then we kneeled down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before Him. And when I came up here with father, she kissed me, and told me to remember the ninth commandment, and that God would hear every word that I said. "Do you believe this?" asked the Judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emotion. "Yes, sir," said the child, with a voice and manner that showed her conviction of its truth was perfect. "God bless you, my child," said the Judge; "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray God for such witnesses as this. Let her be examined."

She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, but there was a directness about it which carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questioning, but she varied from her first statement in nothing. The truth as spoken by that little child was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prisoner had entrenched himself in lies, until he deemed himself impregnable. Witnesses had falsified facts in his favor, and villainy had manufactured for him a sham defence. But before her testimony falsehood was scattered like chaff. The little child, for whom a mother had prayed for strength to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villainy to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given her, and the sublime and terrible simplicity (terrible I mean to the prisoner and his associates) with which she spoke, was like a revelation from God himself.

Good Old Advice.

Noah Webster, the great lexicographer, wrote a letter to his neighbors in 1786, in relation to the hard times, which reads as though it might have been written this morning. It concludes as follows:

"Never buy any useless clothing. Keep a good suit for Sundays and other public days, but let your common wearing apparel be good substantial clothes and linen of your own manufacture. Let your wives and daughters lay aside their plumes. Feathers and fripperies ain't the Cherokees or the wench in your kitchen, but they little become the fair daughters of America. Out of the dry goods imported you may save fifty thousand pounds sterling a year. These savings, in a year, amount to more than enough to pay the interest of our public debt. My countrymen, I am not trifling with you. I am serious; you feel the facts I state; you know you are poor, and ought to know the fault is all your own.

"Are you not satisfied with the food and drink which this country affords? the beef, the pork, the wheat, the corn, the butter, the cheese, the cider, the beer—those luxuries which are heaped in profusion upon your tables? If not, you must expect to be poor. In vain do you wish for mines of gold and silver; a mine would be the greatest curse that could befall this country. There is gold and silver enough in the world, and if you have not enough of it, it is because you consume all you earn in useless food and drinks. In vain do you wish to increase the quantity of cash by a mint or by paper emissions. Should it rain millions of joes into your chimneys, on your present system of expenses, you would still have no money. It would leave the country in streams. Trifle not with serious subjects or spend your breath in empty wishes. Reform, economize; this is the whole of your political duty. You may reason, speculate, complain, raise mobs, spend life in railing at Congress and your rulers, but unless you import less than you export—unless you spend less than you earn—you will eternally be poor."

Healthy Women and Early Marriages.

The following remarks by Dr. C. M. Fitch, in a lecture a few evenings since, contain some very useful truths and suggestions. Speaking of the hereditary causes of consumption the Doctor remarked:

"I believe it to be utterly impossible to find a perfectly healthy child born of delicate sickly parents. The unsound constitution of the parent is usually transmitted with increased intensity to the offspring, and no character of morbid predisposition is more surely and more unfailingly transmitted than a predisposition to pulmonary consumption. When we consider the influence that the mother's health must exert on the health of her children, it is strange so little attention should be paid to the physical education of girls. Why from the hour of her birth is a female child to be subjected to one eternal imprisonment? Why is she to be cooped up within doors, confined to work and nursing her doll, and taught to consider it quite unlady-like, to move faster than the dignified gait of some animated dowager. Turn your girls out of doors, let them play ball and trundle the hoop, and laugh and shout as much as they please, they will be finer ladies for it at thirty even if not quite so graceful at fifteen.

By the Laws of Lycurgus, the wise and immortal law giver of the Spartan Republic, the most especial attention was paid to the physical education of women, and no delicate, sickly woman was allowed to marry on any account. Supposing a provision like this was carried into effect here! What an army of unmarried ladies we should should very soon see!

If a young man wants to choose a wife, let him invite the lady he has in view, to take a walk, a very long one, and when he comes back, if he finds his companion obliged to go to bed with a headache, let him look for a wife somewhere else unless he is fond of paying doctors' bills."

YOUNG MEN.—I love to look upon a young man. There is a hidden potency concealed within his breast which charms and pains me. I silently ask: What will that youth accomplish in after life? Will he take rank with the benefactors or scourges of his race? Will he exhibit the patriotic virtues of Hampden and Washington, or the selfish craftiness of Benedict Arnold? If he have genius, will he consecrate it, like Milton and Montgomery, to humanity and religion; or like Moore and Byron, to the polluted altars of passion? If he have mercantile skill, will he employ it like Astor, to gratify his lust of wealth, or to elevate and bless humanity, like some of our merchant princes? If the gift of eloquence be hidden in his undeveloped soul, will he use it, like Summerfield, in favor of religion, or like Patrick Henry, in battling for human rights; or, will he, for mammon's sake, prostitute that gift to the use of tyranny and infidelity? Will that immortal soul, which beams with intelligence and power in his countenance, ally itself with its Creator, and thus rise to the sublime height of destiny; or will it wage war with truth and duty, and thus sink to degradation and death? As I raise these great queries, I at once do reverence to the high potentiality of his nature, and tremble for his fate.—Daniel Wise.

He that is contented with just grace enough to get to heaven and escape hell, and desires no more, may be sure he hath none at all, and is far from being made a partaker of the Divine nature.

THE BABY TOWER OF SHANGHAI.

The special correspondent of the Times in China, writing from Shanghai, says:

"O Vice-consul Harvey, to whom the manners and language of China are even as the manners and language of Paris or of London, tell me, what means that more than usually pestilential stench? It seems to be radiated from that decaying pepper box shaped tower which, although not 20 feet high, we must by the courtesy of China call a pagoda." Undismayed, the energetic vice-consul, who sometimes acts as guide, philosopher, and friend, expatiates with me over this maze, advanced through a vapor so thick that I wonder the Chinese do not cut it into blocks and use it for manure—and at a distance of five yards from the building puffed hard at his cheroot and said, "That is a baby tower." "The ——?" said I, inquiringly. "The baby tower. Look through that rent in the stonework—not too close, or the steam of effluvia may kill you. You see a mound of wisps of bamboo straw. It seems to move, but it is only the crawling of worms. Sometimes a tiny leg or arm, or a little fleshless bone, protrudes from the straw. The tower is not so full now as I have seen it; they must have cleared it out recently." "Is this a cemetery or a slaughter-house?" "The Chinese say it is only a tomb. The coffins are dear and the peasantry are poor. When a child dies the parents wrap it around with bamboo, throw it in at the window, and all is done. When the tower is full the proper authorities burn the heap, and spread the ashes over the land." There is no inquiry, no check. The parent has power to kill or to save. Nature speaks in the heart of a Chinese mother as in the breast of an English matron. But want and shame sometimes shout louder still. There is a foundling hospital in the Chinese city, with a cradle outside the door, and a hollow bamboo above it. Strike a blow upon the bamboo and the cradle is draw inside. If it contain an infant it is taken and cared for, and no questions asked. There is also a system of domestic slavery in China. At an early age a child is worth a dollar; a father or mother may for money delegate their own absolute power—delegate without losing it; for, although the father may have sold his son to a stranger, or although a mother may have sold her daughter to prostitution—and concubines in China are only thus to be obtained—the duty from child to parent remains unimpaired, and is strictly performed. The incentives thus offered by Mammon and the alternative proffered by the native charity may save lives that would otherwise be destroyed; but this baby tower is a terrible institution. It stands there close to the walls of a crowded city, an intrusive invitation to infanticide.

Care of the Eyes.

Crawford, the celebrated sculptor, had an inveterate habit of reading in a reclining position; one eye had been taken out in consequence of a cancerous tumor forming behind it, and his life has paid the forfeit, after years of suffering, and the expenditure of a large amount of money.

Prescott, the historian, in consequence of a disorder of a nerve, by which the eyes were rendered useless for all writing purposes, could not use a pen, as he was unable to see when it failed to make a mark, for want of ink; nor could he distinguish the lines or edges of his paper; yet, with these disadvantages, he wrote all his historicals, using an agate stylus on carbonated paper, being guided, as to the lines or edges, by brass wires drawn through a wooden frame; but, with all these hindrances, he has made himself one of the most readable of modern historians, and earned a fortune besides.

To avoid these and similar calamities, we urge upon the young, especially, never to use the eyes by any artificial light, where nicety of sight is required, nor to use them in any strained position, or while riding in rail-cars or carriages.

We urge upon all parents, in view of the many incurable eye diseases, to caution their children against reading by twilight, that is, not before sunrise nor after sunset. It would be greatly better not to allow them to read or sew by any artificial light; but if that is unavoidable, let it be imperative that they cease by nine o'clock at night in summer, and by ten at farthest, in the winter. It is a most inexcusable folly, and will, sooner or later, bring its punishment, to read or sew by gas, or candle-light, and then sleep after daylight next morning, as a habit. To persons of all ages it is a most injurious practice.—Hall's Journal of Health.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR.—There is a class of people who are always late. They are inevitably late to the cars, and they invariably have to jump for it, if they are going upon a steamboat jaunt. Everything with these people is put off until the last moment, and then, if the plank is removed, they stand a capital chance of jumping overboard in attempting to leap upon the deck after the paddle-wheels have commenced revolving. If the boat started an hour later, it would be all the same to them, for they would just as inevitably be behind time, and come up or down a little too late to take things cool and comfortable. These late people have to stir their stumps or be left behind, when they have steamboats or railroad cars to deal with; but they are the bane of the existence of punctual persons with whom they have dealings, and who have no recourse in the way of tapping a big bell or blowing upon a steam whistle to hurry up the delinquent eleventh hour men. One procrastinating man will derange the best laid plans of hundreds, by failing to come up to time, and his wastes hours for others in his disregard for minutes.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. s30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED with frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash. ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, P. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. } A. MONEMMEN, GEO. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
s10-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box, No 358 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 20 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 88 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS | BELLS || BELLS ||| BELLS ||||
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house, and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my18-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburg, English, and Cannel Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 40 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Bunning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONIONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
s20 66 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS; IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES.
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

VAN BIBBER HOUSE,
COMMON, CARONDELET AND TOURO STREETS,
NEW ORLEANS.
I HAVE leased the above House, and have newly furnished it throughout, and it is now open for the reception of Regular Boarders and the Traveling Public. With an experience of seventeen years at the business in Louisiana and Texas, I flatter myself that I will share a liberal portion of public patronage.
I will also act as Agent for distant friends for the purchase or sale of any article in this market. HENRY VAN BIBBER. m21-3m

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29 0m

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a25-1y

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by the Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Albert Day, James Goodwin, H. HUNTINGTON, President. C. S. BOWERS, Secretary.
Charles Boswell, Henry Keney, Calvin Day, R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans
Job Allyn, John P. Brace, Charles J. Russ.
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17 1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent.

Plantation Drug Store.
JUST received at the Plantation Drug Store of R. H. READ, 84 Common street, per ship Anduva, a superior lot of VARNISHES. Also on hand a fine assortment of PAINTS, OILS, WHITE LEAD, PAINT BRUSHES, &c., all low for cash or short paper.
PLANTATION MEDICINES, PERFUMERY, and STATIONERY, at the most reasonable rates.
Also, READ'S COUGH MIXTURE, a pleasant and reliable remedy for allings of the Throat and Chest. If the article offered does not cure or relieve the afflicted, the money will be promptly returned.
nov 21 R. H. READ, 84 Common street.

PROFESSIONAL.

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.
HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula White Swellings, Tumors and Worms, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. C. LAURANS.
LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 26. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 110 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.
Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. U. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM H. DANKINS
Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 61 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

S. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.
Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 87 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS. No. 70 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy0-1y

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS.
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

EDUCATIONAL.

HOMER COLLEGE,
THE Trustees of this prosperous Institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 6th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASON, Secretary. jan 28 1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1856. FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. Wm. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. B., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. B., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLCOTT, B. S., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department..... 5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty; extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the school will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. H. W. REED, Principal. d12

Emory and Henry College,
WASHINGTON COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
THE Spring Session begins on 14th January, and closes on 9th June following. The College charges for five months, including Tuition, Board, Fuel, Washing, and Incidentals, will be $71 25. For a catalogue or for other expenses, address
E. E. WILEY, Pres't., Emory postoffice, Va. Jan 9-2m

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 26, 1856. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. D. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas, parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. H. M. EVERHART. d16-1y

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants,
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.
COFFEE,
SUGAR,
TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES,
RICE,
MACKAREL, and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetically Sealed Cans,
WHALE,
LARD,
LINSEED and CASTOR OILS,
STAR and SPERM CANDLES,
CLARET,
CHERRY,
MADEIRA and PORT WINE,
ANISETTE,
and other CORDIALS,
SCOTCH and PHILADELPHIA ALE,
LONDON and PHILADELPHIA PORTER,
TOBACCO direct from Virginia,
SEGARS, Havana and German
SPICES,
PICKLES,
CATSUPS,
PRESERVES,
ALMONDS,
RAISINS and other Fruits.
ROCK, ASSORTED and FANCY CANDY,
TUMBLERS,
FLASKS and other GLASSWARE
LETTER and WRAPPING PAPER of all kinds,
WOOD and WILLOW WARE,
MANILLA CORDAGE,
POWDER and SHOT,
YEAST POWDERS,
SNUFF of all kinds,
and all other articles connected with the general grocery business.
Drugs.
SULPHATE QUININE, ACETIC,
CITRIC,
TART and other ACIDS,
AQ. AMMONIA,
SPIRITS NITRE,
BALS. COPADIA,
English and American BLUEMASS,
CALOMEL and all other MERCURIALS,
CHLOROFORM,
BORAX,
CANTHARIDES,
IPECAC,
RHUBARB,
DOVERS POWDERS
EPSOM SALTS
COPPERAS,
ROLL and flor SULPHUR,
ADHESIVE SELECT POWDERS generally
PLAISTERS,
LUBINS and other Extracts,
OBLATINE,
GUM ARABIC,
OPIUM,
MYRRH,
CAMPHOR, etc.,
ESSENTIAL OILS,
IODIDE POTASSE,
IODINE,
STRYCHNINE,
MORPHINE,
SALTPETRE,
SEIDLITZ and SODA POWDERS,
SPONGE,
PAINTS,
PAINT and other BRUSHES,
GOLD LEAF,
LABELS,
PERFUMERY,
BLANK BOOKS,
STATIONERY and all articles used by dealers in Drugs.
White Lead. Agents for the Philadelphia Depot Manufactories, J. P. & W. WETHERILL, L. N. LEWIS.
Agents for LEWIS & BROS. Colors and Zinc Paints,
SULPHATE QUININE, sold only in packages not less than fifty ounces,
MALT and HOPS, a constant supply for Brewers use. all-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.
He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along the stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANDS, humo nor ha's about it suiting some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief to catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec6-1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

Southern Machinery Depot.
PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES, from 2 1-2 to 10 horse power. STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES, from 15 to 60 horse power. PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut from 3000 to 10,000 feet of lumber per day.
CORN MILLS, from 14 to 36 inches, made of best Esopus Solid Burr Stones.
DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.
WELL PUMPS, to lift and force water from wells 100 ft. deep Rubber and Sole BELTING, HOSE, Iron and Lead PIPE, Carpenters', Blind, Sash, and Carriage Makers' LABOR SAVING MACHINERY, TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulley SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.
For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. C. LOWBER & CO., 98 Magazine street. n7

G. TIEMAN
Merchant Tailor,
35 GRAVIER STREET
HAS always on hand a choice and well selected stock of Spring, Winter and Summer goods. Persons in the country wishing to leave their measure can be supplied at any time and on reasonable terms. dec6

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

IT IS NOT A DYE!
MRS. S.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 4. WHOLE NUMBER 367. | NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 27, 1858. | $2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE OFFICE—112 CAMP ST.

New England Correspondence.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb., 1858.

MR. EDITOR: The Unitarians of this city are in a fix. They are unable to get a minister to suit them. They have given several their "walking papers," because they were too orthodox. Their sermons were impregnated with too much religious truth to please them. It seems that the atmosphere of this city has become too much infested with orthodox sentiments for them to be able to keep their minister uncontaminated for any length of time. During the last six months they have tried three preachers, but not one of the three would do. The objection to them amounted to about this: they had too much religion! At last they engaged a Mr. Farrington, a nice young gent. They made a great stir in installing him in his new office. Bills were printed and posted up in the principal parts of the city. The great Dr. Bellows, of New York, the man of theater notoriety, was invited to instal him in his new office. The learned Doctor performed the ceremony a la mode. All seemed well pleased. The people were delighted; yea, entirely carried away with their new pastor. He entered upon his duties with great zeal. But lo and behold! all their hopes have been dashed to the earth. Their pastor has become converted! And is now, about three or four weeks since he took charge of the Church, preaching orthodox sermons! He has even dared to go so far as to become an advocate for experimental religion. Some of his members rage and storm, and say such an outrage upon common decency was never heard of before; others seem to be amazed and astonnded at his impudence for preaching such a doctrine; while a few who have not become hardened in their sins, begin to believe that there may be some truth in what he says concerning experimental religion. It is generally surmised that he will soon be shifted. There is great daager of the Church becoming vacated for want of a suitable pastor. Do you know of a young man, one that has become so hardened in his sins that there will be no daager of his becoming converted, that you could recommend as a suitable person to take chargo of the Unitarian Church in this city? If you do, send him on. It is a good opening for a young man of promising talent; but bear in miad, he must not be overstocked with religion. It is a pity to see the Church vacated for want of a suitable pastor, while there are so many wicked people in the world.

The Spiritualists are holding meetings in this city every Sabbath. They are a nuisance. It has been discovered that the males and females are accustomed to meet in puribus naturalibus—in a state of utter nakedness, and conduct themselves in the most shocking manner. Only the "advanced Spiritualists"—that is, the old and hardened ones—are permitted to meet thus. The young converts are prohibited. It is not known that any have met in puribus naturalibus in this city; but they have in Boston and other large cities. A few evenings since, in a city near here, one of their ministers took for his text a remark made by Theodore Parker, the noted skeptic. When he announced his text he used the following language: "I will choose for my text a portion of the divine word according to Theodore Parker," and then read a remark made by Parker—from which he discoursed. Did you ever hear of such blasphemy?

The Methodist Church in this city is being blessed with a glorious revival of religion. This meeting is growing more interesting every day. Many are seeking Jesus. But the meetings do not remind one of those sometimes held in the South. The people here have a peculiar way to seek the forgiveness of their sins. They seldom, if ever, shout. I do not condemn them for that, because I do not believe shouting as essential to religion. But some how, I would prefer to hear a little shouting now and then, for it does my soul good; it makes me feel happy, and I begin to feel like shouting a little myself.

Now, before I close, permit me to ask a favor of you. If you are able to find out what postmaster is in the habit of stealing my paper, that is the New Orleans Advocate, I wish you would send him a number, so that he might let mine come on here. I get an Advocate every other week, and sometimes not so often. Sometimes I receive a number after it has been delayed by some post-master, to read at his leisure, for two or three weeks; and when I receive it the wrapper is torn off. I am almost certain it is regularly mailed. I am not accustomed to grumble very much; but when a post-master takes it upon himself to keep my Advocate I must grumble. Please attend to it if possible; for I must have the Advocate regularly. The last number I have not received, though now it is one week since it should have been here.

W. G.

RESPONSE TO "AN OLD PREACHER."

MR. EDITOR: I have just read the propositions of "An Old Preacher" in Advocate of 13th inst. I approve his suggestions in the main; some of the details of the plan may be amended perhaps; the outline is good. I see no necessity, for continuing, in distinct form, the Tract Society. It is all Book Concern any way, and ought to be merged into Publishing House, and curtail expenses for extra officers. Quarterly Review is a failure; the work will do, but it don't pay; but few read it; too long between times. Home Circle very good, but we want something oftener than once a month. I would suggest the merging of Nashville Advocate also. Let us have a central organ, official, three times a week if you please, and the other Advocates may be sustained by Annual Conferences, if they choose to have them.

Give us a substantial central paper from head quarters, in pamphlet form, cheap. Let every Methodist family be supplied with a copy. I will join "An Old Preacher," and become responsible for ten dollars annually, for ten years to come for such a thing. I will advocate and vote for something of the kind, if I live to get to General Conference.

A vast amount of good, religious matter, now published in Advocates, is never read, and when read hastily thrown aside, and soon destroyed; not one in a hundred file their papers. Give us these good things in pamphlet form, and we will preserve them, bind them together and leave for our children in these annals, a correct history of the times.

But my object was not to argue the case, but simply to respond. I hope "An Old Preacher" will continue to press this matter. I am getting along in years myself, having entered upon my 27th year, in the "regular succession" of itinerancy.

SEA COAST.

Feb. 15, 1858.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

"THE MAMMOTH TRACT."

MR. EDITOR: I have read attentively the address of "An Old Preacher," in your issue of February 13, on the reform of our periodical press. And I am much pleased to see able pens at work on a subject of such vital interest.

If I remember correctly, Rev. C. K. Marshall, of Vicksburg, memorialised the last General Conference on the subject of a great paper for universal distribution in the Southern Church. His plan was quite unlike that of "An Old Preacher," and was considered by many of the oldest and wisest of our Israel a practicable and very desirable plan. We know it was commended by Dr. Winans, as the most desirable agency he had ever considered for the spread of Church intelligence. Many of the ideas suggested by "An Old Preacher" were advanced by brother Marshall, and were considered very excellent by a large number of influential ministers and laymen. Why he has not kept the subject before the Church I am unable say. Perhaps he was led to drop it because the last General Conference did not take it up with dispatch and set it on foot. But let not that lead him to pass it by. The General Conference was just then locating its book establishment, and could not take a fair hold on so many great works at one time. May we not hope, then, to hear from brother M. again on his plan. It strikes me more favorably than that of your late correspondent, though he comes to the work with freshness and a vim that promise something clever. But the plans are wholly unlike, if we understand them, and among many counsellors much wisdom may be gained. Let us have the other instalments of "An Old Preacher." Then, if he will favor us with his views, let us hear from Rev. C. K. Marshall once more, and compare notes. We may then judge whether any new plan is needed, or whether it is not best to let "well enough alone." Yours,

WELL ENOUGH.

Mound Bluff, Mi.

How the Dutchman Give a Promissory Note.

There were two early settlers in the western part of Pennsylvania, whose names were Peter and John. Peter had increased the size of his farm by annexing to it a small tract of land adjoining, and he lacked about one hundred dollars of the sum which was necessary to pay for this new acquisition. He called upon his neighbor John to borrow the amount. John consented at once, and, going into another room he brought out an old bread basket, and counted down the desired number of dollars, and then the two sat down to two large earthen mugs of cider, and as many pipes of tobacco. After smoking over the matter for a while, it occurred to Peter that, in a similar transaction, he had seen or heard something like a note passing between the borrower and the lender, and he suggested as much to John. The lender assented to the propriety of such a course. Paper, pen, and ink were produced, and between the two, a document was concocted, stating that John had lent Peter one hundred dollars, which Peter would repay to John in "tree months." This Peter signed, and thus far the two financiers made the thing "all regular and ship-shape." But at this point a difficulty presented itself. They both knew that the notes were drawn in the operation of borrowing and lending, which they had witnessed, but neither could tell whether it was for the borrower or lender to take charge of the paper. Here was a dilemma. At last a bright idea struck John: "You have de money to pay, Peter, so you must take dis paper so as you can see as you have to pay it."

This was conclusive; the common sense of the thing was plain, and Peter pocketed his money and his note, "so as he could see that he had to pay it." Three months passed away and punctually to the day appeared Peter, and paid over the promised sum to John. This being done, the mugs and pipes were again brought out. After puffing a while, Peter produced the note, and handed it to John, with the remark: "Now, John, you must take the note, so that you can see that the money has been paid."

THE PATCH OF SUNLIGHT.—The day had been overcast; suddenly the sun shone out, and a little patch of sunshine brightened the corner of the carpet. Immediately Tray got up, and with a wise look trotted to the bright place and laid himself in it. "There's true philosophy," said George; "only one patch of sunlight in the place, and the sagacious little dog walks out of the shadow and rolls himself round in the brightness. Let not Tray's example be lost upon us, but wherever there shall shine one patch of sunlight, let us enjoy it."

SELF-DEPENDENCE.—If you would have your son be something in the world, teach him to depend on himself. Let him learn that it is by close, strennous application, that he must rise, that he must, in short, make himself, and be the architect of his own fortune.

He loves you better who strives to make you good than he who strives to please you.

THE GRADUAL SCALE.

FROM THE GERMAN OF PFEFFEL.

A sparrow caught upon a tree,
A fly, so fat, his taste grew stronger;
His victim struggling to get free,
Begged but to live a little longer;
The murderer answered—"Thou must fall,
For I am great and thou art small."

A hawk beheld him at his feast,
And in a moment pounced upon him;
The dying sparrow wished at least,
To know what injury he had done him;
The murderer answered—"Thou must fall,
For I am great and thou art small."

The eagle saw the hawk below,
And quickly on the gormand seizes—
"Oh, noble king! pray let me go!
Mercy, thou peckest me to pieces."
The murderer answered—"Thou must fall,
For I am great and thou art small."

He feasted, lo! an arrow flew,
And pierced the eagle's bosom through,
Unto the hunter, loud screamed he,
"Oh, tyrant, wherefore, murder me!"
"Ah!" said the murderer, "Thou must fall,
For I am great, and thou art small."

BIBLE SOCIETY DISCUSSIONS.

The American Bible Society, as our readers have been advised, has been induced, for the sake of harmony, to recede from its revised edition of the Holy Scriptures. We regret this—every one we have consulted, regrets it. If our book agents could purchase the new contraband plates from the society, we should like to see the edition furnished from our Book Concern. We believe that, from local and other causes, the extent of the opposition to the revised edition has been overestimated, by the Board. They will offend more by going backward than by going forward.

We condense from the press, the main items of the discussions:

The Board of Managers of the American Bible Society met, agreeably to adjournment, at the Bible House, on Thursday, 28th ult, at four o'clock, P. M., to consider the resolutions of the Special Committee of nine upon the late revised standard edition of the Scriptures.—The attendance, though very large at late meetings, was much increased; so that the spacious hall was filled with members of the Board, lay and clerical, Life Directors, and clerical members, entitled by the Constitution to vote with the Board. Hon. Luther Bradish, one of the Vice-Presidents, presided.

After an earnest debate, till 9½ o'clock, the Society adopted the majority report (8 out of 9) against the revised edition:

The resolutions of the majority of the Special Committee, as adopted, are as follow:

"Resolved, That this Society's present Standard English Bible be referred to the Standing Committee on Versions for examination; and in all cases where the same differs in the text or its accessories from the Bibles previously published by the Society, the Committee are directed to correct the same, by conforming it to previous editions printed by this Society, or by the authorized British presses; reference also being had to the original edition of the translators, printed in 1611; and to report such corrections to this Board, to the end that a new edition, thus perfected, may be adopted as the Standard Edition of the Society.

"Resolved, That until the completion and adoption of such new Standard Edition, the English Bibles to be issued by this Society shall be such as conform to the editions of the Society anterior to the late revision, so far as may be practicable, and excepting cases where the persons or auxiliaries applying for Bibles shall prefer to be supplied from copies of the present Standard Edition now on hand or in process of manufacture."

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Bible Society was held at the Bible House, New York city, on Thursday, 4th Feb., at half-past four o'clock, P. M.

Horace Holden offered two resolutions.

Whereas, In view of the recent action of the Board, in adopting the report of the Special Committee of Nine, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That no want of respect or confidence in the Committee on Versions is intended or implied; and, on the contrary, the Board hereby gratefully acknowledge their sense of the arduous labors of the Committee, in their work of collation, in the correction of a multitude of discrepancies, and in perfecting the text beyond any previous edition; all of which are of great value, and can never be lost to the Society.

Mr. Holden regretted that but few of the Committee on Versions were as yet present.—The foregoing resolution, and the one that would follow it, were not matters of form and mere compliment, but were from the heart, and sincere. This board entertains the same high respect for that Committee which it has ever held. The Committee on Versions, in all their labors, acted in good faith; their acts were from time to time, sanctioned by this Board.—It is not the Committee who are called upon to recede, by the late action, but this Board. If there be cause for blame or censure, it more properly belongs to the Board to accept it in humility. The Board have felt, without any unkind reflection upon that Committee, that it had, with the best of motives, incautiously gone beyond the limits prescribed by the Constitution; and it is right and proper, and the part of Christian magnanimity, to return to the good old paths. In retracing their steps, the Board have done it manfully and cheerfully. I congratulate you, sir, and the Board, that we may now return to the ordinary routine of our duties. The storm, I hope, is hushed; we hail the bow of promise on the retiring cloud.

The resolution was carried, and the second of Mr. Holden's series presented, as follows:

Resolved, 2. That this Board has undiminished confidence in the learning, ability, and Christian integrity of the Committee on Versions; and most cheerfully recommit the Bible to their hands, to be conformed in all future editions to the requirements of the Board, as made at their last meeting, which, they hope and believe, will receive the entire confidence of the whole Christian community.

The committee on versions presented a protest to the late action (of 28 January.)

A spirited discussion followed the reading of the protest, when the gentlemen by whom it was signed severally tendered their resignations. A majority decided that this document should not be placed upon the minutes.

We append the close of the Protest—

They protest against the resolutions:

Ninthly and Finally—As having been adopted at a meeting of the Board at which the careful arguments and historical statements prepared in behalf of the several reports then under consideration, which had before been prevented from being published, were not allowed to be read, thus preventing a large number of those present and voting, from attaining that knowledge of the facts concerned and the principles involved, which only these papers, as distinguished from individual and oral discussion, were fitted to afford.

On the grounds thus recited, with others not now needful to be specified, the undersigned respectfully but firmly protest against the resolutions thus adopted by the Board, and ask that this paper may be received and entered upon the minutes.

Signed, EDWARD ROBINSON, THOMAS COCK, THOMAS E VERMILYE, SAMUEL H. TURNER, JAMES FLOY, R. S. STORRS, JR.

The undersigned, formerly a member of the Committee on Versions, was satisfied then, and is now, that the principle at the basis of that Committee's work is correct. He asks, therefore, to append his name to the Protest, to testify his opinion that the Committee did not violate the Constitution, in letter or in spirit, in preparing either the text or accessories of the late standard edition of the Scriptures.

JOHN MCCLINTOCK.

New York, Feb. 4, 1858.

Dr. Spring is the only member of the Committee who remained.

Dr. Turner gave two reasons as most prominent in determining his course. In preparing the intended standard Bible, the Committee on Versions is limited to collation. We are to be prohibited from exercising our judgment, or any knowledge we may have of the original languages. We can make no improvement whatever. We cannot introduce a point unless it has found its way into other editions. Mistakes that have continued from earlier editions, of editors, proof-readers, and type-setters, must be perpetuated, there must be no correction of one among a multitude of glaring errors. A rod of iron remains uplifted over the heads of the members of the Committee, and by which the Board of Managers has declared that the Committee shall be ruled; forbidding them to change a comma, or to alter a capital, or small letter, or to perfect any such matter, unless the correction be founded upon collation, and sanctioned by previous editions of the Bible. So with reference to the marginal notes. The marginal note opposite Acts xii. 4, must be stricken out; and we are told that every reader knows that Easter means the feast of the Passover. This is much as if in the first clause of Acts ii, 1, our English Bibles were to read, "When the season of Whitsuntide was fully come," such a reading being defended by the reason, that every reader knows that Pentecost is meant.

The Committee on Versions are thus called upon to relinquish that self-respect which every honorable man feels and cherishes, and to perpetuate the printed accessories of former editions so long as the Society exists, or until its Constitution be altered. Some of these accessories were made, no one knows by whom, or when.

Dr. Floy would add a few words only on tendering his resignation. I fully accord with the statements of my beloved associate, Dr. Turner. I belong to a Church (the Methodist Episcopal Church) that has ever said and believed, and I shall hold the position as long as I live, that the accessories of King James's Bible are no part of the Book of God. I cannot assist in carrying out the late resolutions of this Board. I shrink from a position which sanctifies head lines and which puts them on a level with, and makes them part of God's blessed word. I never before heard the idea suggested or intimated, by any man of any school that the headings were a part of the version. In our own Church, Dr. Clarke, one of the most conscientious men that ever lived, wrote a Commentary on the Bible, and, in the course of his work, he often points out errors in the translation. When asked why he did not correct such errors, he replied, I profess to give the "authorized version;" but I have prepared headings of my own to all the chapters; and have altered the ordinary headings when necessary. If the American Bible Society endorse the proposition that all these accessories from Genesis to Revelation are of equal authority with the word of God, and this Society be thus tied to accessories containing error, then I fear that the usefulness of the American Bible Society in this country has come very nearly to its end. I feel a deep love for my honored colleagues, and, in tendering my resignation, while I cannot add, God speed this Society, I will add, that I hope the time may come, I trust the time will come, when they will see that they have gone too far, will retrace their steps, and tell the world that these headings, which men have appended, are not the word of God.

Dr. Vermilye said:

The second resolution, passed at your last meeting, causes the whole work of publishing the present standard edition of the Scriptures utterly to surcease. It must cease from this time forth, except as the Bibles at present on hand, and in process of manufacture, shall be called for, and shall be supplied to those who thus call for them. Only till those now thus in the process of manufacture are used up, can any one have a revised Bible. We are to be brought short up, as to our publishing operations.

Dr. Storrs introduced a soothing resolution:

Resolved, That the watchful and careful solicitude felt by Christians generally, throughout the land, for the preservation of the Sacred Scriptures in English in their integrity, is a token for good, and a cause of devout gratitude to God; evincing a proper interest in the subject, and greatly encouraging to the Board in its work.

Dr. Krebs believed the sentiment is just and proper. It is a subject worthy of congratulation to ourselves and the Church that the Christian public has, in the recent discussions, shown such jealousy as to the integrity of the word of God. Divine Providence has permitted this new proof that it is impossible, as it always has been impossible, to tamper with the word of God as it came from the Holy Ghost.

George D. Phelps, Esq., rose to move that the resolution be laid upon the table. This question is not settled in the public mind; if we think that it is, we deceive ourselves. It has been presented in one form, and from one section of the country. We must also bear in mind, who have completed the late action. It has not been done by the Society, or even by the Board in its corporate capacity, but by a foreign (I use the word in no invidious sense) vote: by a portion of the Society that does not usually act with us. Whether intentional or otherwise, a precedent has been established that may cause any of our decisions to be suddenly and injuriously reversed. I may take two thousand dollars and purchase votes enough to carry any question. Let me not, sir, be misunderstood; I do not suppose that anything like this has been done, nor do I intend any disrespect to any individuals; but a precedent has been established, through the action of the directors and members for life, by which the work of the regular attendants in this room, the regular managers of this Board, has been turned upside down. This, which has just been done, can be done again. Nor has sufficient time elapsed to see whether public sentiment is in favor of this course. In a few months we shall hear what it is.

We went straightway and secured a couple of copies of the revised standard. The Committee's work cannot be lost.

One thing gratifies us and almost offsets our disappointment. It was hinted in remarks above and more fully expressed by a religious cotemporary:

"There is one feature in this whole movement, which we regard as worthy of special notice, and that is the vigilance with which English-speaking Protestants guard their version of the Holy Scriptures. The wide-spread and decided opposition which has been excited by even slight variations from the approved versions, shows conclusively that to corrupt the word of God would be an impossibility. We are not sure, therefore, that, all things considered, this movement is to be regretted. The result will probably be to induce a stronger confidence in the permanent purity of our English Bible, and also in the workings of the Society to which its publication and circulation are so largely entrusted. For the present at least, and probably for a long time to come, there will be no further efforts at emendation; and we hope that henceforth, as heretofore, Christians of every name will cordially co-operate with the American Bible Society in its great work."

THE REV. DR. CUMMING.

Dr. Cumming has a name. Carriages with strawberry leaves deposit high-born ladies at his chapel. Lord John Russell goes to hear him. Actually, he has preached before the Queen. So the chapel is crammed, as if there was something wonderful to see and hear. I confess I am of a contrary opinion. I cannot—to quote the common phrase of religious society—"sit under" Dr. Cumming. I weary of his Old Testament and his high-decied Scotch theology, and his Romanist antipathies, and his Millennial hopes. "You tell me, Doctor," I would say to him, "that I am a sinner—born in sin, and shapen in iniquity—that I am utterly and completely bad. Why, not, then, speak to me so as to do me good? I care nothing for the Pope. Immured as I am in the business of the world—with difficulty earning my daily bread—I have little time to think of the Millennium, or to discuss whether the Jewish believer, some two thousand years ago, saw in his system anything beyond it and above it—anything brighter and better than itself. The student, in his cell, may discuss such questions—as the schoolmen of the middle ages sought to settle how many angels could dance on the point of a needle—but I, and men like me, need to be ministered to in another way. Men who preach to me must not wrestle with extinct devils, but with real ones. What I want is light upon the living present, not upon the dead and buried past. Around me are the glare and splendor of life—beauty's smile—ambition's dream—the gorgeousness of wealth—the pride of power. Are these things worth living for? Is there anything for man higher and better? and, if so, how can I drown the clamor of their seductive voices, and escape into a more serene and purer air. And how am I to know that these professing Christians, so well dressed, listening with such complacency while Dr. Cumming demolishes Cardinal Wiseman—are better than other men? As tradesmen, are they upright? As members of the commonwealth, are they patriotic? As religious men, are their lives pure and unspotted from the world? I want not theories of grace, but what shall make men practically do what they theoretically believe. It is a human world we live in. Every heart you meet is trembling with passion, or bursting with desire. On every tongue there is some tale of joy or woe. If, by mysterious ties, I am connected with the Infinite and Divine, by more palpable ties I am connected with what is finite and human; and I want the preacher to remember that fact. The Hebrew Christ did it, and the result was that his enemies were constrained to confess that "never man spake like this man," and that the "common people heard him gladly." Dr. Cumming preaches as if you had no father or mother, no sister or brother, no wife or child, no human struggles and hopes—as if the great object of preaching was to fill you with Biblical pedantry, and not to make the man better, wiser, stronger than before; perhaps it may be because this is the case that the church is so thronged. You need not tremble lest your heart be touched, and your darling sin withered up by the indignant oratory of the preacher. He is far away in Revelation or in Exodus, telling us what the first man did, or the last man will do; giving you, it may be, a creed that is scriptural and correct, but that does not interest you—that has neither life, nor love, nor power—as well adapted to empty space as to this gigantic Babel of competition, and crime and wrong, in which I live and move.—The London Pulpit, by J. E. Ritchie.

A Ticket for Heaven.

The "Society of Jesus," for a sufficient consideration used formerly, and doubtless still continues, to issue corporate promissory notes, guaranteeing earthly happiness and final salvation to the holder, and agreeing to defend his title against all claims and opponents whatsoever. The following is a copy of a document of this kind preserved in the British Museum. It is asserted that the infamous Louis XIV possessed one of these general commutation tickets.

"We, undersigned, priests and true ecclesiastics, attest, and promise that our Society, which has full powers, takes Hippolyte Brem, jurist, under its protection, and promises to defend him against all infernal power that might injure his person, soul, goods, or anything which he possesses, in faith of which we pledge the authority of His Highness the Prince, our founder, in order that the said Hippolyte Brem shall be presented by him to the blessed chief of the Apostles with as much faithfulness and punctuality as our Society pledges by the present document.

"Signed and sealed with the seal of the Society. Francis de Seeliu, rector of the Society of Jesus; Francis de Surhon, priest of the Society of Jesus; Petit de Poyn, priest of the Society of Jesus."

MARRIED POLITENESS.

[There is much of truth, as well as of that kind of philosophy which comes into every day requisition, helping to strengthen and brighten the ties of social affection, in the subjoined brief article taken from the "Ladies' Enterprise."]

"Will you?" asked a pleasant voice.

And the husband answered, "Yes, my dear, with pleasure."

It was quietly, but heartily said; the tone, the manner, the look, were perfectly natural and very affectionate. We thought, how pleasant that courteous reply; how gratifying it must be to the wife. Many husbands of ten years' experience are ready enough with the courtesies of politeness to the young ladies of their acquaintance, while they speak with abruptness to the wife, and do many rude little things without considering them worth an apology. The stranger, whom they may have seen but yesterday, is listened to with deference, and although the subject may not be of the most pleasant nature, with a ready smile; while the poor wife, if she relate a domestic grievance, is snubbed, or listened to with ill-concealed impatience. O! how wrong this is—all wrong.

Does she urge some request? "O, don't bother me!" cries her gracious lord and master. Does she ask for necessary funds for Susy's shoes or Tommy's hat? "Seems to me you are always wanting money!" is the handsome retort. Is any little extra demanded by his masculine appetite, it is ordered, not requested.

"Look here, I want you to do so and so; just see that it's done;" and off marches Mr. Boor, with a bow and a smile of gentlemanly polish and friendly sweetness for every casual acquaintance he may chance to recognize.

When we meet with such thoughtlessness and coarseness, our thoughts revert to the kind voice and gentle manner of the friend who said, "Yes, my dear—with pleasure." "I beg your pardon," comes as readily to his lips when by any little awkwardness he has disconcerted her, as it would in the presence of the most fashionable stickler for etiquette. This is because he is a thorough gentleman, who thinks his wife in all things entitled to precedence. He loves her best; why should he hesitate to show it; not in sickly, maudlin attentions, but in preferring her pleasure, and honoring her in public as well as private. He knows her worth; why should he hesitate to attest it? "And her husband, he praiseth her," saith Holy Writ; not by fulsome adulation, not by pushing her charms into notice, but by speaking, as opportunity occurs, in a manly way, of her virtues. Though words may seem little things, and slight attentions almost valueless, yet, depend upon it, they keep the flame bright, especially if they are natural. The children grow up in a better moral atmosphere, and learn to respect their parents, as they see them respecting each other. Many a boy takes advantage of a mother he loves, because he sees often the rudeness of his father. Insensibly he gathers to his bosom the same habits, and the thoughts and feelings they engender, and in his turn becomes the petty tyrant. Only his mother, why should he think her? father never does. Thus the home becomes the seat of disorder and unhappiness. Only for strangers are kind words expressed, and hypocrites go out from the hearth-stone fully prepared to render justice, benevolence, and politeness to any one and every one but those who have the justest claims. Ah! give us the kind glance, the happy homestead; the smiling wife and courteous children of the friend who said so pleasantly, "Yes, my dear—with pleasure."

Origin of Odd Fellows.

It has been supposed by many that the origin of the society of Odd Fellows—or rather the organization of association—was of a comparatively modern date. They will be somewhat surprised, however, says the Cincinnati Times, to learn that its origin dates as far back as the time of Nero, and was established by the Roman soldiers in the year 55. At that time they were called "Fellow Citizens." The present name was given them by Titus Cæsar, twenty-four years afterwards; and they were so called from the singular character of their meeting, and from their knowing each other by night or day by means of mystical signs and language. At the same time he presented them with a dispensation, engraved on a plate of gold, bearing different emblems of mortality. In the fifth century the Order was established in the Spanish dominion, and in Portugal in the sixth century. It did not reach France and England until the eleventh century. It was then established in the latter country by John DeNeville, who, assisted by five knights from France, formed a Grand Lodge in London. This ancient fraternity has now its lodges in every quarter of the globe, and, by its usefulness and benevolent character, commands the respect and countenance of all who are acquainted with its nature and purposes. Those upon whose information reliance may be placed, give credit to Baltimore for first introducing Odd Fellowship into the United States, and to Grand Sire Thomas Wildey, still living among us, belongs the honor.

A LESSON ON TRUE CHARITY.

At a missionary meeting among the negroes in the West Indies, it is related, these resolutions were adopted:

1st. We will give something;
2d. We will give according to our ability;
3d. We will give willingly.

At the close of the meeting a leading negro took his seat at the table with pen and ink, to put down what each came to contribute.

Many advanced to the table and handed in their contributions, some more and some less. Among the contributors was an old negro, who was almost as rich as the rest united. He threw down a small silver coin.

"Take dat back again," said the chairman of the meeting, "Dat may be 'cordin' to the de'fust resolution but not 'cordin' to de second."

The old man accordingly took it up, and hobbled back to his seat much enraged. One after another came forward and all giving more than himself, he was ashamed and again threw a piece of money on the table, saying:

"Dar—take dat."

It was a valuable piece of gold, but it was given so ill-temperedly that the chairman answered:

"No, sah, dat won't do! Dat may be 'cordin' to de last and second resolutions, but not 'cordin' to de third."

He was obliged to take it up again. Still angry with himself, the rich old negro sat a long time until nearly all were gone, and then advanced to the table, and with a smile on his countenance, laid a large sum of money on the table.

"Dar, now, berry well," said the presiding negro, "dat will do, dat am 'cordin' to all de resolutions."

This simple narrative contains in a nutshell the whole formula of benevolence.

Earn money before you spend it.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1858.

New Subscribers.—These come in well. We last week booked over fifty new ones; and the old are very generally renewing. Brethren, stay not short of the 7000. Go at it, in earnest for one week, and we have them.

Rev. D. Keener.—By an oversight the name of this esteemed brother does not appear in the appointments of the Louisiana Conference.—His numerous friends will regret to learn that his health will not permit his active service in the cause in which he has literally worn out his strength. He received a superannuated relation.

Centenary College, La.—From the Committee, Messrs. Chamberlin, Willis, and Sessions, we acknowledge receipt of a polite invitation to be present at the Exhibition of the Junior Class of Centenary on the 1st and 2d prox., at which time the Semi-annual Exhibition of Literary Societies will take place. The public generally are invited to participate in the festivities.

Rev. Joseph McDowell, says the Brandon Republican, died 1st Feb. He was the grandson of Ephraim McDowell, who emigrated from Scotland and settled in Virginia before the Revolutionary war; was born in Mercer county, Ky., June 6, 1800—was educated at Transylvania University, Lexington—read law in the office of Hon. John J. Crittenden—was, it is believed, a partner in the practice with Judge Underwood—located at Fort Gibson, Miss., about the year 1830—joined the Methodist Church, and the Conference, then embracing part of Alabama—his first appointment was on Amite circuit—his second at Montevallo, Ala.—was married 5th November, 1838, to Miss Bush, of Tuscaloosa—lived in Marengo county—was engaged in mercantile business—practiced law—removed to Mississippi in 1840, where he continued to reckle up to the time of his death. He breathed his last surrounded by his family, on the 1st Feb., without a sigh or struggle. To his Christian friends it may not be amiss to state that a short time previous to his death, Rev. Mr. Godfrey visited him and prayed with him, to whom he said, in reply to a question, that his way was clear—not a cloud obscured his vision.

The Westminster Review and Blackwood's Magazine for January 1858—are on our table. We have reached the decision—this last number of the Westminster decides us—to which for sometime, our mind has been tending, no longer to recommend, notice, advertise for, or otherwise contribute to the circulation of the foreign periodical republications of L. Scott & Co., (N. Y.,) until the bundle is reconstructed and the Westminster left out. The others are high reading and cheap; but this dead fly stinks, more and more. With the other Quarterlies it gets out and goes along, doing more harm than we can risk their undoing. Its tone and staple are of of the Straus, the Parker, the Tom Paine sort. An article on the "Religious Weakness of Protestantism" is made the occasion, in the present number, for such a rihald attack (weak but spiteful and specious) upon that holy mystery—the immaculate conception of Jesus by the Virgin Mother—and his resurrection—as puts the Westminster outside of toleration.

If L. Scott & Co., will put on our table their good old Magazine and Quarterlies, well. We shall read them and notice them, as heretofore. But we cannot forward the circulation of four good ones at the moral expense of promoting the circulation of this bad one. It is taboo. Let the low class of trash and infidel venders do such work. We hope L. Scott & Co., will respect the moral sense of this country enough to drop it out of their list and their clubs. From skepticism the Westminster has advanced to outright infidality. Will not the Christian press unite in a remonstrance to the respectable publishers?

"THE ODIC FORCE."

How wise some people are! They are satisfied to explain a philosophic fact by a mystery and a mystery by an absurdity. It has the appearance of depth—this process has.

Exempli gratia—The Baton Rouge Comet, 18th Feb., thus discourses:

"We never could reconcile our judgment of propriety and good sense with the manner in which people carry on, at what are called "Camp Meetings," "Revivals," "Love feasts, etc.," though it may all be right; and the only proper way to get religion may be by the way of—and through—fits; but our Christian charity has taught us to trace such manifestations to mesmeric influences, and the odic force, and not the common sense and decee of propriety which we know exists among our people, apart from the influences referred to."

If the editor refers to the way some people "carry on," at such meetings—their levity and scoffing at what they are ignorant of, we agree with him. Their manner is reprehensible to propriety and good sense.

If he gives out that "fits," and the exercises of love-feasts, camp-meetings, and revivals are the same, his testimony is not good. When he delivers a love-feast by right he will know better. If he has intruded there, to bring away this report, he does himself small credit.

Intelligent, immortal beings converted—the heart changed and the life—by "odic force!" We began to, but cannot seriously entertain such flippant wisdom. The man who constructed a saw mill to go by the force of circumstances, ought to make a run upon the "Christian charity" of the Comet editor, for his odic force; between the two, the machine must go.

Geological Survey.—An important resolution has been introduced into the Louisiana Legislature by Dr. Hawkins, relative to a geological survey of the State. On motion of that gentleman, referred to the committee on Agriculture. Dr. Hawkins' bill contemplates an appropriation of $30,000 from the General Swamp Land fund for this purpose.

NATIONAL MORALS.

On Tuesday (23d inst.) looking over the associated press for a condensed statement of the latest and important news, from the National Capital, we found this:

Washington, Feb. 22.—Senator Davis is seriously ill.—Seward and others are expected to discuss the Kansas question Wednesday or Thursday.

Ex-Lieut. Rhind has been arrested under the anti-duelling law for posting Commander Boutwell as a liar and coward.

A fisticuff altercation took place yesterday in the barber shop of Willard's Hotel, between Lieut. Bail, of the cavalry, and Williams, of the dragoons, which may result in a duel, as a challenge has passed.

Ex-Lieut. Rhind and his friend Capt. Corris are held to bail in the sum of $2500, at the instance of Commander Boutwell, for challenging and posting him (Boutwell.)

Rumors were current yesterday of a meeting between Clay and Cullom, resulting in a fatal wound to the latter. The rumor is discredited.

There are no certain developments yet in regard to the hostile meetings anticipated between Barkley and Skinner and between Rhind and Boutwell.

That is all, reader: the whole dispatch. How do you like it? On Washington's birth day too, these things occur. A day in which, if there be any patriotism, any high thought and noble virtue about Washington City, it ought to be uppermost in men's minds and doings. A day, if ever in the year, when there ought to be a worthy national record.

One item is dignified, senatorial. The other five such as might be looked for from Donnybrook fair: an Ex-Lieut. posting his commander as a liar and coward—a fisticuff altercation—challenges passed—fatal wound—hostile meetings anticipated.

Mr. Keitt of South Carolina, and Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania, had a regular passage at fisticuffs on the 5th instant. Several other members were involved in the mele, before the matter was quieted, so the papers tell us. It took place before the Speaker's chair, in Congress. Every body that took part in it, has got his name into hundreds of papers. Some who missed that chance for notoriety must feel bad.

A Washington letter writer says that the bar of one of the fashionable hotels of that city has taken $21,000 for drinks in the past fourteen months. During several of these months the city was comparatively tenantless. This enables us to make a sort of approximation to the sum total of Congressional expenditure for fixtures. Now, if all the fashionable and unfashionable bars of Washington did an equally thriving business, what a Niagara of toddies go down legislative throats. Congressional investigating committees into corruptions, which an indignat public opinion would not allow to be silently passed over, will prove to be rather expensive affairs. They have already incurred an expense of forty thousand dollars, for which an appropriation is now asked, and they are not half through. They will cost government one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and effect nothing at last.

It is time for Christians to pray: yes and to work, too. These fighting bullies and cocktail heroes ought to be kept at home. Moral men must take a stand and say, "We will not vote for them. There are politicians of self-respect and equal intelligence, representing the same views: bring them forward: but these fellows cannot have our votes." This is plain. It is time to be plain. If any body sees meddling with politics here, let him make the most of it.

Our moral character, abroad, is taken from Washington. If ever on this nation the judgments of heaven fall, it will be for what is done there. We send those who go: we are responsible for them: we endorse or repudiate them. Religion sits lightly and our fear of God is a mockery, if party allegiance drives us on in the face of all moral considerations.

What must be the thought of children, what the estimate of ambitious young men when they see such characters and proceedings as the above filling the public eye? A quiet, working congressman who attends to the business of his constituents, is diligent in committees, watches proceedings and makes his contribution to the counsels of the federal government, is lost sight of. If he would be any body he must slap some body in the face—pass a challenge—get into a fight. Then the letter writers take him up. If unknown before, he wakes up some morning and finds himself famous.

A word to our friends of the secular press. They do much to foster this evil. The man who keeps his fingers on the wires might do better for his employers or give place to one who would entertain the public with more important news. It is no advantage to be able to read over the breakfast table the details of a row, while the noses of the combatants at Washington are red and their eyes black. Such news might be left to the regular mails: it comes soon enough.

Let a Beecher or Parker begin to how away at the tree of liberty, and straightway they have their reward. They are the theme of editorials. They get before the public. Their insane ravings are published. If the press would give such characters less prominence, their number would be less and the injury they do. Let them alone, and they will sink. Cease to quote their sayings, to chronicle their movements, to pass their names round, and their public nuisance ceases.

The Printer's Fee.—The subscribers and friends of a religious newspaper habitually exact more from it, in some respects, than they ever think of asking from any other. For example, a subscriber on his wedding-day sends his "marriage notice" first to the daily paper, with the advertising price, and then to us with the understanding that we will print it for nothing.

We have a rule that is bringing in the best class of subscribers. When the parties are married, the parents ought not omit furnishing a family Bible, to set up housekeeping on. Then take the Advocate, commencing with the number that publishes the marriage. Thus introduced, the patronage of the paper will be increasing so long as marrying and giving in marriage prevails. Twenty, fifty years hence the children and grand-children of many an aged pair will say, "The Advocate has always been our family paper. The marriages and deaths are chronicled in it. Our parents read it: we will continue it."

PLEASANT HILL, LA.

In company with Dr. Keener, as one of the trustees, we paid a visit, on our return from Conference, to this pleasant hill, in Desoto parish, near the upper line of Sabine. It lies directly on the road from Mansfield to Nachitoches—20 miles from the former and 35 from the latter.

Friends there had gone up to the Conference with a proposition to establish at Pleasant Hill, under its auspices and control, a Male College, and presented a subscription list of $50,000 to begin an endowment fund. The main body of subscribers live in that community, and are men of solvency as well as liberality. The movement begun among themselves, unostentatiously and in the fear of God. One has said, "they are men to begin with such locks as they can hold out at."

After full and free discussion in the Committee of the Whole in lay session, and considering the enterprise, not only in its feasibility but its bearings on similar institutions, a favorable report was made to Conference, and the "Pierce and Paine College" adopted.

The Conference showed its appreciation of the substantial basis of things and prospects, in many ways—not least, in the agent appointed, Rev. B. F. Alexander, who is to raise a fund for the building and for the endowment of two more professorships. One of these is to be a Professorship of Biblical Literature.

Pleasant Hill is a settlement, mainly of old Georgians and Alabamians, begun about eighteen years since. It is high and healthy and on the dividing ridge between the bottoms of Red river on the east and the Sabine on the west. Its social and moral character is the best. Here may be the residence of families, with plantations in the rich valleys on either side—not so distant as to be inconvenient, nor so near as to affect health. These lands are fertile and they lie well, and will form a fine back country for a stable and generous population. A large region and rapidly filling up, between the two bottoms is peculiarly situated. On Red river there is not a ferry from Grand Ecore to Shreveport, a distance of two hundred miles. This effectually cuts off patronage either way; and as the southern, northern and eastern have been supplied, necessity was imposed of supplying an educational center for the western part of the Conference.

Mansfield, for females, in the same parish, makes, with this college for males, the complement of an educational system there. A large and solid offer of $50,000 to begin upon was made. What friend of Church education anywhere could do otherwise than heartily lift up his hand, and say, "Go forward: we will co-operate with you; may the good hand of our God be upon us?"

Brother Alexander will soon make himself known, in his vocation. It is thought that a single person will endow the biblical professorship. Let him step forward.

The trustees and committee met 11th Feb., at the house of John S. Childers, Esq., and a form of charter was agreed upon, which is now in the hands of Senator Philips, for its passage through the Legislature.

We shall refer to this large and promising interest, in its progress. It has begun right—the endowment first.

DEATH OF BISHOP WAUGH.

Bishop Waugh died in Baltimore Md., on the 9th Feb.

On Sabbath last this venerable man was considered so far convalescent as to be able to see his friends. Monday he walked about his house.

He retired at his usual hour on Monday night. About 10 o'clock he was heard to utter a groan, and on being approached by a member of the household, he was found to be speechless, and struggling in the embrace of death. His son, Mr. Townsend Waugh, was summoned to his aide, as also was Dr. Dulin, his medical adviser, but before the latter arrived, the good old man had ceased to breathe. It was not known precisely at what moment he ceased to live, so imperceptibly was the approach of death, which was induced by disease, or spasms of the heart, to which the deceased was at times subject.

Bishop Beverly Waugh was the oldest bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. A native of Virginia, he was born in Fairfax county, 1789. In 1804, at the tender age of 15, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in 1809 entered the ministry. He commenced his labors, now so signally closed, under the auspices of the Baltimore Conference, and was successively appointed by that body to the following circuits: In 1809, Stafford and Fredericksburg, Va.; 1810, Greenbrier, Va.; 1811, city of Washington, 1812, Stephensburg, Va.; 1813, Baltimore city; 1814 and 1815, Montgomery, Md.; 1816, Berkeley, Va.; 1817, again at Washington; 1818, 1819 and 1820, Baltimore city; 1821 and 1822, Georgetown, D. C.; 1823 and 1824, Frederick circuit; 1825, 1826 and 1827, Baltimore city; from which time to 1836 he was agent at New York.

His great piety, talents and devotion attracted the notice of the General Conference, and in 1836 he was ordained bishop at Cincinnati, Ohio. On the demise of Bishop Hedding, in 1852, he became senior bishop of the church, which position he held at the time of his death. Since his ordination, Bishop Waugh has resided in this city, though as superintendent of the church he has traveled through nearly every State of the Union. In the first year of his episcopacy he visited Texas, when that State was a republic, and organized the first Conference there. Previous to his last illness intelligence of a great revival in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Carlisle induced the venerable prelate to visit that section for the purpose of laboring in the cause. There his last sermon was preached, and his work was done. Bishop Waugh leaves a wife, one daughter and three sons, besides thousands of friends to mourn his demise. Methodist Protestant.

Death of Prof. Ross.—Prof. D. Barton Ross, favorably known in this State as the author of a Southern Reader and other school books for the use of the children of the South, died a few days since at Hoddonsfield, N. J., in his 83th year.

METHODIST PRESS.

The editor of the Chicago Advocate has had a look into the new Ritual, prepared by a committee and now going into use. He seconds a suggestion "that the committee shall perfect the revision so far as they can, but submit the work to the next General Conference for adoption or rejection. We regret to see the precedent of changing our Discipline by the action of committee. With the adjournment of the General Conference at Indianapolis, its powers ceased."

We present some of the changes:

The first change we note is in the Form for Infant Baptism (Dis. p. 104): "Our Lord Jesus Christ, having of his countless mercy redeemed this child by the blood of his Son," etc. This expresses the faith of the church in an unlimited atonement—every child has been "redeemed"—"he, having been baptized with water, may also be baptized with the Holy Ghost." This declares the faith of the church in the essential difference between the baptism of water and of the Holy Ghost, or, in other words, repudiates the idea of baptismal regeneration. There is added to this service, an address to the parents or guardians presenting a child for baptism, and with it, we are well pleased. We can hardly say so for the Prayer after the Administration, though our exceptions are taken to one clause—"We pray thee so to order the course of his life, that by good education, by holy examples, and by thy restraining and renewing grace, he may be led," etc. We confess we do not like the precedence assigned in education. We submit to the committee that this should be changed.

In the Baptism of Adults, the ritual speaks of "the grace signified by the holy sacrament." This may be well. In the minister's address to the candidates, are these words: "That he would vouchsafe * * to bless you, and to give you the kingdom," etc. In the old form also stand these words, "and to release you of your sins." Why are they omitted? Is it designed that the church shall teach that only such as have been "released of sins" may receive baptism? If so, we have not so understood our theology. We have always received and taught, that a true penitent was a proper subject for baptism. * * "The Order for the Burial of the Dead" is enlarged, and, we think, is materially improved; while the Matrimonial Service remains about as before, with the sensible change of pronouncing the parties husband and wife, instead of "man and wife." * * We have the "Form of Consecrating a Bishop." This is employed, we suppose, to avoid the appearance of a third ordination.

The Northern Independent puts off being religious for a while and for a reason: To complaints that his paper does not contain religious reading, in any appreciable quantity, the editor answers apologetically that "It is not easy to find a supply of suitable articles of this kind. Our correspondents do not write them, and we do not meet with them in our exchanges."

But, defensively, thus:

Spirituality is indispensable. We admit its importance, and shall always try to reach it in substance, if not in form. Nor are we persuaded that much parade, or any great display of sanctity is becoming, while we are struggling to rid the Church of the "sum of all villanies." We may as well be a little modest in our pretensions, till this utter wickedness is removed. Profession and action should go together, but as we have neglected the latter for some time, it may be well to give it considerable prominence for the time to come.

Our confrere of the Nashville Advocate, takes not our remarks on his glorification editorials, addressed to Bishop Soule, so kindly as meant.

He justifies his themes:

We are aware that there are many restless spirits who are always asking for changes. Such strive to disaffect the minds of others, and thus create a state of discord in the Church. These restless spirits are very common in the North at present. They are waging war upon the vitals of the organic law of the Methodist Episcopal Church. We hope never to see this spirit invade the Southern Church.

Has Bishop Soule become "restless" and got to disaffecting the minds of others toward "Old Methodism?" We saw the venerable superintendent leaning on that golden headed cane the California preachers presented him. Don't be talking round so, brother McFerrin; come out with it. If Bishop Soule has been doing anything wrong let us all know it, and join in opposing his invasions.

The Southern Christian Advocate is of the opinion that the General Conference is to blame, in large part, for the current ideas that screw down assessing boards to a mere subsistence figure; and that the penuriousness of G. C., together with the jealousy against official place, is working ill:

The General Conference has ordered that bishops, book agents, editors, and preachers shall all be entitled to the same sum as quarterage, and to their traveling and family expenses. It excepts from the operation of this general law "agents of depositories," why, we know not, unless it expected that these would be laymen, and it was conscious that no competent business man of the laity would take charge of the depository on even a bishop's salary. In this the Conference was wise—It cannot be done. May we not venture to say that some of the clerks and book-keepers at Nashville would not serve for the highest bishop's salary we pay! This is fixed by the General Conference itself, and at its last session, proceeding upon the principle that all shall fare alike, it set apart $7550 for the six bishops now living (exclusive of travelling expenses,) in salaries ranging from $1000 to $1450—low wages we affirm. A superior overseer would not serve for less in many sections of the South, and we hear of managers on rice plantations, who are paid double the large sum mentioned. And yet these are the salaries of the dignitaries of the Methodist Church—a large church—a respectable church—a rich church—and this sum is allowed them by preachers, many of whom get more, or if they do not, will feel, if not say, that they serve a very narrow-minded people! How can they expect others to do better, when they set them so bad an example? These distinguished men—the bishops—have been selected from their brethren to bear the burdens of the church. It is to be presumed that they possess a talent and character that would have raised them to distinction and its usual emoluments in any sphere of life.

The editor thinks that the equality-of-pay-rule, so far from helping the majority, works against them. He reasons thus:

If, therefore, those men who are selected from among thousands, because of their ability to perform better than others a special service in the church, are to be counted of so little worth to it, as their meager compensation would argue, the thousands themselves cannot be entitled to much pay. This is the argument that common sense makes when dealing with these questions—and the "lesser lights" are paid accordingly.

We regret to find, from the chief topics in the Richmond and North Carolina Advocates that the North Carolina Conference is withdrawing from the support of old Randolph Macon College. Brethren, don't give up that ship. The hearts of her sons, far from you—and they are many—are deeply interested in the issue. As the names of Macon and of Randolph, noble sons of both states, are there united, so may the patronage of their leading religious denominations be,

The St. Louis Advocate discourses on the Christian farmer's privileges so pleasantly we are ready to say if any body will set us up, we would like to be one:

The Christian farmer ought to regard himself as peculiarly happy, in having an employment so favorable to habits of devotion. Either in their own nature, or in the circumstances in which they must be pursued, some other occupations impede. If they do not prevent, devotional feeling. Not so of the christian farmer:

"The calm retreat, the silent shade,
With prayer and praise agree—
And seem by thy sweet bounty made
For those that follow Thee."

This is truth as well as poetry, and it well describes the scenes of agricultural life. The works of God awake the raptures devotions, the sweetest as well as the most exalted strains of ancient saints. These works ought to be contemplated with the same feelings by the christian farmer. If his heart pants to hold communion with his Maker, he will see the divine image in every field and in every flower. He dwells in the magnificent temple of nature, where the sweet incense of praise is continually ascending from a thousand altars. Cold and insensible must be his heart if it does not catch the spirit of the scene, and exclaim, "The earth, O Lord, is full of thy goodness. All thy works praise thee!" The poet says, "An undevout astronomer is mad." The same might, with equal truth, be said of the undevout farmer.

Well done, Texas Methodists! Finish up the good work. We rejoice with you. The Advocate says:

Yes, we have bought the house—the house long talked of and written about—the house for the Advocate Office, and for the Book Depository. It is thirty-two feet wide, one hundred and ten feet long, and three stories high. It is a new fire-proof brick building, and is well executed and finished. It is situated on the Strand, fronting on that street, which is the great commercial street of the city, and the back of the building juts upon the water, convenient to shipping. It is immediately in the center of the city line on the Bay, and always will be—just west of the Backing house of R. & D. G. Mills. The cost, as it now stands, is $12,000. The arrangements necessary to fit it for our purposes will probably cost a thousand or two more.

It was sold to us by a good friend of our concern, who agrees to wait with us until we can pay the money, we paying the interest annually. Renting part of the building, as we of course shall do, the annual interest on the whole amount will not be as much as our present annual rent. And if we pay up promptly and largely on the principal, at each session of the Annual Conferences, as it is our obvious interest to do, the annual interest will be much less than our present rent, and will become less with every year. Our friend who sold us the building, is "an old Texan," knows the Methodist preachers of Texas well, and has full confidence in their reliableness, pluck, and perseverance.

ASYLUM FOR THE DEAF, DUMB AND BLIND.

The traveler, on the lower Mississippi river, finds no object more agreable to sight and feeling than this asylum at Baton Rouge. It fronts the river, to be admired by the thousands who travel that thoroughfare; and they ought to admire the beautiful architecture; it is for them: the occupants cannot. It has cost about $200,000.

Our worthy friend of Attakapas, Hon. F. W. Richardson, has the honor of first moving Louisians to this noble provision for her unfortunate children. We have received the sixth annual report of the institution, presented to the general assembly, January 1858:

"Six years have elapsed since the first steps were taken for establishing it. All these years have constituted a period of financial embarrassment to the State; and three of them have been marked in their course with fearful pestilences. Yet, under the fostering care of the Legislature, and the smiles of Providence, the institution has continued to prosper. Buildings of ample size, unsurpassed in architectural beauty, interior arrangement, or solidity of structure, by those of any similar asylum, have been erected and completed; and children of silence have been gathered from all portions of the State to receive an education, the ratio of whose numbers to the citizen population is excelled in no similar institution in any state or country on the globe."

There are in it, 24 females and 36 males from all portions of the state. Hon. Andrew S. Herron, President of Board. James S. Brown, Superintendent.

Visitors are admitted to the institution each day, between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock, A. M. (Saturdays and Sundays only excepted.) During these hours their presence will occasion no interruption to the school exercises, and will be agreeable both to the pupils and officers of the Asylum.

CUTTING UP THE WORK.

From many causes, there is a disposition to divide to feebleness, or as the phrase is, "cut up" the work: to take an aspiring little village out of the circuit and give it the liberty of starving a stationed pastor, or spoil a flourishing circuit, for the convenience a particular family or appointment, by making two or more about as big, so old father Boling used to say, "as a calf pasture."

Various evils result; the work is burdened in current expenses; the animation and power of large assemblies is destroyed, both for preacher and people; the moral power of Quarterly Conferences is lost; and last, but not least, young men, unqualified by experience, have to be put in charge. Large circuits, large churches, large sabbath schools, with preachers, two and two, is the older and we believe the better plan. We are glad to offer the following official action:

Resolutions introduced by Rev. Jas. Freeman, L. E., and adopted by the New Lexington Quarterly Meeting of the Alabama Conference.

Whereas, there is a disposition on the part of our Methodist people to multiply societies in the different sections of the same neighborhood, the effect of which is to lessen the number in the congregations and also the interest in all the meetings, particularly in sabbath schools, by the fewness of the numbers in attendance and the bad quality of the houses of worship, built as they are by the few having an interest in them: and whereas, many of our preachers, for reasons which influence them, do not take a firm stand against this evil, therefore Resolved 1st. That we the members of the New Lexington Quarterly Conference, do hereby declare our conviction that the needless multiplication of societies in the same neighborhood is an evil which operates unfavorable results to sabbath schools, class meetings, congregations, and church houses.

Resolved 2d. That we do hereby recommend our Preachers, while they may preach any and every where according to their convictions of duty, not to form societies or organise Churches when the building up of the one is only to subtract from another, unless the distance be 5 or 6 miles, or some formidable obstruction be in the way, as a river swamp, etc.

Resolved 3d. That we do hereby also recommend the union or uniting of such Churches as may tend to building up better houses, congregations, and Sabbath schools.

Resolved 4th. That we do recommend the above preamble and resolutions to the favorable consideration of all Quarterly Conferences, and request their publicity.

J. J. HUTCHINSON, P. E.
J. H. Freeman, Sec'y.

News from the Churches.

Bayou Sara and the Barrow Circuit, Mississippi Conference, Feb., 1858.

This used to be quite an important station regularly supplied by Conference with a preacher, who had in charge a good society about it in good works; but now it is rather a desert of small things with us. In the two places, Bayou Sara and St. Francisville, among twelve hundred people, we have a small society of twenty or thirty whites who remain to mourn over the desolation of Zion. But our prayer is, "Lord revive thy work," and we look for better times.

They call this the wickedest place in all the section. It is said there is more intemperance, profanation of the Sabbath, and all accompanying sins here than any where else. (I hope neighbors say, some of them, that we are past redemption. This, however, we have do not believe.) We are looked on by our judges with a sort of astonishment as a sort of monster of stiff-neckedness and hardness of heart. They say the river threatens to cave us off; we have been burned up by fire; scourged with the pestilence, and plied with the gospel, and still no signs of repentance. A good minister, who spent a whole year here preaching to us without effect, was seen, after the fire, returning, and said, to see what effect fire had on us. We believe he left more disheartened than ever. Our Presiding Elder thinks and tells us from the pulpit that we are "awfully wicked." Indeed, I cannot see how we are to meet the accusation but by pleading guilty.

Once we passed a law against Sabbath breaking, and we did fight intemperance pitched battle; but we had to yield. The sugar planters would roll off their produce to our doors and would send in their orders to be filled, and the steamers would laud; negroes would bring in their chickens, eggs and cabbages.

Query.—Is not sugar making on Sunday a great demoralising influence in Louisiana?

Who will lift up their voice like a trumpet and their pen like an arrow of the Lord against this erying sin of our beautiful country?

The best judges think that this has made the parish as bad as it is. The adjoining parish of East Feliciana is notorious for its school houses and churches and large societies of Christians. This, West Feliciana, is notorious for everything else. It was not so when cotton was the chief product.

Is it necessary to make sugar on Sunday? Will not some one show to the contrary? Is there no instances of successful sugar making where they remember the Sabbath to keep it holy? Would it not be profitable for some of our Christian sugar planters to publish the way of doing things, with statistics? They would doubtless compare well.

But even if self-interest did not demand the keeping of the Sabbath, are the sugar planters willing to stand, in a consolidated rank, defying the justice of heaven, offending the conscience of the Christian world, and lowering the tone of society, all for paltry gain? Many of the finest and best men are engaged in this business—men who are above any thing of the kind above mentioned, if they were fully conscious of it. May the time soon come when such a thing as this public profanation of the Sabbath shall not be known in the land. What a pleasing sight to God and to all his friends would be our thousands of sugar mills all silent and resting on the holy Sabbath: our tens of thousands of slaves and jaded beasts enjoying this grateful boon of Heaven. How many slanderous tongues of the North would be silenced, and what a moral revolution, in the states! If they will make sugar on Sunday they might choose another day to send it to market. I will write, if we ever have better times here.

T. W. BROWN.

New Lexington Circuit

I find this circuit in a good condition spiritually. Our first Quarterly Meeting on the 30th and 31st ult., was a gracious season to the Church. The good spiritual, and spirited sermons of our P. E., Rev. J. J. Hutchinson, were much blessed, and will be, we hope, a lasting blessing to our circuit, as there was a large number of the official members present. In my brother it was good to commune at the sacrament with God and the brethren while tears of joy glistened in all eyes; and then still linger about the altar and shout the high praises of our God. We pray that the holy fire may be kindled all round our circuit. We have twenty applicants, and eight hundred and five members, and we pray that a thousand more may be converted this year. But "who is sufficient for these things?" God will help. Come for a general revival everywhere.

G. R. TALLEY, Pastor

Gainsville, Miss.

On the 13th and 14th Feb. was the time of our First Quarterly Conference on the Gainsville work; but owing to some unavoidable causes, our venerable Presiding Elder, brother Pipkin, did not reach his appointment. We had an excellent time for the meeting, and a very large congregation, both Saturday and Sunday. The people were considerably disappointed in not seeing and hearing the Elder, but none of them half as much so as I was. The best of all, the Lord was with us, and although the lot fell upon Jonah to do all the preaching, yet it was accompanied by the Holy Spirit to the hearts of the people; and after the 11 o'clock sermon on Sunday, I opened the door of the Church to receive members, when one lady joined. I then asked if there was another that wished to enlist, and to my surprise a little boy 10 years of age came up and said "Yes, here is another." I then paused for a moment and asked the older part of the congregation to take pattern by the little boy. No other person joined at that time. We had a real old fashioned class meeting at 3 o'clock in the evening. Although there are but few members of our Church in Gainesville, the class room was nearly filled, by members of different Churches and others. I have attended many class meetings, but never many better ones than the one above mentioned. In fact we had real old fashion shouting. The Church was greatly blessed. At night we had a very solemn time and seven others volunteered for the war. God grant that all may prove faithful to the end; and may the good begun work go on until every sinner in the bounds of Gainesville Circuit shall be converted.

H. D. BERRY.

Revival at Florence, Alabama.—We copy with pleasure the following interesting letter from the Florence Gazette:

"It is gratifying to record, amidst this mass of political and commercial panics, homicides and suicides, that a fine religious revival is going on at present in the Methodist Church of this place."

Florence is the place where our Wesleyan University is located—a pleasant town, and an intelligent population. We hope the citizens and especially the students of the institution will share largely in the blessings of this work of God. We are always pleased to hear of genuine revivals of religion, but particularly at the seats of literary institutions.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

Married—On the 18th inst., by Rev. B. F. White, Mr. THOMAS R. SUTTON and Miss ELLEN EUDORA FLYNN, all of Tensas parish, La.

On the 21st, in Blount county, Ala., by Rev. N. H. Sell, STEPHEN E. BYNUM and CHARLOTTA E. JONES.

On the 11th, by Rev. C. K. Marshall, Mr. THOMAS J. HERBERT and Miss LOU S. FONTAINE, both of Warrenton, Miss.

On the 18th, by Rev. Stephen J. Davies, Mr. FRED. F. HEIL and Miss S. AMANDA JONES, both of St. Mary parish, La.

On the 3d, by Jas. S. Groenlee, Justice of the Peace, Mr. BENJAMIN F. BARTON and Miss HARRIET HEATON, all of Ouachita parish, La.

On the 18th, by Rev. Robt. Harp, Rev. JESSE FULTON, of the Louisiana Conference, and Miss MARY A. PHIPPS, of the above parish.

Special Notices.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS

New Orleans District.

Morgan Street—Feb. 21st, L. F. 22d, Q. C. 23d.
German Missions—Feb. 28th at Piety street, Q. C. 26th at Dryades street.
Laural Street and Bealligny—March 7th, L. F. 8th, Q. C. 6th.
Baton Rouge—March 13th and 14th.
Plaquemine and Gros Tete—March 20th and 21st, at Bayou Poydras.
New Orleans Circuit—March 28th at Algiers, L. F. 29th, Q. C. 27th at Carondelet.
Carondelet Street—April 4th, L. F. 5th, Q. C. 3d.
Lafourche and B. Black Circuit and Mission—April 10th and 11th, at Houma.
Thibodaux—April 17th and 18th.
Felicity Street—April 25th, L. F. 26th, Q. C. 27th.
Atchafalaya—1st and 2d May, at Wesley Chapel.
Wesley, Sonle, & Winans Q. C.—5th March at Carondelet.
There will be a District Steward's Meeting at 112 Camp street, March 8th, at 5 o'clock P. M.

J. B. WALKER, P. E.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lake Providence District.

Waterproof circuit, at Waterproof, March.....13-14
Trinity circuit, at White's Ridge, March.....20-21
Wineseboro circuit, at Harrisone, March.....27-28
Providence circuit, at Providence, April.....3—4
Carroll circuit, at Floyd, April.....10-11
Richmond and Madison mission, at Richmond.....17-18
Ion circuit, at Salem, April.....24-25
St. Joseph & Mission, at Wesley Chapel, Apr 30 & May 1

LEWIS A. READ, P. E.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS

Ouachita District.

Minden, at Minden, February.....20-21
Homer, at Wilson's S. House, February.....27-28
Vernon, at Wesley Chapel, March.....6—7
Winnfield, at Saline, March.....13-14
Dogdemona, at Spring Hill, March.....20-21
Onachita, at Ebenezer, March.....27-28
Farmerville, at McAdams', April.....3—4
Monroe, at Logtown, April.....10-11
Bastrop, at Barthulomew, April.....17-18

ROBT. R. R. ALEXANDER, P. E.

SECOND ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS

Greenville District, Mississippi Conference.

Bolivar, at Glenooe, March.....13-14
Greenville, at Greenville, March.....20-21
Upper Deer Creek, March.....27-28
Middle Deer Creek, April.....3—4
Tallula, at Duval's Chapel, April.....10-11
Lower Deer Creek, April.....17-18
Sunflower, at Indian Bayou, April.....24-25
Greenville Colored Mission, May.....2

WM. B. HINES, P. E.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 25, 1858.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

Col. Wade Hampton.

The death of this gentleman has created a void in the circle in which he moved which can not well be filled. Those who knew him best are best able to appreciate his sterling worth and lament his loss. Born in South Carolina, he possessed, in an eminent degree, those high attributes of character which distinguish the true Carolina race; he was a high-toned, noble-hearted man, and tha type of a wall-bread, refined gentlemen. His mind was highly cultivated, and his talents were of a practical order, and devoted to the common good.

Agriculture and the improvement of stock, particularly the horse, were his special pursuits; and the country is largely indebted to him for elevating the standard of Southern agriculture. Col. Hampton was one of the largest and most successful planters in the South, and his plantations, which are "model farms" on a large scale, present all the improvements which a cultivated taste could suggest and liberal wealth supply.

The deceased was an Aid of Gen. Jackson at the battle of New Orleans, and highly esteemed by his illustrious chief, than whom there was no better judge of character. He filled many positions of honor and dignity; and, had his aspirations been ambitious, Carolina was willing to bestow upon her favorite son the highest honors at her disposal.

Col. Hampton died suddenly, supposed to be of an affection of the heart, on Tuesday night last, the 9th instant, at his plantation, Walnut Bridge, Mississippi. He was in the sixty-seventh year of his age.—[Baton Rouge Adv.

The official residence of the Governor of North Carolina, at Raleigh, which is owned by the State, is called by law "The Governor's Palace." We believe this is the only building in the United States, which is officially and legally called a palace. The lower branch of the Legislature is called the House of Commons.

Local Intelligence.

THE 22d, Washington' birth day, was duly celebrated. The military turned out, and kept their powder dry, though it rained.

The interesting display in the celebration was the escorting, by the Louisiana Legion, from the State Arsenal to General Palfroy's Quarters, of the time-honored, weather-beaten and war-beaten old flag staff of the field of Chalmette. A relic snatched from the glorious Past—an almost sacred oriflamme of battle is this tattered old flag staff of 1814-15. Its appearance brought to the mind deeds of valor and of chivalry—deeds which will be long remembered by the descendants of the "veterans of the Peninsular," but particularly by the people of New Orleans, who were rescued by Jackson and his brave compatriots from the hands of the enemy on the brilliant field of Chalmette. We trust that this survivor of other days will long remain as a noble testimonial of the victory so gallantly achieved by the soldiers of the second war with Great Britain.

The celebration of the boys and girls High School at the Lyceum Hall was a fine feature of the day.

No more rational way of paying becoming respect to the memory of Washington, on the anniversary of his birth day, can be devised than thus assembling the youth of the country to learn from him lessons of wisdom and goodness, and we are surprised that in the other districts of the city the same thing is not done. There are halls in each of them large enough for the purpose, and we feel quite certain that in every one of the districts a hall on such an occasion would be filled to overflowing. We trust to see the example of this district in commemorating the 22d of February by a school celebration hereafter followed by the other districts, and we would fain hope also by all the parishes in the State. Why not? It could do no harm, and would certainly do some good.

LECTURES—The Marcantile Library Association shows a wise purpose and a noble ambition to be useful as well as entertaining. Church people and moral citizens should subscribe to this Association and every way aid it. If they would have the theater and circus abandened let them supply something else—something better. Previous engagements prevented our attendance upon the lecture of Friday night, but the other ticket was used by a representative of the office. We learn that an audience intelligent and fashionable in appearance and respectable in numbers, assembled to hear Dr. Mackay, the song-poet and editor of the London Illustrated News, lecture upon poetry.

The Doctor did not make much of an impression, either by his appearance or the manner of his lecture. He looked too sober and heavy for a poet, and especially a song-writer; and he delivered, or rather read, his lecture, from the written sheets before him, in a manner too stately for the sparkling nature of his subject. The spirit, the enthusiasm naturally looked for in a lecture on poetry, were wanting.

His lecture in its composition was elegant, tasteful, and highly entertaining. It was composed of criticism upon poetry and song, of historical facts and anecdotes and of illustrative quotations; all most agreeably blended, and betokening a genial heart in the composer with a cordial international feeling. The distinction between true poetry and false, and the power of song, were the themes most pleasantly dwelt upon.

Dr. Mackay concluded his lecture by reciting several poems recently composed by himself—a love song, a short poem entitled "The Primrose," and his pleasant ditty of "John and Jonathan." He delivered them well, and was heartily applauded. The audience departed altogether well pleased.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE ON THE RIVER.—At about half-past 2 o'clock Sunday morning, a fire broke out on board the steamboat Montank, lying over at Algiers. A high wind prevailed at the time, and a disastrous conflagration followed. The Montauk was entirely destroyed; and the steamer Virginia, lying above, and the steamers Montgomery, S. S. Prentiss, and W. N. Sherman, lying below, all shared the same fate. The other boats and the dry-docks on that side of the river were for the time exposed to most imminent danger. The Prunties broke loose and went, a flaming brand, among the lower shipping.

MEXICO.

Since Comonfort's flight (we believe he is in this city) Mexican matters have been in the usual confusion. The Delta publisboa the following:

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 10, 1858.

EDS. DELTA—Since the departure of ex President Comonfort nothing whatever has occurred to distnrb tha quiet of this place, though it was expected our rulers would almost immediately prononnce in favor of the powers that be at Mexico. It would appear they have gone too far to retrace their steps—having not only received and done honor to the fugitive President, permitting him quietly to embark, but have intercepted the foreign correspondence of the Government and slyly dispatched it by private hands to Juarez, head of the Simon Pure or Copatitutional concern. Worse still, they have anticipated duties on imports, allowing the merchants large discounts, and are industriously dividing out and spending the money. This is the sin unpardonable. So, were it any other country, I would look out for equalls.

Mr. Forsyth, in common with the Representatives of European Powers, has "recognized" the Zuleaga Government. Why not? It is certainly the de facto government of the city of Mexico—and we all know that "Paris is France." Besides, he may be able to drive a good bargain with the hungry swarm that now infests the palace of the old vice-roys. These gentlemen would sell three-fourths of the Republic—and the inhabitants, too, at so much a head—without sticking at any foolish scruples. Let Colonel Cobb issue another twenty million of Treasury notes, and the South can have the whole of Sonora, Lower California, and considerable chunks of Coahuila and Chihuahua, over which to spread its cherished institution. It is said that apprehensions of a Mormon invasion will expedite the trade.

The Zulouga government has found the sinews of war in the coffers of Mother Church, having received near $2,000,000 for the abolition of the Ley-Lerdo, the Ley-Juarez, and the restoration of religious fueros.

It is said that Comonfort proposes to raise a strong foreign legion in the United States, and return to his kingdom, Walker-fashion.

FOREIGN NEWS.

CHINA.

The correspondent of the Times, writing from Canton River December 16, says that Commissioner Yeh has returned an insolent answer to the ultimatum of the English and French plenipotentiaries, and that the two forces would in a few days attack Canton.

Lord Elgin asked for no more than that the treaty should be carried out; that Canton should be put upon the same footing as the other treaty ports—its gates open to commerce; that compensation be given for the damage to British merchants, and that the occupation of the island of Honan be acquiesced in, as a material guaranty, until all matters are settled.

A letter from Hong Kong says: That Yeh's answer to Lord Elgin is couched in a sarcastic vein. He tells his Lordship that the question of the treatment of strangers at Canton has been settled by decree of the Emperor; that Sir. Geo. Bonham was made a baronet for respecting that decree, and recommends Lord Elgin to follow his example; and, as for compensation, Yeh had demanded of the British Government for losses suffered by China.

A few days before this answer was received Mr. Reed, the American Commissioner, solicited an interview in the city, and Yeh replied that he would meet him outside of the city, but no barbarian should set foot within the limits of Canton.

The Paris Pays publishes accounts from Cochin China, dated Tonquin, 15th of November. The persecution of the Christians continued with unparalleled violence. The country was in a state of the greatest confusion.

ENGLAND.

Parliament had reassembled on the 4th. Palmerston gave notice of bills amending the Government of India, and in regard to the refugee question.

Roebuck asked Palmerston whether any communication had passed between France and England in regard to the Alien Act, or an alteration of the criminal code. He spoke bitterly against Napoleon and the French officials.

Palmerston acknowledged the receipt of a dispatch on the refugee question, which was still unanswered, and rebuked the onslaught of Roebuck.

Leave was given to introduce a bill authorizing the East India Company to borrow on debentures in England, during the next two years, not more than £10,000,000.

THE BRITISH IN CANTON.

The overland mail from India and China had brought favorable news for the British from both quarters.

The allied forces had bombarded Canton, scaled the walls, entered the city, and taken possession of the heights within it, and giving them complete command of it. The resistance of the Chinese forces was very slight in comparison with what had been expected.

THE ROYAL NUPTIALS.

THE CEREMONY IN THE ROYAL CHAPEL.

As the bride passes up to the altar she stops and makes a deep reverence to her mother, though with evident agitation, and her face flushes like crimson; then, again turning, she renders the same homage to the Prince of Prussia. As she does so the bridegroom elect advances, and, kneeling on one knee, presses her hand with an expression of fervent admiration that moved the august audience. Taking their places then at the altar, and with their illustrious relatives standing round in a group of unequaled brilliancy, the service commences with the chorale, which peals through the little building with the most solemn effect. The words are particularly appropriate, full of feeling and piety, and the audience follow them in a whispered cadence as the choir sing—

"This day, with gladsome voice and heart
We praise Thy name, O Lord, who art
Of all good things the giver!
For England's first-born Hope we pray!
Be near her now, and ever!
King of Kings, and Lord of Lords,
Father, Son, and Holy Spirit,
Hear us, while we kneel before Thee!"

The hymn over, the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury took his place in the centre of the altar, and assisted by the Bishop of Loudon, as Dean of the Chapel Royal, the Bishop of Oxford, as Lord High Almoner, the Bishop of Chester, as Clerk of the Closet the Dean of Windsor, as Domestic Chaplain, and the Rev. Dr. Wesley, as Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal, the marriage service is commenced at exactly 10 minutes to 1.

The rubric is rigidly adhered to throughout. After going through the usual formulary, the Most Rev. Primate, who was very indistinctly heard, asks the royal bridegroom—

"Wilt thon have this woman to thy wedded wife, to live together after God'e ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honor and keep her in sickness and in health; and, foreaking all other, keep thee only unto her, so long as yo both shall live?"

To this the Prince replies, loud and clear, "I will."

To the same question the faint answer of the bride is barely audible, though the attention of all is trained to the utmost to catch the feebly-uttered words.

To the next, "Who giveth this woman away?" The Prince Consort replies loudly, "I do."

Then the Prince takes his bride's hand in his own, in earnest warmth, and repeats slowly and distinctly after the Primate:

"I, Fredrick William Nicholas Charles, take thee, Victoria Adelaide Mary Louisa, to my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death us to part, according to God's holy ordinance; and thereto I plight thee my troth."

Again, in reply, the words of the bride are almost lost, and she seems faint and tremulous enough to excite uneasiness among her ladies.

The Prince then, taking the ring from his brother Albert, said with marked emphasis:

"With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow; in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The usual prayer was then offered up, and the Primate, joining their hands together, said, "Whom God has joined let no man put asunder."

The following Psalm from the Prayer Book was then sung:

"God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and show us the light of His countenance, and be merciful unto us," &c.

The royal couple then knelt, with all the bridesmaids, while the rest of the ceremony was proceeded with, the Bishop of London in a clear and distinct voice reading the exhortation.

At the concluding words the Hallelujah chorus—

"Hallelujah! for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth."

"The kingdom of this world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and He shall reign for ever and ever."

"King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. Hallelujah," rose clear and loud, with thrilling effect.

Hardly had the last words of the chorus died away in solemn echoes, when the ceremonial, as arranged by chamberlains and heralds, ended, and the bride, giving vent to her evidently long pent up feelings, turned and flung herself upon her mother's bosom, with a suddeness and depth of feeling that thrilled through every heart. Again and again her Majesty strained her to her heart and kissed her, and tried to conceal her emotion, but it was both needless and in vain, for all perceived it, and there were few who did not share it. We need not mention how the bridegroom embraced her, and how, as she quitted him, with the tears now plainly stealing down her cheeks, she threw herself into the arms of her father, while her royal husband was embraced by the Princess of Prussia in manner that evinced all that only a mother's love can show. The most affecting recognition, however, took place between the bridegroom and his royal father, for the latter seemed so overpowered with emotion, and the former, after clasping him twice to his heart, knelt and kissed his parent's hand.

The Queen then rose, and, hurrying across the Agent pas with the Prince Consort, embraced the Princess of Prussia, as one sister would another after long parting, and turning to the Prince of Prussia, gave him her hand, which as he stopped to kiss she stopped him, and declined the condescension by offering her cheek instead. But words will feebly convey the effect of the warmth, the abandonment of affection and friendship, with which these greetings passed, the reverence with which the bridegroom saluted her Majesty, the manly heartiness with which he wrung the Prince Consort's hand—for, by the working of his face, it was evident he could not trust his tongue to speak.

[London Times, January 28.]

HIGHFALUTIN MUSIC.—The editor of the Inquirer, Columbus, Ga., heard Thalberg perform, on the piano, and he expresses our verdict exactly:

We have, we think, some music in our soul if it was diligently fished out. We can even appreciate a Jews Harp if touched with skill—but alas our education has been sadly neglected in the higher walks of the divine science. The still small voice of simplicity and truth is dearer to our ears than the blast of the tempest or the jarrings of the thunder. A Musician, as well as an Orator, may tear a passion to tatters.

The Alabama Legislature has decided in favor of annual sessions of the Legislature by a pretty close vote. We notice also that the Bill to amend the charter of the Marengo Plank or Covered Road Company was passed. We believe this amendment is to authorize the Company to change the destination or terminus of the road from Dayton to Uniontown. On the 29th ult., the House passed a Bill for the establishment of a school for the Blind.

TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY.—The House of Representatives, on the 8th Feb., passed the Senate's bill to establish a State University.

The bill sets apart $100,000 in money, the fifty University leagues provided for in 1839, and every tenth section of the alternate sections in grants to railroads and the Galveston Canal Company. The location and erection of the University is left for the next Legislature.

DEPARTURE OF DR. LIVINGSTON.—Dr. Livingston, the great African explorer, left London for Southampton, on the 26th of November. On the 27th he embarked on board the Peninsular mail packet Tagus, for Lisbon. The object of his visit to that city is understood to be for the purpose of consulting with the Portuguese government, through whose territories on the eastern coast of Africa, the great traveler proposes passing to reach the heart of the great African continent, to pursue his magnificent discoveries there, and to open Central Africa to Europe through the great river Zambesi, which passes through the Portuguese possessions, and empties itself into the Mozambique channel.

Handsome features alone are incapable of expressing real beauty, as speech alone is incapable of expressing wit.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Pr. e Current, of 24th, says:

The week has opened with operations to a very extent in our leading staples, Cotton, Sugar and Molasses, and still further advanced rates have been obtained for the last named article, while transactions in most articles of Western Produce have been on a moderate scale, though generally with firm prices.

On Monday morning the Africa's advices, still three days later than those previously to hand, were before the public, reporting the week's sales in the Liverpool Cotton market at 54,000 bales, of which 5500 bales were taken on speculation and 3000 for export, and without material change in prices, the market closing at the quotations of the previous week—say 7⅛d for Fair Orleans and 6 15-16d for Middling ditto. The whole stock in port was estimated at 330,000 bales, of which 175,000 bales were American. From Manchester the advices were favorable, all kinds of goods having advanced, and money was still easier, the Bank rate of interest having been reduced to 3½ per cent. The bullion in the Bank of England had increased £395,000, and Consols had further advanced ⅛ a ¼ per cent, being quoted at 96 for money and 96⅛ and 96⅛ for account.

Our last report closed without any established market, but on Saturday buyers came forward more freely and took about 9000 bales, inside rates prevailing for mixed lots. On Monday morning the Africa's advices, still three days later, were before the public, reporting prices of Cotton, at Liverpool without material change, though manufactured goods had begun to advance and money was still.

In our own market there was a very fair demand, and the sales reached fully 10,000 bales, previous quotations being quite well sustained. Yesterday buyers again came forward and took about 9000 bales; making a total for the past three days of 28,000 bales, taken for Great Britain, France, the Continent, the North, etc. With respect to prices, we have to remark that they continue irregular, but our previous range of quotations has been generally well maintained, though the inside figure for Middling has continued to be the prevailing rate in mixed lots.

COTTON—Arrived since the 19th inst., of Louisiana and Mississippi 17,281 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 4102, Arkansas 2828, Mobile 2607, Texas 662; together 27,480 bales. Cleared since the 19th instant for Liverpool 13,879 bales, Barcelona 400, Genoa 1396, Trieste 2134, Vera Cruz 1600, Tampico 211, Brazos St. Jago 16, New York 243, Boston 2131; together 22,010 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 23d instant 380,552 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 177,804 bales, against 1,176,501 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 443,333 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease to Great Britain of 5822 bales, to France of 30,483, and to other foreign ports of 52,503 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	6 a 7	Middling	11 a 11⅛
Ordinary	8 a 8¼	Good Middling	11⅜ a 12
Good Ordinary	9¼ a 9⅝	Middling Fair	12⅜ a —
Low Middling	10¼ a 10⅝	Fair	nominal.

SUGAR—The sales embraced some 1600 hhds at about previous rates.

Inferior and Refining	3 a 3¾
Common to Good Common	4 a 4¾
Fair to Fully Fair	5 a 5⅞
Prime to Choice	6¼ a 6⅞
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 a 9

MOLASSES—Some 2000 bbls were sold at 25 a 27c for Fermenting, etc., and 28 a 30 and 31c for Prime and Choice, and 600 half bbls at 33 a 35c per gallon.

A NEW WORK BY COL. CUNN.—We learn that Col. Joseph H. Cobb, of Lowndes county, Mississippi, has in press a new work to be entitled "Leisure Labors," comprising historical reviews, essays, etc.—part of which have appeared in some of the leading periodicals of the day. It is expected that the volume will be issued early the present month, and it will no doubt be well received.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

R. H. READ. J. ROBART HEDGES.

READ & HEDGES,

Plantation Drug Store.

DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paint, Oils, brushes, Perfumery, Stationery, Patent Medicines, &c., No. 84 Chartres street, between Conti and St. Louis streets.

Physicians and families may rely on their getting only the purest articles, as every article warranted as represented or money refunded. feb 27

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"

No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,

KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale (or grab, at the catalogue prices of the Union itself.

The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work from ground growing S. U. We confide to Unionists, and science our friends, that all we ask is that as much of it be done on Sunday-school's in the South. All orders promptly attended to.

Address, REV. E. B. HOLDEN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union," feb 27-1y at Bible House 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

Mansfield Female College.

FACULTY.

Rev. H. C. TIWEAT, A. M., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. TRAUGHBER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE J. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. LITTON, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. ACHILLA G. TRACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS C. TRICHEL, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Porter.

The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department	——
Modern Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 0
Drawing, with use of copies	10 00
Painting in Oil	20 0
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.

Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College at immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen distinctly marked with her own name.

Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent interest will be charged.

Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.

No deduction from fee bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or when an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal. ☜

Books, Stationary, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.

Semi annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.

Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.

All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.

The session is one year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.

The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.

All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL, Mansfield, Feb 27. Secretary Board Trustees.

McLEAN'S

Strengthening Cordial

AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

THE GREATEST REMEDY IN THE WORLD!!

THIS Cordial is the result of a study known only to myself, and chemically combined with some of the most valuable medicinal Roots, Herbs and Barks known to the world, as Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla Elder Flowers, with others, producing the most infallible remedy for the restoration of health ever known.

IT IS NATURE'S OWN REMEDY,

curing diseases by natural laws. When taken, its healing influences is felt coursing through every vein of the body, purifying and accelerating the circulation of the blood. It neutralizes any bilious matter in the stomach, and strengthens the whole organization.

McLEAN'S STRENGTHENING CORDIAL

will effectually cure Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Its action on the Kidneys and all Diseases arising from Disordered Liver or Stomach, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rush of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Heart burn, Disgust of Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Flutterings at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and dull pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is now an established article, but one that has stood the test of a ten years' trial before the American people, and the reputation and sale is unrivaled by any similar preparations extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and in families in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has attained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IN SALE

DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF DYSPEPSIA?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A RICH AND VIGOROUS BLOOD?

If you do, use McLean's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT & Co. 21, and 131 Chartres st, general agents for the South.

T. T. TWITTY,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Havanas celebrated Fine and Superior Proof Rules, No. 30 Gravier street New Orleans. tuh1ly

MoLEAN'S VOLCANIC OIL LINIMENT.

THE BEST LINIMENT IN THE WORLD FOR MAN OR BEAST

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CURE

Performed by McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. Read for yourselves:

Thomas Ford, a blacksmith, living near Cass avenue, on Tenth street, had a horrible running sore on his foot. He tried various Liniments Salves, etc., but could do it no good. He despaired of ever being able to work at his trade again, because he could not bear any weight on his foot; and by one small bottle of McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment, he is now perfectly cured.

Rheumatism, paralysis, neuralgia, bruises, sprains, stiffness in the joints or muscles, swellings, sore throat, ear ache or tooth ache, wounds, fresh cuts sores, burns scalds, pains, etc., yield to the "magic" influence of the wonderful Liniment.

For Horses and Cattle it is an infallible remedy for shafts, galls, scratches, cracked heels, lameness, spavin, sweeny, splint, fistula, bruises, swellings, wounds, rattlesnake bites, and various other diseases which animals are liable to from injuries or accidents.

Every country merchant should obtain a supply of McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. It sells rapidly, because it always cures.

A liberal discount will be made to merchants who buy to sell again.

For sale by J. H. McLEAN, Proprietor, corner Third and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

J. WRIGHT & Co., 21 and 131 Chartres st., feb 27 Wholesale Agents for New Orleans.

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,

JACKSON, LA.

PRINCIPAL..... REV. WILLIAM McCALLEN, M. D.

THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and thorough. None but well qualified Assistants will be employed in the various Departments. The Religious training of the youth will be an object of primary importance. The Bible will be a text book, but all sectarianism will be scrupulously excluded. The discipline will be strict, but mild and parental. Spelling, Reading, and Composition much neglected in many schools, will receive particular attention. The Principal, having graduated in a European University and having been engaged in teaching nearly eighteen years, (seven of these in Kentucky and Mississippi,) hopes by zealous attention to his duties to prove himself worthy of public confidence. The charges and could low will be the same as formerly paid here by Rev. B. Jones, when property, an admirably adapted to educational purposes, the Principal has purchased. The first term will necessarily consist of only four and a half months, but the expenses—payable in advance—will be accordingly.

REFERENCES:—The President and Professors of Centenary College, Jackson, and Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. Feb 20 2t

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.

The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand a choice stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices varying from 7 cents to $12.

Clergymen and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing

H. P. H. HOLDEN,
Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $5 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $100.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

168 CAMP STREET. 168

Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotel and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.

All Orders left at this store will be promptly attended to. Feb 13

WINER'S CANADIAN FURNITURE.—Cosmetics are not more destructive to a person than internal worms are to the health of children. Most of the medicines prescribed for them are however nearly as bad as the disease, mercury, antimony etc., with which they are impregnated being corrosive poisons. Not so Winer's Canadian Vermifuge an innocent, purely vegetable curative which never fails to remove the disease, and invigorate the general health of the sufferer.

☞ Be particular and remember the name of Winer's Canadian Vermifuge. This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by J. WRIGHT & CO., 131 Chartres st.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 13 a — 15
East India	— 11½ a — 12
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 8½ a — 8¾
Northern	— a —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 a — 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 a 12 00
English, Fire	25 00 a 30 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— a — 80
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 8½ a — 10
Havana, good, pr g'n	— 12½ a — 13
——— inferior to middling	— a —
Java	— 15½ a —
Laguayra	— 11½ a — 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 43 a —
Tallow	— a —
Adamantine	— 20 a — 22
Star	— 16 a — 18
CORN MEAL, per bbl	— a —
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ in	— 5 a — 6
——— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 a — 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to 1	— 6½ a — 10½
——— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 a — 13
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ a — 13½
——— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	— 12 a — 15
Tickings, ¾ to 4-4	— 9 a — 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ a — 18
Denims	— 7½ a — 18
Cottonades	— 12½ a — 25
Sattinets	— 25 a — 75
Calico Prints	— 5 a — 15
Jeans, Kentucky	— 40 a — 45
Linseys, Kentucky	— 30 a — 35
——— Eastern	— 18 a — 22
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	— a —
English	10 00 a 16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 per yd	— 19 a — 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 a 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, per bbl

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

A DIRGE.

BY REV. GEORGE CRABB.

"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"
Here the evil and the just,
Here the youthful and the old,
Here the fearful and the bold,
Here the matron and the maid,
In one silent bed are laid,
Here the vassal and the king
Side by side lie withering;
Here the sword and sceptre rust,
"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"

Age on age shall roll along
O'er this pale and mighty throng;
Those that wept them, those that weep,
All shall with their sleepers sleep.
Brothers, sisters, of the worm—
Summer's sun, or Winter's storm,
Song of peace, or battle's roar,
Ne'er shall break their slumbers more;
Death shall keep his sullen trust,
"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"

But a day is coming fast,
Earth, thy mightiest and thy last;
It shall come in fear and wonder,
Heralded by trump and thunder;
It shall come in strife and toil,
It shall come in blood and spoil,
It shall come in empires' groans,
Sterling temples, trampled thrones;
Then, Ambition, rue thy last!
"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"

Then shall come the Judgment sign,
In the east the King shall shine;
Flashing from Heaven's golden gate,
Thousand thousands round his state,
Spirits with the crown and palms:
Trumpet then, thou sullen tomb!
Heaven shall open on our sight,
Earth be turned to living light,
Kingdoms of the ransomed just,
"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"

Then thy mount, Jerusalem,
Shall be gorgeous as a gem;
Then shall in the desert rise
Fruits of more than Paradise;
Earth by angel feet be trod,
One great garden of her God!
Till are dried the martyr's tears
Through a thousand glorious years.
Now in hope of Him we trust,
"Earth to earth, and dust to dust!"

OBITUARIES.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF ALLEN W. HARPER, A DEPARTED MINISTER.

Earth has lost a bright jewel, but her loss is heaven's gain. Surely heaven is more beautiful than ever, decked with that star. But man, the noblest work of God, is but the creature of a moment; to-day he lives and flourishes, to-morrow he is not. The beautiful flower that this morning gave its aromatic odor to the surrounding air now hangs pale and withered upon its stem, emblematical of that lovely youth, who a short time since, was exouring through cold and heat, storms and rain, to carry glad tidings of the cross to fallen man. See him as he sleeps in death, all wrapt in the silvery folds of the winding sheet, so calm and beautiful; his ruby lips have ceased to speak; his hands to move. Happy, thrice happy was he when his Master called, him; his work was done. "Thou hast been faithful over a few things and now I will make thee ruler over many." He lives in a brighter land than this. He was admired for his humility and amiability—a model of purity and love. How oft did he toil to bring the sinner to repentance; and beautiful are the feet of those that preach the gospel. Many miles from those upon whom his heart's best affections were placed he expired. No fond mother had he, to nurse and encourage her beloved son in his last and mortal conflict; no fond sister to wipe the death sweat from his brow and watch the death rose fade away upon his cheek; no confiding brother to receive his dying words: yet, doubtless, kind friends were there, and best of all, God was there to cheer his fainting hours and take his spirit home.

He lives in glory!—like night's gems
Set round the silvery moon;
He lives in glory!—like the sun
Amid the blue of June. LIDA.

DIED—Feb. 7, 1858, EUGENE EVANS. "Death's cold white hand" has been laid upon his young, fair brow. The few moments of his little life have been all counted out. His little joys and little sorrows are done. His night came on in the time of earliest morn. Not many snows of chilling winter—few flowers of flowering spring had fallen on his youthful head. Ere thought had well been born within him; before reason had taken more than its first, feeblest steps; while yet his heart knew not the meaning of its own throbbings, he has been borne away from all on earth to the land of viewless shadows and unfelt realities. It would seem a cheerless, fearful pathway for a child, trembling feet to tread alone, unattended. Yet it may be—it is better thus. Better, that thought should never have had its birth, than that it should learn to brood over sad lessons of woe and "carking care!" Better that reason should never have taken its first step, than that it should suffer in the cause of error or wrong—should trace out the dark paths of misery, which suffering and doubt and passion have opened through man's life! Better for the heart to be stilled forever, before anguish and sorrow had turned its quick, joyous throbbings to a slower, sadder strain! He has gone on before to point the way to those who loved him here—to form another link in the chain, which binds them to the bright throne in heaven. They have but said adieu, to meet after a short while, where no partings are—where no farewells are spoken.

"He doeth all things well." W.

DIED—In Williamson county, Miss., Feb. 5, Mrs. MARY E., Consort of George Row. I was sent for to instruct her on religious subjects, and to pray for her. God was pleased, in the plenitude of his mercy, to pardon all her sins, and grant her an assurance of her adoption into his family on the first day of my visit. She joined the Church, thus dedicating herself to the Lord. H. E. T.

DIED—In Claiborne parish, La., Dec. 9, 1857, MILTON P. BARNETT, son of Rev. Wm. P. Barnett, in the 23d year of his age. He professed religion and joined the Church in 1849, of which he was a faithful member to the day of his death. He leaves an affectionate wife and two interesting little daughters to mourn his loss; but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. D. S. WATKINS.

Forest Grove, La., Feb. 8.

DIED—In Claiborne parish, La., Jan. 23, 1858, Mrs MARY NEELY, wife of John Neely, Esq., in the 52d year of her age. She was born in Marlborough district, South Carolina, professed religion and joined the Church when young. Her life was that of a consistent Christian. For months her sufferings were great; but she bore them with Christian patience. She has left a kind husband and three children to mourn her departure. D. S. WATKINS.

Forest Grove, La., Feb. 8.

DIED—January 9, 1858, in Perry county, Ala., MARY H. HOWARD, in the 16th year of her age, daughter of Jesse and Ann Bowen, formerly of Mecklenburg county, Va. Mary came home from school to spend the Christmas holidays. Alas! she only came home to die. In the bright morning of life she passed away, ere care and sorrow had left a single trace upon her radiant brow, or a cloud had cast its shadow o'er the joyous visions of the future. Her tender young heart of its simplicity and trust; before whom the untrodden path of life seemed teeming with love and beauty and the world but a vast garden of flowers sunshine and song. Oh! what a consolation to her heart-stricken relatives, as they gathered around her dying couch, to know she had already given her young heart to God. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Church five or six months previous to her death, and we have no reason to doubt but that her spirit found a home in the mansions of the blest.

"Beyond this vale of tears,
There is a life above,
Unmeasured by the flight of years,
And all that life is love."

A FRIEND.

The Richmond Christian Advocate, please copy.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

THE CHILD'S PRAYER.

Into her chamber went
A little maid one day,
And, by a chair she knelt,
And thus began to pray:
"Jesus, my eyes I close—
Thy form I cannot see;
If thou art near me, Lord,
I pray thee speak to me."
A still small voice she heard within her soul,
"What is it child? I hear thee—tell me all."

"I pray thee, Lord," she said,
"That thou wilt condescend
To tarry in my heart,
And ever be my friend.
The path of life is dark—
I would not go astray:
O, let me have thy hand
To lead me in the way."
"Fear not—I will not leave thee, child, alone,"—
She thought she felt a soft hand press her own.

"They tell me, Lord, that all
The living pass away—
The aged soon must die,
And even children may.
O let my parents live
Till I a woman grow;
For if they die, what can
A little orphan do?"
"Fear not, my child—whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee till I bring thee home."

Her little prayer was said,
And from her chamber, now,
She pass'd forth, with the light
Of heaven upon her brow.
"Mother, I've seen the Lord—
His hand in mine I felt,
And, O! I heard him say,
As by my chair I knelt,
'Fear not, my child, whatever ills may come,
I'll not forsake thee till I bring thee home.'"

WHAT THE WINTRY WIND SAYS.

"Do you know what the wintry wind says, grandpa?" asked a little girl, as she sat on an old gentleman's knee.

"No, dear; what is it?" he answered, stroking her curly head.

"'Remember the poor,' grandpa; when it comes down the chimney it cries, 'Remember the poor;' when it puts its great mouth to the keyhole it whistles, 'Remember the poor;' when it strides through a crack in the door it whispers it; and, grandpa, when it blows your beautiful silver hair about in the street, and you shiver and button up your coat, does it not get in at your ear, and say to you, grandpa, 'Remember the poor?'"

"Why, what does the child mean?" said grandpa, who, I am afraid, had been used to shut his heart against such words. "You want a new muff and a boa, I expect; a pretty way to get it out of your old grandfather."

"No, grandpa," said the child earnestly, shaking her head; "no, it's the no-muff-and-boa children I'm thinking of. My mother always remembers them, and so do I try to."

A heavy storm came, and the old gentleman sent fifty dollars to the treasurer of a benevolent society, and said, "Call for more when you want it."

The treasurer stared with surprise, for it was the first time he had ever collected more than a dollar from him, and that, he thought, came grudgingly.

"Why," said the rich old merchant afterward, "I could never get rid of that child's words; they stuck to me like glue."

"And a little child shall lead them," says the Scripture. How many a cold heart has melted, and a close heart opened, by the simple earnestness and simple words of a little child!

A CHAMPION FOR THE BIBLE.

As a Sunday-school teacher was walking down the streets of the city of B. one day, he saw a group of boys engaged in earnest debate. As he drew near some of the boys knew him, and one cried, "Here is Mr. C. He knows all about it. Let's ask him."

Upon this a bright-faced boy stepped up to the teacher with flushed face and flashing eyes, and said, "Isn't the Bible better than gold, sir?"

"Yes, my lad, of corse it is. It contains wisdom which, as Job says, 'cannot be valued with the gold of Ophir, with the precious onyx, or the sapphire. The gold and the crystal cannot equal it.' But who says the Bible is not better than gold?"

"Here is a boy," replied the lad, "who says he would rather have money than the Bible. I say that if we could have only one of these things, we ought to choose the Bible, because it is worth more than money."

Noble champion for the word of our Father in heaven! May his heart cling to that holy book as the limpet does to the rock. Heaven bless him! W.

A RICHER HEART BROKEN.

"Sir, do you want to know how I was converted; I, an old, gray-headed sinner?" said a good old man to his minister.

"Tell me," answered the minister.

"I was walking alone one day, and met a little boy. The little boy stopped at my side. 'Please sir,' he said, 'will you take a tract?' and please, sir, will you read it?'

"Tracts! I always hated tracts and such things, but that 'Please, sir,' overcame me. I could not swear at that kind-spoken 'Please, sir;' no, no! I took the tract, and I thanked the little boy, and I said I'd read it; and I did read it, and the reading of it saved my soul. I saw I was a sinner, and I saw that Jesus Christ could save me from my sins. That 'Please, sir,' was the entering-wedge to my old hickory heart."

There is nothing given us in more strict charge in the Scripture, than that we should be careful for nothing, solicitous about nothing, take no thought for to-morrow, but to commit all things unto sovereign disposal of God our Father, who hath taken all these things into his own care.

A FRAGMENT FOR THE LADIES.

"Thy grandmother," said my uncle Toby, addressing himself to young Arabella, just from London, and who was playing the battle of Marengo on the piano; "thy grandmother, child," said he, "used to play on a much better instrument than thine."

"Indeed," said Arabella, "how could it have been better; you know it is the most fashionable instrument, and is used by every body that is any thing."

"Your grandmother was something, yet she never saw a piano forte."

"But what was the name of the instrument? Had it strings, and was it played by keys?"

"You must give me time to recollect the name; it was indeed a stringed instrument, but was played by the hand."

"By the hands alone? How vulgar; but I protest I should like to see one, and papa shall buy me one when I return to London. Do you think that we can obtain one?"

"No, you will not probably find one in London, but doubtless they may be found in some of the country towns."

"How many strings had it? Must one play with both hands? and could one play the double bass?"

"I know not whether it would play the double bass, as you call it, but it was played by both hands, and had two strings."

"Two strings only? surely you are jesting; how could good music be produced by such an instrument, when the piano has two or three hundred?"

"Oh, the string were very long, one of them about 14 feet, and the other might be lengthened at pleasure, even to 50 or more."

"What a prodigious deal of room it must take up, but no matter, I will have mine in the old hall, and papa may have an addition built to it, for he says I shall never want for anything, and so does mamma. Were the strings struck with little mallets like the piano, or were they snapped like a harpsichord?"

"Like neither of those instruments, as I recollect, but it produced a soft kind of humming music, and was peculiarly agreeable to the husband and relations of the performer."

"Oh, as to pleasing one's husband or relations, that is all Dicky, in the Haut-ton, you know; but I am determined to have one at any rate. Was it easily learnt, and was it taught by French or Italian masters?"

"It was easily learnt, but Frenchmen and Italians scarcely dared to show their heads in our country in those times."

"Can you not possibly remember the name? How shall we know what to inquire for?"

"Yes, I do now remember the name, and we must inquire for a SPINNING-WHEEL."

CHRIST IN US.

The Christian enters into a mystical union with Christ, his Savior, and in virtue of that union, formed and preserved by faith, grows into the Savior's likeness, and overcomes the evil passions of his nature, and the temptations of the world. There is something very beautiful in the following language:

Have you ever heard that pretty fable told by the Persian Saadi moralist? He took up in his hand a piece of scented clay, and said to it, "O, clay, whence hast thou thy perfume?" And the clay said, "I was once a piece of common clay, but they laid me for a time in company with a rose, and I drank its fragrance, and have now become scented clay." Believer, thou too art nothing but a piece of common clay, but if thou liest with the Rose of Sharon—if thou hast Jesus in thy company, thou wilt be a piece of scented clay, and where'er thou goest, thou wilt smell of him. I will know the company thou keepest by the fragrance thou hast. If thou hast lain in beds of spices, thou wilt smell of thy myrrh and the aloes. I will not believe thee a child of God, unless thou hast the lineaments of thy Father, nor will I think that thou hast been with Jesus, unless I can perceive that thou hast learned of him. O! if you would reform yourselves, and amend your lives; if you would curb sin, and restrain the hot-mouthed steeds of your lust—if you would overcome your iniquities, and persevere in holiness, here are the means. "Behold the man;" look you there at Christ Jesus.

Angels and Justified Spirits.

It is not uncommon for persons to speak of deceased friends who have died in the Lord, as having become "angels in heaven." It is a blessed thought that the dead in Christ are in heaven; but there is no authority for the idea that they become angels. An angel is another order of being from a redeemed mortal; and whilst the Scriptures reveal to us the fact that in the transition at death, the latter passes into a higher state and mode of existence, there is no intimation that he is transformed into another order of being. The redeemed form among men are a distinct division of the inhabitants of heaven. Their antecedents differ from those of the holy angels. They have entered that high abode by a process of which the angelic throngs can practically know nothing; and through all eternity they are to sing a peculiar song—the new song of the blood-washed, ransomed soul. They are redeemed spirits!—the "just made perfect!" but never angels.

When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. B. LAURENS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN P WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au2 1y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. G. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. SUPPINGTON. WM H. HARRISON

Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

S. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 87 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS. No 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. 1y5-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN. P. D. LEWIS, of Rapides. } A. MONNEMMER. GEO. C. KENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
116 Canal st., New Orleans.
a19-1y

SAVE YOUR HORSES.

"We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Bruises or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for severe Burns, Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.

J. W. HEWITT,
Foreman for American, Haviden's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express."

Gentlemen:—"I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him. Respectfully yours, JAMES DORRANCE.

Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.
Feb. 13 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82, Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALISES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
....AT....
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box. No 338 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 73 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
MILES OWEN.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!! BELLS!!!!
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School-house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nuns & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS. HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
ap26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and Imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON SEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans, ap18

VAN BIBBER HOUSH,
CORNER CARONDELET AND POYDRAS STREETS,
NEW ORLEANS.
I HAVE leased the above House; and have newly furnished it throughout, and it is now open for the reception of Regular Boarders and the Traveling Public. With an experience of seventeen years at the business in Louisiana and Texas, I flatter myself that I will share a liberal portion of public patronage.
I will also act as Agent for distant friends for the purchase or sale of any article in this market. HENRY VAN BIBBER. o31-3m

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COPPER POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29-3m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
jan16-13t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $600,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & B. F. RAYNE, Agents, 40 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell Job Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Keney, John F. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Bunce.
H. HUNTINGDON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 44 Camp street, New Orleans
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Duty Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a26-1y

PROFESSIONAL.

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 18 Camp st., New Orleans.
HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-3m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White-swellings, Tumors and Worms, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my2-1y

EDUCATIONAL.

HOMER COLLEGE,
THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASSON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 5th of October, 1856.
FACULTY:
REV. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
REV. WM. H. SCHAUB, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
O. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
I. P. CALLOUETT, B. S., Professor of Modern Languages.
REV. A. O. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve mile East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of this School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W REED, Principal. d12

Emory and Henry College,
WASHINGTON COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
THE Spring Session begins on 14th January, and closes on 9th June following. The College charges for five months, including Tuition, Board, Fuel, Washing, and Incidentals, will be $71 25. For a catalogue or for other expenses, address.
E. E. WILEY, Pres't., Emory postoffice, Va.
jan 9-3m

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen B. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. O. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants,
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.
INVITE THE ATTENTION OF DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.
COFFEE,
SUGAR,
TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES,
RICE,
MACKAREL, and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetically Sealed Cans,
WHALE,
LARD,
LINSEED and CASTOR OILS,
STAR and SPERM CANDLES,
CLARET,
CHERRY,
MADEIRA and PORT WINE,
ANISETTE,
and other CORDIALS,
SCOTCH and PHILADELPHIA ALE,
LONDON and PHILADELPHIA PORTER,
TOBACCO direct from Virginia,
SEGARS, Havana and German
SPICES,
PICKLES,
CATSUPS,
PRESERVES,
ALMONDS,
RAISINS and other Fruits.
ROCK, ASSORTED and FANCY CANDY,
TUMBLERS,
FLASKS and other GLASSWARE.
LETTER and WRAPPING PAPER of all kinds,
WOOD and WILLOW WARE,
MANILLA CORDAGE,
POWDER and SHOT,
YEAST POWDERS,
SNUFF of all kinds,
and all other articles connected with the general grocery business.
Drugs.
SULPHATE QUININE, ACETIC,
CITRIC,
TART and other ACIDS,
AQ. AMMONIA,
SPIRITS NITRE,
SALS. COPAIBA,
English and American BLUEMASS
CALOMEL and all other MERCURIALS,
CHLOROFORM,
BORAX,
CANTHARIDES,
IPECAC,
RHUBARB,
DOVERS POWDERS
EPSOM SALTS
COPPERAS,
ROLL and Sor SULPHUR,
ADHESIVE SELECT POWDERS generally
PLAISTERS,
LUBINS and other Extracts,
GELATINE,
GUM ARABIC,
OPIUM,
MYRRH,
CAMPHOR, etc.,
ESSENTIAL OILS,
IODIDE POTASSE,
IODINE,
STRYCHNINE,
MORPHINE,
SALTPETRE,
SEIDLITZ and SODA POWDERS,
SPONGE,
PAINTS,
PAINT and other BRUSHES,
GOLD LEAF,
LABELS,
PERFUMERY,
BLANK BOOKS,
STATIONERY and all articles used by dealers in Drugs.
White Lead. Agents for the Philadelphia Depot Manufactories, J. P. & W. WETHERILL, L. N. LEWIS,
Agents for LEWIS & BROS. Colors and Zinc Paints.
SULPHATE QUININE, sold only in packages not less than fifty ounces.
MALT and HOPS, a constant supply for Brewers use. all-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.
He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a running sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANDS, buts nor ba's about it, setting some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

Southern Machinery Depot.
PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES, from 2 1-2 to 15 horse power. STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES, from 15 to 40 horse power. PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut from 3000 to 10,000 feet of lumber per day.
CORN MILLS, from 14 to 36 inches, made of best French solid Burr Stones.
DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.
WELL PUMPS, to lift and force water from wells 100 ft. deep Rubber and Sole BELTING, HOSE, Iron and Lead PIPE, Carpenters', Blind, Sash, and Carriage Makers' LABOR SAVING MACHINERY; TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulay SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.
For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. C. LOWBER & CO., 98 Magazine street. n7

G. TIEMAN
Merchant Tailor,
35 GRAVIER STREET,
HAS always on hand, a choice and well selected stock of Spring, Winter and Summer goods. Persons in the country wishing to leave their measure can be supplied at any time and on reasonable terms. dec5

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 15 years at this place, (during which

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 5. WHOLE NUMBER 369.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MARCH 6, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE OFFICE—118 CAMP ST.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

APHORISMS.

BY THE REV. ZORCASTER ZERBOLT.

I.

There are three kinds of association among men. (1,) Associations for the purpose of mental improvement, literary societies, colleges, etc; and these demand certain mental prereqnisites as the condition of membership. (2,) Associations for the purpose of moral reform; temperance societies, masonic fraternities, etc; and these require certain moral prereqnisites as the condition of fellowship. (3,) Associations for the purpose of religious culture, Methodism, Presbyterianism, etc; and these demand, or ought to demand, certain religious qualifications as the tests of fellowship.

II.

Religion and morality are co-ordinate but not identical. A man may be moral and not religious; he cannot be religious and not moral. A religious man is not only a moral man but something more. Therefore while a test of religion is a test of morality, a test of morality is not a test of religion. Therefore, again, the Church vacates its mission as a system of religion, and lapses into a system of morality, so soon as it relinquishes its tests of religion and falls back upon its tests of morality.

III.

All the Churches profess to be systems of religion. The Presbyterian and Baptist Churches demand an experience of grace as the initiatory test of Church fellowship. After that initiatory test—which is in truth a test, if a mere word of the mouth expressing a hope, be a test—they cease to impose religious and only impose moral tests. In a word they virtually lapse into systems of morality, so soon as they have done with this initiatory step, and a man has only to live a life void of moral offence to keep in good odor with them. To outsiders they hold up a religious, to insiders a moral, standard. Of the Greeks they require a religious, of the Jews a moral qualification. Going in, they demand of you an experience of grace; being in, they demand only a moral life. But, mark! It would be uncharitable to say that these Churches are not in intention, in design, systems of religion—they strive as diligently to cultivate religion in the heart as the Methodist Church; what I want to say is this: namely—After the initiatory experience of grace they have no test, by which to prove and determine the continuance and growth of this initiatory experience of grace. Of course this aphorism is levelled to the earth, at one fell swoop of "Once in grace always in grace;" for then the initiatory experience is theologically a sufficient guarantee of all after results.

IV.

Methodism is a system of piety. Its theology is meagre; and what little it has, is plainly subservient to the higher principle of experimental godliness. As a development of religious history it does not move upon the plane of doctrinal theology, but is confined to the nobler sphere of religion in the heart.

V.

Methodism may be thus defined: It is an association of men and women, whose aim is the cultivation of religion in the heart, from its incipiency in "an earnest desire to flee the wrath to come," to its earthly consummation in the blessing of Perfect Love. Such an association must have a test of piety, that exerts its expurgative force, upon all who have not the vital spark, not only at the ontset, in the initiation, but throughout the life. In other words, it must not be a test that exerts its force, once for all at the beginning, and then ceaseth forever; but a test that pervades the whole life of the Church, and vindicates its claim to a system of religion, in all points, at all times; it must be a veritable fire of the Lord, that, every week, burns every man, who has not the mark of the Lamb in his forehead. The sum of this aphorism is this: (1,) Methodism as a system of piety must have a test of piety: (2,) This test must not only bear upon the initiatory step of Church fellowship, but must exercise a purgatorial influence over the whole life of the Church.

VI.

Where have we in the Methodist Church such a test of piety? In answering this question it must be remembered, that moral tests are not sufficient for religious systems. The rules against drunkenness, profanity, dancing, evil speaking, etc., do not reach the sphere of religion. And even if they did, they are not positive but negative, and are not therefore properly speaking tests; for a test must not only forbid but demand something. So long as a Church confines itself to moral requirements it must remain a moral system. The question is still open, "Where have we in the Methodist Church a test of piety?" Whatever that test be, three qualities it must have. (1,) It must be a positive demand, not only forbidding but enjoining something. (2,) It must enjoin a duty the ready compliance with which presupposes the possession of vital piety. (3,) It must enjoin a duty the performance of which will not only be a test, but a means of grace.

The class meeting is the only element of our Church that fulfills these three conditions of a test of piety. (1,) The rule upon class meetings positively enjoins a weekly assembling of ourselves together for the purpose of religious conversation. (2,) A compliance with this demand presupposes the possession of vital piety, at least of "an earnest desire." In proof of this nothing is more pertinent, than, on the one hand, the inward repugnance of the carnal mind to any conversation on religion that has a direct personal reference; illustrated around us every day in the wiles of Satan used by sinners to evade a subject, that, being touched, pains; and, on the other hand, in the alacrity with which those who enjoy religion, embrace every opportunity of "holding their conversation in heaven." (3,) The class meeting is not only a test but a means of grace; not only tries, but improves, the grace tried. Methodism, co-incident with christianity, starts in "an earnest desire to flee the wrath to come," and must have a test by which to determine the continuance of that "earnest desire," and to develop it into fruits of holiness.

VII.

Methodism becomes the most worthless and inefficient evangelical system the world contains, so soon as it abandons the class meeting as a test of fellowship. Nor is this the expression of a distorted view of its ecclesiastical polity, but, on the contrary, of a deliberate and comprehensive philosophy of Methodism.

(1.) If the foregone aphorisms be true—and I challenge the most relentless logic to their analysis—the following position cannot be further postponed: Methodism loses its distinctive character as a system of piety, and lapses into a system of christian morality, the moment it vacates the class meeting as a test of Church fellowship, either by suffering the rule on that subject to become obsolete, or by a positive legislation rescinding the rule. Moreover, having taken its position on a level with the two Churches above mentioned, even supposing, like them, it demanded an experience of grace as the initiatory step without the after test of class meeting, and it becomes inferior to them in not having the theological buttress of "once in grace always in grace," which they have. But,

(2.) While the other Churches start in an experience of grace as the initiatory test; the Methodist Church starts at a lower point of the christian life; namely, in an "earnest desire to flee the wrath to come." Having no test of grace in the heart at the outset, annul the class meeting, and we have none to bring down upon the subsequent history of the religious life. And thus the children of Methodism decline in their very babyhood before the children of the other Churches. Moreover our probationary system, or, which is the same thing, our "earnest desire," etc., becomes the loop hole of satanic corruption and a dead mormlistic christianity. With a low grade of piety they come in; being in, we have no means by which to test the continuance of that low grade, and no means, (except those we have in common with the other Churches,) by which to develop it into a higher grade. The class meeting is the school in which probationers are proven and taught the higher forms of piety. Build a college with blocks of granite; furnish its shelves with the lore of ages; open its doors to the aspiring youth of the country; let them come from east and west, and sit within its cold walls of rock, girt with groaning shelves of wisdom; neglect to furnish them with professors—and you play the fool. Establish a school of piety; call in the yearning souls of the earth; let them sit down beneath its cold ceiling; neglect to furnish them with teachers and classes; and you play the fool. Such a fool is the Methodist preacher, such a sham is the Methodist Church, without the class meeting.*

To make other statements in behalf of the proposition with which I started, that without the class meeting Methodism is the most worthless and inefficient of evangelical systems—seems almost like the English officer, who had nineteen good reasons for not firing a salute to the Queen, the first of which was, that he had no artillery. Nevertheless we will make one other statement.

(3.) The other Churches require grace in the heart as much after as in the initistory step of Church fellowship. The difference between them and Methodism is, that while Methodism requires grace in the heart, it has, in the class meeting, a test of the existence of that grace; whereas the other Churches make the requirement, but have not the test. The deficiency is supplied to some extent in the other Churches by a settled pastorate, by means of which the religious condition of each member may be more thoroughly known and diligently cultivated. The Methodist Church, on the contrary, with its itinerant pastorate, has no way of supplying the deficiency, if the class meeting be expunged. Methodism is indeed a "great Iron Wheel," (the bishops are the axis, but God turns the crank thereof,) that turns on its axis, and, unlike the earth, shifts the whole ecclesiastical latitude and longitude every two years; there are lesser wheels, (e. g. the four weeks circuits,) that perform their revolutions monthly; and so on. In a word the pastoral element is perpetually shifting in continuous movement. There are advantages in a settled pastorate: acquaintance with the religious habitudes of men is of slow acquirement; influence over men is of slow acquirement; and here the settled pastorate has the advantage. As the necessary complement of the itinerant system, the class meeting is the settled pastorate of the Methodist Church. Take it away and we are cast down into irretrievable inferiority to the the other evangelical systems.

VIII.

The class meeting was the manger of Bethlehem to Methodism. There the child was born amid gifts of "myrrh," but not of "gold and frankincense" from the wise men of the establishment. The class meeting was the antecedent of all the elements that go to make up what we now call "itinerant Methodism." In proof of this read the Discipline, page 27, sec. IV. Destroy the itinerancy and Methodism remains in its primitive, though unfinished, form. Destroy the class meeting and Methodism ceaseth forever. It is a misnomer, historically and philosophically to say, "Itinerant Methodism;" you hit the truth when you say, "Class Meeting Methodism." The class meeting, like the itinerancy, is not incidental, but organic to the body of Methodism; howbeit the former is the antecedent of the latter and therefore the more vital. If it had not been for the antecedent idea of the class meeting in the minds of our forefathers, the itinerancy would have been rejected as an absurdity. Yet there are those who range like the dog star when the itinerancy is touched, and listen with comparative complacency to suggestions with regard to a change of the rule upon class meetings.

IX.

The ethical ground of the class meeting as a test of Church fellowship is to be sought, not in the express word of God, but in the inherent right of organizations to prescribe their own aims and to fix their own standards. There is but a single limitation; that they be in keeping with the spirit of christianity. The excellent Dr. Wadsworth, in his sermon before the last Alabama Conference at Selma, essays an impossible task, when he undertakes to vindicate the class meeting as a test of membership from the express word of God.† Having established the inherent right above specified, his scripture expositions do well to show that this test is in keeping with the spirit of christianity; in any other connection, and in the connection he used them, they are superficial and fallacious. Many a good cause has been injured by undertaking too much in its defence.

X

There are two ways in which laws become nugatory and cease to exert their force: (1,) by legislative annulment; (2,) by gradually lapsing into dissuetude and becoming obsolete. In the former case they cease to exist; in the latter they are, but are as though they were not, the letter of the statute being the tomb of the law. This is the case with our rule upon class meetings; it is, but is as though it were not; it lies in the discipline as the pulseless corpse in the grave. Is there any way to revive an obsolete law? An abolished law may be re-enacted; is there no way by which to restore a law that has fallen into dissuetude? If not, then may we quote the words of our Savior to Judas, in reference to the rule upon class meetings, "It were good for that man if he had not been born." But is there no way? The spirit that fulfills is near akin to the spirit that frames a law; the decay of this spirit brings it into dissuetude. The spirit of earnest christianity framed our rule upon class meetings; a decline of the spirit of earnest christianity brought it into dissuetude; a revival of the spirit of earnest christianity can alone raise it from the dead.

XI.

There is no such thing as reform in the sphere of ecclesiastical history. Decline, degeneracy, regress there may be in the natural order of things; but progress† in ecclesiastical matters is only successive revolutions. The moment reform is attempted in the field of Church history, that moment revolution and schism begin. Luther attempted to reform the Roman Church; a revolution, of which Protestantism is the result, was the consequence. Wesley attempted the reform of the establishment, when, lo, his loyal heart grieved over a revolution or schism, for which we and the rest of the world, not so loyal, thank God; for the race has been benefited by Methodism as a separate "Establishment." Many efforts have been made to reform Methodism, but have invariably resulted in schism and revolution; of which the Protestant Methodist Church is an inglorious example. Next to Jesuitism Methodism is the most compact system the world contains. Its various functions are so interdependent, that to infringe one involves a consequent infringement of all. A Methodist reformer is a Methodist red republican. There is no medium between reform and revolution. Yet there is no Church more infested with rampant so called reformers, but real revolutionists, than the Methodist Church. The idea of "Progress" has become an infatuation with some of our preachers. I see in all such a spirit of incendiary radicalism, disguised beneath the misty robes of an indefinite and shadowy notion of "development." It has been intimated that we ought to change our rule upon class meetings. "It has become obsolete," say they, "why keep it in the Discipline?" It has indeed become obsolete, but no further than Methodism has become obsolete; expunge it and you expunge Methodism. (See Aphs. VII. VIII.) When its time comes, if ever, let Methodism die; meanwhile let it have both legs to go on—the class meeting and the itinerancy. Touch either of them and Methodism will limp like a parable in the mouth of a fool.

* I am indebted to a suggestion, in private conversation, of the Rev. Josephus Anderson of the Florida Conference, for the view here taken of the relations of the probationary system with the class meeting. May we not hope that his more capable mind will elaborate the point more at large, than the aphoristic style of these paragraphs will allow?

* I speak only from hearing, and may have misrepresented the doctor. The sermon, if published, has not yet reached me. If I have misunderstood the doctor, I shall embrace the first opportunity to correct the error.

† I speak here with reference to the organic structure of ecclesiastical systems. In the application of this organic structure to the circumstances of the age there may be progress. The recent movement with regard to "lay representation" may succeed so long as it leaves intact the legislative machinery of the Church. The difficulty lies in keeping the lay element in such relation to the itinerant, as not to infringe the latter, which is organic. The movement, on account of this very difficulty, will result in a failure; and if not in failure, in the long run, what is worse, in schism. An able writer in the Southern Advocate is alive to the difficulty, though he favors the movement.

THE CHEAPEST TENEMENT.

An honest Hibernian, trundling a handcart containing all his movables, was accosted by a friend with—"Well, Patrick, you are moving again, I see." "Faith, I am," replied he. "The times are so hard, it's a dale cheaper hiring handcarts than paying rints."

Those who have not read this ode before, will be interested to know that it was composed by the Russian poet, Derzhaven, and is said to have been translated into Japanese by order of the Emperor, and is hung up, embroidered in gold, in the temple at Jeddo. It is known to have been translated into the Chinese and Tartar languages, and to be written upon a piece of rich silk, and suspended in the Imperial Palace at Pekin. The following translation made by Dr. Bowring, fine as it is, is said to have lost much of the sublimity that characterizes the original:

GOD.

O Thou Eternal One! whose presence bright
All space doth occupy, all motion guide;
Unchanged through Time's all devastating flight,
Thou only God! There is no God beside!
Being above all beings! Mighthy One!
Whom none can comprehend and none explore,
Who fill'st existence with Thyself alone—
Embracing all—supporting—ruling o'er—
Being whom we call God—and know no more!

In its sublime research, philosophy
May measure out the ocean deep—may mount
The sands or the sun's rays—but God! for Thee
There is no weight nor measure—none can mount
Up to thy mysterious Reason's brightest spark,
Though kindled by Thy light, in vain may try
To trace Thy counsels, infinite and dark,
And thought is lost e'er thought can soar so high,
Even like past moments in eternity.

Thou from primeval nothingness didst call,
First, chaos—then existence. Lord, on Thee
Eternity had its foundation; all
Sprang forth from Thee—of light, joy, harmony,
Sole origin—all life, all beauty Thine.
Thy word created all, and doth create;
Thy splendor fills all space with rays divine,
Thou art, and wert, and shall be! Glorious Great!
Life-giving, life-sustaining, Potentate!

Thy chains the unmeasured universe surround—
Upheld by Thee, by Thee inspired with breath!
Thou the beginning with the end hast bound,
And beautifully mingled life and death!
As sparks mount upward from the fiery blaze,
So suns are born, so worlds spring forth from Thee;
And as the spangles in the sunny rays
Shine round the silver snow, the pageantry
Of Heaven's bright army glitters in Thy praise.

A million torches lighted by Thy hand,
Wander unwearied through the blue abyss;
They own Thy power, accomplish Thy command,
All gay with life, all eloquent with bliss.
What shall we call them? Piles of crystal light!
A glorious company of golden streams!
Lamps of celestial ether burning bright!
Suns lighting systems with their joyous beams!
But Thou to these art as the moon to night!

Yet as a drop of water in the sea,
All this magnificence in Thee is lost;
What are ten thousand worlds compared to Thee!
And what am I then? Heaven's unnumbered host
Though multiplied by myriads, and arrayed
In all the glory of sublimest thought,
Is but an atom in that balance weighed Against Thy greatness; is a cypher brought Against infinity. What am I then? Nought!

Nought! but the effluence of Thy light divine,
Pervading worlds hath reached my bosom too;
Yes, in my spirit doth Thy spirit shine,
As shines the sunbeam in a drop of dew.
Nought! but I live, and on Hope's pinions fly,
Eager toward thy presence; for in Thee
I live, and breathe, and dwell; aspiring high,
Even to the throne of Thy divinity,
I am, O God! and surely Thou must be!

Thou art! directing, guiding all, Thou art!
Direct my understanding, then, to Thee!
Control my spirit, guide my wandering heart;
Though but an atom 'midst immensity,
Still I am something, fashioned by Thy hand;
I hold a middle rank 'twixt heaven and earth,
On the last verge of mortal being stand,
Close to the realms where angels have their birth,
Just on the boundary of the spirit land!

The chain of being is complete in me!
In me is matter's last gradation lost,
And the next step is spirit—Deity!
I can command the lightning, and am dust!
A monarch and a slave—a worm, a God!
Whence came I here, and how so marvelously
Constructed and conceived? Unknown! This clod
Lives surely through some higher energy,
For from itself alone it could not be.

Creator! yes, Thy wisdom and Thy word
Created me! Thou source of life and good!
Thou spirit of my spirit, and my Lord!
Thy light, thy love, in their bright plenitude
Filled me with an immortal soul, to spring
Over the abyss of Death, and bade it wear
The garments of eternal day, and wing
Its heavenly flight beyond this little sphere
Even to its source—to thee—its author there.

O thought ineffable! O vision blest!
Though worthless our conception all of Thee!
Yet shalt thy shadowed image fill our breast,
And with its homage to the Deity,
God! thus above my lowly thoughts can soar!
Thus seek Thy presence—Being wise and good!
'Midst Thy vast works, admire, obey, adore;
And when the tongue is eloquent no more,
The soul shall speak in tears of gratitude.

BOOK OF PSALMS.

What is there necessary for man to know that the book of Psalms does not teach? They are, to beginners, an easy and familiar introduction, a mighty augmentation of all virtue and knowledge; in such as are entered before, a strong confirmation to the most perfect among others. Heroical magnanimity, exquisite justice, grave moderation, exact wisdom, repentance unfeigned, unwearied patience, the mysteries of God, the sufferings of Christ, the terrors of wrath, the comforts of grace, the works of Providence over this world, and the promised joys of that world which is to come, all good necessarily to be either known, or done, or had, this one celestial fountain yieldeth. Let there be any grief, or disease, incident to the soul of man, any wound or sickness named, for which there is in this treasure-house a present comfortable remedy at all times ready to be found.—Hooker.

GOOD MANNERS.

No station, rank or talents, whatever, can excuse a man for neglecting the civilities due from man to man. When clement XIV ascended the papal chair, the ambassadors of the several States, represented at his Court, waited on his holiness with their congratulations. As they were introduced, and severally bowed, he also bowed to return the compliment. On this, the master of the ceremonies told his lordship that he should not have returned their salute. "Oh, I beg your pardon," said he; "I have not been Pope long enough to forget good manners."

Lowliness of mind is not a flower that grows in the field of nature, but is planted by the finger of God in a renewed heart, and learned of the lowly Jesus.

New England Correspondence.

Concord, N. H, Feb. 10, 1858.

MR. EDITOR: In the city of New York, on the 28th ult., the one hundred and twenty-first anniversary of the birth of Thomas Paine, the noted infidel chief, was celebrated by about fifty men and women. The company listened to an address delivered by a woman—and it seems that she is a married woman too. What an abandoned creature she must be! One who witnessed the scene says, "The speech would have done great credit to the women in France, who, in the Reign of Terror, gathered around the guillotine and sang and yelled with delight, and danced for joy, as heads fell into the basket by the dozen." The N. Y. Tribune, Horace Greeley's paper, undertakes to place Paine side by side with the patriots of the Revolution. He lauds him very highly, and speaks of him as a noble model for the young men of our country. Perhaps a few incidents in the life of this noted infidel chief may not be uninteresting.

Thomas Paine was born in England January, 1737. His whole life shows him to have been a perfect wretch, devoid of all humanity and honor. No one ever placed any confidence in him, but that he betrayed that confidence. During the latter part of his life no one would trust him. He attacked the character of Washington in the most violent and unjust manner. He thus addressed the father of our country: "As to you, sir, treacherous in private friendships, and a hypocrite in public life, the world will be puzzled to decide whether you are an apostate or an impostor." When he began his "Age of Reason"—that book which has poisoned the minds of so many of our young men and proved a curse to some of our young women, as the New York scene fully proves—he had neither Bible or Testament. His first wife he maltreated, and finally turned her out upon the cold charities of the world to shift for herself. His rascality did not stop here; for in a few years he ran away with another man's wife and three children. He lived with her a short time, and then abandoned her with kicks and curses. After this he had no companion save a negress, who was as filthy and as drunken as himself. In 1804 he removed to New York an abandoned wretch. He had sunk so low in crime and debauchery that no one would notice or take care of him, save an old Welchman, to whom Paine cried out, "No one will take me in." This Welchman had compassion on the miserable old man—dragged him out of a low tavern—put him in a tub of hot water, and scraped this prophet of infidelity until the dirt peeled off of him. But Paine proved too much for his benefactor and he was compelled to turn him out. He approached the close of life one of the dirtiest, most besotted, brutal, profane, indecent, impure, blasphemous mortals that any age endured—bowelless, penniless, friendless. I need not mention any thing connected with his death. It is familiar to all how, that when left alone, he would start up and cry out, "Whose there?" "Whose there?" And his cry, "Lord have mercy upon me," was mingled with curses on the Son of God. Once he exclaimed, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" And thus he died! He could live an infidel, but was unable to die an infidel! Such is the character of the man that Horace Greeley wishes to place as a model for our young men!

In closing this letter I will give some of the most prominent doctrines advocated by the Millerites, or Adventists, as they are sometimes called. They are very numerous in this section of country, and are still making many proselytes. They elect their apostles and prophets, and contend that these apostles are inspired by God with a perfect knowledge of all things, both past and future, and, therefore, they are infallible. Sometime since they elected their prophets and apostles, and went up in the upper chamber of a house and there waited all night for the descent of the Holy Ghost; but as they did not receive the baptism, they quietly dispersed, thinking that something had gone wrong, and that at some future time they would "try again." They held that when man dies his soul enters the grave, and there sleeps till the resurrection morn. They also believe, or pretend to believe, that at the day of judgment the wicked are annihilated. They also believe that the Son of God was created by the Father, and was the first word the Father spoke.

W. G.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

"THE GOVERNOR."

MR. EDITOR: I have received a letter from some one, who claims to be a Methodist preacher, requesting an explanation of the term used above, as applied to the M. E. Church. The writer evidently desires to lead me into a discussion of the principles of our Church government, for which I am sorry to be unprepared; but I may yet be able to show the where and therefore of this "important part of all machinery."

My correspondent is aware of a certain impediment to all motion as it exists in this world, which is commonly called friction. This constitutes a real difficulty, which, being superadded to the universal inertium that hangs upon all sublunary matter, requires an expenditure of power or force to produce motion in every case equal to the weight or mass of the machinery and the amount of friction it encounters. And as this friction is varying and unequal, it will be difficult always to apply the requisite force to overcome it just in time; hence the use of the "Governor," which, after being analyzed, is a mere mass of iron attached to the machinery, and acting by its inertium, first as a receptacle of motion and second as a balance wheel to steady the machinery and enable it to overcome any momentary deficiency of power, whether resulting from increase of friction or diminution of motive force.

Now, to leave the jargon of science, we say the Methodist economy needs and possesses an attachment which operates in the way specified above. And if you please this is found in the Great Iron Wheel of the episcopacy. This mass of originally dead weight receives into itself life and power from the people, and afterwards reciprocates this life and power by a healthful action upon them. If at any time a disorganized piece should fly off, in the shape of Protestant Methodism for instance, the "Governor" does not permit the balance of motion to be disturbed, but moves the whole right on as if nothing had happened; while the detached fragment falls to the ground. In it is treasured up the momentum of the former and present activity of the Church; and with its active revolution the cobwebs of ago and the empty exhalations of untried Young Americanism are alike swept away.

This potent attachment is sometimes called the "fly-wheel," as, I suppose, from the rapidity of its movement. In this respect, also, the analogy holds good. Nothing comparable to the active and constant energies of the superintendents of the Methodist Episcopal Church, from the days of Mr. Wesley down, has been found in any other religious body. They are going every where, and almost all the time.—By land and sea, by steam or stage, from east to west and from north to south, their revolutions are incessant. No part of the system but is made to feel a constant sense of their presence.

Shallow men are apt to forget the value of experience, and readily imagine themselves capable of improving a system which has astonished the world during the last seventy years by the celerity of its movements, the steadiness of its force, and the unexampled rapidity with which it has carried the blessings of the gospel over half of the globe already; but if they have really found out any thing better and safer, they have yet to show it. O that some men would learn the fact, that while every man may be useful in the sphere of action, there is not one of ten thousand capable of legislating for mankind. Respectfully,

FRANCIS M. GRACE.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

"THE FIRST LIGHT."

MR. EDITOR: The above is the caption of an article in the Advocate of the 6th inst., in which, it seems to me, there are some rather erroneous views. The writer supposes the first days and nights, spoken of in the first chapter of Genesis, to have been as long as many "years or centuries, or even thousands of years." He seems to base this supposition chiefly on the account given us of the creation of "grass, herbs and fruit-trees"—the third day's work. From the manner in which that account is expressed, he thinks that these things must have grown up and produced their fruit in the natural way, and that, therefore, a much longer time was necessary than an ordinary day. In support of this opinion, he says, "The same reasons for producing full-grown trees, already laden with matured fruit, did not exist as for the creation of Adam a full grown man."

Let us examine these opinions a little. On the supposition that the days were no longer then than now, (which seems to me the most easy and natural interpretation,) that reason, or necessity did exist; for if there had not been matured fruits, etc., upon what would man and the other animals, created a few days afterwards, have subsisted? And I do not think that, from the peculiar manner in which the account of the production of grass, fruits, etc., is given, we are to suppose that they were brought forth in the natural way. I think it is only intended to give us an idea of the nature of these things, that they were of such a nature as to propagate their own kind by yielding seed and fruit. That necessity, then, for the enormous length of the days did not exist.

I believe he gives no other reason for this theory, and the fallacy of this one seems very evident.

Have we not also an argument against it in the institution of the Sabbath? Every seventh day, (not hour, or year, or century,) was set apart as a day of rest. And may we not very reasonably suppose that the first Sabbath was of the same length with each of the six preceding days, as well as with the days that followed? What reason or necessity could there have been for such a great length of days and nights? Could not God have accomplished this work in a short as well as a long time? And besides, what would have become of vegetation of every kind during that long night succeeded their production? Is not light, to a great extent, necessary for the growth and maturity of vegetation? Surely it must be much easier, more natural and reasonable to take the plain common-sense view of the subject. Divines tell us that, when there is no absurdity or contradiction in a passage of scripture, we are to take it literally. So let us take this, and not be puzzling our brains to bring forward far-fetched and unnatural constructions.

W.

Alabama, Feb. 16, 1858.

RESPONSIBILITY.

I am utterly astonished when I think upon such a treasure as the gospel being committed to such a one as myself. It almost terrifies me, when I think of the awful responsibility which lies upon an ambassador of Christ; that he has not only to watch for his own soul, but for the souls of others—not only to account for himself, but for others—and if the people err through his misguidance, it will be required at his hands. "Who is sufficient for these things?"

Rev. William Jackson.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$3 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1858.

AN EARNEST CALL.

The time is short. A few weeks hence, and the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate will have made up their quadrennial report. It is desired, greatly, to present to the General Conference a solid subscription list of 7000.

TO THE PREACHERS, TRAVELING AND LOCAL.

The value of a religious paper, weekly visiting your congregations—preaching with you like doctrines, enforcing and defending like usages, can hardly be overvalued. The Advocate helps you—help it.

TO THE LADIES.

If they will lay to their hands, the work is sure to be done, well and quickly. We invite them to.

TO ALL FRIENDS AND PATRONS.

Does your neighbor take the Advocate? Is there not a poor family, destitute of religious reading, known to you, who are unable to take a religious paper. Send it to them. Command that fifty-two religious tracts be left at their door, for a year, in your name.

New subscribers come in at the rate of fifty a week. They must come in faster than that.

VISITORS.—Since we have got into our spacious quarters, 112 Camp street, we occasionally have the pleasure of a call from our friends. They ought to visit the Advocate when they visit the city. It is easy of access and plenty of room. So convenient for subscribers to pay up—get well ahead—and make any explanations or directions about "my paper." Like to see them; and though we seldom have time to entertain, will put at their disposal the means of entertaining themselves—the daily city papers and our files of the Methodist press. Opposite the office door, on same floor, is the book room; just fitted up and being filled with all the books Stevenson and Owen put forth. Call and see them, at 112 Camp street.

The other day "Mary," who appears too seldom in our columns, visited our sanctum.—There had been no sweeping since the carpenters and painters left; whereupon she said things looked quite literary. Whereupon we bought a broom: it is a new one.

A SUGGESTION.—A correspondent says: Since Old Fogyism has triumphed in the American Bible Society, suppose the Methodists, North and South, procure their stereotype plates and publish the revised Version for our own use?

CLASS MEETINGS.—Those who like a compact argument, with the finish of scholarly roughness on it, and those who would read a logical defense of one peculiar feature of Methodism, are commended to the perusal of "Aphorisms," on our first page.

If these "Aphorisms" be true, it would seem no earnest Methodist preacher can view them with indifference. If they be false, their falsehood is too appalling to suffer such an one to give them the entire go-by. He must take a position, pro or con. If pro, then must he act accordingly and let the class meeting tell in his pastoral administration. If con, then must he take up the cudgels and fight for life against the "Rev. Zoroaster Zerbolt," whose logic, when it conquers, annihilates the Methodism of that Methodist preacher who depreciates the class meeting. If the Rev. Z. Z. be wrong at all, he is terribly wrong, and the best boon his brethren can confer is to set him right.

THE HOME CIRCLE.—The March number is promptly to hand. A likeness of Dr. Ruter embellishes it. This is a gem—the Home Circle is. It is one of the entertaining, elevating things of the times. Its presence in any family must be a blessing, and we wonder that any of our families consent, for the sake of saving $2, to do without it. Whether Dr. Huston writes or selects, one sees an elegant taste and cultivated, discriminating judgment running through the columns of the Home Circle. Besides its mere literary, there are domestic departments, so well done up as to lift such things out of the plane of drudgery and to make the garden and kitchen and key-basket an attachment of elegant life, as much as the piano.

If they were at hand, we should publish here the emphatic resolutions of the Louisiana Conference in favor of the Home Circle, and suggesting to the agents that they have no publication that would justify a more liberal outlay of funds, for its enlargement and illustration. Send for it. Once in your house, you will hardly ever do without it.

SOUTHERN METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW.—The January number is on our table. Among other articles, very readable, we must notice particularly one by Professor Bonnell on the Educational Institute, presenting its inception and history, its objects and capabilities for usefulness: a masterly contribution and well timed, calculated to point the way for this new power and to give the Church a proper estimate of it and draw it nearer to us. The book notices are not only good and full, but what is a note worthy fact, our own publications constitute the larger part of a full list.

REV. D. KEENER.—By an oversight the name of this esteemed brother does not appear in the appointments of the Louisiana Conference.—His numerous friends will regret to learn that his health will not permit his active service in the cause in which he has literally worn out his strength. He received a superannuated relation.

[This paragraph, last week, was erroneously attached to D. Keener. Dr. Keener is in good health and, we hope, two score years this side of superannuation.]

ADVERTISEMENTS.—We call attention to the advertisement of Mrs. Boyd. Those who would enjoy the fruits of that modern wonder, the sewing machine, will find them at her store.

WORKING FOR A REVIVAL.

Granting that God will give his Spirit to them that ask Him:

Granting that without His gracious aid—His quickening, enlightening, converting and sanctifying power—we nothing good can do:

Granting that the Savior has obtained gifts for men, and sends them down to us:

Granting that no event to the individual, the family, the society is so important as a revival:

Then how shall the Church work and wait for such blessing, and this be known as the year of revivals?

Begin, every one, with himself. Examine, "prove your own selves." Religion works from within, outwardly. What is good in your affections and ways, and needs strengthenings What is wrong, and needs mending? Reading God's word daily, and prayer are prime means of grace, lying close at hand.

Cultivate social piety. Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together. Carry with you to the class meeting, the prayer meeting and the congregation a heart prepared: take along your contribution to a good meeting. But go, if you must, as a beggar. Go to get good, if you take none there. Keep up these means of grace by your presence. They will help others, if not you. You promised to do these things in your baptismal vows and your covenant with the Church. If neglected, it demoralizes your conscience.

Hold up the hands of him that preaches the word. God has ordained preaching, for the conversion of sinners and edification. Be a party to the good done, by your sympathy and helping prayers.

Attend kindly and firmly to discipline.—"Purge out the old leaven." Take stumbling blocks out of the way, but in doing this, don't be harsh with the lame who stumble over them.

Take up the cross of speaking with some one—even a child, a servant—about his soul.

Don't desire or expect a revival for the benefit of sinners only, by which you mean the unconverted. This is a great mistake. The awakening and conversion of sinners is only a part, or rather, the result of a genuine revival. The very word implies a work in the Church and on the Church. In what can the unconverted be revived? To desire a revival for their sake only is a doubtful benevolence—such benevolence as gives away the application of a sermon to others. A revival is not a religious frolic: but a time of searching of hearts, of humiliations, of tears, of confessions, of self-mortifications; the kindling of a fire, that must burn up your dross and refine your gold. The spirituality of the Church must be moved up. Then fear comes on every soul. Then a power—a solemn sense of God' presence is felt. Sinners, before they are inquired of, will inquire, "What shall we do?"

Holy living, on the part of the Church, must underlie all successful efforts in promoting a genuine revival spirit; and any revival efforts not accompanied with a deep work of grace in the membership, are of questionable utility. The prayer of faith is more efficacious than any artificial stimulus. The former exalts God, the latter exalts human agency.

Wesley had large experience, and here are his injunctions to the point:

1. "Preach Holiness clearly, strongly, explicitly, and lead the members to seek and obtain it."

2. "Labor to advance the work of Christian perfection. When this is not preached there is seldom any remarkable blessing from God, and, consequently, little addition to the society or little life in the members of it." "Speak and spare not! LET NOT REGARD TO ANY MAN INDUCE YOU TO BETRAY THE TRUTH OF GOD; till you press believers to expect FULL SALVATION NOW YOU MUST NOT LOOK for any revival."

DEATH OF REV. J. H. WATERS.

"Our beloved brother, J. H. WATERS, is dead. He arrived at home last Thursday night, apparently in good health. On Saturday night following he was taken very ill, and grew worse until Monday morning, when he died.

I knew brother Waters long and intimately. "His sun has gone down at noon." Throw this brief notice into shape if you please, for I cannot write his obituary. S. J. HAWKINS."

Opelousas, La. Feb. 24.

We met brother Waters, in apparent health and zealous for his Master's work, at Conference, where he received his appointment to Richmond and Milliken's Bend. For two years he has been on New Iberia circuit, where he edified the Church. He was a young man of piety, of sound mind and full of promise for usefulness in the ministry. Of an excellent spirit, the hearts of those who knew clave to him. His death is a painful surprise and a great loss to the Church.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS.—Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, visiting the Lunatic Asylum of California, says: "One of the patients—a young man about twenty-five—has the singular habit of repeating all day the first sounds he hears in the morning, all the time rapidly walking the floor."

Is not all out doors full of such patients? The first sounds uttered in the morning of life—how important are they!

THREE HEADS.—Rev. B. P., of Mississippi Conference, is a model sermoniser. It came to pass once with him, as with most men, that a letter of serious and tender import had to be written. True to his professional instincts, he threw it under three heads: 1. Will you marry? 2. Will you marry a preacher? 3. Will you marry me?

They were married.

NEW ORLEANS AND JACKSON RAILROAD.—A gap of only twenty-three miles remains to be completed on this road, between Jackson and New Orleans, and it is confidently believed that it will be closed up by the middle of next month. This will leave only eighty miles of unfinished road between Memphis and New Orleans.

In the name of Jesus the whole Gospel lies hid: this name is the light, food, and medicine of the soul.

METHODIST PRESS.

We agree with the Southern Christian Advocate that one of the most important questions to be settled now by our Church is, how may we best supply the people with the issues of our Publishing House—how diffuse a religious literature developing gospel truth, as Wesleyans understand it, throughout our whole country? We are prepared to print—what we now want is the means of distribution. To supply this was one of the first cares of those in authority at head quarters, after the Publishing House was inaugurated.

We shall, in our next paper, present some suggestions to this point. Our contemporary, has a fine figure-head, and scrutinises the colporterage system of the American Tract Society, which he is fully able to do, for the last annual report gives us a summary of the receipts and expenditures of the Society for the thirty-two years of its existence, and also a full record of the cost and results of colportage for the preceding year. The conclusion as to cheapness of workmen, economy of labor and benevolent disbursements surprises him:

It is efficient to know that each colporteur costs the Society at least $430, out of which sum donations of books are made worth $331. Add the other expences of the system, and it will appear that it costs enough to carry on a vast missionary Society, in which all the employees might be preachers, distributing books, visiting families, and holding many more than forty-seven religious meetings in the year—for in what Conference do the Methodist preachers (married and single) get as much upon an average as is paid these colporteurs. At these rates, in what circuit can we support both a preacher and a colporteur, and pay the other expences of the system? We cannot work upon such a plan. The American Tract Society could not have done it, except by having the co-operation of all the churches—has not done it, except by paying 55 cents for selling every dollar's worth of books it has sold, or $3 15 for giving away every dollar's worth granted.

The conclusion is, that we must have a better system:

One that shall engage the preachers in the work, without the added expence of another salary, equal to what they now get; and which shall make the books sold pay the expenses of their sale, with only enough donations from the public to pay the actual cost of books given away. We think such a plan can be devised.

The Christian Advocate of New York has been caught napping, by a disingenuous title; but it is well known, that even Homer sometimes nodded. In noticing a book called the Tecno-baptist, that journal says the work presents "a purely scriptural argument, in favor of the baptism of infants," and that there is "a strength of reasoning in the book, the logic of which renders it eminently calculated to convince those who are not too far gone in prejudice." So far from being in favor of infant baptism, it takes precisely the opposite side of that question. Perhaps our contemporary, like Sidney Smyth, does not read books before reviewing them, "for fear of being prejudiced."

Zions Herald says:

Our readers will recollect that some time ago we expressed an opinion that there would be no lack of men in our Methodist Church to act as missionaries, provided the call be made in a definite style. Rev. W. Butler, our beloved missionary in India, wrote an excellent letter to the students of the Garrett Biblical Institute, in Evanston, Ill., in which he asked, "How many of your number are willing to devote themselves to the cause of God and Methodism in India?" Twenty-five students were present, sixteen of whom responded at once in the affirmative, since which five more have entered their names as applicants. Three or four more are preparing to become missionaries in other fields. This fact needs no comment. Hundreds of young men are willing to go as missionaries to any part of the world, if the church wishes for their services.

Our files of that neat and excellent exchange, the Pacific Methodist, are up to the 5th ult. There appears to be a healthy progressive and peaceable spirit among California Christians. Our branch of the Church looks to expansion. Says the editor:

From various sources we learn there is a strong and increasing desire that steps be taken immediately to organize the Methodist Church South in Oregon. Appeal after appeal has been made to different members of the Pacific Conference by brethren in Oregon who are ready and anxious to unite their efforts to planting our church there.—We beg our brethren in Oregon to be patient a little while, and their wishes will be gratified.

Rev. Mr. Chapman contributes ethnological papers to the Memphis Advocate, showing that the origin of the three races, red, white and black, was in the family of Noah. His three sons, by special providence or miracle if you please, were made types of the present races of mankind, upon the differences of which a new social order was based and a new distribution of rights made. Thus, on divine enactment, he establishes the relations of Ham to Shem and Japhet. No climatic, or other natural cause could produce the differences appearing between the white man, indian and negro:

The inhabitants of Egypt were of the stock of Ham, through his son, Misraim, and consequently were black. This we shall prove—place beyond the possibility of a doubt.

He adduces numerous facts from sacred and profane history, which he thinks prove

That the Egyptians, or descendants of Misraim, were of dark complexion; and, by inference, that it was derived from Ham, his father. Should any of our readers doubt this, we would exceedingly dislike the task of convincing them that Jefferson was of white complexion and derived it from his ancestors.

Moses, when an infant, was put in an ark of bulrushes, which was "laid in the flags by the river's brink," when concealment longer was found impossible. The daughter of Pharaoh, on opening the ark, exclaimed: "This is one of the Hebrew's children!"—Exodus ii, 6. How came she to know at a glance the nationality of a child but three months old? The task was easy—the Egyptian children were black.

The relation and nature of the Hamitic race is thus placed on original grounds. Neither color, character, or condition is an adventitious thing, or a thing of yesterday. In proof of the antiquity and permanence of present types, he quotes Hotz, who says:

Should any further proofs be needed, we would mention that the paintings of the temples and subterranean buildings of the Nile valley, indubitably attest the permanence of the negro type. There we see the same crisped hair, prognathous skull, and thick lips.

Mr. C. thinks that from the moment Misraim, a son of Ham, placed his feet on the land of the Nile, the history of the Ethiopians of that country then began.

Egypt is called Misraim in the oldest records. If the land takes its name from a son of Ham, whose name and movements are given by Moses, how say infidel ethnologists and readers of hieroglyphics that the monuments, inscriptions and settlement of Egypt antedate Noah's flood, and that the Mosaic account is, therefore, wrong? Could a son of Ham, a stranger, have imposed his name on that land, otherwise than after the Bible account? Other dates to the contrary are simply an ambition of antiquity and false.

A Kentucky friend, in our office the other day, in reply to "What's the news from the West?" informed us that Rev. T. N. Ralston, D. D., had gone off to the Protestant Episcopal Church. Really, if our Episcopal friends would do as much for themselves as we do for them, they would get along faster. The Nashville Advocate has received the same news and raises this pertinent query:

If a Methodist, Presbyterian, or Baptist D. D. joins the Episcopalians, thereby acknowledging the invalidity of his former ordination, does he lose the degree which was conferred while he was out of the line of succession?

SPLITTING THE DIFFERENCE.

The Congregationalist, in a late issue, recommends a splitting of the difference between Calvinism and Arminianism. This, says the Puritan Recorder, 18th ult., we have before supposed was the present position of that paper, and of some of its friends, but we hardly expected to see so plain an avowal of it as we have before us. The Editor gives, in parallel columns, his statement of what he understands to be the distinguishing points of Calvinism and Arminianism, and then sums up as follows:

"Calvin taught the unconditional election of a part of mankind, at the sole pleasure of God, and without reference to anything of good or evil foreseen in them, and the unconditional rejection of the remainder. He taught that God decreed that Adam should fall, and his reprobate posterity be involved in eternal condemnation therefor. He taught that Christ died only for the elect; that mankind are totally depraved by nature, are guilty of Adam's sin, and are, in all senses, without free will to repent, until God gives it in the regenerative act; and that those whom God is pleased to elect, he effectually calls and sanctifies unto sure salvation.

"On the other hand, Arminius taught that God's decrees of election are conditioned on foreseen obedience in the creature; that Christ died for all men, and that all men may be saved by penitence and faith in him; that mankind are not guilty of Adam's sin, and inherit no moral corruption from him; that there is no irresistible grace in salvation, because none in which man is not active in his co-operation, if it change his heart, and none which he may not resist unto frustration; and that Christians may fall from grace.

"Such, if we understand the matter, is the substance of the original Calvinism of Calvin, and of its original opposed Arminianism—both having been greatly modified by later theologians, who receive them for substance."

After this version of the two systems, which deserves to be carefully pondered, the Editor thus proceeds:

"We venture here to suggest the following queries:

"1. Have not the practical experiences and theological discussions of the three hundred years that divide us from the birth day of these systems, demonstrated the applicability, in their case, of the old precept of Ovid, "In medio tutissimus ibis"—the middle course is safest?

"2. Is it not very doubtful, whether any creed, church, or person, in our country, at the present day, unless it be the Predestinarian, or Hard Shell Baptists, can be found ready to avow and defend all the principles of original Calvinism, in the entire and honest sense in which Calvin held them? Certainly those men will not do it, who are now accusing Congregational Creeds of heresy, because they are not thoroughly Calviuistic."

The item in his summary of Arminianism—"inherit no moral corruption from him" [Adam]—is not according to the standard—qolte.

The Congregationalist is an organ of the New Haven school of divinity. This overture to Arminians looks like giving up the great points at issue. It is honest and plain. How have they been striving, for long years, to evade Arminianism—by exegisis of texts and constructing new theories of moral and mental philosophy!

STEAMBOAT SAFETY.

On the 10th Feb., in Congress, (House) the bill reported from the Committee of Commerce to provide for the safety of passengers on steamboats and other vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam was the principal subject of consideration:

Mr. Washburn, of Illinois, explained the provisions of the bill at some length, stating that it was the result of careful investigation by the committee, and combined the best provisions of three several bills before that body. The necessity for stringent provisions was proved by the sad disasters which had happened within the past year.

Mr. Scott, of California, also advocated the bill, especially those provisions which related to the safety of passengers on ocean steamers. He recounted some of the horrors produced by disasters the last year, and the heavy pecuniary losses incurred, stating that not less than twenty-three millions of dollars had been lost, and about three thousand lives sacrificed.

Mr. Taylor, of Louisiana, reviewed the laws passed by Congress upon this subject—contending that their provisions were not enforced. He moved to add additional sections declaring that no policy of insurance shall be taken out upon the hull of any steamboat, upon passengers or freight, unless the owner had complied with the provisions of law in relation to the build of the vessel, its machinery, and so on. Also, that when an engineer has been in charge of a steamboat boiler when an explosion occurs which results in the loss of life; when a pilot has been in charge when a collision occurs by which lives are lost; when a master has been in charge when a fire occurs occasioning loss of life—that in these instances no owner of a steamboat shall be permitted to employ that individual until a jury has not only exculpated him of all criminal charge, but has made a report in writing that he is free from all censure, and making null and void any insurance effected by the owner of such steamboat violating this provision.

The propriety of Mr. Taylor's views were forced on us, in a late trip down Red River. We felt some uneasiness, from appearances, at the fire risk on the Douglass, which was not at all allayed by learning that the captain and mate were the same under whom the steamer Col. Edwards had been burned up, a short time before, with loss of 1100 bales cotton and 15 or 20 passengers! The cotton was insured, but what of the people?

News from the Churches.

TALLADEGA, Ala., Feb. 18.

Rev. F. M. Grace writes:

"We have had, as you may see from the "Reporter," a blessed revival here of late. Seventy or more had been converted. Of these we shall receive 12 or 15 excellent members. Nothing equal to it has ever occurred here. Dr Nall has begun his Missionary work with this most signal and glorious success. Our school is prospering. The agent is at work and in high hopes of success. Times are growing better, health is excellent, and all things bid fair for a year of spiritual prosperity."

The "Reporter" we have not seen, but copy the following account of this gracious work from the Southern Presbyterian:

TALLADEGA, Ala., Feb. 8, 1858.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Yesterday was a good and memorable day with us. It was the closing service of a meeting which had been continued for seventeen days. Forty-two hopeful converts stood up together and assumed, publicly, the vows of a Christian profession. These, with a great number of God's people, refreshed by the Spirit and thankful for His rich grace, sat down and in solemn silence held communion with their Lord and one another, around the sacrament board. It was indeed good to be there.

After months and years of discouragement, we had begun to see tokens of the return of God's Spirit, when, unexpectedly, Dr. Nall appeared on an errand of business. Having attended to that, and made his arrangements to leave at 10 o'clock, P. M., we prevailed on him (for he is always ready) to preach before he left. The solemnity and size of the congregation induced the writer, without the opportunity of consulting any one, to propose that we go right on with our labors. We did so, and, favored by Providence and by the special presence of the Spirit, we continued to meet for seventeen days.

The labors of our good brother were abundant and effective, for the Holy Spirit manifestly filled his heart and gave him utterance, and carried his message to the ears and the hearts of the people. At the end of two weeks Dr. Nall was compelled to leave; but Bro. A. A. Porter, by request, came promptly to our help and labored most acceptably till the close of the meeting. The ministerial brethren of the Methodist E. Church also co-operated with us most cordially and fraternally.

Thrice during the meeting we were startled by the summons of death. Two of the individuals were members of the church, and the third a most amiable and valuable citizen; and there were circumstances attending each case peculiarly impressive and affecting.

Our meetings throughout were characterized by solemnity, stillness, close attention, deep conviction of sin, and the absence of all effervescence and noise. In three or four cases, wives, after years of prayer and "hope deferred," were permitted to rejoice over the conversion of their husbands; and they did rejoice. In other cases, backsliding and worldly-minded professors felt that God had "restored unto them the joys of His salvation." But, perhaps, the most interesting feature was the large proportion of young men, students, of law and practising lawyers, as well as young men in other pursuits, who were brought to the Savior. In this gracious work, the pupils of the Presbyterian Institution, and also those of the Southern school, were greatly blessed.—The stranger and the orphan were among the number of those who found in Christ a friend. Without pretending to strict accuracy, we suppose the hopeful converts do not fall short of 70 or 75, of whom 42 have been received into our communion, and others may yet join.—Some 20 have united, or will unite, with the Methodist E. Church, and the remainder with the Baptist Church.

OLD WASHINGTON, Ala., Feb. 19.

Been around my work twice and made the acquaintance of nearly all my members. I am much pleased with the work. Thank God we see in our class (or society) meetings, buildings of better times. Yesterday, after preaching to a small congregation, we held class meeting as usual, and in the midst of it, from several members, the old-fashioned Methodist class meeting shout went up in praise to God. We hope, for better times, and I believe we are going to have them.

J. S. R. BRANDON.

SUMMERFIELD, Ala., Feb. 22.

I feel it my duty to inform the many readers of the Advocate, who have a special interest in Summerfield, that we have a very extraordinary revival in progress here. Sixty-four persons have been added to the Church during the past week, and (we think) fully that number happily converted. Many have been converted in the house of God, some at the Institute, some at the Academy, and others in the woods. The presence of the good Spirit of God seems to pervade the entire community.

It is customary to notice the instrumentalities by which such happy results have been reached. Two have been apparent among us—the study of the word of God, and importunate prayer. Nearly all our citizens have been studying the Bible, either in the Sunday school, or in Bishop Andrew's Saturday morning Bible class.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light" To Him who giveth the word that giveth light—to the God who answereth prayer, be all the glory. PASTOR.

YANKEE JIM'S, Placer co., California.

Rev. J. C. Stewart writes on business, Feb., and adds:

"The prospects of the church in this country are brightening. There have been several revivals since the session of our Conference. The good Master has blessed us with a gracious revival on this circuit. Sixteen were added to the church."

THE NEXT SOUTHERN CONVENTION.

It will be remembered, says the Mississippian, that the late Convention at Knoxville adjourned over to meet in Montgomery, Ala., on the second Monday in May next. There is every reason to believe that this Convention will be one of the largest ever yet held in the Southern States. Gov. McWillie will doubtless announce a list of delegates for Mississippi at an early day.

The Mississippian also publishes a list of the committees appointed to consider several subjects and report on them. We present one:

On Southern School Books: The following names are added to the committee raised at the last session of the Convention: Rt. Rev. Leonidas Polk, of La., Chairman of the committee; J. Perkins, Jr., of La.; W. Gilmore Sims, L.L. D., and R. B. Carroll, of S. C.; C. K. Marshall, of Miss.

By what hocus-pocus it came to pass that the last name on that list was not the first we know not. No man in the South has so early, so constantly, so loudly and so eloquently called on the people of the South to look to their school books as Rev. C. K. Marshall. He has pointed out the vices of those now in use and shown the importance of good ones and given the best practical suggestions for the remedy. Now that he has waked up the country, at last, on the subject of southern school books, he is ranked on the committee by men whose zeal in this connection is recent. The Educational Institute of the M. E. Church, South, will be in session, about that time. We hope Mr. Marshall will be there, where a proper position will be assigned him.

Domestic Missions.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Feb. 3, 1858.

Please publish this report of Andrew Colored Mission for the First Quarter of 1858.

Number of preaching places 13, number preached to about 700, catechised about 125, died 2.

The Mission is in a good condition, and there are signs of improvement. At most of the plantations the negroes, old and young, seem to be much interested. We have some excellent meetings. The patrons are zealous and intend to sustain the work. At Quarterly Conference several were present and gave us to understand that they would support it with their prayers and purses to a liberal degree. Their zeal on that occasion, I understand, is about to provoke the establishment of another Mission in the bounds of this circuit. Two of the patrons have agreed to unite their congregations. This I take to be a very good sign. I have added two appointments this year. J. W. RUSH.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

REV. J. HAMILTON, D. D.

MR. EDITOR: I read with mingled emotions your notice of Rev. Jefferson Hamilton, D. D., in the last number of your paper.

It seems that eminent and faithful minister of the gospel, returning from a remote part of his extended field of labor, was stricken down by disease in New Orleans and was unable to accompany his friend, Dr. Stevenson, on his way to Nashville. At Nashville Dr. Hamilton now resides—there his wife and children have been waiting to welcome him home again, but he falls by the way-side and comes near losing his life. It reminds me of an incident in the life of McDonald, one of Napoleon's ablest and bravest marshals. Crossing the Alps in mid-winter, an avalanche swept away a whole company. A drummer, unhurt by his fall, recovered himself and with his drum beat for relief; the music came swelling up the Alpine gorge, but rescue was hopeless. McDonald passed on with his army to earn new laurels. Dr. Hamilton has been rescued in God's providence, and will yet do good service in the cause of his Master. Knowing him as I do, I am shocked at the thought of the loss which the Church has so narrowly escaped. He is a man of the highest order—a transcendantly great preacher—rivaling in zeal the early heroes of the Church, and toiling with self-consecrating and self-consuming ardor in the great work. Long may he be spared to the Church. Long may he live to thunder out such appeals as I heard him utter in this city in 1845. Urging timid seekers of religion to trust in God and to take his promises without reservation, he exclaimed, "Plant yourself upon the very center of God's promise, and if you sink, sink right through it and carry the fragments down to the flames with you, that hell may keep jubilee for a century over one broken promise of Jehovah!"

H. W. H.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 25, 1858.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE ALABAMA CONFERENCE

MUST BE DIVIDED.

The necessity of this division we would suggest and urge as an important consideration that may come before the ensuing General Conference. It is not important, now, to discuss where the line of division should be drawn, but only its necessity. And, 1st. It is impossible that the bishop and his advisers, whatever be their ability and industry, can duly consider the wants and peculiar circumstances of 200 ministers, and 1500 churches in the short time allotted for our Conference sessions. This must be apparent to all. It is true, this difficulty can not be entirely overcome, but this is no reason that it should not be avoided as far as possible. It is a fact, notorious in the Alabama Conference, that important business is often entirely neglected, or, driven through so hurriedly as to be altogether unsatisfactory. Reports from important committees are passed through under whip and spur, that demand time and sober thought. Conference societies press upon the heels of each other for time, and are adjourned with business half, or very imperfectly done. It is nonsense to talk about taking more time. When the preachers have been detained 8 or 10 days from their families and business, they will hurry. Let us then have less Conference business and we will have more time to do it. Let us divide.

2d. Another reason for division is the extent of our territory, embracing most of the state of Alabama, nearly an entire line of counties of East Mississippi, and the whole of west Florida. Look at the distance our brethren of East Florida will have to travel to Macon, the seat of our next Conference session. And perhaps no state under the sun can furnish a greater extent of miserable roads as Alabama. The Alabama Conference comprises territory enough for four very respectable Conferences. I see no virtue in holding such a large plantation under so great disadvantages of cultivation.

3d. Absence from pastoral duty, arising from distance to and from the seat of Conference we urge as another reason for division. The presence and influence of a godly pastor over the flock of Christ will be acknowledged and felt. The pastoral relation should be as constant and unbroken as is allowable by unavoidable circumstances.

From the reasons assigned, we hope that the next General Conference will divide our territory and give us more time for the discharge of our Conference duties. More weighty reasons we might suggest, and last, but not least, the Conference is a burden, with but few exceptions, to most places within its bounds, from the number of the body, and the expenses of its entertainment. Many places, too, where our Conference sessions are much desired and would no ubt do nbundant good nre deprived of these asons of refreshment from their inability to tain it. To many it may seem undesirable break up long cherished associations, to dis- ve ties and bonds of Conference union, but se should all yield to the general good of Church. I have made these suggestions, t because I do not enjoy the fellowship of all brethren, but because I love the interests of Church more. J. A. SPENCE.

Marriages.

Married—On the 2d ult., at the residence of Mr. L. W. ith, Noxubee county, Mi., by Rev. W. C. Hearn, Dr. G. Hinton, of Alabama, and Miss Sallie E. Taylor. o the same day, at the residence of Col. Martin Blo- Pickens county, Ala., by the same, Mr. W. N. Macon, Mississippi, and Miss M. Juda Binion.

o the 24th, in Lowndes county, Mi., by Rev. Baird, D., Dr. John H. Kennon, of Greene county, Ala., and M. Latin Imay.

o the 25th, in East Feliciana, by Rev. W. H. Scales, Josiah D. Nattles and Miss Mary E. W. Lipscomb.

o the 22d, at the residence of Mr. H. F. Shelton, by v. D. A. Campbell, Mr. Enoch W. Francis and Miss oline E. Cook, all of Brandon, Mi.

Enoch of old was translated,
We are told in the good book;
But this Enoch was happily mated,
Though it was with a Cook.

Special Notices.

SECOND ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS
Natchez District, Mississippi Conference.

Woodville, March	6—7
Bayou Sara and Barrow Church, at Barrow Church	13–14
Clinton, March	20–21
E. Feliciana circuit and col'd mis., at Port Hudson	27–28
Wilkinson cir. and col'd mis., at New Hope, April	3—4
Percy's Creek, at Fort Adams, April	10–11
Buffalo, at Mount Carmel, April	17–18
Jackson, at Salem Church, April	24–25
Washington, May	1–2.
Natchez, May	8—9
Kingston, May	15–16

District Steward's Meeting at Woodville, March 6th, at 10 o'clock.

L. CAMPBELL, P. E.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS
Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference.

Natchitoches circuit, March	13–14
Caddo circuit, March	20–21
Grand Cane circuit, March	27–28
Sparta circuit, April	3—4
Lake Bistineau circuit, April	10–11
Mansfield and P. Hill circuit, April	17–18
Shreveport station, April	24–25
North Bossier circuit, May	1—2

JOHN PIPES, P. E.

The preachers will please inform me of the place of holding Quarterly Conference, by letter, as soon as possible. Address Pleasant Hill, La. J. P.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 25, 1858.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Long-king's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

Southern Methodist Almanac for 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

Stevenson & Owen, Agents.

Local Intelligence.

Boys, poor boys! what a generation is being raised up. The stabbings and murders that have shocked the city for ten days past, have been perpetrated mostly by boys. In one branch of the Common Council this week.—An ordinance for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor to minors under eighteen years of age, was offered by Mr. Phelps and laid over for consideration at the next meeting. A penalty of $100 fine or 30 days' imprisonment is to be imposed on any liquor seller convicted of infringing this provision; and a similar penalty is to result if minors of that age are found in any bar-room or other place where intoxicating liquor is sold. The recklessness lately exhibited in so many instances by youths, is the occasion of the ordinance.

Distinguished Arrivals.—General Walker and Henningsen are both in the city. The former has taken his old head quarters, No. 17.

Some hints have been thrown out that Comonfort and Walker may join hands in Mexico and Central America. Vera Cruz town and province, having rebelled against the present government, in favor of Comonfort, offers a fine landing and sea front for operations.

U. S. District Court.—Gen. Wm. Walker appeared in court wednesday and gave bond of $4000 to appear in the U. S. Circuit Court the fourth Monday in April, and answer the charge against him of having violated the neutrality laws. Mason Pilcher, Esq., signed the bond.

Books—Buy the Books.—Orders for books are coming in briskly. This is well: circulate the books. We hope soon to have at 112 Camp street, very soon, a larger supply than ever of our own catalogue.

Cares.—How much beneath the spirit of Christianity are the carping anxious lives of too many Christians! You do not believe.—You talk of living by faith. But where is any such thing? Can you trust God for your souls, and can you not trust him for your bodies, for your children.—Richard Allen.

FUNERAL OF BISHOP WAUGH.

The death of this excellent man and bishop has before been communicated to our readers. The Christian Advocate and Journal, of 18th Feb., is clothed in mourning columns and details the funeral services.

The Methodist clergy in charge of the societies situated in and near Baltimore, at the request of the family of the deceased, made all the final arrangements, having met on Tuesday afternoon in the old Baltimore Conference Room, rear of Light street Church, and it was decided that such of the clergy of the various denominations as should attend the funeral, as well as the official members of the Methodist Church, should assemble at the family residence on South Green street, and walk in procession, as an escort to the remains, to the Light street Church.

After preliminary services in the Church Bishop Janes arose and announced his text. He said he would direct the meditation of his hearers to passages from the 6th, 7th, and 8th chapters of the Acts of the Apostles:

"I have spoken of the character and history of Stephen as illustrative of the life of him whose burial services have convened us here. It is not necessary for the elucidation of our subject that the parallel should be complete in all its incidents. The ministers of Christ do not now work miracles, nor are they called upon to suffer the pains of martyrdom for their belief. Nor is it necessary that there should be an equality in their services. The resemblance may sufficiently exist without this. I make this remark that I may not be considered as unduly eulogizing our departed father and friend. But the parallel is not less striking. If the comparison holds in principles and issues, it is legitimate.

"My opportunities of knowing personally the private experiences and incidents in the life of our departed father in the Church have been limited, and I leave a history of them to other hands, and to the appropriate occasion. The subject of our discourse was born in Fairfax county, Virginia, in the year 1789. So near the place of his nativity, and here, where he has passed so many years of his life and labors, I say of him, he was of 'honest report.' Even in his boyhood he was without the vices and follies of youth, and in his mature years he was without reproach. As a son, a brother, a husband, parent, friend, in all the relations of life, he was of good report. I wish that this merit were more fully appreciated; for while I would not withhold from those who have erred the praise of repentance for their faults, yet I do say, there is in an unspotted life a charm and an attainment, a crown of beauty and of honor, worthy of every effort. He was of honest report as a man.

"He was a man of wisdom.' I do not say he was a genius, perhaps it was better for the world that he was not; but I do claim that he was a man of a high degree of wisdom, and his attainments were of an extensive character. He was a man of clear discrimination, sound judgment, and of great discretion. His reading was general, his recollections were unusually good, and he possessed the remarkable faculty of making all his information available.

"As a Christian he was, like Stephen, 'full of faith and the Holy Ghost.' In his early youth, at the age of fifteen, he attached himself to the Church of God, and maintained his reputation as a consistent Christian to the time of his death.

"His faith was powerful. His religious experience was deep and spiritual. He was eminent for his faith and devotion, and remarkable for the uniformity of his experience and the strictness of his Christian life. He lived in fellowship with God, and was a temple of the Holy Spirit.

"His ministerial character and success are described in the text: He was full of faith and power. His convictions of his call to the ministry were so strong, that he considered to resist them would prevent his being a disciple of Christ, as the following extract from his journal will show:

"'But, O, my soul! there is yet another duty required; and must I take up the cross and follow Jesus? Must I give up my dear relations, my father, his house, his lands, my brothers and sisters, and must I give up my own will, and be directed by God to call sinners to repentance, or I cannot be his disciple? I must; the Word of Truth declares I must. Good Lord, I want to live and be thy disciple. But how can I declare the word of God to man? Serious and solemn calling! Lord, and must I go? Have I been saying to my soul I will not? If I have, Lord forgive me! I want to be a faithful and obedient servant of God! Yet, O the greatness of this work! to preach the Gospel, who is able? Lord, if I must speak for thee, and declare thy will to man, speak, O speak through me, and by me, or rather let me never attempt it. I pray thee, O God! to qualify me for this station.'

"He believed that the ministry of reconciliation was happily designed for winning souls to Christ; and he was so endued with power from on high, that his efforts were crowned with great success. He did not work miracles like Stephen, but through his efforts many were turned unto the faith. A portion of his early ministry was spent in this very church, and in it his labors were successful in the conversion of many souls. After spending, laboriously and successfully, nineteen years in the pastoral work he was elected book agent, in which office he spent eight years in conducting the religious press; and few men have contributed more extensively to the spread of religious literature in the Church and country.

"In 1836 he was elected to the office of bishop. This difficult and very responsible office he filled with general acceptance and much usefulness. Such was the confidence in his Christian integrity, in his strict impartiality and correct judgment, that his decisions and appointments were received with as much satisfaction, and acquiesced in as cheerfully, as human fallibility would permit. Thus, as pastor, as a conductor of the religious press, and as general superintendent of the Church, he acceptably served his generation and his Divine Master for forty-eight years.

"He died at his post." A short time since he went to Carlisle, and spent several days in promoting a revival of religion, preaching, praying with the mourners, counseling with the ministers, and while engaged in these labors he was attacked with his last illness. In preaching his last two sermons he had found it difficult to pronounce some of his words distinctly. Disease was upon him; he came home, and died. Thus was he found at his post in his last days; with gray hairs, trembling limbs, and at an inclement season, his last labors were given to the service of his Divine Master. May this, my dear brethren, be a paragraph in the concluding history of every person here!

"Like Stephen, he 'died devoutly.' On the morning of the day preceding his decease he led the family devotions, his now widowed consort reading the Scriptures, and he in his bed offering up to the throne of God the daily orison of a devout and trusting heart. On the evening of the same day, a brother clergyman being present, he desired him to perform the family service of the evening, in which he was joined by our deceased brother in exclamations of joyous thanksgivings for the mercies of God.—During the night of his demise those in his room heard him earnestly engaged in prayer. He first prayed for the Church, asking a Heavenly blessing on her interests in general; and then he pleaded most fervently and earnestly to God for the advancement and prosperity of the missionary work specially, and then, with the heart of a Christian husband and parent, interceded with his heavenly Father for his family.

"Soon after, this season of prayer, he was heard to moan. The family were immediately summoned, but before his physician could reach him he had quietly ceased to breathe.

"Our last statement concerning his death is, that it was a pleasant one. He 'fell asleep.' In a conversation with a brother, on the evening preceding his demise, the subject of 'death' was introduced, the brother remarking that 'dying' was not the proper expression; that it seemed harsh when applied to a Christian; but that falling asleep was the most suitable one. The bishop replied, 'Yes, that is the proper expression—falling asleep.' So, calmly relying on the promises and mercies of God, he fell asleep, 'fell asleep in Jesus.' Well may we to-day sing:

"Servant of God, well done,
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last.'

"How does it become us to magnify the grace of God in the life and death of our beloved brother! to express our thankfulness for that heavenly mercy that called him to early repentance; that grace that inspired his more mature vows of devotion to the service of our heavenly Father; that grace that enabled him to renounce all worldly wisdom for that wisdom which is of God; and that grace which crowned his long and eventful life, giving promises of a glorious immortality. The manner of his death is also encouraging to us who have been left to sorrow for his loss, leaving the scene of his labor and conflict so peacefully, and entering into the reward that Christ has promised to those who live up to his commandments, and die in peace with God and man.

"Lastly, as in the case of Stephen: 'devout men carried him to his burial, making great lamentation over him.' A Christian burial! O how unlike a heathen funeral; how unlike the warrior's, with all its pomp and vanity; how unlike the funeral obsequies of the statesman. 'Devout men carrying Stephen to his burial,' without pomp and display; with all the simplicity of the Christian services, and using the occasion as a means of refreshing their own resolves to serve God with all their hearts, and as an incentive to others to imitate the Christian virtues of him over whom they made lamentation.'

"We have here assembled to carry our deceased brother to the grave, 'devoutly lamenting' our loss. O how peculiar are the Christian funeral rites! for in the hour of this solemn service we can also rejoice in the confident belief that the spirit of our brother has gone to the bosom of his heavenly Father, and has been welcomed to the throne of grace. We believe that God will reanimate him, that he will be rewarded for his faithfulness on earth, and that he will glorify and magnify God forever. O let us look forward to the time when we will be enabled to join him in mansions of heavenly bliss; and while we mourn with those afflicted ones of his immediate household, yet we rejoice as Christians in the hope of a renewal of those ties which have been severed on earth to be cemented in heaven for all eternity. May the blessing of God be upon his family; may the glory of God soothe and comfort them in this their hour of earthly sorrow; and may we all follow him as he followed Christ, and live with him and die with him, through the merits of our blessed Savior."

The Rev. Dr. Fuller then pronounced the benediction, and arrangements were made for the re-forming of the funeral procession.

The remains having been again removed to the hearse, and the procession ready for moving, they proceeded by Baltimore street to the Mount Olivet Cemetery, where the interment took place, the deceased being interred in the family lot. The exercises at the cemetery consisted in reading of the burial service, by Bishop Scott, commencing,

"I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

The choir of the Church then sang the following hymn from the pen of Miss Georgiana A. Hulse:

"Home at last! Home at last!
From an earthly shore,
For O! I've join'd the ransom'd ones
Who pass'd on long before.
Here each tear is wiped away
By God the Holy One;
There's naught but songs of praise and joy
Round the eternal throne.

"The pure in heart, the pure in heart,
Robed in spotless white
Are here with starry crowns of joy,
All gloriously bright.
And some I've loved so long ago,
Who left me sad and lone,
Within our Father's house
Safe at home, safe at home.

"Safe at home! safe at home!
O! let the echo go,
To soothe the hearts that mourn me yet,
In that first house below.
For His dear arms are round me now
Who was for sinners slain;
Through him I've won my life,
For me to die was gain.

"Safe at home! safe at home!
From an earthly shore,
I'll bless and praise Him, O, my God!
Forever, evermore."

In addition to those who proceeded in the funeral train, which extended nearly a mile, were large numbers who proceeded there in private carriages, anxious to be present on the solemn occasion.

The spot in which the remains of the departed rest, is near the graves of those eminent servants of God and the Church, Bishop Asbury, George, and Emory.

LAUNCH OF THE LEVIATHAN.

The steamship Leviathan was successfully floated in the Thames, on Sunday, the 31st of January. Arrangements had been perfected to complete the launch on the day previous, but the prevalence of a heavy gale rendered a postponement imperative, and as Sunday proved most auspicious, it was determined to proceed with the operations, rather than encounter the risk which a further lengthened delay would have entailed. The final floating of the great ship was effected with perfect ease, and no accident of any kind occurred, although the river was literally covered with boats full of people, and the timbers forming the cradles, which had been kept down by the weight of the vessel, ascended with great force some twenty or thirty feet above the surface of the water. The scene was a brilliant one, and the enthusiasm of the multitude who witnessed the launch was manifested in loud and continued cheering.

The Leviathan was towed by four powerful tug boats to her moorings opposite Deptford, where she will remain until her internal arrangements are completed.

The mammoth steamer—perhaps the most stupendous combination of skill, enterprise and capital of an age replete with wonders—is at last afloat on the element over which she is destined to reign supreme, until eclipsed by some more daring conception of scientific and constructive genius. Mr. Brunel, the engineer who designed this splendid creation of naval architecture, is the same favored child of science who projected the "Great Western," the first large steamer that ever successfully crossed the Atlantic. He may be termed the father of ocean steam navigation, and he is now quite as confident that the croakings of jealousy and incredulity will be silenced by the success of the "Leviathan," as he was that the former monument of his genius would confound the calculations of all scientific men.

As it is probable that the "Leviathan"—the latest as well as greatest wonder of the world—will visit the United States, on a trial trip, in the course of a few months, a cursory glance at her proportions, and at the principles involved in her construction, may not be out of place.

The imagination is staggered by the mere effort to form a conception of the huge hulk of a vessel, 700 feet long, 83 broad, and 60 in height, measuring 27,000 tons burthen, and with 12,000 tons of iron employed in her construction. A more definite idea will be entertained of her size, if we state that a walk round her decks will afford a promenade of more than a quarter of a mile. She is six times the size of the largest line-of-battle ships; alongside of her, all the "Adriatics" the "Ningaras" and the "Pennsylvanias," would appear a mere canoes. Noah's Ark alone could be compared to her in size. She will be able to carry 5000 passengers and 17,500 tons of cargo, and Mr. Brunel is confident that she may, by the combined use of the screw and side wheel, be propelled across the Atlantic at the minimum rate of 18 miles an hour. By a singular combination of ribs and webs, she is made nearly as strong as if she were one single block of iron. She is double-planked throughout—being, in fact, a ship within a ship—the inner skin three-quarters of an inch thick, and the outer one an inch. In this manner all danger is obviated of her foundering or being broken in two by the power of the waves. This latter question has been satisfactorily settled by the immense strain to which she was subjected on the cradles while being launched—greater than any she will ever encounter on the briny deep.

There is no principle in naval architecture more generally recognized than that length and size are necessary to the attainment of speed. George Steers, the great American ship-builder, frequently remarked that with length and power he could construct a vessel to cross the Atlantic in six days. As a necessary consequence of the lengthening of the keel and of the increased power of the machinery, the time of crossing the Atlantic has been reduced from sixteen or eighteen days to nine or ten by the Cunard and Collins steamers.—Brunel, acting upon this great principle, developing it to its fullest extent by his admirable skill, is confident that the Leviathan will make the passage between England and America in less than seven days. This would truly be traveling on the wings of the wind, and we imagine that there are few who would not prefer such a floating palace, resembling a well-conducted hotel, to the comparatively slow and inconvenient steamers now running from New York and Boston.

But the most important question to be determined by the "Leviathan," and one peculiarly interesting to the South, is the possibility of carrying bulky freight by steam, at remunerative prices across the Atlantic. Hitherto this has been deemed impossible, owing to the immense quantity of fuel required to obtain speed. The Collins steamers, though liberally supported by Government, and nearly all other American trans-atlantic steamers, have proved disastrous failures, because they are not capable of carrying a sufficient quantity of freight. It is calculated that with the present size of ocean steamers, at least one ton of coal is required to propel one ton of freight across the Atlantic.—Owing to the immense carrying capacity of the "Leviathan," and to the comparatively small quantity of fuel consumed by her, it is supposed that she will convey ten tons of freight across the Atlantic with every single ton of coal.

Should this calculation prove correct, it is no exaggeration to say that the Leviathan will compete successfully with sailing vessels in the transportation of freight, and that iron and steam will, in a few years, supplant wood and canvas in the carrying trade between the two hemispheres.

There are but few ports in the United States capable of receiving such an immense vessel, drawing nearly thirty feet water. The Chesapeake Bay is probably the only one where sufficient depth of water can be combined with a probability of securing freight in such abundance as to fill her. A company is now being organized in Virginia for the purpose of establishing direct trade between some port in the Chesapeake Bay and Milford Haven in England, and, although the Leviathan was originally intended for the Australian trade, some hopes are entertained of securing her as the pioneer of the line.

TELEGRAPH.

LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE.

Baton Rouge, March 3.—A bill passed the House, authorizing a company, already organized, to import twenty-five hundred free blacks from the coast of Africa, to be indentured for not less than fifteen years. Yeas 46; nays 21.

BURNING OF THE ELIZA BATTLE.

Mobile, March 3.—The steamer Eliza Battle was burnt at Kemp's Landing, near Demopolis, at 2 o'clock, on Monday morning.

Thirty-nine lives were lost, many having been frozen in the water.

Among the lost we find the name of Rev. Mr. Newman of Louisville.

The cargo of the boat, consisting of twelve hundred bales of cotton, is totally destroyed.

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

The steamship Philadelphia, which arrived at an early hour Tuesday, brought the California mails with dates from San Francisco to the 5th February. The main topics of news for the fortnight are the proceedings of the State Legislature, a multitude of suicides and bloody affrays, and a severe storm. We extract from the summary of the Alta California:

The summary of city news for the past fortnight will contain little else than the account of a succession of suicides and suicidal attempts. A perfect mania for self-destruction seems to have taken hold of the community; no less than thirteen suicides and attempts at suicide have occurred since the 20th ultimo.

A large amount of land has been finally confirmed to the Catholic Church. These are the mission buildings, with their lots, gardens, and cemeteries, at San Diego and San Luis Rey, San Fernando, San Juan Capistrano, San Gabriel, San Buenaventura, Santa Barbara, Santo Inez, La Purissima, San Luis Obispo, San Miguel, San Antonio La Soledad, Carmel, San Juan Baptista, Santa Clara, San Jose, San Francisco, San Rafael, and Sonora. Besides these church houses and lots, there is a rancho of 20,000 acres in Santa Barbara county, and another of 4438 in San Luis Obispo county.

BRAZIL AND THE UNITED STATES.

The call that has been made, by a Massachusetts Senator on the President for a copy of his instructions to our new Minister to Don Pedro's court may be explained by the following:

On the 6th of December last, Mr. Meade, who, as everybody knows, is the newly appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of Brazil, had an interview with the Emperor in which he presented his credentials. In the presentation speech of that gentleman he hinted that in the identity of the domestic institutions of Brazil and the United States were to be found a potent reason why the two nations should be brought into an association of sympathy and good understanding—an association much closer than has hitherto existed. He held the following language:

"Their application, in many respects, in their political constitutional organization, is well calculated to encourage political and social sympathies primative of mutual benefits and future commercial progress, while an institution common to both countries, fixed and deeply rooted in their soil, (with many hostile prejudices to encounter from without,) does now establish an affinity between these, and will insure, for mutual defense, a unity of action and feeling that will prove invincible in the future."

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of 30, says:

The week opened with a fair degree of activity in our leading staples, Cotton, Sugar and Molasses, with improved prices within the last day or two for the first and last named articles. Cotton having been for the moment favorably influenced by later European advices, though the improvement was lost again in the business of yesterday. In most articles of Western Produce the transactions have been to but a moderate extent, without material change in prices.

On Sunday morning the America's advices, three days later, were before the public, reporting an active Cotton market at Liverpool, with sales for the week of 77,000 bales, of which 10,500 bales were taken on speculation and 7500 for export, and an advance of fully a ¼d is reported to all qualities, the quotations being 7¼d for Fair Orleans and 7¼d for Middling ditto. On Friday the sales reached 15,000 bales, of which 7500 bales were taken on speculation, and the market closed buoyant, with a total stock in part of 285,000 bales, of which 148,000 bales were American. The advices from Manchester were favorable and the money market was easier, the Bank rate of interest having been reduced to 3 per cent. Consols for money closed at 96 a 96¼ and the bullion in the Bank of England had increased £180,000.

COTTON—Arrived since the 26th ult., of Louisiana and Mississippi 29,199 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 10,185, Arkansas 1872, Mobile 2334, Florida 769, Texas 330; together 44,079 bales. Cleared since the 26th ult. for Liverpool 22,119 bales, Havre (including cargo of ship James Harvey, omitted in our last) 4852, Marseilles 741, Antwerp 1224, Bremen 987, Vera Cruz 90; together 30,013 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 21 inst. 408,373 bales.

Our last report closed upon a rather quiet market, but on Saturday the demand was resumed with a fair degree activity and resulted in sales of about 11,500 bales. On Monday an advance of an ⅛ a ¼c was realized in the sales which took place, and which amounted to about 10,500 bales. The unwillingness or inability of buyers (limited being considered) to meet the demands of holders was still more marked yesterday, and but a comparatively limited number came forward; leaving the market exceedingly dull and unsettled, the few sales made, and which barely amounted to some 5000 bales, indicating great irregularity and a falling back of prices to about the position which they held prior to receipt of the American advices. The sales of the three days sum up 27,000 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,098,943 bales, against 1,320,340 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 382,469 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year there is a decrease to Great Britain of 22,872 bales, to France of 35,191, and to other foreign ports of 67,486 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 a 7	Middling	11 a 11¼
Ordinary	8 a 8¼	Good Middling	11⅝ a 12
Good Ordinary	9¼ a 9⅝	Middling Fair	11¾ a —
Low Middling	10¼ a 10⅝	Fair	nominal

SUGAR—Louisiana.—The better qualities have continued in good request at rather firm prices, while the lower grades, being more abundant and less called for, have given way an ⅛ a ¼ cent. The sales of the three days sum up about 4000 hhds, taken for the North, the West, etc., and we now quote as follows.

Inferior and Refining	2¾ a 3¾
Common to Good Common	4 a 4¾
Fair to Fully Fair	5 a 5¾
Prime to Choice	5¾ a 6¾
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 a 9

MOLASSES—Sales of 1200 bbls at 24 a 27c for Fermenting to Good, and 28 a 30 for Primo to Choice, and 400 half bbls mostly at 35c per gallon.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. WRIGHT & COMPANY'S
PATENT MEDICINES OF GENUINE AND POPULAR
FAMILY MEDICINES,
Which they offer to supply Druggists and Dealers at Proprietors' lowest wholesale prices.
Genuine Depot at Special Agency, 21 and 141 Chartres st. N. Orleans.

Vermifuges.—Wistar's Cherry Balsam, Swaim's, Perry's Dead Shot, McLane's, Jayne's Tonic, Korl's, B. A. Fahrenstock's, Swayne's.

Balsams and Cough Remedies.—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, Hall's Balsam of Liverwort, Swaim's Panacea, Sanford's Liverwort and Tar, Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, New England Cough Syrup, Hershbonner's Expectorant, Hall's Balsam, Swayne's Balsam of Wild Cherry, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Taylor's Balsam of Liverwort, Jayne's Expectorant, White's Mountain Tea, Roger's Liverwort and Tar, Rose, Carroll's Liverwort, Stabler's Cherry Expectorant, London's Indian Pills, Dr. Rose's ditto, Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy, J. H. Schaffer's Olive Tar.

Sarsaparillas—Dr. John Hill's, S. P. Townsend's, Sands's, Old Jacob Townsend's, Carpenter's, Wynkoop's, Seaker's, Graffenberg's, Brandt's, Lyman's Yellow Dock.

Plasters—Wells' Strengthening, Ewen's ditto, Jew David or Hebrew, Hunter's, Knapp's Indian, Alcock's Porous, Griffith's Adhesive, Holloway's Arabic.

Liniments—Mexican Mustang, Farrell's Arabian, Butler's Nerve and Bone, Clark's Depyle, Tobin's Venetian, Dewes's Nerve and Bone, Kendagor's, Dr. Bennett's, Rarilon's Horse, Merchant's Carding, Cheroker, Jaynes', McLean's, Volcanic Oil, Bragg's Arabic.

Ague Remedies, &c.—Dr. good's India Cholagogue, Rowand's Tonic, Mixture, Smith's Tonic Syrup, Wynkoop's Tonic, Speed's Febrifuge, Vegetable Febrifuge.

Lozenges—Thomas's Cough and Worm, Bryan's Pulmonic Wafer, Lowell's ditto.

Hair Preparations—Lovell's Wahnata or Hair Gloss, Barry's Tricopherous, Lyon's Kathairon, Bayle's Hyperion Fluid, Van Deusen's Walnut, Jarnot's Hair Tonic, Pinaud's Hair Invigorator, Lou on's Oriental Hair Tint, Hazel's San Toi-let, Oldridge's Balm of Columbia, Burnett's Cocoaine, Rodway's Carcassian Balm.

Panaceas—Swaim's, Hoofe's, Collin's Indian Vegetable, Longley's Ora or Wonderful.

Ointments and Salves—Daily's Magical Pain Extractor, McAllister's All Healing, Professor Holloway's Ointment, Brook's Magic Salve, Pryne's Pile, Gray's, Harrison's Little Trader, Magnetic, Dodson's, Lyon's Sanative and Arabian Balsam, Swayne's Ointment, Chinese Specific Vermifuge, Poland Oak's Comfort, Anderson's, Covell's Itch ointment, Wistar's Canada Balsam, Buchan's Gilbert's Anti-Bilious, Hooper's, Hewlett's, Lelly's Pills, Ingalls by's Tetterine, Wynkoop's Tetterine, Lagona's, Rodway's Regulators, Read's Railroad, Lelly's Female, Loudon's Indian Sanative an Prague, Rodway's Holstead's And Dyspepsia, Gordon's, Swayne's Sugar Coated Sarsaparilla and Tar.

Also, McLean's Strengthening Cordial, and every description of Miscellaneous Medicines known to the trade.

mar 6-ly

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
Office for the present, 56 Third street, near City Hotel.

References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Keitt, " " " " " Hon. Judge H. S. District Court; Rev. J. C. Keener, D. D., Charleston, S. C.; Rev. J. B. McFerrin, D. D., Nashville, Tenn.; Rev. J. C. Keener, D. D., Charleston, S. C.; Rev. W. M. Wightman, D. D., Oglethorpe, Ga.; Rev. H. N. McTyeire

POETRY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

LINES.

How sweet to feel in sorrow's hour—
To feel in trouble's darkest day,
There is some high, omniscient power
To guide us through this life away—

Away to that sweet home above,
Where all is bright, and fair and pure,
Where naught is felt but heavenly love,
And rest from all we here endure.

No anguish there may wring the heart;
No clouds of darkness shade the brow;
But angels pure, their bliss impart,
And streams of joy forever flow.

Oh! for that bliss the spirit sighs,
While prisoned in its earthly clay:
Upward we cast our wistful eyes,
And long for wings to soar away.

Feb. 18, 1858. S.

OBITUARIES.

DIED—At Duck Hill, Carroll county, Miss., on the morning of the 9th instant, Mrs. PENELOPE P. BINFORD, wife of Captain John A. Binford.

The deceased was born in North Carolina, October 24, 1815, and married to Capt. B. November, 30, 1830. This excellent lady being widely and favorably known, the intelligence of her death will strike sorrow to many warmly devoted hearts.

It is not within the compass of an obituary notice to recount her many domestic and social virtues. Indeed, it is rare to find so many amiable qualities of mind and heart blended in one character. In all the relations of social and domestic life she stood eminent for those traits that ennoble and ornament a lady. She was a kind and benevolent neighbor, a devoted wife and a fond mother.

Mrs. Binford was endowed, in no ordinary degree, with a strong practical intellect—was well informed on subjects of general interest; and mingling with these endowments the genial warmth of a kind and generous nature; she was a blessing to her community, as idolized guide for her children, and the life of her hospitable home. But more than all, she loved the walks of unobtrusive piety. She had been for a number of years a member of the Methodist Church; and though prevented of late by the condition of her health, from attending uniformly on the public means of grace, yet her well-worn Bible and frequent closet testify the intensity with which her heart sought the higher pleasures of communion with God.

When the hour of death approached, she met the stern call with calmness and resignation, assuring her husband and children that although she desired to live for their sake, yet for her own she was ready to depart.

Her funeral was attended by a numerous throng of weeping friends. Under the smile of the Sabbath sun, on the 7th instant we laid her remains in the grave—to have, we trust, "a part in the first resurrection." May God strengthen and abundantly bless the deeply afflicted family.

S. W. MOORE.

Grenada, Miss., Feb. 8, 1858.

PETER MCARTHUR was a native of North Carolina, and was born Sept. 5, 1790, and died Jan. 1, 1858. He united with the M. E. Church in the year 1834, under the ministry of brothers Mullins and Ramsey. Bro. McArthur was suddenly taken from our midst and did not make any statement in reference to his future prospects during his last illness; but we are not without hope. His change since 1834, in connection with his religious course afterwards up to the day of his death, is the predicate of our hope that he rests with the blest.

H. B. FARISH.

The Charleston and Richmond Advocates will please copy.

DIED—Near Greenville, Ala., Dec. 18, 1857, JOSEPHINE EDWOOD, aged 17 years. She was the third child of W. W. and Sarah M. Reddoch.

Gifted with an intellect of more than ordinary capacity, she bade fair, by her strict attention to study, to excel in science and literature. Her early death, when budding into womanhood with such promise, has thrown the mantle of sorrow over her entire acquaintance. She received the sad intelligence that she must die with some emotion, which, however, did not appear to arise from any fear of her acceptance through the Beloved, but rather because she earnestly desired a brighter manifestation of the same. She had joined the M. E. Church while quite young, and her deportment had been at all times in consonance with her profession. God answered her prayers for dying grace, by sending the Holy Comforter to sustain her. Filled with joy, she conversed with her friends with calmness. Indeed she appeared to be at the portals of heaven, and yet permitted to speak of the wonders of redeeming grace, e'er she left.

"Say, why should friendship grieve for those Who safe arrive on Canaan's shore?
Released from all their mortal woes,
They are not lost—but gone before.
To Zion's peaceful courts above
In faith triumphant may we soar,
Embracing in the arms of love,
The friends not lost—but gone before." J. W.

DIED—At Monticello, Ala., 29th of Nov., 1857, HENRY CARY, son of Dr. Wm. and Matilda Cary, aged 12 years. More than a year before his death he sought and obtained acceptance with God, through a crucified Savior. His consistent and pious life after this period, with his calm and peaceful death, give abundant evidence of the genuineness of the work.

When informed that he must die, it did not alarm him. His reply was: "I am not afraid to die—I shall go to heaven." During the last night of his illness he joined in singing, and was frequently heard to whisper, "Blessed Savior," "Sweet Heaven." Just before expiring, he said to his father, who had been praying by his bed, "I shall soon be in heaven." A few moments passed, and he slept in Jesus.

DIED—In Washington county, Miss., on Deer Creek, Jan. 30, 1858, of inflammation of the brain, JOSEPH SCOTT, infant son of H. R. and Lucy Hampton, aged 1 year, 7 months and 20 days.

"The book of Providence is a lesson book," and the [illegible] we learn in the death of our loved ones are heart lessons—learned in sorrow, bitterness and tears. But in the loss of our children sorrow is illuminated and cheered by hope; our bitterness is sweetened by the reflection that it was the voice of Jesus that called them to his bosom; and through our tears we may see the arching brow that promises a blessed reunion with our little Josephs in a state undisturbed by tears or parting or death.

"I am weary of loving what passes away—
The sweetest and dearest, alas, may not stay!
I long for that land where those partings are o'er,
And death and the tomb can divide hearts no more.

"I am weary, my Savior, of grieving thy love;
O when shall I rest in thy presence above!
I am weary—but O! let me never repine
While thy word, and thy love, and thy promise are mine."

Greenville, Miss. W. B. H.

DIED—In Greensboro, Ala., Jan. 12, 1858, Mrs. ELIZA JANE EVANS, consort of R. H. F. Evans, aged about 24 years. Mrs Evans joined the Methodist Church about five years since, and lived in the communion of said Church until her death. During her sickness I visited her, and found at several visits her religious experience to be rather wavering. At my last visit, however, which was two or three days previous to her death, I found her to be resigned and joyful. She leaves to mourn her death a husband and one child. May God keep unto eternal life the child, a dying mother's gift to the Lord. W. B.

DIED—In Yazoo county, Miss., October 13, 1857, Mrs. MARY SCOTT, in the 70th year of her age. She had been a member of the Methodist E. Church for 40 years, and professed to enjoy religion for more than 36. D. M. W.

DIED—In Gilmer, Texas, Dec. 5, in the 26th year of her age, Mrs. ELLEN E., wife of Dr. Henry Ford, and daughter of Mrs. Ellen Forster, of Vicksburg. She was a faithful and consistent member of the M. E. Church. During her affliction she manifested more christian fortitude and patience than I ever witnessed. A FRIEND.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

THE GOLDEN COIN;

OR, THE LITTLE STREET BEGGAR.

It was the morning of a New Year, that had just set in, bright, golden, and beautiful. The sun glistened like jeweled raiment in the cloudless sky. The chiming of the silvery sounds of the bells struck joyful upon the listener, in every street. The air was cold, though not piercing; bracing, though not biting; just cold enough, in truth, to diffuse life and elasticity into every one that moved.

There was a little girl—a child of poverty, on that New Year's morning—walking in the streets with the gay crowd that swept past her. Her little feet had grown so numb, uncased only in thin shoes, and those badly worn, that she could but with difficulty move one before the other. Her cheeks shook at every step she took, and her lips looked truly purple. Alas! poor Elsie Gray! She was a little beggar!

Just like the old year was the new year to her. Just like the last year's wants, and last year's sufferings, were the wants and sufferings of this. The change of the year brought no change of her condition with it. She was poor, her mother was a widow and an invalid, and the child was a poor beggar! In the old and cheerless room gloomed no bright fires of anniversary. No evergreens, no wreaths, no flowers, save a few old withered ones, decked the time stained walls. There was no sound of merry voices within the door, to say to widow Gray: "A happy New Year to you, Mrs. Gray." Heaven seemed to have walled her and her abode out from the happiness that was all the world's on this festive day of the year. It had provided, to all appearance, no congratulations, no laughter, no gifts, no flowers for them. Why? Were they outcasts? Had they outraged their claim on the wide world's charity? Had they voluntarily shut themselves out from the sunlight of living creatures around them? Mrs. Gray was poor!

Little Elsie stopped at times, and breathed her hot breath upon her blue and benumbed fingers, and stamped her tiny feet in their casements with all the force left in them, and then big tears stood trembling in her large blue eyes for a moment, and rolled slowly down her purple cheeks as if they would freeze to them. She had left her mother in bed, sick, exhausted, and famishing! What wonder that she cried, even though those hot tears only dripped on the cold pavement. They might as well fall there as elsewhere; the many human hearts that passed her were full as icy and hardened.

She would have turned back to go home, had she not thought again of her poor mother; and she went on, though where to go she knew not. She was to become a street beggar.—Where should street beggars go? What streets are laid out, and named and numbered from them? Surely if not home, then where should they go? It was this thought that brought those crystal tears, that started those deep and irrepressible sobs that checked her instant utterance.

A little boy—a bright looking fellow—chanced to pass her as she walked and wept and sobbed. He caught the glitter of those tears in the sunshine, and the sight smote his heart. He knew not what want and suffering were. He had never known them himself—never once heard of them—know not what a real beggar was. He stopped suddenly before Elsie, and asked the cause of the tears. She could make no reply, her heart was too full.

"Has anybody hurt you?" asked the feeling little fellow.

She shook her head.

"Have you lost your way?" he persisted.

"No," answered the child.

"What is the matter, then?" he asked.

"Mother is poor and sick, and I am cold and hungry. We have nothing to eat. Our room is quite cold, and there is no wood for us. O! you do not know all."

"But I will," replied the manly boy.

"Where do you live?"

"Will you go with me?" asked Elsie, her face brightening.

"Yes, let me go with you," said he; "show me the way."

Through street, lane and alley she guided him. They reached the door of the hovel.—The cold breath of the wind whistled in the cracks and crevices and keyholes before them, as if inviting them in. A sick woman feebly raised her head from the pillow, and gave her a sweet smile. "Elsie, have you come?" she faintly said.

"Yes, mother," answered the child, "and I have brought this boy with me. I do not know who he is, but he said he wanted to come and see where we live. Did I do wrong to bring him, mother?"

"No, my child," said the mother. "If he knows how to pity you from his little heart; but he cannot pity me yet; he is not old enough."

The bright-faced, sunny-hearted boy gazed in astonishment upon mother and child. The scene was new to him. He wondered if this was what they called poverty. His eyes looked sadly upon the wasting mother, but they glittered with wonder when turned toward Elsie. Suddenly they were filled with tears. The want and woe, the barrenness, the desolation, were all too much for him. He shuddered at the cold, uncovered floor. He gazed mournfully into the fireplace. His eyes wandered wonderingly over the naked walls, looking so uninviting and cheerless. Putting his hand in his pocket, he grasped the coin that his mother had that very morning given him, and drew it forth. "You may have that," said he, holding it out to the child.

"O, you are too good! You are too generous, I fear!" as if she ought not to take it from him.

"Mother will give me another if I want," said he. "Take it—take it—you shall take it!" and he was instantly gone.

It was a gold coin of the value of five dollars!

Mother and child wept together. Then they talked of the good boy whose heart had opened for them on this New Year's Day. Then they let their fancies run and grow wild, and revel as they chose. They looked at the glittering piece. There was bread, and fuel, and clothing, and every comfort in its depths. Now they saw, within its rim, pictures of delight and joy; visions of long rooms, all wreathed and decorated with visions of evergreens and flowers; visions of smiling faces and happy children; sounds of merry voices, and the chiming music of bells; the accent of innocent tongues, and laugh of gladsome hearts.

Ah! what a philosopher's stone was that coin! How it turned everything first into gold, and then into happiness! How it grouped around kind and cheerful friends, and filled their ears with kind voices! How it garlanded all hours of that day with evergreens and full blown roses! How it spread them a laden table, and crowded it with merry guests! and those guests, too, all satisfied and happy! Oh, what bright rays shown forth from that trifling coin of gold! Could it have been so bright in child's or man's dark pocket? No; else it had before then burnt its way through, and lent its radiance to others. Could it have shown with such visions in the rich man's hands? No; else his avarice would have vanished at once, and his heart would have flowed with generosity. No, no; it was only to the widow and her child that it wore such a sheen, and emitted such brilliant rays, and revealed such sweet and welcome visions! Only for such as they.

The night returned this angel boy to the bleak house, filled with happiness, and lighted with joy; but he was not alone—his mother was with him. Blessed boy! He had passed the whole of New Year's Day in making others happy. And how much happier was he himself? How his little heart warmed and glowed to see that little child uncover the basket he had brought with him, and take out, one by one, the gifts that were stowed there; and how overjoyed was he to see his mother offer the sick woman work and a new home, and to see her suddenly strong and almost well, under the influence of kind offices. He wondered if their happiness could be possibly as deep as his own—if their New Year was as bright to them as it was to him. He knew not how any one could be happier than he was at that moment.

Years have rolled away into the silent past. That little girl—Elsie Gray—is a lady. Not a lady only in name, but one in deed, in heart and conduct. She dwells in a suburban cottage, and her husband is wholly devoted to her.—The husband is no other than the generous boy who, on the New Year's festival, accosted her so tenderly in the street, and went home with her. Her poor mother sleeps quietly in the churchyard; yet she lived to know that God had provided for her child. She died resigned and happy.—Provincial Wesleyan.

LOOK CHEERFUL.

A cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather. To make a sick man think he is dying, all that is necessary is to look half dead yourself. Hope and despair are as catching as cutaneous compliants. Always endeavor to feel sunshiny, especially in a sick room, and look so too.

THE FAMILY.—Your own family should be a picture of what you wish other families to be.

PROFESSIONAL.

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 18 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Noyades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 8-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Sores, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
LEONARD FASH. F. B. LAUHAM.
LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
46 POYDRAS STREET, NEW ORLEANS
Oct 24.

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y.

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. E. U. PAYNE.
Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 46 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. U. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM. H. DAMERON
Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 41 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

E. L. WALKER, AGT. C. HUTCHINSON
New Orleans. Caddo Parish, La.
Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 87 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to go out. There are no IFS nor ANDS, humors nor bad blood I nothing some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen sour, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been afflicted for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone, you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by dec5 1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counselor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and transy other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.

☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

E. H. READ. J. HOBART HEDGES.
READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.
DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street between Camp and St. Charles streets.

Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society
Keeps constantly on hand all above a stock of plain and elegantly bound
BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,
Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. F. R. CLEGHORN,
Geo. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.
Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $5 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"
No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,
KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.

The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Addresses, REV. F. R. CLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union,"
feb 27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

168 CAMP STREET. 168
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.
ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb 13

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au10

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82 Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—Also—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS,
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & CO.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT.....
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 86 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box, No 388 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Guddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Guddy, Browne & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MOSES OWEN.

DELLS I BELLS II BELLS III. BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells mounted in the most approved and durable manner.

For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal by Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 46 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug26

Parlor and Church Organs, Piano, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Munning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONIONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddard's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Sheet Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
se26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 40 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRROES of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.

PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.

The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,

Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos. 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

VAN BIBBER HOUSE,
CORNER CARONDELET AND POYDRAS STREETS,
NEW ORLEANS.
I HAVE leased the above House, and have newly furnished it throughout, and it is now open for the reception of Regular Boarders and the Traveling Public. With an experience of seventeen years at the business in Louisiana and Texas, I flatter myself that I will share a liberal portion of public patronage.

I will also act as Agent for distant friends for the purchase or sale of any article in this market. HENRY VAN BIBBER. o31-3m

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.

We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.

We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.

We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.

☞ Remember No 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COOKE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29-6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
Jan16-13t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $260,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company,
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $500,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell Job Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Keney, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandize, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.

Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.

Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan1 1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges—Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. o25-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN. A. MONSEMBRE.
F. F. LEWIS, of Baptiste. GEO. G. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
116 Canal st., New Orleans.
e19-1y

SAVE YOUR HORSES.
We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for severe Horns, Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.
J. W. HEWITT
Foreman for American, Harndan's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express.

Gentlemen—I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him.
Respectfully yours, JAMES DORRANCE.

Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.
feb 18 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.
Rev. H. V. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
Professor of Music and Modern Languages
Miss SALLIE J. MCNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. DEROS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURELIA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department
——, Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Purser.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department	——
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Drawing	15 00
Water and Chrompatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.

Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.

Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent. interest will be charged.

Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.

No deduction from fee bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal.—☜

Books, Stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.

Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.

Pupils are required to attend some church once each Sabbath, and to receive a lesson each Monday morning.

All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.

The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 18th of February; the second commences on the 19th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.

The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.

All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE,
THE Trustees of this prosperous Institution take pleasure in announcing that the Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.

It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.

Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.

After the first month, no pupils are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. M. THOMPSON, Secretary J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
jan 23 1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1856. FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. W. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. H. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLCOTT, D. D., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In Collegiate Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.

This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.

Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve mile East of Bayou Sara.

For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

Emory and Henry College,
WASHINGTON COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
THE Spring Session begins on 14th January, and closes on 9th June following. The College charges for five months, including Tuition, Board, Fuel, Washing and Incidentals, will be $71 25. For a catalogue or for other expenses, address
Jan 9-3m E. E. WILEY, Pres't., Emory postoffice, Va.

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institute to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. H. M. Lowe, of the fir

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH—H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 6. WHOLE NUMBER 370.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MARCH 13, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—113 CAMP ST.

"WHOM, NOT HAVING SEEN, WE LOVE."

It is easy to love when eye meets eye,
And the glance reveals the heart,
When the flush on the cheek and the soul bespeak,
And the lips in gladness part;
There's a thrill of bliss in a loving kiss,
And a spell in a kindly tone,
And the spirit hath chains of tenderness
To fetter and bind its own.

But a holier spell and a deeper joy
From a purer fountain flow,
When the soul sends higher its incense fire,
And rests no more below;
When the heart goes up to the gate of heaven,
And bows before the throne,
And striking its harp for sins forgiven,
Calls the Savior all its own.

Though we gaze not now on the lovely brow
That felt for us the thorn;
Though afar from home we pilgrims roam,
And our feet with toil are wora;
Though we never have pressed that pierced hand,
It is stretched our lives above;
And we own his care, in grateful prayer,
"Whom, not having seen, we love."

We have felt him near, for many a year,
When at eve we bent the knee,
That mercy breath, that glorious faith,
Dear Savior, came from thee.
When we stood beside the dying bed,
And watched the loved one go,
In the darkening hour we felt his power,
As it hushed the waves of woe.

And still, as we climb the hills of time,
And the lamps of earth grow dim,
We are hastening on from faith to sight,
We are pressing near to him;
And away from idols of earthly mould,
Enraptured we gaze above,
And long to be where his arms enfold,
"Whom, not having seen, we love."

M. E. M.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[Under this head, we purpose furnishing our readers several numbers on experimental and practical religion, readable and edifying. The autobiography of Rev. Wm. Stevenson was furnished by Rev. J. Pipes. He died last year in Bastrop parish, La.—died a hopeful, happy Christian death. He had been for more than forty years a preacher of the gospel, and was the pioneer who planted the Church in Southern Arkansas and North Louisiana. Let such be had in honor. There is a lesson in such a life.—Ed.]

I was born in South Carolina on the 4th of October, 1768, near a station called Ninety-Six, a frontier not far from the Cherokee line. My parents were brought up in, and belonged to the Presbyterian Church, and I was baptized when an infant by a minister of that order, and brought up in the fear of God. When I was five years old, my mother became uneasy about the salvation of her soul, sought and found peace with God, through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, and joined the Baptist Church. Some of them were warm hearted, shouting Christians, and my mother obtained like precious faith. That class then were looked upon by the old, calm, still-born regulars, as a kind of weak, enthusiastic brethren, but good Christians, and should be borne with in the Church. Among these kind of people I was raised. I frequently heard the Presbyterians preach; but never heard a Methodist until I was twenty years of age. God made my mother a peculiar blessing to me; I had no doubt of her religion. Her faith was a living faith, producing holiness of life. From her walk and conversation I received correct ideas of true religion, which fastened deep and lasting conviction on my heart, before I was eight years of age. I viewed the great God as the creator and preserver of all things in heaven and earth, and from what my mother told me about Him, I believed He was holy, just and good, and that His mercy was over all His works, and that He was not willing that any should perish, but that all men had power given them from him to repent and believe in Jesus Christ and live.

I frequently heard, in my raising, much said in favor of the doctrine of decrees, unconditional election and reprobation; but I never could believe that a God, just and merciful, would ever will, much less decree such great abominations, and even in my boyhood, before I was ten years of age, I seriously doubted any man who said he believed that doctrine; for I then viewed it as blasphemy. No, no, no, thought I; God is too good to do the devil's work for him. Will God furnish the materials, do all the work, find himself, and give the devil half? He owes the devil nothing; and will not work for him to keep him peaceable. Always, when I sinned, I condemned myself, and not God, in any sense. I felt that it would be just in Him to send me to hell for my own faults, for my own sins, which I ungodly had committed. And that God was worthy to be loved and praised for his goodness and mercy, in sparing such a wretch.

Thus I lived many years, sinning and repenting; making solemn covenants to lead a new life, to seek the conversion of my soul; for I believed that I must be converted, I must be born again or lost forever. I often cried to God for mercy, and would for awhile forsake the company of bad young men; but again fall a prey to the snares and follies of youth, except those base crimes called scandalous, such as stealing, perjury, willful lying, or deceiving the weaker vessels in breaking a marriage promise. In my young days, I therefore endeavored to avoid such; but I always viewed myself as unprepared for heaven, and I knew by reading the word of God that I had not religion, for all that had it had the witness in themselves. I believed that regeneration was the work of God's Spirit in the heart, and that the Spirit would always bear witness to his own work. I believed the word of God to be true, and that, if I ever did get converted, I should certainly know it by the witness of the Spirit of God that had done the work in my soul. I had daily the witness of condemnation in my own heart, which made me often cry, "Lord save, or I perish." My life was truly a life of boudage for more than twenty years, knowing my Master's will, but doing it not; while the judgments of God, mixed with mercies, followed me all my days of sin. I will mention a few of them, out of very many, as specimens of God's dealings with me:

When about eight years of age a horse ran away with me, and ran under the branch of a tree which brought my head against the side of the tree, and a dead snag, as large as a man's finger and about five or six inches long run into my right eye. I fell to the ground, but the horse ran on. I soon arose to my feet, and putting my hand up found the snag very fast in the socket of my eye, and the eye, what was left, thrust out on my temple. I took fast hold of the snag with my right hand, but could not move it. I then took hold of it with both hands and brought it out by a quick jerk, like pulling a tooth. I then put my fingers into the socket and pulled out some dead bark and splinters which came off the snag, and pressed my eye back into its place. While in great pain and bleeding freely, I fell on my knees and cried, "Lord, I know if thou wilt, thou canst restore my eye again. Have mercy on me; I will be thine from this time and forever." I then believed God had done this for my disobedience, and felt resolved to disobey him no more. I felt faith that God would have mercy and restore my sight, which was the case, in four months, contrary to the opinions of almost all who saw the wound. Almost all that part of the ball between the sight and my nose was cut away and came out in the healing. The third day, a doctor of great skill, probed it and examined it closely; when my mother asked him if he thought it would ever recover the sight again, he replied, "I do not know, madam; if God please, he will." So thought I; so I think now, that God in mercy did hear prayer.

About two years after, I fell from a ridgepole of a log house. At the raising, I was sitting on a short log, on which the ridgepole was to lie, and while pulling very hard by a rope, in bringing up the ridgepole, the rope broke and the log on which I sat turned over and threw me head foremost. I fell between two of the joists of the upper floor and on one of the sleepers of the lower; yet was able to rise to my feet and climb over the wall to get out, as there was no other passage. It is true I was hurt; but not materially. I was able to ride home about two miles. I was deeply affected in mind, especially in the act of falling headlong. I then felt that my life certainly was at an end, and had no hope after death, but a certain fearful looking for of that death which never dies. In the midst of these despairing thoughts, another thought, quick as lightning, passed through my mind—that God could save me. I cried to him for help, and strange as it may appear, before I reached the ground, falling amongst the sleepers, I had a little faith, as a grain of mustard seed, that God would save me, and so he did; and from that time to this, I am assured it was a providential interposition. O my soul, love thou the Lord. Love thou the Lord, for thou hast been plucked as a brand from the burning.

Shortly after this I rode ten miles to hear a new kind of a preacher called a Methodist; and as I never had heard one of that order I was desirous to see the man and hear what he had to say. There was a large congregation. Many, like myself, came to hear the stranger. He was a godly looking man, having a solemnity about him which commanded attention; he preached under the trees, in the open air, as the house was too small; his text was, "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch and is withered and men gather them into the fire and they are burned." I heard with attention, found no fault with the man or with the doctrines. I viewed myself as a dry branch or as one out of Christ; and of course, I must be burned or converted, and become a faithful branch of Christ, the true vine. As I returned home to my father's house, I rode with a young man, an old friend and companion in sin and folly. He asked me what I thought of the preaching. I said that man was a good preacher. "Yes," said he, "and I thought when he was preaching about those withered, dead branches being gathered and burned, that you and I would be amongst them." I said I hoped not; we must turn and seek religion. "There is no hope for us; I know that we shall both go to hell." I told him God was good and merciful, and if we would turn from all our sins and seek, we should find mercy and be saved. He said he had no hope at all that he should ever be any better than he was; and that he knew he should go to hell at last, and I was sure to go with him. I was terrified at his conversation, and tried to remove his fear and unbelief; but all in vain. I saw we were both in the broad road—he through despair and I in presumption—two dreadful chains, in which Satan leads his captives. May God help his servants, the preachers, to break them both by pointing out the remedy. The same evening, when I returned to home, I met an old uncle, the Rev. James Fowler, a Baptist preacher, a man of eminence in that Church. I was glad to see him, as he was a friend and always showed me kindness. He asked me if I had been to hear a Methodist preach, that day. I had. Well, where was his text? The gospel of St. John, 15th chapter 6th verse. I repeated the text. How did he preach on that text? I told him, as well as I could. He said that was a strange thing to him, that, after a man was made a living branch in Christ he could wither, be cut off and be burned. But, said he, all the Methodists hold that doctrine. His observations on that text surprised me much, as I believed him to be a man of strong mind and well read; for I could not see what other doctrine could, with any degree of consistency, be advanced from the text, taking it in connection with the context and the whole chapter, which is exceedingly plain. I thought much, and more and more, of the great danger of prejudice, prepossession, and of preferring men's creeds and notions to the plain written word of God. Let creeds be reasonable, scriptural, and always leading the minds of men to a holy obedience to God and his law, and no good man will fall out with them; but when they act as opiates to keep us easy in our sins they are of the devil. I think the above preacher's name was Ellis. The second Methodist preacher I heard was Coleman Carlisle—perhaps a year after. His text was, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation." He was truly a son of thunder. I had heard many preachers, of other orders, before him, and had felt very serious under some of them; but I never had such feelings under preaching as I had that day. He first pointed out the great salvation; secondly, the neglecters of that salvation; thirdly, he showed, in a clear and most terrible light, what the neglectors were not to escape; and while on this last head, it appeared to me that the power of God filled the whole house, which was large and overflowing with men and women. A cry was heard, through the whole house for mercy, except in the gallery, where all the young men had taken seats, where I was also. But, if all felt as I did, it was terrible; for I plainly saw under the last head, just what I believe every sinner will feel, when the trumpet shall sound. This indeed was a nail in a sure place, which never left me altogether.

In secret I often cried, "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death." When I would do good evil was present with me. I wanted religion on easy terms; the cross was too heavy. I refused it on God's terms, waited for a more convenient season and thus traveled on for years, a poor wretched condemned sinner; confessing judgment but taking every stay. I read God's word often, in which I plainly saw his ways to man. I saw that he was not willing that any should perish, but that all might repent and live.

I had a great desire to unite with God's people, so that I might live with them.—But I thought it would be one of the greatest sins I could commit, to join the Church without first having religion. This was a great error among the Baptist people where I lived and among whom I was raised; and this doctrine I drank so deeply it was a miracle of God's goodness that I was not ruined for ever; for had I had an opportunity of knowing the people called Methodists and been admitted on trial as a seeker and attended prayer and class meeting, I should have had religion many years before I obtained it. O, what a pity it is to see professors and teachers slutting the door against the seekers and children; the young lambs of the flock for whom Christ died, driving them from the fold to live in the open fields, there to await; out of the pales of the Church and God's appointed means of grace, until they get religion. May God have mercy upon poor little children and seekers that are thus neglected and driven from the fold of Christ, and told that they are not fit to come in until they can give a Christian's experience.—God will require the blood of those souls at their hands. I could not be admitted into the Church and there brought up in the fear of God, and of course I must remain out among the wicked, who were to be my only comrades and associates, and who never failed to lead my poor weak soul away from God. When I look back upon my past life, before I found favor with God, I clearly see why it was that I remained out of Christ so long. It was for want of help. Had I been admitted to the Church and taught, as children should always be, I would doubtless have been a happy, pious youth at least twenty years before I escaped from the snare of the devil. O what a loss I have felt, at twenty years, through false instructions. Thus I was led captive by the devil at his will, through that great and youth-destroying doctrine, that you must not come into Christ's Church until you have a Christian experience, you must not go into the school of Christ until you are a good scholar. The young trees must not be planted in the orchard until they bear good fruit. All such doctrines are destructive in the Church and out of the Church. They bind men, women and children fast in chains and keep them back from their rightful Sovereign and Savior. O, when will the whole Church of God wake up to a just sense of the salvation of their children! Thanks be to God, there is much doing and more will yet be done to save the children as they grow up. O, that parents, preachers and teachers would unite every where to pray, preach, exhort and teach children the way to Jesus their Savior who died for them.

I hope the reader will forgive me for detaining him so long about children and youths, when I tell him I was a child myself and recollect the blessings of some good instructions which led me to God; and the curse of false doctrines, which were only calculated to drive me from him. Thus I lived and grew up to manhood, repenting and sinning, hoping and sometimes almost desponding of ever finding mercy of the Lord. In this condition of mind, I left my father, mother, brothers and sisters, then living in Chester county, S. C., where we had suffered greatly in the revolutionary war. All was peace, but the pressure of the times was great, money very scarce, lands poor, and little encouragement for a young man to begin the world or make a living; but we had fine news from the West. Kentucky and Tennessee were fine countries, land plenty and good; so I set out to explore, settle and get rich.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

INFANT REGENERATION.

Mr. Editor: I have read Mr. Wakefield's "Theological Work" with care and impartiality, and confess myself no way enlightened upon the subject in question. Infant justification from the guilt of Adam's transgression, in virtue of general redemption by Christ, is clearly revealed in the holy Scripture; but justification by faith, and regeneration, or being born again, is no where stated as the spiritual condition of infants, but of adults only; and this understanding of the doctrine is argued and sustained by all Wesleyan standard authors, and of course the doctrines and ceremonies of the Church, in her ritual, must be understood in accordance with such standard authority.

Justification by faith, regeneration or the new birth, the witness of the Spirit and sanctification, being all spiritual and experimental subjects, can only be understood in their true import by spiritual discernment. "Power to become the sons of God," is the privilege of those only who "believe in his name." The washing of regeneration and renewing by or of the Holy Ghost are also blessings connected with faith in Christ; and an inheritance among the sanctified is also by faith in Christ. So that every true believer knows whereof he speaks and whereof he affirms in these particulars, and by personal experience has the "witness in himself;" while the spiritually ignorant and "unlearned" cannot know or understand them, and of course cannot explain them to others.

If infant regeneration, or the new birth, is bestowed on all infants, there can be no necessity for preaching this doctrine to adults, inasmuch as all may grow up in a regenerate state. If infant regeneration be true, the gospel would be only, at best, a guide to preserve mankind in infant regeneration privileges; this would turn the whole into a jargon of words, without design or application.

Adam fell by transgression, and himself and posterity in him forfeited temporal and spiritual life thereby, and lost the moral image of God, in which he was created; and, although he and posterity enjoy temporal life and its blessings through the gift of Christ, and are privileged with salvation agencies and instrumentalities, they are nevertheless born in the likeness of fallen Adam—(i. e.) diseased and depraved in mind and heart, although not chargeable with the guilt of his transgression; and thus has the Savior done for us what we could not do for ourselves. And should any die in infancy, or before the period of human accountability, the same grace of God in Christ can also accomplish for them the necessary qualification for the enjoyment of heaven.

The gospel for adults and Christian training for children are duties and means to lead all to the knowledge of their disease and remedy, under the blessing of God; but in connection with free agency, for their salvation or reprobation, as improved upon or otherwise.

"Jesus, thou great eternal mean, I look for all from thee;" and "except thou work in us, we can have no part in thee." W. F.

P. S. Infant regeneration, by baptism, is quite a different subject from the regeneration doctrine maintained by Mr. Wakefield. The form of baptism in the Episcopal Church prayer book, and also in the old Methodist Episcopal Discipline both imply and pray for the blessing, as promised to infants as well as adults; and, as connected with the ordinance, it is prayed for as a present blessing on the occasion.—The scriptural proof therein referred to is, however, very unsatisfactory, and few, if any, Wesleyan preachers believe in baptismal regeneration. It is a relic of the old mother Church.

W. F.

PROPHECIES.

There is no small instruction to candid minds in the following reminiscence, given by the venerable Bishop Meade, in his late work on the "Old Churches, Ministers and Families of Virginia:"

"Very soon after my entrance on the ministry, I read a sermon by one of our most distinguished Bishops, on those words of the Psalmist: 'Walk about Zion; mark well her bulwarks; consider her palaces,' etc. They were applied to our Church in this country, and her praises highly spoken. It was confidently affirmed that she must greatly prevail over others by reason of her divine organization and many excellencies. Just at this time I met with a sermon on the same text and in the very same style, by one of the oldest and most respectable Baptist ministers in Virginia, showing that the Baptist Church was so clearly the apostolic Church, of course after God's own heart, that it must carry everything before it; that the signs of the times could not be mistaken.

Shortly after this I went to the West, and heard of an eminent Presbyterian minister who was preaching from place to place a sermon, or series of sermons, if not from the same text yet on the same subject, in which he declared his Church was, as to her constitution, doctrine and discipline, so scriptural, and so suited to the genius of our government, that in twenty years the whole land would embrace it. At this time, also, a favorite song with many Methodists was—

"The Methodists are gaining ground;
The devil's kingdom's tumbling down!
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!"

"Doubtless all these were most sincere in their belief that what they earnestly desired would surely come to pass. Forty years have since elapsed, and no one of them has taken the place of the other. On the contrary, all of them have, by God's blessing, done much good on the different theaters assigned them, and are still doing good, and will do more good."

STERNE says in his Koran, "I never drink—I cannot do it on equal terms with others. It costs them only one day, but me three; the first in sinning, the second in suffering, and the third in repenting."

GEN. JACKSON'S RELIGION.

Any expression of the religious sentiments of a hero who enjoyed a world-wide reputation will be read with interest. Col. Burton had written to the General, giving him some account of the great revival of religion in Lebanon, which laid the foundation of the Lebanon church, and informing him that two of his nieces, Mrs. Col. Burton and Mrs. General Carruthers, had professed religion, and joined the Church. The following is the General's reply to Col. Burton:

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 24, 1831.

"I am truly gratified to hear that your lady and Mrs. Carruthers, and many other ladies have joined the Church. I would to God that you and Mr. Carruthers would follow this good example. No people can flourish without true, genuine religion, which expels hypocrisy and deceit from the walks, purifies society, and calls down upon a nation blessings from above. How joyful to my departed wife, if she had been living, would this union of her neices to the Church have been? If angels are permitted to know what mortals here below are doing, my dear wife, at the joyful tidings, is praising the Redeemer, and thanking him that so many of her dear friends have been awakened by the Spirit, and brought to experience the blessed change from death unto life, and to exclaim in the language of the Scriptures, that they now know that their Redeemer liveth.—May you and Mr. Carruthers, and hundreds more of your friends, neighbors, and connections follow this example.

"Present me to your lady and Mrs. Carruthers, and assure them that I rejoice with them, on account of their happy change—a change that will give them peace and happiness in this world—firmness to meet misfortunes and visitations in this life—give them confidence that they can smile in Satan's face, and meet a frowning world. There is no real content and happiness in this world, except the consolations of religion, derived from the promises contained in the Scriptures.

"Have my little namesake (Andrew Jackson Burton) presented to the Church in baptism."

ANDREW JACKSON.

THE HOLY SPIRIT A PERSON.

To hear the prayers and remarks often made at prayer meetings, one would think the doctrine of the personality of the Holy Spirit practically lost sight of. Men pray not for the Holy Spirit, but for the "influences of the Holy Spirit." This is an expression nowhere to be found in the scriptures; and the impression seems to be, not of communication with a person having a distinct individuality; but of a certain undefinable influence, exerted upon the mind and heart of man. But the scriptural idea is that of a Divine Agent, the Holy Spirit communicating with the soul, enlightening the mind, striving with the heart, and leading the soul upward to God. It seems to me that this is a far more stirring and forcible idea than that of an indefinable influence. "The Holy Spirit, the third Person of the Trinity," dwelling in us, and making our bodies his temple, is the scriptural idea of the intercourse of the Spirit with true Christians. And this is what is promised, when Christ says the Father is more willing to give his Holy Spirit to them that ask him, than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children. And what an awful, yet delightful thought! To be guided by the Spirit of God; to have him dwelling in us, to quicken our consciences, to warn us of danger, to stir us up to duty, to strengthen our graces, to witness with our spirit that we are the children of God, and to work in us to will and to do of his good pleasure. And this honor have all the saints! This is what Christ means when he says, "The water that I shall give them, shall be in them a well of water springing up into everlasting life!"

N. Y. Observer.

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

The London Times for Jan. 17th has the two following items, without note or comment, and apparently without the least surmise that one may be but the consequence of the other:

ITEM 1.—PARIS.—A Cabinet Council was held at the Tuileries on Sunday afternoon, and in the evening a grand ball took place. Dancing was kept up until a late hour in the morning. These usages on the Sabbath are matters of common occurrence in France, and many soirees dansantes take place every Sunday night, without exciting the slightest reproof on the part of the Catholic clergy.

ITEM 2.—The influenza is raging at Paris with unprecedented virulence. Several fatal cases are spoken of, and there are, it is stated on medical authority, not less than 60,000 cases under treatment. It is curious, however, that lagrippe, as it is called here, should exclusively visit the affluent classes. Saloons are deserted, and fashionable parties are postponed pour cause de grippe; but there is not a single influenza patient at the hospitals.

Men left to their own wills, will rather go to hell, than be beholden to free grace for salvation.

MISPRINTS.

The following curious examples illustrate the consequences of a hurried or obscure chirography, by those who write for the newspapers:

"Not many years since," says the Daily Advertiser, "a Boston paper informed its readers that a contract had been made with the 'Shoe and Leather Company of Providencetown, to get off a certain vessel which was ashore at Cape Cod." Screw and Lever Company was intended.

"A day or two since, another Boston paper stated that parties at Jonesport have contracted with the underwriters to take off and relieve the 'logwood and timber' from the deck of schooner A. Sawyer." Locomotive and tender would have been correct.

The source of these errors, and of a thousand others of the same sort, was evidently not in the printer, but in the hand-writing.

A PRESERVED RELIGION.—The Illinois Baptist says that there is a denomination in that State, generally known as the "Whisky Baptists."—At one of their churches, some time ago, a man who had led an immoral, dissipated life, applied for membership, stating that the conversion occurred some fifty years previous. Whereupon, neighbor of his remarked, "Ah, I'll warrant his religion to be good, for, to my knowledge he has had it preserved in whisky for fifty years!"

"Why don't you limit yourself?" said a physician to an intemperate person; "set down a stake that you will go so far and no further." "So I do," said the toper, "but I set it so far off that I always get drunk before I get to it."

THE BLIND AND MUTE.

The editor of the Planters' Banner, (St. Marys Parish,) has lately visited the Asylum, at Baton Rouge, and thus notices it:

And do the citizens of St. Mary know who originated this noble Institution, and by his energy and address induced the legislature to build it? We with pleasure point to our old friend, Frank Richardson, as the man. [We gave the wrong name last week—F. W.] "Honor to whom honor is due." It is a work of benevolence which will stand here as an enduring monument to his memory when he shall have passed away, and thousands of the unfortunate children of Louisiana who are destined to be consoled and benefited by it will cherish for him a regard and gratitude more honorable than temples of marble and monuments of brass. The directors of this Institution sent Mr. Moise, a distinguished artist of this State, to our parish to take a full length portrait of Mr. Richardson, to be placed in the Asylum which he originated. We saw the portrait at Baton Rouge. We doubt if any artist in the United States could have done the work in a more masterly manner.

We listened, with much interest, to the performance of several of the blind girls on the piano, accompanied by vocal music. It was a sad, and at the same time a pleasing spectacle. They sang and played Sweet Home in very sweet strains. Perhaps it sounded to us more pathetic, and was more highly appreciated by us, on account of their unfortunate situation. In our heart we pity them, and feel pleased and proud that our State has made so ample provision to relieve them, and to scatter in their path a few flowers whose fragrance may soothe and please, though their beauty cannot be appreciated.

Mr. Brown, the kind hearted and gentlemanly Superintendent of this asylum, after the exercise on the piano and in vocal music, exhibited some books with raised letters for the use of the blind. And it is a curious fact that these books were made by persons who were deaf and dumb for the use of the blind. The girls by running their fingers over the letters, read aloud correctly, and with considerable facility. One of them, Miss Louisa Tremble, whose age was about twelve years, commenced learning to read but about a year ago.

But leaving these exercises, which, though instructive, were considerably clouded with sadness, we met, as we were passing out, a deaf mute of this parish, a son of Mr. Lawrence. He is perhaps six years old, and apparently a very smart and interesting child.—Mr. Brown requested him to give an account of a hunting excursion in which he had participated. He appeared bashful, and loth to undertake it, but he at length commenced, and the teacher explained, or put his signs and motions into good English. He told, by signs, almost as quick as one could tell with his tongue, that he took down his rifle, cleaned it, ran some balls, burnt his finger trimming the balls, shouldered his gun, called his dog, saw a squirrel in a tree, shot at him, missed him, loaded his gun again, shot and killed him, picked him up and bagged him, saw another, wounded him, went to pick him up and he bit his finger, killed him with a club, saw a turkey, killed it, found it was fat, thought it would make a good dinner, went home with his game. Few that have not witnessed it can have any idea how rapidly those mutes can convey ideas by signs, and how accurately those signs can be understood.

"MY SARVENT DORR."

Many years ago, when there was but one church in the old town of Lyme, Ct., the people were without a pastor. They had been for a long time destitute, and were now on the point of making a unanimous call for a very acceptable preacher, when a cross-grained man, by the name of Dorr, began a violent opposition to the candidate, rallied a party, and threatened to defeat the settlement. At a parish meeting, while the matter was under discussion, a half-witted fellow rose in the house and said he wanted to tell a dream he had last night. He thought he died and went away where the wicked people go, and as soon as satan saw him he asked him where he came from.

"From Lyme, Connecticut," I told him right out.

"Ah! and what are they doing in Lyme?" he asked.

"They are trying to settle a minister," I answered.

"Settle a minister!" he cried out. "I must put a stop to that. Bring me my boots; I will go to Lyme this very night."

I then told him, as he was drawing on his boots, that Mr. Dorr was opposing the settlement, and very likely he would prevent it altogether.

"My sarvent Dorr!" exclaimed His Majesty. "My sarvent Dorr! Here, take my boots; if my sarvent Dorr is at work, there is no need of my going at all."

This speech did the business. Mr. Dorr made no further opposition. The minister was settled, but his opponent carried the title "My Sarvent Dorr" with him to the grave.

WHAT HE DIDN'T WANT.

A kind-hearted little sponse, bonneted and shawled, very recently appeared at the door of a room where her good-natured liege lord was about to indulge in a comfortable snooze.

"My dear, I am going shopping. What shall I bring you to comfort you?"

"I don't know, love; I don't think of anything I want particularly, just now. Come and kiss me. I will tell you, however, what I don't want you to bring me."

"What is it, pray?"

"Pray don't bring me in deb't."

"IN OUR MIDST."

The attempt to drive out of use this inelegant, though hardly ungrammatical phrase, does not meet with much success. Since the Boston Courier uttered its grand edict against it, it has appeared in a letter signed by George Bancroft, Rev. Dr. Bellows, and half a dozen others of the best scholars in New York, and now again we see it in a letter from President Woolsey and Professors Silliman, Porter and Goodrich, of Yale College, Rev. Dr. Bacon, and other New Haven scholars. Within a fortnight we have heard it ourselves from the lips of one or two Cambridge graduates. The Courier must "let it slide."—Springfield Republican.

DISSENTERS AND ABSENTERS.

A high-church clergyman had a friend to visit him one Saturday, who next day accompanied him to the church, which, to his great surprise, was very thinly attended. As they were returning home, he asked his friend if there were many dissenters in town. "No," said the other, "but there are numerous absenters."

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 50 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1858.

THOSE 7000 NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

approaching General Conference will be, by accounts, one of the most important as yet held by our Church. A very general anxiety will be felt by the Church to be informed of its proceedings. We expect to publish its proceedings as fully as they may be published in any paper issued in Nashville, or by any arrangement that may be made by the Publishing House. Those reports will be accompanied by Editorial Correspondence. In view of the importance of its business to the whole Church, and its attractions to each member of our communion, we respectfully suggest it as a reason for renewed efforts to increase the number of subscribers. Will our brethren, presiding elders, pastors, local ministers, and brethren of the laity, give us their aid in this matter. Each may render valuable service, if he will only try. We should like to reach SEVEN THOUSAND by first of May. Can it not be done? If every one will say, "I'll try!" it may be done. Who will refuse to help? Not one, we hope. Begin at your next appointment: and success will crown the effort.

NOTICE TO CITY SUBSCRIBERS.—Having lately employed a new carrier, some of our city subscribers may be missed in the distribution of the paper. We hope prompt notice will be given of all failures to receive the paper.

A FRESH SUPPLY.—As we go to press, the clerk is opening several boxes of choice books—Southern Methodist Publications, from Stevenson & Owen. Send in your orders.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.—Mrs. S. B. T. has gone down into Egypt, as will appear in her interesting letter this week. We have one, by favor of Master David Merrick, to whom it was addressed, for children's column, next week. Why should not that column have foreign letters, too? Our young friends shall have attention.

Apropos: Mrs. T. gives an account of her visit to the scene of St. Paul's shipwreck. We find this, in the papers:

"A letter from Malta, of Feb. 6th, says—'This being the nineteenth century of St. Paul's shipwreck in Malta, grand preparations are making to celebrate it, consisting principally of fireworks and illuminations, which are to continue from the 6th to the 10th.'"

REV. SAMUEL DAWSON, a member of the Mississippi Conference, died in this city, March 11th, at the Van Bibber House. The corpse was taken up the river, on the Natchez, Thursday evening, for interment at home, East Feliciana parish, La. He was under treatment for cancer, in the right jaw. Bro. Dawson was sixty years old, and for thirty years had been a minister of the gospel. He was full of strong faith and assurance as his end drew nigh. To a friend, who asked him on the evening before his death of his confidence in God's mercy, he replied—"O yes, all is right on the other side."

A PLEA FOR THE FIRST GERMAN CHURCH.—This is a worthy Missionary object. We unhesitatingly commend it to the generosity of the members and friends of our Church. The building is situated very eligibly for appearance and convenient to a large German population, who are ready to fill its Sabbath School and crowd its congregations. They are prepared for a great work. The Germans have used the means already furnished, with characteristic diligence and economy. No chapel, in this city, has been carried on so well, at so small a cost. It is finished, three-fourths of the way. Supply the other fourth. Then this Missionary charge will be withdrawn from its annual drafts on the treasury. A congregation large enough to support itself, can be gathered in it; and from self-supporting, it will go on to aid in the general cause. Progress, in this case, will be conservatism. LET US FINISH IT. The building, a large brick, is up, covered and floored.

Send on, what you will, to Rev. J. Pauley, pastor, to care of Advocate office, 112 Camp street. It will be well applied and prove a good Missionary investment.

MELANCHOLY.—On Tuesday morning last, says the Baton Rouge Comet, 7th inst., the Rev. J. H. Muse, of Clinton, La., passed through this city with the remains of his son, who died from wounds received in the explosion of the steamer Col. Crossman, a few days ago.

"NATIONAL."—The boast of our Old School friends of being the only national Church in the United States and of having no dissensions among them on the subject of "modern reform," is explained and qualified by the following information, from the Maine Evangelist, a Congregational paper. A rheumatic patient with one leg can boast that he is better off than his neighbor who is liable to rheumatism in both legs. Why should he not boast: has he not an advantage? Decidedly.

"Now, our fancy, now know anything of the [illegible] ground which Presbyterianism covered [illegible] and a half ago in [illegible] minister of [illegible] But Presbyterianism had to give way to Congregationalism in New England, the Independent or Puritan element taking [illegible] in Cromwell's time being too strong for it. At the present day there is but one Presbytery in New England, and that leads but a sickly existence at Londonderry, in New Hampshire."

THE [illegible] SEMINARY.—There will be no [illegible] at the [illegible] Institute of Professor Magruder, in [illegible] month. The increased number of [illegible] all parts of the State, (numbering near a hundred), and the crowded condition of the school, renders it impossible to give the usual Public Examination in March. Every other Saturday during the season, there is Declamation on the part of the more advanced scholars, to which there is a standing public invitation.

Baton Rouge Comet, Feb. 25.

"LET ME DIE THE DEATH OF THE RIGHTEOUS."

This aspiration has been sanctified by its use in excellent funeral sermons and the conclusion of obituary notices. It is a natural aspiration, and we would not infringe upon its hallowed associations. But, we fear, a false sentiment lies upon the face of it.

Consider the man and the occasion of its utterance. Balaam uttered it. It is a sinner's prayer. He made it when bent upon sin. He made it in the way of an act which has handed his name down to all ages as a proverb of reproach.

Any sinner can say amen to it. Its desire is rather natural than spiritual. He would have the wages of unrighteousness—he would feed his lust—he would live to himself, and then he would die the death of the righteous and have his last end be like his.

Let not any man deceive himself and think it a mark of grace because he can join in that prayer.

Religion is to live by—first. It is for consecration—for service—for obedience. The idea is pernicious and too general, that the chief object of religion is to die by. Our obligations to be religious would be as strong if there were no grave, no death in the future.

In an Eastern city, says an exchange, we once inquired about the religious state and condition of a certain portion of the people, what were their peculiar views, their form of religion, and what amount of attachment to their religious creeds and professions did they exhibit. We were answered that their only object, and in fact their rule, was to secure a religion that would do to die by; anything but that they considered a useless superfluity.—They wanted to get safely through this world, avail themselves of a full measure of worldly enjoyments and delights, and secure a sufficient interest in religion to be prepared to die.

A religion to die by! what a strange phantasy! Ought not every rational man to know that religion is a thing of life, and not of death,—and that the life of religion is to do good?—The man who has a religion to live by, is he who is prepared to die; while no man who is not prepared, by religious principle, to live a life of self-denying usefulness, is prepared to go to Heaven. Heaven is a world of real and active life. All there are animated by an earnest love; their understandings are filled with truth; their affections are ever warm with the love of doing good to those around them, and their whole ultimate life is one of living use. No one who has any correct idea of what true religion is, or what Heaven is, will think of religion merely as a support in death,—but rather as the most active principle of life, which animates the soul, alike in this world and the next.

And yet there is an awful significance in death. It sets a seal upon the state which the soul of man may have attained, thenceforth fixed as to its spiritual character, though capable, if good, of indefinite expansion.

That anxious forecasting to the death-bed—that undue emphasis of supplication for dying grace, O Christian, is hardly in keeping with the prayer which Jesus taught us for daily bread. Death is a great solemn trial; but life has thousands: they crowd your path. Be more concerned to act well your part on this stage, than to make a graceful exit. A good life draws a good death after it.

SUMMER'S WATSON'S DICTIONARY.

Since the late attempt upon the life of the Emperor Napoleon, it is often asked why the greater number, if, in fact, not all, engaged in the conspiracy are Italians. Some light is being shed on this matter, by late European letters.

Pianori, the Italian who was executed some years ago for attempting to assassinate the Emperor, was offered a free pardon if he would make a full confession and divulge his accomplices, but he bravely refused; and now every inducement is held out to the present prisoners to reveal the details of the plot, for participating in which they will undoubtedly forfeit their lives. The Italians as a nation are friendly to the Emperor. The memory of the Napoleon is still revered by them. But there has existed among them for many years a body of admirable organization and great power, the dreaded Carbonari.

Immediately after the French Revolution of 1830, there were a series of out breaks through the Roman territory, extending into the Duchies of Parma and Modena. They were the work of the Carbonari, and were soon put down in the most sanguinary manner by the troops of the late Pope Gregory. In the Roman legations the present Emperor and his brother, who died during the insurrection, were actively engaged. They were both sworn members of the Carbonari. It is generally understood that it was Pietri, the present Corsican prefect of police, who initiated the present Emperor into the Carbonari, of which Mazzini, the Present Pope, and the late King Charles Albert were active members. This society never forgives a renegade member; and this fact is mentioned in explanation of Mazzini's opposition to Pius IX and Charles Albert; and this is the real secret of the recent and other attempts by Italians upon the Emperor's life.

Louis Napoleon has been tried by the chiefs of the society, formally condemned to death, and received notice of the doom which surely awaits him. Those now in prison may suffer on the scaffold, but they know that thousands are ready to avenge them.

It is known that the French exiles in London and Kossuth were not concerned in the late conspiracy. Louis Blanc and Ledru Rollin are both opposed to assassination. The affair was solely the work of the Carbonari.

And who are the Carbonari? The reader of newspapers will inquire of several Dictionaries and Encyclopedias without finding out. But in the edition of Watson, revised and enlarged by Dr. Summers and published by our Book Agents, he will find, in brackets:

CARBONARI, charcoal men. A modern politico-religious society of Italy. They professed to reverence Christ, whom they considered a victim of despotism, which they were united to suppress.

That is the sort of book one likes. Some books have much in them, but the thing you happen to want, they never happen to have.

Has the reader obtained a copy of this Southern Methodist edition? He will find his account in doing so. All of Watson is here, save typographical and textual errors, and much more. Dr. Summers has added hundreds of valuable definitions, modestly enclosed in brackets. Never before were the religious denominations of the United States—not even the branches of Methodism—posted up. Many isms have arisen or put on new phases in the last 26 years. To the descriptions of Bible lands and places valuable and fresh additions have been made from such travelers as Robinson, Olin, Bayard Taylor, Lynch and Layard.

We began to look over the book, pencil in hand, noting on a flyleaf the more important additions; but two leaves were filled and then the half was not told.

Dr. Summers has fairly achieved a partnership in the authorship of the present edition of Watson's Dictionary. And it is saying enough, (but not too much) that his contributions are worthy of the company they are in.

THE MISSION OF POETRY.

On Friday evening, 6th inst., "a small but appreciative audience" waited the appearance of the lecturer in Odd Fellow's Hall. A gentleman, of silver gray locks, fine form and genial countenance, and buttoned up to the chin, was introduced as "Capt. G. W. Cutter, who had won distinction with the pen and the sword."

This is the second lecture we have recently been favored with on that genial civilizer of the world, Poetry. Dr. Mackay, "all the way from London town," drew a larger crowd but sent away fewer admirers. Indeed, the American's audience was so small, compared to the Englishman's, that, as some one has observed, it must have required all the lecturer's strength in a military way to address it coolly and dispassionately.

In its general sense, "poetry" includes every intellectual creation, whether expressed through painting, sculpture, music or language. This, said the lecturer, is the original meaning of the word. In its more restricted sense, however, it is, as Mr. Maunder says in his Scientific and Literary Treasury, "the art of expressing sentiments in measured language, according to certain rules of harmony and taste."

Poetry was set forth as the soul of men and nations. Not a vaporing, illusive, weak thing, but a forming energy. It was not a plaything, a jingling thing, but a power. The Greek word means to create. It is ideal; but so as to draw on the real. The Iliad was correct in its geography; it gave us knowledge of the arts at that day, and like all other poetry, embalmed what otherwise would have been lost. But there was no such shield as Achilles', if indeed any such hero. They existed afterward however in fact, as before in Homer's imagination. Alexander modeled after Achilles realized him, and the Iliad was ever in his tent.

No nation ever was great without first being poetic. The mystery which enshrouds the past of Egypt, India and Persia, might be attributed to the absence of poetry, which alone can preserve from oblivion.

The Pyramids are dumb. We know nothing of Egypt, for all her wealth and works. A learned traveler states that, of all the discoveries dug out, no poetry had ever been found, save a distich, near a threshing floor of the Nile, which when translated fell into the range of negro ditties. This was it:

"Go along oxen—go along faster—
Tread out the straw for yourselves and the corn for your master."

Poor, degraded Egypt, there was all her stock in poetry.

He contrasted the might and glory of ancient Assyria with the crushed and humbled Jews. The conquering Assyrians had no poetry. The Jews were a poetic people from the beginning, and still live. Antiquarians now grope in the sands of the desert for the remains of Babylon; but Jerusalem still lives, real and unmistakeable, as in the ancient ages.

The Assyrians had wide walls and hanging gardens and palaces and power. But the captives were greater than their masters. Hear them:

"By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea we wept when we remembered Zion. We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof. For there, they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us, required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion. How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning."

No people could be destroyed who had such poetry. As the Iliad was the artistic, so the Psalms were the devotional soul of the world. The place where the proud Assyrian held his scepter is now delved and dug for and in doubt. While every stream and the shape of the hills and slopes in Palestine are familiar things.

Poetry elevated man, enlarged his mind, inspired his soul with all lofty sentiment. It was holy. Enter a church, and no matter how gorgeous and befitting the arrangements, if there be no hymn, all is cold and dead.

"National songs," said Captain Cutter, "are the chiefest wealth of any country; the power and influence of Rule Brittania, the Marseillaise Hymn, Hail Columbia, and the Star Spangled Banner, are felt and acknowledged all over the world. * * * * * They inspire the citizen with patriotism and devotion, they fill the soldier's breast with a thirst for glory, they breathe the soul of liberty, and perpetuate the deeds of justice and of valor. They are the admiration of the free, and the terror of tyrants."

Passing by the earlier times and poets, the lecturer came to our own. He thought not so much of Longfellow as some did; too German and not original. "Star Spangled Banner" was worth more to this country than all Longfellow's poetry. It was national. For himself, he would rather be author of the Marco Bozaris, of Fitz Greene Halleck, than any single poem America had produced. We ought to have an epic; but he had gloomy forebodings of our national literature. It lacked poetry and would die some day of that lack. We were too matter-of-fact, too prosy, too much for the present, cent-per-cent utility.

The lecturer concluded with an earnest appeal to cultivate what poetry there is in you—even if it never takes the shape of rhyme; read poetry—it has the seed of thought; study poetry—for the good, the beautiful, the true is in it. Poetry is the Promethean fire, without which man is an unleavened clod, and nations but stupendous piles, doomed to decay and oblivion.

METHODIST PRESS.

The Texas Christian Advocate, expresses mortification at the manner in which Rachel has been noticed by the press—even the American press, which too often echoes the European.—Even our staid secular contemporaries, who greatly admire female virtue, are ready, without a blush to put the French courtezan along side of Miss Nightingale! Yet the elite (save the word,) followed her and threw up their sweet scented handkerchiefs and bouquets to this Ephesian Diana. Rachel wrote down, a few days before her death, to please a distinguished gentleman who desired her autograph, the words: "In a week from now I shall begin to be devoured by the worms and biographers!" And so it happened, sure enough. Yet, on the whole, the biographers have treated her very tenderly, whatever the worms may do.

Says our confrere:

Rachel, the great tragedienne, is dead, and the press of Europe and America teems with laudation of her genius, and with pensive tributes to her memory. This is to us, we confess, one of the most marked and alarming indications of the lowering of the tone of our public taste and morals that we recollect to have noticed. Who was Rachel? A French woman, whose character, reputation, and history, were as infamous as a total absence of female virtue and purity could make it. A woman who was the mother of a large family of children without ever having been married. A woman who sold all that is sacred with the sex for gold, or who, from the absence of any thing sacred in her character, gave herself up to a licentiousness which unfits a colored housemaid in the South for a place in a genteel family, and which condemns her to drudge on the plantation.

Rev. S. W. Coggeshall, of Providence Conference, says the Advocate and Journal, has nearly finished his long expected Life of Bishop Asbury. No man in the "connection" has a more thorough knowledge of the facts of our earlier history. The biographical material relating to Asbury is not abundant, but the general history of the Church itself, for many years, gathers around his person. We expect with eagerness this new work.

Our exchanges have not, says that paper, for years, been so full of reports of revivals as now. Footing up the conversions reported in the papers of the Northwest for a single week:

From the Northwestern, 2,000; from the Central, 800; Pittsburg, 1200; Western, 2000; Christian Advocate and Journal, 2000; making in all 8000. The number is, doubtless much greater. From the revival intelligence reported in five of our Church papers, embracing but one number of each we have thus the sum total of additions to the Church of eight thousand.

The editor of the Chicago Advocate, thus calls to mind the affecting fate and honored memory of one who still lives in the heart of the Church:

"From the Fathers to the Children." We could scarcely refrain from tears as we read the following clip. We thought of the Cookman whose body "is wrapped in its sea-weed shroud and lies in its coral coffin;" but his pure spirit looks from above, and what is the vision? Here it is:

An interesting incident occurred at the Greene street Methodist Church, last evening. The crowd to hear the Rev. Alfred Cookman preach was so great that it was found necessary to open the lecture room to accommodate those who could not get into the church. To this second congregation the Rev. John Cookman preached, while his brother was preaching up stairs, so that two brothers were preaching at the same time in the same church, an occurrence that does not often happen.

The Nashville and Memphis Advocates have had some apurring on the price of Church papers. We agree with the latter, that the rates should be uniform. It is not just to use the common funds to enable one Advocate to crowd out and under bid the others. He of Memphis intimates that somebody has been poaching on his preserves:

If it were not known by some other means, a stranger might suppose that they [the Agents] did not publish but one paper, and that was at Nashville. They not only come to our conference and make speeches for it, but appoint some of our most efficient men to solicit subscriptions.—Nay, more, they send its editor to the Arkansas and Ouachita conferences with the ostensible object of attending to the Book Agents' business, but the ulterior design is to occupy ground which has been assigned to this paper, and that, too, when our own conference required the presence of its editor at its session.

The editor of the Richmond Advocate, 4 inst., has been hearing Edward Everett. Mr. E's are golden orations. In one week, by two addresses, in Richmond, he made $2000 for the Mt. Vernon fund:

We had the pleasure, on Friday evening last, in the African Church, of hearing this distinguished orator on the life and character of WASHINGTON. It is an event in one's life to hear such a man on such a subject. He is a prince among the masters of oratory. In eloquence, there is, perhaps, nothing beyond. Of the speaker and his address, one may almost say as the distinguished Athenian said to the countryman who came to see the grandeurs of Athens. He took him first to Socrates, and introduced him. Then said: "This is enough. In seeing Socrates, you see everything. He is all Athens: the whole of Greece; the glory of the world!"

PROF. MORSE.—The New York Evening Post, says: "We notice that Prof. Morse has been left out of the Board of Direction of the Atlantic Telegraph Company. Why is this? Can any one inform us?"

The fifty-first planet has been discovered and named Nomausa—to be spoken No-more-sir.

CANDOR.—A scholar, a little boy, in the Cambrian Institution for the deaf and dumb, on being asked a question which he was not prepared to answer, thought for a minute, then wrote on his slate, "Short of information on the subject." How many might learn from this child!

FREE WILL.—Dr. Johnson made short work with the tough question of Free Will. "Sir," said he to Boswell, "we know our will is free, and there's an end on't."

RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

We have received from the publishers, through H. D. McGinnis, 36 Camp street, copies of the following new books:

THE WORLD OF MIND. By Isaac Taylor, author of "Wesley and Methodism." New York: Harper & Brothers.

An elementary work on mental philosophy, by a gentleman who has devoted many years to the subject. Isaac Taylor is always readable. Some idea of the work may be derived from the headings of its chapters: Metaphysics—ultimate, mixed, and concretive abstractions, separately treated of; the sense of fitness and order; and grounds of certainty in relation to metaphysical speculation. The science of physical mind—breadth of the world of mind; rudiments of mind; intellectual emotions and their results; contingent development of intellectual faculties; language as related to mental operations; emotions, in their different relations; emotions and tastes, in their relations to the modulations of sight and of sound; relations of the human mind to the unknown and the infinite; laughter and weeping, etc., etc. A neat volume of 380 pages.

EUROPEAN ACQUAINTANCE; being sketches of People in Europe. By J. W. DeForest, author of "Oriental Acquaintance," etc. New York: Harper & Brothers.

A gossiping, good-humored narrative of the loungings of an American in France, Germany and Italy; a book owing its interest to the vivacity of the writer. The attention paid to pretty peasants, romantic flower-girls, and noble patrician beauties, betray the impressibility of the author. A handsome little book of less than 300 pages.

DOMINION.—Of this book, by Rev. S. D. Baldwin, we have a larger notice than our space admits of this week.

NEW FEATURE IN CITY LIFE.

The papers from New York bring us accounts of a somewhat novel feature in city life there, viz: a daily prayer-meeting for merchants, clerks, and others. The project bids fair to become a permanent feature in the commercial metropolis, and also to extend to other cities. Already, we see it has extended itself to Cincinnati. The Cincinnati Gazette, of the 2d inst., says of it:

"The Daily Prayer Meeting.—The first meeting, yesterday, was well attended by merchants and clerks. After the usual exercises a business meeting was organized for the purpose of making suitable arrangements for conducting services. A committee consisting of representatives from the several denominations was appointed to report a plan this morning, after the prayer meeting. This Committee will recommend such hour for the exercises as they may deem most convenient. The Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Episcopal denominations were fully represented yesterday, and the prospects were regarded as highly encouraging."

We are informed that clerks, with bank books peeping out of side pockets and pencils tucked behind their ears, drop in to the meeting place. Laborers, with working clothes and dray before the door, drop in. Merchants desert the counting room and drop in, for a little while letting go the cares with which they wrestled, to renew their spiritual strength and recall their minds to heavenly subjects.

It is a good "feature." Before the latter-day glory comes, we shall see much of this sort of thing.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

CONFIRMATION.

MR. EDITOR: I want to call the attention of my younger brethren in the ministry to a Tract, written some years ago by Rev. Dr. Lee, of Richmond, Va., on the subject of confirmation, as held and practised by the Roman Catholics and Popish Episcopalians.

The gospel of Christ seems to have no very engaging power for a large number of Episcopalians; and as a direct consequence we hear of a constant ringing of the changes on the monstrous fable of the apostolic succession, at one season; and then at another, upon the equally fabulous and unscriptural custom of confirmation. Dr. Lee's pamphlet on the subject is a complete refutation of the groundless assumptions set up in favor of the rite. I am in the habit of spreading abroad, and mean to scatter, thousands of them. I urge my friends to order it, read it, and circulate it.

By the way, it would be an admirable thing if the Doctor would furnish the Tract Society with another, on the reasons "Why we, as a Church, do not observe Lent." We have got to open the eyes of the people to the errors of Protestant popery, as well as Italian popery, and it is time to begin.

Vicksburg. C. K. MARSHALL.

THE LATE GEN. HAVELOCK.—This general whose decease in India has been so much lamented, was not only a soldier, but a preacher. He was a member of the Baptist Church in Calcutta, and is said by the Missionary Kincaid, who knew him well, to have been a devoted Christian. He was accustomed to carry with him a preaching tent, in which to exercise his personal gifts as a preacher of the gospel.—His influence was great and good in the army. Lord Gough used to rely upon his brigade for the most difficult and dangerous work, and at one time, when required to send forward a force on a particularly perilous and important enterprise, calling for great care as well as courage, is said to have exclaimed, "Turn out the saints; Havelock never blunders, and his men never get drunk."

The right pronounciation is Havelock—two syllables, and not three—and the first syllable has the a long, like a in grave, not like a in have. This will be useful to many who have been used to say Hav-ev-lock, which the Newcastle people, where the family resides, resent as a barbarism.

RIDING ON HORSES.

As a clever writer in Blackwood intimates, man's universal preference for somebody else's legs than his own has played the mischief with the utility of traveling. Man and boy, his propensity to ride subjects him to all manner of inconveniencies. Many a time have we beat up a twenty-five cent lot for a spavined, one-eyed horse, his breath full of Greek aspirates, and his gait a compromise between trot and canter, and having backed a saddle two miles, have gloriously mounted the steed aforesaid to ride three! Richard is by no means the only man who has rushed round distractedly, offering extravagant prices for a horse.

FOR CONSIDERATION.

A correspondent of the Independent writes from London, giving a very clear and concise statement of the manner in which one of the most useful Tract Societies of the day is conducted. There are points in it for consideration:

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY, LONDON.

From your columns I learn that the religious public in the United States are feeling after the most efficient and economical method of producing and circulating religious publications. It has occurred to me that the experience of the Religious Tract Society of London might help you to settle this important question.—Accordingly, I made my journey to Paternoster Row, and was most kindly received by the officers. They freely submitted for inspection their monied account books, as also the plans by which their whole extended operations are carried on.

THE MANUFACTURE OF BOOKS.

In manufacturing its works it does all by competition and contract. Specifications of goods or work required are sent to paper-makers, printers, binders, engravers, etc., etc., and the lowest estimate, from responsible parties, receives the order.

1. The Society is thus unincumbered by practical details, which none but experienced tradesmen are competent to manage. At the same time it gets its work done promptly, and at the cheapest possible rate, consistent with good execution.

2. The Society thus knows the exact cost of every publication to the minutest fraction, and that too by the simplest operation, with no estimates for proportions of salaries, rent, and interest.

3. The Society thus saves all the outlay of capital for extensive buildings for shops, for tools and machinery, etc., as well as all the salaries for agents to superintend.

4. Thus the various trades have their fair benefit from the institution, and are made the warm, steadfast, and co-operating friends, securing harmony in all the departments of trade.

METHOD OF BUSINESS.

The Religious Tract Society of London sells all its publications at a small profit, and uses the ordinary avenues of trade. By so doing the following results are secured:

1. It does no injury to the ordinary publisher by using benevolent funds, either to undersell and thus to drive the honest, industrious tradesman out of the market, or by the monopoly of a certain class of books withdraw them from his counter. This Society is particularly cautious not to interfere with the regular process of trade, but to use it to the fullest extent. It never reprints a successful work, unprotected by copyright, issued by another house, but purchases of them all the copies needed, with the privilege of a special title page. This was done in the case of D'Aubigne's Reformation and Eadie's Bible Cyclopedia, published by Scotch houses.

2. From the profits it pays all the expenses of the establishment of every kind, including secretaries, accountants, clerks, fuel, light, twine, etc., etc., etc.

3. It thus leaves the entire benevolent income from donations, subscriptions, collections, legacies, etc., free for the gratuitous issues, and not subject to one farthing's deduction for agencies or expenses of any kind.

4. It not only appropriates all its benevolent income to gratuitous issues only, but it is able, also, to add a considerable sum each year from the profits to the amount for gratuitous circulation. The sum thus secured and expended the last year was nearly TWO THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING, which is about TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

5. It keeps its receipts for gratuitous issues totally distinct and in separate books from its trade receipts. The books of the Treasurer are open at all times to the examination of the members of the Society, so that every contributor may know by personal inspection if he pleases how the business is conducted.

6. It pays cash for everything, settling up every Tuesday, and allows of no debts. It has no special calls upon the benevolent to pay for paper or other items of indebtedness. The paper being included in the price of the book, is replaced when the book is sold. When India or any other part of the world is opened for the circulation of more religious publications, it calls for more money, and expends the whole upon this new field with not a farthing's deduction.

THE DISTRIBUTION OF ITS WORK.

1. Its sales are made through booksellers and depots. No advantage is given to the depot over the bookseller. As the per-centage given to both is satisfactory, all parties have an interest in pushing the sales. The fact is that the publications of the London Tract Society are sold by almost all the booksellers throughout the kingdom. These tradesmen are quite anxious to keep on hand an assortment of these works, as it enlarges the circle of their customers. Thus every bookseller is made a friend of the Society, and a most important agent in circulating the publications.

2. The benevolent issues are made through clergymen of all Evangelical denominations; through private members of churches; through Secretaries of Home and Foreign Missionary Societies, and their agents at home and abroad; in fact, through Christian people who are conscious of the value of this instrumentality.

3. The cost to the Society of distributing, in 1857, THIRTY-FOUR MILLIONS of publications was absolutely NOTHING—NOT A SINGLE FARTHING. It does not employ a solitary colporteur, but uses the voluntary unpaid personal labors of Christian men and women in their own fields of exertion.

I conclude, then, that the plans of the London Society are wise—are economical—are efficient, and are worthy of the serious attention of the benevolent on your side of the ocean.

LOUISIANA ITEMS.

From the Southwestern, of the 3d inst., we learn that the Red River is falling fast at Shreveport.

There is a movement on foot to open and keep navigable the Red River through the Raft. A company has been formed for this purpose and the stock has been subscribed. The Southwestern says:

We understand that the principal planters and merchants on upper Red River have expressed their willingness to pay the company a toll of fifty cents on each bale of cotton and ten cents on every barrel they may ship or receive by steamers after navigation has been made permanent through that part of the river now obstructed by the Raft. The enterprise is an important one, and should meet with the hearty co-operation of all those interested in the prosperity of the fertile and growing region of country bordering on upper Red River.

The Sugar Planter, of the 6th instant, notes the rapidly increasing business on the Grosse Tete Railroad. The landing, at the river terminus, has been crowded, for the past week, with sugar, molasses and cotton, from the beautiful Grosse Tete country.

The weather in Baton Rouge parish has been, the past week, warm and balmy, with the breath of spring. The sudden transition from hot to cold, on the first instant, the Planter says, has proved rather disasterous to the young shoots of cane. All the plants above ground were nipped by the change. Peach and plum blossoms, however, have not suffered.

Marriages.

Married—On the 23d ult., by Rev. Fred. White, Mr. ST C. KEMPER and Miss VIRGINIA ANN PEARCE, both Iroquelles parish, La.

On the 18th, by Rev. R. T. Rew, Mr. RICHARD H. MOORE to Miss CARRIE E. EARLE, both of Baldwin county, Ala.

On the 25th, by Rev. J. Lacey, Mr. JOHN W. FLOYD and Miss LILLIE ANN CROWDER, all of Salem, Ala.

On the 18th, by Rev. T. C. Thornton, Mr. J. T. LOVE to Miss ANNIE BALDWIN, all of Madison county, Mi.

On the 28th, in Westville, by Rev. Mr. Campbell, Mr. JESSE DIXON and Miss LAURA RAGLAND.

On the 2d inst., in Mobile, by Rev. Mr. Pearce, Mr. W. SPENCER and Miss CATHARINE AULD, of Point Clear.

On the 4th instant, by Rev. T. J. Hunter, Mr. SAMUEL ATES and Miss NANCY DEEN, all of Butler county, Ala.

Special Notices.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

The Trustees of the East Alabama Male College are requested to attend an adjourned meeting of the Board at Auburn, on the first Wednesday in April next; and as important business will come before them, a full attendance is most earnestly solicited. C. RAIFORD, Auburn, Ala., March 2, 1858. Sec'y.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The undersigned propose to issue, during the approaching General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in which the proceedings of the body will be published.

Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names immediately: or, they may give to the delegates their names and the cash.

Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance.

The first number will be issued on Monday, the 3d of May.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

SABBATH SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

The Fifth Anniversary of the Jefferson City Sabbath School, under the superintendence of Rev. J. D. Parker, will be celebrated in the M. E. Church, corner of Laurel and Toledano streets, on Sabbath the 14th instant, at 3 o'clock P. M. J. D. PARKER.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

The ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription rates.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Some brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the World; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Halifax, March 10.—The Royal mail steamship Canada, from Liverpool on the 27th ult., arrived this morning.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Liverpool, Feb. 27.—The sales of Cotton for the past week amount to 57,000 bales. All qualities have advanced ¼. Soms circulars quote the advance at 3-16.

Money Market.—Consols closed at 93¾ to 97.

BRITISH MINISTRY DEFEATED.

The British Ministry had been defeated in Parliament on the vote on the second reading of the bill to make it felony to engage in conspiracies in Great Britan against foreign powers. The majority against them was 19.

The London Times regards the defeat of the Ministry of the Conspiracy bill question as a serious event. A Cabinet meeting had been called to decide upon the course to be pursued in this future.

The papers very generally demand the resignation of Lord Palmerston.

ENGLAND.

The Kangaroo, which left Liverpool on the 24th for New York, took out the news of the resignation of the Palmerston Ministry, and the formation of a new Cabinet.

The new Ministry stands as follows: Premier, Lord Derby; Chancellor of Exchequer, D'Israelli; Lord Chancellor, Thesiger; President of Council, Salisbury; Privy Seal, Hardwicke; Home Department, Walpole; Foreign Affairs, Malmesbury; Ireland, Earl Eglinton.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA QUESTION.

Lord Palmerston had obtained leave to introduce a bill into Parliament providing for the vesting of the Government of India directly in the Crown, instead of leaving it to the East India Company.

CHINA.

Advices from Canton state that that city was taken by the British on the 29th December.—Governor Yeh was taken prisoner.

FRANCE.

The trial of the conspirators, who were engaged in the late attempt to take the life of Napoleon, has resulted in the conviction of four of the ringleaders, viz: Rudio, Picri, Orsini and Gomez. The first three are sentenced to death, while Gomez is condemned to perpetual servitude for life.

DENMARK.

The Danish ministry has resigned.

RANKIN CO. MU. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The following resolutions offered by the Hon. H. R. Ware, 1st inst., were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we view with great pleasure the interest manifested by our sister counties, in the building of the road known as the Ship Island railroad, and that we would regard its completion of the greatest practical importance to the interest of the State.

Resolved, That the agricultural and commercial interest of our country require the building of said road, commencing at some eligible point on the Gulf coast and running on nearly a practical air line to Brandon.

On motion the Society adjourned to meet again on the 1st day of March.

At the request of the agricultural association C. E. Hooker, Esq., delivered an address, which is spoken of by all who had the pleasure of hearing it as an exceedingly chaste and appropriate effort and as sustaining his reputation as a talented gentleman.

English papers state that Mr. Gough is creating no little stir by his effort there in behalf of temperance. He has large audiences, and is received with great applause.

Local Intelligence.

SMALLPOX.—Dr. McFarland says, in the True Delta of last Sunday, that "ever since the Quarantine has been established there has been more smallpox in New Orleans than for forty years before." Again, we learn from the same authority that "smallpox is at this moment epidemic in New Orleans." There is no doubt that smallpox is eminently contagious; and it is a question of vital interest how was this loathsome disease, which is now so prevalent, introduced in this community. Our country friends must take care to be vaccinated before making a visit. Varioloid is very prevulent.

NEW POSTMASTER.—Col. Samuel F. Marks, late Auditor of the State, has received the appointment of Postmaster of the city, in place of Gen. R. E. McHatton, resigned, and has entered upon the duties of his office.

Mr. Marks comes to us from his late office with the reputation of a capable and efficient officer, who adds to energy in the discharge of business an obliging temper and courteous manners. We look for some improvement, in the Advocate's mails, from this change, and feel authorized to encourage our friends to expect it.

THE MCDONOGH ESTATE.—The Supreme Court on last Monday made a decision sustaining the judgment of the lower Court, 5th District, for a partition of the property of the McDonough estate between the cities of New Orleans and Baltimore. The consequences that are to ensue from this decision are of more importance than can be well estimated. It will be the means of bringing into market a large amount of improvable property, which will be adding immensely to the individual and public wealth of both the cities of N. Orleans and Baltimore.

The judgment of the Lower Court, relative to the interests of the Colonization Society and the Society for the Relief of Destitute Orphans, has been confirmed. Adverse to them.

A MESSAGE FROM BRIGHAM YOUNG.

A late number of the Deseret News contains a message from Brigham Young to the Utah Legislature. After alluding to the agricultural affairs of the Territories, and showing the rapid manner in which the Territary had been developed since the Mormons settled there, he very savagely pitches into the President and Cabinet for taking the mail contracts away from the "chosen people," and giving them to the Gentiles. Young also discusses the difficulties with the United States Government.—He declares that, not having received official notification of the intention of the government to supersede him in the gubernatorial office, nor of the dispatch of troops to Utah, he regarded the army at Fort Bridger and the civil authorities there as an organized mob, which he has ordered to disperse; and he calls upon the Legislature to adopt such measures as may be deemed proper in the premises. The Legislature thereupon passed resolutions expressing their entire confidence in Brigham Young, and their determination to sustain him. In these resolutions the Legislature unanimously declare, and, as an additional solemnity, affix their individual signatures to the declaration, that no officers appointed by the present Administration shall exercise the functions of office in Utah, until the United States army is withdrawn from the precincts of the Territory. If this is not open, undisguised rebellion, we should like to know what is. The Mormon authorities have thus thrown down the gauntlet, and bid defiance to the Federal Government. It now only remains for our troops to whip them into obedience—if they can.

Our government fortunately has not been thrown off their guard by reports that the Mormons wouldn't fight—that they were going to emigrate, etc.

A letter from head quarters informs Gen. Harney that "so well is the nature of this service appreciated, and so deeply are the honor and interests of the United States involved in its success, that the Government will hesitate at no expense to complete the efficiency of the little army, and insure health and comfort to it, so far as attainable." He is told: "The prudence expected of you requires you to anticipate a resistance, general and organized, and to shape your movements as if it were certain, keeping the troops massed and in hand, when approaching expected resistance."

LIST OF REMITTANCES

Received through the postoffice during the month of February.

F. Y. R. Brandon	$5 00	E. T. Nabors	2,00
J. E. Barrett	2 00	J. N. S. Napier	2 00
W. Cunningham	2 00	N. B. Ously	2 00
A. J. Crawford	2 00	J. A. Peebles	2 00
M. A. Copper	2 00	W. B. Phillips	2 00
M. T. Crockett	2 00	W. Parker	2 00
R. Day	2 00	W. Pride	2 00
D. Dickinson	2 00	S. B. Robinson	2 00
L. F. Dowdell	2 00	W. H. Rogers	2 00
J. W. Dacus	2 00	R. A. Sibley	1 00
E. F. Ellis	2 00	C. S. Stewart	2 00
W. Ford	5 00	L. Seals	2 00
J. Fuqua	2 00	A. Skinner	2 00
H. Freeman	2 00	C. Stewart	5 00
R. T. Forsyth	2 00	J. C. Sellers	4 00
J. Glover	2 00	S. B. Surrett	44 00
W. Harrington	2 00	M. Shaeffer	2 00
R. T. Hennington	2 00	N. Snrsly	2 00
W. Iler	2 75	Dr. Trousdale	2 00
W. Jackson	2 00	E. Traweek	2 50
T. J. Jones	5 00	G. R. Talley	9 00
Dr. Jones	2 00	D. Upton	2 00
S. Jones	2 00	E. G. Winstead	2 00
S. Lay	2.00	R. B. Walsworth	2 00
H. T. Lewis	2 00	G. T. Winston	2 00
C. Lewis	2 00	J. Weaver	1 00
J. Matthews	4 00	A. C. Woodall	2 00
Judge McGehee	10 00	Q. Walker	2 00
E. Matthews	2 00	Mrs. Williams	2 00
E. Nicholson	2 00

☞ PERSONS WAITING TO THE OFFICE will please observe that business letters are filed by the clerk. If they write but three words to the Editor or for publication, they must so write it, that it can be separated from the business letters, if they expect the Editor ever to see it.

☞ THOSE WRITING TO DEPOSITORY will please observe the same rule. If matter for the three departments is contained on the same sheet, let it be so written that it can be seperated, or better still, write it on seperate slips; and then if it goes wrong, the fault is not with the writer—otherwise it will be.

In sending subscriber's names always give their Post-office, and say whether they are old or new.

In changing papers, always name the Post-office changed from as well as the one changed to.

The more a woman's waist is shaped like an hour glass, the more it shows us that her sands of life are running out.

Foreign Correspondence.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Jan., 1858.

We left Malta the last of December, but had the privilege before we sailed of visiting St. Paul's Bay, that most desirable and interesting spot upon the coast of Malta. We had too a perfect view of this singular island, its terraced gardens, villages and fine Churches, as its settlements continued all the way to the bay, with the Church, as tradition says, upon the spot where the fire was made out of which a viper fastened upon the hand of St. Paul. We did not enter the Church, but walked around the beach and stood upon the rocks looking out upon the same sea upon which the apostle was wrecked 1800 years ago. We could well imagine the scene, for the wind was very high and the waves dashed against the projecting cliffs with great power, throwing up the spray. We were told that in a storm they rose 15 or 20 feet upon the place where we stood. The whole coast is lined with rocks, and two little islands seemed to shut in the bay, making the passage more narrow. It seems as if it would be impossible for a ship to escape destruction if driven upon this coast in a storm. No tree or shrub adorns the coast—a desolate, dreary looking place, with no prospect but rocks; and the terraces are raised so high as to conceal all vegetation until you get near them. This bay is so near the ancient city of Melita that the question of the truth is hardly disputed, though attempted, of its being the veritable place of his wreck and of his residence on the island where he staid. They pretend to show the site of the Governor's house, Publicus, and house or cave under the cathedral, where tradition says he resided three months; with his statues in marble with the serpent upon pedestal in two different departments in the subterranean ruins. We were shown there by a priest with candles with great veneration.

We left in the evening to go on board a ship bound for Alexandria, amidst the most amusing scene among the natives, the mixed races of Arabic and Italian. Their gesticulations were more like madmen than any thing else. Each boatman was anxious to carry us and our baggage to the ship, and they would fight among themselves, jump, hop upon their knees, throw up their arms, and skip about in such pantomimic attitudes of agony, despair and expostulation, that one might have thought a great event was about to transpire in conducting us, a few English and Americans, to the ship. But we reached the ship at last and were again at sea in a storm for four days, crossing the Mediterranean to this city.

Our new year was ushered in upon the sea, with all on board sick; few only escaped. The steamboats are narrow and roll excessively. Sunday morning we came into the harbor of Alexandria, where large merchant ships lay at their moorings proudly magnificent, adding dignity to the first impressions of an eastern city of such ancient date. We were soon surrounded by strange boats, with strange people, whose language broke upon the ear with a different accent, and whose turbans and flowing garments were well suited to their bronzed but athletic figures, showing the common costume of oriental life among the lower classes. They crowded upon deck to get our baggage, but the officers showed them some weapons and made them stand back; for they are not to be trusted. We were at length ushered into Turkish boats and landed at the wharf amidst the confusion of tongues. Every thing was new and bore the impress of oriental age. There we met for the first time the large, awkward looking animal the camel, with an enormous burden upon his back, kneeling, with the Arab and Turk by his side, waiting the motion to rise when mounted—the most meek, submissive looking object upon earth, and one of the ugliest. A perfect mixture of human beings crowded around us of all colors and costumes.

We procured seats in an omnibus and were driven through the roughest, muddiest streets of any city we ever saw; for it rains in Alexandria, if not in other parts of Egypt. The sign of the crescent was seen along the streets over the shops, and we felt that we were in the land of Mahommed. We procured lodgings at an English hotel in the central part of the city, quite agreeable. The sign of the cross is here; a Greek and Roman Catholic Church close by us, as well as the mosque and minaret. The city has an European quarter and an European look: no antiquities, except Cleopatra's Needles and Pompey's Pillar, of any great interest. A great festival occurred in the Greek Church soon after our arrival, which brought out a multitude of people in their peculiar costume.

Along our walks the lofty palm rises in oriental grandeur, sending out its graceful, feathery leaf, beneath which the ripe date bends in rich luxuriance—but having all been gathered. It is placed upon our table for dessert every day, both the fresh and dried, with oranges of a fine flavor in great abundance.

Our party made an excursion upon donkeys, with their drivers, to Cleopatra's Needles and Pompey's Pillar, and looked upon its shaft, as presented in our pictures of it. Being placed upon low ground, it did not appear as high as it really is. The other lay buried in the earth, where an Arab took a stick and tried to remove the mud to show us a piece of its surface, which we could not see. We went through the outer gate of the city up a long avenue of cedars to the site of Pompsy's Pillar, which stands upon elevated ground, overlooking the sea and commanding a beautiful prospect of its waters and the coast around, with its singular buildings of mosques and minarets and mud villages. This ancient column, of red granite, highly polished and mounted with beautiful capitals, is superbly elegant in design and execution. Plain and simple, yet highly finished, it stands there scarcely touched by the scathing hand of time, to mark the spot near where he fell. It is relieved on one side by a vast Turkish cemetery, full of tombs, without the shadow of a tree or a tuft of hope to adorn the sad and mournful looking place—the most dreary in prospect of any thing of the kind we ever saw. On the other side is an Arab village, which had more the appearance of beaver dams than houses, being built of mud baked in the sun, with a door to creep in, but no sign of window, and some of them not more than 6 or 8 feet high. Swarms came out of them as we rode up to the pillar, crying out for backsheesh.

We have seen four funerals pass our door since we came, and heard their wailings in a low, chanting voice as they passed along. They were all Arabs—no coffin—the body wrapped in a shawl and laid on a bier borne upon the shoulders. They are buried without any other covering.

We had a ride upon donkeys through the Turkish, Arab and Gresk Bazaars. The streets were flowing with mud; but they wend their way along upon these little animals and the camel, which bears all their burdens with a meek and patient spirit. Each bazaar is characteristic of the people, who are seen with their various costumes and articles for sale. One thing they seem to enjoy in common—smoking: the pipe is always in their mouth—in their streets, where groups sit along the sidewalks—in their shops and their stalls the chibouk is there; the steam issuing through a bottle of water, refined and purified, the very aroma of tobacco it seems from the choice method it is used. There were some women in the bazaars with those hideous vails, which have a most repulsive aspect. The Nubian, as well as the Arabian and Turkish women wear the vail; for we caught at times a glimpse of their ebony complexion as well as their eyes. The dress of the Eastern men is graceful: the scarlet fez, with a large silk tassel floating upon the side, the turban twisted around the head, the wide trowsers fastened below the knee, rich cloaks thrown over the shoulders, and various oriental costumes set off their fine figures to advantage. The bazaars give a full representation of the different nations, and are filled with their wares and goods of all kinds and fruits of the earth—a strange mixture of people and things. They all sit upon their stalls to dispose of their goods, with their pipes in their mouths or by their side.

A VISIT TO THE PASHA'S PALACE.

Our party, consisting of seven, after a contest with the donkey drivers, who flock together in droves the moment one is wanted—and their vociferations are almost deafening—at last got fixed in our saddles and rode off to reach the palace, a privilege we felt to be of no common kind. It is situated upon the bay, with a fine prospect of the sea, a paved yard and marble steps leading to the water. The entrance in front is through a paved court, lined on each side with orange, lemon and citron trees loaded with fruit. We were led through a vestibule to a stairway richly carpeted, and the walls on each side covered with paper of velvet and gold. We ascended these steps, and at the top were obliged to put on slippers to walk through the apartment. The entrance hall above was beautifully finished, with a floor inlaid with delicate colored wood; but this only opened into a saloon of oriental magnificence, unlike any we had ever seen. It is a large circular hall, its walls lined with the richest damask silk, the vaulted arch ornamented entirely with gold, from which was suspended one of the largest glass chandeliers, of ingenious workmanship, which, if lighted, would fill the room with a most dazzling radiance. The mirrors were chaste and magnificent; the windows adorned with the most elegant and lively wrought gilded cornices, from which hung a drapery of the most costly satin flowered with gold. A few gilded ottomans and chairs, covered with embroidered satin, were placed near the walls, and part of the way down a few marble tables in gilded frames, with chairs by them of the same exquisite beauty. But the floor was the most perfect of all—inlaid with most precious and costly wood and ivory—commencing at the center in radiating form and extending to the wall it quite surpasses description. The whole so delicately wrought that the most splendid European palace would be proud of tables covered with such beautiful designs in wood. Butterflies surround the central piece, so true to life that they look as if ready to take wing. The border is exquisitely wrought in flowers, serpents, etc., and all kinds of devices, the perfection of beauty and art. The whole floor is polished like a mirror. I think it is called a council chamber; from the manner in which the tables are placed, it has the appearance of a business character. There are no paintings—no excess of furniture: every thing is so perfect in taste and arrangement that although truly magnificent yet not overburdened with ornament. His bed room is truly magnificent; the bedstead entirely of silver, with a most exquisitely wrought cornice, from which is suspended a drapery of royal purple flowered with gold and a heavy fringe and tassel of pure gold; a valance inside of yellow satin trimmed with gold. The furniture in the room is simple, adapted only to convenience. The room for his wardrobe is also simple with large armors entirely covered with mirrors set in gilded frames with ebony. The bath rooms are of pure white marble, with very little carving, and that chaste and elegant.—Altogether this palace of the viceroy of Egypt is the most unexceptionable we have seen, where oriental splendor has been brought to blend with the simplicity of true beauty. Two portraits of the royal family were the only pictures we saw, and they were in the outer rooms. The Pasha is a splendid looking man, of a noble figure, draped in European costume of a military kind, which he adopts. His countenance is noble and intellectual in expression, although he is said to be the reverse of that. The language spoken in the official departments of this city is Italian. There are many English houses where our language is spoken; even the Arab donkey drivers speak it sufficiently to accomplish their trades with us. Alexandria is a commercial city of importance, and our consul, from South Carolina, says, in dry weather it is a most delightful place; but it has rained every day since we came and filled the streets with mud like the slough of despond. We made an attempt to walk through the Turkish bazaar, but it was almost impossible. We looked at a few of their rich shawls and embroidered goods. There is an English Church in Alexandria, with service every Sabbath.

We left on the 7th for Cairo on the railway and had a fine view of the whole valley, stretched out like a vast plain; and we felt truly that we were in Egypt, the same country where Jacob sent his sons to buy corn, for there was plenty in Egypt; and we saw it again literally fulfilled all along the way, gathered and lying in such heaps of full ears, most gratifying to look upon. They appear to have no granaries, but large pens made of cane, where thousands of bushels were lying as we passed. We met large caravans of Arabs with camels and donkeys, and white tents in different places strewed over the ground, quite primitive and patriarchal in appearance. The most singular looking villages or cities were scattered along the way—mud walls and huts all clustering together—the mosque and minaret towering above them—the shepherd and his flocks scattered over the plains—the rich and fertile fields of grain or grass waving in the wind—the multitude of camels—the groups of Arabs seated upon the ground, presented a scene of picturesque beauty truly oriental, carrying the mind back to the period of scriptural history which they represent now as perfectly in many respects as then, as well as the habits, manners and costumes of the people. Here were the sons of Ishmael wandering over these plains with droves of camels and skins filled with water. All the drinkable water used in Alexandria is brought from the Nile in these skins upon the backs of camels and donkeys. We passed by the famous lake Marcotis, where the wild duck was playing unmolested in large groups upon its waters. Very few trees are seen in all the plains, except the palm, which bears the date. The climate is the best in the world, producing three crops of grain in a year. The fruits of the earth are abundant. The Pasha has certainly benefited the country by the railway facilitating the journey between Alexandria and Cairo—not a hill to pass over all the way. The rich, alluvial lands resemble those of Louisiana along the coast. We saw a few cotton fields, which had been picked. The stalks looked low compared to those of the rich lands of our country. The climate appears soft and balmy, with clear skies and golden sunsets, very beautiful in winter. We saw the Nile for the first time in crossing it to take the cars upon the other side, as there was no bridge. The river in color resembles the Mississippi, and appeared to flow rapidly. The crescent and star were seen upon the floating banner of the boat, and its deck was crowded with the indolent Turk, with fez, turban, loose trowsers and slippers, sitting cross-legged smoking his pipe in perfect repose. Turks, Egyptians and Nubians, all were there in the different groups of strange people.

S. B. THOMAS.

OLD AND YOUNG MEN.—One of the fathers saith, that there is but this difference between the death of old men and young men; that old men go to death, and death comes to young men.—Bacon.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW.—We are pleased to find in the Presbyterian, of Charleston, (S. C.,) 27th ult., these views about this republication:

"Let us have an honest infidelity, or, if it comes to us under a mask, let us compel it to show its face. The Westminster comes in company with the other reviews into the hands of many who, if it stood alone in its nakedness, would stand aloof from it. We would hope that if it continues these indecent assaults, no man who values the faith and peace of the young and unwary will lend it his patronage, or tolerate it in his family. But if this may not be, let us at least know what we are bargaining for. Let the enterprising re-publisher label it Infidel, instead of Liberal, as he would label his bottle of ratsbane or arsenic, Poison, and then we shall know what we are doing when we take it, read and circulate it. Let it be known and accounted by us as much an infidel publication as the writings of Voltaire, Paine or Strauss; it will then no longer march under false colors, and find entrance into the very citadel of unsuspecting faith."

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 10th, says:

The week opened with a fair degree of activity in our leading staples, and while prices are tell for Cotton, Tobacco and Molasses, a further considerable advance has taken place in Sugar. In the Western Produce market generally there is not much activity.

At a late hour on Saturday, after the close of business the European advices, from Liverpool to the 20th ultimo, one week later than those previously to hand were received, reporting a still further advance of a ¼d in the Liverpool cotton market, with sales for the week of 68,000 bales, and the quotations given are 7¾ for Fair Orleans and 7¼d for Middling do. The import of the week was 62,000 bales, and the whole stock in port was estimated at 230,000 bales. Money was easier, Breadstuffs had declined and Consols had advanced to 97¼ @ 07¾.

We noticed a heavy market at the close of our last report, but with easy prices the demand on Saturday became more active and general. Yesterday the demand was resumed with more activity, and resulted in sales of about 14,500 bales, and making a total for the three days of 40,000 bales. We have already remarked that the state of the freight and exchange markets has tended to impede the operations of purchasers, but still the firmness of holders has been such as to require a slight advance in our figures for Low Middling and Middling, the rates, though very irregular, having been generally rather more full since receipt of European advices.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	11 @ 11¼
Ordinary	8—@ 8¾	Good Middling	11¾ @ 12
Good Ordinary	9¼ @ 9¾	Middling Fair	12¼ @ —
Low Middling	10¼ @10¾	Fair	(nominal.

COTTON—Arrived since the 5th inst., of Louisiana and Mississippi 28,422 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 10,238, Arkansas 5112, Mobile 843, Florida 699, Texas 905; together 40,219 bales. Cleared since the same date, 25,719 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 9th inst. 439,759 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,166,083 bales, against 1,256,138 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 339,785 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease to Great Britain of 23,499 bales, to France of 42,183, and to other foreign ports of 62,225 bales.

SUGAR—Louisiana.—Since our last report, with continued good demand and a material falling off in the receipts, a further marked advance has been realized, to the extent in the Fair to Prime and Choice grades, of ¼ @ ½ cent, ℔ lb. The sales of the three days sum up 3300 hhds, and we now quote as follows:

Inferior and Refining	2¾ @ 3¾
Common to Good Common	4 @ 5
Fair to Fully Fair	5¾ @ 6¼
Prime	6¼ @ 7
Choice	7¼ @ 7¾
Centrifugal and Clarified	8¾ @ 10

MOLASSES—27 @ 30 for Fermenting to Choice in barrels, and 34@35 ℔ gallon in half barrels.

FLOUR—$4 25 @ 4 37½ for Ohio and Indiana, and $4 50 @ 5 75 for Choice Extra.

GRAIN—Corn 52@56. Oats 40@42½ ℔ bushel. Bran 70c ℔ 100 lbs.

PROVISIONS—Mess Pork $10 @ 16 25. Bacon—Sides 9c. Shoulders 7@7½. Plain Hams 9c ℔ lb. Lard 9@11½ ℔ lb.

HAY—$23 ℔ ton for Western.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

McLEAN'S

Strengthening Cordial

AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

THE GREATEST REMEDY IN THE WORLD!!

This Cordial is well tried from a heavy sickness only to myself, and chemically combined with some of the most valuable medicinal Roots, Herbs and Barks known to the mind of man, viz: Blood Root, Stock Root, Wild Cherry Bark, Yellow Dock, Dandelion, Sarsaparilla, Elder Flowers with others, producing the most infallible remedy for the restoration of health ever known.

IT IS NATURE'S OWN REMEDY,

curing disease by natural means. When taken, it builds up infinction is left coursing through every vein of the body, purifying and ameliorating the circulation of the blood. It not alone says bilious matter in the stomach, and gives tone to the whole organization.

McLEAN'S STRENGTHENING CORDIAL

will speedily cure Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from Disorder of the Liver or Stomach, such as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Rush of Blood to the Head, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Sinking Fits, Depression of Spirits, Nausea, Nervousness, General Lassitude, Lack of Energy, Loss of Memory, Blotches on the Skin or Face, Pimples or Blotches on the Face or Skin, Inflammation of the Blood, Melancholy or Depression of Spirits, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Bloody Flux, Costiveness of the Bowels, Toward Piles, in fact it is a cure for all complaints arising from Disorder of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Nervousness, General Debility, Impure Blood, Loss of Memory, Bilious Fluding, Great Liver Complaint, and Fever and Ague or Chills and Fever. It will also cure diseases of the Bladder and Womb, such as Seminal Weakness, Inflammation of Urino, Strangury, Inflammation or Weakness of the Womb or Bladder, &c.

THERE IS NO MISTAKE ABOUT IT.

This Cordial will not fail to cure any of the above diseases, if taken as per directions on each bottle. In English, German and French.

OVER HALF A MILLION OF BOTTLES

have been sold during the last six months, and in no instance has it failed in giving entire satisfaction. Who then will suffer from weakness or debility when McLean's Strengthening Cordial will cure you?

TO THE LADIES.

Do you wish to be healthy and strong? Then go at once and get McLean's Cordial. It will strengthen and invigorate your whole system causing a healthy and pure circulation of the blood to flow through every vein, and the rich, rosy bloom of health to mount to your cheek again.

EVERY BOTTLE IS WARRANTED TO GIVE SATISFACTION.

FOR CHILDREN.

We say to parents, if your children are sickly, puny, or afflicted with complaints prevalent among children, give them a small quantity of McLean's Cordial and it will make them healthy fat and robust.—Delay not a moment. Try it and you will be convinced.

IT IS DELICIOUS TO TAKE.

EVERY COUNTRY MERCHANT

should not leave the city until he has procured a supply of McLean's Strengthening Cordial. It sells rapidly, because it always cures. A liberal discount will be made to those who buy to sell again.

Caution—Beware of druggists or dealers who may try to palm upon you some bitter or Sarsaparilla trash with which they can buy cheap by saying it is as good. Avoid such men. Ask for McLean's strengthening Cordial, and take nothing else. It is the only remedy that will purify the blood thoroughly, and at the same time strengthen the system.

One table spoonful taken every morning fasting is a certain preventive for Cholera, Chills and Fever, Yellow Fever, or any other prevalent disease.

Price only $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.

J. H. McLEAN, Sole Proprietor,

Also, of McLean's Volatile Oil Liniment.

☞ Principal depot corner Third and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

McLEAN'S VOLCANIC OIL LINIMENT.

THE BEST LINIMENT IN THE WORLD FOR MAN OR BEAST

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CURE

Performed by McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. Read for yourselves:

Thomas Ford, a black smith, living near Cass avenue, on Tenth street, had a horrible rumpling sore on his foot. He tried various Liniments, Salves, etc., but could do it no good. He despaired of ever being able to work at his trade again, because he could not bear any weight on his foot; and by one small bottle of McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment, he is now perfectly cured.

Rheumatism in paralysis, neuralgia, bruises, sprains, stiffness in the joints or muscles, swellings, sore throat, ear ache or tooth ache, wounds, fresh cuts, sores, burns, scalds, pains, etc., yield to the "magic" influence of this wonderful Liniment.

For Horses and Cattle it is an infallible remedy for chafes, galls, scratches, cracked heels, lameness, spavin, sweeny, splint, fistula, bruises, swellings, wounds, rattlesnake bites, and various other diseases which animals are liable to from injuries or accidents.

Every country merchant should obtain a supply of McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment.

A liberal discount will be made to merchants who buy to sell again.

For sale by J. H. McLEAN, Proprietor, corner Third and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

J. WRIGHT & Co., 21 and 181 Chartres st., Wholesale Agents for New Orleans.

feb 27

WINER'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE contains the elements of life and death. It will destroy, with certainty every species of worms considered in the stomach and bowels and save the life of the child with pain, by its operation. Whenever the presence of worms is suspected, the medicine should be promptly given. It will have a healthful influence in all cases where the digestive and excretory organs are deranged; and if worms exist it will expel them without pain and quickly cure the sufferer.

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Winer's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by I. WRIGHT & CO., 181 Chartres st.

INFORMATION WANTED of John R. Cooke, who left Gonzales, La., about seven years ago. Any one who will give such information as will enable a friend to find him will confer a favor upon the undersigned by addressing him at Gonzales, La., or this office. Mar 6

NEW ORLEANS WHOLESALE PRICES CURRENT.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 13 @ 15
East India	— 11½ @ 14
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½ @ 8½
Northern	— @ —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 @ 27
BLANKETS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 @ 12 00
English	25 00 @ 30 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— 75 @ —
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 10 @ 11½
Havana, good, pr g'n	— 12½ @ 13
—— Interior to middling	— @ —
Java	— 19 @ 20
Laguayra	— 11½ @ 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 43 @ —
Tallow	— @ —
Adamantine	— 20 @ 22
Star	— 19 @ 11
CORN-MEAL, per bbl	— @ —
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 5 @ 8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 @ 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 6½ @ 10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 @ 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ @ 13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	— 12 @ 15
Ticklegs, ¾ to 4-4	— 9 @ 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ @ 16
Denims	— 7½ @ 16
Cottonades	— 12½ @ 25
Satinets	— 25 @ 75
Calico Prints	— 5 @ 15
Jeans, Kentucky	— 40 @ 45
Linseys, Kentucky	— 30 @ 35
—— Eastern	— 18 @ 22
DUCK, Ilorsia, per bolt	— @ —
English	10 00 @ 18 50
Am. No 2 to 10 pr yd	— 19 @ 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 @ 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 50 @ —
Illinois and Missouri	4 60 @ 4 62½
St. Louis City	4 62 @ 4 75
FEATHERS, per lb	— 40 @ 45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 25 @ —
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 @ 14 00
—— No. 2	10 00 @ 13 00
—— No. 3	8 50 @ 10 50
Herring, per box	— 35 @ 55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12 @ 15
Raisins MR, per box	2 00 @ 2 12½
Lemons	2 00 @ 2 50
Currants, Zante	— @ —
Almonds, soft shell	— @ —
—— hard shell	— @ —
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 5 @ 25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 70 @ 1 20
Oats	— 42½ @ 46
Corn, in car, per bbl	— @ —
—— shelled, per bushel

POETRY.

THE PROVIDENCE OF WOMEN.

BY HANNAH MORE.

As some fair violet, loveliest of the glade,
Sheds its mild fragrance on the lonely shade,
Withdraws its modest head from public sight,
Nor courts the sun, nor seeks the glare of light;
Should some rude hand profanely dare intrude,
And bear its beauties from its native wood,
Exposed abroad its languid colors fly,
Its form decays, and all its odors die.
So woman, born to dignify retreat,
Unknown to flourish, and unseen be great;
To give domestic life its sweetest charm;
With softness polish, and with virtue warm;
Fearful of fame, unwilling to be known,
Should seek, but Heaven's applause and her own;
Should dread no blame but that which crimes impart,
The censures of a self-condemning heart.

OBITUARIES.

THE DEATH OF MRS. DOWNS.—Some truths are so startling and painful that they fall at first to make their proper impression on the mind. It is only by frequent contemplation that they become stern and startling realities. Amongst such truths is found the loss of dear valued friends. Death seems so strange. To leave the sunny world, and dear scenes of joy; sweet singing birds, and blooming flowers, to part with loved parents, and kiss sweet sisters and brothers with lips blanched and chill with the shadows of the tomb; to bid adieu forever to a devoted husband, noble, and pure, and good, to say farewell to those who have made life one constant joy, and then go down into the sunless, soapless gravel To go down in the bloom of youth, before twenty summers have shed their light and fragrance on the path of womanhood!—How painful to contemplate. How hard to realise even when we are eye witnesses of the spectacle of woe, and the solemn pageantry of death! Over and again we ask, can it be so? Looking on the marble brow, the once musical, but sealed and snowy lips, we even try to persuade ourselves it is all a dream. But, alas! the solemn realization of all that is in an instance of recent occurrence, but too mournfully true. Such was the death of Mrs. Mary A. Downs, the wife of James R. Downs, of Warren, toward the close of the sad and ever memorable January, 1858.

The purling brook is lost in the arid and darksome desert. The star of beauty is shorn of its lustre and shrouded in the cerements of the grave. Does earth or nature know anything more desolating?

Who, dissolved, can contemplate the ordeal from day to day, while every hour urges the frail body toward its destination! And yet there is a key to the mystery of death. A secret power that turns the night of dying into the morning of life. It changes the "valley of the shadow of death" into the vestibule of the "House not made with hands."

That key is the Cross. That power, the life in Christ. The Crucified alone can lead the dying soul in triumph over death to the abode of the just. Of the departed it may be said; without the exaggerations so often indulged on occasions of death, that a more marked and striking illustration of the power of piety to charm and cheer the dying hour, is very rarely ever witnessed. Her departure, justified the Psalm:

> Triumphant smiles the victor's brow,
> Fanned by some guardian angel's wing,
> O grave! where is thy victory now?
> And where, O death! is now thy sting?

Her father, Rev. Dr. J. P. Thomas, of Madison, as a teacher of those great and saving doctrines, as also the devoted mother, may find abundant consolation in their bereavement from the amazing display of the grace of the Redeemer in the dying victories of their loved and sainted child. With those who, not lost, but gone before, what re-unions await us! Haste happy day!

Vicksburg, Feb. 1858. CYPRESS.

DIED—On the 22d inst., after a short illness, at the residence of his brother-in-law, Dr. Cheris, Vermillion parish, the Rev. J. H. Warren, member of the Louisiana Conference, and for the two past years preacher in charge of the New Iberia circuit.

More than two years since, when the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us," resounded from the Louisiana Conference, the subject of this brief notice, actuated by the true missionary spirit, left his native Tennessee and a widowed mother, to labor in the vineyard "where the harvest was plenty but the laborers were few." Religion exhibited her most heartfelt coloring in the life of this excellent man, and truly it may be said of the departed that he was like "a city set upon a hill." In his circle of friends and acquaintances, and in the Church, he was a pattern of practical and inward piety, an uncharitable remark never escaping his lips. Humility and meekness were characteristics of his life. He was courteous, affable and social, and seemed to live and act like one deeply impressed with the solemn truth, "Thou God seest me." Example has language powerful to the sensitive soul, and nothing is more eloquent than the deportment of one whose soul is filled with the essence of true piety. How often has the young convert, when bowed by heavy and manifold temptations, been encouraged to trust fully in the unbounded mercy and protection of the Great Eternal by the, sweet counsels of that beloved one whose lips are now forever hushed in death, and "whose life was a living sermon of the truths he taught." We have heard an particulars of his last moments; but as his life was one even and upward course, we doubt not his end was peace.

> Thou art gone, thou art gone, to thy beautiful home,
> Forever with seraphs of glory to rest;
> Never, never, will sorrow sweep over thy soul,
> For naught can disturb in the home of the blest.
>
> Thou art gone, thou art gone, thy home is made sad,
> Thy partner with sorrow is keenly oppressed;
> But while she is weeping the message floats by,
> And tells thou are safe in the home of the blest.
>
> Thou art gone, thou art gone we envy thy flight,
> And sigh with thy spirit in glory to rest;
> For we know the Emmanuel the Savior who died,
> Reigns Captain and King in the home of the blest.

Feb. 27, 1858. R.

MRS MARY HOOVER, wife of Hon. Christian Hoover, died at their residence in Pike county, Mi., Feb. 3, 1858, in the 51st year of her age. While young she sought and obtained "a knowledge of salvation by the remission of her sins," and became an exemplary member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In this character she entered upon the responsibilities and active duties of mature womanhood; and in the various relations of domestic, social, and religious life she steadily sustained the reputation of a consistent Christian. During her last illness, which was protracted through several weeks, she enjoyed much of "the full assurance of hope," and "held the beginning of her confidence steadfast unto the end." The earnest and melting exhortations which she gave to her husband, children, and servants to seek a scriptural preparation for death and a re-union with her in heaven, will never be forgotten by them. Her oft repeated prayer for "dying grace," superadded by her triumphal repetition of "Glory! Hallelujah!" told that all was well in death. Being in the vicinity at the time of her death, I had the mournful duty to perform of preaching her funeral, and committing her body to the tomb in hope of a glorious resurrection to immortality and eternal life. Many were the tears shed on that occasion by her bereaved husband, eight children, and numerous friends who came to witness her burial, and many were our aspirations to meet her in the Church triumphant. The world is much the better for having had an interest in her prayers, and witnessing her exemplary piety from her early youth. J. G. JONES.

Bellegrove, Feb. 17, 1858.

DIED—At the residence of her husband (Rev. Isaac Gregory) in Pickens county, Ala., 11th of Feb., 1858, in the 55th year of her age, HARRIET B. GREGORY, in the full triumphs of the Christian faith. She was the daughter of Col. Wm. Johnson.

In 1812 she embraced religion and was enabled to realize that God hath power on earth to forgive sins, at which time she joined the M. E. Church, of which she continued a consistent member up to the time she exchanged a world of grief and sorrow for a world of joy and bliss. In early life she gave her hand to the Church, her heart to God, and her life and services to the cause of Christ.

Sister G. was an uncompromising Christian and lived to see all her children connect themselves with the Church. A great blessing and priviledge which few enjoy.

Clinton, Ala., Feb. 22. E. C. HARDY.

MRS MARTHA L. POWELL, relict of the late Edward Powell, departed this life on the 13th inst., at West Port, near this city. She was a native of Virginia, where she married William Ridout. After his death she removed to Rutherford county, Tenn., and married Edward Powell; they returned to Virginia, and from thence came to this country, in the year 1837, where she resided till the time of her decease.

Mrs. Powell professed religion and joined the M. E. Church while young, and has been a steady and consistent Christian through life. I am not in possession of the precise time of her birth, but would judge her to have been about 60 years of age at the time of her decease. I have been acquainted with sister Powell several years, and always regarded her as an excellent woman; who endeavored to discharge her duties as a wife and a mother faithfully. She was so situated as to be deprived of the privileges of the sanctuary much of her time in the latter part of her life; but she never cast away her confidence, and when death came to summon her away, he found her with her Christian armor on. She met the king of terrors with composure, and gave her weeping friends assurance that she was going home to heaven. "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his."

Columbus, MI., Feb. 26, 1858. G. SHAEFFER.

Departed this life, CAROLINE, daughter of Mr. E. H. and Mrs. M. A. Wells, aged five years and two months. This amiable and happy child, lovely and beloved, has been most suddenly and sadly torn away. On Tuesday morning well and happy, on Wednesday morning a "shrouded corpse: While playing about the fire, her dress suddenly caught in a blaze, and before it was possible to extinguish it, she was injured beyond the hope of recovery, and after a few hours of agony, was released from pain and taken to the presence of Him who said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time,
When what we now deplore
Shall rise in full immortal prime,
And bloom to fade no more."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

POOR BESSY.

"Who was poor Bessy, mamma?" said little Frances Campbell, as she sat one day on her little stool beside her mamma, humming a silk handkerchief for her papa; "Who was poor Bessy, mamma? Was she a little girl?"

"What makes you ask the question, my love?" asked her mamma.

"Because, mamma, the other day I heard you say something to aunt Lucretia about 'Poor Bessy,' and then I saw tears in your eyes."

"Well, my child," replied her mother, when you see any one's eyes filled with tears in speaking on any subject, a little girl like you should be very careful how you ask questions about it,—for you may possibly give them a great deal of pain by being so inquisitive."

"I am sorry I gave you any pain, mamma; I will try to remember and not do the same thing again," said Frances, blushing.

Her mother bent down and kissed her little cheek, saying, "You gave me no pain, my dear; but I wished to warn you, lest at any time you might do so to others, by indulging in an idle and sometimes disagreeable curiosity about what you hear said. 'Poor Bessy,' my dear Frances, was only a dog."

"A dog, mamma! and did you cry when you only named her?" asked Frances.

"Yes, my child, and I am not ashamed to do so, for 'Poor Bessy' saved your life;—but for her I would not now have you, my love, seated at my side."

"How, mamma,—saved my life! and how did I never hear of it?"

"Because you were too young to know what 'Poor Bessy' had done for you, or to remember it; and you have ever been so heedless, and so thoughtless, that I would not tell you till I saw it was likely to make a fitting impression on your mind."

"But, dear mamma, I am trying to be more steady and more obedient now—am I not?"

"Yes, my child, I am very happy to say that you are. And you must be earnest and anxious in your prayers to your Heavenly Father, for His assistance in this and all your other little duties, and in restraining your inclination to do what is wrong and sinful. No one ever makes such a prayer to Him in vain."

"Yes, mamma, I used to do wrong oftener from forgetfulness than from a wish to be bad, and then I was sorry, very sorry. But now, something, I don't know what, just puts me in mind when I am going to be careless or bad."

Mrs. Campbell clasped her little girl in her arms, with feelings which only a mother can know. Then putting her down, she said,

"I will now, my love, tell you the story of 'Poor Bessy.' About seven years ago, when you were scarcely two years old, your papa was having an addition built to this house, and when the joiners were at work, I often went into the new part to see how they got along, and to give them some directions. On these occasions I often observed, and sometimes patted the head of a large brown dog, which I supposed belonged to the workmen. Once I had occasion to go in after they had gone away for the night, and I found this dog lying on some shavings in a corner of one of the rooms. I ordered it to rise and go home,—it rose very slowly and reluctantly, and I spoke angrily to it, and told it to go home immediately. It then walked slowly out of the room, and I followed with the light, that I might see if it really went out the door, and not into some of the other rooms. The night was dark and rainy—the poor dog moved to the outside door, and then stood still and looked back at me, with such a sorrowful and imploring look, as if it had said, 'Oh! take pity on me,—don't turn me out in the rain—I have no house to go to!'

"I could not resist the look—I said to it kindly, 'Poor thing—do you wish so much to stay!—perhaps you will not be made very welcome at home, and you are doing no harm here, you may stay.' The poor animal seemed perfectly to understand me, for it looked up so gladly in my face, licked my hand, and instantly ran back to its bed of shavings, which I had rousted it from. Next day I said to the workmen, that I wished they would not leave their dog when they went away at night."

"Our dog, ma'am," they said; "we thought it was your dog; it belongs to none of us."

"And where did it come from, mamma?" asked Frances.

"That we never found out, my child; but there it was, and it would not go away. It showed no wish to come into the house, but lay in the yard and watched night and day, like an old and faithful servant. The only dog you had ever seen was called Bess, and when you first saw this poor dog, you called it 'Beffy, Beffy,' and so it got the name you gave it.—About a year after the time it first came about the house, I was one day going out to walk with you, and I stopped just outside the gate to speak to a neighbor; meanwhile you let go my hand and trotted down the street alone, quite proud that mamma could not catch you. When I looked round, you had got some distance from me, and just at that moment I heard a great shouting and screaming of people; a very large, fierce-looking dog rushed round the corner, and ran straight toward you, and I heard the shouts of 'a mad dog!—a mad dog!' Oh, my child, never, till you are a mother, can you conceive my feelings at that moment! I flew toward you—but, oh! I was still three or four yards from you, and the dog was so close that it seemed impossible to save you, when 'Poor Bessy,' whom I had not before seen, darted between you and him, and seized him by the throat. I caught you in my arms, and I remembered nothing more till I found myself and you in your papa's arms, in the house."

"And Bessy, mamma?" cried Frances.

"Ah! my love, 'Poor Bessy!' she died to save your life!"

"How, mamma?"

"Because, my dear child, dogs bitten by one that is mad, always take the same dreadful distemper. 'Poor Bessy' was sadly torn in the struggle with that large and ferocious dog,—and, do not ask any more, my love,—'Poor Bessy' died that night."

Frances sobbed on her mother's bosom; when she could speak she said, "Oh, mamma, mamma, whenever I do wrong, remind me of 'Poor Bessy;' she was but a dog; and I am a human being—and yet I am not half as good as she. Oh, mamma, mamma, I will never, never forget what I owe 'Poor Bessy;' how can I be grateful enough to her?"

Mrs. Campbell pressed the little girl closely in her arms. "Yes, my love, be grateful to 'Poor Bessy;' never, never forget what she did for you. But in remembering the gift, oh, my child, forget not the Giver. Never, for one moment, allow to be swept out of your mind the grateful remembrance of that Almighty Father who causes every event, and who careth for us all, and maketh all things work together for the good of those who love Him,—that God who preserved you, and in whom we all live, and move, and have our being."

PROFESSIONAL.

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
Office (for the present) 120 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U S. House of Representatives; Hon. I. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. H. R. McAnally—St. Louis; Oglesby & Macauly, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6 2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.
HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts.
A Servant at the Office day and night. oct.3,6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Wens, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. H. LAURANS.
LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F. WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Marchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.
Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. C. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
C. W. HUNTINGTON. WM. H. DAMSON
Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

S. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.
Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures
EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.
He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANDS, humors are his almost failing exam cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Whom the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and many other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 16 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished if desired: mb21-1y

R. H. READ. J. BOHART HEDGES.
READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.
DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street, between Camp and St. Charles streets
Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society
Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound
BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,
Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.
Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.
Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. H CLEGHORN, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.
MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.
Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb. 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!
The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"
No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,
KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for, cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.
The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We collect contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Address, REV. E. H. CLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union," feb 27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

T. T. TWITTY,
COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh14tu

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. ain30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices. L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS,
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
.....AT.....
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street.) Box, No 588 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS I BELLS II BELLS III BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes LOWER than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICAS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nuns & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Musical every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. PINNEY
ep20 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House:
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS, and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing else where. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House in the sign of the big copper pot. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29-6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116 CANAL STREET 116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
Jan16-13t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 118 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 16 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell, Job Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Kenny, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorised to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses; household furniture and personals property federally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent.

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and despatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a26-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, } {A. MONFERMES,
W. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. } {GEO. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
a19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.
ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 3

SAVE YOUR HORSES.
We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for severe Burns, Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.
J. W. HEWITT,
Foreman for American, Herndon's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express.
Gentlemen—I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him. Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.
feb.13 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

INFORMATION WANTED of Johnny Carzier, who left Georgetown, N. Y., seven years ago. Any one will confer a great favor upon his sister by giving any information of him since that time.
Address this office. mar 6

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.
Rev. H. C. TIWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
REO. W. THACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE A. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles-Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. DUBOIS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURILLA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Parser.
Two vacancies will be filled by competent persons.
RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil,	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.
Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.
Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent. interest will be charged.
Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.
No deduction from fee bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal.☜
Books, stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.
Semi annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.
Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.
All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.
The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.
The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.
All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.
THE Trustees of this prosperous Institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana. Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASSON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College of Louisiana.
THE next term of this Institution will open on MONDAY the 9th of October, 1856.
FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLLOMON, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WEST, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLCUTT, B. B., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. O. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department..... 5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This Institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pup

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 7. WHOLE NUMBER 370.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MARCH 20, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE OFFICE—813 CAMP ST.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[CONTINUED FROM OUR LAST.]

I left home, in company with a beloved cousin d friend, Stevenson Fowler, a son of the r. James Fowler, who gave me some books doctrines, hoping that I would be saved from ese great errors, propagated by Arminians. ook the books with thanks to the good man, mising to read them. We started out into wide world, made our way across the Blue dge, the Iron Mountain and some others. was new—mountains, beautiful springs, small rivers, rich valleys, bearing fine crops corn. The farmers had just commenced thering the corn, as it was in the fall of the r 1792. We were well pleased in traveling n the rivers, Watauga, and Nalacheekey; country appeared to us romantic, and we d the people kind. We had some relations Nalacheekey river, in Green county, all ing considerable families. We called to them, get acquainted and rest a few days. e were entire strangers to each other; had n acquainted by writing only. They re- ved us joyfully. This is what is now called st Tennessee, then a new country and bor- ring upon the Cherokee line, who were then open war with the settlers of Kentucky and nessee; and frequent massacres were com- tted by the Indians five or six miles from the bitations of my uncle. When a murder was mmitted, the Indians were pursued and some- es taken and killed. Thus the whites lived d enjoyed themselves quite well, being fear- s of the enemy, keeping themselves armed d ready to avenge the blood of their fellow- izens any time when called for. After we d been here among our friends a few days, ey began to press on us to stay among them, the roads to Cumberland and Kentucky were ngerous, and many were murdered on the y. They wished us to teach school for them, there could be two very good schools raised out six miles apart. We agreed to do so; e schools were soon made up and we com- nced about the same time. I taught an glish school five days in the week and a ging school on Saturday. Thus I felt well ployed all the time and on the Sabbath we uld hear the Rev. Hezekiah Balch preach at s chapel at Greenville.

The first time I went to hear him I paid par- ular attention to his sermon, hearing that he as a very learned Presbyterian preacher. I t a little to one side, made some notes on his visions and doctrines for my own satisfaction. e of his congregation asked me, after meet- g, if I was not studying divinity in order to come a preacher, as he saw me making tes? I told him I was not; but did so to et a right knowledge of what I heard, which as the truth, for I had no design of criticising, t to gain knowledge. This was what I always sired from my youth up, to get good sound nowledge on every subject on which I ought or spoke. I never could take the wrong de of a question in a debate knowingly. I d no particular objections to the Rev. H. aleh or his doctrines in general, as they were ractical and led to obedience and virtue; but had some objections to his strong prejudices gainst other denominations. It is true, he as a predestinarian; but moderate. I also ttended Methodist preaching frequently, and ought well of their doctrines, practice and arity. They were willing that all should be ved and come to the knowledge of the truth: is pleased me, for I did wish to be saved; and thought if God ever passed by one he might ss by me. While I was teaching school I ought it my duty to teach the children, every vening after spelling, some important truth hich might lead them from vice to virtue. I ould ask them about God; what was his will oncerning us; what is religion; what is re- entance; what is faith; what will be the end f the good people, and also of the wicked? fter asking such questions, and hearing their houghts on them, I would try to explain and ake all plain to their minds and then give hem some useful questions to be answered by very one the next evening before I gave them y ideas on it. This I think was useful; but trange to think, I myself was in bondage to in. Also, in my singing school, I felt solemn hen singing many beautiful lines; my heart was pained within me. While thus employed I enjoyed myself very well, except dying and going to judgment, which haunted my guilty onscience, as I believe it does all gospel aught sinners. I lived six years in this settle- ment in Green county, in which time I married, settled myself and worked hard for the com- mon supports of life, served a term of three months against the Indians, passed through many dangers, once narrowly escaped being drowned in swimming a river; at another time ventured my life to save a drowning man, taking him from the jaws of death, when he was about to sink the third time. I removed to Virginia to please my wife's father and mother, whom I loved as I did my own; only stayed there about three months; made a little money and set out for Kentucky, on the last day of March, 1798. I remained one year in Lexing- ton, Ky., taught school nine months, made a crop of corn, sold out and removed to Shelby county, the place of my spiritual and second birth, of which I will now speak. I made a good crop, the first year, got a good start and began to live comfortably, after a long round of troublesome removes. Now I be- gan again to think of God's unspeakable goodness to me from my infancy. I had a good companion and three fine, promising children; but while viewing my ungratefulness to God and his goodness to me, I was taken with the fever and in a few days despaired of life, without the hope of future happiness. My case appeared just as it was, a desperate one. I prayed or tried to pray for mercy; but thought it too late. I had broken my covenants so often, God will hear me no more. I thought if some of the preachers would come and pray for me perhaps God would hear them. While I was thinking of these things, an old Methodist man came in to see me; he asked me how I was. I said bad enough; I believe I shall die. He said what do you think about dying? I said I do not regard death if I was prepared for it; but I am not. O, that some of the preachers would come and pray for me. He said if you are will- ing I will pray for you. The old man bowed down and prayed so sincerely for me that I got faith that God would restore me again, and I mended from that moment. I set out to seek the Lord; but the more I prayed the worse I got in my estimation; for I began to see the power and opposition of the carnal mind within, which is enmity against God. I was in bondage to an enemy too strong for me—one bred and born and raised up in my very nature. A strong man kept his goods in safety. I saw the good and right way. My mind was enlight- ened by God's word and Spirit. I strove to do good; but evil, the carnal mind, was present; my heart was hard—so hard that it refused to bend or break. I attended preaching, reading the word of God and private prayer for months. This was the desire of my heart to be holy, and I strove to get the victory day after day. I knew my enemy was my carnal mind, and I believed that none but God, none but Christ the Savior could deliver me; but the question in my mind was, Will he save me—will he ever speak and say, "I will, be thou clean?" Doubts arose. I thought perhaps my day of grace was past. What shall I do? The promise came: "Seek and ye shall find." My heart said, Lord I will seek thee while I have breath, and if I perish I will perish at thy feet. I had a little hope that God, for Christ's sake, would have mercy upon me; for I saw that by the rules of justice I was damned; and if Jesus Christ did not pay my debt, I was gone. So I cried, "Lord save, or I perish." I tried to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ with my whole heart and mind. On the 11th of May, 1800, I set out to a meeting to hear the Rev. Gabriel Woodfield, a Methodist, preach. I went praying on my way, and before I came to the house turned aside to pray, in secret, that God would do something for me that day; and while on my knees I felt a comfortable hope that God would do that work within my heart which I so much desired. I went to the meeting; the congregation was large. The preacher gave out a hymn and we sung together. I felt glad I was there. When we kneeled in prayer, my heart was broke for sor- row to think I had been so ungrateful, to so good a father and preserver as God had always been to me. I wept all the time the preacher was preaching. I had a hope that these good Methodists would pray for me before they left the house; but the people were dismissed; all went away and left me alone pleading with God for mercy and resolving to obey him, as a servant, if I should never be received as a son. I prayed in my family from that time, and be- gan to talk to all my family and friends, pray- ing them to turn to God and go with me to heaven, although I had no witness of my own pardon. I said to all around me, "I will serve God or die a trying." Three weeks passed on in this way with me. Some said I would go crazy. I replied I had better lose my senses than my soul. On Sunday, the last day of May, I went to a Baptist meeting. The Rev. Mr. Morris preached rather a cold sermon; yet I was glad to hear any kind of preaching, so it led the mind to God. After preaching he sat down by me, conversed with me on the subject of religion. I was pleased and talked freely. He asked me to tell him the exercise of my mind on the subject of religion, and also what I had experienced. I did so, telling him freely without keeping any thing back. When I had ended speaking he asked me if I was willing he should tell me what he thought of me. I said I was, but, before he spoke a word, I re- tracted and said, no sir, I am not willing you should tell me what you think of me. Why, said he, are you not willing. I replied, a thought ran through my mind that you will tell me that I have religion and that my soul was converted, which I think would be danger- ous for me; it might settle my soul on a sandy foundation, for I know that I have not the wit- ness of God's Spirit in me that I am born again. But I hope I shall yet be made free indeed; I want the witness. He laughed and said, the devil is very cunning. After a little time I thought I was under a wrong apprehen- sion; perhaps the good man was about to tell me something that might be for my good. I then said, sir, I am willing you should tell me honestly what you think of me. He said if you are willing, I will do so. I am perfectly willing. Well, said he, if ever I had religion in my life you have got it. My experience and yours are the same. My soul was converted some time before I would consent to believe it; but meet- ing with men of experience, they convinced me that I had religion, and if I would believe it then I would be satisfied. I did believe it and now have been preaching many years and have never gone farther than the hope you have got. You are looking for a miracle, but you will never get it in this life. I sat and wept to think, if this be true that I must live all my days on a mere hope that I am converted, and never get the witness, never be made free until death. He then told me my experience was good, and if I would then go with him to the water he would baptise me with the Christ- tian baptism. But I could not consent to re- ceive baptism on my present experience. So I bid him farewell, and returned home, but can not describe the exercise of my troubled and embarrassed mind through that evening and night. I had set up prayer in my family three weeks before. On the night after hearing G. Woodfield preach we had family prayer. I thought I would still wait on the Lord, hoping he would do something more for me. The morning being the Sabbath, the first day of June, 1800, I arose early; the birds were singing songs of praise to God. I felt a desire to join them in the solitary grove. I left my family in bed, walked to the grove, where all nature was still and solitary except the little innocent birds. I thought, God will do something for me this morning; I will kneel here and wrestle with him in prayer. I fell on my knees to pray; but the Holy Spirit was be- forehand with me, and on me, and in me. Be- fore I made one petition my intended prayer was turned into praises to Him who had loved me and washed me in his own blood. I had the witness, God's Spirit bearing witness with my spirit that I was a child of God: I experi- enced the truth of God's word, he that believeth on the Son hath life. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him. Old things were passed away—all ap- peared new. I loved him because he first loved me; I also loved the whole human family. My heart was united in love to the children of God. I loved them as myself, and I loved the unconverted with a love of pity. O Lord, I will praise thee for the unspeakable blessing freely given to prepare my unworthy soul for union and communion with the Father, and with his Son; my only Savior Jesus Christ: glory to God. Although forty-two years have gone by since I received that unspeakable blessing, yet I feel the same thing. Glory to God, who is just and justifies all who believe in Jesus Christ. And now being justified by faith I had peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. After I had received the witness of my accep- tance with God, I saw clearly that it was the free gift of God through faith. I saw a full and free salvation in Christ for the whole world, and I desired to tell what God had done for me, and what he was willing to do for all. I returned to the house filled with joy and peace to tell my wife what God had done for me, and that he was willing to pardon all her sins; and that if she would now give up her heart to him he would shed abroad his love in her soul. She wept but seemed slow to believe. I left her to visit some mourners I had seen the day before. I went full of joy to let them know how they might be happy through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. They also wept, but seemed slow of heart to believe and receive the blessing. I went on to the Baptist meeting. Mr. Morris, the minister I had conversed with the evening before, met me in the yard, gave me his hand, asking me how I felt to-day. I said, much bet- ter than I did yesterday. God has done great things for me this morning. He has set my soul at liberty and shed abroad his love in my heart and I know now that I have peace with God. He said I saw in your countenance that there was a change of feeling.

I have been a little particular on this great and most interesting point—the witness of the conversion of the soul—being fearful that many rest short of it and rest on what is called a hope. Hope is good—it is strengthening and cheering, when it looks forward to things to come; but it has no eyes behind—it cannot look backward to supply the place of a witness. There is a great difference between, I hope I shall be converted and I hope I am converted. I received a hope of the witness before I got it; but after I got it that hope was swallowed up in the enjoyment. I then hoped that I should endure to the end and be eternally saved; but had I rested and taken my hope for the witness, I should have remained in a most unhappy state. Let mourners say to their souls, Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise him, when he speaks peace to my soul; and believers cry, Come, and I will tell you what God has done for my soul; and then hope for holiness and heaven. And now, reader, I hope you will never rest if you have not got the witness in your heart that God, for Christ's sake, has pardoned your sins. Until you get it, take no man's word; no, not even the decision of a whole Church in your favor. Let nothing stop you, until Jesus speaks, "Go in peace, thy sins are forgiven thee." Do not say, I hope I have religion; but press and pray on until God speaks to thy heart and thou canst say, I know that my Re- deemer liveth.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE WORSHIP OF IMAGES.

We are exhorted by Jude "Earnestly to con- tend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." This faith embraces the doctrinal part of our holy religion. The most important item of our faith is contained in the declaration of St. Paul: "There is one God." The holy scriptures clearly reveal his character. In them we learn that his name is "Jealous." The Lord, whose name is Jealous, is a "jealous God." Therefore he commands us saying, "Thou shalt worship no other God." "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God."

I saw but a few days since a number of Roman Catholics bow down to an image of the "Blessed Virgin." This is not an unusual occurrence. Yet I confess my spirit is stirred within me when I see a people "wholly given to idolatry." Their Virgin Mary and St. Josephs are plaster of paris, "The work of men's hands." "They have mouths, but they speak not; eyes have they, but they see not; they have ears, but they hear not; noses have they, but they smell not; they have hands, but they handle not; feet have they, but they walk not; neither speak they through their throat. They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them." Romanists maintain that images may with propriety be used as helps to devotion. I admit that the use of an image which aids us in true devotion is a com- mendable act. I affirm though that a prostra- tion of the body before an image is not an act true worship and acceptable to God; even when accompanied with ardent desires for the inter- cession of the being whom the image repre- sents. I believe that the entire system of image (use) worship, as held and practised by the Roman Catholic Church is idolatrous.

"Before Jehovah's awful throne,
Ye nations bow with sacred joy,
Know that the Lord is God alone,
He can create and he destroy."

S. J. HAWKINS.

Opelousas, La., Feb. 15.

LETTER OF JOHN RANDOLPH OF ROANOKE.

This letter was published some years since by the Rev. Mr. Tustin, a friend of the family, from whom it was obtained. It at that time went the round of the papers, but is worthy, we think of republication. It places the char- acter of the distinguished statesman in a dif- ferent light from that in which it is generally regarded. It was written to his half brother, Hon. Henry St. George Tucker, on the death of his eldest son, a youth of great promise:

May He who has the power, and always the will, when earnestly, humbly, and devotedly entreated, support and comfort you, my broth- er! I shall not point to the treasures that remain to you in your surviving children, and their mother, dearer than all of these put to- gether. No; I have felt too deeply how little power have words that play round the head to reach the heart when it is sorely wounded.— The common places of consolation are at the tongue's end of all the self-complacent and satisfied, from the pedant priest to the washer- woman. (They who don't feel can talk.) I abjure them all. The father of Lord Russell, when comforted with according to form, by the book, replied, "I would not give my dead son for any other man's living." May this thought come home to your bosm, too; but not on the same occasion. May the Spirit of God, which is not the chimera of heated brains, nor a de- vice of artful men to frighten and cajole the credulous, but is as much an existence that can be felt and understood as the whisperings of your own heart, or the love you bore to him that you have lost—may that Spirit, which is the Comforter, shed His influence upon your soul, and incline your heart and understanding to the only right way, which is that of life eternal! Did you ever read Bishop Butler's Analogy? If not I will send it to you. Have you read THE BOOK? What I say upon this subject I not only believe, but I know to be true, that the Bible, studied with an humble and con- trite heart, never yet failed to do its work, even with those who from idiosyncracy or disordered minds have conceived that they were cut off from its promises of a life to come.

"Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." This was my only support and stay during years of misery and darkness; and just as I had almost begun to despair, after more than ten years of penitence and prayer, it pleased God to enable me to see the truth, to which until then my eyes had been sealed. To this vouchsafement I have made the most ungrate- ful returns. But I would not give up my slender portion of the price paid for our re- demption—yes, my brother, our redemption— the ransom of sinners—of all who do not beg their chains and refuse to come out from the house of bondage—I say that I would not ex- change my little portion in the Son of David for the power and glory of the Parthian or Roman empires as described by Milton in the temptation of our Lord and Savior—not for all with which the enemy tempted the Savior of man.

This is the secret of the change of my spirits, which all who know me must have ob- served within a few years past. After years spent in humble and contrite entreaty that the tremendous sacrifice on Mount Calvary might not have been made in vain for me—the chief- est of sinners—it pleased God to speak his peace into my heart—that peace of God which passeth all understanding to them that know it not, and even to them that do. And although I have now, as then, to reproach myself with time misspent and faculties misemployed; al- though my condition has on more than one oc- casion resembled that of him who, having one evil spirit cast out, was taken possession of by seven other spirits more wicked than the first, and the first also; yet I trust that they, too, by the power and mercy of God, may be, if they are not, vanquished.

But where am I running to? On this subject, more hereafter. Meanwhile, assure yourself of what is of small value compared with that of those who are a piece of yourself—of the unchanged regard and sympathy of your mo- ther's son. Ah! my God! I remember to have seen her die, to have followed her to the grave, to have wondered that the sun continued to rise and set and the order of Nature to go on! Ignorant of true religion, but not yet an atheist, I remember with horror my impious expostula- tions with God upon this bereavement—"but not yet an atheist." The existence of atheism has been denied; but I was an honest one. Hume began and Hobbes finished me. I read Spinoza and all the tribe. Surely I fell by no ignoble hand. And the very man (——) who gave me Hume's "Essay upon Human Nature" to read administered "Beattie upon Truth" as the antidote—Venice treacle against arsenic and the essential oil of bitter almonds—a bread and milk poultice for the bite of the cobra capello.

Had I remained a successful political leader I might never have been a Christian. But it pleased God that my pride should be mortified; that by death and desertion I should lose my friends; that, except in the veins of a maniac, and he, too, possessed "of a child by a deaf and dumb spirit," there should not run one drop of my father's blood in any living creature besides myself. The death of Tudor finished my humiliation. I had tried all things but the refuge to Christ, and to that, with parental stripes, was I driven. Often did I cry out with the father of that wretched boy, "Lord! I be- lieve—help thou mine unbelief; and the gra- cious mercy of our Lord to this wavering be- lief, staggering under the force of the hard heart of unbelief, I humbly hoped would, in his good time, be extended to me also. St. Mark, vii, 17, 29.

Throw Revelation aside, and I can drive any man by irresistible induction to atheism. John Marshall could not resist me. When I say any man, I mean a man capable of logical and con- sequential reasoning. Deism is the refuge of those that startle at atheism, and can't believe Revelation; and by——(may God have for- given us both) and myself used, with Diderot & Co., to laugh at the destined bigots who must have milk, not being able to digest meat. All the sin is derived from Revelation—that of the laws professedly. Our own is from the same source—so is the false revelation of Ma- homet; and I can't much blame the Turks for considering the Franks and Greeks to be idolators. Every other idea of one God that floats in the world is derived from the tradition of the sons of Noah handed down to their pos- terity.

But enough—and more than enough—I can scarcely guide my pen. I will, however, add that no lukewarm seeker ever became a real Christian; for, "from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven suf- fereth violence, and the violent take it by force"—a text which I read five hundred times before I had the slightest conception of its true application. Your brother,

J. R., of Roanoke.

NON-SECTARIAN METHODIST SCHOOLS.

"Although our school is under the parental control of the Methodist Church, yet it is not sectarian."

The above is an almost stereotyped para- graph in the annual announcement of many of our schools. Now I should like to know what is the import of it? Does it mean, that we require no religious tests in admitting stu- dents; or that we shall show no favoritism to Methodist students, but that every student shall stand or fall upon the merit of his own conduct and scholarship; or that we shall use no underhand means to make the students Metho- dists. If this is all that is meant, perhaps it is not objectionable. But if it is meant, that we shall not inculcate Methodist doctrines or defend Methodist usages, why then, in my judgment, the whole thing is wrong, and there is something radically unsound in more than one plank of the platform.

If the school is under the control of the Methodist Church, why was it placed there? What moved its patrons to place it under our care. It is of some importance that the ques- tions be considered and answered. If the pub- lic suppose, that in the management of our schools or the inculcations of our teachers, Methodist doctrines and Methodist usages are to be ignored, then the public is mistaken, or ought to be.

I am aware that it was quite a prevalent opinion with many in time past, that the great, the paramount objects of education is the instruction of youth in the classics, in mathe- matics and in the various branches of science, and that if a teacher was well qualified to in- struct in these things, it mattered little what were his qualifications as to morals or religion. He might be openly or covertly infidel in his opinions, and it was deemed of little conse- quence. A great outcry was raised against sectarian influence, and ministers of Christianity were deemed unsafe instructors and governors of youth; and their influence at the head of institutions of learning was deemed unfavorable to the continuance of national freedom. The union of Church and State was held up to public gaze as the dreadful result of priestly influence exerted in these high places of secular instruction. Hence, it was deemed a matter of prime importance to exclude Christian minis ters from the chair of instruction by positive statute in some of our prominent institutions.

Mr. Jefferson's opposition to the clergy as instructors of youth is well known, and is embodied in the charter and statutes of one of the most prominent institutions of the South. The opinion of the sage of Monticello found a prompt and hearty response from thousands in all parts of the land, with whom Mr. Jefferson's opinions were of much higher authority than the teaching of the book of inspiration; and to prevent sectarian influence became a matter of first importance, with not a few of those to whom was entrusted the duty of laying the foundations of the literary institutions of the country. To accomplish this grand end, the teachers of Christianity were ostracised, and that too, by men who were open-mouthed for equal rights to every citizen. Well, having accomplished the work of excluding Christianity as far as possible from collegiate halls, they ought for consistency's sake to have excluded all skeptics and infidels likewise; for, beyond doubt, there is as much sectarianism in deism or pantheism, as there is in Christianity; and young men trained in these non-sectarian schools have left the halls of their alma mater, not Baptists, or Methodists, or Presbyterians, or Episcopalians, but what, for the weal of the country, was infinitely worse, scores and hun- dreds of them have gone forth into the country decidedly hostile to Christianity.

The evil seed thus sown has yielded an abundant and bitter crop in more than one State of this Union. To be sure, the attempt has not fully succeeded, according to the wish- es of its projectors. The religious convictions of the masses have been rather too general and too strong, thus unceremoniously to ex- clude Christianity from the halls of instruc- tion. Hence, in many of our State Institutions, clergymen have been placed at the helm and, in order to satisfy the various denominations, the faculty is made up from the various churches of the country.

This movement is well intended, but it has failed to meet the religious demands of the country. The very fact that a half dozen men, from as many different denominations, consti- tute the faculty of a College, and that it is un- derstood that they are there for the express purpose of conciliating all these churches, al- most necessarily makes them feel as if they were sentinels placed there to watch each other, or else, in the attempt to keep the peace and keep out sectarianism, each will have to keep in abeyance doctrines which they deem impor- tant to a proper view of the gospel of Christ. And by the time each shall have ignored what colleagues deem objectionable, the religious teachings of the faculty will be very apt to de- generate into only a powerless system of ethical instruction. Men thus hampered will rarely feel at liberty to act or speak on the subject of religion with earnestness or decision, for fear of giving offence and thus endanger- ing the non-sectarian character of the school.

It is of great importance in all institutions of learning, that the faculty of instruction be, as far as practicable, entirely harmonious. There must be, in order to proper success, unity of purpose and action, not only in the course of literary instruction, but also in the disciplin- ary administration. Otherwise there will be inefficiency, if not confusion. In view of all these things, we decidedly prefer denomina- tional schools, where the faculty is composed of men who are of one mind on the great in- terests of religion.

We think that a very mischievous mistake has extensively prevailed on the subject of what constituted a proper educational train- ing,—many supposing that the paramount aim of collegiate instruction is the educating the youth of the country in literature and science. This achieved, everything necessary to educa- tional training was regarded as being fully accomplished; and the blending of religious instruction with the course was deemed not only unnecessary but improper. The doctrine with such people is, leave the young mind free to choose its own religion, and, therefore, "hands off" till the student's mind is matured. This is deemed by many a very sage and philoso- phical notion. This view, so complimentary to the capacity and independence of the young mind, will, of course, be eagerly hailed by thousands as an enlarged and liberal view. Without even pausing to examine as to its soundness, we will say if the advocates of this opinion can give us satisfactory security, that while the Church is quietly asleep, trusting to the ultimate good sense of the youth, the devil and all his agencies will also sleep, and the evil influences of corrupt fallen nature and an ungodly world will be neutral likewise—very well; but this security can never be given. On the contrary, while parents and teachers are afraid to meddle, lest they should interfere with the freedom of thought and of choice, the youth has gone on his way, mingling in scenes and associations which tend to vitiate the taste and corrupt the heart. The legions of hell and earth bestir themselves; books, conversations, example, all conspire to lead to a decision on the side of sin and infidelity or indifferentism, and a more formalism; so that by the time the young man is deemed sufficiently matured to make choice of his own religion, he has made up his mind to live without any. The parents and the church have slept, and the devil has triumphed, and our dread of secta- rianism in religion has led us to ignore the danger of a sectarianism, much more fatal in its influence on individual character and con- duct, and more disastrous to the well being of church and country.

It may be true that this opinion is not so prevalent as formerly, and it is a favorable in- dication if it is not; but that it still lives and that its influence is still felt extensively, is evi- dent from the zeal with which our people re- pudiate the very idea of sectarianism in the various schools under our charge. For in- stance, here is a school under Methodist con- trol. Its originators were Methodists. It is controlled by an Annual Conference. Its trus- tees are Methodists, and most of its pupils are from Methodist families. Its teachers are Methodists, and yet it is found necessary to in- form the public that, notwithstanding all these Methodistic appendages, it is not a sectarian school.

Now, what will sensible and reflecting men understand by all this? Will they not reason somewhat after this fashion: "This is called a Methodist school, by which it is understood that they intend to make it, to a great extent, a religious concern—otherwise there was no need for the Methodists to take charge of it.— We understand that the discipline and govern- ment of the school is to be conducted on Chris- tian principles; and the element of Christianity is to form a prominent item, in the course of instruction. Now, if they are going to teach Christian doctrine, what sort of doctrine will they inculcate? If they are honest men, they must of course teach the truth as they under- stand it, and will not all the influences which they shall throw around my child tend to pre- possess him in favor of Methodism—and yet they tell us the school is not sectarian. Why is this? Is it simply an announcement to secure students? And is there not, after all, some little take in about it?"

Now, I greatly prefer that in all our institu- tions, we should stand fairly and squarely up to what our name imports, and that we carry out fully what is written on our flag; that our teachers from the chair of instruction, give the great truths of the Bible a prominent position, and that they explain and defend these great scriptural truths, as Methodistic theology tea- ches them. If our literary institutions do not mightily aid in advancing the cause of a true and earnest Christianity, then I regard our edu- cational system as a failure, and even worse; for, if after all our outlay of means and men, our sons have only picked up a little Greek and Latin and natural science, we do but mock the hopes of the Church, and trifle with the souls of our children. But we have a loftier aim, and rejoice to know that our institutions, most or all of them, have recognized vital godliness as an essential element in the course of instruc- tion; but while this is gladly admitted, I have a painful impression that our institutions might be more decidedly Christian than they are, and might and ought to be more entirely conse- crated to God than they are. All our teachers ought to be men not only of enlarged and liberal scholarship, but they should be men whose whole character and conversation give evidence of deep, scriptural, earnest piety—men whose responsibilities powerfully affect them in view of the undying interests of the youth committed to their care; men of much prayer and faith, whose principles and example exhibit to their pupils ample proof, that the religion of Christ is with them the controlling law of conduct. We need in all our institutions what the great and good Dr. Arnold designated a "Christian atmosphere thrown around the student. Hence the importance of locating our schools in com- munities where sound practical piety is decid- edly in the ascendant.

We close this long and scattering article, with an extract from a very able and eloquent work on the various phases and agonicies of in- fidelity by Pearson. "Were all the seats of learning in which the human sciences are taught, instrumental in guiding the minds of their disciples aright, instead of, as has often been the case, grievously preventing them, and were the schools which are specially designed for sacred instruction made reservoirs of the pure river of the water of life, what a mighty agency for good would be brought to bear upon the world! Many would then run to and fro, and in the best sense of the word knowledge would be increased." "A Christianized univer- sity in respect to its professorships," says Dr. Chalmers, "would be to me a mightier acces- sion than a Christianized country in respect to its parishes; and should there be a fountain out of which there emanated a thousand rills, it would be to the source that I should carry the salt of purification, and not to any of the streams which flow from it."

S. C. Adv. JAMES O. ANDREW.

GOOD TASTE IN DRESS.

A young lady, in one of the leading circles at Washington, was complimented by a gen- tleman on the simplicity and good taste of her dress, at an evening party. She replied: "I am glad you like my dress; it cost just seven dollars, and I made every stitch of it myself!"

When our young ladies pride themselves upon the home manufacture and cheapness of their attire, instead of its expensiveness and foreign importation, we shall have fewer "broken" fathers and husbands.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2.00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, MARCH 20, 1858.

THOSE FIVE.

The preachers are responding well, to the call for five new subscribers each, by May. We have good hope that our list will reach 7000 by that time. The clerk booked eighteen new names on Monday, and his cash book corresponded thereto. This is well. Send on your contingent.

A WORD MORE.

Will the agents and friends of this paper allow us once more to ask them to leave no proper means untried to place a copy in every accessible family? Especially should those coming into the Church by the thousand—as they are—be immediately supplied with it.—See to this, dear brethren.

DON'T INTEND TO BE BRUSHED OUT.—Among the many good things we are getting in now, a subscriber in Hinds county, Mi., writes from Harri Tinees Cabin: "I see you are buying 'a new broom.' I fear you may brush my name from the subscription list, so I enclose a V., which you will please pass to my credit on the books."

We hope others will take the hint, delicately given, and "enclose."

DEATH OF REV. JOHN L. SAUNDERS.—This brother went out several years ago to the Pacific, from the Alabama Conference. The Methodist brings us the news of his death. Mrs. S. is in Florida and, at our last advices, was making arrangements to rejoin her sick husband in California. Rev. J. F. Blythe, writing from Solano county, Feb. 16., says:

"Bro. Sanders came to this neighborhood immediately upon the adjournment of our Conference in November, and remained at the residence of Mr. Ramsay until the first of January, when he was taken to some Springs in Locoposa Valley, where he lingered until Thursday the 11th inst., when he calmly fell asleep in Christ. From Bro. Bunch, who was with him, as well as from a letter written by him to his wife, I learn that his end was peace. It will be gratifying to his wife and friends to knew, that though he died among strangers, he received every attention that could be given him during his illness."

ANOTHER FOLLY EXPLODED.

Under the local column, it was stated last week that the highest civil tribunal had virtually set aside the capricious will of that great old miser, McDonogh, and ordered his property to be divided between the cities of New Orleans and Baltimore, subject to some equitable charges, to carry into effect a part of the intentions of the testator. All litigation which obstructs the alienation of the property by the authorities of the two cities is at an end, and they enter into full possession, with power to administer it to the best advantage, at their own discretion.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars, since his death (1849) have been spent in litigation. McDonogh could not trust himself to do good with his money; he left that for others. They have made waste; and finally it goes to reduce our taxes!

He was churlish, he was stingy; he "never spent but to produce." He went on, getting more land and lots, houses and stocks. Few of his poor tenants lived so poorly as himself. He could not afford to cultivate society, or heed calls for help to the best and most benevolent institutions and charities, that struggled within his hearing. O, no. He was laying up for some grand scheme of goodness, to be carried out when he was dead. And this is the upshot of it. Twenty-five thousand dollars might have endowed a professorship in some college, but he gave not 25 cents: $100,000, might have laid a magnificent foundation of charity, the fruits of which his eyes could have seen and the measures for which his hand might have directed. But he held on, till death unloosed his grip. In an obscure grave, on the right bank of the river, his bones lie: soon, nobody will be able to say where; and nobody cares.

Says, a city paper, on this subject:

"Immersed in these visions, which absorbed his imagination and ruled his life, he allowed nothing for the wastefulness and maladministrations which invariably attend the execution of public trusts of accumulating funds, gave no weight to the manifold interests which would spring up to combat and defeat his schemes, and closed his eyes against the obstacles which the jealous policy and scrutinizing laws of the country would oppose to the vast contrivances for accumulating wealth which he was devising with so much intense labor. He died in the faith that he had consolidated his name and his fortune forever. His schemes have been repudiated by the common sense of the community as against public policy, visionary and impracticable, and now the estate, diminished by litigation, the cost of double management, the want of prudent improvement, by waste and natural decay, is divided among the legatees, and will now pass into the hands of a multitude of private owners. The McDonogh will is substantially a nullity and the McDonogh estate will be soon dispersed. Such is the evil of another attempt by a man of great wealth to tie up an estates beyond alienation, and erect great establishments, to be administered upon invariable rules laid down in a dead man's will. It is a lesson, too, which might be profitably studied by men of large means and benevolent dispositions, who desire, out of their abundance, to devote sums, large or small, to the uses of charity or religion. How much better it would be to be the executor of one's own wishes, and to provide surely in life for the application of what is meant to be given to the uninstructed or the destitute; and how much more safe it is, in leaving the control of such benefactions to others, that they should be committed to institutions or objects already recognized as lawful and received as expedient—whose responsibilities are defined and their workings known—and not to the trial of grand experiments and the testing of untried theories by new and special devices."

FLORAL.—Thanks to Mrs. S. for a rich, beautiful bouquet from her garden in Carrollton.

BOUNCE.—Our friend, J. McIntyre, of Tigerville, La., sends by Express, a barrel of potatoes, expressly for the editor. They will be attended to.

THE GREAT AWAKENING.

Such may be styled the deep and general religious interest pervading the land. The noonday prayer meetings, which we have noticed, are only one sign of it. Men can stop and pray even at meridian hour and on a business street.

From various parts of the country the cheering intelligence continues to come, of the increase and power of the Revival which is at present shaking the foundations of society.—Thousands are converted daily, and thousands more are awakened, concerning their immortal interests. The strong-minded, the talented, and the considerate, the merchant and the laborer, the buyer and the seller, are seeking, praying, and coming into the Kingdom of Christ.

Especially in our exchanges in the North and West, do we have tidings of merciful visitation. Multitudes are passing the process of regeneration, and are made new creatures in Christ Jesus.

Says a paper of that city:

"It is more than twenty years since New York was the scene of so general a revival of religion as is now in progress. Indeed the present work of grace is already more extensive and more impressive than were the memorable seasons from 1830 to 1835. The weekly record of religious intelligence has kept our readers advised of the increasing interest of the daily prayer meetings in this city, and the multiplication of revivals all over the land. The glad vision of the prophet is realized, and converts fly as clouds and as doves to their windows. Already the conversions of the past winter may be numbered by tens of thousands."

The secular papers contain minute and long reports of religious meetings for conference and prayer, as never before. This shows that the facts exist and that the public mind, which they study and reflect, appreciates such intelligence.

One feature of this revival is the active part taken by the lay-members of the Church. All the Lord's people are prophets. They organise, and like a flying artillery, go about recruiting for the Church. They boldly essay, by the Spirit of God, the conversion of the hardest, the stoutest, the greatest sinners.

Says another exchange:

"A company of Methodist lay brethren of this city and vicinity, are traveling about among the city churches with much usefulness. They are sometimes called the 'Praying Band,' and sometimes the 'Flying Artillery.' They go together: at their visit the whole service of the Sabbath is usually given up to them; they occupy the altar, pray, exhort, and get awakened persons for prayers. Last Sabbath they spent, with good effect, at Norfolk-st. Church. The example is a good one for imitation elsewhere; well directed, it can hardly fail of success."

May this, over all the country, be a year of revival! Pray that the gathering cloud of mercy may drop its fatness where you dwell.

THE AFRICAN APPRENTICE BILL.

Two weeks ago we published, under the head of "Louisiana Legislature," the following telegram:

"Baton Rouge, March 3.—A bill passed the House, authorizing a company, already organized, to import twenty-five hundred free blacks from the coast of Africa, to be indentured for not less than fifteen years. Yeas 46; nays 21."

At the time (and we have not been clear to the contrary since) we regarded it as a grave legislative hoax—a burlesque on the Coolie trade of the philanthropic English, and the African apprentice system of the less scrupulous French. The people had not been consulted; the assembled wisdom knew that; nor would they give it, seriously, the least countenance. But the South had so long been the object of denunciation, it was concluded to badger our Northern and British friends a little, and defiantly hold up, as among the possibilities, a scheme which New England and Exeter Hall piously professed themselves unable even to contemplate.

Beyond the lower House, there stood the Senate and the Governor, by whom the bill had to pass. And more: if the bill was what it purported to be, a bill for the introduction of free negroes into Louisiana, it was in direct opposition to existing State laws. If, on the contrary, it was evasive, designed to re-open the odious slave trade and introduce savages into Louisiana, then it was a positive violation of the laws of the United States and of treaty stipulations with foreign nations. So we gave ourselves little concern about the matter, farther than anticipating a tremendous excitement of "suaceptibilities" in certain quarters.

A similar bill was introduced into the Legislature of Mississippi last season, and was unceremoniously consigned to the tomb of the Capulets. Our neighbors are not so cruelly humorous.

One reason given for this measure was a moral one—the christianization of those heathen. It is understood that the king of Yariba, to whom the king of Dahomey pays tribute, has 4000 Africans on hand—very pagans—and is ready to dispose of them as "voluntary apprentices." Voluntary—like the Irish soldier, who said he had been forced to volunteer.

We are right glad to see this interest for the conversion of the blacks; and being somewhat connected with that enterprise, as at present slowly and under many difficulties advancing, we beg to put in a word. We assure our honorable friends we are not yet ready for the heathenish importation. There are now 40,000 slaves in Louisiana without the gospel. We have no access to them. Some of those who favor this scheme for christianizing Africans do not allow preachers on their plantations, or allow them only at the expense of the Missionary Society. We hope now for a general improvement, in this respect.

On last Monday, the Senate "locked" on the bill—14 to 14. Having carried the joke far enough, its quasi friends gave way.

Hon. Mr. Simmes stated that while his views had undergone no change, he was willing to accede to the wishes of the opponents of the bill by postponing it until the first Monday of February next. The President decided that the motion was not in order, as a postponement could not be made to a certain day beyond the present session. Mr. Kidd (in favor of the bill) moved to lay the bill on the table—lost. Mr. Simmes then moved to postpone the bill indefinitely, which was carried—15 yeas, 13 nays.

Grave as was its matter, the House passed the bill, with little or no discussion; and we learn that had the House had it in their possession three days after it had passed that body, they would have served it as did the Senate.—From the rapidity with which it went through the House, it was not surprising, soon afterwards, that numerous members were disposed to recede from the position they had assumed by their votes. A resolution was presented in the House requesting the Senate to return the bill, and but that there was a rather strong opinion that that sort of parliamentary business would't do, it would doubtless have passed.

Now, gentlemen, enough of this. We should not like to be responsible for the shrieks you have already raised. In [illegible] you need recruits [illegible] take it; influences [illegible] serious abuses.

METHODIST PRESS.

Missouri Methodists have procured fine quarters for their Advocate and Book Depository. In the rear of the Centenary Church a building has been put up—comely and commodious, and there they make things go. The St. Louis Advocate is one of the neatest sheets on our tiles, and their book trade is brisk. It is a great center—that St. Louis is. The Church has much at stake there, both presently and prospectively, and we rejoice at their success. Says the editor:

Many hundreds and thousands of dollars worth of books we have bought and sold, always giving Nashville the preference as to the place of purchase, and have bought more at that than at any other place, and we have paid for what we bought. Always paid promptly according to agreement, and sometimes paid even before the time. We have published some few and have found ready sale for them. The establishment here, though it be small, is solvent and doing a safe business; and now it might get along with, and it can get along without the direct aid of the General Conference. So that body can do just what it thinks best. The interests here and those supporting them will not fail, we think, to co-operate heartily in any measure that may seem for the general good. No Methodists in the Union are more loyal to the Church generally than those in Missouri, and though they may not take great pains to trumpet it abroad, or say much about it, there are no traveling preachers in the Church more devoted to their work, love the Church more or are more ready ever to do what they can to promote her interests than those of the Conferences west of the Mississippi river. Mark that.—No one we presume, will oppose it; and if the same body think it best for things to go on as heretofore, we doubt if any complain.

God's blessing has been upon the work here. It has prospered that work, and the work still prospers, and that too beyond all former precedent. A great and growing publishing interest under the control of the Church generally, and of the Western Conferences particularly, is destined to be here. If the Church generally do not attend to it, the Conferences will, because they feel they must; and they will do it without the abatement of one jot or tittle of their loyalty to the whole Church or their devotion to her best interests.

The experience of the Nashville Advocate about this time is that of the others—crowded with communications, suggesting business for the approaching General Conference. This is well. It is one object for which the Church press is established—to canvass and discuss matters affecting her interests; to mature plans and come at the public sense of what is expedient. Of course, many crude notions are evolved in this process. After all, practically that General Conference may be best, in which least is done. There is too much legislation, both for Church and State. We hope yet to see a session finished up, without any hurrying, in a fortnight. Our confrere makes a suggestion, in this connection, which we heartily commend to all, as first in their thoughts:

One very important work, to which we desire to call the attention of the whole Church preparatory to the General Conference, is prayer to God for his blessing upon the deliberations of the body. Let each remember "That our sufficiency is of God."

Rev. B. F. Crary, in a letter to the Chicago Advocate from Red Wing, Minnesota, draws the following picture:

The main point to which we would ask the serious attention of all good Methodists—and the best of them read the Church papers—is, Shall we build up these universities? Will we keep our hands clean of the sin of playing the fool in God's vineyard? Will we go on disastrously disgracing ourselves by heaping, taking and killing names on the miserable bantlings of pride and speculation over the land, made in the form of literary institutions? Will we sell our influence to the builders of bogus towns and sham cities? It is high time that this folly ceased. It is now a long time that Annual Conferences have been bored with the miserly propositions of obscure towns to build universities.

Pinhook is owned by Pichbeck, Esq., representative to the legislature, and squatter-general on all the lands in reach. Pinchbeck, the Hon. Mr., all at once is taken with Methodism; thinks it is a great Church—nearly as great a Church as he is a man; thinks its illiteracy is a glorious means of advertising grace; thinks the preachers are efficient; thinks Rev. Mr. Noodle is not sharp enough to see through a sharper; sees Mr. Noodle, talks blandly, graciously, patronizingly, and proposes as follows: "I will give, donate assign, make over, demise and bequeath to the Methodist Episcopal Church of Minnesota, to have and to hold, the out-lot in Pinhook, No. 6000, and all appurtenances thereunto belonging. Provided, nevertheless, said Church shall within two years herefrom erect, build, and put up a building for a university, to be called 'Pinchbeck University,' said building to cost not less than $40,000." Noodle goes to Conference, rich as a mill-boy with two ginger-cakes, and there makes a display of—himself.

A love-feast and a class-meeting demand a certain sort of talk—subjective, egotistic.—There, without vanity, one may talk of himself, and it is irrelevant to talk away from that point. We have good example for this. In one short verse, St. Paul, (Gal. 2: 20,) says I five times, and me, three. He is giving his experience. The class-meeting and love-feast are for the teachings of experimental, not dogmatic or doctrinal religion. To be ready for them, get acquainted with yourself, and there lies one peculiar virtue of these means of grace. Don't exhort—don't preach. Among even two or three, there is material for delightful variety—unflagging, and inexhaustible. Every one's experience has its peculiarities. Bring them out. A communication in the New York Advocate, on the conduct of class-meetings, is to the point:

I must say that I believe they too often happen, particularly the practice of leaders making 'long addresses' to each member, and that of singing too much between each relation of experience. But there is another irregularity not noticed by 'Old Methodism,' which to my mind seems quite as objectionable, and that is, the practice of members themselves making 'long prosy addresses.' I have known persons to get up and make quite a lengthy exhortation, and sit down again, without scarcely referring to the state of their own minds. Others will have an old stereotyped story of what they experienced years ago, saying nothing about their present experience. These are evils which ought to be remedied, and I believe that the power to remedy them lies as much with the class as with the leader. Let each member briefly relate his present experience. If there has been anything unusual or remarkable in the past week's experience which would be likely to benefit the class that may also be briefly stated.

Bishop Andrew writes unctiously. The oil that was poured on his head ran down even to his pen. He has been administering [illegible] Methodists, on sectarianism [illegible] first [illegible] the pulpit [illegible] the [illegible] enterprise [illegible] not [illegible] pointed by its [illegible] ward teachings.—Let [illegible] nected with our conference schools ponder it.

The Texas Advocate, republishing the same, says:

It has no sympathy with that lack of decided Methodist individuality—that willingness to compromise our principles for worldly favor—that pandering of trustees and professors to prejudices that injure the Church and endanger souls—which are too commonly witnessed. We have lost two schools in Texas from this lack of that good old fashioned spirit of Methodist loyalty which always stands squarely up to all our interests, in private administration, as well as before an Annual Conference. With these milk-and-water principles, we are at war, now, henceforth, and forever.

The Pacific Methodist brings good news from a far country.

"Southern Methodists, Northern Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Campbellites were all rejoicing together." Such is the remark of a Christian brother in a private letter, giving an account of an experience meeting held.—They were "all rejoicing together." Why not? Are they not disciples of the same Master, servants of the same Lord, heirs of the same promises? Do they not travel the same road, and are they not expectants of the same glory?

The editor says:

Our brethren of the Pacific Conference are already receiving their wages in advance for their year's toil. Souls have been converted—and they are the laborers' "hire." The salvation of one immortal being is reward enough to pay for twenty years' labor. Some of our brethren will get little other reward. The hard times bear heavily upon them, and the question of bread is a serious one. Some churches are poor, and others are forgetful, but the Master of the vineyard is not poor; neither is He forgetful.

Bishop Kavanaugh is to be their proxy at Nashville, in May. They have adopted—

A memorial to the approaching General Conference, setting forth our condition, our prospects, our wants and our wishes. The document will be forwarded to Bishop Kavanaugh in due time. It is a strong yet respectful and affectionate appeal to our mother, and we expect a response that will prove that we are not regarded as mere step-children, that we shall neither be disinherited nor cut off with a shilling.

The Memphis Advocate, after "ineffectual calls" upon those patrons who discontinued in arrears to the paper, has come to the ultima ratio—publishing a list of them. Hear him:

We shall get through with them next week, when we shall commence on those to whom we are now sending, who are still behind and have paid no attention to the circulars sent. Fair warning, friends; there is time to save us the trouble and you the mortification.

That sounds like the physician's prescription to a troublesome clarity patient: "Take this dose and then if you don't mend, come back next week and I'll put a seaton in your neck." Our clerk has cut out the list for reference.—We will not run up a bill with any of those names.

Domestic Missions.

DAYTON MISSION, Ala., Conf.

Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Assistant Treasurer Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South.

Dear Brother: I now transmit my report of the state of this mission for the first quarter of the current year.

The mission is in an improving condition, and promises, under the blessings of God, a rich spiritual harvest. Several new appointments have been added to the work, so that the missionary has all that he can do. The negroes gladly receive the word of life, and esteem highly him that preaches the gospel of peace.

So far, so good; but there is another side to look at. The missionary who served this work last year has, to my certain knowledge, been trying to sell his horse and buggy to defray expenses necessarily incurred in serving it. How the present incumbent will come out, cannot yet be told.

I will state in this connection, that there is a missionary, serving a work, near this, but in another district, who has found himself under the necessity of taking charge of an "old field" school, five or six miles from his residence, to avoid involving himself in debt; several appointments having withdrawn from him, not because the patrons thought he lacked qualifications, or that he was unfaithful as a missionary; but because they had been asked to pay about two-thirds of the amount judged necessary for his support by disinterested men.

But enough of this. Can we expect it? Can we ask it to be otherwise? Can it be supposed that a man, treading in the footsteps of his Divine Master, who preached the gospel to the poor; a man preaching to negroes, is to be cared for? A preacher who would think so, would manifest such a verdancy, that you might well afford to doubt his fitness for the work.

Feb. 24. J. C. HUCKABEE.

FRANCE.—The most bitter feelings against England are rife throughout the whole of France, and pervaded even in court circles to such an extent that Lord Cowley had been compelled to remonstrate, and finally returned to London to consult with Lord Palmerston on the question of England's continuing to shelter the refugees. The condition of France is looked upon as one of warfare or siege. A proposition was recently made in privy council, and supported by a large majority, to put down the whole press of France except the Moniteur—Count de Morny warmly advocating it; but no decision has been come to. Galignani's Messenger was about making preparations to transplant itself to Brussels.

NOTICES OF NEW BOOKS.

DOMINION: by Rev. S. D. Baldwin. Priated by Stevenson & Owen, Nashville, Tenn. 1858. 12mo., pp. 470.

The author of Armageddon gives us a bold book. He maintains the jus divinum of African slavery, and proposes it as "the divine basis for peace, on this question."

The 9th chapter of Genesis is the text: the 27th verse is Japhet's Magna Charta for Dominion.

The Noachian, is the political constitution of the world. It is the second universal dispensation—as the first was delivered to Adam and the third to the apostles. At the flood, occurred a general reorganization of earthly things society was reorganized and caste introduced. From Noah a trivity of races sprang—Japhet white—Shem (brown,) Ham (black.) Natural boundaries and habitations were appointed them—to which they are traced closely. These three types had subtypes, in number about sixty. Japhet was to have precedence over Shem: Shem over Ham: Ham to be subject to both—"a servant of servants." And the nearer society is administered on this constitution, the better is it for all concerned. It has been so, and will be so: so argues Mr. Baldwin. To fight against it, is to fight against God.

Abstractions and theories, dating at the creation, about the equality men, are laid aside, by this process. Slavery is justified as for the government of a fallen race and rebellious, who have lost original rights. For this condition the Noachian regime is ordained and adapted. Mr. Baldwin occupies here the same ground with Dr. Styles, of Philadelphia, whose book, "Modern Reform Examined," appeared so nearly with his own, that the coincidence must be an independent one. Dr. Styles administers a scathing rebuke to the spirit of Modern Reform (alias, Abolitionism.) He shows it to be arrogant, malignant, belligerent, impracticable, and destructive. Dr. S. says: (page 11.)

"Humanity has four grand states. The first two have been developed in time—the original constitution of things and man's fall from it. Our views of slavery, I judge, should vary, as we place our stand-point in the first temporal condition of things or the second. Man's Author, structure, relations and end proclaim this truth—God made every man the proprietor of the same rights and subject to the same duties. Under the original constitution of things, be the circumstances what they may, the existence of slavery would seem to us as inconceivable, as the sin of slavery would be insufferable. The moment man falls, two changes take place. The first palpable change is this: Slavery, inconceivable in the first condition of things, comes into existence very naturally in the second. Man will introduce it. *  God will introduce it. * * The second palpable change is this: slavery so necessarily sinful in the first condition of humanity, may be entirely free from sin in the second."

Mr. Baldwin disposes of that point more clearly, on distinct, constitutional enactments, and not on mere probabilities. The Noachian constitution, ordaining inequality of rights and service, was political—the Christian spiritual. They differ in their subjects; but on all questions within their range they are alike decisive and divine. They are both remedial and, as it were, an afterthought, upon the destruction of "the original constitution of things."

On the 27th verse—"God shall enlarge Japhet, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant—" there is some criticism, and Mr. B. offers, as more rigidly literal, this translation:

"God shall enlarge Japhet; and then he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and then Canaan shall be his servant."

For the original of "enlarge" he finds several definitions that suit his purpose better—as persuade, unloose, convince. So the christianization of the white race is set as the beginning of the intellectual and territorial dominion, promised. The Reformation is the time of Japhet's thorough unloosing and becoming the propagandist of the faith: then America is discovered and he enters the tents of Shem (Indians) on this grand field; and then, in order, Hamitic service, on a truly national scale, is introduced and Japhet enters upon his inheritance.

The evil of slavery, moral, social, or political, is not admitted. A blessing and not a curse was designed for Japhet, in the prophecy of the 27th verse. God knows how to bless: For bread, he does not give a stone. Whom he blesses, is blessed. Hamitic service was designed and declared as a blessing to Japhet.

Nor is slavery an evil, per se, to Ham. It is not the best of conditions, but a condition best suited to him, as he is.

Mr. Baldwin has faint hopes for the salvation of Shemites and Hamites. He says, p. 79:

"This promise [of christianization] is not applicable to Ham and Shem, nor does Millenial glory anticipate their full regeneration: in the new heavens and earth alone may they expect acceptance of Messiah. We therefore look for present christianization of other races [than Japhetic] only to a limited extent, prior to the last great day; they enjoy no promise of persuasion or conversion, of faith and confession, as races."

It is putting "too fine a point" on a doubtful word—"enlarge" or persuade—to cut off thus more than two-thirds of mankind from the kingdom of Christ. Does a purely political constitution curtail their rights under a different and spiritual one? And how is this sweeping positive conclusion reached, in spiritual things, because, in political, Shem and Ham "enjoy no promise of persuasion or conversion," as races? If we supposed such convictions prevailed about Nashville, where the author deservedly has much influence, we should go for the removal of our Missionary Board. Nothing can be done in the China, Indian or Negro Missions under such principled unbelief.

But, we set out not to dispute but to set forth a meager outline of a book that evinces originality of thought, and unflinching bravery in occupying whatever position the author's train of reasoning leads him to. He has not touched the subject lightly, but given it a constitutional treatment.

SCENES BEYOND THE GRAVE.—From B. J. Wasson's, Book Store, New Orleans. A puerile fiction.

From the publishers we have received through H. D. McGinnis, 36 Camp street, the following new books:

THE WORKS OF TACITUS. The Oxford Translation, Revised. With Notes. In Two Volumes. New York: Harper & Brothers, Publishers, 1858. 12mo., pp. 464 and 496.

The student of history will be gratified to meet with these handsome volumes, which are issued in good style, corresponding with the series in which the Publishers have introduced to English readers approved translations of many of the most celebrated of the ancient classics. To those who would review the fortunes of Rome in the age of Augustus Cæsar, Tiberius, and Nero—or graphic pictures of life and manners among the Germans, [illegible] first known, they will be highly acceptable.

FOWLER'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR. The English Language in its Elements and Forms, with a History of its Origin and Development. Abridged from the Octavo Edition. Designed for General Use in Schools and Families. By William C. Fowler, Late Professor of Rhetoric in Amherst College. New York: Harper & Brothers. 1858. 12mo., pp. 382.

The first part gives a historical sketch of Language, and especially of the English Language; the second part, its phonetic elements; Parts third, fourth and sixth, its orthography, etymology and syntax respectively, which form the entire contents of most treatises on Grammar; part seventh, its rhetorical, and eighth, its poetical forms; and part ninth, rules of punctuation. The book is the work of a scholar, well written, philosophically arranged, concise, complete.

The historical sketch of our language—the sources from which Americanisms have been derived, is alone worth the price of the book.

TRAVELS IN ORIENTAL AND WESTERN SIBERIA: by Atkinson. Harper & Brothers, New York 1858. 8vo., pp. 521.

To their "fresh books of travel and adventure," the publishers have added this. It is ground for an interesting volume. Mr. Atkinson was seven years in those regions and traveled 70,000 miles. A passport from Emperor Nicholas facilitated him. He gives a vivid description of the Ural Mountains and their mineral treasures and forges. Gallops over the steppes, with Kalmucks and Cossacks and Kirghis for his guides. Visits the aouls (encampments) of chieftains, where the patriarchal estate lingers in its purity. Thousands of camels and horses and sheep make their wealth. Before the door of the chief's yourt (tent,) a tall spear with bright head stands, on which floats a tuft of hair. There are numerous lakes, fed and drained by silvery streams, where rich pasturage is. He hunts wild boars and bags game, luxuriously. Going east from St. Petersburg, he passed the western Chinese pickets.

The desolateness of Siberian life, as a penal settlement, does not strike one. Only once is this feature alluded to, and that is painful enough. He seems not to have penetrated those settlements, though his route lay north of any yet recorded—even of Ilac's:

"About two o'clock this morning, we came up with a large party of convicts marching into Eastern Siberia. These unfortunates have a long journey before them. There are 97 in the gang; 17 men and 3 women in chains led the van, destined for Nertchinck, and have yet to march more than 4000 versts. It will take eight months before they reach their place of banishment: a most desperate looking set. The others followed in pairs, on their way to the government of Irkoustsk: they have a journey of 3600 versts to go and theirs will be a march of six months. Behind them followed telagas with baggage, and there were eleven women riding; some of these poor creatures are following their husbands into exile. In front and on each side were mounted Cossacks who kept a strict guard over their prisoners. Barracks were built, at each station, usually outside the villages, occupied by officers, guards and other persons employed. They march two days and rest one. A gang leaves Ekaterineberg (a European frontier town) every Monday morning."

LOUISIANA STATE APPROPRIATIONS.

The bill making the following appropriations for charitable institutions, has passed; Charity Hospital, $20,000; St. Elizabeth's Asylum, N. O., $2000; St. Mary's Orphan Boys' Asylum, N. O., $1000; St. Anna's Asylum, N. O., $2000; St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, N. O., $2000; Sister Regis's Female Orphan Asylum, N. O., $3000; Association for the relief of Jewish Widows and Orphans, $750; Society for the relief of destitute boys in the Fourth District, N. O., $2000; Orphans' Home, Fourth District, N. O., $2000; St. Vincent's at Donaldsonville, $1500; Hospital, at Donaldsonville, $1000; Female Orphan Asylum, Baton Rouge, $1000; Catholic Ladies' Charitable Association, Baton Rouge, $750.

Total for Charity Hospital	$20,000
Roman Catholic Institutions	13,250
Protestant	5,400
Jewish	750

THE SHAD EXPERIMENT.—We extract from the Montgomery Mail a letter written by Dr. Mordecai of Mobile, in relation to the artificial propagation of fish—or, rather, the transportation of fish to waters within which they do not exist. The latter furnishes some interesting and reliable information on the subject. Dr. Mordecai has given much attention to the subject not only here, but in Paris. The Mobile Tribune says:

"The Montgomery plan is to introduce the living fish into the Coosa. Whether this is as good a plan as that adopted by the French, is what has yet, we believe, to be tested. There is some doubt also as to whether the lime in the Coosa may not be an obstacle to the experiment.

The rockfish has habits similar to the shad, and, we are informed, affects freestone water. If this be true—as we have no doubt it is—our Chickasahogne river would be an admirable place to try the experiment. It is very probable that five hundred dollars would be sufficient to stock that river with shad, so that in a few years we might have this luxury in our markets in as much excellence as it may be found in some of the northern cities. We trust that the experiment may be put to the test."

COVINGTON, LA.—Rev. J. T. Dew, writes, 14th inst., of a religious meeting of interest, in progress. "During the last week 14 have united with the Church and professed faith in Christ." The pastor is assisted by Rev. G. T. Vickers.

WELL REPAID.—A correspondent, who does not give us his name, writes that he rode on a cold day, over thirty miles, to be present at the March exhibition of Centenary College, and was fully repaid, by what he saw and heard.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

...ried—On the 12th Inst., in Vicksburg, by Rev. Wm. ...ton, Mr. ROBERT E. DICKEY and Miss SALLIE A. ...

...the 21st Jan., at the same place, by the same, Mr. ... KENDALL and Miss MARY J. CANFIELD.

...the 9th Feb., at the same place, by the same, Mr. ...E W. SMITH and Miss ESTHER A. POWELL.

...the 4th inst., near Vicksburg, by the same, Mr. SAM... NEELY and Miss EMMA F. NEELY.

...the 10th, near Vicksburg, by the same, Mr. WILLIAM ...RUGH and Miss MARY AUGUSTA HESTER.

...the 4th, in Cahaba, by Rev. T. P. Crymes, Mr. DA...RANGE and Miss ALABAMA BOLANDER, all of the place.

...the 2d, by Rev. Mr. Baldwin, Mr. IKE L. ROBINSON, ...var county, Ms., and Miss SALLIE C. HARRIS, daugh... Hon. W. L. Harris, of Columbus, Ms.

...the 25th ult., by Rev. Joel Sadler, Mr. THOMAS J. ...OWER and Miss E. J. RAILAND, all of Claiborne

Special Notices.

...OKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY, 112 CAMP STREET.

...have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, ...voice of Books, including, in addition to all the ...ations of the Church, South, the following:

...on's Commentaries; Clark's do., in sheep and calf. ...sense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Ance... ...or Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Disci... Bible Index, by Barr; Cheeks to Antinoodianism, ...ichey; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, ...reas; Coles' Concordance; Covel's Dictionary; ...rence Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Uni... ...ism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred ...ers; Rollin's Ancient History.

...outh School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; ...ions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; ... Longking's Notes.

...All at Nashville prices.

TWENTY LADY GRADUATES

...Hudson River Institute desire situations to teach, ... Qualified to instruct in the English Branches, ...ch, Piano, Music, Drawing, &c. Address, Rev. A. ..., Principal H. R. Institute, Claverack, New York.

...B. The most thorough instruction given at the above ...tution. $120 pays for board and tuition in common ...ch. Send for catalogue. mar20-1t

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS

Opelousas District, Louisiana Conference.

...andria station, April	10-11
...Iberia station, April	17-18
...klin circuit, at Franklin, April	24-25
...illion circuit, May	1-2
...ousas, at Opelousas, May	8-9
...sica, at Tokechosee, May	15-16
...ington, May	22-23
...Greenwood, at Evergreen, May	29-30
...Rapides, at Hinds' Creek, June	5-6
...sonburg, at Funny Hills, June	12-13
...mbia, at Columbia, June	19-20

...e preachers in charge of the Vermillion and Wash... ...on circuits will please select suitable places for hold... ...their quarterly meetings and notify me at Alexandria, ...which will be my postoffice after the 1st of April.

A. B. FLY, P. E.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

...e Trustees of the East Alabama Male College are re... ...ed to attend an adjourned meeting of the Board at ...urn, on the first Wednesday in April next; and as ...rtant business will come before them, a full attend... ...is most earnestly solicited. C. RAILORD,

...bara, Ala., March 2, 1858. Sec'y.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

...e undersigned propose to issue, during the approach... ...eneral Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in ...the proceedings of the body will be published.

...ose who desire to subscribe will furnish their names ...diately; or, they may give to the delegates their ...e and the cash.

...erms: ONE DOLLAR.

...paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance. ...e first number will the issued on Monday, the 3d of ...

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

SABBATH SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

...e Fifth Anniversary of the Jefferson City Sabbath ...ol, under the superintendence of Rev. J. D. Parker, ...be celebrated in the M. E. Church, corner of Laurel ...Toledano streets, on Sabbath the 14th instant, at 3 ...k P. M.

J. D. PARKER.

HOME CIRCLE.

...is very attractive and deservedly popular periodical ...blished monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nash... ..., Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per an... strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages ...i octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful ...plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, ...of the most important and interesting character.

...o ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be ...osed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a dis... ...nt of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription ...e.

...s the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet ...sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is ...refore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to in... ...se the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!— ...ur brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the ...rcle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable ...ect will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

...the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Long... ...g's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append ...publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calcu... ...ons in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Ter... ...ories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.— ...ides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains ...Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the ...rld; statistics of religious denominations in the United ...tes; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive ...alogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist ...blishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pa... ..., price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

Local Intelligence.

THE ECLIPSE.—This gigantic and magnificent ...eamer—without doubt the greatest river ...eamer in the world—was knocked off at ...heriff's sale, on Saturday, to Capt. Harry I. ...pot, for the sum of $29,000—not more than ...ree-fourth what she cost, and she is almost as ...good as new. We learn that she is to be ...laced in the Vicksburg trade, with the Prin... ...ess and Natchez. This will make the Vicks... ...burg line the greatest of the Western and ...Southern waters. The great expensiveness of ...the Eclipse, and her proneness to sink money ...in any other than the Southern trade, was ...doubtless the cause of her being sold so cheap.

The Mercantile Library Association of this ...city now numbers 480 members and is on a ...firm basis.

HEALTH PRETTY GOOD.—Visitors, numerous; among them Lillibusters Walker, Houningsen, Lamonfort, and others. Business: See our ample "commercial."

SHAD FOR THE ALABAMA AND COOSA.

LETTER FROM DR. MORDECAI, OF MOBILE.

EDS. MAIL: I see noticed in one of the journals of this city, a contribution from my worthy friend, Capt. Adams, to aid in introducing shad into the waters of the Coosa. Allow me, before another word is said, to offer you the enclosed amount as an earnest of the interest which I feel in this truly laudable attempt.

"He that supplies a new food for man is a public benefactor." Here, then, is an easy way to deserve so praiseworthy a title; for, at small cost, a man may live in the gratitude of his fellow-men. To speak more seriously, it is sincerely hoped that you may find a sufficient number mindful of the importance of this subject, to enable you, by their aid, to make the experiment on a scale likely to ensure success. But, why should it fail, unless for want of proper supervision or the pecuniary pittance requisite for the attempt. Let us examine the subject. A freshet sweeping through the valuable fish-ponds of Capt. Robinson caused the accidental escape of his imported carp into the Hudson river. This, and a legislative enactment by the State of New York protecting them and their progeny for five years, have made the common carp (cyprinus carpio) of Europe abundant in the waters of an American river where they did not exist before. This fact is well known. And, besides, to make assurance doubly sure, we have for authority the words of an elegant writer and most accomplished sportsman. Need I name Mr. William Herbert—better known as Frank Forrester throughout the length and breadth of the land, a gentleman whose efforts to preserve the game of our country, and to propagate fishes foreign to our waters, merit better appreciation than they have received. Here, then, as we have just seen, was a river stocked by accident; and are we to fail to introduce the shad into the waters of our state, when, with so many facilities at hand, we set to work intelligently and diligently to accomplish the task? The fish, once introduced, would not be lost. They would descend to the Gulf; but obedient to the calls of an instinct that never errs, they would regularly leave their feeding grounds in the ocean to seek, at proper times, the cool sources of their birth. But, should we fail to transport the male and female shad bodily to our waters, as I understand it is proposed to do, there is another and a certain—though artificial—process to which we might and ought to have recourse. It is well known that the ova of fish may be artificially impregnated, and the species reproduced in this way. But the facility and certainty with which this may be done are points not so generally understood, though, long since clearly established by the embryologists of Europe—men of science, at whose head stands conspicuously—Monsieur Coste, the world renowned Professor in the College of France. Nor should we forget to mention the distinguished labors of M. Millet, of the "French Zoological Society of Acclimation," an association established for carrying out in France the very purpose of which we speak—stocking rivers with fish by making use of the ova artificially impregnated. Under certain conditions of heat and moisture, these ova may be transported like corn, or any other grain, and planted in the gravel beds of distant rivers or lakes, with the same assurance of success with which the farmer sows the common seeds of the field.

It is annually done in Europe; and so great is the importance attached to the process, that government freely gives to it substantial aid, and appoints, as we have endeavored to show, scientific men to instruct the ignorant. We have yet to hear of a single failure. The process is easy of execution, certain of success, and profitable in result. The planted ova of a few shad could be numbered only by hundreds of thousands, so vast is the number of eggs packed by nature in their ovaries.

Hear Mr. Robert L. Peel, New York, whose knowledge of the subject, and practical mode of handling it, have brought him prominently before those in this country interested in this topic. Speaking of the comparative scarcity of shad in the Hudson river, and the necessity of compelling by law the fishermen to plant the ova, in order to sustain the proportion which should exist between the supply and the demand, he says: (Mr. Peel censures the New York fishermen; should we introduce the shad, ours will be more considerate:) "There is no satisfaction, however, in enlightening this class of our citizens, who are so selfish as to look only to present gain, and are unwilling to spend half an hour at the end of each fishing season to plant the spawn of a dozen shad, each of which would produce fifty thousand fish toward the next year's supply. I have endeavored to induce the State Legislature to compel them so to do; but have not been successful."

Allow me to make another extract from Mr. Peel's valuable paper, and bring this somewhat lengthy communication to a close. He speaks of artificial impregnation. "Two years ago (1855) I artificially impregnated the ova of shad—thus: having partially filled a pail with water, I took a female shad immediately from the river, in my left hand, and by pressure on the sides of the fish directed from above downward with my right hand, forced the ova, some fifty thousand in number into the pail. The spermatic fluid of the male was then, in the same way, caused to drop in the same pail, and thoroughly mixed together.—The color of the ova changed from a glowing red to a beautiful straw-color. They were then placed under the gravel at the inlet of one of my breeding ponds, and running water permitted to pass over them. At this time the microscope only indicated a single cell in the egg containing the straw-colored fluid. Forty days afterwards the microscope exposed to view thousands of differently-sized cells partially filled with blood. Ten days thereafter thousands of shad made their appearance with small appendices attached to their bodies. At the age of thirteen days the sack disappeared, and they attempted to eat; were very lively, and concealed themselves when any one approached." Thus we see as we plant oysters so we might plant shad. Let us hope that it will be done.

I might conclude by giving you my notion why the shad do not double the Florida cape, and if they do, why they do not enter our rivers; but for the matter before us we want facts not hypothesis—so I will forego the pleasure of detailing mine. To send you my donation, and draw any attention to an important subject which this feeble effort may attract, is the object of this communication.

I remain, very respectfully yours,

E. R. MORDECAI, M. D.

IN A BAD FIX.—Wolcott, the contumacious witness who has been committed to jail of the District of Columbia, for refusing to answer the questions of the Tariff Investigating Committee of Congress is placed in an ugly situation. That he received some fifty odd thousand dollars from the manufacturing interests in Massachusetts to get the Tariff Bill of the last Congress passed, is conceded. It was evidently given to influence votes, for no one supposes that there are not some members of Congress open to a bribe. Wolcott, however, refuses to peach, and denies that he has greased any Congressional palms. The parties interested in raising the money are threatening suit against him for the recovery of it, naturally inferring that, if he did not apply it as originally designed, he has appropriated it to his own purposes. He is evidently in a bad box.

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

By the arrival of the Empire City, Sunday, 14th inst., we have California papers to the 20th ultimo—two weeks later than formerly.

The news is unimportant. From the Alta California, of the 20th ult., we take the subjoined items:

Ejectment suits have been instituted against some seven hundred settlers on Fremont's Mariposa grant.

A new act for the prevention of gaming, and to amend present laws, has been introduced in Senate.

The Supreme Court, in the case of the slave Archy, has rendered one of the most singular decisions ever put forth by a legal tribunal.—On every point of law in the case the Court decided adverse to the claimant of the slave, but rendered a decision that the boy should be given up to Stovall, his claimant.

Stovall took Archy away from Sacramento to Carson Valley, on Friday in a two-horse wagon. The black man was ironed, and was guarded by two policemen.

The assembly has been busy the great portion of the time with the discussion of the bill for the suppression of mobs. Many long speeches have been made on both sides; but no action, yet taken can be considered as a test of the manner in which the bill will be disposed of.

Sunday Law.—The Auburn Press says public opinion is strongly in favor of such a law, though there are many opposed to it. This opposition manifested itself in our town on Friday and petitions against, as well as for, were circulated for names.

The Sonora Herald is, perhaps, the only newspaper in the State openly hostile to the passing of some compulsory Sunday law.

The Chinese commenced the celebration of their New Year's at sunset on the evening of the 12th inst., and continued it until the sunset of the third day thereafter. Business was suspended; friendly calls were made; an immense number of fire crackers were exploded. It was a jolly time among the Celestials.

A newspaper vendor, named James Cruise, was arrested by the Chief of Police, on the 13th inst., for violating the provisions of an order of the Board of Supervisors to suppress the sale of obscene publications, etc. He had some 600 copies of the Phanix, Ned McGowan's paper, in his possession. His trial has not yet come off.

The Placerville Democrat says there is a man working in a small tunnel at Hangtown Hill who takes out daily one thousand dollars.

A party of seventy-five men had been formed in Weaverville to go to the Gadsden Purchase in March.

City.—The suicide mania has happily passed away, and with the exception of one or two cases, where parties applied at drug stores for poison, with the avowed intention of taking their own lives, we hear of no attempts at self-destruction.

Judge Sexton has sentenced John Dolan to be hung at Oroville on Saturday, March 27.—This is the first departure from the old custom of issuing Friday for execution that we have heard of.

A native Californian was executed at Monterey on the 12th instant. He had been convicted as Jose Anastasio; the Governor granted him a pardon, but called him Anastasio Jesus; and the Deputy Sheriff, saying he knew no Anastasio Jesus, hanged Jose Anastasio.

LATER FROM MEXICO.

By the arrival of the steamship Tennessee we have files of papers from Vera Cruz to the 7th inst., and from the City of Mexico to the 4th.

CONDITION OF THE COUNTRY.

The relative position of the contending forces seems to be about the same as at the last accounts; no decisive advantage having been gained on either side. The Sociedad, organ of the Zuloaga Government, professes to have favorable news from all quarters. It says that in the State of Vera Cruz the constitutionalists were much weakened by internal dissensions.

Other news show that the Zuloaga Government was too weak to enter into possession and was confined to the city of Mexico and vicinity. The Government of Juarez was more certainly established than that of Zuloaga.

The latter, be it remembered, is the priests' government. It is upheld by the funds of the Church.

General Trias has published a reply to Comonfort, repelling the charge of treachery brought against him by the ex-President. Trias is Minister of War under Juarez.

The steamship Gen. Rusk, from Brazos-Santiago, arrived Monday, 15th inst., bringing Brownsville dates to the 10th inst. We find the following in the Brownsville Flag of the 3d:

"The Boletin Official from Monterey of the 22d ult., gives a full account of a battle between Gen. Mariano Escobedo and Gen. Cruz, at Solis, a little town, in the southern part of the State of Nuevo-Leon. The conflict occurred about the 16th ult. The forces under Gen. Escobedo, a constitutionalist, fought bravely. Several prisoners were taken and all the munitions of war. Gen. Cruz was among the prisoners captured.

Gen. D. Valentine Cruz is the same officer who served under Santa Anna and had possession of Matamoros in the year 1855."

Gen. Carbajal, editor of the Pueblo, protests against applying epithets to what are called Religionists and condemning them under the holy mantle of religion. He thinks the sacred name contaminated when all the fanatical outbreaks are attributed to those professing to be christians, when, really, the press of that country should not recognize them as such. The editor says:

"The christians worthy of that name are meek, humble and pure of heart, despising the aspirations, distinctions, honors, carnal appetites and worldly pleasures, so inviting to some of the great men of the earth. The disciples of Christ restrain their disorderly passions; hate money, which is the God of the worldly; they love their neighbor as themselves, and they wish for him the enjoyments they desire for themselves. Such are the sweets and pleasures in all their acts, and they love with all their soul the Father of all creatures, and constantly fear to offend him. With meekness, love and self-denial, they form a distinctive character, adhering, with enthusiasm, to the religion of the Nazarene. The life of the Christian is spiritual and inoffensive; his action is not circumscribed by the miserable joys of the terrestial sphere; but are elevated to the sublime regions above, to the eternal mansion and to the immortal and imperishable happiness of holiness. There is nothing similar to this in the Mexican clergy, the christian followers of Santa Anna or Zuloaga. They are as far from this as the arctic is from the antarctic pole.

Jesus Christ has himself said that the fig tree shall be known by the fruit it bears; and the fruits of our clergy, of our bishops, canons, and of the thousands of friars that infest the country and consume her entrails; their fruits, therefore, are not figs, but consist of rapes and assassinations of the most diabolical character; their fruits are a fratricidal war, implacable odium, usury, venality and perjury; they bring with them a despicable treachery, cruelty, rapine and sensuality, all involved in the most horrid and heinous forms; the slave of money more than God and his sacred doctrines, idolatry and a loathsome degradation of the poor parishioners, and in general all the vices and prostitution—not enumerated in this article for fear of offending public dignity—is what constitutes the fruits of our clergy.

It is, not suitable, therefore, to class such people as sectarians of religion. To give the name of religion, in any sense, to the life and conduct of those who belie all the principles of religion and morality, is, in our opinion, a serious error that ought to be corrected by the press, if it is not our wish to produce false impressions, or divert the opinion of the community.

We all may have been inadvertently too careless in our style, and it is time to correct it and speak with precision. To call men and things by their right names, is ever the duty of the writer whose object it is to defend truth and justice. This is obvious."

Gen. Carbajal comments upon this subject to a greater length; but the above extracts will give the reader not acquainted with Mexican affairs some idea of the general spirit of reformation prevailing in the country.

Vidaurri and Garza, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas, are now independent of Zuloaga and Mexico if they can maintain their independence, and if they cannot otherwise, they will ask the protection of the United States, without the Union if possible, if not, within it. So say the knowing ones.

CHINA.

The China mail brings details of the capture of Canton.

The Cantonese vacated the city on the 30th of December. Yeh was taken prisoner, but was afterwards installed as Vice-Governor. A Commission, consisting of two Englishmen and one Frenchman, was charged with the supervision of the Government, and issued a proclamation inviting the people to return, and assuring them of protection.

Every thing was quiet, and there was a fair prospect of the raising of the blockade and resumption of trade within a week.

STATUE OF WASHINGTON.

Crawford's statue of Washington was inaugurated at the State House, Richmond, Va., on the 22d of February, (Washington's birthday.)—The address was delivered by Hon. R. M. T. Hunter. Welcome to visitors by Hon. H. A. Wise. 15,000 people were present.

THE MONUMENT.

Crawford's monument is considered his master-piece, and one of the greatest triumphs of American art. The basement is in the shape of a star, with six points, upon each one of which will stand a statue of one of those Virginians who so effectively aided the pater patriæ by their eloquence, their genius, or their swords. Patrick Henry, with his arms raised and extended, is energetically advocating independence; while Jefferson in an attitude of earnest contemplation, holds in one hand a pen, and in the other the Declaration of Independence. When all of these figures are finished and in their places, the effect will be very striking.

In the centre of this group, and towering above it, is the colossal equestrian statue of Washington, which, including the charger, is twenty-five feet high.

The candid opinion of G. P. R. James Esq., having been solicited us to the merits of the equestrian state of Washington, recently erected at Richmond, Va., that gentleman pronounces it "not only the finest work of art in the United States, but one as fine as any in the world—one worthy to commemorate a man whose mind was capable of comprehending that duty is superior to glory, patriotism more glorious than power."

THE CHINESE.—Bayard Taylor, the well-known traveler, thus speaks of the morality of the Chinese:

It is my deliberate opinion that the Chinese are morally the most debased people on the face of the earth. Forms of vice which in other countries are barely named, are in China so common that they excite no comment among the natives. They constitute the surface level, and below them are deeps on deeps of depravity so shocking and horrible that their character cannot even be hinted. There are some dark shadows in human nature which we naturally shrink from penetrating, and I made no attempt to collect information of this kind; but there were enough in the things which I could not avoid seeing and hearing—which are brought almost daily to the notice of every foreign resident—to inspire me with a powerful aversion to the Chinese race. Their touch is pollution; and, harsh as the opinion may seem, justice to our own race demands that they should not be allowed to settle on our soil.

AMERICAN STOCKS IN EUROPE.—The New York Express of the 2d instant, says:

Letters by the steamer fully confirm newspaper advices as to the condition of the European money markets, and indicate the commencement of an active demand for American stocks. It is a noticeable feature of the panic of 1857, that it did not cause the return of any quantity of American securities home for sale. On the other hand the panic prices brought in foreign buyers, and at this moment the amount of our stocks held abroad is greater than in October, 1857, and constantly increasing. The home demand already absorbs stocks to a degree which steadily advances prices aside from the effect of the existing speculative movement. The combined effect of these two causes promises to enhance quotations to the prices of 1857, if they are not exceeded.

OBITUARY.—Freeman Hunt, Editor of Hunt's Merchants' Magazine, died on the 3d instant, at his residence in Brooklyn, aged about 50 years. He was known as an able writer and compiler of articles on monetary and commercial subjects, was the founder of the Magazine which bears his name, and continued its editor and proprietor up to the time of his death.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 17th, says:

The week opened with transactions to a fair extent in most of our leading staples, and prices for most articles are quite well sustained, though the pressure of freights and exchanges has tended to a slight falling off in the rates for Cotton.

At an early hour yesterday the North American's advices (via Portland, Me.) from Liverpool to the 3d instant, four days later than those previously to hand, were received by telegraph, reporting a further advance of ⅛d in the Liverpool Cotton market, though with moderate transactions, (21,000 bales for the three days) in consequence of the light stock. Breadstuffs were dull and Consols had declined ¼ per cent., being quoted at 96¾@96¾.

Our last report (Saturday) closed upon a very unsettled and depressed market, and but a limited number of buyers came forward, when the market wore a heavy appearance, the prices being irregular, though in most instances decidedly in favor of buyers. The sales amounted to about 8000 bales. On Monday again there appeared to be but little animation in the demand, though with easy prices buyers were found for about 12,500 bales. Yesterday the North American's advices were received, but the state of the exchange market and other considerations prevented any favorable influence upon prices here, the market being rather heavy, indeed, at the rates of Saturday and Monday, which showed a falling off of about a ¼ cent from our previous quotations, and our figures have been altered accordingly. The sales were again about 12,000 bales; making a total for the past three days of 33,000 bales.

COTTON—Arrived since 12th instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 20,784 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 10,539, Arkansas 2962, Mobile 1032, Florida 299, Texas 88; together 35,964 bales. Cleared since the same date, 28,352 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 16th inst. 446,032 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,221,900 bales, against 1,233,929 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 288,660 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease to Great Britain of 27,053 bales, to France of 11,867, and to other foreign ports of 54,859 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	10¾ @ 11
Ordinary	8 @ 8¾	Good Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Good Ordinary	9¼ @ 9¾	Middling Fair	12 @ 12¼
Low Middling	10¼ @ 10¾	Fair	nominal

SUGAR—LOUISIANA.—There was a material upward movement in prices on Saturday and Monday, since which time, however, supplies have come in more freely, and yesterday the market fell back again to about previous rates, closing with a heavy stock. The sales of the three days sum up about 3500 hhds., taken for Atlantic ports, the West, &c., and our quotations are now as follows:

Interior and Refining	3 @ 4
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¾
Fair to Fully Fair	6¾ @ 6¾
Prime	7 @ 7¼
Choice	7¼ @ 7¾
Centrifugal and Clarified	9¾ @ 10

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, March 17.

There was very little offering for eminent on the Money market to day. The supply of money continues free on good and satisfactory securities. The transactions in paper to-day comprise $60,000 of commercial character at the rate of 10 per ct., with some small sums at 11 and 12 per ct. The offerings in Bank were not large, and no paper of short date having pretensions to punctuality was rejected.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid	152@153
Louisiana State Bank	151@152
Canal Bank	120@121
Citizens' Bank	none for sale.
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock	premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank	—@100
Union Bank	95@ 96
Bank of New Orleans	99@100
Southern Bank	500
Crescent City Bank	90@ 91
Bank of America	90@ —
Bank of James Robb	par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid	124@125
Carrollton Railroad	nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	70@ 71
Southern Pacific Railroad	nominal
Opelousas Railroad	6@ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid	7¼@ 8
City Consolidated Bonds	83@ 85
City Bonds for Railroads	74@ 75
State Bonds	no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company	par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₱ cent. Bonds	72@ 75

UNCURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	2¼@5	₱ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1¼@2½	₱ cent discount
Ohio	1¼@2½	₱ cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	2½@5	₱ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @2½	₱ cent discount
Illinois	.5 @10	₱ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.			par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	.3 @.5	₱ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	2½@4	₱ cent discount
North Carolina	4 @7	₱ cent discount
Virginia	.3 @.6	₱ cent discount
Alabama State	.8 @10	₱ cent discount
Texas	.1 @2½	₱ cent discount
Tennessee	.5 @.5	₱ cent discount
Mobile	.1 @1¼	₱ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	.8 @10	₱ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	2½@5	₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	.5 @7	₱ cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	.8 @10	₱ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	50	₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi			par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	₱ acre—$1.00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	₱ acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	₱ acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	₱ acre—85c

J. WRIGHT & COMPANY'S

PATADOCK OF GENUINE AND POPULAR

FAMILY MEDICINES,

Which they offer to supply Druggists and Dealers at Proprietors' lowest wholesale prices.

Genuine Depot and Special Agency, 21 and 161 Chartres st. N. Orleans.

Vermifuges.—Wistar's Canadian Swain's, Perry's Dead Shot, McLane's, Jayne's Tonic, Kerr's, H. A. Fahnestock's, Swayne's.

Balsams and Cough Remedies.—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, Hastings' Naptha and Opodeldoc, Richan's Hungarian, Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar, Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, New England Cough Syrup, Hartshorne's Expectorant, Hall's Balsam, Swayne's Balsam of Wild Cherry, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Taylor's Balsam of Liverwort, Jayne's Expectorant, Wistar's Hemispathic, Rogers's Liverwort and Tar, Mrs. Gardner's Liverwort, Stabler's Cherry Expectorant, Loudon's Indian Elixir, Dr. Rose's ditto, Whitcomb's Asthma Remedy, J. R. Stafford's Olive Tar.

Sarsaparillas—Dr. John Hill's, S. P. Townsend's, Sand's, Old Jacob Townsend's, Carpenter's, Wynkoop's, Shoker's, Graffenberg's Brandt's Guy-leil's Yellow Dock.

Plasters—Wells' Strengthening, Ewen's ditto, Jew David of Hebrew Recipe's, Knapp's Indian, Alcock's Porous, Griffith's Adhesive, Battcock's Arnica.

Liniments—Mexican Mustang, Farrell's Arabian, Butler's Nerve and Bone, Bond's, Hoyt's, Tobias' Venetian, Hewett's Nerve and Bone, Kellogg's, Gardener's, Hartshorne's Horse, Merchant's Carding, Pherokee Joyce's, McLean's Volcanic Oil, Bragg's Arctic.

Ague Remedies, &c.—Osgood's Indian Cholagogue, Rowand's Tonic Mixture, Smith's Tonic Syrup, Wynkoop's Tonic, Speed's Febrifuge, Vegetable Febrifuge.

Lozenges—Sherman's Cough and Worm, Bryan's Pulmonic Wafer, Lozenges, ditto.

Hair Preparations—Lovell's Walnone or Hair Bloss, Barry's Tricopherous, Lyon's Kathairon, Hyde's Hyperion Fluid, Van Deusen's Walnone, Jaynes's Hair Tonic, Hudson's Hair Invigorator, Loudon's Oriental Hair Tonic, Howell's Zoa Dorida, Osgood's Rum of Columbia, Burnett's Cocoaine, Railway's Circassian Balm.

Panaceas—Swaim's, Buick's, Cullen's Indian Vegetable, Lindley's Good Western.

Ointments and Salves—Daily's Magical Pain Extractor, McAllister's All Healing, Professor Holloway's Ointment, Brook's Magic salve, Bryan's Pain, Gray's, Harrison's Balm of Life, Tuck's Magnetic, Jenkins' London's All Healing, Rosebud, J. R. Stafford's olive Tar Ointment.

Oils—Boshkon's Cod Liver, McNair's Arnicine, Scarpa's ditto, British Harmon.

Bitters—Moffat's Phenix, Blake's Aromatic, Hibbard's Wild Cherry, Richardson's Sherry Wine, Oxygenated, Hoofland's German, Dooley's Vegetable, Hutchings' Vegetable Dyspepsia, Coleman's Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry.

Cosmetics—Gouche, Bay, and Florida Waters, Mexican Fun, Jones' Lily White, Burnett's Kalliston.

Soaps and Creams—Low's Brown Windsor, Rudway's Medicated, Jones' Chemical, Castiles Almond, Toilet and Family, Shavin g Creams and Compounds of all descriptions.

Pills—Wright's or his Vegetable, Moffatt's Life, Brandreth's Merrisons, Low's New Lyddon, Parr's, Squib goods, Champion's Grafenberg's, Jayne's Sanative and Ague, Hibbard's Anti-Bilious, Wiser's Diamonite, Spencer's Vegetable, Peters' Cook's Cooper's, Anderson's, Lovell's Blood tic, Wistar's Gentle Purgative, McLane's Liver, Allen's Health and Ague, Clicker's Sugar Coated, Derrick's ditto, Gilbert's Anti-Bilious, Hooper's, Beckwith's, Leidy's Blood, Ingoldsby's Pile, Scott's Vegetable, Eagan's, Railway's Regulators, Rose's Railroad, Lady's Female, Loudon's Indian Sanative and Ague, Holloway's, Halsted's Anti Dyspeptic, Gordon's, Swayne's Sugar Coated Sarsaparilla and Tar.

Also, McLean's Strengthening Cordial, and every description of Miscellaneous Medicine known to the trade. mar 6-1y

MOTHERS who see with alarm their children wasting away, and incessantly ill-use, irritable, and debilitated in consequence of the presence of worms in the stomach or bowels, can remove all the trouble immediately by administering Wiser's Canadian Vermifuge, which discharges them without pain and leaves the digestive organs in a vigorous condition. There is no mineral ingredient in this preparation.

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Wiser's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by J. WRIGHT & CO., 161 Chartres st

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 13 a .. 15
East India	— 11½ a .. 14
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½ a .. 8½
Northern	— — a .. —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 a .. 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 a 12 00
English; Fire	25 00 a 30 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— 75 a .. —
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 10 a .. 11½
Havana, good, pr g'n	— 12½ a .. 13
—— interior to middling	— — a .. —
Java	— 19 a .. 20
Laguayra	— 11½ a .. 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 43 a .. —
Tallow	— — a .. —
Adamantine	— 20 a .. 22
Star	— 19 a .. 11
CORN MEAL, per bbl	— — a .. —
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to 1	— 5 a .. 8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 a .. 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to 1	— 4½ a .. 10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 a .. 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ a .. 13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	— 12 a .. 15
Ticklings, ¾ to 4-4	— 9 a .. 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ a .. 16
Denims	— 7½ a .. 16
Cottonades	— 12½ a .. 25
Satinets	— 25 a .. 75
Calico Prints	— 5 a .. 15
Jeans, Kentucky	— 40 a .. 45
Linseys, Kentucky	— 30 a .. 35
—— Eastern	— 18 a .. 22
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	— — a .. —
English	— 10 00 a 16 50
Am., No. 2 to 10 pr yd	— 19 a .. 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 a 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 50 a —
Illinois and Missouri	4 50 a 4 62½
St. Louis City	4 62 a 4 75
FEATHERS, per lb	— 40 a .. 45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 25 a —
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 a 14 00
—— No. 2	10 00 a 13 00
—— No. 3	8 50 a 10 50
Herring, per box	— 35 a .. 55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12 a .. 15
Raisins M R, per box	2 00 a 2 12½
Lemons	2 00 a 2 50
Currants, Zante	— — a .. —
Almonds, soft shell	— — a .. —
—— hard shell	— — a .. —
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 5 a .. 25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 70 a .. 1 20
Oats	— 45 a .. 46
Corn, in ear, per bbl	— — a .. —
—— shelled, per bushel	— 45 a .. 60
Beans, per bbl

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

From the Methodist Protestant.

GETHSEMANE.

"And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him." St. Luke, xxii: 43.

Night in the holy city; day had passed
Its purple glory down the western sky,
Leaving no tracery of its regal state
On roof or gilded dome. But fair and pure
As a young vestal at the altar standing,
In trembling beauty rose night's gentle queen;
To light the orient heaven with silvery ray
Bathing in luster court, and marble pave,
And flinging sparkles to the distant sea.
The languid zephyrs in their cooling wings
Brought perfumes rifled from the lily's bell,
And balmy breath of Sharon's blushing rose.
Life's surging tide had ceased, and traffic's din
Was lulled to silence in the deepening calm.
The bearded Rabbi low on beaded knee
In reverence prayed to Israel's chosen God,
And blindly looking to the future still
Watched for the coming of their promised King.
The dark-eyed Jewish maid the gems unbound
That clasped the ripples of her shining hair—
To rest day-weary on her silken couch
And welcome love's elysium of dreams.
While fitful sounds from dulcimer and harp
Through gorgeous tapestry of Syrian dye
Breathed o'er her peaceful sleep.

But through the gloom
Where dusky shadows sweep the polished pave
With muffled footfalls, see a silent group
Pass on their weary way. And he their Lord
With dust-worn mantle gathered to his breast;
And drooping brow that rests not of its pain—
Through royal Judah treads her crownless King!
No purple stole—no scepter decked with gems—
No praising steeds in glittering array—
No hannered hosts to music's surging swell
Wave their proud plumes in one tumultuous sea;
But meek and lowly ones his steps attend,
And gather wisdom from each uttered word.
Proud Israel's sons with scornful flashing eye—
With mock and gibe accost their peaceful way,
And heap revilings on his sinless head—
But love divine the God-like face illumes,
And blessings echo to the mattered curse.

On through the eastern gateway Kedron's stream
Soothes the wild fever of their yearning thirst—
To the dark grove the clustered olives shade,
Behold! He goeth up at eve to pray.
Wearied and sad his followers sit apart
And bear their temples to the cooling dew—
Till sleep, sweet sleep, their heavy eyelids press.
Nature's unsought repose. No eager throng
Intrudes its presence as he kneeleth there,
Claiming the virtue of his ministry
Humanity's dire sufferings to heal—
Through the past day on many a helpless form
His holy hands in tenderness were laid,
The Great Physician potent all to cure!
But now alone within the shadowy gloom
A world's Redeemer supplicates in prayer!
No human eye in pity or in scorn
Looks on the mortal woes that wrings his brow,
Wreathing its snow with crimson drops of blood.
A fainting tremor chills the nerveless limbs,
Prostrate he falls upon the trampled sod—
And from the quivering lips escapes a cry,
"Not as I will, but as thou wilt, oh God!
Father thy will be done!"

Softly they sleep,
The loved disciples weary of their watch—
No sound despairing breaks their peaceful rest.
But he—the Father hears the speechless moan,
And swift his angels lift the prostrate head,
Soothe the wan brow and fan it with their wings.
Justice hath claimed a mighty sacrifice,
And lo! the debt is paid!

Baltimore, January, 1858. C. G. D.

LIGHTS AND SHADES.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

The gloomiest day hath gleams of light,
The darkest wave hath bright foam near it,
And twinkles through the cloudiest night
Some solitary star to cheer it.

The gloomiest soul is not all gloom,
The saddest heart is not all sadness,
And sweetly o'er the darkest doom,
There shines some lingering beam of gladness.

Despair is never quite despair;
Nor life nor death the future closes;
And round the shadowy brow of Care,
Will hope and Fancy twine their roses.

"Speak gently, it is better far,
To rule by love than fear.
Speak gently, let not harsh words mar
The good we might do here."

OBITUARIES.

DIED—On the 18, January, 1858, in Perry county, Ala., CLARA ANN, youngest daughter of Dr. Samuel and Martha Wilkinson, formerly of Clark county, Ala. Her early advantages were good. From a child she had known the scriptures, and was trained up under the influences of the family altar. Her father was for a number of years a faithful and successful local minister of the M. E. Church, South, who understood well the doctrines of his Bible and appreciated highly its teachings. These he brought to bear on his children in their education and government, and the result was as might have been expected: all are now members of the Church of Christ.

None felt these influences more than Clara Ana; for, previous to her conversion, they threw around her the restraining fear of God and prevented her from indulging in the extravagances of the day, although she had ample means to have done so.

In the fall of 1854, at a protracted meeting, she earnestly sought the forgiveness of her sins until she obtained pardon and the witness of the Holy Spirit; and from that time to the day of her death, she seemed to walk with God. Although young and by nature timid and retiring, yet in her christian course she was firm and decided.—The prosperity of the Church interested her much. The house of God and its ordinances were her delight. The Bible was the field of her meditations; but her pilgrimage was soon to end. God saw it best, in his wisdom, to take her to himself, in her youth; but before he did so, she was made perfect through suffering. A lingering disease invaded the mortal system, and for a while she gradually faded beneath its withering and chilly influence, until about three months before her death, when her suffering became intense and agonizing. Yet she bore it without a murmur or complaint.

The writer of this visited her once during her sickness, and found her calm and resigned. She mildly regretted the neglected visits of her pastor. O! that ministers would only remember how much comfort their visits afford the afflicted and dying of their charge.

Sister Clara Ann, although young, regretted her not having been more active in cause of religion and in doing good to those around her. She seemed to shrink at the pain and anguish of the final struggle; but as to the future all appeared clear. The physician, who was a pious man, the day before her death asked her if she was ready to go. She answered, "Yes, perfectly resigned to the will of God." She then bid her sister and surrounding friends farewell, requesting them to live the Christian's life.—When the final struggle came, God afforded dying grace; and as eats manner's evening sun, without a cloud or dimming mist, so calmly passed away Clara Ann to her heavenly home. Our loss is her infinite gain. W. H.

When one sin is admitted it is generally found that it has a companion waiting at the door and the former will work hard to gain admission for the latter.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 20, 1858.

MY DEAR DAVID: I wnnder whether your fireside is as pleasant as it was last winter when we sat around it reading those interesting books! I have often seen things and places which have remluded me of the subjects and characters which interested us then. I hope you are getting on well with your classical studies and that you begin to feel all the inspiration of true intelligence. Man is nothing without knowledge, let him go where he will. The more I travel abroad—the more I see, the more I feel convinced of the importance of intellectual cultivation. It is a potent passport everywhere, and gives access to the best society. Iguorance is marked, abroad, and no amount of wealth will give an ignorant man a position among the wise and learned. I hope you will always recognise the importance of education. If you had only completed your college course, how much I should like to have had your company on this tour! You would see strange things and a stranger people in Egypt. We are now surrounded by a turbaned race of Turks and Arabs. Yesterday some Arabs brought a large flatheaded snake to our door, and set it down in the middle of a ring with some dancing monkeys. The monkies were dressed like men and performed various tricks, while a tambourine was playing to charm the serpent. The sceae was repulsive to me, so I only glanced at the hideous spectacle.

Oh! I wish you could see these great trains of camels with their enormous loads; you would look with astonishmeat: They bear all the burdens of Egypt upon their patient backs. Coal, plank, hay, large stones—every article of commerce is transported by them. Their heads have a submissive, sheepish look and it is really wonderful to see them go down on their knees and let an Arab monat and then rise.

The donkeys too are important animals; for all the Egyptians, as well as the strangers, ride on them. I like them much, and have gone out with our party in all their excursions upon these little creatnres. We see the most nwkward and graceless figures, sometimes. A tall Turk looks so funny mounted upon a doakey, with his feet almost touching the grounnd. The ladies of the harems ride them too, and when mounted, with their black silk veils fillod ont with the wind, they resemble enormous bats with their wings spread, more than human beings. The Turkish ladies all ride astride the saddle. I hope your sisters have learned to ride well on horseback during the past summer. Tell them they must not indulge in sedeatary habits; if they do, they will have no strength of constitntion. I have met many young English girls who ride elegantly, and I think it is a useful accomplishment. You ought to ride frequently with Laura and Clara. I think the English know how to educate girls better than aay other people in the world. Those two English ladies, whose acquaintance I formed in Naples, are here with us in Egypt. They have been very kind to me and introduced me into the Rev. Leider's family, where they are staying. We also made the acquaintance of our former American consul. He wears the shawl and the fez, and has acquired the native brouze complexion. He speaks four or five languages. He speaks pretty good English and is very pleasant and sprightly. Mrs. Leider, says he was one of the most efficient consuls we have ever had. To my surprise I found he was acquainted with the late Mr. Dean, an Episcopal clergyman from Clinton, La., and spoke very highly of him. I had forgotten that Mr. Dean came here when he spent the winter in Europe for his health. Our present consul is living at Alexandria.

Mrs. L. has very kindly asked me to dispense with all ceremony in visiting her house, where, beside my English friends, I find other charms and excellences. Oh, David, it is such a house as you never saw. It is filled with Egyptian curiosities, and the servants are Arabs and speak their own language which is full of poetry. Here, they do not say "good morning," but when one lady calls on another, she says, in Arabic, "What is this I see? The room is full of light." I hope I shall get to see a harem, and I am inclined to think I shall. The wind is now blowing very hard from the desert, and the people say it will continue for three days.

We are going to Heliopolis, (you must look on the map for these places,) which was the seat of science where Plato studied thirteen years under the priest. There is not much to be seen except an obelisk half buried in the sand.

Yesterday we walked down to the Nile, which resembles the Mississippi river in color. My amiable friends, accompanied by another English lady who resides here, have just called on me. We have also had the company of a gentleman—a warm-hearted Irish friend, who has traveled with us over since we left Florence. They are all so kind that I begin to feel a sort of relationship to them. They have been traveling two years, and after spending next winter in Spain, they are coming to the United States. I tell them they must visit me. One said, "Oh, what will Mrs. Merrick say if we all do come," but I tell them to have no fear of that. I do not know what I shall do when I lose these intelligent and amiable companions.

There are a great many Americans up the Nile now, though some have just returned.—Among them a family from Boston. One lady, seventy years old, went to the top of the Pyramids, carried by Arabs. The ascent is too dangerous for me. I shall not presume to make the attempt, though I shall see them and go inside the great pyramid of Geesch.

We passed a mud village, the most wretched place for mortals to live in that ever was seen. The houses looked like caves dug in the earth, not much better than a pigpen. The tops of these miserable dens are covered with straw or corn shucks, when covered at all. The goats and chickens seem to be equal with the family, for they all eat together. There are tents in the market place, where we see crowds of these degraded people. They sit along the sides of the streets, they sit in their bazaars to sell goods. In fact sitting, with the addition of their pipe, makes up the apparent existence of the Turks.

We have been out to visit the engine house. The overseer, who is an Englishman, told me that the young Egyptians are to be kept in order solely by beating. I could well believe him, for I saw our hotel keeper beat a servant this morning before my door, almost in my very presence. They are much more degraded than our negroes and have lower habits.

We met a lady this evening veiled and splendidly dressed with lilac colored satin trowsers, under a rich embroidered silk; but we only saw her eyes, which were very bright.

I do wonder why some one of my friends have not written to me lately: your mother's letter, received at Malta, was the last intelligence I have had. I hope she has recovered from that chill and fever and likes New Orleans better. It is a perfect paradise, compared to many of the European cities.

Tell the girls they must not idle away their precious time, but make a business of study. You are highly blest in your parents, and it would be unpardonable if you did not set your mark high and become a scholar and a man.

S. B. THOMAS.

"DO HE EAT FLOWERS?"

A correspondent relates that, one morning the past spring, a bobolink came and sang in a field near his house. His little four-year-old daughter was much delighted, and asked, "What makes he sing so sweet, mother? Do he eat flowers?"

PROFESSIONAL.

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.
Office (for the present) 120 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. E. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennett, Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. D. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Oglesby & McAnaly, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6 2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.
HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law since that country twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Sores, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Surpe of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it annecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. may9 1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. E. LAURANS.
LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 110 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.
Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans
jy21 1y

J. C. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM B. DAMERON
Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans
dec7-1y

R. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.
Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 57 Carondelet street, New Orleans. jo28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.
MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the chrism.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst cases of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANIFS, humbug nor ha's about it selling some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 161 Chartres st.

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 15 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

E. B. READ. J. HOWARD GROVES.
READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.
DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street between Camp and St. Charles streets
Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society
Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound
BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,
published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.
Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the books and prices.
Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. B. CLEGHORN,
Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY
Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"
No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,
KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.
The "S. W. S. S. Union" is the handle of Southern work, both this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Address, REV. E. B. CLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union,"
feb 27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE. No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. ma8

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON, & CO.,
No. 82. Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED with frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash. Also,
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS in the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER and BUILDER, No. 66 Rampart street, (formerly Hercules street,) Box No 388 Mechanic's Exchange.
Will do work promptly and well, and as cheap as any for cash.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 20 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jun1

Cuddy Brown & Co.
HAVING closed the affairs of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 58 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!! BELLS!!!!
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School House and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warranties, diameter of bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York:
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. o22 1y

BOOTH & CO,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes parties that they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH and PARLOR ORGANS, Prince's, Mannings's, Burdett's, Burdett's, and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's; Nunn & Clark's, Billert's, Boardman G. Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Bates', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and kindred every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. FINEY,
ap26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 41 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House,
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods; CAMP STOOLS; IRON BEDSTEADS; OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with dispatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner, as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES.
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans.

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries—East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of ironing and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BRY COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap20 6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactured at VERY LOW RATES.
jan16-13m BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell, Job Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Keney, John P. Grace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGDON, President.
U. O. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Books, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a25-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, F. W. LEWIS, of Rapides. } A. MONOHEMER, Geo. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS.
a19 1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.
ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kind of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. feb1 3

SAVE YOUR HORSES.
We take great pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for several Horse Bruises, Sores, Stiff Joints and Rheumatic Pains, and all say it acts like magic. We use no other Liniment.
J. W. HEWITT
Foreman for American Harnden's and Wells, Fargo & Co's Express.
Gentlemen:—I had a negro man worth $1200 who took cold from a bad hurt, and was useless for over one year; I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mustang Liniment. It has perfectly cured him, and I can now take the above price for him. Respectfully yours JAMES DOURANCE.
Every Planter, Teamster and Family should have this invaluable article. Sold by all respectable dealers everywhere.
feb 13 BARNES & PARK Proprietors New York

T. T. TWITTY.
COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herring's celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh14m

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.
Rev. H. C. TIHWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THACHER, A. B., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE A. MONELLY M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles Lettres.
Miss JULIA A. TUCKER, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. ACHILLA H. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Miss MARY DELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Patron.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chrom'ic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Examination and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.
Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish his own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with his own name.
Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid right per cent. interest will be charged.
Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.
No deduction from the bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a protracted continuance at the time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal. ☜
Books, Stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.
Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.
Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.
All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron and the College.
The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 16th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.
The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.
All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 3-7 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.
THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 6th of February, and continue ten weeks.
It is now pleasantly established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15. Academic Department, $20. Collegiate Department, $25. Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in case of continued sickness for one month, by order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMPSON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY, the 6th of October, 1856.
FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SEALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
C. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLCOTT, B. B., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:

In Preparatory Department	$21 50
In College Department	30 00

Marticulation fee on entering College Department, $5.
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from $10 to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings, large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough christian or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education recommend, this institution to the consideration of every parent. The French language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more elaborately than any where else, except of a native Frenchmen family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. R. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, Bellgarde & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. G. W. EVERETT. d19 1y.

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, La.
PRINCIPAL.....REV. WILLIAM McALLEN, M. D.
THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and thorough. None but well qualified Assistants will be employed in the various Departments. The Religious training of the youth will be an object of primary importance. The Bible will be a text book, but all sectarianism will be scrupulously avoided. The discipline will be strict, but mild and parental. Spelling, Reading and Composition, so much neglected in many schools, will receive particular attention. The Principal, having graduated in a European University and having been engaged in teaching nearly eighteen years, (fifteen in Clinton in Kentucky and this,) she can, therefore, confidently hope to prove herself worthy of public confidence. The charges and conditions will be the same as formerly made here by Rev. B. Jones, whose property, so admirably adapted to educational purposes, the Principal has purchased. The first term will necessarily consist of only four and a half months, but the expenses—payable in advance—will be accordingly.
REFERENCES—The President and Professors of Centenary College, Jackson, and Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. Feb 20-2t

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants;
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.
INVITE THE ATTENTION of DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.

COFFEE,
SUGAR,
TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES,
RICE,
MACKAREL, and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetically Sealed Cans,
WHALE,
LARD,
LINSEED and CASTOR OILS,
STAR and SPERM CANDLES,
CLARET,
CHERRY,
MADEIRA and

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 8. WHOLE NUMBER 371.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MARCH 27, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP ST.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

HYMN OF PRAISE.

How great! how wise! how good!
Is God in all his ways;
He casseth wind and flood,
To utter forth his praise.

He giveth man and beast,
Their meat in season due;
Oh God! from great to least
Thy gifts are ever new.

Who would not praise thy name,
Thou great and gracious God!
For thou art good the same,
Beneath thy smile or rod.

Oh! shout, ye saints, his praise,
Let earth and heaven sing;
And one eternal triumph raise,
To our eternal King.

Covington, La. G. T. V.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[CONTINUED FROM OUR LAST.]

Having now obtained mercy of the Lord, I had a great desire for the salvation of my relations and neighbors, and whenever an opportunity offered I endeavored to admonish them to flee the wrath to come; and when I through fear or neglect, failed, I always felt guilty before God. I did not attempt to speak in public; but families or individuals I often tried to persuade to seek the Lord, and I thought I saw some good fruits, which encouraged me to go in that way. I now saw it my duty to join some branch of the Church of God, but knew not what to do. There was a Presbyterian, a Baptist, and a Methodist Church all near me; but to choose was the all absorbing point. I was raised among the Baptists; my parents and many relations were Baptists; I liked the name and the mode of baptism best, and wished to please my relations, if I could please God in doing so. I was a little acquainted with the Methodists, and as far as I could judge I liked their liberal doctrines, their general spirit, and above all the life of religion I saw many of them had attained unto. I loved all the Lord's people, but so it was that I did love and fellowship those the most that I believed loved and worshiped God in the most spiritual manner; and I really thought the Methodist people in general the most zealous, loving followers of Christ. But I was in a strait what to do. I said, on my knees, "O Lord I am a child and thou art my father; do thou direct my steps in this thing and unite me to thy people where I may receive and do the most good." I went to hear all and to converse with all for several weeks; but still knew not the will of the Lord. The Baptists had a two days meeting, where the door was to be opened, members received and baptised. I went prepared to join if the Lord opened any way, by filling my soul with his love and uniting my heart with that people. That day the preacher sang, prayed and preached, and I tried to pray and give my heart to God, to guide me according to his own will. The door was opened for experience. I drew near while two gave in and were received on old experiences. I sought the Lord for his love to be shed abroad in my heart as it had been in times past and I would join; but my poor heart grew harder and harder, so I stepped out of the house and felt better. I concluded to wait on the Lord, knowing and believing his choice would be best for me. We went to the water where baptism was administered, and a door opened again for me; but I could not join, not having the spirit of union and love. I returned home in company with an aged Baptist member, who chided me for quenching the Spirit in refusing to join. I told him all my heart meekly, and my reasons for not joining that day. We talked on doctrine, and he called me a Methodist. I said if I was, God had made me one, for I knew very little about the people. Another asked me for my experience, and I gave it to him honestly. He said it was very good as far as it went; but it was too short. You, said he, have only received forgiveness for all past and present sins.

Now, said he, when I received the pardon of my sins, God forgave all past, present and to come; all that I ever was to commit was forgiven. I said there was a difference in our experiences: mine was—"Go in peace and sin no more." I thought if Christ forgives all sins to come, the Pope is right and follows his Master, for he will give a passport to heaven to a man if he will come to his terms; and if Christ forgives all sins to come, the Pope is but a follower of Christ in doing as his Master does: both are indulgent.

I endeavored, as I had received Christ Jesus, so to walk in him; but still had desires to unite with God's people in some Church. I went again to hear the Methodists. I felt well under preaching; class meeting came on and I arose to go out. One took me by the hand, saying, you are welcome to stay in the class room with us. I said if it was no intrusion I should be glad to do so. He said sit down. I did so. While the examination was going on, the power of God was present to heal the wounds I had received from some who contend more about unprofitable doctrine than against sin. My soul was fed that day among the people called Methodists, and my heart was truly united to them. The preacher then opened the door to receive members, making a few observations on the rules in the Discipline. I felt the Spirit of the Lord uniting my heart to the people of that class, and I arose to my feet and said, I would be thankful if they would receive me into the Church, as God had united my heart with theirs. That beloved man, Samuel Parker, was present and we rejoiced together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. Afterward he became an eminent and useful preacher; but has long since gone to his reward. I was received on trial I think about two months after my conversion, and have reason to bless God that I ever found a place in the Methodist Church. O that I had been a member of that Church twenty years sooner. But thanks be to God that I am what I am and where I am. Glory to God, for his unspeakable goodness to me. I know and remember the time when I began to love him; but I hope I never shall end loving and praising his great and excellent name. O my soul, praise him!

When I returned home I told my wife that I joined the Methodist Church that day. She said she was sorry that she had not been there, so that she might have joined with me; but she would shortly have an opportunity to join, when she did a few weeks after. She joined as a seeker, which was a great comfort to me. I was happy among a people who lived in love, and met every Sabbath, either to hear preaching or pray, and speak to each other about the welfare of their souls. I was somewhat troubled in mind about baptism by immersion—by my mind being biased in my raising in favor of that mode—after conversion. I sought light on the subject by carefully reading God's word, with prayer. I found in doing so that John the Baptist was Christ's forerunner, and water baptism was administered by him before the Holy Spirit was given. Christ did not go before John to prepare the way before him by converting the soul and baptising with the Holy Ghost, but John went before Christ and baptised with water. Christ came after John and baptised with the Holy Ghost and with fire. I was surprised that I had been so much in the dark in reading the 3d. of Mathew, for I had viewed John following Christ, with the water to finish the work; but if we patronize John we must go as forerunners of Christ, preach and baptise with water and let Christ follow and finish the work, baptising with the Spirit. These things produced a change in my mind; and why, thought I, reject infants when Christ received them and declared them to be subjects of his kingdom. In this he was a prophet, like Moses, who was commanded of God to bring them into the Church at eight days old. God is the same, his Church is the same, and we are only branches, grafted into the original root that is holy. The root bears us and not we the root. Infants were natural branches of old, and must be yet, for Christ saith, "Of such is the kingdom of God, and let them come and forbid them not." John the Baptist, our Lord's forerunner, and Christ himself were members of the visible Church at eight days old. These are examples to us that we may follow the same; but Christ being baptised at thirty years of age, was not to make him a member of the visible Church on earth, but to fulfil the righteousness of the law of which, in the sight of men, he was ordained to be a high priest and took on him an endless priesthood after the order of Melchisidec, to make an atonement for us by the shedding of his own blood; and as he is the propitiation for the sins of the whole world, all men, women and children ought to be and were appointed to be baptised in his name with water, as a seal of the promise to them and to their children. And as Jesus Christ is that prophet, like unto Moses, all the world should submit to be baptised unto him as the Israelites were unto Moses. After thinking seriously on these things and duly considering the nature of water baptism, I became perfectly satisfied that baptism was the setting the subject apart for God, and the sooner the better; and if done by a regular ordained minister of the Church of Christ and in the gospel form it was valid. I felt my conscience perfectly at ease on that subject ever after; and on reading God's holy word I saw that it was my duty to leave these things behind and to go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation from dead works.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

IMPRESSIONS OF A VISIT.

It is customary for travelers to write their "Impressions," and have them printed. I have no travels in Asia, and Africa, no "European Impressions" to jot down. But I imagine there are many wonderful things to be thought, felt and seen on a journey from our little inland town to your great "Crescent City"—especially by one who has not been on steamboat or car for fourteen years.

The clear blue sky that bounds our vision—the rising and setting sun are beautiful mysteries; and would excite the liveliest impressions, did not their constant recurrence render us unmindful of their beauty and sublimity and the lessons that they teach. So "the river," "the boat," "the city" are very hum-drum, common place affairs to those who see them every week. There was a feeling of sad wonder in my soul as I sat on the guards of the "Capitol", and listened to the weird and ominous sounds of her machinery and watched the waters recede from her prow, and the waves run out from her keel and lash the shore. So thought I, the boat of our life is, propelled on the river of time. The influence that our actions have are like these waves: it goes out, and out, till it lashes the shore of eternity. What a wonderful thing is a steamboat! Like some mighty giant in its death throes, with a paper house on his back freighted with precious gems, she pants, and groans, and shrieks, and roars over the treacherous waters. Indeed, it seemed to me like riding over a dangerous river on a cruel fire dragon. I felt a sort of sorrowful disgust of all steamboats just then; for, only a few days before, the "General Grossman" had been blown up, and on board of her was one very dear to me and my children—Kirk Musel a talented young man, who bade fair to bless his friends and the world. His mother and I were friends in early youth. I taught him the rudiments of knowledge some 13 years ago, and felt a sort of motherly interest in his success. I never read more beautiful letters than those he was in the habit of writing to his little sisters and brother; they were unsurpassed by any compositions of the kind that I ever read—quite equal, in my opinion, to the letters written by S. S. Prentiss to his brother and sisters. Few young men are so rarely gifted as he was. But the ruthless might of steam, mocking the puny power of man, laughing at bars and bolts, struck down this promising boy. I felt like hating all steamboats. Ah, Kirk! how many hopes your father and friends had freighted on you; but your bark went down at early dawn. The grave holds your dust in its silent hall. "Alas for love, if thou wert all, and naught beyond, oh earth!"

When our boat got in, the guns were firing to celebrate the day which gave a Washington to America. One resolution I made, and will record; I will not travel on a boat on Sabbath again, if I can make any reasonable arrangements to avoid it. Sunday don't stay on board of the boats. I attended preaching at Carondelet Street Church, February 28th—heard a plain, forcible, gospel sermon about "the strait gate and the narrow way." The Church is very fine, for a Methodist Church (I mean the building.) I believe it is customary for some country Methodists to go about after certain popular preachers in the city. I was asked why I did not go to Dr. P's. Church, and told that I ought to have gone, as he was such a good preacher. I answered, I went to my own Church of course; that I had no doubt that Mr. P. was a good gospel preacher, but that our preacher at Carondelet Street Church was just as good. One thing "impressed" me queerly—calling up people to join the Church with ONOAN music. It "impressed" me as being rather different from ancient usage: for instance, when the doors of the Church used to be opened by the singing of "Am I a soldier of the cross," or "People of the living God," by a choir, composed of all the congregation. On the whole, I prefer ancient usage. Old folks do generally, you know.

One thing I speculated on a good deal while in your city: that was the power and habit of ignoring the very existence of every one, except those whom one chooses to know. This state of things I suppose grows out of the fact of being thrown with strangers in cars, omnibusses, and boats. With this habit, it must require a great deal of humanity to enable one to remember that all the parts of this stream of people are portions of the great humanity—that they have minds, hearts, souls to be cared for. I should think that the minister of Christ must find it hard to remember what Ritchie says, that "Every human heart you meet is trembling with passion, or bursting with desire. On every tongue there is some tale of joy or woe. That by mysterious ties I am connected with what is finite and human." The tendency in cities seems to be, to make persons but parts of a great moving panorama, not living, feeling people. In good society in the city it is considered out of place to introduce any two persons who may meet in your parlor, unless an introduction is requested. These city people miss some annoyances by this custom; but they miss making some pleasant, profitable acquaintances. While in your city I was thrown in company with a nice, pretty looking young married woman, at the house of a friend. She treated me for all the world like I had been a lamp-stand. She talked and laughed with the ladies of the house and the baby, and seemed perfectly unconscious of my existence. You may be sure I did not like such a state of things. And if the lady did not look at me, I made her my study for five minutes. Now, if any of us country folks had met this lady in our little town, we would have asked her, When she arrived, had she gotten over her fatigue, and how she liked our town? I felt sorry, "you know," for the lady; to think how much she missed in not making the acquaintance of your "valued correspondent."

One comfortable looking, middle aged gentleman addressed a lady friend of mine in the cars, without an introduction, very politely asked her a question about some cuttings of flowers. Yet I judge he was some warm-hearted countryman who was ignorant of city manners. Now, Mr. Editor, don't you think that the habit of being with people every day, and seeing them as though you saw them not, has a tendency to make persons cold hearted toward all except those whom they choose to care for? But I am giving you my "Impressions," and have no license to ask you yours. I met plenty of warm-hearted, hospitable people in New Orleans; yet they were all, except three persons, from the country, who had not lived in a city long enough to become so—encrusted with forms.

What would be thought of a minister in your city who would do as Felix Neff did—step up to a man and put his hand on his shoulder and say, "Friend, how is it with your soul now?" What would be thought of a Christian, who had to wait half an hour at a railroad station, and should employ his moments in speaking a word for Christ to a stranger waiting in his company; no, not in his company, but breathing the same air for the time being? Whenever I travel I will be apt to give you my impressions of matters. Enough for the present.

MARY.

March 19.

Friendship has the skill and observation of the best physician, the diligence and vigilance of the best nurse, and the tenderness and patience of the best mother.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

OLD FASHIONED.

East Feam, March 10, 1858.

Ma. Editor: We have in use among us, as preachers, a great many hackneyed sayings and "text-words." These words figure largely, sometimes, even in our prayers. Many of them, too, are very falsely applied. For example, take the well-worn phrase—"Old Fashioned"—a real philological packhorse, made to carry a share of every commodity brought to market "these times!" Why, sir, we can hardly have an account of a revival, prayer, or class meeting, or even of a conversion, without seeing this classic Pegasus (less the wings) harnessed ("armed and equipped") as convenience and eronkology may suggest. Hence we have glowing notices, of "old fashioned" prayer meetings and class meetings, "old fashioned"—revivals, "old fashioned" conversions; and even in obituary notices we have "old fashioned" Christians! As if there could be an old fashioned prayer meeting or class meeting, or an old fashioned conversion, an old fashioned Christian! I have seen and worn old fashioned shoes, pants, vests, coats, hats, etc. I have seen and used old fashioned carts, buggies and wagons; have seen an old fashioned tar kiln; but I never saw an old fashioned conversion, nor an old fashioned christian or revival. Why, sir, we had as well say an old fashioned river or tide flow, old fashioned sunrise or sunset, old fashioned spring or summer, fall or winter.

A true conversion, a real revival, a good prayer meeting, class meeting, or sermon, a faithful, triumphant christian never can be old fashioned—never! And 'tis a libel upon all "means of grace" or their legitimate results to call them old fashioned. So thinks

PINE KNOT.

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

The more the matter is stirred the less we are reconciled to the action of 28th January, by which the Society receded from its revised standard edition. We do not like the recession itself and we do not like the way it was done. The Presbyterian (Phila.) gives a report, from which we extract:

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Bible Society was held at the Bible House, New York City, February 18th.

Hon. Luther Bradish presided. Dr. Krebs moved that the resignations of the six gentlemen of the Committee on Versions, who resigned their places at the last meeting of the Board, be taken from the table. This motion having been carried, the same gentleman moved the acceptance of the resignations. He believed in the entire sincerity of those members of the Committee who offered them. Respect for them and for ourselves demands that we act upon their statements. They declare themselves unable, with a good conscience, to carry out the late action of this Board. The whole matter of our recent standard edition of the Scriptures is now settled by that action. No one expects a motion of reconsideration; we must act promptly, and proceed to the appointment of such a Committee on Versions as will prepare for us the future standard edition.

Dr. McElane (the collator) was not prepared to vote for accepting these resignations without some effort by the Board to have unanimity. The gentleman then proceeded to read, as a substitute several resolutions, which he intimated would, at the proper time, if meeting a favorable reception, be proposed by him:

Whereas, Very serious doubts are entertained by many of the friends of the American Bible Society as to the authority of the Board of Managers to change or set aside its late standard edition of the Bible, inasmuch as it has received the formal sanction of the Society, and consequently has been published for years; and since such a change as is contemplated in the action of the 28th of January involves considerable expense, and may be countermanded by the Society at its anniversary meeting in May next, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That the question of altering or laying aside such standard edition be referred by the Board to the Society for its consideration and determination, at its next annual meeting.

Resolved, 2. That in the meantime the Board publish, as for six years past it has been accustomed to do, both the old and the revised editions, leaving it optional with auxiliaries and individuals to order whichever they may wish.

Resolved, 3. That those members of the Committee on Versions, who tendered their resignations at the last meeting of the Board, be requested to withdraw the same, and consent to act in the service of the Board.

Resolved, 4. That the following notice be published for four weeks preceding the next annual meeting of the Society, viz: "As objections have been made by some of the friends and patrons of the American Bible Society to the recent standard edition of the Scriptures it publishes, the Board of Mangers have referred the whole subject to the consideration of the Society at its next annual meeting, to be held on the 13th of May next. Life members, and all who pay three dollars annually are members, and entitled to vote in all meetings of this Society."

Mr. Chairman, if harmony is desired, the acceptance of these resignations will not produce it. The breach will widen and increase. Loving this Society as I do, I feel assured that if we adopt these resignations we shall increase, instead of putting out this flame.

During the discussion Dr. Dyer said:

Public sentiment has been broadly claimed upon this floor to be in opposition to our late standard Bible; and, to my utter amazement, I have received several letters, from those claimed as holding such sentiments, disapproving the recent action of this Board, and expressing the opinion that the labor of your Committee on Versions has produced the most perfect Bible the world has ever seen. One is from a gentleman, quoted by the other side as favoring their opinions, a gentleman of the highest position in the Church. And I have yet to meet a layman, active in promoting our cause, who does not entirely disapprove of the action of our Board. A little delay may save to us the services of these valuable men upon our Committee on Versions, and I am perfectly sure, that if we accept their resignations, we inflict a wound, which, as a gentleman has well said, time will not heal. In the beginning, I joined in the hue and cry, as it has been termed, against the Committee on Versions, but it was without the examination. I thought, is this right, before I inquire, thus to take such a stand? Such a careful inquiry resulted in an entire change of views. I have examined the matter with considerable care; and, sir, just as far as our people examine into this, they will come to the same conclusions. If we pass our action, we shall take precisely the course that the enemies of the Bible Society in the Episcopal Church desire. A standard of their own will be erected, and our friends will go off.

Dr. Spring took pretty strong ground:

Permit me to say, Mr. Chairman, that the Bible Society has no power over this question at all by its charter. The Bible Society might vote unanimously upon it, yet no action could result if the Board opposed it. By the Constitution the Society has this power—if they dislike your acts they can remove, every three years, a portion of the Board, and elect new members.

Dr. Bagnam (Secretary) wished to correct the erroneous statement that the whole Annual Report was adopted by the Society at any annual meeting. All that we ever lay before the Society, is an abstract not more than ten minutes long. For a long time past, I have seen two parties growing up with widely differing views. One party takes the old English Bible as a basis. They find this in the authorized version of England as to text, marginal readings, contents and headings of chapters. The British and Foreign Bible Society do not dare to use any other accessories—they would not, they could not. Coming then to ours: the idea of the founders of our Society was to make our editions identical with theirs. In the Constitution they do not say "authorized version," but "version in common use." By this, they intended the same Bible as was known in the phrases then common, as "King James' Bible as used in this country." "The Bibles commonly used in New England," etc. And those who wish the old Bible mean, not the text alone, but the whole accessories. This Bible is known to the whole English speaking race. Three-quarters, if not eight-tenths of the community want that Bible. There is something analogous to this in Europe. In Germany, for more than one hundred years, many have wanted others than the common version of the Scriptures in use there. But the great majority of the common people say, we want Luther's version, we will have no other. This is like the language of a large part of our public.

Another party say we hold to the old version; but we consider the headings, contents, and marginal readings as no part of it. We want a Bible different from that used by the whole race.

Now, our only hope of stability is by publishing the old Bible unchanged.

After some further discussion, the question being taking upon accepting the resignations of the six members of the Committee on Versions, it was carried by a large majority.

Dr. Krebs then proposed the appointment of a Committee to nominate successors to those gentlemen whose resignations had been accepted; and, upon motion, the Chairman and the other Vice-Presidents presiding at this meeting, were appointed such Committee.

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings a letter from Dr. Tyng was read, in which he offered his resignation as a member of the Board's Committee on Anniversaries; assigning as his reason, that he can not co-operate with the Board in the line of policy which they have seen fit to adopt.

Another vacancy having previously occurred by the resignation, on account of other pressing duties, of Dr. Alexander, a vote by ballot resulted in the election of Dr. Potts and the Rev. Mr. Schefelfen of Newton, Long Island.

The Independent (N. Y.) presents a historic summary:

In 1847 the Committee of Versions were directed to have a Standard Edition of the Bible in English, of King James' version, prepared for the Society; which should be made as perfect as possible, be cleansed of all typographical errors, and be the model to which all future editions of the Society should be conformed. They entered upon the work in 1848; and prosecuted it diligently and carefully thereafter, with the aid of a most attentive and industrious collator, till the spring of 1851, when their work was completed. They then reported, in form and fully, to the Board of Managers, in what condition they had found the previous editions of the Society, what they had done to these to make them more accurate as copies of the version, on what principles they had done this, and how nearly to perfection they felt themselves to have brought their work. They had not been appointed, and they had not tried, to make A NEW VERSION, of any clause, or phrase, or word; but simply to make the best and most perfect EDITION possible of that old, useful, and venerated Version which always has been and always must be circulated by the Society, at least until its Constitution shall be changed. And with this in view they made their Report. The accessories to the version—including particularly the Headings of columns, and the Contents of Chapters—they had tried to amend, and to bring more exactly into conformity with the text of the Scriptures, and with the Constitution of the Society itself. In this they did only what previous editors had frequently done, and what they supposed no one could object to. The "version" itself—i. e. the Translated Text of the Scriptures—they meant to leave only improved and perfected in the manner of its Imprint.

The character of the Committee—embracing, as it did, Dr. Spring as chairman; with Dr. Turner, the venerable professor of Sacred Literature in the Episcopal Theological Seminary in this city; Dr. Robinson, of the Union Theological Seminary; Dr. J. McClintock, of the Methodist Church; Dr. Cock, of the Society of Friends, one of the Senior Vice-Presidents of the Society; Dr. Vermilye, of the Reformed Dutch Church; and Dr. Storrs, of the Congregational—was a sufficient guaranty that nothing rash or reckless could be done by it, nothing adverse to the Constitution, or to the interests of the Society; and that the aim of the Committee would be, as it was, simply and purely to make the best Edition possible of the English Bible, IN KING JAMES' VERSION, for the use of the Society. And nothing was done by this Committee without entire unanimity, at least so far as the principles and rules involved were concerned. Some of the minor details of correction etc. did not of course come before every member of the Committee; as all were not always present at the meetings. But nothing of any importance was done which had not been approved, either in itself or in the rule which governed it, by ALL the members of the Committee, from the oldest to the youngest. ALL gave their final endorsement to the edition thus prepared, and then adopted unanimously by the Board, as the best edition which they could make of "the Holy Scriptures in English, according to the version in common use."

For six years after their Report was made, was published by the Board, and was profusely distributed in all parts of the land, no criticism was heard on it. For six years after these editions were published, and while they had been sent, literally by millions, into all parts of the country, no objection was made to them. The very individuals, some of them at least, and the auxiliary bodies, who have lately objected to these editions, had been using them all this time without suspicion, without dissent, without discovering any smallest taint of danger or defect in them; and we know of instances in which persons who have been greatly excited of late by the rumors so industriously set afloat that the American Bible Society was trying to introduce a "new version of the Scriptures" have had for years past, and have used habitually, and have greatly valued, the very copies of the Scriptures against which such a violent clamor has been raised.

Rev. Mr. Coxe, a small high churchman, a year or two ago raised the first objection. He published a pamphlet, objecting to the removal of what he called the "archaisms" of the old edition, and broadly hinted that the Church only had a right to order a new edition! It was treated lightly—Mr. Coxe's production was coming from a man of no weight and from a wing of that Church that never had been friendly to the society. But at the General Assembly of the Old School Presbyterian Church, in May of last year, the Rev. R. J. Breckenridge—then, as often before, the virtual leader of the Assembly—took occasion to denounce "the new Bible," as he chose to call it. As was feared, he succeeded in arraying that Church against the movement; and they, having sixteen out of the thirty-six managers of the Board, have raised such a clamor and noise and confusion, as to make recession appear a necessary peace measure.

The protest of the Committee of Versions against this course—although the members of that committee had served the Board from ten to twenty years apiece, at great sacrifice to themselves, through mere love of the cause, and though their protest was entirely temperate and decorous in its terms—is refused a place on the minutes of the Board; and the committee, are driven in self-respect to resign their places, Dr. Spring alone yielding to the now prevalent influence, and retaining his commission; Dr. Tyng, who has been an early and able friend of the society, says in the Protestant Churchman:

"The beast is now openly made on all sides, that the first gun in this iniquitous assault upon the Bible Society was fired by the Rev. Arthur Cleveland Cox, a gentleman who prides himself in the attainment of a High Church hostility to the principles on which the Bible Society was founded. It appeared in him a mere act of hostility to the cause itself. Its result has proved how true is the proverb that "one sinner destroyeth much good." He may now well boast himself in the amount of evil of which he ploads to have been the original inventor. But it is with equal force of truth asserted by his main supporter in his own High Church clique, that all his efforts would have been powerless, had not the Old School Presbyterians come forward in a united determination to sustain the assault which he had made.

"This union of forces is now the boast of the day. The High Church hostility of a few Episcopalians, who have always opposed the Bible Society, and the sectarian love of power of the Old School Presbyterians, who were determined to control it, have combined to overthrow the settled action of the Board of Managers, which had been for six years consummated, for the same number of years seen and known, and never objected to, which had been unanimously and deliberately adopted and approved by this Board on repeated occasions, and in repeated shapes, and which every member of the Board probably believed in his own conscience to be right, for certainly no one of them ever asserted in the Board the contrary."

The Independent avers that voters from Jersey City, Elizabethtown and adjacent places were mustered in, on 28th January to carry the case.

It is well, in all unions with other denominations, to fix constitutionally the proportion of members of each, in the management. That Board certainly ought to be revised and must be, before the confidence of all the Churches can be restored. Can not polls be opened, in the various auxiliary societies throughout the land, for taking the sense of the entire constituency of the American Bible Society on this subject? Its importance deserves it.

SECRET OF TALKING SUCCESS.

Some preachers might learn something profitable from the following. Says one: I asked Sir James Scarlett what was the secret of his pre-eminent success as an advocate. He replied that he took care to press home the one principal point of the case, without paying much regard to the others. He also said that he knew the secret of being short. "I find," said he, "that when I exceed half an hour, I am always doing mischief to my client; if I drive into the head of the jury unimportant matter, I drive out matter more important that I had previously lodged there."

KEEN REPROOF.

Dr. Harris, a former President of Columbia College, was in the habit of criticising, briefly, the compositions of the senior class. One day, a candidate for Baccalaureate honors, read a remarkably beautiful essay to which his classmates listened with rapt attention. So did the President. When the young man had finished, and the momentary hum of applause in the room had ceased and all were anxiously waiting to hear the criticism of the President, the old gentleman, in his blandest tones, said, "He who steals his goods, can always undersell the fair trader. Let us hear the next."

POLITENESS.

One of the English infidels was so struck with the politeness and good feeling manifested in St. Paul's writings, that he affirmed that if St. Paul had said that he himself had ever performed a miracle, he would believe it, because he deemed St. Paul too much of a gentleman to tell an untruth. Whatever we may think of this remark, we cannot but be struck with the power which politeness had over the infidel.

TRUE RICHES.—My riches are my opportunities to do good, and those illuminations of my mind which furnish me for it.—Mather.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, MARCH 27, 1858.

ARE THEY COMING?

Who? The five new subscribers from each agent of the Advocate, and the old ones "kept up," so that by May our list shall reach 7000—good and true. They are coming and staying, cheeringly. But some, who voted at Conference, are not acting. The ease with which others have succeeded, upon an effort, induces us to believe it can be done.

The Advocate is now printed on a larger and finer sheet than any previous volume. It is well printed and worthier of patronage than ever.

Send on your contingent.

DAILY PRAYER MEETINGS.—During the week, daily prayer meetings have been held and well and seriously attended by business men, in Carondelet Street Methodist Church. The hour for meeting is 8 o'clock—adjournment, 9. Merchants and clerks thus are able to attend the meeting and reach their offices in time for the opening of business.

We understand that the Presbyterian Church on Lafayette Square was opened for afternoon prayer meeting, on Friday.

Also, on Wednesday, daily prayer meetings were opened, from 12 to 1 o'clock, in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, over the Bible House, 191 Camp street. All are invited, and we invoke a general attendance on these special means of grace.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.—President Miller called upon us this week. We were pleased to see him bearing up well under his arduous duties. The center building—the finest in the state, consecrated to Minerva—is finished, from corner stone to dome. Finished! Now let its friends step forward with funds to pay up the last debt. Those who have subscribed, and on the faith of whose promised aid this fine structure has been completed, should be ready when called upon to meet their obligations. There are about 170 students in the college. At the late commencement of the law and medical departments of the University, we heard it stated on good authority that over forty of the graduates were formerly students of Centenary. Her alumni have taken three out of four valedictories.

HON. J. F. DOWDELL, of Alabama, has obliged us with a copy of his remarks on the "Kansas Issue" in Congress, March 10.

REV. DR. MCALLEN, it will be seen by the advertisement, has removed to Jackson, La., and taken charge of the institute there for educating young ladies. It is an excellent opportunity offered to those whose daughters and wards have not received an accomplished and christian education. The moral and intellectual are highly combined in the teacher and, we doubt not will be, in the course of instruction.

LAW CARDS.—Those who have business with gentlemen of the legal profession, are commended to advertising columns under the head "professional." For convenience, they are scattered about, better suiting those who want their "cases" attended to.

W. Pinckney Hill, Esq., lately came from Texas, with a fine and well earned reputation, to the Crescent City. We are glad he has driven down his stake here. J. W. Tucker, Esq., of St. Louis, has deposited in our office a list of the best references, besides published ones. Those who want counsel in North Louisiana—will find in the card of J. C. Beall, Esq., what they require. Our friends, Fuqua & Kilburn, in East Feliciana, fill the bill at that point. We heard the "Clinton bar" highly complimented, on their appearance before the Supreme Court a few weeks ago. "They understand briefs," said one of the judges.

REMOVING THE PUBLISHING HOUSE.—We think it not expedient for the good of the Church and that special interest to open our columns on this subject. This is an answer to those who have written on it and about it. The rub has been gone through and let us give Nashville a fair and full trial. We would suggest, however, to those who regard it an open question, that the localities intending to make proposals, put them in a solid, plain, business-like shape, so that there can be no mistake, in May.

THE LOUISIANA COURIER.—Most of the secular papers have noticed the revival influence overspreading the land in a manner that gives pleasing assurance of the moral tone of our national press. The Louisiana Courier of this city is an exception. The leading editorials in that paper, on this subject, have been so shockingly scurrilous and blasphemous as to lead to the inquiry among those who read them, Who is it that writes? A few days back, while reviling theological Students, "under the patronage of sewing societies," the Courier utters this sentence:

"It may be perfectly convincing to old ladies at a prayer-meeting to tell them that the Holy Ghost poured out His spirit under the ministration of Whitfield; but why then more than before or since?"

Extracts from the N. Y. Tribune and other sheets of that type, throwing ridicule upon the subject, are spun out, interspersed with comments, of which the above is characteristic.

REV. W. C. ROSE, a member of the Memphis Conference, and Presiding Elder of the Memphis District, died Thursday, 11th inst. He was a christian minister of zeal and power and eminently high-toned in spirit.

INCORPORATED.—Among the acts of the Louisiana Legislature, (which adjourned last week,) signed by the Governor, we find the following:

"No. 92. An act to incorporate the Pierce & Paine College at Pleasant Hill, Desoto parish."

DEATH OF AN EMINENT THEOLOGIAN.—Nathaniel W. Taylor, D.D., Professor of Didactic Theology in Yale College, died March 10th.

DIVINE INFLUENCE NEEDED.

This is the one thing needful, in all hearts, in all Churches, in all communities.

Like unto a man who has laid the timbers and built up his mill, fixed the wheels and dug the channels; then waits for the stream of power to be turned on it: So are the people of this day. They have built Churches, organized benevolent Societies, established Presses and Schools, arranged an extensive machinery of alms and missions. Of human contrivance there is much—too much to be useless and too little if we are to depend on it. What is now wanted, every where and indispensably, is divine influence.

Religions organizations are still and dead; an array of skeletons, an army of drybones.—God alone can make beath to enter into them and they shall live. His Spirit can convert these agencies and symbols of good into instruments of working his glory.

For the encouragement of his people we have recorded what God is doing elsewhere, for salvation. True revivals are not sectional. The earth is the Lord's. For all, Jesus died. There is no North, no South, no East, no West, in the range of divine influence. "Thus saith the Lord, Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live."

We may not, can not make the plea of merit, now or at any time. But let the Church, in prayer and penitence, fall into a state of gracious receptivity. A cloud of mercy hangs o'er the land: prepare the empty vessels—vessels of mercy—that they may be filled. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.

CAUSES OF MAIL ERRORS.

Agents or subscribers ordering the paper or requesting changes, should be particular to give the names of post offices. After frequent warnings, here is a specimen of letters sometimes received:

THE STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Parish of Calcasieu.

MR. EDITOR: I have just reached my field of labor, and you will oblige me by forwarding to this place the Advocate. Yours, &c.,
ROBERT T. P***.

Where is "my field of labor"?—The minutes, upon consulting and searching them for half an hour, might show. But where is "this place"? There is no internal evidence in the letter. Looking for the envelop, which had been torn off and thrown into a willow basket with dozens of others, we find a blurred post office stamp, utterly illegible.

Very soon the brother may write us a scolding letter, wondering why his paper does'nt come.

TWO NAMES AND ONE PERSON.

Here is another difficulty, arising from not specifying that the subscriber paid for is O. S. or N. S. Or, a lady's paper may be going in her own name, as Mr. Mary Jones. An agent sends forward the money as from Mrs. John Jones. We continue Mrs. Mary Jones' paper, of course, and enter Mrs. John Jones. By-and-by it turns out that Mr. John Jones is the lady's husband. See here:

U. T——, March 13.

* * * Mrs. R. A. E. is wife of Dr. J. E., and I wrote in his name instead of hers. They are now receiving two copies of the paper.—Stop the one to Dr. J. E. and transfer amount I sent you to the credit of Mrs. R. A. E.

By observing the rules frequently laid down, our correspondents will save themselves and us from falling into many errors, annoying and costly. It is hard to keep accurately, yet we endeavor to do it, many individual accounts.

A NOVELTY—ROTATION.

We dislike tricks, stimulants and claptraps, to get the gospel a hearing. They degrade the subject, ignore its intrinsic importance, and make additional and increasingly eccentric applications necessary. But we have never known a Unitarian Church put to better use than one in Boston has served the past winter. It pricked the dull ears of the people and quickened formalism into life. By this plan, one minister from each Protestant denomination in the city preached a sermon in Mr. Winkley's chapel in Pitts street, on the question—"What must I do to be saved?"—The discourses excited much interest.

The same clergyman has introduced another series of discourses in his church on the questions, Why am I a Baptist? Why am I a Methodist? etc.

The pews and aisles, erewhile deserted, are filled to the utmost. One man, who came to the window a little late, offered ten dollars for a seat and did'nt get it. Representative men from various denominations and who can trust their cause to a statement and argument, came forward and gave a reason for the hope that is in them.

EXEMPLARY.—Dr. Summers gets off the following good thing: "At a missionary meeting held some years since during the session of the Alabama Conference in Auburn, Col. Thorington stated that he was making all the members of his family, white and black, life-members of the parent missionary society. An excellent brother, John H. Miller, arose and stated his determination to imitate the example of Brother T. We expressed the hope that he might have 'his quiver full' of candidates for the honor. Since then we have had the pleasure of handing over to the Treasurer several twenty dollar notes on Brother Miller's account. The mail has just brought us another, to make the eleventh child, Emma Corilla Miller, a life-member. When children are trained up in the Church and for the Church, we rejoice to hear it said, 'Still they come.'"

READ GOOD BOOKS.—There are so many, you can make your choice. Inferior books are to be rejected in an age and time when we are courted by whole libraries, and when no man's life is long enough to compass even those which are good and great and famous. No man can do his friend or child a more real service than to snatch out of his hand the book that relaxes and effeminates him, lest he destroy his solids and make his fibre flaccid by the slops and hashes of a catchpenny press.

LETTER FROM BISHOP ANDREW.

GREAT HARVEST AND FEW LABORERS—LACK OF NATIVE PREACHERS—WHY SO FEW ARE RAISED UP—ATTENTION OF PARENTS—EDUCATIONAL SCHEMES—SOME ADVICE—THE WESTMINSTER.

MR. EDITOR: I have been thinking for several weeks that I would tax you with some of my scribbling, but have hitherto held back. But after reading your last issue I resolved to speak a little. Let me just say how deeply I feel interested in the movements of the Church in Louisiana. You cultivate a most interesting field, whose fruitful and ample territory invites a large number of laborers, who love God's glory above their chief joy—men whose controlling principle of action is deep and ardent love for God and souls. Your territory demands a large annual increase of laborers, much larger than you have yet realized. Why is it that so few laborers are raised up to cultivate the interesting fields at your own doors? You have good men and true among you, and many young men are annually converted among you. Why is it that so few consecrate themselves to God's service in the work of the ministry? Is the Church clear in this matter? Have the older preachers directed the attention of the sons of the Church to this great field of effort? Has the call to the ministry formed the subject of full and free conversation with the young men? Very many of this class are lost to the ministry and the Church because no faithful and judicious friend has taken them by the hand, conversed freely with them, gained their confidence by patient kindness, and thus led them on, step by step, to the discovery of duty and the resolution to perform it.

But it sometimes happens that the parents of such young men give no encouragement to their sons, in reference to this matter. I have myself been astonished to hear some very good Methodist parents demuring to this call of God to their sons. They have spent a great deal of money on the education of that boy: he is talented, well educated, and a brilliant future awaits him in professional life—a judgeship, a governorship, senatorship, or a foreign mission, and a chance even for the white house itself: and is all this to be given up for the unpromising and unpaying field of Methodist itineracy? Alas for us! And is it then regarded so small an honor to be an ambassador for the King of kings!

I have touched this subject because I deem it one of vast importance to the prosperity of the Church. I rejoice to see the large increase of preachers in your Conference, and hope that men may never be wanting to transfer to your help; but after all, the permanent prosperity of the work must depend mainly on the preachers raised up among yourselves.

I congratulate the Conference upon the wide diffusion of the educational spirit among your people, as evidenced by the rapidly increasing demand for literary institutions under the control of the Conference.

I hail this as a favorable indication, and am persuaded that if these institutions are properly manned and properly managed they will tend largely to the improvement of your ministry, both in number and efficiency. And let me say to those friends whose zeal and liberality have brought these institutions into being, don't slack your zeal and let them die on your hands or starve them into a lingering and inefficient existence. It is fairly presumable that you felt yourselves able to carry out your plans or you would not have started them. Don't expect the Conference to build up the institution, and say we have done our share and will do no more. This is both silly and niggardly: the Conference has no money to give. It can furnish an agent, but it has no power to compel or insure the success of that agency.

I have known some cases where the people of a certain village, actuated by two grand motives—the desire to diffuse christian literature and to build up the fortunes of the locality—have been very zealous for the establishment of a college. Straightway a subscription is raised and about one-fourth of the money is subscribed which will be necessary; a memorial is drafted and the institution is offered to the Annual Conference, with the assurance that there will be no lack of friends in the surrounding country, and an efficient agent is asked to aid them in the undertaking. The offer is accepted; the agent is granted and goes to work; expenses in buildings are contracted for on the faith of what the agent is expected to raise. Meanwhile the agent goes forth to his work, when lo! it is ascertained that the people fifty miles from the spot are either not so flush of cash or so willing to give as had been anticipated; and where thousands had been expected, hundreds, and fifties, and twenty-fives, and tens only are forthcoming. The people talk about too many subscriptions, about academies and churches to build, and certain embryo colleges in their own bounds; and at the close of the year, when the agent's salary and expenses are deducted the balance will hardly pay the interest on the debt incurred for fine buildings. And now what? I leave this question to be answered by events.

The truth is, our people are frequently so smitten with the name college, that they act without duly considering the subject in all its bearings. Very few have any adequate conception of the amount necessary to build up a college. They suppose that $50,000 or $100,000 will be amply sufficient. Be assured, friends, fifties and hundreds, unless they are very enormous, won't build any thing worth calling a college.

It would be wise in any community, if they can't afford to put three 000's to the right hand of the figures 1 or 2, and that in a respectable number of instances, to be content to call it an academy or high school, which can be sustained at a much less cost and possibly with equal usefulness. But if you must have a college, why square yourselves to the work with a purpose to make the thing worthy of the name, although it should hinder you from adding to your property as much by several thousands as you might otherwise do. I have no doubt indeed that the college would in the end be the best investment, but can you trust God for the interest?

Now I have not written this because I have any suspicion that our Louisiana friends have acted so imprudently. On the contrary, I must judge, from your editorial notices and comments, that they are wide awake and have gone into the work aware of its importance, and resolved to carry it out. Perhaps a little stirring up will do no harm. I wish them God-speed in their enterprize and an abundant harvest of good as the result of their liberality and labor.

And now, Mr. Editor, I must give you a word of congratulation. I discover in your editorial of last week that you have at last reached the point and resolved to cut the acquaintance of the Westminster Review. Allow me to say, that I have often wondered how it was possible that you and all our other editors have continued to publish the notice of this miserable infidel thing, not only without a strong note of condemnation, but with at least a sort of tacit recommendation. I have long regarded it as one of the most dangerous publications issued from the press in this country. The fact that many of its articles are written with marked ability and elegance, and that its contributors are of large liberality in politics, renders it but the more dangerous, especially to the intelligent and reading young men of the country; and not a few of them have read it because of announcements in our religious periodicals and its tacit recommendation by them.

I read that periodical for several years, and if there was one number in which there was not an attack on christianity, either open or covert, I don't remember it. I endured this for a few years till at last I stopped taking it, lest, being found in my library, it might injure some one whose faith was not so well established as mine. I have frequently, both in private and in public, warned against it, and am heartily glad you have spoken out. Our editors should lift a warning voice against infidelity in all its aspects; for be assured the country is sufficiently cursed with the home bred article, without encouraging its importation. If a rumseller was to send you a long advertisement of choice liquors you would refuse instanter to publish it; and yet that would be comparatively harmless alongside a work whose grand aim is to undermine and unsettle the foundations of our Christian faith and hope.

'Tis time I closed this rambling talk.

JAMES O. ANDREW.

Summerfield, Ala., March 8, 1858.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 18, 1857.

DEAR BROTHER MCTYEIRE: You can form but little idea how much by surprise your box of most excellent books came to us. And a most agreeable one it was, for such a treat I have not had since coming to China. I had not even an intimation that the box was on the way. We thank you many many times and shall some day tell you how we appreciate such kindness in stronger terms than we can possibly express in words.* And the "Post Oak Circuit" how well it filled up that "little corner" of the box. As it came in just an hour since we have not read it, but hope, (when the day shall close and night comes on, when all is quiet and our letters ready for the mail which leaves to-morrow,) to have a feast. How much we were all longing for that book which has not only passed through the hands of all our dear brethren in the South, but its fame had extended to the flowery land. It is the only copy in all China. Several persons have already spoken to me for a reading. When it has gone the rounds among all the Missionaries, and all have had a reading I will then give you some items.

By the same ship I received quite a number of the New Orleans Advocates, for which I am much obliged. I had, for some time past, given up all hope of getting any more numbers of your excellent paper, and had frequently expressed myself so to many of my friends; but when I was not aware of it, they came unexpectedly and a double portion.

Did our friends know there was so much security in sending things by ship to China, half around the world, they would send us more frequently from our own native land, a land of plenty. And I hope you will give them some light on the subject. The books all came safe without being injured, except the "Post Oak Circuit," the [illegible] of which was soiled a little, but not [illegible]ding.

Our mission families at this time are all in good health. All is quiet at Shanghai. No news of interest politically, but religiously God is blessing the work and His inspired word is having its desired effect on the hearts of a heathen people. On the 15th day of this month, a general attack was to be made upon Canton by the English; and by this mail, which is daily expected in, we will hear the result. We need fear nothing at Shanghai as far as to its being general. We wish our brethren to know, that we are all safe here and going on with our regular work.

I baptized two young men on the 6th of this month, and in two more Sabbaths, if God wills, I baptize another young man. Many of our people, and good people too, think God will not bless the work in China. What better proof of His willingness do we wish than we have had? O, we want more faith in God and less trust in ourselves. Then the work shall prosper. But I am afraid, our people too often feel a spirit of indifference about it, as though they were not identified with the work of God in China as much as in any part of the world.

If they could only see how much this poor, dying heathen need the help of every Christian, they would come over and help us or aid in sending such help with a cheerful heart.

But a brighter day is coming for China and no mortal can prevent it: praise be to God. If our Church desires not to share part of the glory and to have her voice in telling upon the destiny of this people, other Churches will, and God will bless them.

*The "box", referred to was a box of books ordered at the New Orleans Depository by a friend—Mr. Kilpatrick, for the Missionary, amounting to about $80. It was a substantial and, as it turns out, a very acceptable present. Why are not such tokens oftener sent to make by surprise" those who labor among a strange people—at once increasing their resources for doing good and assuring them that they are remembered at home?—ED.

But I have no reason to believe the Church, as a body, desires to take away her influence from the heathen. That there are some who do cannot be doubted.

December 19.—I have read a part of "Post Oak Circuit." Let me say to the preacher on Post Oak Circuit, if he or that good old English brother wants any Chinese skulls in which to make their collections, I can send them any number, for we almost walk upon human bones in China.

I want you to try and see if any of your friends will send me out a little money every year for the purpose of printing tracts, etc., say fifty dollars. I have some tracts on hand and can not print them without means.

J. W. LAMBUTH.

METHODIST PRESS.

The great revival furnishes many of our exchanges with delightful matter to record. Not only awakenings but conversions are by the thousand. The Western Christian Advocate published at Cincinnati, of March 10th, contains two columns of brief notices of the revivals in Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. These are from forty-two preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and they report that within the last three months, there have been four thousand three hundred and eighty-four conversions. The lowest number in any charge was thirty; the highest, seven hundred and fifty. These, it will be remembered, are in one denomination. How great, then, must be the aggregate of all the churches?

The Richmond Advocate does not approve of making state lines Conference boundaries—thinks it is a departure from the principles and spirit of the fathers, that bodes no good to the Church:

It may help State pride, and promote sectional Methodism; but by the success it meets, and to the extent of its influence, it will destroy the connexional unity of Methodism: that destroyed, congregational Methodism takes its place; and then Methodism wanes; its forces expire, and its fruits other Churches gather.

The Northern Methodist Church has moved favorably for congregational singing, by putting forth a Tune Hymn-Book. In three months 20,000 copies were disposed of. A writer in the Northern Advocate says:

The new Tune Hymn-Book, published by Carlton and Porter, seems to meet with universal favor. It is certainly a book for the times, and will do much, it is reasonable to expect, toward reviving congregational singing in the Methodist Church. Many persons seem to think it of very little consequence whether few or many do the singing of a congregation. My own opinion is, that any congregation in which a choir is permitted to perform alone will become formal, and lifeless and lukewarm. In other words, I think it a duty to praise the Lord, by singing.

The Southern Advocate proposes a plan for engaging the Conferences, by depositories owned and controlled locally, in distributing our literature and bringing it to the people. The papers as well as depositories are to be given over to the Conferences. The General Conference might have one newspaper, and the S. S. Visitor, and the monthly and quarterly periodicals; might print books at low rates for the whole Church; and after this is done, let the responsibility of the bringing the people in contact with our literature rest with the annual Conferences:

We are, therefore, for changing our policy, and of assigning to the general church that work which it requires our united energies to perform—the publication of a general literature, and the furnishing it to the several conferences, at a mere nominal advance on net cost. Let the Conferences, taking the books at these cheap rates, make provision for furnishing the people with them, pay the expense from the profits—and if they choose to make more than enough for this, and can do it, appropriate the surplus to their own uses. * * No agent whatever his genius could be responsible for as many depositories scattered over the land, as the conferences need. They ought not to look to the general church to establish them, but should do this work for themselves; and that they may do it, let the General Conference publish for them, but give them all the profits on the publications. They can then establish agencies in each Conference, or two or three contiguous conferences uniting, may establish a regular Depository, and conduct it as they see fit.

The tract organization, as at present clumsily constructed, and professional colporteurs are to be superceded:

As to the distribution of our literature, we believe that, in destitute sections, this is missionary work—and that it should be so considered by the church, and made part of our missionary operations. Where the people are in such circumstances as to do without aid from without, we would propose that the quarterly conference authorize a collection in every church, early in the year, which may be placed in the hands of the preachers as a capital to invest in books for the circuit.

* * * * If the preacher will not do the work, perhaps a colporteur may be found by the quarterly conference, who would do it; and if they cannot find one, a Tract Society could hardly find him. So, in any view we take of it, it strikes us that this system is better than our Tract organization—for it seems as likely to be successful, and it is wholly inexpensive. Every dollar would be used in buying books. It might be tried at once by any preacher and conference, where books are needed. It might take some time to introduce the plan generally—but if tried and found useful, it would creep into the Church in the course of time. If the conferences owned the Depositories, and wished to push their sales, they could do much towards bringing the plan into general operation.

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.—The article on first page was in type a fortnight ago, but a press of other matter precluded its publication. Since, we learn that at the meeting of the Board of Managers the places of the six retiring members of the Committee of Versions were nominally supplied by the election of Drs. Turner, McClintock, Bethune, H. B. Smith, McLeod, and Professor Goodrich, to fill the vacancies. How many of these will accept the appointment, we do not yet know.

The Board needs revision—that is plain. The fact has transpired that of a Board of Management of 36 members, the O. S. Presbyterians have 16 and the Methodists only 4! The Episcopalians 3! Dr. Tyng, referring to the receding action and the way it was effected, says:

"It is but a gradual realizing of what we have heard as the early assertion of Bishop Hobart, that "the Bible Society would become at last the mere tool of the General Assembly."

We shall keep this fact before the public until it ceases to be a fact.

NEW ENGLAND CORRESPONDENCE.

CONCORD, N. H., March, 1858.

THE REVIVAL.

MR. EDITOR: The revivals of religion are becoming more interesting and also more numerous. The good and cheering news is borne to our ears from every quarter. Nearly all the churches of New England are blessed with pentecostal seasons. New England is in a religious blaze. In the large cities the merchants, who are unable to attend the prayer meetings that are held at the churches, hold prayer meeting daily in their counting rooms. Persons who have never been known to attend the sanctuary of the Lord, even upon the Sabbath, are now regularly attending the daily prayer meetings. Truly the Lord is at work. It is said, that in the Trenton District, N. J., eleven hundred persons have been converted and have united themselves with the Methodist Church, beside thousands who have joined other churches. But would you believe that there are religious papers that oppose these meetings! The Episcopal, (high church,) Romanist and Unitarian organs are abusive of them, even to scurrility.

The religious meetings in New York and Boston are becoming more and more interesting. In New York bullies and rowdies have been found at the altar weeping like children, and earnestly beseeching prayer. Some of the most noted characters have been converted, and have left their old associates, and bid fair to become good, useful, and pious men. They did not smile themselves into the belief that their sins were forgiven, and that they were made "heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ Jesus;" but they drank "the wormwood and the gall" of penitential regret.

The "outpouring of the Spirit of the Lord" is not confined to one particular Church or denomination, but is universal; pervading all the evangelical Churches. You can not even pick up a secular paper without finding in it a glowing account of a prayer meeting held at a certain church, where some noted pugilist was converted, and several of his companions at the altar under deep and heartfelt conviction.

In Boston the same scenes are becoming very prevalent in the true Christian Churches. By true Christian Churches, I intend those that acknowledge the divinity of our Savior, and hold orthodox views concerning the atonement. It is found necessary to restrain newspaper reporters from the prayer meetings—the tendency to abuse having become evident. May the good work of the Lord spread throughout the entire length and breadth of this nation—the nation which seems to be peculiarly blessed of God. The N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, 15th March, says: "The great awakenings or revivals, as they are called by some writers, continue to be the leading topic of the day, and so far as our information goes, have lost none of their general interest. They are spoken of in the private circle, in the business mart, in the omnibus and the railway car, and are the one absorbing topic of conversation. We repeat the remark we made a day or two since, that never during the life time of the present generation, was a religious movement less open to ridicule, or less liable to exception of any kind."

BISHOP SIMPSON.

Bishop Simpson has returned from his foreign tour. He arrived in the Europa, a week since. His health is not much better than when he left home. It is to be hoped that he will soon recover. He is one of the first preachers of the day. He ranks next to our own beloved "itinerant" Bishop, G. F. Pierce.

THE GREAT VISITOR

The steamship Leviathan, will arrive in Portland, Me., in the coming June. There will be a great rush to see it, as it is the wonder of the age. They are building a hotel in Portland especially to accommodate those who will come there to see it. It will be a sight that will pay one to see.

LADIES IN DEMAND, OUT WEST.

There seems to be a great demand for marriageable young women "out West," and the people in that section of the country, especially the young men, are beginning to call lustily upon females "to come over and help them." New England is able to supply the demand; for here there are five women to one man. This can be accounted for by the fact, that the young men, especially the energetic young men, emigrate either South or West as soon as they become of age, while their sisters remain at home to take care of their parents. There is a prejudice, South, against the Yankee young ladies, but this should not be, for they are industrious, intelligent, and know well how to apply their hands to work; which can be proved by mentioning the thousand female operatives in the schools and mills of New England. The mills are principally worked by females. You can find very few idle young ladies here—very few who are not in some manner aiding instead of burdening their parents. I honor them for it; but I do not wish to convey the impression that they are better than our Southern girls. But, to the demand for marriageable young women "out West: a Yankee in that section of the country seems to think that there is a great demand for them; for in writing home to his father, he says: "Suppose you get our girls some new teeth, and send them out."

SPIRITUALISM.

Passing down street to-day, I saw posted up a large and flaming handbill which read as follows: "The Spirit of Daniel Webster will address the citizens at the City Hall." So I thought I would go and witness the scene. I went. When the time appointed for the "Spirit of Webster" to make its appearance, the medium, who was a speaking medium, arose, crossed his hands, shut his eyes, and sneezed like a chicken when it has the gapes. Then he was thrown into the trance, as he calls it, and the "Spirit of Webster" addressed the meeting through him. The speech was on "Bleeding Kansas," and also about the people making themselves "blood hounds to catch the panting fugitive, and to return him to the cruel and heartless slaveholder." He closed by advising those present, and asked those present to rm their friends and kindred, to vote for the publicans, if they wished happiness in this future world. There was a large audi- e present to hear him, and most of them spiritualists. After he closed his followers rded around him to aid him, if the "spirit" not taken his departure; when he remarked em that "the spirit of Webster, in speak- through him, injured him more than the it of any other man or woman with whom er had to do—that Webster's spirit came killing him." And his followers did really ve every word of it, and will cast their for the Republican candidates. So much spiritualism. What think you of it?

W. G.

Marriages.

rried—On the 11th inst., by the Rev. J. C. Miller, E. Y. GONLAY, of East Feliciana, and Miss SALLIE ERET, of East Baton Rouge.

Printer's fee received, via: a new subscriber.

the 18th ult., by Rev. Bishop Paine, Dr. D. A. Den- of South Carolina, and Miss CELESTE STRONG, of Moa- county.

Special Notices.

INFORMATION WANTED

erning John Hayes, son of Hiram Hayes, of Clarke ty, Ga. John Hayes was born in said county, and is t 65 years old. He removed from Campbell county, to Mississippi about 12 years since, and a rumor has ed his friends in Georgia that he has since moved to nsas. I have in my possession his interest in the es- of Hiram Hayes, his father. If he is not living I ld be glad to know if he has left any wife or children. preachers in the Western Conferences, or any body will confer a favor by forwarding me any reliable rmation concerning him or his heirs. My address is er, Terrel county, Ga. WM. HAYES.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY, 112 CAMP STREET.

e have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, e invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the lications of the Church, South, the following:

enson's Commentaries · Clark's do., in sheep and calf. ; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Anec- e for Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Disci- e; Bible Index, by Barr; Checks to Antinominianism; Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Covel's Dictionary; ference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Uni- alism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred nders; Rollin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; estions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; sets Longking's Notes.

All at Nashville prices.

FIRST ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS

Opelousas District, Louisiana Conference.

Alexandria station, April	10–11
New Iberia station, April	17–18
Franklin circuit, at Franklin, April	24–25
Vermillion circuit, May	1–2
Opelousas, at Opelousas, May	8–9
Lacasieu, at Tokechoses, May	15–16
Washington, May	22–23
Evergreen, at Evergreen, May	29–30
Forth Rapides, at Hudson's Creek, June	5–6
Carrisonburg, at Fuany Lonis, Juno	12–13
Columbia, at Columbia, June	19–20

The preachers in charge of the Vermillion and Wash- ton circuits will please select suitable places for hold- their quarterly meetings and notify me at Alexandria, , which will be my postoffice after the 1st of April.

A. B. FLY, P. E.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The nadersigned propose to issue, during the approach- General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in ich the proceedings of the body will be published.

Those who desire to subscribe will larnish their names mediately; or, they may give to the delegates their mes and the cash.

Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance.

The first number will the issued on Monday, the 3d of y.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nash- lle, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per an- m, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages yal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful el-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, d of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be isposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a dis- ount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription rice.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet een sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is herefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, nd continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to in- rease the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!— Come brethrea, you have but to submit the claims of the Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable bject will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st,, a large supply of Long- king's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calcu- lations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Ter- ritories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.— Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pa- ges, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

BY TELEGRAPH.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Washington, March 23.—Senate—Mr. Douglas made an Anti-Lecompton speech.

Mr. Toombs commented quite severely thereupon.

Mr. Stuart deprecated the use of epithets instead of arguments, and accorded Mr. Toomba the laurels for his proficiency in the former.

Kansas Bill up.—Mr. Crittenden moved a substitute for the submissiqu of the Lecompton Constitution to the people of Kansas.

Several personal explanations ensued. After which the vote was takea and the substitute was lost by 34 to 24.

The bill as amended to admit Kanaas with the Lecomptou Constitution then passed. Yeas 38—aays 25.

ACTION AND REACTION.—Orsini's shells were manufactured in England to destroy the French Emperor. They were actually thrown at him; yet, wouderful to relate, they took effect upon Lord Palmerston and the English ministry.— Thus fortune continues to smile upon the ne- phew of "my uncle," while a whole English cabinet is knocked down by the concussion.— Let Lord Palmerston's successor keep a sharp watch upon the manufacture of torpedoes in England hereafter, or his term of office may be summarily ended without a moment's warning.

Local Intelligence.

The chief event of the week was the com- mencement exercises of the Medical and Law Departments of the University of Louisiana on Tuesday, 23d inst., at Lyceum Hall. The hall was crowded with interesting spectators, a large proportion of them being ladies. The Professors of the two faculties, with Mayor Waterman and other distinguished guests, occupied the stage, whilst Lehmann's band had a central position in the gallery.

The exercises consisted of the conferring of the degree of Doctor of Medicine upon sixty- eight students, by Prof. Hunt, Dean of the Medical Faculty; the conferring of the degree of Bachelor of Laws upon thirty-six students by Prof. McCaleb, Dean of the Law Faculty, accompanied with an address; an address to the graduates of the Medical Department, by Prof. Josiah C. Nott; a valedictory address to the Law Class, by B. Magruder, L. L. B.; and a valedictory address to the Medical Department, by C. M. Dougherty, M. D. The addresses were all attentively listened to; those of Messrs. Magruder and Dougherty, of the graduates, being especially applauded by the audience. The music was finely given, and added its full share to the pleasures of the occasion. Dr. Nott announced his retirement from the University. The people of Mobile claim him and he cannot resist. The Doctor's address in its matter was rich and its literature fine; but we expected, from his reputation and looks, a better speaker. He begun by addressing the gentlemen of the University of Alabama. Medical science was the chief elevator of the race. It and its collaterals had done more for civilization than all other agencies. The state of medical science among a people was, and ever had been, the measure of their civilization. The lawyers, on the platform, smiled. We append a list of the graduates:

Doctors of Medicine.—Isaac J. Newton, Chs. M. Dougherty, John P. Barbot, Wm. R. Sherrard, Edward P. Ruby, Alexander G. Lane, Robert E. Hill, David M. Perkins, Wm. B. Harrison, Wm. F. Shino, Wm. Baker, John R. Brown, G. T. Deuson, James H. Low, Alexander P. Brown, Thaddens B. Collier, Wm. A. Griffin, Edward L. Hamilton, Oliver Hoff, Jammes N. Beck, Samuel W. Campbell, Julins T. Kercl, D. Hardeman Robertson, Henry W. Morgan, Oscur L. Cook, James R. Stewart, James Goode, Theophilus Harrison, Elijah Thigpen, Issac R. Whittaker, Isaac A. Shelby, Hy. F. Mullen, Auguste Capdevielle, Fabins H. Reader, Marcus C. Edwards, Robt. W. Foster, George W. Kendrick, Wm. P. Andrews, John Coburn, Napoleon L. Guice, Lemidas Shackelford, Dunklin Pierce, Jarvis M. McCary, Aug. J. Cummack, Thomas O. Hynes, Jesse M. Pace, Wm. R. McCreight, James Carroll, Robt. D. Whyte, Wm. McPherson, Jus. B. Davis, Wm. B. Field, Thos. S. Moore, Andrew F. McLain, Willis T. Penny, Benson M. Lockwood, Henry J. Nott, James R. Percy, Eli W. Needham, Saml. Shy, Wm. D. Simmons, Peter F. Filzgerald, Samuel G. Compton, Robert B Payne, Robt. A. C. Felton, John Taylor, Saml. J. Youngblood, Edward Cuanor.

Bachelors of Laws.—L. L. Armant, J. S. Billia, J. H. Brigham, R. E. Chaney, T. W. Compton, W. E. Gibson, Alfred Grima, J. P. Harris, P. C. James, J. H. Kenaurd, G. Leche, J. G. Lothrop, C. N. Morse, Thomas Overton, R. L. Preston, J. C. Stafford, J. H. Strother, W. W. Wall, M. S. Bartlette, R. C. Bond, J. H. Brownlee, T. P. Clinton, F. Freret, Jno. B. Grayson, jr., Lyman Harding, Carleton Hunt, E. L. Jewell, W. H. Knight, Louis Leveque, B. D. Magruder, H. B Murphy, C. P. Pilcher, W. G. Richardson, W. L. Richardson, M. Valentine, jr., W. G. Wily.

TEXAS NEWS.

We have dates from Galveston to the 20th instant.

The papers mention fine spring rains, and flattering prospects in Western Texas. The San Antonio Herald learns from M. E. B. Thomas, of Atascosa, that most of his neigh- bors have corn up several inches high, with fine stands. He reports the people in the highest spirits, all confident of a bountiful crop year the present season. This is the universal spirit among the population of Western Texas.

Goliad is said to be improving rapidly; but the grasshoppers are hatching out in millions, and are said to cover all the prairies west to the Nueces. As yet they have done very little damage. The Express says:

Several fine droves of horses have arrived from Mexico, meeting no accidents, and the spring trade has opened briskly; about six hundred changed hands at from 18 to 25 dollars. Of riding ponies we notice an unusual number, and very fine ones, from $35 to $100.

No sales of mules, but several fine droves have arrived, held at $45 to $50.

There is great demand for beef, both for driving and shipping. Beef is in fine order; ruling rates $15, choice herds $16.

The Intelligencer says freights by wagon from Lavaca have been reduced from $5 to $1 75 per hundred, which will bring flour down to $9 per bbl.

A wagon load of Sarsaparilla root, gathered on Brushy, was brought to this city for sale the other day.

We notice that our merchants are sending off large quantities of hides and peltries to New York.

Corn is selling at $2 50 per bushel, and flour at $14 per barrel.

Large quantities of venison have been brought to Austin the past winter.

LATER FROM MEXICO.

The steamship Tennessee arrived Weducsday from Vera Cruz, bringing files of papers from that city to the 21st inst.

MARTIAL LAW.

The city of Vera Cruz has been placed under martial law. This is probably owing to the hostile movements now going on throughout the state.

THE WAR IN VERA CRUZ.

If we are to believe the Progreso, a Liberlist paper, the Reactionary forces have not made any headway, and Zuloagu has as little chance as ever of securing the adhesion of the state.

THE WAR IN THE INTERIOR.

We have nothing decisive from the interior. The rumors which reach us are conflicting, and in some instances unintelligible.

A FILIBUSTER EXPEDITION.

The Progreso learns from New Orleans that General Walker is fitting out an expedition to invade Northern Mexico, with the view of establishing the Sierra Madre Republic.

The Legislature of Virginia has passed a liberal bill incorporating the Atlantic Steam Ferry Company. This is the company which controls the steam line between Norfolk and France.

STEAM WIT.—At a recent railway festival in Cleveland in honor of Mr. John Durand, the following striking sentiment was given: Our Mothers—The only faithful tenders who never misplaced a switch.

CHANGE OF BRITISH MINISTRY.

The late change in the British Ministry is not without interest, afar off. It shows that the cordial feeling of English people toward the French, and especially the parvenu Napoleon, is not deep. Palmerston the strong, has been cast down by them, because he compromised the national honor: was not plucky enough. We admire that in the English.

He was endeavoring to get a law passed to detect and punish citizens, who had been engaged in conspiracies abroad—in obedience to Napoleon's demand. His conspiracy-to-murder bill did not go. It was killed and he, politically, with it. Inglorious fall.

The French minister, Count Walewski had asked, in his dispatch, whether it was right in England to shelter assassins who had placed themselves without the pale of humanity?

To this impudent note, no suitably indignant answer had been made—no answer at all. If no answer was returned it was an admission, by silence, that, with eyes open, they sheltered assassins and favored their designs.

In the British House of Commons on the 19th Feb., Lord Palmerston, in moving the second reading of the Conspiracy-to-murder bill, described its character at length, and repelled the notion that it was an alien bill, although he admitted that it had arisen out of the late attack in Paris.

Mr. Gibson moved, by way of amendment—

"That this House hears with much concern that it is alleged that recent attempts upon the life of the Emperor of the French had been devised in England, and expresses its detestation of such guilty enterprise; that this House is ready at all times to assist in remedying any defects in the criminal law which, after due investigation, are proved to exist; yet it cannot but regret that her Majesty's Government, previously to inviting the House to amend the law of conspiracy at the present time, had not felt it to be their duty to make reply to the important dispatch received from the French Government, dated Paris, January 20, 1858, and which has been laid before Parliament.

Spirited speeches were made in favor of the amendment by Mr. Gibson, Sir Robert Peel, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. D'Israeli and others, while the course of Government was sustained by Mr. Haiacs, Sir George Grey, Lord Palmerston and others.

The gist of the whole debate is told in these few words, though the same speaker happily alludes to Palmerston's habit of domineering over small potoatoes and bowing to big ones, in the following paragraph:

"He once read of some aristocratic person suggesting the assassination of the King of Naples. If the King of Naples had complained to the noble lord, would he not have offered him some friendly advice in reply? [Cheers and laughter.] He would probably have told him that the best way to avoid assassination was by governing his people better. The right honorable gentleman then referred to the dispatch of the Earl of Clarendon to the English Embassador at Naples, suggesting that for the peace and security of Europe the King of Naples should alter his domestic policy. This dispatch was directed to be read to the King of Naples, and his Majesty's reply was, that he could not alter his domestic policy at the request of a foreign power. [Great cheering.]"

Upon a division, there were for Mr. Gibson's amendment 234
For the second reading of the bill 215

Majority against the Government 19

The result was greeted with loud cheering by the opposition.

The Daily News accounts for the majority by stating that contempt for the pusillanimity that could permit M. Walewski's first dispatch to remain unanswered, all the more naturally sought and found vent in the recent discussion and vote. It adds that "the discussion last night may not be quite equivalent to a vote of want of confidence, but it certainly is a vote of censure, and that is not much more flattering to the Cabinet."

It is said that on yielding up the seals of office to the Queen, Palmerston did not do what is always expected of a retiring premier—give Her Majesty the benefit of his advice in forming a new government. He expected to be recalled. But Her Majesty sent for Earl Derby, who patched up a cabinet.

Parliament was in session on the 1st instant. The House of Commons, after the transaction of some formalities, adjourned to the 12th inst.

In the House of Lords, the Earl of Derby read his Inaugural Ministerial Speech, giving an insight into his intended policy. After stating the grounds upon which he had undertaken office, and the difficulties which beset him, he glanced at the state of the army with reference to the Indian war, and said there was yet a most respectable numerical force remaining with the United Kingdom. He had no doubt that the exertions of Sir Colin Campbell, and of the troops under his command, would lead to a successful result, and when the mutiny was fully suppressed, it would be the duty of the Government to undertake the task of pacifying and tranquilizing the Empire. He then referred to the Chinese war, and expressed his satisfaction, notwithstanding he condemned the cause of the war, at the success which had attended the British arms.

He added, now that Canton had fallen, it would be the duty of the Government to make, with the least possible delay, a safe and honorable peace, so that the commerce between the country and China might be re-established.—He then adverted to the relations of the Government with France, and urged the necessity of remaining on friendly terms. He insisted on the importance to France and Europe of the Emperor's life, and indignantly denounced the atrocious attempt to assassinate him.

He made great allowance for the indignation displayed by the French people; nevertheless, he did not believe that the address from the French Colonels gave a true representation of the feeling of the French army. From what he knew of the Emperor, he felt satisfied that it was his sincere wish to keep on terms of amity with England.

The Foreign Secretary (Lord Malmesbury) was preparing a reply to Count Walewski's dispatch, which he believed would satisfy the public feeling; and there was nothing, which would prevent the Government from proceeding with the Conspiracy bill, although further action would depend on the reply from France to Lord Malmesbury's dispatch.

With regard to the policy of the Government, it was impossible, having been called to office suddenly, and not at the commencement of the session, to bring forward any programme.

On the subject of the government of India, he thought the time not opportune for any change, but in deference to the vote of the House of Commons, he was prepared to yield, and a modified bill, as suggested by Lord Ellenborough, would be presented.

In regard to Parliamentary reform his own opinion was that no alteration was required, but he nevertheless thought that some modification and amendment might be made to suit the convenience and wants of the people. All he could promise, however, was that during the recess the Government would earnestly direct their efforts to the preparation of a bill, which would be introduced at the next session.

In conclusion, he expressed the hope that when he retired from office, whether the period for which he held it was long or short, he would not be found to have left the country in a worse position than he found it.

The papers are occupied in criticising Lord Derby's speech.

The Times says it was all anticipated, and that so long as he does exactly what Lord Palmerston would have done, had he not forfeited his place by that one omission, he may be tolerated, but the moment he shows a will and game of his own, it is easy to see the result.

The Morning Post urges that Lord Derby not only takes the position but the policy and the measures and sentiments of Palmerston, as an heir takes an inheritance.

OPPOSITE METHODS.

Two weeks since we published in the Advocate for consideration the business principles of the London Tract Society, in contrast to those of the American, as furnished by a correspondent of the Independent. We have now from the same source an account of the contrasted results of the two systems, which is as follows:

In 1856, the London Society produced and circulated thirty-one and a half millions of its publications, at a cost, all its expenses reckoned, of about $365,000;—while the American Society produced a little over sixteen and a quarter millions, at a cost of $263,993, and circulated them at an additional expense of $139,166;—$403,159 in all, for a little more than half the result which cost in London only $365,000. The personal labors of the colporteurs, it is true, are not to be forgotten, but after crediting as much as possible to that department, it still remains obvious that we paid for our tracts, not far from double their cost on the London plan. The reports for 1857, are almost duplicates of those for 1856, in this respect.

The difference this makes in the disposal of the benevolent incomes of the two institutions, is equally striking. The London Society received in donations, for 1856, about $45,000, and from this source and a small surplus of profit on its sales, was enabled to distribute gratuitously to the amount of $50,797. The American Society received in the same year $158,435, but was able to distribute gratuitously but $71,000. In the year 1857, the result was very similar.

The London writer justly remarks, that if the London Society were to abandon their system and adopt that of the American Society, and to their own manufacturing and distributing by colporteurs "the results would be the same here as they now are with you."—It is not the men who manage, but it is the plan of operation, that causes the great difference.

LITERARY INTELLIGENCE.

It is stated that two more volumes of Lord Macaulay's "History of England," bringing the work down to the region of Queen Anne, will soon be completed and published. It is probable that the voluminous author, in attempting to bring his history to a period within "the memory of men now living," will never be able to afford to the present Queen of England the pleasure of seeing her portrait, drawn as the first historical painter in England could draw it.

Seven of Mrs. Fanny Kemble Butler's recent "Shakspearean Readings," in New York city, netted the fine sum of $6000. This is what may properly be termed "profitable reading." It is known that Milton received only about twenty-five dollars for "Paradise Lost," and probably Shakspeare did not realize for writing all his plays as much in solid money as this lady has earned in reading half a dozen of them.

We observe that the inquiry is raised, "Who was John Fleetwood, D.D., author of a 'Life of Christ?'" It has been hinted that this was merely a nom de plume. Darling, in his Cyclopedia Bibliographia, says that it "was probably an assumed name, in which opinion, having searched in vain for some trace of him through ten biographical and general cyclopedias, including the new Britannica, and Rose's great work, I am disposed to concur." The query then arises, Who was the author of 'Fleetwood's Life of Christ?'

NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD.—A bill was passed at the late of the session of the Legislature just adjourned, modifying the mode of electing Directors. By the provisions of this act the States of Mississippi and Louisiana are placed in the same position as private stockholders, each State being authorized to vote upon the number of shares held by them respectively, on the same conditions as are prescribed for individual stockholders. The Governors of the two above mentioned States are to cast the votes of their respective States either in person or by proxy. This franchise is to continue until these two States, shall through their Legislatures, provide for the appointment of each three directors.

The bill has to be submitted to a meeting of stockholders to be held on the 10th prox., when, if it shall be approved by three-fourths in value of the stock subscribed, it is to have the force of law. It will be seen from the provisions of this bill, that the State of Mississippi, whenever the Legislature is so disposed, is placed upon an equal footing with Louisiana, notwithstanding the great disparity in amount of stock held by them respectively.

THE NEW BRITISH MINISTRY.—It is stated that Mr. Dallas, our Minister to London, in his dispatches to our Government expresses the opinion that the new ministry of England will be more favorable and conciliatory to the United States, than the old one. He is also of opinion that it will not, according to present appearances, remain long in power.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Dr. Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters have proved such a certain cure for all diseases of the Stomach, that no one for a moment questions its efficiency in the most dreadful and alarming cases. For many years we have watched its steady progress in public estimation, and its beneficent effects as a cure for all complaints arising from the stomach, of a morbid nature, and we are free to say that it can be relied upon as a certain relief and remedy. Its proprietor has made the above preparation after years of careful study and sifting, and is now reaping the reward claimed by this valuable specific, and which he so richly merits. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all cases, and it therefore demands the attention of the afflicted.

Sold by Druggists everywhere, and by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Sole Proprietors, 58 Water and 68 Front streets, Pittsburg. mar 27–4t

GREAT MORTALITY AMONG CHILDREN.—The papers teem with perturbations upon the amazing mortality among children; but they fail to indicate the true cause, the presence of worms in the stomach and intestines. At least half the fatal diseases to which childhood is subject are attributable to worms. This was the opinion of Abernethy and Sir Astley Cooper. What mother, then, would risk the consequences of this terrible disorder, when a few doses of Winer's Canadian Vermifuge will always sweep away the vermin and the causes by which they are imbedded, leaving the system in a healthy condition and secure against a return of the complaint?

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Winer's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by

J. WRIGHT & CO., 161 Chartres st.

ENGRAVINGS.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The above have just been received at the Depository, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. The size of these Engravings is 20 by 26 inches, printed on the best heavy English plate paper, the India proof copies being faced with fine India paper, delicately flesh tinted.

Price of plain copies ..... $1 50 | India proof copies $2 00
Colored Copies ..... 3 00 Nov 14

INFORMATION WANTED of John S. Carsier, who left Georgetown, N. Y., seven years ago. Any one will confer a great favor upon his sister by giving any information of him since it is time.

Address the office. mar 6

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 24th, says:

On Saturday the Arabia's advices, three days later than those previously to hand, were before the public, confirming the account of the fall in the Liverpool Cotton market, reported by the North American, though this advance was stated to have been subsequently lost, the market closing at 7¾ for Middling Orleans. The week's sales were confined to 36,000 bales, and the whole stock in port was only 181,000 bales, of which 84,000 were American; being the lowest amount for 20 years or more. Breadstuffs closed dull, with the exception of Indian Corn, which had slightly advanced, and Consols quoted at 96¾ @ 96¾ for money and account.

These advices caused a dull feeling here and the sales of the day barely reached 3000 bales, at irregular and somewhat easier prices. On Monday there was more inquiry, but the offers in many instances were below the views of holders and the sales only reached the moderate amount of 6500 bales, prices, though still irregular, exhibiting no very marked change. Yesterday the demand was more active and general, and resulted in sales of fully 20,000 bales; making a total for the three days of 29,500 bales, and the market closed with more firmness generally, outside figures prevailing for most grades, while the rates were especially full for clean Middlings and upward, desirable for staples, &c.

COTTON—Arrived since 19th instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 23,275 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 10,307, Arkansas 2648, Mobile 869, Florida 594, Texas 84; together 38,277 bales. Cleared since the same date, 41,471 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 23d inst. 427,577 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,274,474 bales, against 1,316,428 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 230,389 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease in Great Britain of 11,422 bales, to France of 41,909, and to other foreign ports of 68,202 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	10¾ @ 11
Ordinary	8 @ 8¾	Good Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Good Ordinary	9¼ @ 9¾	Middling Fair	12 @ 12¼
Low Middling	10⅛ @ 10¾	Fair	nominal

SUGAR—LOUISIANA.—The business on the Levee has been somewhat interfered with by unfavorable weather, and the transactions of the last three days have scarcely reached 2500 hhds; leaving a considerable stock in first hands, with prices in favor of purchasers, though for the present we retain previous quotations.

Inferior and Refining	3 @ 4
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¼
Fair to Fully Fair	6⅛ @ 6⅝
Prime	7 @ 7
Choice	7¼ @ 7¼
Centrifugal and Clarified	6¼ @ 10

MOLASSES—The receipts have been more ample, with a demand which has fallen short of absorbing the supplies, the sales of the three days being about 5000 bbls, and we quote: Inferior and Fermenting to Good 24@27, Prime to Choice 28@29, in barrels; half barrels 31@33c per gallon. Arrived since 19th 6265—cleared 410 bbls.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, March 24.

The tenor of the money market to-day indicated stagnancy and dullness. Some small amounts of good paper were placed at 10 per cent. The range of the market still continues at 10@11 to 12 per cent. The calls or offerings in banks were very moderate. It is reasonable to infer from this that the greater part of short dated paper is already absorbed, as the offerings for discount to-day in some of the banks did not exceed fifty thousand dollars.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid	152@153
Louisiana State Bank	151@152
Canal Bank	120@124
Citizens' Bank	none for sale
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock	premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank	@100
Union Bank	95@ 96
Bank of New Orleans	99@100
Southern Bank	500
Crescent City Bank	00@ 01
Bank of America	90@ —
Bank of James Robb	par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid	124@125
Carrollton Railroad	nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	70@ 71
Southern Pacific Railroad	nominal
Opelousas Railroad	6@ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid	7¼@ —
City Consolidated Bonds	83@ 85
City Bonds for Railroads	74@ 75
State Bonds	no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company	par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₰ cent Bonds	72@ 75

SACURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @3 ₰ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @1¼ ₰ cent discount
Ohio	2 @3 ₰ cent discount
Other Banks Ohio and Indiana	2½@3 ₰ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @1½ ₰ cent discount
Illinois	3 @5 ₰ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.	par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	3 @5 ₰ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @2½ ₰ cent discount
North Carolina	3 @1 ₰ cent discount
Virginia	2 @3 ₰ cent discount
Alabama State	3 @4 ₰ cent discount
Texas	1 @2½ ₰ cent discount
Tennessee	2 @3 ₰ cent discount
Mobile	1 @1½ ₰ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	8 @10 ₰ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	2½@5 ₰ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	5 @7 ₰ cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	8 @10 ₰ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	4 @5 0 ₰ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi	par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	¾ acre—$1 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	¾ acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	¾ acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	¾ acre—85c

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S CELEBRATED GERMAN BITTERS.

PREPARED BY

Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Philad'a, Pa.

WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,

Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach.

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, or Fullness of Blood the Head, Acidity on the Stomach, Nausea Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering of the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and great depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It has been in use for a number of years, but one that has stood the test of a few years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale is unrivaled by any similar preparations extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IS IT SO?

DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A BUOYANT AND VIGOROUS FEELING?

If you do, use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch Street Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT, & Co. 21, and 161 Chartres st. our general agents for the South.

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PRINTERS' WAREHOUSE,

68 Camp street, next door to Picayune office, New Orleans.

PRESSES, TYPES, INKS, PAPER, CARDS, and Furnishing of every description. Agent for the sale of Robt Hoe & Co's Presses, and James Conner & Sons' Types.

Old Type taken in exchange for new at 9 cents per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.

Constantly on hand and for sale Printing Paper of the following sizes.

22 inches by 28	22¼ inches by 31	24 inches by 28	28 inches by 40
22 inches by 32	24 inches by 36	26 inches by 37	28 inches by 42
32 inches by 44		36 inches by 48

AND OTHER SIZES TO ORDER.

Also, Double Medium Book Paper, Manilla Wrappers, Note, Letter, and Cap Papers of every description; Cards, Card Boards, &c.

mar 20 1y GEORGE H. VINTEN.

TIRRELL & HERSHY,

BOOTS and SHOES,
BROGANS and HATS,

BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.

PLANTERS and MERCHANTS are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.

Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 84 Magazine street, New Orleans.

mar 27–1mop

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 11 a .. 14
East India	— 13½ a .. 15½
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½ a .. 8½
Northern	— .. a ..
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 a .. 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 a 12 00
English, Fire	32 00 a 36 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— 62 a .. 65
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 10½ a .. 12
Havana, good, pr g'n	— 12½ a .. 13
—— interior to middling	— .. a ..
Java	— 19 a .. 20
Laguayra	— 11½ a .. 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 45 a .. ..
Tallow	— .. a .. ..
Adamantine	— 20 a .. 22
Star	— 18 a .. 21
CORN MEAL, per bbl	— .. a .. ..
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¼ to ⅝	— 5 a .. 8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 a .. 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¼ to ⅝	— 4½ a .. 10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 a .. 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ a .. 13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¼ to 4-4	— 12 a .. 15
Ticklngs, ¼ to 4-4	— 9 a .. 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ a .. 16
Denims	— 7½ a .. 16
Cottonades	— 12½ a .. 25
Satinets	— 25 a .. 75
Calico Prints	— 5 a .. 15
Duck, Russia, per bolt	— .. a .. ..
English	10 00 a 16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 pr yd	— 19 a .. 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 a .. 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 37½ a 4 50
Illinois and Missouri	4 40 a 4 50
St. Louis City	4 50 a 4 60
FEATHERS, per lb	— 40 a .. 45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 .. a .. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 a 14 00
—— No. 2	10 00 a 13 00
—— No. 3	8 50 a 10 50
Herring, per box	— 35 a .. 55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12 a .. 15
Raisins M R, per box	2 50 a .. ..
Lemons	2 50 a .. ..
Currants, Zante	— 12 a .. 12½
Almonds, soft shell	— 18 a .. 21
—— hard shell	— .. a .. ..
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 5 a .. 25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 90 a 1 25
Oats	— 40 a .. 43
Corn, in ear, per bbl	— 55 a .. ..
—— shelled, per bushel	— 40 a .. 58
Beans, per bbl	4 00 a 5 50
GUNPOWDER, common,

POETRY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

MEMORIES.

BY MILLER H. WHITE.

It surely was another life, it seems so long ago;
For never since the days of yore has been my lot to meet,
Such brilliant eyes and warm, young lips of merry music flow,
Such woods and streams and lovely flowers, as then my steps did greet.

There was a wild and haunted swell in the murmur of the breeze
Hidden within the painted shells that decked the mossy dells,
A fairy sound in the hum of bees on the swelling upland leas,
A witching beauty in the dress that the nameless flowers wore.

Two sisters fair with graceful feet roved over the wilds with me;
When the day in morning robe attired looked over the mountain tips;
When the jubilous sun threw his pearls on the green because that dewfully,
The early dew of the modest flowers, had stolen the kisses from his lips.

The young grass wore a fresher green where our steps elastic drew,
And the pure, wild rose within the glen blushed with a deeper dye,
Because the bloom on Mary's cheek eclipsed its sunny hue,
And a wealth of beauty brightly slept in the dew of her soft, dark eye.

'Twas there a secret, powerful spell on my youthful heart was laid;
And fancy wove imagings those dryad haunts among,
And culled the rarest flowers that peeped up from the greenwood glade
To crown with nature's choicest gifts the spirit of my song.

And though a cruel tide of care has rolled above those hours,
And swept away spring visions fair that buoyed my spirits then;
When backward through the long, long past I wander through the flowers,
Within my soul I feel I am a fresh young child again.

Thank God that though the mists of time obscure the mortal view,
The visions fair love pencilled there can never, never die;
Still bloom the April flowers within this heart to nature true,
And clouds of molten gold float on its memory's sunny sky.

And the last shall wake in another life to the light of an endless day,
Like the meek, fair flowers that burst in spring from their winter frosted shrouds;
When vernal showers have wept themselves in joyful
floods away,
And the bow of promise spins the sky o'er a pile of gilded clouds.

These never-fading flowers shall bloom in a stormless summer clime,
And hearts all withered now shall then to newborn rapture beat,
And cymbals harp with death shall ope in the light of that balmy clime
Where the blessed saints in glory sit at the dear Redeemer's feet.

Opelousas, La.

OBITUARIES.

REV. J. M. WATERS.

"My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord." Nay, verily. For nothing could have been farther from our thoughts than the sudden death of our beloved brother, Rev. J. HOLLAND WATERS, on the 22d, Feb., 1858. Cut down in his 35th year in the midst of health and usefulness, we can but exclaim: "How unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out."

Bro. Waters had just returned from Conference, and prepared to remove with his family to his new charge.—While awaiting a steamer to embark, he was taken suddenly ill and died in less than two days. On Saturday he was occupied writing letters to his friends and correspondents, and completing his preparations for removal. At night he retired earlier than usual with a pain in the temple. The pain increased—a stupor supervened—and Monday morning about sun rise, he slept with Jesus. He leaves a disconsolate widow to mourn his loss, to whom he had been wedded just one short year, to the hour, when we laid him in his cold and silent tomb. But "thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ," we mourn not as those who have no hope. For we verily believe that our loss is his gain. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Bro. Waters was a man of deep and fervent piety, strong faith—"always abounding in the work of the Lord." He was not a man to say, and do not; but by his pious walk and godly conversation, he has said to us, as well by example as by precept, follow me as I follow Christ: while his sudden and unexpected death, warns us, "Be ye also ready," "for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." On whom has his mantle fallen? The Louisiana Conference has lost one of its most efficient members—one whose place cannot easily be supplied. A holy man—a faithful pastor—a tender companion, and an affectionate brother. Many even who knew him but recently will mourn his loss; for none knew him, but to love him. But why should we mourn? Jesus loved him, and has taken him to himself. May we be so faithful as to meet him at the Savior's feet.

J. W. C.

Died—In Lawrence county, Mi., 11th of March, 1858, MARGARET BURDAN, wife of James Strickland, in the 42d year of her age. She was brought up under the benign influences of religion; her father, the Rev. Wm. Wall, being a minister of the gospel in the Baptist Church.—During a protracted meeting held in Monticello in 1842, by the Rev. Mr. Daily, of the Mississippi Conference, she was brought to a deep sense of her condition as a sinner, and of the absolute need of the direct and personal application of the atoning blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. She sought and obtained mercy through faith in that blood. Her church relation at this time became a matter of deep and serious concern. The ties of kindred, early teachings and impressions all indicated that she should seek church fellowship away from that where her erring feet had been turned to the paths of holiness and peace. But upon this she wisely concluded to make the word of "the Lord the man of her counsel." And after a patient reading of the New Testament Scriptures in reference to Methodist doctrine and economy, her words were, "I find more scripture in their favor than on the other side;" and upon these grounds she became a Methodist. And right here another question presented itself, which she determined to solve in the same way, namely: the manner of her baptism; and the conclusion arrived at was, that pouring is the scriptural mode, and she was baptized accordingly.

Of our dear departed sister, it may emphatically be said, she was a Bible Christian, and an eminent saint of the Lord. For the past fourteen years her health has been poor and much of the time she was confined to her room; but the Bible has been her constant companion and well has she profited by its companionship. The Nashville Christian Advocate and Rome Circle have also paid her their weekly visits from the commencement of their publication. The sun of her christianity shone with increasing brightness, and shed a heavenly luster all along her pathway; built was at the setting hour—at the evening horizon—amidst the clouds of human weakness, natural attachments and ruffled powers of darkness, that his light and splendor broke forth and shone with the most unearthly brightness. There were but few that witnessed her death, that had ever seen the like before. For weeks the Lord developed her faculties upon the very verge of life's shore, as a witness of his power and grace to bless and save. It would transcend the limits proper to this notice to write her dying sayings, her blessings and counsels to her husband and children, her messages to friends and relations far away. We briefly sketch one scene. When she felt her end was near and we all supposed her to be dying, she remarked to the preacher, "What a lovely morning; I have long desired, if it is the Lord's will, to die on a pretty day. When I am dying you must sing for me, 'On Jordan's stormy banks I stand,' and when I am dead, preach my funeral from the text, 'These are they that came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb'"—Rev. xiv, 7. The servants were called in, one by one, to receive her counsel, blessing, and last farewell, and so of her children. The youngest, a dear, sweet little boy, was held up and pressed to the emaciated and dying lips of his fond mother; and as the father held him in his arms, she feebly uttered, "Raise that child for God." There was a power in her words and a heavenliness in her dying chamber that subdued and melted the hearts of all that visited her in her last hours.

It has been justly remarked of the Methodists, "They die well." Of our sister, we say she died gloriously.

J. W. WELLBORN.

North Carolina Advocate please copy.

Died—January 1, 1858, of pneumonia, in Taladega county, Ala., CHARLES WESLEY, son of Robert N. and Harriet M. Matson, aged 2 months and 17 days. We shall naturally feel much concerned when we look at our losses; but if we consider how little we deserve what is left our murmurs will be converted into thankfulness. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. It pleased the Lord to give us two children and it has pleased him to take them away from us in their infancy. But we feel assured that God has taken them to that celestial city where they will rest forevermore.

"Sink down ye separating hills,
Let sin and death remove;
'Tis love that drives my chariot wheels,
And death must yield to love."

R. N. M.

The Southern Christian Advocate, please copy.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

TRUE HEARTS AT SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Air—"FEW DAYS."

At Sunday school you're sure to find
True hearts, true hearts;
Our teachers all are good and kind,
We love them well.
They teach the youth that gather here,
True hearts, true hearts.
The right to love, the wrong to fear,
We love them well.

Chorus—They seek for our salvation,
True hearts, true hearts,
And fight sin's usurpation,
We love them well.
And we love the bell's sweet ringing,
Ding dong, ding dong;
And we love the cheerful singing
At Sunday school.

Our school contains a friendly band,
True hearts, true hearts,
We're brothers here, all hand in hand,
We love right well.
Our hearts are knit in bonds of love,
True hearts, true hearts,
As on we march to worlds above
We love right well.

Chorus—They seek for our salvation, etc.

With song and shout, o'er hill and plain,
True hearts, true hearts,
We will the Sunday school malatala,
We love it well.
From East and West, from South and North,
True hearts, true hearts,
Let every child and youth come forth,
To Sunday school.

Chorus—They seek for our salvation, etc.

KEEPING CHILDREN STILL.

"He who checks a child with terror,
Stops its play, or stills its song,
Not alone commits an error,
But inflicts a moral wrong."

We cannot help feeling the truth which is expressed in the lines quoted above, much-abused lines though they are, and could wish them printed in capitals, and pasted on the walls of some houses that we know of. Not that we would not have children checked when it is needful, and with enough of sternness, too, to secure obedience, but what we would most especially plead for is the children's right and privilege of "making a noise,"—boys most especially. It is their necessity, like air, exercise, food, and we do not believe any boy is healthily developed who does not make a noise.

Witness the child of two years, who with no other children for company, and no excitement but his own animal spirits, screams for the sake of hearing his own voice, rides upon a stick for a horse, and cannot run without shouting, and is more delighted in "pounding" a woodeu chair with his wooden dog or horse, than in any other use which he can make of it. If any one doubts these instances let him give a penny whistle to the nearest urchin, and while he defends his own ears with cotton, see the delight of the amateur musician. The author of the "Star Papers" has said truthfully, as well as humorously, that "the twenty-fifth hour of the day is the only one in which people are willing that children should make a noise," and we are very sure he sympathizes with the repressed little ones. "What," exclaims Miss Nancy Nervestrings, "are children to be our masters and mistresses in this, as they are in everything else, and we to be completely at their mercy? They have their own way in everything else already." Don't be alarmed, aunt Nancy, we would have a little of the superfluous liberty granted the children to be curtailed, and the balance added to the privilege of making a noise.—Of course where there is sickness, or where quiet is necessary for conversation, children should be taught to give up their own will for others' benefit; but under ordinary circumstances, is it too much to ask that grown people give up a little of their selfish love of ease for the children's healthful, animating enjoyment? In the nursery, the shed, the yard, the attic, the play-room, let the children scream, run, jump, drum, whistle, or belabor an empty barrel with a stick, if that happens to be the acme of diversion.

Oh! how many times we have wished it were in our power to remove the restraints which bind our city school-children during their brief recess, in which they file out in prim order without a word being spoken, and after inhaling a breath of air file back as orderly to their seats. Oh! for the privilege of taking off the restraints and removing the barriers, and letting them scamper, shout, and frolic for fifteen minutes in the exuberance of mirth, like the happy children of a country-school. Then rosy cheeks, and beaming eyes, and agile figures would take the places of the pale complexions, the lack-luster eyes, and feeble forms that now mope at home and pine at school.

"But it would never be tolerated!" It would disturb the neighbors!" Indeed, aunt Nancy, it is too true that "it would not be tolerated;" but suppose these same "neighbors" could be induced to bear a little discomfort for fifteen minutes, twice in a day, (if these merry voices of liberated little prisoners are really a discomfort,) and take their compensation in witnessing the joy that would be produced. We would fain hope "the neighbors," for the sake of their own little ones, were not Gorgons, who would transform the vociferating juveniles to stone.

"I declare," says Mrs. Fretful, (aunt Nancy's sister,) "I do wish our Johnny would amuse himself like little Willy Stillman. You would never know that child was in the house." He draws, and cuts paper, and strings beads, and amuses himself all day with his sister in little, quiet, girlish ways; but Johnny cannot play ten minutes without screaming, hammering, and all manner of deafening noises." Poor Mrs. Fretful! does she not foresee that when the two boys become men, the quiet Willie will drift the way the tide of circumstance sets, while the more demonstrative John, of hammer notoriety, will knock down obstacles like a man, and carve his way to fortune?

Make the children quiet when there is a moral or physical necessity for it, and "check" them with severity if "moral suasion" will not be heeded, but sometimes—yes, very often, give up your own selfish preference, and let them give vent to their instinctive exuberance of noisy mirth. It will charm away discontent, forestall teazing and indigestion, and the money you save on the doctor's bills you can appropriate to the purchase of playthings. These noisy spontaneous exercises are Nature's method of invigorating and developing the lungs and figures of her children. Nature never invented for them the dancing or fencing school, or gymnasium, or ever let them find half the delight in the gayest party that ever taxed the caterer's skill or papa's purse, that a group of schoolboys or girls will find for themselves in one hour in the woods or on the seabeach, dressed according to the place, and unrestrained with regard to the blessed privilege of "making a noise." H. W.

PROFESSIONAL.

J. G. FUQUA. J. G. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena, and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans.
References—Payne & Harrison, Byrne, Vance & Co., Broadwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw. Nalle & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 28 1y

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 126 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. I. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. D. R. McAnally, St. Louis; Ogilsby & Macalay, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6 2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. cdec12

DR. AUSTIN,

RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct.3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,

HAS RETURNED in his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Weus, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it anecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

JOSEPH C. BEALL,

ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and many other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession, has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. E. LAURANS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS.

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 110 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. ap2 1y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. T. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. U. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM. H. DAMERON

Payne & Harrison.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 61 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

M. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

T. T. TWITTY.

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh14m

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both blunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure ruening of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two by three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANIFS, human nor ha's about it selling some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I knew the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been coutiu for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec8-1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

E. H. READ. J. ROBART HERMES.

READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.

DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street, between Camp and St. Charles streets.
Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.
Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.
Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. H. CRAIGHEAD, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb. 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"

No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,

KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.
The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Addresses,
REV. E. H. CRAIGHEAD,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union," feb.27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

BUSINESS CARDS.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Cisterns, Lumber, &c.,

In lots to suit purchasers. Orders promptly attended to.
Rear 388 Mechanics' Exchange, 13 St. Charles st. Shop, 355 and 357 Rampart st., First District, New Orleans. mar20 1y

Holmes & Clanss.

GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.

KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—Also—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.

Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.

L. W. Lyons & Co.,
83 Canal St. near Camp.
d12

BOY'S CLOTHING.
FOR LATE ARRIVALS.

A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

Dameron & Co.,

IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,

HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!! BELLS!!!!
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY,
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]

THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of bell, place occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my14 1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)

THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22 1y

BOOTH & CO.,

ARCADE HAT STORE," No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.

THE Subscriber furnishes LOWER than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunes & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman G. Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gabel, and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS. HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
ap26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 40 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.

All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.

WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MILLIONS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and the residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES.
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprises the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our system of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap29 6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116 CANAL STREET. 116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION HOUSEKEEPING AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS,

This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st.

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.

CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies, issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual

DIRECTORS:

H. Huntington,	Charles Boswell	Jud Allyn,
Albert Day,	Henry Keney,	John P. Peace
James Goodwin,	Calvin Day,	Charles J. Russ.

H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. S. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandize, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,

CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Bray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch.
Orders respectfully solicited. a25-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, } A. MONTGOMERY.
F. F. LEWIS, of Rapides } GEO. C. KENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
a19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 3

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

Intrinsic virtue alone could insure the success which this article has attained—for Rheumatism, Salt Rheum, Burns, Bruises, Stiff Joints, or Galds, Spavin, Poll Evil, and Swellings upon Horses, it has no equal for man or beast. No person will be without it who has once tested its value. And with reference to the general estimation of the Mustang Liniment, I can cheerfully say that no article ever performed so many cures in our neighborhood as this. E. W. Smith, Ridgefield, Ct. S. Lucas, Hyde Park, Vt., writes: "that the horse was considered worthless, (his case was ringbone,) but since the free use of the Mustang Liniment I have sold him for $150. Your Liniment is doing wonders up here." Such testimony is reaching us every day. The half is not told. Every family should have it. Beware of imitations. The genuine article is sold by all respectable dealers throughout the world.
mar.27 BARNES & PAIN, Proprietors, New York.

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.

Rev. H. C. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. FITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. HEACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE J. McNEELY, M. F. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles Lettres
Miss ADELINE DUBOIS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURELIA G. THACHER, M. F. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY DELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Porter.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Grammatical Department	—
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Crayonings	15 00
Water and Theorsonable Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No Extra charge for Latin and Greek.
Board, including bedding, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or in private families at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.
Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent. interest will be charged.
Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.
No deduction from the rates, except at the option of the Faculty.
☞ The rules will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal.
Books, stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.
Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.
Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.
All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.
The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.
The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.
All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that the Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15. Academic Department, $20. Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASON, Secretary. jan 23 1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana,

THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1856.
FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. Wm. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. B. DURCOMB, A. B., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLOWAY, B. H., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. B. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans, JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.

THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. B. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas parish; E. Miller, Esq., and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. G. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

FELICI

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 9. WHOLE NUMBER 373. | NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY APRIL 3, 1858. | $2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—113 CAMP ST.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[CONTINUED FROM OUR LAST.]

I had a great desire for the salvation of my fellow men everywhere, and often spoke to them, as individuals or families, when an opportunity offered; persuading them to seek after the true religion of Christ, which was love. I had no thought of standing up before a congregation to preach, as I had no gifts. I believed God could make apostles and preachers out of Hermea or even plowmen, and that he could choose the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and the weak things of the world to confound the mighty; that no flesh should glory in his presence, and that it might appear that the wisdom and power of the gospel of Christ was of God. We now had four promising children, and offered them all up to God in baptism. Rev. John Sale baptized them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, putting this great name in their foreheads according to God's word: "And his name shall be in their foreheads"—(Rev. 22: 4;) "sealed in their foreheads"—(Rev. 7: 3.) Two of them now are with their Savior in a better world. Glory to God for the promise which is to us and to our children, of a right to his church on earth and then in heaven. Forbid them not, ye good, mistaken disciples, for of such is the kingdom of God. Hearing of the great work of God, in Cumberland, West Tennessee, and land being good, cheap and plenty, I visited that country in the same fall. I liked it well, found many happy Christians, good societies, and my soul was refreshed among them. I prepared and removed by land 200 miles, and settled in a large, living society of Methodists, 40 miles above Nashville. We gave our letters to brother Lambuth, the preacher in charge of the Nashville circuit. We felt happy in being thus highly favored of God. Our meetings were regular and powerful—many embracing religion and uniting in love at preaching, prayer, class meeting and love feast. Here I had pleasure of seeing and also of hearing Bishop Whatcoat, and Bishop Ashury; also, Wm. McKendree, the Presiding Elder; also, John Magee, an old and useful preacher; shortly after, John Page and Thomas Wilkinson, men of God, all uniting at camp meetings and circuit preaching. Wherever they met, the great power of God attended their ministry, in the conversion of souls and in building up believers; all which added much to our own comfort and advancement in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Yet, strange to tell, many, even professors in the Church, lived like the foolish virgins, having no oil in their vessels. They could tell a fine experience then in their first love; but alas for them, they had a name to live, while dead. I saw the danger of losing my first love and of living in lukewarm state. I therefore felt determined, by the assistance of divine grace, to seek a clean heart which I desired above all things; for I was often troubled and tempted, especially after being very happy, that I had deceived myself and was not what I felt. I was troubled with evil thoughts, which I hated; but thought they must proceed from the heart; therefore, my heart was not right before God. This gave me much pain until I could again receive the witness that the Lord was mine. I had a great desire to obtain the abiding witness which St. John speaks of, so that I might doubt no more.

About this time, I heard William McKendree preach a sermon that relieved me very much. His text was, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him." He reasoned well on his text, showing that Christ himself was tempted, yet without sin, and so were his true followers. Christ thought of sin when tempted, but rejected it, and was sinless: so we, when tempted as he was, might remain unspotted by rejecting the temptation. He said the devil was a spirit, and could act upon our spirits contrary to our wills; as matter acted on matter, so spirit on spirit, both to lead to unlawful deeds; but no sin is committed without the consent of the will. So he that endured the temptation, as Christ did in the wilderness, opposing the enemy with the sword of the Spirit, did not sin. The temptation was of the devil; to resist was to endure and of grace, and a righteous act. He proved all by quotations from the word of God, making out clearly every point in hand, so that fools could not err. He was a workman indeed, saying a great deal in a few words; so that the mind never grew weary under his preaching. His sermons always appeared too short, although as long as many others. This sermon gave me much strength, afterwards, in time of temptation, knowing how to resist and endure; but yet I had a hungering and thirsting for the abiding witness, that I might doubt no more, and that the love of God might remain in my soul, every moment, to the destruction of all sin—a sanctification of my soul, body and spirit.

About one year after my conversion, I was in class meeting and was called upon by the leader to pray. While praying on our knees, I thought of a woman who was expected to die, and did die that day. I earnestly entreated God on her behalf, that he would sanctify her soul before it left the body. And I felt assured that God would save her from all sin, and take her soul to heaven, and at the same time I had the witness that God, for Christ sake, had given me a clean heart and that I should doubt no more. At the same moment, I felt such a blessing as I had never felt before. It was indeed unspeakably glorious. At the same time the whole room seemed to be filled with the glory of God, and it was an uncommon time of rejoicing.

I felt a desire to tell my brethren what God had done for me. He had given me the witness of a clean heart, and that I should doubt no more of the soundness of my conversion. I did tell them that I should doubt no more of the soundness and reality of my conversion to God; but when I was about to tell them that God then had saved me from all sin, by his free Spirit, sanctifying my soul, a thought struck me that they would not believe me, and that it would appear like boasting; and if my life after should not accord with my profession, it would be a reproach to the good cause. I refrained and I believe, in some degree, lest the blessing which God gave me; but as far as I confessed, that is that I could not doubt the genuineness and truth of my conversion at first and the comforts and blessings of the Holy Spirit, that it was of God, and no deception, so it has been ever since; now forty-one years. I have not doubted of my conversion, nor the first visitations of his Spirit. I am assured it is of God. As I received and confessed before men, so he has preserved me from those afflicting doubts ever since; but as I did not confess him in my sanctification from all sin, I have not always had that abiding witness. God is good and very merciful, and has not cast me off, but gives me peace with him through our Lord Jesus Christ.

After receiving the above unspeakable blessing, I was greatly strengthened to go on to do the will of the Lord as far as I thought he had called me to speak or labor for him among my fellow men. About a year after my removal to Cumberland, I was appointed class leader by brother Page, the preacher in charge. I thought myself too young in the faith and not qualified for the place; but I submitted, believing I ought to obey the authorities in the Church of God. I had reasons to believe that God was with me in our class and prayer meetings, where we had good times, and souls were converted as well as under preaching. We had two circuit preachers, appointed that year, and then it was too large and laborious. A third was employed by the Elder, and now we had preaching every two weeks by the circuit preachers, John Page, Thomas Wilkinson, and Jesse Walker, employed by the Elder. Times were good this year in the Nashville circuit, and in the circuits adjoining. The Cumberland Presbyterians were all alive in the work in many places, preaching and communing together. All was love. I began to be deeply convicted about preaching and was advised by some of my brethren and the preachers to take license; but I felt fearful of running before called. As a class leader I had the privilege to exhort, which I did; but my mind led me out after the salvation of all men. I had no rest, thought I was not qualified to preach, and that it was perhaps a temptation of the wicked one; this gave me great distress of mind. I was inwardly urged to try, and then I should know if it was of the Lord or not. I waited for a door to be opened that I might try and know whether God had called me, so that my mind might be at peace; for I was troubled by day with thoughts on the subject and by night with dreams. I went to a night meeting; but the preacher did not come, and there was no one to speak to the people. One came to me and said, "You must speak to the people." Now, thought I, the way is opened and I have said in my heart if the Lord opens the way I will try to preach and if the Lord owns me I shall know and obey. I went forward, sang and prayed and with trembling took a text—"Come, for all things are now ready." I endeavored to introduce, explain and apply the text, feeling much better and more liberty than expected, and the Lord was pleased to send his Holy Spirit among the people, and I rejoiced, with many others who praised God aloud. I went home happy in God my Savior. Shortly after, my way was opened on the Sabbath, where a large congregation met to hear the Rev. John Magee; he did not come. Some of my brethren pressed me to preach, as there was no other chance for the people. I consented, believing that God had again opened my way. I spoke on the parable of the great Supper in the Gospel by St. Luke, 14th chap. 16th including the 24th verse. That day I felt great liberty and had reason to hope good was done. After this I was licensed by the Quarterly Conference, and have continued ever since, trying to preach Jesus and him crucified, wherever my lot has been cast.

AMERICAN METHODIST MISSION IN GERMANY.

In seven years (from 1850) the Methodist German Mission has grown into a church comprising 788 members, with seven local preachers. Missionary collections for the year, $405 60. Officers and teachers in Sunday-schools 109. Sunday scholars 1125. The Christian Advocate says of this Mission: In estimating the actual result of the Mission, it must be remembered that emigration brings away many of our members from Germany to America every year; the number of conversions has been probably twice or three times that of the present number of members returned. The prospects of our work in Germany were never better than now. One of its most promising features is the fact that native laborers are rising up in the bosom of the infant church. In no mission that has to get its laborers constantly from abroad can we get a permanent foothold. Some of the best and most useful missionaries now in our German work are the fruit of the Mission itself; and the statements made at the Bremen Conference of 1857, with respect to their zeal and devotion, were very interesting.

A NICE DISH.—Very few, perhaps, are aware that wheat, when cleaned well from chaff, dirt, etc., and boiled until entirely soft, will make a very edible dish. A little sweetening, with a small addition of cream, renders it exceedingly palatable. Try it.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

A SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT.

A few years ago I was put in charge of a mountain circuit, comprising twenty-six appointments, to be filled in four weeks. This was a heavy work for a young and inexperienced preacher. I had, therefore, to put forth my best endeavors to keep up with the work. Still there were times when I felt like doing something more, and this is the peg upon which I hang my tale.

I had been around the circuit three times, and had stopped twice with a poor family; yet I must say poverty never dwelt in a tidier home. This became a favorite stopping place, and resulted in a very intimate and pleasant acquaintance with each member of the family. Nor less pleasantly acquainted was I with a painted cup and saucer, the one containing sugar the other a little butter, two rarities as I found out in that country. My friends soon learned that I neither liked coffee unsweetened nor sweetened with molasses, and hence their considerateness. God bless them, they were poorly able to provide the necessaries, and yet like a favorite and spoiled child I was indulged in luxuries.

There were three occasional visitors of this family with whom I likewise became acquainted; they were the chiefs of the rod, the rule, and the reed—the school master, the squire and the singing master; and a more formidable trio, perhaps, a poor Methodist parson never encountered; for though not religious, yet they were "hard shells" in sentiment and belief.

The neighborhood stood in awe of these men, who could never be united only against Methodism. They were each as obstinate and loquacious in dogmatism as in ignorance; and next to the squire in importance was the man of the reed. He had the young people under his thumb; his singing was the occasion of their meeting together, and his airs at such time were as self-conceited as a "Scotch Reviewer." Reader, pray to be delivered from ever coming in conflict with a singing master in primitive settlements. I happened to this misfortune, and had the three united against me.

Of course all hope of usefulness was at an end; and even in the family of my friends a violent struggle was going on between their respect and fear of these men and their affection for their preacher. Their simplicity exposed them to undue influence in my absence, and being much concerned, I hit upon the expedient of furnishing my friends the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Never was experiment more successful. It was nearly four weeks after I had ordered the Advocate before I reached the home of my friends on my "round." I was warmly welcomed as usual and noticed a mysterious air of intelligence and superiority throughout the household. By each member of the family was related to me a succinct history of the appearance of the Advocate, and that every article had been read and every advertisement as matters of surprising information. The paper was well worn, though cautiously handled. This was the regular evening recreation; the eldest children alternating with the old people in reading and the young ones keeping quiet seats, hearing. Many were the explanations I had to give about the paper, or some article in it that struck their fancy more than usual, during which many an amusing scene took place, which required all my self-control and skill to manage.

Often I was interrupted by strangest expressions of surprise during a description of the process of printing: one would exclaim, "Did you ever hear tell of the like in all your born days." The old man's favorite expression was, "Do hush." I never had the satisfaction of witnessing more rapid, steady and substantial progress in piety and information. This success led me to repeat the experiment in nine other cases, which resulted in the conviction that I could not spend twenty dollars annually more appropriately than in furnishing a religious paper to the poor. My antagonists soon "gave in" to the superior information of my old friend and family, whose love of the Church increased with his information.

Up to this time the country had appeared lonesome and dreary, and my heart would sink as often as my horse's head was turned in the direction of the mountains. Often I would dismount and kneel beside the wading path to gather in prayer a little courage and hope, while "Charlie" employed himself feeding. I could not see what was to be gained by going into those shadowy places to preach to a few simple-hearted people, who were already good enough to die; but I had unwittingly hung up lights in those dim valleys which shed a soft radiance upon my heart as often as I entered them, and gave an original beauty and freshness to the whole country. I experienced a growing feeling of identity with God's poor. I had my reward; for my full heart would send up thankful tears to my eyes into which the well-read paper would look down from the wall and seem to say, I "advocate" your plan.

Before leaving the circuit I received pay for every paper I had ordered on my account. They read the paper, and therefore they paid for it. My old friend, on learning from me the cause of the paper coming to him pronounced a blessing for me I shall cherish to my grave, and said he never would have thought of subscribing for a paper, as he never thought himself able; but now, neither himself or family could do without it, and they found it easy money to raise.

He has since died and gone to heaven, where, doubtless, his glowing heart acknowledges the many comforts, warnings, counsels and encouragement of which the Advocate was the minister. This is not a new way to do good, but a cheap way, and he that most blesses in this way finds himself in the end most blessed.

Brother, light these candles all around your circuit. They burn beautifully.

WILLIAM.

LETTERS FROM ABROAD.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan., 1858.

This city burst upon our sight with perfect astonishment—the impression so new, so singular, so picturesque and interesting that every object had a peculiar fascination. The pyramids at a distance—the range of barren hills toward the desert—the lofty palm—the Arab huts in the suburbs—the mosque and the minaret—the long train of camels laden with the treasures of Egypt—the crowd of Arabs, Turks, Egyptians, Nubians, Albanians and Assyrians, in their varied costumes, was a sight so imposing, so wild and strange as to bewilder the senses. But as we left the depot and passed along through the market place or public streets and saw still larger groups seated upon the ground, some with their camels kneeling beside them, with their veiled women and children, the scene was more striking and oriental. Perhaps the people come down to bring spices and balm; for they appear to have stalls for fruits and sugar cane and variety of their own production in heaps by their side.

We took lodgings at Shepherd's Hotel, a central position opposite a garden or park, which forms a fine promenade, lined with the acacia, which forms a magnificent shade of evergreen. The avenues of this garden radiate from an open circular place and spread out in every direction, leaving spaces between for the cultivation of flowers, which adds much to their beauty. The mimosa grows with luxuriance, but the wide spreading acacia, with its pendant boughs of dense foliage, renders these walks almost impervious to the sun's rays.—Little bamboo arbors are scattered along under these trees, where the Turk sits, sells fruit, smokes, and plays chess or some of their own games. Our hotel is very large with a garden in the court filled with rich and beautiful flowering trees and shrubs, orange, citron and tropical plants. We have the scarlet leaf plant, whose beauty consists in its leaf, and not in the flower. It has a gay and brilliant appearance among the evergreen trees.

We have made the acquaintance of Rev. Mr. Leider, an Episcopal clergyman, and attended service at his Church; also Mr. Martin, the Presbyterian missionary from America.—Mr. Leider is a particular friend of Dr. Olin, of whom Mrs. L. spoke in the highest terms. Mrs. L. has a school of girls of the Coptic Church under her charge. These kind people have shown us every attention that a stranger could desire, making their house free of access to us at all times. And it is delightful and instructive to be there, for their rooms are literary museums, filled with choice antiquities as well as books. They have resided here 31 years, and are able to give that kind of information to strangers which is the most needed. Dr. K. made inquiries relative to his success among the natives and was answered with great simplicity and satisfaction. But Mohammedism is all around us, and the spell of fanaticism can only be broken by God. It is a religion too agreeable to the senses to be easily discarded.

We have visited two mosks: the first was Sultan Hassan's admired for its architectural beauty of design. His tomb was the central dome. We had to put on sandals to enter the mosk. There were stains of blood on the pavement, where 75 Memlooks were slain while at prayer who were defected in a plot upon his life. The new mosk of Mohammed Ali, at the citated, was very beautiful. Its minarets and dome appear to advantage from such an elevated position. The walls inside are lined with pure alabaster and it is ornamented with gold. There are one thousand glass lamps suspended in circular form around the building, to be lighted on the feast of Rammedian. A long line of worshipers were at their devotions as we entered, bowing their faces to the floor and uttering some prayers. Their simplicity touched our hearts, and we felt sad at the thought of error which enthrals the human mind and holds it captive by its power. In one corner is the tomb of Mohammed Ali, enclosed in a room of gilded net work, through which we looked and saw his monument draped with crimson cashmere: the windows with green and gold.—From the citadel we had a splendid view of the city and the valley of the Nile, with the pyramids in the distance. The spot was pointed out to us where Emin Bey escaped over a wall with his horse, and was the only one saved in that dreadful massacre of the Memlooks—a circumstance well known in their history. We passed through the Pasha's gardens into his palace and had a view of all his rooms. They were richly furnished, but not in such fine taste as that at Alexandria. He has others more splendid than this we were told. From the palace we went round to Joseph's well, dug out of solid rock by the ancient Egyptians, 260 feet deep. The bottom is reached by a winding way, which we attempted to accomplish; but it was too steep for comfort, and after going part of the way were glad to return.

BAZAARS.

One of the greatest curiosities of Egypt are its bazaars, which form the principal trading streets of Cairo. All nations appear to be represented. There are quarters for the English, Spanish, French, Turks, Arabs, Egyptians, Greeks, Armenians and Nubians. Almost all the human races seem to cluster here in crowds, for the bazaars are filled with people: in some places we found it difficult to get through them. All kinds of goods and produce, fruits and vegetables are in these shops—clothing, from the velvet cloak embroidered with gold to the yellow slipper and scarlet fez—everything is found here. The veiled ladies with their slaves are also seen here, exhibiting their pink silk dresses and embroidered trowsers, over all which the ugly black veil is thrown, with a slit cut across for the eyes and a gold chain suspended between them over the nose so they can peep out and look at others and not be seen themselves; but we do get a glimpse of their large, black eyes sometimes and their complexion, which is not very fair. The slaves are veiled in white cotton.

We have been to visit the tombs of the Caliphs outside the gate of the city and to ascend the hill which borders the desert to get a view of the plain. The tombs look like small mosks, except the minaret, and some of them are used as places of worship. The domes are gracefully designed, but built of soft sand stone, which is crumbling away.—The scene was perfectly picturesque, notwithstanding the barren, sandy place, with not a spire of grass, green herb, or tree to relieve the arid spot. We ascended the bleak hill of rock and sand, as barren as the plain below; but from the top had one of the most commanding views of the city with a portion of the Nile and its great valley, the pyramids and sandy desert, as it is possible to enjoy. O, what a prospect met our eyes! Unlike any thing we had ever seen. It was sublime from its vastness; though comparatively a plain, yet its effect upon the mind was like that of the ocean. The impression can not be effaced.—The mind expanded with the scene, and spread abroad its viewless wings to grasp the whole and repose in the sweet contemplation of Him who has spread the world over empty space and hung it upon nothing. The sandy desert seemed to stretch out like infinity with unmeasurable length, blending with the horizon in the distance, with clouds of sand floating in the atmosphere like a gentle mist. We could see the railway stations, like little white specks in the distance; for the road is completed within an hour and a half to Suez. The winds blew from the desert with great violence, and we could not long survey this grand prospect, which filled all the capacities of the soul with the most sublime emotions. We felt that we were in Egypt, the very cradle of genius and the foundation of the world of philosophy and letters—the birth place of Moses and the scenes where his miracles were wrought—in the land of the Pharaohs—the country, too, to which Joseph and Mary fled with the child Jesus; and where so many scriptural events transpired, that their associations and reflections filled the soul to overflowing, even to a gush of tears.

DEATH OF A GREEK BISHOP.

Yesterday a patriarch died, and to-day we went out to witness the funeral procession with the thousands gathered in the streets; but we saw a great many lights among the Arabs stealing the wax candles from the officers, who bear them along lighted to the tomb. The sword and the bayonet were raised to quiet the mob. At length the grand procession was seen advancing in great splendor. A large car, drawn by six black horses, upon which the corpse, in a recumbent position, was borne under a canopy, dressed in his robes of state, with a golden mitre upon his head, elevated upon cushions so high that we could see him distinctly with his long, flowing beard, as if asleep; a bishop behind as if supporting the head, dressed in his Greek costume shining with gold; other priests in clerical robes, at his side, and before the car were many more, with long robes of different colors and badges of mourning, chanting as they went, bearing ornamental glass lamps with lights in them. Two bands of music, of a military character, were in the procession. It was a strange and repulsive sight. We were told that the corpse was carried to the Greek church and seated in a chair as if alive, that the priests advanced and kissed his hand, after which a sermon was preached and his virtues enlogized. After the services his embroidered robes were removed, leaving him clad in white satin. The people were then privileged to advance and kiss his foot, or robe, or any other part of his garments. He was then conveyed to the tomb below, placed upright in a chair, to remain in that position undisturbed in the solitude of death until another bishop dies, when the crypt is opened for his reception in the same manner. They are thus seated around the vault until decomposition changes their attitude in mouldering away. It is twelve years since one has been interred in this dreadful charnel house.

We have been down to the Nile to see some of our American friends start in one of their little boats up to the Cataracts and Thebes—Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, from Savannah, Ga.—They were well fixed for a sail of two months, with sixteen Arabs to take charge of their boat and a dragoman as captain, a company of nineteen with themselves. We saw the names of A. H. Preston, from Louisiana, and W. C. P., from South Carolina, with other Americans, on the books here as already on their way up this river. Dr. K. is trying to get off, but Mrs. K. and myself will go in company with some friends by the way of Alexandria and Jaffa to Jerusalem. The Dr. will go through the desert after he returns, to Mount Sinai and thence to Palestine. We expect to be in Paris again in April. We shall remain here some weeks, and visit the environs and all places of interest accessible. The atmosphere is cool, but the sky perfectly clear and transparent; the sunsets magnificent, much like those in Louisiana in our best winter seasons. We look out upon them and think of our friends there with whom we enjoyed those brilliant scenes of departing days and moonlight evenings. The crescent moon is now wading in a sea of gold and crimson, which throws a warm flush over the rich and singular landscape where the lofty palm and spreading acacia bend in stately magnificence.

COPTIC CHURCH.

We have visited one of these edifices, very ancient in style and singular in architectural design. The different departments are separated by a net work of wood like bamboo cane, and the pulpit placed in a high position surrounded by the same filagree work. The building is of stone, the roof with rafters all bare. A few pictures hung around the walls, one of the flight of Joseph and Mary into Egypt was the most choice among them, for it has a tradition attached to the place of its imitation. We were led down into the baptistry, an underground room, with an arched ceiling and granite columns of curious workmanship. Large fountains were there for baptismal purposes. It was a dark, dreary place, which we viewed by the light of candles, but interesting as associated with the early Christians.

On our return we saw a fine company of Egyptian youths, dressed in a dark blue oriental costume. They were attached to a French school. We passed beautiful groves of palm and valleys rich with verdure, where the sugar cane was seen waving in rich luxuriance. The Pasha has factories for grinding, but wood is so scarce in Egypt that coal only is used at a great expense for boiling. The cane is sold in the market places for eating, of which the natives seem very fond.

GARDENS NEAR MOHAMMED ALI'S PALACE.

Celebrated for their oriental beauty, these gardens are the finest we have yet seen in the East, and kept in the best order. They are four miles from the city upon the banks of the Nile. The avenue by which they are reached is shaded all the way by the tall and wide-spreading acacia, which forms a perfect arch of rich and dense foliage, so thick that you have a perspective in the distance like the colonades of a temple. This avenue forms one of the most delightful drives of the city. The walks of the garden radiate from the center to different parts, and are bordered with flowering shrubs and trees, where little arbors of trellis work form retreats from the sun in cool, refreshing shades, so delightful in warm climates. The variety of flowers was not great. The large flowering shrub with scarlet blossoms was very beautiful. The sweet rose bloomed in perfection and sent forth its fragrance upon the balmy air. Some of the walks were lined with orange and lemon trees loaded with fruit. The mandarine, the most delicious flavored we have tasted in the East. In an open space in the center of the garden is an immense marble basin filled with water four feet deep. This fountain is surrounded by a marble balustrade, its columns and mouldings brought from Carrara. We walked around the building under a beautiful corridor with marble kiosks projecting into the water, with finely cushioned seats for repose. All the windows around the building were ornamented with stained glass of different colors, but only in half diamonds upon the outside. At each of the four corners were rooms furnished in magnificent style, where the Turkish and European blended in harmony.—Tall glass lamps of splendid designs were placed all around the corridor 8 or 10 feet high. The hedges are finely kept and the walks shaded with the acacia and other evergreens of luxuriant growth. The apricot and peach were in bloom.

We have had at this hotel a large company of the British from India—officers with their wives and children—on their way to England; also, Lord Lieutenant Ashburnam, commander of the British army in China. They were all weary with fatigue crossing the desert. And now our hotel is full again with others on their way to India.

Dr. K. has given out going up the Nile.—Will go through the desert and meet us in Jerusalem.

S. B. THOMAS.

THE REVIVAL.

The great turning of the public mind to religion forms so marked an event in our present times that even secular papers are noticing it. For the most part, too, their notices are not scoffing or disrespectful, but tentative, serious, and suggestive. They seem to say, "There is need enough among us for a revival of religion, heaven knows—pray God only that it be real and of the right kind."

They say, We hope it will do some good to men in a political and business capacity—that it will make them honest, and true, and upright, and magnanimous. "No revival has ever done anything for Wall street yet," says one—"we hope this may." * * * So speaks the outside world as she looks gravely, sadly, not scoffingly, on the spectacle of thronging churches and opening prayer-meetings—and her demand is just.

There is something in a right name. The term, "revival" seems by general consent to have been adopted into our language as expressive of these seasons; but we should much prefer a term formerly much employed among certain religious denominations—"reformation." Instead of the great revival of 1858, we should be happy to read the great reformation of 1858.

Many worldly people, and some very Christian people, have a prejudice against anything like periodicity in religious impulse. They dislike revivals. Why should the Divine One, who is always love, say they, be considered as operating impulsively and periodically on the human soul, sometimes shining and sometimes withdrawing? It is urged furthermore, that the expectation of such seasons becomes in the end a motive for sloth and inaction and a neglect of an even and constant culture of the religious nature.

All this may have some truth in it; but, nevertheless, it is a fact that religious impulses, have always come over the world in waves.—To begin with the day of Pentecost, in which three thousand were converted in one day, we find all along the line of the history of the Church that there were seasons when religious impulses were more than usually fervent, and religious labors successful.

There were revivals under the preaching of Augustine and Chrysostom; and the great force of the Reformation was not merely political or intellectual, but it was the deep upheaving of the religious element, bringing all other reforms in its train. The Reformation was a revival of religion. The revivals in England under the Wesleys and Whitfield inaugurated a new era there, which is felt to-day in the power of the dissenting element and the improved state of things in the Established Church. The preaching of the Wesleys, the Fletchers, and of Whitfield, to the colliers and cottars of England, was the first movement of the general religious instruction of the masses, and led the way to the multiplied labors of that kind with which England now abounds. It is a noticeable fact in all these cases, that they were followed by political and moral reforms;—the work proved itself divine by its beneficent results. This is a fair test. "He that is of God, doeth the works of God;" and by this test should every so-called revival be judged. Revivals which make men better, and bless society, have been and may be realities. * * * * * * *

We believe in no raptures, in no ecstacies, in no experiences that do not bring the soul into communion with Him who declared He came to set at liberty them that are bound and bruised. Revivals of religion have not been confined to Christian countries. Old heathenism had them. Popish Rome has them. Modern heathenism has them. One and all of these have had turns of unusual fervor in their way. One and all have had their trances, illuminations, and mysterious ecstacies. But those only are Christian revivals which make men like Christ; or, if they do not make them like Him, at least set them on the road of trying to be like Him. We say, therefore, to our friends, that the period of a great religious impulse has come; that there will be revivals all over the land, either false or true—either of a Christian or a heathen type; and by their fruits shall ye know them. We are glad to hear that some of the most effective revival preachers confine their attention very much to preaching to the church. We are glad to hear that. It is quite necessary that those who profess to be the exponents of religion before the community, should have some deeper and higher ideas of what religion is. * * * * * * * *

And let the solemn question go out to every Christian, to every parent, "Do you want your neighbors, friends, and children converted into such Christians as you have been?" If not, is there not a deeper conversion necessary for you?—New York Independent.

RULE FOR CLEAR WRITING.

Depend in the least possible degree upon punctuation to define your meaning. It is said that acts of the British Parliament are required to be engrossed entirely without punctuation, so that to effect the legislator's purpose, they must be so expressed that no ambiguity can be introduced into them by the manner in which they are read—so exactly framed, in short, that they can be read in only one way. It is a great tribute to the perspicuity and simplicity of most ancient writings, especially the Holy Scriptures, that their sense can in almost all cases be unerringly read, although marks of punctuation were wholly unknown when they were written. How many modern writings would be intelligible, if all their punctuation were obliterated? No doubt the absence of this help did much to constrain ancient writers to directness and simplicity in the construction of their sentences, as the reliance upon it has tempted moderns into complexity.

A JEW D'ESPRIT.—A very pretty girl said to Leigh Hunt, "I am very sad, you see." He replied, "Oh, no, you belong to the other Jewish sect; you are very fair, I see!"

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1858.

THE DOUBLE MOVEMENT.

What do you mean, says one, by "they are coming and staying, cheeringly," in the last Advocate?

We mean that if our list is to reach 1000 by May, we must keep all we have and get more. The O. S's. must stay: the N. S's. come.

But it is no favor to keep on a subscriber who don't, won't, or can't pay. It is a favor to be informed promptly of all such and be purged of them. We want a list, solid, living and solvent: not of deadheads. Verily, from the responses that come in, we believe, if May were two months off, we should fully reach the figure. A little faster, friends. May is not quite one month off.

PREACHERS AND AGENTS AND FRIENDS, try the "Experiment" on first page.

POSTS.—The Commercial column of the Advocate and Price Current, are carefully made up. To this has been added the Stock Market, Monetary, and Land Warrants. These alone, render the Advocate valuable to the country gentleman.

EXPENSES OF DELEGATES.—This is about the time the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences appointed for a collection in the churches, to defray the traveling expenses of their general conference delegations. Of course it will be attended to.

H. K. W. MUSE.—In another column are published resolutions, adopted by the class of '59, in Nassau Hall, Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the death of this young man. He was on his passage up the Mississippi, returning to college, when, by the explosion of the steamer Col. Crossman, he was fatally injured, but lived long enough for his father, Rev. W. H. Muse, of Clinton, La., to reach him and witness his christian death. Of his character and position learn from the resolutions. Similar ones have been received from the Caliosophic Society.

A member of the Alabama Conference is in Nashville bringing through the press "Theophilus, or the Trial of Faith." The book is in narrative style, and intended to show up "Theodosia" and other volumes in that range professing less but abounding in equal fiction. A correspondent, who has read the manuscript, pronounces it just the thing. He will speak for himself next week.

CALIFORNIA.—The steamer Webster arrived Monday, bringing files of California papers to 5th March. No news of importance. Our friend and brother, Genella, a San Francisco merchant, brought us, with the last number of that beautiful and sprightly sheet the Pacific Methodist, the greetings of the editor, and of the P. E. of the district, Rev. O. Fisher. Their private letters speak of what we hope will soon become public—an effort to build a church in San Francisco. There ought to be one there: our brethren have none—not the smallest conventicle in that emporium of the golden land. This ought not so to be. If anything of the kind presses upon us more than another, it is for the M. E. Church, South, to have a suitable chapel in San Francisco and another in Shanghai.

PLACE OF MEETING.—The House of Representatives before the adjournment of the Legislature of Tennessee, unsolicited, tendered their spacious and elegant Hall to the use of the members of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to convene in Nashville on the first of May.

REV. STURGES SHERMAN died at the residence of J. J. Bryan, of Bossier parish, La., 11th day of March, 1858, in the seventy-sixth year of his age. After a day's journey of over forty miles, (the last seventeen on horseback) he fell at the gate of his daughter's residence, stricken down by apoplexy. Though repeatedly urged by friends on the road to stop and spend the night, he declined, stating his anxiety to reach his destination. He retained his senses for more than an hour after he was taken into the house, but suffered great agony, after which he never awoke. Long since he chose for his epitaph—

"A sinner saved by grace."

DEATH OF DR. COOK.—Our foreign news brings us the mournful intelligence that the Rev. Dr. Cook died at Lausanne, Switzerland, on 21st of February. He was the first president of the French Wesleyan Conference, and has had a zealous and successful ministerial course of more than forty-one years.

AUBURN, ALA.—We are sincerely glad to record, (says the Auburn Gazette, 25th ult.,) that there is progressing at the M. E. Church, this place, a meeting of thrilling interest. The preacher in charge, Rev. C. D. Oliver, is indefatigable in his labors, and has manifested a disinterested zeal worthy of the 'old reformers.' We commend him for it. His mission is not only sacred to our heart, but is the highest this side the estate of seraphhood. Heaven bless his efforts, and give to all our people the peaceable fruits of charity and unfeigned christianity! Let no man speak lightly of religion! Elder Bice and Rev. John W. Laney, have also been present and helping.

SOCIETIES.—It is not always an evidence of abounding grace, but rather the reverse, that many societies are proposed. Formalism is fruitful of schemes and agencies. It expects much of them. Anything but individual personal effort. Perhaps, says one, there is no other thing which human nature so gladly resigns to the hands of hired servants, as religious duty. There is no other service for which the world or the worldly man can afford, in view of pecuniary profit, to pay so liberally, in cash, as that of "working out salvation," whether for self or others.

UNIVERSALISTS AND UNITARIANS.

MR. CLAPP READ OUT.

After a prevalent custom of the politicians—reading certain members out of the party—the Universalist Herald, of Notasulga, Ala., reads Dr. Clapp out. Dr. C. has been regarded the Coryphæus of Universalists, in these parts, for a generation. We are rather alarmed, than otherwise, to find that there is a complexion of that sect for which the Doctor is not deep-dyed enough. Says the Herald:

"This gentleman has long been known as an able advocate of a world's salvation, and we had supposed from the caresses he has received from many Universalist editors, that his sympathies were with us. It seems, however, we were 'reckoning without our host.'"

It is then stated that, in Louisville, Ky., where he now is, Dr. C. attends the Unitarian Church, instead of giving his countenance and influence to "the feeble Universalist society there, which has long been struggling for a healthy existence:"

"This looking one way, and paddling another, is not what we admire, by upwards of considerable. We like a positive man. It may be deemed presumption in us, thus to speak of 'dignities,' but we are determined not to ignore the coquetry of Dr. C., which he has too long been playing with Unitarians and Universalists. 'He that gathereth not with us' 'scratcheth a board.'"

Whether the last quoted words were a misprint or intentionally put for "scattereth abroad," we divine not; but they gave us a hearty laugh which sobered off into serious reflections. If Universalism be true, that is about as severe a sentence as it has for heretics or the highest class of sinners: "scratching a board." If a man commits any crime, and can only escape the clutches of the sheriff, he is scratching a board. If he breaks both tables of the law—though hewn by Moses and inscribed by the finger of God—it is nothing: he only scratches a board.

The "Universalist Society" has well been described as an insurance company of high premiums but no risks.

We will tell the little Notasulga organ a thing:—The name, creed, society and practice of Universalism are under par; and that not for its morality, but immorality. It is a tree that quickly yields fruit, and by its fruit men know and shun it. To entertain, it as a theory, a speculation, is not safe—so inevitably does it work bad results. Those even who lean to its doctrines prefer a profession and worship under another name. Was it not in a county near where the sheet we quote from is published that, while the famous Shehaus was preaching Universalism, a drunkard staggered in, heard and hiccupped, and finally broke the order of meeting by crying out, "Go it, Sehnel prove it up clear; for if you sin't right I'm a goner."

Now, Dr. Clapp sees the character and fruits of gross, out-and-out Universalism. He is a high-bred gentleman—a cultivated scholar—a philanthropist—and wishes well to society; and whatever his abberations of creed, he does not relish such company. It is a pleasing illusion, at least, to have a few thin leaves of creed between himself and the Universalists. If he "paddles" that way, he does'nt like to "look" that way. And paddling that way we think he is—for Unitarianism, somehow, always ends in Universalism. The former has a literature, high, dry and elegant, humanitarian and classical: this must always make it respectable. But Universalism is without even that buoyancy and sinks to the bottom, like a stone. Its literature is as vulgar as its morals.

In this connexion, we introduce some remarks from the Examiner, suggesting the essential doctrinal errors of Universalism, which are often disguised:

"Universalists are accustomed to represent the distinction between themselves and evangelical Christians, as simply a belief, on the one hand that all, and on the other that only a part of mankind will be saved. A favorite term of contrast with them is Unirersalist and Partialist. This manner of speaking is insidious. Its purpose, which it admirably serves with multitudes who are not professed or conscious Universalists, is to convey an impression that there is nothing in this difference of opinion, vital to the salvation of the soul. The impression is sedulously kept up, that the only peculiarity of a good Universalist's piety, is that he exercises the faith and love of the gospel, without the impulse of fear. If this were indeed all, a Universalist's religion (if practicable) would have an actual advantage. But the essential belief involved in acceptance of the doctrine of future punishment, is not that the soul is in danger, (though that is an important practical motive) but that God is infinitely just, and that sin is irretrievably damning.—The man who does not believe these things, cannot possibly receive Christ, nor see any sense in receiving him. He who supposes that God either will or can connive at sin by letting it go unpunished, has yet to know both conviction and repentance. And likewise he who supposes that a mere atonement can operate externally, and by itself, to cleanse the soul of the guilty and justify the sinner, has yet to know what sin is, by conviction, and cannot possibly care to approach Christ for a salvation of which he feels no present need, and yet which he cannot miss in the end. In short, it seems next to impossible, if not altogether inconceivable, that a man should become truly convinced of sin, truly repent, and truly embrace Christ as his Savior, without feeling in his inmost soul that to have neglected these, or substituted any superficial and spurious exercises under the same names, must have consigned him to irretrievable perdition."

Universalism stands, not in magnifying God's mercy, but disparaging his holiness and justice: not in a high estimate of the atonement, but in a low one of sin. Thus, it feels no need of a divine Savior, and accepts Christ as a man only. Unitarianism, having no sacrifice of infinite merit for the sinner to plead, is driven to make the least of his sin.

It is a significant fact that both are opposed to capital punishment. A mawkish sentimentalism pervades their theories of government, human and divine.

So it is, that starting from different points, Universalism and Unitarianism finally are one. Confluent heresies, they run into each other.

They both are Christless systems, and that is not a trifling fault of systems professing to be Christian.

Let God's law be magnified. Sin is exceeding sinful; but Jesus is a great Savior. God can be just and justify the sinner in Christ.

THE COURIER ON REVIVALS.

When a secular journal, of the position and influence of the Louisiana Courier, leaves its vocation and attempts to create contempt and a principled opposition to those religious movements accepted by evangelical Christians, as "Revivals," it is our duty to remonstrate; and if it will not mend, to awaken and direct to it a proper public sentiment.

This is one of the purposes for which the Church has established a press—to defend itself and its mode of operations against such flippant scurrilities as the Conrier has been flinging out, for several weeks. The Christian Advocate does not meddle with politics; and it distinctly says to the Courier, "You must keep in line."

Our contemporary devotes half a column (25th ult.) to the "severe diatribe" of the Advocate of 27th, under the head of "Uncharitable," and disclaims "irreverent" intention in the manner it has dealt with revivals. Let us quote from the Courier, March 10:

Certain it is that a religious bubbub of no common stripe is now going on in the North, and especially in the great metropolis. The preachers, usually limited to one day in the week, now do a smashing business for the whole seven. Hundreds of meeting-houses heretofore closed during six-sevenths of the time are now in full and constant blast. Theatres have ceased to be fashionable; concerts don't pay, balls are hollow mockeries, and instead of going to evening parties to cram with sweetmeats and champagne, the fair daughters of Gotham visit praying parties or range themselves on the anxious seat to drink in and devour the flow of pulpit eloquence and the droppings of pulpit manna. A thousand hoarse parsons perseveringly twang the Gospel and drum on their forty dollar Bibles day and night. Crinoline is contracted and jewelry is dull but the good work goes bravely on. The prospect now is that, by the time another political campaign comes on, the Black Republican parsons will have congregations to argue Abolition politics before, twice as large as they were in 1856.

Again, March 16:

But it seems that the army of parsons are not satisfied with capturing and "lamming" the Commander-in-Chief. A large and respectable corps of them is stationed around his prostrate form, who apply cold pokers, snowballs and chunks of ice to the great lover of hot things with commendable perseverance. But this praiseworthy duty has not interrupted the general current of revival proceedings.

The editorial of 21st speaks of "the so-called revival under Whitfield" and thinks "It may be perfectly convincing to old ladies at a prayer-meeting to tell them that the Holy Ghost poured out His spirit under the ministration of Whitfield."

It has scoffed at the general subject of revivals, as they might prevail anywhere and even as they did in Whitfield's time; though the Courier (Mar. 28,) would be understood as confining its strictures to "the Yankees."

The animus of the following extract cannot be mistaken, and is a fair specimen:

He [the devil] rejoices in hypocrites and laughs when men go home from revival meetings to cheat their neighbors. He is a great promoter of sects and schisms and teaches men to forget real piety while running after names and squabbling about doctrine. He loves religious controversies and is never so much tickled as when one sect makes war upon another. He likes to hear pious words from lying lips but mourns when a good deed is done or a kind word is spoken. He laughs in his sleeve when sentimental young ladies and weak-minded youths are wheedled into the supposition that they have got religion, seeing them no better sisters, brothers, daughters or sons, no more kind, no more charitable, no more forbearing, no less vain, no less vicious, only a great deal more hypocritical than before. He likes those excitements which induce people to adopt the forms of piety; for he knows that their efforts to preserve the show after the evanescent feeling has died away will add them to the catalogue of hypocrites, who are the Devil's especial pets.

Admires religion, if all religion was not hypocrisy! Objects to "forms of piety;" for, of course, they must be hollow and—hypocritical. Certain people seem unable to conceive of any thing earnest and hearty in religious demonstration. It is all hypocrisy—that thing which they make a single virtue of hating. The religious reform in the land, which has been treated with deference by the American press, as a body, is accounted for on a favorite theory more than once enunciated, viz: It is a trick "in prospect of having full congregations to which Black Republican pulpit-hangers can preach Abolitionism in 1860."

Here, again, appears the incapacity of rising above the idea of plot and intrigue even in holy things. Procul, O profani, este.

It is with reluctance we quote thus its own columns against a journal of such position.—Doubtless it has mightily pleased the rabble and all scoffers and infidels, to whose tastes these lengthy leaders have catered. It is now a fact, not merely claimed by the Church, but commanding the attention and confession of the world, that some mighty influence is abroad answering prayer and attending the ministry of divine truth, turning by a common sympathy the simultaneous attention of multitudes throughout the length and breadth of the land anxiously to the condition and hopes of their souls. The manifest effects of this influence are such as to authenticate its source to be none other than the Spirit of God.

This is a Christian country. The surroundings of the Courier may make it oblivious of the fact, but it is also a Protestant country.—Perhaps it took its cue from Freeman's Journal, N. York—Archbishop Hughes' organ; or from Archbishop Blanc's, the Catholic Standard of this city. Says the former:

"It requires neither high nor rare talent to ridicule these excitements, in general and in detail. They will be evanescent in their results. They are marked by ignorance, fanaticism, execrable taste, and absence of the proprieties of life. Reason and intellect are not called into exercise in the "converts." No basis is given upon which to construct a better mode of life. When the temporary excitement of these meetings has passed, their subjects will seek a substitute for the sensible stimulants of the prayer meetings, in dissipation, or in other forms of delusion."

Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians and many Episcopalians believe in revivals; they pray for them—they rejoice in them. The Methodists alone in Louisiana number over 8000 members and the others a large membership. The Courier has been mainly built up and sustained by public revenues. More than once it has been a suppliant, not unsuccessfully, for public printing. Journals, like men, have habits of dependence and favor-asking. It is well, therefore, to note these things down and bear them in mind. Newspaper publishers, who live by the favor of the public, may find it to their interest to offer no violence to the religious sentiment of the people.

METHODIST PRESS.

Rev. J. B. Payne communicates to the Southern Advocate on frequent communion; he dwells on the propriety and the neglect of it. We fear that what he says of the Methodist Church, is too true of all; they commune too seldom. For this cause many disciples are weak and sickly, and many sleep. Perhaps our Book Editor—and he will pardon the suggestion—could not put forth a more well-timed and useful little volume than might be made up from Dr. Mason's remarks on "Frequent Communion"—(to be found in first volume of his published works.)

The regular administration of the Lord's Supper is made an integral part of christianity, both by teachings of the Scriptures, and the custom of the primitive church; and is incorporated in our articles of religion, as an essential part of our christianity. The communion of the body and blood of Christ is an open confession of faith. It brings the mind in contact with the crucified Savior, and is a renewal of covenant obligations, necessary to the nature and perpetuation of a pure christianity. A champion infidel once said, after a long and labored effort to break down christianity, "we can never succeed, unless we abolish the Sabbath and the sacraments."

This writer says that "from twenty-five years of regular itinerant life, which has covered almost an entire State, my opinion is, that taking the whole ground, there is not more than one sacrament in two years as an average. I have found some churches which have not had one in five years—"

Many of our people never commune at all, particularly in the country churches, where there have been but few sacraments, and they entirely irregular. The result of this is, that the piety of such people is light, wavering, and doubtful.

Having grown up without making this an essential, integral part of their christianity, they seem not to see the defect, not to feel the evil. And as a natural result they become fearful to enter upon this strange practice in religion. They have not been trained and exhorted to the duty. Its nature and obligations have not been regularly presented to them. Is it strange they should be inconsistent under such circumstances?

I have but seldom found any arrangements made in country churches for the sacrament. I found Bibles and hymn books, and pulpits, and sometimes altars, but no sacramental service, no sacramental wine—not a figure, (outside of a town or city) with very few exceptions, to show that sacraments had any place in the churches and religion of our people.

The Independent, remarking on the great revivals, succeeding the great panic, thinks "it is fortunate that the late pecuniary disasters are not subsiding into the degradation of unsanctified poverty, but are becoming avenues to wisdom, and to true imperishable riches."

One of the features of the same is the part—the lead, taken by lay members. No stirring evangelists have preceded them. Prayer meetings and experience meetings have been mightily in vogue. Alluding to the Flying Artillery and the Band of Praying Brothers, the Buffalo Advocate says:

It may be that this novel movement, with its warlike cognomen, is a Providential inauguration of a new feature of Church aggressiveness. If so, God speed the moral warriors in their fight of faith. The plan is one of the most taking which we have read of for a long time; and, especially, in times of revival, we see nothing objectionable to the movement. There is strength in a united effort; and when the union is one of faith and knowledge, and urged on by a quenchless desire for the salvation of men, it is not improbable that an invaluable service might be rendered to the Church. There is none too much zeal manifested by Christians generally, in meeting the responsibilities of their calling, and we have less to fear from over-wrought exertions, than we have from the, masterly inactivity which, as a general thing, prevails in the Church.

The N. Y. Christian Advocate presents a plan for saving thousands of members to the Church, and, verily, we believe it would:

It consists of a book of printed certificates, with blanks to be filled out, nearly in the usual form. There are two certificates on the page; one for the removing member to take, as usual, the other to be sent by the pastor, to the pastor of the Church whither the removing member designs to go. The latter certificate has blanks to specify briefly some particulars respecting the member—whether he was a leader, steward, trustee, the number of his family, etc. The special feature of the plan is the last form of certificate. Thousands, perhaps we may say tens of thousands, of members have been lost from our Church by not giving in their certificates when they have removed to new localities, and by not being known there, as Methodists, by our preachers and people. The certificate, or notification sent from pastor to pastor, would remedy the evil almost universally. Any Methodist family, on moving into a new place, would thus be expected, usually before their arrival, by the preacher or his official assistants; the plan would secure them an immediate recognition and Christian acquaintance. It is, in fine, an exceedingly happy idea; and we hope this mention of it will lead to a demand on our Book Agents for the publication of books of these blank certificates. We should add that the certificates are so arranged on the page as to leave, when cut off, a margin which bears a record of the case, and thus a Church book of transfers is kept on hand.

P. N., an incog. of the Nashville Advocate, gives interesting Northern correspondence. Evidently, he has occasional peeps behind the curtain. We are not surprised at this movement indicated. Only let our next General Conference pass and the succeeding one of the Church, North, will have the initistive of an important step and take it too:

It is rumored, and generally believed, that Dr. Jesse T. Peck, who is at present pastor of the Green Street Church in this city, has been solicited by the Bishops to go out as a kind of missionary general to California. A correspondent of the Zion's Herald seems to indicate that this movement looks toward the election of the Doctor as a kind of diocesan Bishop of the Pacific. Personally we would have no objection to such an appointment, for we do not believe a man can be found more loyal to the Church or one who takes a deeper interest in her welfare, nor, indeed, one who would be willing to make greater sacrifices for the promotion of those interests; but we doubt very much the propriety of breaking in any way upon the itinerant General Superintendency. Our Bishops are the life-blood of the great itinerant system, and should circulate freely and uninterruptedly from one extreme to the other of our work. We are aware of the difficulties connected with the yearly visits of our Bishops to the Pacific, and Africa, and Germany; and we know of no way in which this difficulty can be obviated better than by the organization of these Conferences into separate independencies, with correspondences and occasionally a quadrennial delegations, to each respectively and reciprocally. We cannot possibly conceive of any evil resulting from such an arrangement, but much good. It was right and proper that the parent Church should sustain these missions and organize them into Conferences at the proper time; but when they have reached their majority, and are abundantly able to support and govern themselves, they should, for their own sakes and the sake of the great cause in general, be thrown upon their own resources, and left free to develop those resources and work out their future as to them may seem most in accordance with the genius of their institutions and the will of God.

The Texas Advocate, giving the members of the Revision Committee of the American Bible Society, pertinently asks:

"Why should there be five of the Presbyterian family, and but one from the Methodist side? The Southern Methodist Church, and the Protestant Methodists, have no showing, either in this Committee, or in any other. And it has always been so, in all these societies."

The St. Louis Advocate, 25th ult., brings grateful news:

For more than two months a most glorious revival has been in the Methodist Churches of this city. So deep and general a religious interest has never before been known. The Presbyterian and Baptist Churches have also shared largely in this time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The extra meetings have been suspended at all the Methodist Churches, except the First Church; not, however, because the interest has ceased, but because the arduous and unremitting labors of more than two months have so exhausted the physical energies of both preachers and members, that a season of relaxation was imperiously demanded. "The Spirit" was willing to go forward in the toil, but "the flesh" was too weak to obey its behests. The aggregate number of conversions have not yet been definitely announced, but they are largely over three hundred; and the churches are all in a blaze.

Our contemporary, remarking on the objections raised to the modes of the gracious work, after some people's notions of order, says:

But if we cannot have a revival just as we would prefer it, in all its aspects and circumstances, we rejoice to see it with all its apparent imperfections. We say apparent, because after all there may be, in the estimation of the Head of the Church, no imperfection at all. The God of wisdom is the God of grace, and as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are his ways and thoughts above ours. That his thoughts of "order" sometimes differ immensely from ours, we have the most convincing proofs before us every day. We lay out our gardens in squares, raise our mounds with pyramidal symmetry, and plant our trees in straight rows. That is our conception of order. He throws up huge, irregular mountains, digs out deep, ill-proportioned ravines, and scatters the seeds of vegetation over the field of the world, without any regard to squares and rows.—That is his conception of order.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

A SHORT SERMON.

SUBJECT: FINANCE.

TEXT: "The laborer is worthy of his hire."—Luke 10:7.

MY RESPECTED HEARERS: These words, which I have read as the basis of some reflections which I wish to submit to your consideration, are a part of our Lord's address to the "seventy," whom he commissioned and "sent" "into every city and place whither he himself would come."

The text seems to have been uttered as a vindication of the right of the ministers to the unembarrassed participation and enjoyment of the hospitalities tendered them; "For so hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel."

It is here affirmed by the highest authority, that the "laborer is worthy of his hire." Webster, one of the most eminent of English lexicographers, defines "hire" to mean "wages; the reward or recompense paid for personal service." He also defines "tithe" (the word used in relation to the support of ministers or priests among the Jews) to mean, "to tax to the amount of a tenth." Webster defines the word "give" thus: "to bestow; to confer; to transfer the title or property of, a thing to another person without an equivalent or compensation."

You will perceive, my hearers, that the point at which I am now aiming is to show the meaning of the word hire, as distinguished from the word give; and, adopting the definition of our great lexicographer, we find them to be very different things. Now, I am inclined to think that the distinction here made out has not been attended to, when the words have been used in relation to the support of ministers. Now, it is said that "they that give to the poor lend to the Lord;" for the poor can make us no return. The Lord becomes thus surety, and pledges his infinite resources to repay us with large interest; for he says, "Inasmuch as ye did it to the least of these my little ones, ye did it unto me." But such is not the language used in relation to the support of those who give themselves wholly to the work of the ministry; but square out, up and down—"the laborer is worthy of his hire"—"the recompense paid for personal service." There is nothing intimated here about giving to the poor or lending to the Lord; but, as it is said in Timothy 5:18, "The laborer is worthy of his reward."

We have sometimes heard it said in prayer, "Give thy ministers souls for their hire." Now, if by this is meant any thing more than the conversion of souls as seals and proofs of their ministry, the prayer is a simple absurdity.—The conversion of souls is God's work, and to God belongs the glory. To speak of souls in the sense of hire, as a means of support, is too absurd to bear discussion.

The reason, my hearers, why I am dwelling upon and urging the meaning of the word hire, as given by Webster, is this, viz.: The misapprehension of this matter has been one of the grand difficulties in the way of the support of our preachers, and why so many valuable men have had to locate to make their bread and pay debts contracted in supporting themselves while in the regular work of the ministry. The people have felt that the support of the ministry was a mere matter of gift and entirely optionary, and not a matter of debt, and as just and morally binding as any other financial obligation. Here has been the difficulty. Hence people have been saying they had given so much to support the preacher; or, that they could not give any thing this year; that they owed debts to the merchant, the physician, or the mechanic, and that they must be just before they were generous.

Now, this is putting the ministry on the list of charities with the pauper, the blind, and the heathen. But, my hearers, you have no right to do this: God says, "the laborer is worthy of his hire"—he has rendered service, and has a legal and honorable right to his wages.

So let us not hear you any more saying you give your pastor so much: when you pay him, do not say how generous you have been. You do not insult the honorable sensibilities of your blacksmith or your shoemaker, after he has rendered faithful service, by saying that you give him so and so, and that you are generous in paying him a fair price for his work. Then do not talk about the money you pay your pastor for his toil, as though it were a gift.

But, says one, "Ministers do not preach for money." Very true: no sensible man would set out upon so hopeless an enterprise. But while "the love of Christ constrains" the minister to persuade and warn men, God has made it the duty of those to whom he preaches to see to it that he is comfortably supported. I have never known a minister to claim or desire more.

I am glad that God has made this debt a moral one, and that the institutions of our country make it a debt of honor; but it is, therefore, not less a debt, and not less binding upon those who owe it.

Having submitted these reflections, I will not, at this time, further tax your patience or trespass upon your time. With good wishes I dismiss you.

CLERICUS.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

BISHOPS IN THE SOUTHWEST.

MR. EDITOR: Suppose the preachers in charge of a large circuit lived on the edge or the outside of it.

Our general superintendents (bishops) all live this way, to the field of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

You had an editorial a while back, on "official hurrying." Dear sir, if the bishops ever hurry it is to the East—the East.

The West, the great, growing West, where Episcopal superintendence and presence and aid most are wanted, is favored with flying visits only.

Draw, latitudinally, the well known yellow fever line—high up as you can—and no Methodist Bishop resides south of it.

Draw a line, longitudinally or slantingly, through Versailles, Ky., Nashville, Tenn., Aberdeen, Mi., Summerfield, Ala., and Sparta, Ga., and no Methodist Bishop resides west of it.

Four-fifths of the territory of our Church, to say nothing of California, is without Episcopal residence. The advantages of it, I need not now argue; they are many and great and most needed in new Conferences.

In the Mississippi Valley, which drains thirty-six thousand miles of navigable streams, we have not a Bishop.

In the vast regions beyond the Mississippi, none.

Memphis, which, geographically, is nearer our center than any other distinguished point, tried to draw one; made a strong pull. But Georgia (and Georgia was sensible,) would'nt give him up.

The tour of the western conferences from Missouri to Texas, is a sort of Episcopal exile.

The South and West can not import bishops. What then? The South and West must make bishops. Yours, etc.,

ONE OF THE BRETHREN.

P. S.—I guess your position. Should like to know what the St. Louis, Memphis and Texas Christian Advocates think on this subject. Speak out, brethren.

O. O. T. B.

YOUNG AMERICA AT SCHOOL.

We understand from the Chambers Tribune (Chambers county, Ala.,) that a fatal occurrence took place in that county, near Berlin, on the 15th ult., in which Mr. Brawner, a school teacher in that neighborhood, was fatally stabbed. It appears that Brawner undertook to chastise one of his pupils, a lad named Collins, about twelve years old, when the latter drew a knife and inflicted a wound upon Brawner which caused his death in a short time. After he was stabbed, he pursued the lad for a short distance, but his strength soon gave out, and he fell dead. We understand that Collins has made his escape, and up to the present time we have not heard that he has been arrested.

Of a piece with the above is this:

"INSUBORDINATION:—Columbia, S. C., March 27.—Two hundred college students have been suspended till October for insubordination."

The insubordination of youth, to parents, to teachers and to elders is one of the signs of the times. The rod, whose virtues are extolled by Solomon, has unfortunately gone out of fashion at home and at school. Among all the schemes of session, it cannot be superseded.

In one of our public schools (Fourth District) a lad was being subjected to its wholesome discipline. He rebelled, ran home with a grievous tale, and his wise father returned with him, to browbeat the faithful teacher. "Sir," said the parent, "I don't allow this boy to be whipped, even at home." "The more need it should be done here," the superintendent replied, and Young America was put through a course of sprouts.

THE WEDGE.

The two Conferences into which the old Baltimore Conference was divided twelve months ago, have jointly resolved on the publication of a weekly paper, bearing the name of Baltimore Christian Advocate. It will issue from the city of Baltimore. Dr. Thomas E. Bond, son of the old editor, was elected to bring out a specimen number of the paper, to be used in procuring subscribers, and it is highly probable he will be selected as its editor when regularly issued. The projectors of the paper seek the co-operation of the Philadelphia, New Jersey, and Western Virginia (Northern) Conferences in this movement; and have appointed a committee of ministers to visit these Conferences for the purpose of engaging them in the support of the enterprise.

PREACHERS, ATTENTION!

We have just received and will hereafter keep a good supply of all the various Church Register Books, needed on circuits and stations. They have been got up "by authority," and will sell at Nashville prices. Now please send at once and supply your circuits, and then keep the names of your members and probationers properly registered; also the baptisms and marriages, that all things connected with your work may be done "decently and in order."

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

...rist—On the 14th January, at the residence of Mrs. ...ah Hopkood, by Rev. Edwin Phillips, R. D. FOSTER, ... and Miss MARY E. HOPKOOD, all of Desoto parish, La. ...e groom being a subscriber, paid the "printer's fee" ...ntributing $2 and having his mother-in-law's name ...ed on the list of Advocate takers.]

...the 11th February, by Jesse H. Chaney, Dr. HART... H. HARRIS and Miss. INDIANA PERLAN.

...the 11th ult., in Dayton, by Rev. Dr. T. M. Jennings, WILLIS P. KING and Miss VIRGINIA GREEN, all of Mu..., Ala.

...the 18th ult., at the residence of Col. Toomer, the ...father, Capt. JOSEPH A. FAYNE, of Hancock county ...and Miss REBECCA A. TOOMER, of St. Tammany par...

...the same day, at the residence of Mr. Jos. Roberts, ...v. E. A. Flowers, Mr. ANSEL W. P. ROBERTS and ...MARY C. DICKINSON, all of Louisiana.

...the 17th ult., at the residence of the bride's father, ...kin county, MI., by Rev. R. A. Sibley, Mr. COUNCIL ...RNHAM and Miss MARGARET A. CHOSNEY.

...Printer's fee (N. S.) acknowledged.

Special Notices.

INFORMATION WANTED

...rning JOHN HAYES, son of HIRAM HAYES, of Clarke ..., Ga. JOHN HAYES was born in said county, and is ...65 years old. He removed from Campbell county, ... Mississippi about 12 years since, and a rumor has ...ed his friends in Georgia that he has since moved to ...sas. I have in my possession his interest in the es... ...of HIRAM HAYES, his father. If he is not living I ...be glad to know if he has left any wife or children. ...spectfully, in the Western Conferences, or any body ...will confer a favor by forwarding me any reliable ...rmation concerning him or his heirs. My address is ...r. Terrel county, Ga. WM. HAYES.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY, 112 CAMP STREET.

...e have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, ...e invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the ...lications of the Church, South, the following:

...enson's Commentaries; Clark's do., in sheep and calf, ...; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Anec... for Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Disci...; Bible Index, by Barr; Checks to Antinomianism, ...Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, ...Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Covel's Dictionary; ...ference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Uni...alism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred ...aders; Rollin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; ...estions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; ...ds Longking's Notes.

All at Nashville prices.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

...the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Long...'s Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

...lso, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append ...publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calcu...ons in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Ter...ries within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—...ides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains ...Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the ...rld; statistics of religious denominations in the United ...tes; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive ...alogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist ...blishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pa... ...price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

...The undersigned propose to issue, during the approach... General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in ...ch the proceedings of the body will be published.

...Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names ...mediately: or, they may give to the delegates their ...nes and the cash.

...Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

...No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance. ...The first number will the issued on Monday, the 3d of ...y.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

...This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical ...published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nash... ...Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per an... ...strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages ...yal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful ...el-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, ...d of the most important and interesting character. ...To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be ...posed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a dis... ...nt of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription ...ice.

...As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet ...en sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is ...erefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, ...d continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to in...ase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—...me brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the ...Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable ...ject will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

Mails for Central America, Pacific Slope.

The Post-Office Department has called the attention of the public to the arrangement made in January, 1857, for dispatching a regular monthly mail to the following ports in Central America, on the Pacific slope:

San Jose de Guatemala, La Union, Acajulta, Sealejo, San Jnan del Snr, and Pinta Arenas, seaports on the Pacific slope of Central America. This mail is made up and despatched by the New York and New Orleans Post-Offices, by the California mail steamers of the 5th of each month, and is forwarded from Panama, (N. G.) to destination by the steamship Columbus, belonging to the Panama Railroad Company.

Letters may also be sent by this mail to the following inland towns in Central America:

Esquiutla, La Antigua, Guatemala, Quesaltenango, and other places in Guatemala on the Pacific slope of the Republic; San Miguel, San Vicente, Cojultepeque, Sonsonate, San Salvador, and other places in San Salvador on the Pacific slope; Amapala (Isla do Tigre) and Comuyagna, in Honduras; Chinandega, Leon, Managua, Massaya, Virgin Bay, Rivas, Granada, etc., in Nicaragua; San Jose de Costa Rica, Cartaga, Alajuela, Heredia, Esparsa, San Mateo, Atenas, etc., in Costa Rica.

It is necessary in all cases that the United States postage be prepaid, which is ten cents on a single letter, when the distance is under 2500 miles, and twenty cents when the distance is greater than that.

BUYING "OLD MASTERS."

—The following extract from a private letter lately received by Palmer, the sculptor, from a distinguished ex-Governor, now in Rome, contains a suggestive commentary on those numerous art-bargains, in which the purchaser as well as the picture is "sold:" "I have not the rage for what are called and sold for 'Old Masters.' There was cases before the courts here a short time since, of a gentleman who had purchased an authenticated and certified original painting, with a celebrated name, for £800, ($4000.) He subsequently learned that the original was in a certain gallery or palace, and that he had only a copy. He sued the person from whom he purchased it, and on the trial the painter who made his copy was a witness, and swore that he made it and received only $30 for it from the merchant who sold it to the plaintiff! Such cases are not uncommon. The imitating of old paintings is a trade, quite as much as an art here."

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

MINUTES

Of the Mississippi Conference of the M. E. C. S., held in Brandon, Mi., Nov., 1857, as published by the Committe.

This document is sent out as a correct copy from the journals of the Conference, endorsed by the committee; and the preachers are called upon to send money to pay for its publication.

It is said to be "the beginning of a work of vast importance to the Church."

To make it this it should have been a correct work. This it is not. There are several errors in it—such as will prevent those in coming years from obtaining a correct history of the Conference. And to prevent confusion, I shall number them as I proceed:

1. In the list of those "received on trial" the names of Jacob P. Briggs and Thomas W. Hines are omitted; and J. P. Briggs' name is put among those absent on the first call of the roll.

2. In the list of those "re-admitted" the name of Willis H. Germany is omitted, and that of B. B. Whittington, who was transfered from the Ouachita Conference is placed in that list.

3. In the list of those "superannuated" the names of P. Cooper, John J. E. Byrd and B. J. Woodward are omitted, and J. R. Lambuth inserted twice.

4. In that of "supernumeraries" the names of John H. Massey, J. W. Adams and T. M. Ward are omitted.

5. In that of "locations" W. B. Johnson and G. J. Mortimer are omitted.

5. The reports of the secretary and treasurer of the Missionary Society are strange and incorrect. There are some strange things in the secretary's report: instance that "We have lost our constitution"!!! O, My!

The treasurer's report fails to give the correct amount by several hundred dollars. Instance Yazoo Circuit, Sharon District, Greensboro Mission, Sharon Circuit and Okitibbeha Mission. There may be several others; of these I know.

By such erroneous reports, our preachers are charged by some with retaining the money. I hope the treasurer will keep his figures more correct next time. This will save feeling, suspicion and much explanation. In 1855 the writer collected $178 for a Church in China for brother Lambuth, but has never been able to have it acknowledged in the report of the conference treasurer or general treasurer's report; and has been asked several times, what went with the money? I have had to refer to the treasurer's receipt, and state I gave written instruction for its course.

6. The committee memorializing General Conference on ministerial education are made to say, "That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1846 recognized a plan for Biblical Institutes, which had, in some measure, been introduced into the Church, by private enterprize or Annual Conference." If this had been the case, why memorialize the General Conference on that subject?

7. The report of the committee on education is ignored; and a report of the president of Centenary College, addressed to the president and members of the Conference, is all that we have on education. Why not publish the reports from the trustees of Sharon Female College and from other institutions also?

The committee on education mentioned the condition of several colleges and schools, and recommended Centenary College, Sharon Female College, Madison College at Sharon, the school at Port Gibson under President B. Jones, Mount Hermon, at Clinton, Miss., under under President Rice, Masonic Southern Female Institute under President Capers, etc.; but all except Centenary are kept out of the minutes. Why this?

8. In the obitnary of Lewis Garrett it is said he appears in 1840 as a superannuated preacher in the Mississippi Conference. It should be 1847.

"Unseasonable length" should be unreasonable length.

There are other defects; but for the present we desist.

We hope the next time the committee will be more particular.

A MEMBER.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

PROPOSITION FOR A NEW CONFERENCE.

There is a petition being circulated in several parts of the Mississippi Conference, requesting the General Conference to divide the Mississippi Conference by a line running east and west, that shall be agreed upon by a majority of our delegates representing us in said General Conference.

In connection with this, it seems to me that a Conference might be formed with about the following boundaries, viz:

The New Orleans Conference shall begin at the mouth of the Mississippi river, and run up said river to the northern line of Adams county, Mi., thence due east to Tombigby, thence down said river and the Alabama river to the Gulf of Mexico, thence around the coast to the place of beginning.

The Mississippi Conference then to extend north of its present boundaries one or two tier of counties, would make a very compact Conference, especially if her eastern boundary went to the Bigby river, which is very much desired by preachers and many members of the Church in said boundaries.

Within this Conference, as thus proposed, there would be about fifteen towns, where Conference could be supported well, and where the people are anxious to have Conference to meet.

NELSON,
Mississippi Conference.

FOUNDER OF THE TUSKEGEE, ALA.

We find in the Tuskegee Republican, the following account of the founder of that beautiful town, which is the seat of two of the best Female Colleges in East Alabama. The Republican says: "Col. Woodward, in a letter written to the Montgomery Mail, dated Winn's Parish, La., December 9, 1857, says: 'I often wish myself back in Alabama, and have as often regretted leaving Tuskegee. I was the founder of Tuskegee. I settled the place for the county site, or place for the court house, in 1833. I built the first house on that ridge though James Dent built the first house on the court-house square, after the lots were laid off. The day I made the selection, there was a great ball-play with the Tuskegees, Chunnenuggees, Chehaws and Tallassees.'"

"ANOTHER VETERAN GONE."—An old African negro named Cæsar, fell into the river a day or two since and was drowned. Cæsar, was a relic of by-gone days. He belonged to nobody in particular, and went pretty much where he pleased. He is said to have been at least one hundred and twenty years old! Mr. Onesphore Bernard, Sr., one of our oldest fellow-citizens, and who is fully reliable—himself some 70 years of age—says he remembers when a boy, that Cæsar was too old and infirm then to perform plantation labor. Cæsar was, without doubt, our oldest inhabitant.

Wat Baton Rouge Sugar Planter.

Local Intelligence.

N. O. SCHOOL OF MEDICINE.—At Lyceum Hall, 31st ult., a fine audience of ladies and gentlemen were present to witness the conferring of degrees upon thirty-three young gentlemen graduates of the New Orleans School of Medicine, and the accompanying ceremonies of the occasion. Hoffner's band had been engaged and stationed in the gallery to sweeten the intervals with music. The members of the Faculty, with their Dean, Dr. Fenner, and a number of distinguished, guests occupied the stage.

Award of prizes: a silver goblet to Sandford Perry, for his excellence in chemistry, and a silver goblet to M. Gralle, for his excellence in obstetrics—the prizes having been put up by Drs. Brickell and Crawcour, and the presentation made by Dr. Brickell.

Valedictory addresses by J. E. Keator, M. D., of the Graduates.

It will be seen that not only Louisiana, but nearly all the Southern States, as well as Cuba and California, are represented in the list:

List of Graduates.—S. L. Singleterry, Wm. Sandell, M. P. Quinn, E. P. Stubblefield, J. E. Keator, Sandford Perry, J. M. Scaife, A. A. Carruth, John Chandler, Louisiana; Thomas Haughey, W. P. Smith, J. W. Fitzpatrick, John T. Jenkins, Alabama; E. T. Gazley, Wm. S. Rodgers, Texas; S. Wallace, Arkansas; Joseph F. Glass, Georgia; George W. Pearce, Chas. L. Evans, W. C. Hicks, Mark Andrews, Dan'l. W. Wilkinson, N. R. Payne, J. W. Tottenham, Mississippi; A. J. Thompson, Wm. R. Capehart, North California; Richard S. Boyd, Thos. K. Powell, J. F. Allen, W. A. Stanley, Tennessee; Phillip J. Gibort, M. Gralle, Cuba; S. G. Sanders, California.

Such a deluge of rain as fell on the city Tuesday morning has not been equalled in our knowledge. The steps of the horse cars, we are informed, were under water at 9 o'clock A. M., and the steam cars made a noise like a double engined steamboat starting on a race up the Mississippi.

NORMAL SCHOOL IN THE FIRST DISTRICT.—A normal school will be organized this week in connection with the high schools of the First District. Candidates for admission must be at least sixteen years of age and possessed of qualifications and desires to become teachers. Credentials should be sent without delay to Mr. Wm. O. Rogers, 24 City Hall.

THE OURANG OUTANG QUESTION.

What next? We are constantly startled by announcements of new resources for the South. Here is one for the country at large. The N. O. Bulletin, 29th ult., is responsible for it. The Bulletin is a very grave and sedate paper and seldom jokes. Perhaps this is to offset the news about the opening of the African slave trade, very rife just now. Long ago we used to hear it said that monkeys could talk if they would, but were afraid white men would set them to work! The following is to be taken cum grano salis:

"Our readers know that in Borneo and Sumatra, Malacca, and the adjacent isles there is a quadrumanous animal known as the ourang-outang. This animal is so called because he so strikingly resembles man, and is wild. Now, it appears that a Frenchman by the name of Lumiertete in the year 1849 was shipwrecked on a wild and unfrequented coast of Borneo, and was compelled to make his way across a portion of the country to a sea port. In doing so, he went directly through a settlement, if we may use the term, of these animals. He saved nothing from shipwreck, it seems, except his clothes, a few biscuit, some dried meat and a little salt.

"Well, when he came in sight of the ourang-outangs he naturally enough started to flee for his life. In doing so, he spilt his salt, and instantly these creatures became so completely tame that he could do any thing with them he chose. The idea struck him that this circumstance might be turned to account. He concluded that these creatures might be domesticated and become of service to man. Some three years afterwards he found himself in New York and communicated his discovery, under an injunction of secrecy, to a number of gentlemen with a proposition to form a company for the purpose of going to Borneo for a ship load of ourangoutangs with a view to introduce them into the Southern States. This was in 1852. He was treated of course at first as a visionary; but he persevered and about two years ago he succeeded in enlisting the aid of a number of persons who determined to try the experiment. From what he saw, Mons. Lumierteto believed that the ourang-outangs, though unable to walk in an absolutely erect position, could plow and perform almost any other work usually performed by slaves, so closely do they resemble the human species. An association accordingly was formed under the title of the 'Borneo and Texas Ourang-outang Company,' as Mons. Lumierteto believed that Texas from its latitude and climate would be the proper place to debark the animals and make the experiment. The ship Lightning, Captain Feeler, was soon after dispatched, having Mons. Lumierteto on board, to Borneo. The men found no difficulty by sprinkling salt about on logs in securing a large number of the animals. So fond were they of this article and such an effect did it have upon them that they required very little of anything else to live upon. Suffice it to say that the Lightning has just landed in Texas her cargo, and the experiments already made go to show that beyond a doubt ourangoutangs can plow, dig ditches, haul wagons, pick cotton, and, in a word, do almost anything now done by slaves. Salt keeps them as docile as lambs, and they learn with surprising rapidity, appearing to comprehend signs as readily as slaves do the language to which they are accustomed. The ourang-outang is the Phytheus Satyrus, a quadrumanous mammal, and omniverous, though, as we said before, salt with a little other food, such as cereals, seems to supply all his wants.

"We forbear to comment upon the revolution which this remarkable discovery and scheme are destined to effect in the industrial resources of the South. We dare not trust our pen; the theme is too exciting, the prospects too sublime and wonderful for us to say more about them at this time. The developements of the scheme will be watched with intense interest and the ourangoutang question will become one before which all others will pale their ineffectual fires."

The Southern Literary Organ and Review is the title of a new monthly, edited by Prof. B. H. Capers, and published at Memphis, Tenn.—The specimen number for April is to be issued the last of this month.

HUMBLE USEFULNESS.—If the world seems not the better for us, it might be worse without us. Cutler.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS.

The religious feeling which pervades Northern communities seems at length to have obtained a foothold in Charleston, and there are at present four prayer-meetings held daily in different portions of our city.

The prayer meeting under the direction of the Young Men's Christian Association, at the corner of Wentworth and King streets, was well attended yesterday morning, and the audience deeply interested in the services.

The first of a series of prayer meetings at the Circular Church was held at five o'clock in the afternoon, and was largely attended.—Nearly all the Protestant denominations were represented by their Ministers.

In the evening, Cumberland street Church was filled by a large and apparently deeply interested audience, and before the close of the services the altar was crowned with mourners. These meetings at Cumberland, under the direction of Rev. James Stacy, have been in progress for a fortnight, and have gradually deepened in feeling and interest.

Charleston S. C. Mercury March 23.

BISHOP KAVANAUGH.

This Reverend gentleman, who has so eloquently and fervently preached "Christ and him crucified" in our city for several weeks past we are pained to learn, will leave for his far off home in a day or two, having preached his farewell sermon to a large and deeply interested audience on Monday evening. This faithful servant of God has planted many good seed in this community, which we trust will prove as the good seed, sown in good ground, bringing forth some thirty, some sixty and some an hundred fold. He has formed many warm attachments here which we hope may induce him to repeat his visit whenever he finds leisure from his arduous official and ministerial labors. We are particularly pleased to learn that our generous citizens made up and presented the Bishop with a purse of the "material aid" sufficiently large to defray all expenses contracted in visiting our city. May he long live and his "shadow never grow less."

Columbus (Ga.) Times, March 23.

General Intelligence.

SAILING OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH STEAMER.—The United States steam frigate Niagara has sailed from New York for England, to resume the attempt to lay the electric telegraph cable across the Atlantic. The Post says:

The Niagara is the largest ship in the world, (except the Leviathan, just launched at London,) but her movements, as she passed among the vessels in the river and through the ice, were as easy and quick and graceful as those of our river steamers. She is to take one-half the cable on board, and an English ship, (probably the Agamemnon,) will take the other half. The two ships will then proceed to mid-ocean, where they will unite two ends of the cable, and then one steaming for England and the other for America, will occupy but half the time in laying the whole which would be required in the attempt to commence at the English coast and proceed continuously to this. The chances of fair weather during the process will thus be doubled. The time occupied, after the vessels part from the starting point, will, if no accident occurs, be about seven to eight days in reaching the two shores. The Niagara will probably return to this country in August.

Her muster roll embraces 401 men, all told. Her compliment on the previous trip was 500 men, but experience demonstrated that such a number could not be comfortably accommodated in consequence of the great space required for the telegraph cable. The marine force consists of 50 men, and about an equal number belong to the engineer department. The remainder, including officers, are picked sailors.

THE GRAND TURK, or speaking more correctly his deputy, Admiral Muhammed Pasha, arrived in Washington on the 16th ult. He had not been at Willard's Hotel twenty minutes before his room was broken open, his trunks ransacked, and their contents strewn about, and his carpet bag cut fairly in two. Two thousand dollars in gold, and a crown set with gems, worth as much more, were undiscovered by the thieves.

On one occasion, while holding a kind of levee, (perhaps in New York, for such an incident as is related would be very natural in that meridian,) a lady was admiring an elegant Cashmere shawl worn by the Admiral. He gallantly took it from his shoulders and laid it upon her own to witness its effect, or perhaps momentarily to gratify her vanity. The shawl was a magnificent one, costing $4000 or $5000. Imagine the surprise of the Admiral, when she blushingly courtesied to him, and moved gracefully off with the coveted shawl as—a present!

REVIVAL IN A PRINTING OFFICE.—Prayer meetings have held held daily at one of the larger printing offices in this city since the 6th of March with increasing interest. At the commencement of the meeting there were but four or five converts, with but very few participants, and now the number ranges as high as twelve or fourteen. The interest manifested at these meetings is very great. One of the recent converts says: "What are we to expect when printing offices are converted into religious chapels? It is, as far as my knowledge extends, unprecedented in the history of any country, and will no doubt, astonish many a reader." As the meetings are held between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, some of the men go without their dinner for the sake of attending them.—N. Y. Tribune.

A NOVEL PLACE TO CARRY A WATCH.—Dr. Livingstone, the renowned African traveler, in recounting his difficulties with wet, soaking rains, and crossing streams, says: "The armpit was the only place for carrying the watch, for there it was preserved from rains above and waters below."

DOCTORS.—Within a few days the number of diplomas granted by the medical schools of Philadelphia is twelve hundred and ninety-eight. Five hundred and seventy-one of the recipients were from the South.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PRINTERS'-WAREHOUSE,

68 Camp street, next door to Picayune office, New Orleans.

PRESSES, TYPES, INKS, PAPER, CARDS, and Furnishing of every description. Agent for the sale of Robt. Hoe & Co's Cressets, and James Conner & Sons' Types.

Old Type taken in exchange for new at 9 cents per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.

Constantly on hand and for sale Printing Paper of the following sizes.

21 inches by 28	23½ inches by 31	24 inches by 38	26 inches by 40
22 inches by 32	24 inches by 36	26 inches by 37	28 inches by 42
32 inches by 44	36 inches by 48

AND OTHERS SIZES TO ARRIVE.

Also, Double Medium Book Paper, Manilla Wrappers, Note, Letter, and Cap Papers of every description; Cards, Card Boards, &c.

mar 20 1y GEORGE H. VINTEN.

TIRRELL & HERSEY,

BOOTS and SHOES,

BROGANS and HATS,

BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.

PLANTERS and MERCHANTS are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.

Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 38 Magazine street, New Orleans.

mar 27 tsep

ENGRAVINGS.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The above have just been received at the Depository, 112 Camp street, New Orleans. The size of these Engravings is 20 by 26 inches, printed on the best heavy English plate paper, the India proof copies being faced with fine India paper, delicately flesh tinted.

Price of plain copies.....$1 50 | India proof copies.....$2 00
Colored Copies..... 4 00. Nov. 14.

COMMERCIAL.

The New-Orleans Price Current, of the 31st, says:

The week opened with a good demand for Cotton at very full prices generally, though in most other commodities the transactions have been on a moderate scale and the rates for Sugar and Molasses have yielded slightly.—In the various articles of Western Produce the movements have not been to much extent; though for Indian Corn there has continued to be a good export demand.

Yesterday, by the arrival of the steamer City of Baltimore at New York, advices from Liverpool to the 17th were received, being four days later than those previously to hand. They report a dull Cotton market at Liverpool, with a further decline of an 8d in all qualities. Manchester advices were unfavorable, Breadstuffs and Provisions were still dull and Consols had slightly improved, being quoted at 96⅛@96¼.

Our last report (Saturday) closed upon a very unsettled market, consequent upon the receipt of the Niagara's advices, reporting a decline of a 16d at Liverpool. On Monday the demand was quite active and general, resulting in sales of fully 16,000 bales, and generally at rates somewhat more in favor of sellers. Yesterday a severe storm of rain and wind precluded all operations during the greater portion of the forenoon, but subsequently the storm moderated and some business was in progress when the decline of an 8d in the Liverpool market was reported. The sales, however, (a portion after the news) reached about 7500; making a total for the past three days of 34,000 bales. With respect to prices, they yielded but slightly and temporarily, under the Niagara's decline at the close of last week, and since then, with a moderate supply on sale, easier rates of freight and better rates of exchange, an advance of about ⅛ cent has been realized in the Good Ordinary to Middling grades, which advance was still maintained in the few sales that took place after receipt of the City of Baltimore's advices.

COTTON Arrived since 26th instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 13,682 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 9,147, Arkansas 2,770, Mobile 905, Florida ——, Texas 562; together 27,066 bales. Cleared since the same date, 26,003 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 30th inst. 420,332 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,320,313 bales, against 1,345,365 bales to same date last year; and the decrease to the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 188,808 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a increase to Great Britain of 6,914 bales, and a decrease to France of 45,831 bales, and to other foreign ports of 81,263 bales.

The Crescent of the 1st inst., says:

The Cotton market opened yesterday with an active demand and some 3580 bales were sold at full prices, when operations were stopped by the receipt of the Prain's advices, reporting a large decline at Liverpool, leaving the market unsettled and our quotations entirely nominal:

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Ordinary	8 @ 9	Good Middling	12 @ 12¼
Good Ordinary	9⅞ @ 10⅛	Middling Fair	12¼ @ —
Low Middling	10⅜ @ 11	Fair	nominal.

SUGAR—There was a good demand with sales of 2000 hhds at easy prices, Fair to Fully ranging at 6@6¼c ₱ lb.

Also, 300 hhds Cistern Bottoms at 2¼@3c ₱ lb.

Inferior and Refining	3 @ 4
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¼
Fair to Fully Fair	6 @ 6¾
Prime	6¾ @ 7
Choice	7¼ @ 7¾
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 @ 9

MOLASSES—Some 1500 bbls were sold at 22@24c for Fermenting, and 26@27 for Prime and Choice, with 750 half bbls at 26@30 ₱ gallon according to quality.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, March 31.

The Money market was rather active to-day. Long paper was in good demand, and sundry transactions are reported at 10@10½ ₱ cent. for A 1 and prime signatures. The banks, finding partially the supply of short paper giving out, are more willing to take signatures maturing in the fall, and under a wholesome competition the rates for this description will soon recede to 8@9 cent. and probably lower.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid		152@153
Louisiana State Bank		151@152
Canal Bank		120@121
Citizens' Bank		none for sale.
Citizens' Bank-Mortgage Stock		premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank		—@100
Union Bank	100	95@ 96
Bank of New Orleans	100	99@100
Southern Bank	500	500
Crescent City Bank		90@ 91
Bank of America		90@ —
Bank of James Robb		par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid		124@125
Carrollton Railroad	75	nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	100	70@ 71
Southern Pacific Railroad	25	nominal
Opelousas Railroad		6@ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid		7¾@ 8
City Consolidated Bonds		85@ 85
City Bonds for Railroads		74@ 75
State Bonds		no sales.
Louisiana Manufacturing Company		par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₱ cent. Bonds		72@ 75

SPECIE.

American Gold	par @ — ₱ cent discount
Californin Gold	$17 00 @ 17 50 ₱ oz
American Silver, old issue	2 @ 2½ ₱ cent prem
American Silver, new issue	1 @ 1½ ₱ ct discount
Mexican Dollars	4 @ 4½ ₱ cent prem
Five Franc pieces	₱ — @ — cents
Twenty Franc pieces	$3 75 @ 3 80
Sovereigns	$4 80 @ 4 85
Ten Thaler pieces	$7 70 @ 7 80
Spanish Doubloons	$15 30 @ 16 60
Patriot Doubloons	$15 50 @ 15 75
United States Treasury Notes	½ @ ¾ ₱ ct discount

PRESIDENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @ 2½ ₱ cent discount
Ohio	2 @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	2½@5 ₱ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @ 2½ ₱ cent discount
Illinois	3 @ 5 ₱ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.	par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	3 @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @ 2½ ₱ cent discount
North Carolina	3 @ 4 ₱ cent discount
Virginia	2 @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Alabama State	3 @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Texas	1 @ 2½ ₱ cent discount
Tennessee	2 @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Mobile	1 @ 1¼ ₱ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	8 @ 10 ₱ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	2½@5 ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	5 @ 7 ₱ cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	8 @ 10 ₱ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	40@50 ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi	par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	₱ acre—$1 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	₱ acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	₱ acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	₱ acre—85c

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BACON, Kentucky, per yd	— 13½ @ .. 14
East India	— 13½ @ .. 14
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½ @ .. 8½
Northern	— — @ .. —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 @ .. 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 @ 12 00
English, Fire	32 00 @ 36 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— 60 @ .. 70
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 10½ @ .. 11
Havana, good, pr g'a	— 12½ @ .. 13
—— inferior to middling	— — @ .. —
Java	— 19 @ .. 20
Laguayra	— 11½ @ .. 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 45 @ .. —
Tallow	— — @ .. —
Adamantine	— 20 @ .. 22
Star	— 18 @ .. 21
CORN MEAL, per bbl	— — @ .. —
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¼ to ⅝	— 5 @ .. 8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 @ .. 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¼ to ⅝	— 4½ @ .. 10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 @ .. 13
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ @ .. 13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¼ to 4-4	— 12 @ .. 15
Ticklngs, ¼ to 4-4	— 9 @ .. 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ @ .. 16
Itenims	— 7½ @ .. 16
Cottonades	— 12½ @ .. 25
Satinets	— 25 @ .. 75
Cullen Prints	— 5 @ .. 15
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	— — @ .. —
English	10 00 @ 16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 pr yd	— 19 @ .. 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 @ 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 37½ @ 4 45
Illinois and Missouri	4 40 @ 4 50
St. Louis City	4 50 @ —
FEATHERS, per lb	— 40 @ .. 45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 @ .. —
Mackarel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 @ 14 00
—— No. 2	10 00 @ 12 00
—— No. 3	8 50 @ 10 50
Herring, per box	— 35 @ .. 55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12 @ .. 15
Raisins MR, per box	2 50 @ .. —
Lemons	3 50 @ .. —
Currants, Zante	— 12 @ .. 12½
Almonds, soft shell	— 18 @ .. 21
—— hard shell	— — @ .. —
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 5 @ .. 25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 90 @ 1 25
Oats	— 40 @ .. 43
Corn, in ear, per bbl	— 55 @ .. —
—— shelled, per bushel	— 60 @ .. 60
Beans, per bbl	4 00 @ 5 50
GUNPOWDER, common, per keg	4 00 @ .. —
Sporting	7 00 @ .. —
GLASS, per box of 50 feet.
American, 8 x 10	1 80 @ 1 90
—— 10 x 12	1 90 @ 2 10
—— 12 x 18	2 80 @ 2 90
HAY, per ton	20 00 @ 22 50
HIDES, W. I. & Mex. flint, per lb	— 16 @ .. 17
Dry salted Mexican	— — @ .. —
Wet salted, heavy	— 6 @ .. 6½
Dry, country	— 12 @ .. 14
Kip and Calf	— 6 @ .. 6½
IRON, pig, per ton	35 00 @ .. —
Country bar, per lb	— 4½ @ .. 5
English, per ton	70 00 @ 80 00
Swedes, assorted	112 00 @ 134 00
Hoop, per lb	— 4½ @ .. 7½
Sheet	— 4½ @ .. 7
Nail Rods	— 6½ @ .. 8
Castings, American	— — @ .. 8½
LUMBER, yard prices:
Boards, pine, white, per M ft	25 00 @ 60 00
—— —— yellow	15 00 @ 20 00
—— Cypress	25 00 @ 40 00
Staves, p. c., per 1200	40 00 @ 50 00
—— white oak hhd. o	50 00 @ 80 00
—— French butts	40 00 @ 70 00
—— white oak headlag	1 00 @ —
LEAD, pig, per 100 lbs	— 7½ @ 7 50
Bar, per lb	— — @ .. 8
Sheet	— — @ .. 8½
LIME, Western, per bbl	1 — @ .. —
Thomaston	1 20 @ 1 50
MOLASSES, in the city, per gal	— 23 @ .. 29
On plantation	— 23 @ .. —
MUSS, rough, per lb	— 1½ @ .. 4
NAILS, 4d to 20d, per lb	— 4 @ .. 4½
PROVISIONS, per bbl
Beef, Mess, Northern	— — @ .. —
—— " Western	— 14 @ 16 50
—— " " half bbl	— 9 @

COURT.

death's relentless hand withered them all and bade her leave her kind companion, her three little children, her widowing parents devoted sisters, and an innumerable circle of friends to mourn the untimely departure of one so promising. How dark and inexplicable would be the dispensations of Providence without the truths of revelation to interpret them; and unfathomable as are the wise, but merciful designs of our heavenly Father, how consolatory to be assured that not only his own glory, but the good of those who put their trust in him is especially consummated. What else but this blessed assurance could solve the otherwise enigma of the loss we now record. What else but this could in a great degree relieve the poignant grief of surviving friends and impart comfort to that stricken husband, who has been called to drink the most bitter cup of domestic affliction, and to mourn, under the most affecting circumstances the orphanage of youthful children, and a motherless infant.

I visited her several times before her death, and conversed freely concerning her prospects beyond the scenes of time. I always found her entirely composed and sometimes very happy. She expressed a willingness—yes, rather an anxiety to depart and be with her Lord. She is gone but our loss is her eternal gain. May God sanctify this sad bereavement to the good of her family; and whilst around her dying couch they beheld the saint's triumph over her last foe, may it ever through life constrain the prayer from them all—Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

J. B. B.

Carrollton, March. 19, 1858.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions adopted by the class of '59, on the occasion of the death of Henry Kinna Wurtz Muse, of Louisiana.

Whereas, it has pleased an All-wise God, whose thoughts are not as our thoughts and whose ways are not as our ways, to remove from earth our classmate Henry Kirke White Muse, of Louisiana, therefore,

Resolved, That by his death we have lost one whose place cannot be supplied—one who, as a member of the class, was always true to its interests and good name, and one who brought to its aid in every necessity a clear head, a ready hand and an earnest heart—one who as a friend was affectionate, self-sacrificing and kind, and through every test faithful—one who as a man was without a peer in greatness of soul. His aspirations were of the noblest cast, meanness was his scorn. Gifted with talents that made him conspicuous among his associates, with qualities that made him eminently loved, his head was inferior only to his heart, his heart too great for the littleness of common humanity. One of whom the world was not worthy.

Resolved, That while by his death his class has lost an invaluable member, his associates an unwavering friend and the world a noble man, yet do we find consolation in the firm belief that the All-wise who has taken from the world one so eminently qualified for usefulness, must have nobler work for him above, which makes the change no loss to him, and in the hope that though he has been separated from his fellow students here to be co-worker with that innumerable company of angels, we, by emulating his virtues may yet be prepared to be with him there fellow-students of those mysteries which only they can learn who stand around the throne.

Resolved, That his most endearing monument is our memories, his epitaph is engraven on our hearts, yet that we deem it fitting as a manifestation of our love and esteem, and we do hereby resolve to erect a monument to his memory.

Resolved, That with the family so sadly bereaved we deeply sympathize, and for consolation would humbly point them to that God whom he reverenced.

Resolved, That his class wear the usual badge of mourning for ninety days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the afflicted family of our late class-mate.

Princeton, N. J., March 20, 1858.

OBITUARIES.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

"PLEASE GOD, LET LILLY LIVE."

BY MRS. SIGOURNEY.

The west had shut its gate of gold
Upon the parted sun,
And through each window's curt'ning fold,
Lamps glimmered one by one;
And many a babe had gone to rest,
And many a mother's breast,
Still lulled its darling care,
When in a nursery's quiet round,
With fond affection circled round,
I heard an infant prayer.

Yes, there it knelt—its cherub face
Upraised with earnest air;
And well devotion's heaven-born grace
Became a brow so fair;
But seldom at our Father's throne
Such blest and happy child is known
So painfully to strive;
For long, with tearful ardor fraught,
That supplicating lip besought,
"Please God, let Lilly live."

And still the imploring voice did flow
That little couch beside,
As if for "poor sick Lilly's" woe
It could not be denied;
Even when the balm of slumber stole
With soothing influence o'er the soul,
Like moonlight o'er the stream,
The murmuring tone, the sobbing strife,
The broken plea for Lilly's life,
Mixed with the infant dream.

So Lilly lived—but not where time
Is measured out by woes;
Not where cold winter chills the clime,
Or canker eats the rose;
And she who for that darling friend
In agonizing love did bend,
To pour the simple prayer,
Safe from the pang, the groan, the dart
That wounds the mourning parent's heart,
Lives with her Lilly there.

BOASTING.

Anna Strong was a sad little boaster.—Though she meant to speak the truth, she was so vain and thoughtless, that no one could believe her.

She always wanted a long lesson. She would say, "I can learn it all; it is not too hard for me;" though when her class was called out to recite, she was very often sent back to her seat to study.

If anything was to be done at home or at school, Anna would always say, "I know how; please let me do it," even if it was a thing she could not do at all.

Miss Eaton was Anna's teacher. One day she wished some one to point to the name of the cities on the large map, so that all the girls in the class might know where to find them.

"O, let me do it," said Anna; "I know how as well as can be."

"Yes, you may do it," said Miss Eaton; but Anna could not point to a single name that her teacher called.

"You are like a silly little pigeon I used to hear about when I was a little girl," said her teacher.

A bright-eyed little girl, raising her right hand, said, "O, please tell us about the pigeon."

"The story," replied Miss Eaton, "is, that when the pigeon first came into the world, all the other birds came and offered to teach her how to build a nest.

"The cat-bird showed her its nest, all made of sticks and bark; and the sparrows showed her theirs, which were woven with moss and hair. But the pigeon, walking about in a very vain way, and turning her head from side to side, said, 'I know how! I know how to build my nest as well as the best of you!'

"Then the black-bird showed his nest, which was fastened to some reeds, and swung over the water; and the turtle-dove said her was easier to build than all, for it was quite flat, and made only of sticks laid together. But the pigeon turned her pretty head as before, and said, 'I know how!'

"At last the birds left her. Then the pigeon found that she did not know how at all; and she went without a nest, until man took pity on her, and built a pigeon-house, and put some hay into it.

"Now, children, though the story of the pigeon is only a fable, and not true, yet you may learn from it a very useful lesson.

"Little boys and girls, who are vain boasters, are laughed at by others, and only deceive themselves. Like the silly pigeon, they say, 'I know how!' but they often find to their sorrow, when it is too late, that they do not.

THE PET CAT.

Many a little girl has a cat for a pet. A cat is a nice pet, and soon learns to love its mistress. It will rub itself against her dress, lick her hands, climb on her shoulder, rub its face against hers, and go to sleep in her lap.

Some people say that cats love only their homes, and do not care for those that feed them. Others say this is not so, and, indeed, I have heard many stories of the love of the cat for its master or mistress. One dear kitty, whose mistress died, went to the room, sat in the empty chair, and walked over the toilet mewing and crying pitifully. A day or two afterward the poor creature was found stretched out dead on the grave of her mistress.

PROFESSIONAL.

J. O. FUQUA, J. B. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena, and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans. References—Payne & Harrison; Byrne, Vance & Co., Broadwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw. Nalle & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 20-1y

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 126 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. D. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Ogilvie, Macauly, Broadwell & Payne, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6 2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,

RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,

HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Weak, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

JOSEPH C. BEALL,

ATTORNEY and Counsellor at law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.

☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. E. LAURANS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24 NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au2 1y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. C. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM. H. HARRISON

Payne & Harrison.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

R. L. WALKER, MONT. C. HUTCHINSON
New Orleans. Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y

T. T. TWITTY,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes., No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh1 4m

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has its start. There are no IFS nor ANDS, humor is humor, be it about it sitting some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, worm-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very angular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week—There is never a bad result from it, on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury Mass. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

R. H. READ. J. HOMART HEDGES.

READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.

DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street between Camp and St. Charles streets.

Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. H. ULLGIBBON,
Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $5 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $50.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb. 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday-School Union,"

No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,

KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.

The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.

Address, REV. E. H. ULLGIBBON,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union"
feb 27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

BUSINESS CARDS.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Cisterns, Lumber, &c.,

In lots to suit purchasers. Orders promptly attended to. Over Sash Mechanics' Exchange, 91 St. Charles st., shop, 355 and 357 Rampart st., First District, New Orleans. jnar20-1y

Holmes & Clauss.

GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au26

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.

T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82, Common street.

KEEPS SUPPLIED with frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted Stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS, of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.

Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.

L. W. Lyons & Co.,
83 Canal St. near Camp.
d12

BOY'S CLOTHING.

PER LATE ARRIVALS

A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices. L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.

MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

Dameron & Co,

IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,

HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
MILES OWEN.
jy11

BELLS I BELLS II BELLS III BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]

THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.

For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENELLY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16 1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)

THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coals. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,

ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Re-established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.

For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.

THE Subscriber furnishes LOWER than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamblin's &c., and full line of other American make of HARMONIONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS. HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
se26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 40 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.

All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!

C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.

WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.

PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors; Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.

The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES.

Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. aug8,

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprises the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing else where. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.

We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.

We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.

We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.

☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the tin coffee pot. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap29-6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116 CANAL STREET 116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES.
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
jan16-13t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.

CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual

DIRECTORS:

H. Huntington, Charles Boswell, Joh Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Keney, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.

R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandize, ships in port and their cargoes. Also, cotton in presses, gin and sugar houses; household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.

Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.

Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,

CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a26-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, } {A. MONTGOMERY.
P. P. LEWIS, of Rapides. } {GEO. C. RENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS.
jn19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships Steamers Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumery. Feb1 3

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

Intrinsic virtue alone could insure the success which this article has attained—for Rheumatism Salt Rheum, Burns, Bruises, Stiff Joints, or Galls, Sprain, Poll Evil, and Swellings upon Horses, it has no equal for man or beast. No person will be without it who has once tested its value. And with reference to the general estimation of the Mustang Liniment, I can cheerfully say that no article ever performed so many cures in our neighborhood as this. L. W. Sarin, Ridgefield, Ct. S. Litrin, Hyde Park, Vt. writes: "that the horse was considered worthless, (in case was spavin,) but since the free use of the Mustang Liniment I have sold him for $150. Your Liniment is doing wonders up here." Such testimony is reaching us every day. The half is not told. Every family should have it. Beware of imitations. The genuine article is sold by all respectable dealers throughout the world.
mar 27 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.

Rev. H. H. TIHWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Moral and Natural Sciences, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THATCHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE J. MCNELLY, M. A., Assistant in English Literature and Belles Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. BURROS, Instructress in English.
Mrs. AURELIA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. T. PORTER, Jr., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Farmer.
The examinations will be held by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instrument	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oils	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.

Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.

Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent. interest will be charged.

Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.

No deduction from tuition, except at the option of the Faculty.—No Rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal.

Books, stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.

Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.

Pupils are required to attend some Church upon each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.

All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.

The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.

The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.

All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE,

THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.

It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.

Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.

After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.
J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.

THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1856. FACULTY:

Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. BINGHAM, A. B., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WHEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS F. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CARNOCHE, B. L., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00

Board can be obtained at the steward's Hall or in private families, at prices ranging from ten to fifteen dollars per month.

This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.

Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.

For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep20

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.

THIS institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

THE latter half of the scholastic year of this institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than anywhere else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, is point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. B. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas, parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. G. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, La.

PRINCIPALS..... REV. WILLIAM McCALLEN, M. D.

THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and thorough. None but well qualified Assistants will be employed in the various Departments. The religious training of the youth will be an object of primary importance. The Bible will be a text book, but all sectarianism will be scrupulously avoided. The discipline will be strict, but mild and parental. Spelling, Reading, and Composition, so much neglected in many schools, will receive particular attention. The Principal, having graduated in a European University and having been engaged in teaching nearly eighteen years, fifteen of these in Kentucky and Mississippi, hopes by zealous attention to his duties to prove himself worthy of public confidence. The charges and conditions will be the same as formerly made here by Rev. B. Jones, whose property, so admirably adapted to educational purposes, the Principal has purchased. The first term will necessarily consist of only four and a half months, but the expenses—payable in advance—will be accordingly.

REFERENCES.—Hon. President and Professors of Centenary College, Jackson; and Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. Feb 20 2t

E. J. HART & CO.,
Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Commission Merchants,
77 and 79 Tchoupitoulas street, New Orleans.

INVITE THE ATTENTION OF DEALERS in Merchandize to their very extensive stock, which they offer at very reasonable prices. Their stock consists in part of Groceries.

COFFEE, SUGAR, TEAS,
Provisions of all kinds, especially SUGAR CURED HAMS, by the Tierce, MOLASSES, RICE,
MACKAREL, and other FISH in all sized packages and Hermetrically Sealed Cans, WHALE, LARD, LINSEED and CASTOR OILS, CLARET, CHERRY, MADEIRA and PORT WINE, STAR and SPERM CANDLES, ANISETTE, and other CORDIALS,
SCOTCH and PHILADELPHIA ALE, LONDON and PHILADELPHIA PORTER,
SPICES, TOBACCO direct from Virginia, SEGARS, Havana and German.
PICKLES, CATSUPS, PRESERVES, ALMONDS, RAISINS and other Fruits.
ROCK, ASSORTED and FANCY CANDY, TUMBLERS, FLASKS and other GLASSWARE,
LETTER and WRAPPING PAPER of all kinds, WOOL and WILLOW WARE, MANILLA CORDAGE, POWDER and SHOT, YEAST POWDERS, SNUFF of all kinds, and all other articles connected with the general grocery business.

Drugs.

SULPHATE QUININE, ACETIC, CITRIC, TART and other ACIDS,
AQ. AMMONIA, SPIRITS NITRE, IALS. COPAIBA, English and American BLUEMASS
CALOMEL and all other MERCURIALS, CHLOROFORM, BORAX,
CANTHARIDES, IPECAC, RHUBARB, DOVERS POWDERS EPSOM SALTS
COPPERAS, ROLL and flor SULPHUR, ADHESIVE SELECT POWDERS generally
PLASTERS, LUBINS and other Extracts, GELATINE,
GUM ARABIC, OPIUM, MYRRH, CAMPHOR, etc., ESSENTIAL OILS,
IODIDE POTASSE, IODINE, STRYCHNINE, MORPHINE, SALTPETRE,
SEIDLITZ and SODA POWDERS, SPONGE, PAINTS, PAINT and other BRUSHES, GOLD LEAF,
LABELS, PERFUMERY, BLANK BOOKS, STATIONERY and all articles used by dealers in Drugs.

White Lead. Agents for the Philadelphia Depot Manufactories, J. T. & W. WETHERILL, L. N. LEWIS,
Agents for LEWIS & BROS Colors and Zinc Paints.
SULPHATE QUININE, sold only in packages not less than fifty ounces,
MALT and HOPS, a constant supply for Brewers use. all-1y

Southern Machinery Depot.

PORTABLE STEAM ENGINES, from 2 1-2 to 15 horse power.
STATIONERY STEAM ENGINES, from 15 to 60 horse power.
PLANTATION SAW MILLS, to cut from 3000 to 10,000 feet of lumber per day.
COTTON GINS, from 14 to 36 inches, made of best French solid Burr Stones.
DRAINING PUMPS, to throw from 700 to 17,000 gallons of water per minute.
WELL PUMPS, to lift and force water from wells 100 ft. deep Rubber and Sole BELTING, HOSE, Iron and Lead PIPE, Carpenters', Blacksmith and Carriage Makers' LABOR SAVING MACHINERY; TINNERS' TOOLS, Circular, Sash, and Mulay SAWS, Solid FRENCH BURR MILL STONES, &c.

For prices and particulars, a pamphlet will be sent to any one desiring it. D. U. LOWBER & CO., 98 Magazine street. 17

IT IS NOT A DYE!
MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
World's Hair Restorer
AND
WORLD'S HAIR DRESSING.

THE ONLY PREPARATIONS THAT HAVE A
EUROPEAN REPUTATION!!

The Restorer, used with the Zylobalsamum or Dressing, eures diseases of the hair and scalp, and RESTORES GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL COLOR! The Zylobalsamum or Dressing used alone is the best hair dressing extant for young or old.

We take pleasure in presenting the following undeniable proofs that these are the best preparations either in Europe or America. They contain no deleterious ingredients—do not soil or stain any-thing.

GREAT BRITAIN.

REV. W. B. THORNELOE, Prescot, Lancashire, says, "Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum are perfect marvels. After using them six weeks, my extremely gray hair is restored to its natural color. I am satisfied it is not a dye."

HAYTI.

REV. MRS. E. C. ANDRUS, for many years Missionary to Hayti, now of Marlboro, N. Y. The climate having seriously affected her hair and scalp, says, "I have derived much benefit from the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum. I have tried various other remedies for my hair, but never anything that so materially and permanently benefitted me, as has Mrs. S. A. Allen's."

J. H. EATON, Pres. Union Univ., Tenn. "I have used Mrs. S.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 10. WHOLE NUMBER 373.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY APRIL 10, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE OFFICE—128 GRAVIER ST.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[CONTINUED FROM OUR LAST.]

Some months before I received license to preach, my wife was converted to God ut a night meeting, where the society met to prny together. She went on to meetlag with a brother and sister Anderson, at my request, and I remained at home to take care of the children. When she started I said, be suro to get religion before yon return. After they went on I went to secret prayer, and while praying for my wife that her soul might be converted, I had strong faith that she would return home happy in God. It was clear moonlight, and I was engaged in a little work, which I could see to do by moonlight. While at work I felt assured in my mind that God would convert my wife that night. I think my confidence was about as strong as that she would live to come home. The meeting contlaued late; I waited in great confidence until I heard them coming. I went nn the road to meet them and rejoice with my wife, which was even so. The moment she saw me, she broke out afresh, giving glory to God for what he had done for her soul. This was a happy time with us both. Now we were of one heart and mind in spiritual things as well temporal.

Not long after, our eldest daughter Elizabeth was brought to the knowledge of God, being only nine years of age. This was at a night meeting at my own house; all were satisfied, saint and sinner, that God had wrought a powerful change on the soul of the little girl. Her experience and language, while declaring what God had done for her, was convincing. She lived in the Church through life, married and died in great peace. Glory to God for all these blessings. I followed farming, worked diligently to supply my little family. My wife and children were all industrious, and all went on well. We had three meetings every week and sometimes four, one on the Sabbath and two or three at nights. There was a great excitement, many convictions and conversions, which was a means of bringing the people together to these meetings; for even the thoughtless would go to see new things and be caught in the gospel net. Some would come to laugh at others for their weakness, and they themselves be taken suddenly by the power of God, and thrown down, and lie almost lifeless for hours; then awake praying for mercy, and after a while arise praising God and exhorting all aroaad them who had not turned to God, to turn and live; and, perhaps, in a few minutes after their own conversion, join in prayer for mourners, surprising all who heard them, for they prayed like old, experienced people or preachers. God put a new language into their mouths, never spoken by them before. Every mouth of opposition was stopped. Children of seven or eight years old told of the wonderful works of God. The old told how a man can be born again when he is old. All this I have seen. Young, proud gentlemen and fashionable ladies would fall in the dust, cry to God for mercy, come through, and speak aloud with a boldness and language unknown to themselves before. This great work began, I think in 1800, to be very general, yet it had been experienced among the Methodist people from the time of their first preaching in Tennessee and Kentucky. It had never produced such a great reformation and general excitement until the year 1800. In the fall of the same year I witnessed at the camp meetings and the other meetings, such things as I had never seen before; but I had read of like or similar work in Europe and in America. Men of sound thinking and morals always acknowledged that the people were greatly reformed and made better under these extraordinary visitations, and every good man prayed, "O Lord, as it does so much good, send us more and more of it until the whole earth is filled with the knowledge of thy truth." But some of the mole-eyed opposers spoke evil of these things, and finding tares among the wheat, were for pulling up the wheat, because an enemy had sown tares in it. They were for clean work, cutting down young corn because there was some grass and weeds among it. Such men know little, reason badly, and do much harm. Very few of this class were made subjects of the work of grace in this revival. One of them is wiser than seven men who can render a reason. Perhaps some even of these may find mercy, as we are commanded to pray for all men.

A blooming, daring, full-faced young woman, Mrs———, came to one of our camp meetings, saying on the way, When I get there and they begin to shout and cry glory to God I will shout glory to the devil and see how they will like that. She came; the work began in the meeting house; she arose and stood on one of the seats to do what she had promised; but her mouth was stopped and she fell all along on the floor, lay some time like a dead person, after which she cried out, "I am damned, I am damned; hell is my portion; there is no mercy for me. I am gone, eternally gone, hell is my portion." Christians prayed for her; but she still affirmed there was no mercy. She remained in this state about twenty-four hours, in despair affirming there was no mercy for her, until her case really appeared hopeless. At last she began to pray for mercy, and God in great mercy spoke peace to her soul. This case had a salutary effect on many. I witnessed her conversion, saw her sometime after happy in God, and I hope she will prove faithful to him who brought her from the jaws of hell.

I saw a young man at this place, who had been very wicked: he was struck with a power which jerked him with great force. He commenced a kind of dance, looking and talking hopelessly, saying, I have often danced to please myself but now God makes no dance against my will. After some time he fell and was carried off by his friends. Many cases of the same kind occurred, no person being able to tell us why it was so, not even those who were exercised so strangely. All they could say was, they believed God had sent it on them for their good. Some were so opposed to the exercise that they would not go where it was, and some of them took it at home. The professors and non-professors had it frequently. It was not in consequence of new doctrine or excitement in the preaching of the gospel. I saw no difference in the present and former manner or doctrines, in the preachers or preaching; and all I can say about it is, I never felt it myself, but I believe God sent it on some for good. I felt resigned and said, thy will of the Lord be done.

There were some things among the people at times which appeared miraculous. Once we met at the house of brother Baker, who was confined to his bed by the epidemic or influenza; his case appeared to be dangerous. A prayer meeting was agreed upon, and while prayer was made for him that God would heal and raise him up again, he arose from his bed, praised God, saying the Lord had healed him and he was perfectly well. We continued sometime with him that night and left him as he said well and said afterward that he felt that affliction no more.

Another case: An old man, sixty years of age, was taken with the fever. Medicine failed; he and his family despaired of his recovering and sent for me to come and pray for him. I did so in the morning. He asked me to preach there that night, and the appointment was circulated and the house filled at early candlelight. I read, sung and prayed; then read the text: "It is appointed unto men once to die, and after this the judgment." I spoke of the certainty of death and judgment. I then pointed out the preparation for both, and while offering the atonement made by the blood and all-sufficient sacrifice of Christ, he began to praise God aloud in his bed. His friends and children gathered around him. I ceased to speak; as the house was filled with the praise of God. After a little time I went to the bedside; he reached out his hand to me saying, God has cured both my soul and body and I am now well and happy, and it was even so. His body was healed and his soul converted, all by believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. What was this? By what power was the man healed? All was done in an instant, the beholders being witnesses. The above is true, call it what you please. O God, I will praise thee—amen. This man's name was Williamson. At another time I met a congregation of people, who had assembled for preaching and praying where a young woman was lying and expected to die. Being somewhat of a stranger, the preacher, brother Copeland, who lived in the settlement, pressed me to preach. I thought I would take the same text—"It is appointed unto man once to die," etc; and while preaching the Lord was powerfully present and the young woman proclaimed aloud that God for Christ's sake had forgiven all her sins and healed her afflicted body. And brother Copeland told me afterwards that she was raised up from that hour and made whole. Jesus Christ is the same, yesterday, to-day and forever. All things are possible to him that believeth; but without faith it is impossible to please God. Many did not believe in those things, and spoke against those who do, calling them fanatics, etc.; and yet they visit the sick and pray for them that God may heal and raise them up again. What do they mean?

At another time a brother in Christ was brought to the door of death to all appearance; medical aid failed; he was deeply impressed that God would heal him if he would use the scriptural means pointed out by St. James. Accordingly he proceeded to obey in sending for such as the word of God designated. When we came where he was he told us for what purpose he had sent for us. I said, if thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. He said he did believe. We united in prayer for his recovery and he was strengthened in time of prayer to believe, and from that hour his pains and fever left him. He was very low and weak, but soon recovered health and strength, and professed to be made whole through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, afterward testifying that Christ had yet power on earth to heal; and why not if the promises have not failed? O, said a good brother to me, such things bring scandal on the Church when known in the world. What will the world say about us? I do not believe in miracles in these days. Said I, You preach in all your sermons, Only believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved; you now, this moment, thou shalt receive the forgiveness of all thy sins and have peace with God. If we believe not in miracles, why preach them in public in the pulpit, and then deny them in the world? The cure of a bodily disease is great, but that of the soul much greater; if we receive not little things, how can we expect the greater. If running with the footmen weary us, how shall we contend with horsemen; and if we receive not earthly things, how shall we believe the heavenly? But according to thy faith so be it unto thee. We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen. The prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise him up, and if he have committed sins they shall be forgiven him. These promises are yea and amen to him that believeth.

Again: it may be that God sees as man seeth not; it may not be his will to heal or answer our prayers in that thing or case then; but after the man has suffered awhile. The prayer of faith may be answered some time after; therefore we should be resigned and say "Thy will be done." It is said by some it cannot be proved that any are cured or converted in answer to prayer, that might not have been without prayer. But this is saying too much; for God has said, The prayer of a righteous man availeth much, and they that ask to them it shall be given, and he that believeth not God hath made him a liar. It is a damning sin to say that God is not true and will not do what he has promised us. O beware of this great sin laying the blame on Him and excusing ourselves. God cannot lie. Our faith may fail; but his promises can not fail him that believeth. Then let us repent for our unbelief and say, "Lord increase our faith."

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

PULPIT THEMES.

The Bible is a pandect of duty. It is the oracle that counsels man on his pilgrimage, that utters prophetic glory to the righteous and mouitions of warning to the wicked. It is a history that runs parallel with the grand eras of humanity, and which by prophecy autedates the epochs of the mystic future. It carries with it in its triumphal march down the succession of centuries the authority of God, and the attatus of his divine energy. Preserved by his providence in the past, it challenges all the revolutions of the future. No book has such themes to inspire human genius with as the Bible. It has been the inspiration of historians for centuries to equal the inimitable record of the Pentateuch. No lyre ever trembled beneath poesy so grand, stirring and pathetic as is recorded in the psalms of David, and no epic of antiquity equals the vaticinations of Isaiah. No philosophy nearly approximates to the teachings of Christ in his Olivet sermon. No logician ever pushed his processes to nobler conclusions than the apostle Paul. No human genius ever lifted a curtain behind which were such glories as John in his apocalyptic visions. In the Bible is spiritual and intellectual food suited to a great variety of appetites. The lover of annals will not find anywhere a history more faultless than the five books of Moses. This carries him back to ages so distant that the foot of tradition even falters in the dimness of early ages. Grecian mythology could speak obscurely of a Hesperides and its golden apples—of the fall of the Titans, and opening of Pandora's box; but this temple of historic truth dates its corner-stone with the birth of creation itself. The poet-fancy can ask for no richer strains than the sweet bard of Israel sings in his experimental, doctrinal, and prophetic psalmody. On the pages of none of the philosophers of the illustrious ages of Augustus, Alcibiades, and Pericles can the lover of wisdom read such ennobling precepts as are recorded by the evangelists, as they fell fresh from the lips of Christ. More highly favored was the Olivet audience when they listened at Christ's baccalaureate on the day of the world's graduation in philosophy, than ever were the students of the porch, and groves of sacred academies with such hoary preceptors as Aristotle, Socrates and Plato. With this great book, radiant in each syllable with heavenly light, the ministry of the word are entrusted. They are the stewards of the mysteries of God—far more honorable their ministry than the priesthood of Delphian oracles, and Dodonean oaks—far more sacred the trust than vestal fires to the virgin priestess. What then is the minister to preach? "Go preach my gospel," answers Christ. And is this enough for these heaven-commissioned proclaimers? Yes, it is the embodiment of all virtuous human thought. It is prophecy, sacrifice, type, projecting their shadows around the cross of Christ. Nature and Revelation are a unit, and to the minister belongs the whole range of intellectual pursuit. There can be no discrepancy between God's natural and moral world; for he who marshaled stars in order, laid the foundation of universes, regulated the laws of gravitation, and marked out the track of comet-flight, was the same as He who, fire-girt, delivered the law to Moses on Sinai, and who stamped with bloody seal salvation "finished" on the rolling mount of Calvary. But scientific, philosophical, and metaphysical truth will not convert the world unless it is leavened with Christ, as the only name given under heaven whereby men can be saved.—Philosophy did very well for Aristotle and Plato, science for Newton and Keplar, mechanics for Watt and Fulton; but nothing will do exclusively for a minister of the Church but the gospel of Christ. It may be well for him to know the delusions taught in the Koran, the Vedas of the Hindoos, the Zendavesta of the Persians, the myths of Rabbinical writers, the fables of mythology, the philosophy of the ancients, the pretensions of modern spiritualism, and the revelations of Swedenborg and Joe Smith; but the Bible must be the man of his counsel, the great text book of his profession. Let him know the horrors of Indian Suttees, the butchery of the Thugs, and the martyr-fires of Smithfield; but let him know more of the glories of Calvary's tragedy and the merits of its crucified victim. If the infidel ascends to the stars to make astronomy a witness against the Bible, let him mount to the heavens too, and, like the eloquent Chalmers, make every burning world declare the glory of God. If the skeptic rends the rock and enters the deep arcanum of nature to make its hidden mysteries witnesses against the truth, let him go there too, and, like Hugh Miller, make every rock testify to the divinity of his holy religion. Let him cull the choicest flowers of rhetoric, he can never weave too brilliant a garland for the brow of Christianity. Let him construct the graceful syllogism, he can never out-argue Paul. Let all that science, philosophy, poetry, genius, and eloquence can do for the minister be done—for never were themes so grand committed to man as he weekly carries with him into the sacred desk—but oh, if Christ be not in all, how tame, how spiritless, how unprofitable his ministrations to immortal souls! Christ then should be the grand center of pulpit themes, around which all else must revolve as satellites. The cross of Christ must be the central idea of every sermon, to which every thought should gravitate. Let no minister say, that the age demands rationalistic speculations, sublimated thoughts, scientific expositions and philosophical theories; for high as moralists and religious men have soared they have given us but a meager analysis of man and but a dim glimpse of his Creator. The Bible is replete with the most elevated subjects, and the world grows more and more impatient to hear them expounded. The convicted sinner will never get tired of hearing, "It is a faithful saying that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." The battle-scarred Christian soldier will never weary of hearing of the golden crown and the victor's palm. The Christian pilgrim is consoled when he hears of the "city that hath foundations," within the sacred enclosures of which "there remaineth a rest for the people of God." Men may hear too much rhetoric, philosophy, and science from the pulpit; they may hear too much wrangling and bitter controversy; they may hear too much of creeds, formulas, politics and ordinances; but about Jesus and Him crucified they can never hear enough. When a minister gets tired preaching the cross of Christ he had better leave the pulpit. When the people get tired hearing about Christ, they had better examine themselves to see whether they be in the faith. "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of Christ."

H. A. M. HENDERSON.

Newbern, Ala., March 25, 1858.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

NON-SECTARIAN METHODIST SCHOOLS.

Bro. McTyeire: I was much pleased with the communication under this heading from our worthy Bishop Andrew, in the Advocate of the 20th March.

I would not presume to enlarge upon this subject after the exhibitions of such a head, heart, and pen as Bishop Andrew's; but I may offer some thoughts collateral at least, which may have some bearing upon the subject of our Methodist schools.

1st. I believe it right to have it understood that religion, as the Methodists believe it to be from the Bible, is taught in our Methodist schools, academies, and colleges—not a narrow, selfish, self-righteous, Pharisaic religion, but a broad, catholic religion, which tolerates other evangelical religious denominations, and which ever utters the Publican's prayer, "God be merciful to me a sinner."

2d. I believe our people, the Methodists, should be urged, through the press and pulpit, to patronise our own institutions of learning, and not patronise those, Pharisaic, exclusive, self-righteous institutions in which their children are ever under par.

I need not elaborate the first proposition; all pious Methodists as much desire a true, correct, pious development of the moral and religious, as the mental endowments.

And I ask simply this question: Where will you find religion developed in our country? Will you go to the Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopalian, or Catholic institutions of learning? Or will you go to those of the Methodist, where they have their constant revivals? I leave every intelligent reader to answer the inquiry.

Under my second head I may say more. It is much to be regretted that our wealthier Methodists seek too much to place their sons and daughters in the fashionable institutions and into fashionable society, rather than in such institutions as shall best promote morality, religion, and fill useful stations in life. Hence we so frequently find them sending their children (more particularly their daughters) to fashionable schools. These, you know, are not Methodist schools, for they have none such, and we may hope never will have. Are our Methodists aware of the estimation in which their sons and daughters are held in these fashionable schools? A majority of the pupils in these institutions are taught from early childhood to believe that Methodists, or Methodism is a reproach—that it is only the common, the low and the vulgar who are Methodists. We know whereof we affirm. This sentiment may be heard from an adjoining apartment, or reported by some personal friend: "What! Miss A. a Methodist? impossible; her father is rich and stands high; it cannot be." And constantly, by direct and indirect remarks, is the religion of this Methodist pupil and its parents berated, and "the Church, our Church, is the only Church, and the aristocracy, the wealthy, and the elite are its votaries." This is not ideal but real, and has been learned as the sad experience of too many.

Shall we concede the point that we have not as good schools as other denominations? No, verily. We have institutions of learning, and not a few, equal in scholarship to any in the land; and we think we hazard nothing in the opinion that more attention is probably given in our Methodist institutions of learning to make thorough the scholarship, and less attempt at superficity and show than are to be found in any thing like the same ratio in the institutions of learning of other Christian denominations.

There is more of caste and aristocracy in the institutions of learning in this country than many are aware of. This spirit is hurtful to good citizenship; it is hurtful to religion and all the best interests of our country; and when incalculated in youth, is apt to mark all after life. Other denominations may patronise our institutions of learning with more propriety than we can patronize theirs; and why? We teach the necessity of a new birth and true and vital piety, and at the same time give the right hand of fellowship to all evangelical Christians of every denomination. Here we speak merely in a religious point of view. Not so with others, especially the Baptists, Episcopalians, and Catholics (the latter however, we do not class evangelical, but mention them because they too are sometimes patronised by Methodists.) The Baptists will not take the eucharist with the most pious of the land, unless they are immersed; and so they will teach Methodist as well as Baptist children. The Episcopalians do not admit the validity of any Church but their own, claiming to be in the succession, and they alone are right and all others wrong. This they teach Methodist children as well as their own. The Catholic, as a society, is one of exclusiveness in religion, having no sympathy or concord with Christians of the orthodox Churches whatever; believing in the purity and holiness of the Pope, and a part of whose religion is an eternal hatred and warfare upon Christianity. This they teach Methodist children as well as Catholic.

I, therefore, conclude that it is better for our children, our church, our country, and our God to patronise our own schools, those that are our schools indeed, where the fashions, dancing, &c., are not the highest considerations; but where all the graces of body, mind, soul, and spirit are taught in their highest beauty and perfection.

We hope our preachers and editors will emulate the example of Bishop Andrew, and constantly urge our people to duty in the premises.

March 21, 1858. ALABAMA.

OURSELVES AND OUR SAVIOR.

O, did we but know ourselves and our Savior! We are poor, but he is rich—we are dead, but he is life—we are sin, but he is righteousness—we are misery, but he is mercy, we are lost, but he is salvation. If we are willing, he never was otherwise. He ever lives, ever loves, ever pities, ever pleads. He loves and saves to the uttermost, all who come unto him.

The word of God must not hang, like a jewel only in the ear, but it must be cabineted and locked up in the heart as its safest repository.

Culverwell.

The sun is like God, sending abroad life, beauty and happiness; and the stars like human souls, for all their glory comes from the sun.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE FIRST LIGHT.

Williamsburg, La., March 14.

Mr. Editor: In the Christian Advocate for March 6, there is an article headed "First Light" signed "W," in which the writer endeavors to prove that the six days of creation were "days of four-and-twenty hours duration," in opposition to some previous writer who maintained that they were "years, or centuries, or even thousands of years." Now, will you allow me, through the medium of your excellent paper, to ask "W" What is it that governs our day of four-and-twenty hours? Is it not the revolution of the earth round her axis? Is it not her turning to and from the sun? But the earth itself was not even formed till the third day. How then could there have been any revolution? For, the two first days there was nought but "light, "shimmering, dancing, gleaming and sparkling upon a wide, chaotic waste of waters, till the Spirit of God moved upon the vast abyss and made it pregnant. Then the third day the earth, in obedience to the divine command, upheaved her maternal bosom, Venus-like, from the watery waste and blushed into verdant beauty under the smile of Omnipotence. Still there was no sun to turn to or from. That's "First Light" beamed in all its pristine loveliness on a sunless world, coloring with its rainbow hues the many-tinted greens of "grass, herb, and fruit-tree." What was that "Light?" Of what was it composed? Was it a blending of the primitive colors into one grand harmonious whole and magnificent diapason of shade? I know not. I only know that He who called into being pronounced it "good."

The fourth day arose, and "God said, let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven (for what?) to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days and years." The great Creator evidently then intended the "sun to rule the day and the lesser light to rule the night." But where was the meter for the twenty-four hours before the sun had an existence, or at least before it held its present situation with regard to our earth? What measured duration for the first three days? Surely not the sun. Glorious orb, though he be, even a Gheber must acknowledge he was powerless then: not one dancing sunbeam glinted across the new-born grass, herb or tree, or made the pale pearly dewdrop crimson at its own beauty, till the fourth day. Scripture tells us that "One day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." And the prophet Daniel in chapter ix, 25th, 26th, 27th verses, uses the word "weeks" frequently, though we know that term did not mean a period of seven days, but "weeks of years," each day symbolising a year. And might not Moses have used the word "day" with similar latitude?

As there was no earth to turn on its axis, no sun to turn to and from for the first three days, it certainly appears reasonable to conclude that the "evening and the morning" could not have meant a definite period of four-and-twenty hours. "W" asks, "What reason or necessity could there have been for such a great length of days and nights? Could not God have accomplished this work in a short as well as a long time?" Most certainly the Omnipotent could, had He so willed, have called this world into being in the twinkling of an eye. And allow me to ask "W" Why He took six whole days to do what He might have accomplished in a moment?

We only know that it is God's sovereign will and pleasure to work by means; and what we finite creatures ought to do in contemplating the works of the Infinite is, humbly to bow our heads and say, "Even so, Father, for so it seemeth good in thy sight;" and "where we can't unriddle, learn to trust."

J. C. R.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

ANOTHER WORK ON BAPTISM.

Messrs. Stevenson & Owen have in press a new work on the subject of baptism, entitled "Theophilus Walton, or the Majesty of Truth; being a reply to Theodosia Ernest," by a member of the Alabama Conference.

I have had the opportunity of an extended examination of the manuscript of this work, and I believe it a valuable addition to our large stock of works upon this well worn subject. It is a thorough, searching, and learned work, bringing forward more facts not in the possession of the many, than one would have anticipated upon so hackneyed a subject as that of baptism. The author emphatically carries the war into Africa, by the use of weapons which Baptists are so fond of using in discussions. He shows by the testimony of leading Baptist historians and writers that many of their favorite hobbies and positions are utterly destitute of foundation.

The preposterous claim of an unbroken succession of immersions and of the antiquity of the Baptist Church are effectually disposed of, upon testimony that will be found impartial. In doing this, the author shows clearly how little reliance can be placed upon the statements of zealous immersionist partizans upon the simplest questions of historic fact. The author of "Theodosia," if he has ordinary sensibility, must feel himself a dishonored man; and that his personal reputation, to say nothing of his literary character, will need repairing. One can hardly forbear pity even for an opponent, whose ignorance or fraud is laid bare so unmercifully. The reader will conclude, we judge, that he would have done better to have kept to the work of cleaning teeth than he has in this attempt to free immersionism from its difficulties.

Some of the favorite canons of criticism and interpretation adopted by Carson, Gale, etc., and used by "Theodosia," are taken up and carried to their results, and their utter fallacy and absurdity shown. The author has taken nothing on trust where the original sources of information were within reach, and he has spared neither labor nor expense to procure them.—The disciples of Mr. Carson, and the admirers of "Theodosia," will find some of his translations and proof-texts placed in a disadvantageous light—and now and then, a little party fraud pointed out.

We recommend to our brethren, wherever "Theodosia" has been circulated, to put this work in the hands of the community. We predict it will produce a calm.

J. H.

Nashville, March 25.

PULPIT PRONUNCIATION.

The Presbyterian Banner and Advocate says: "The good old possessive pronoun, my, is losing its distinctive enunciation, being changed into the objective mo, or, worse still, into a short mi and made to rob the word which follows it, of a letter. Thus, we have 'mis-oul,' 'min-eart,' 'null-ove,' 'nig-od,' instead of my soul, my heart, my love, my God."

One man's misconduct may lead a host into a snare; beware how you follow man: "The prudent man looketh well to his going."

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

YOUNG PREACHERS IN CHARGE.

Mr. Editor: Permit me, for the first time, to speak a word through your paper against an evil as I conceive, of which I have felt the effects, that of putting young men in charge of work before they are ordained. I do not intend to question the wisdom of the Conference, nor of the Bishop; but I think it an oversight—one which prevents us from doing what is required of us.

1st. We can not solemnize the rites of matrimony, which is sometimes very necessary.

2d. We can not administer the Lord's supper. In case the Presiding Elder should not come to quarterly meeting it is a complete failure, which often causes complaints to arise in the society.

3d. We can not receive a member into the Church, because the Discipline says no member shall be received into full connection until he or she be baptised, and we cannot administer that ordinance. If a member be on his death bed and wishes to be baptised, we must send 40 or 50 miles for the P. Elder or the preacher of another circuit; and before they can reach the place the poor soul likely is ushered into eternity without receiving that ordinance which Jesus Christ hath said those to whom we preach must receive.

4th. It has a great tendency to impair our usefulness. The continual cry is, "Our preacher is not ordained: I cannot see what the Conference means by sending us preachers that are not ordained."

By this means the young man learns that his labor is not appreciated. He feels like David did when he fled from Saul and left his sword at home—he has nothing to fight with; or as Samson, shorn of his locks, he becomes weak, and very soon he finds the Philistines upon him; and very often it is the case he is taken captive. Then, if he does nothing, as might be expected, the people are down on him, and the Conference is down on him. Likely the next conference year he is sent to the swamp, and the next locates; so away goes the most brilliant intellect that we have into obscurity just by exposing it to the frost while it was young.

Many of my young brethren who see this article will respond amen; for many of them have felt the smart of it.

M. D. FLY.

HOSPITAL FOR SLAVES.

Dr. Sam. Mitchell, of Lake Boliver, Mississippi, in a letter to the Vicksburg Whig of the 10th, suggests to planters the propriety of erecting hospitals on their plantations for their sick negroes. The subject is worthy of consideration by all large slaveholders. Dr. M. gives many reasons why such should be provided, and the character of the buildings. We will quote his language:

Some of the reasons for building hospitals are: First, a negro can be made more comfortable; second, when convalescent, can have a regulated diet, &c.; third, the physician has a much better opportunity to succeed; fourth, can have a practiced and disciplined nurse; fifth, when two or more are sick, saves time and trouble to the physician, and he knows where to find them; sixth, no cases are dismissed until cured, hence chronic cases are avoided; seventh, chronic cases can be more successfully treated; eighth, the ministers can visit them without visiting every filthy cabin, &c. In fact, all the reasons in favor of these, and their usefulness is universally admitted. Like everything else in this new country, it requires only to get them in the spirit of a thing, and they will build hospitals worthy the name.

With regard to the plan of a hospital, not much need be said; there should be from three to six rooms, according to the number of negroes. Four rooms are necessary, one for negro men, one for women and children, one for nurse, one small one for medicines, &c. They should be arranged so as to be perfectly ventilated, or made almost air tight, the rooms should be large and very high, the most important is management of them, &c. A good and trusty nurse. The hospital should be well paled in and gates under lock and key. No communication with any outside negroes should be allowed unless by special permission.

STOP MY PAPER—TIMES TOO HARD.

The American Presbyterian thus treats this complaint:

"I like your paper very much, but I must stop my subscription: times are too awful hard," writes a subscriber to us; and there is nothing left for us but to obey the order of the good man. His paper is stopped.

But as we do not wish the notion to be a popular one, let us look at it for a moment.

What has he saved? Two dollars and, with the postage, twenty-six cents, just about what he would give for a boot, (not a pair,) a hook, a hat, (not a good one either,) or a few pounds of butter.

What has he lost? His religious paper for a year. Its fifty-two visits, its instructive correspondence, its hints and encouragements, its columns of news from the Old World, its reports of the progress of Christianity abroad, of its trials and difficulties, its records of revivals at home, its stimulating appeals, its notices of the movements and controversies of the day, and its narratives for the family circle. The missionary societies to which he contributes will hold their anniversaries and render their reports, but he will not hear them. Great religious movements in China or India may thrill the Christian world, but they will not reach him. The Churches of other towns or States will be revived, but the news will not awaken him. "The times are too hard," and to save the price of that one boot, he has lost it all.—His family, too, will miss the weekly visits of their paper; but the times, the times are too hard. We are sorry for it.

Newspaper Honesty.—The editors of the Rochester (New York) Democrat, state that during the twnty years that that paper has been published, there has accumulated as indebtedness on its books in subscriptions of $50,000:

This sum is, in itself, a sufficient fortune for any reasonable man. And the statement shows how little honesty is considered necessary by men in their intercourse with newspaper proprietors, as though to cheat a printer were not as great a crime as to cheat a shoemaker, or a grocer, or a haberdasher.

This office has some thirty thousand dollars owing to it, and owing too mainly by men who can pay what they owe without missing it. If one desires to know who are the most honest men in the State or city, let him get a peep at his newspaper accounts.—Albany Tribune.

Keep your temper in disputes. The cool hammer fashions the red-hot iron to any shape needed.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

[illegible] us so per annum in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1859.

We beg to remind the preachers again of the resolution of the Conference to take up collections [illegible] the expenses of the delegates to the approaching General Conference. The amount should be in the hands of the nearest delegate to you, by the 20th of April.

The Widow's Mite.—A letter, inclosing a twenty dollar bill, dated April 8, but without any pointer to its writer or the location from which it emanates, has been addressed to and received by the editor. The donor says: "I leave it to your judgment how to dispose of it, among the many claims of charity and benevolence." It is sent "armed by faith and winged by prayer."

If the writer will peruse the forthcoming annual report of the Missionary Society, the destination given it will be seen.

Missionary Bible Society.—The M. E. Church is said to contribute one-fourth of the funds of this [illegible] society, but to have only one-[illegible] of its management.

Growth of the Tennessee Baptist.—The Methodists have for a long time kept this man and his paper before the public—helped him to notoriety and it to a large subscription list. Despite his known bad qualities and temper, the opposition of our Church gave him sympathy and strength in his own. Methodists having, at last, hit upon the sound policy of letting the Tennessee Baptist alone, Baptist papers are after the editor and his sheet. The Southern Baptist, [illegible] speaks of "the Inquisitor"—"the virus of his spirit." "The bubble is bursting; the noisy humbug has nearly collapsed."

The desperate condition of Mr. Graves and his partisan[illegible] excites our compassion. We have never beheld a set of men in a more forlorn and distressing extremity. When a few months since we took a just occasion to denounce the impudent pretensions of the Inquisitor, we did not hope so soon to see the denomination marshalled against him and thundering its indignation in his astounded ears."

Rev. Liberian Bishop.—An African correspondent of the Baltimore American says: "The Liberia Conference, which has just adjourned, elected Rev. Francis Burns as their bishop. It was a judicious election, as Mr. Burns has been superintendent of the Methodist mission in Liberia for a long time, and no one is better acquainted than he with the condition and wants of the people. He expects to visit the United States during the ensuing summer, for the purpose of being ordained."

Wesleyan College, S. C.—The catalogue for 1858 is before us. Rev. H. A. C. Walker, President of Board of Trustees. Faculty—Rev. W. M. Wightman, D. D., D. Duncan, A. M., Rev. W. Smith, D. D., J. H. Carlisle, A. M., W. Dupree, A. M. Two classes in the history of this institution, have been graduated. The present Senior Class numbers 18, the Junior 16, the Sophomore 18, the Freshman 14. R. W. Boyd, A. M., is principal of the Preparatory Department, which is well patronised.

No college in the South, whether state or denominational, can show an abler faculty.—Social surroundings and outside educating influences, like those of Spartanburg, S. C., are no small advantage to students. The State University, at Columbia, will ultimately pale before Wofford in extent of patronage and influence, as already it does in the scholarship imparted and the order maintained. Those two, planted in generous soil, are a test of great principles. They are looked to, from without the limits of the state, with growing interest.

Death of Rev. B. Hodges.—By the Mississippi Baptist we are informed of the death of this eminent minister of that Church. He died on the 19th ult. in Richland, Mi., at the residence of Col. C. Coates, of typhoid pneumonia, after several days' illness.

Masonic.—The Tuskegee, (Ala.,) Democrat, 1st inst., has this announcement:

"The Rev. Mr. Cotton will preach a Sermon to the Gentlemen only, of Tuskegee, on Thursday night, 6th inst."

A VALUABLE ADJUNCT.

We have received the first numbers of a very neat little sheet bearing the title "Centenary Casket," and published by the Associated Principals of the Male and Female Institutes in [illegible]field, Ala. The editorial management is confided to Miss Louise D. Ellis, aided by the members of the Senior Class of the Female College. They have had a manuscript semi-monthly at Centenary for some years.

Also the first number (date March 15) of the "Messenger and Port Folio," published by the young ladies of the Columbus (Mi.) Female Institute and edited by Misses Helen Cozart, Mary O. Harris and M. Tabb.

School girls are naturally averse to attempts at original composition. Every teacher knows how difficult and yet how important it is to get [illegible] interested in this exercise. The expedients which succeed so well with the smaller [illegible] fall with those who are able to write [illegible] fluency.

[illegible] periodicals are valuable adjuncts to a [illegible] practical education, and show a spirit of [illegible] enterprise in that high line of effort, [illegible] to be commended. They may be expensive, [illegible] music lessons and lessons in drawing, embroidery, etc.

New Orleans and Jackson Railroad.—The [illegible] passed over, for the first time, the entire [illegible] Orleans to Jackson, Mi., on 31st [illegible].

A [illegible] collect is now going on, in the Board of Directors, whether the road shall stop [illegible]ton, Mi., or be continued. A special committee, appointed on the subject, submitted majority and minority reports on 6th inst. The former for immediate extension, the latter for stopping at the present terminus for awhile. The Board meets to-day to decide.

ANGELS REJOICING OVER MEN.

These higher and sinless beings, elder children of our Father in heaven, are revealed in the scriptures, taking a deep interest in human salvation. In announcements, messages, rescues and ministerings, they frequently cross the path of redemption. They are always eager spectators of the unrolling panorama, desiring to look into these things. To them, in the history of His Church, God is making known glorious things of His holiness, and love, and mercy, and justice, and wisdom, and power.

It is consistent, when Jesus tells that there is joy among the angels, when one sinner repenteth.

Their pure and large spiritual perceptions have gauged the capacities and capabilities of an immortal soul, the depth of perdition, the height of bliss and the long duration.

They, dwelling in His presence, have somewhat of that spirit of love in which the scheme of redemption originated and is carried on.—Therefore, they joy in its achievements, in like manner, though in greater measure, with good men.

Perhaps their direct ministry is involved and they have a personal interest in success—adding stars to their crowns—gathering gems from earth. They grudge the neglect of so great salvation.

Empires rise and fall; but these are of small concern in their eyes compared to the feeblest member of Christ's spiritual body. Earth has been baptised in Jesus' blood: it is the theater of great grace, displayed in conformity with a law holy, just and good, in saving rebels.

Repentance! Not that pause of a sinner, startled by some providence or entering word, and then keeps on his way. Many so repent. It is unavailing. But the repentance angels rejoice at is the turning and returning—the act suited to the conviction—the setting forward to the Father's house.

Note.—Angels put great stress on "a desire to flee the wrath to come," instantly and properly manifested. The imminency as well as dreadfulness of the danger appears to them as men do not perceive it, and we know that sympathy is excited by human peril in proportion to its ascertained imminence. The sinner's steps take hold on hell. His feet are sliding now! He is lost! No! the heart begins to melt! Angels see it! The tear of penitence starts—he shall escape—he saved! Angels rejoice.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS.

STATE OF CITY CHURCHES.

There has been a series of religious meetings for a fortnight past in several of the city churches.

We presume a strict computation would show that every place of meeting—from chapel to cathedral—was full on last Sunday. Being Easter Sunday, the Roman Catholics, Lutherans and Episcopalians made it a high day and holy. Jesus and the resurrection were the themes of nearly every pulpit.

The prayer meetings held on week days at the Room of Young Men's Christian Association, from 12 to 1 P. M., have been seasons of grace.

The daily morning prayer meetings, in the Methodist Church, (Carondelet street) from 8 to 9 A. M., have been well attended by our business men and others. The ministers and members of other denominations have there been much united. Some conversions have been reported.

At the Presbyterian Church, on Lafayette Square, 5 o'clock evening prayer meetings have been held with interest; also religious services of a very profitable character at the Prytanea street Church.

Judging from outward appearances, the cause of evangelical Christianity was never in so prosperous a condition in the Crescent City, as now. The several denominations are well supplied with churches—have large congregations and flourishing Sabbath schools, and their pulpits are supplied with acceptable and able pastors. A great door and effectual is open, but there are many adversaries.

TWO FLINGS.

The Picayune of Sunday morning (April 4) publishes a sermon by the Unitarian (or Universalist) minister of this city. The Picayune is an organ. We hope the people of this country will find it out, and that in circulating it they are promoting the Unitarian or Universalist creed. This passage of the sermon points unmistakeably:

"Would to God that a revival might sweep over this community; not a revival of men's prayers and loud church psalmody, but a revival of reform and love, that should burst from every temple of the living God, and from the beastliness and ruin that grows more inveterate and hopeless with each careless hour, snatch the immortal forms that lie there sickened and corrupt."

"Not a revival of men's prayers!" Why not? Gentlemen of that cloth are in the habit of insinuating, without the courage to say it directly, that as soon as people begin to pray they become hypocritical, cant-ish, and neglect mercy, justice and charity. Why this distrust and discouragement of men's prayers? They are dependent and sinful, and have need to pray. When they confess their sins and draw nigh to God in prayer, "a revival of reform and love" follows. Only upon such antecedents does true reform follow. Wherefore, then, these sinister flings and invidious suggestions? Jesus continued all night in prayer to God. Of Saul it was said, as a sign of thorough reform and the beginning of a new and earnest life—"Behold, he prayeth." Christians are exhorted to pray everywhere—without ceasing—always. Daniel prayed three and David seven times a day, accompanied doubtless with loud psalmody. It would be honest and more noble, to come out, squarely against the Bible. By doing so at once and boldly, the Picayune and its preachers would confer a service on christianity.

The Courier, (April 4) has this characteristic editorial. We make no comment.

"We are about to stand a revival. As we stood the crisis gallantly, we trust we may endure every other difficulty.

"There is much efficacy in prayer. Not those stereotyped ones muttered by the proud and genteel, or those ungrammatical ones groaned forth by itinerant preachers, but in those that come from a pure and sincere heart. Let us have a revival on genuine anti-humbug principles."

Our readers will have set down the Courier, before this, as a low flung sheet. As for the Picayune, it had been observing an awkward propriety for some time, but last week began its old tricks again by publishing a letter from one Belle Brittain, that scandalized even this community. A travelling scribbler (quiet by the way and a favorite correspondent) on a steamer, finds nothing in the cabin to read but the Bible, and falls to criticising that licentiously. Moses was the son of Pharaoh's daughter—That's how she came to find him so easy—she put him in the ark! The creation of Adam and Eve, according to the holy scriptures, is set down as a fiction to quiet the curiosity of a vulgar and superstitious age.

We mean that Christian people shall be informed of some of the adversaries evangelical religion has to contend with here, and such as admit those papers into their families, or sustain them, may know what they do thereby.

"THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH."

MILK SICKNESS.

A convention of seven bishops, seven presbyters, and six laymen, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, met last May in Montgomery, Ala., and located their proposed university on Sewanee Mountain. Several places were candidates—Benlomond, Sewanee and Lookout—of the Mountains: Atlanta, Huntsville and Cleveland—of the table lands. The popular majority was for the table lands; but by Episcopal influence the Mountains carried it, and Sewanee was selected.

A writer in the Columbus (Ga.) Inquirer signing himself "Churchman," shows that there is death in the pot. The location, he thinks, is unsatisfactory; more—that it will ruin this stupendous enterprise.

Typhoid fever and chills prevail there. Every high place is not a healthy place and this turns out most unhealthy of all. The features of the place, correspond exactly to the signs which Lord Bacon notices as indicating sickly localities: these are high bluffs with fresh water oozing from them. This is one of the most striking features of the Sewanee Mountain. "Eyes of water," abound on the margin of the mountain. Many of these are running springs, while others are capable of being made so. They are indicated by soft wet depressions in which water-plants grow.

But that is a trifle. A disease was mentioned before the convention by Mr. Barnsy, a scientific gentleman, as pertaining to Sewanee, so new, that the bishops and clergy gave it little heed. It is the milk sickness. Says this "Churchman:"

"Death lurks in every blossom; certain, secret death, in its most terrific form, rankles in the fattest portions of its soil. Yes! where the earth is carpeted and shaded with luxuriant vegetation, where the invitation to man and to beast is most enticing, there it is. A distinguished scientific member of the Board of Trustees, pronounced its plague, 'Milk Sickness,' to be 'telluric.' It was clearly proved before the Convention in Montgomery, that this fearful disease not only exists on the Mountain, but that it abounds there to such an alarming extent, that the terrified people of the county actually petitioned the Legislature at its last session for relief. This disease was so new to most of the members of the Convention, that they were entirely at a loss how to treat it: since the adjournment of that body; its character and effects have become a subject of general inquiry."

Doctors have written on it and we present some of the symptoms and effects. It sometimes is called "The Trembles." The disease first occurs among the cattle, and the first symptom is the appearance of weakness in the limbs of the animal, which continues until they stagger, emaciate and die. It is called the "milk disease," because if any one eats of the milk from the cow that is affected with the disease, or the butter made from the milk of such a cow, or the beef of a creature so diseased, the person will soon be sick with the same sickness; the individual becomes weak, and trembles, followed by incessant vomiting, prostration and death. As they say he dies like the cholera. It would seem that the cattle get the disease from some poisonous plant, and that through them it is communicated to the human system. When they have the least suspicious that any of the stock are becoming affected with it, they start them off upon the run, and if they show weakness, they are satisfied that it is upon them, and govern themselves accordingly.

"In man," says Dr. Dunglison, "the disease is generally believed to be induced by using, as diet, the flesh or milk of animals infected with it;" and it is affirmed by Dr. Graff, that "butter and cheese, manufactured from the milk of a diseased animal, are the most concentrated forms of the poison, although they may possess no appearance, smell, or taste, which distinguish them from the healthy article." "The cream," says Dr. Graff, "ordinarily sufficient to be added to the coffee drank at a single meal, is said to have induced an attack."

This writer thinks it unfortunate that "The Trustees of the greatest School that has ever been projected in our country have made choice of the most deadly locality, of a notorious infected district as the site of their great institution—and this at a moment when the panic-stricken inhabitants were lifting up their hands and imploring relief. Surely in the face of these facts, it is not too much to say that if the University be put on Sewanee, it will be dead, before it can discern vitality enough to be said ever to have lived."

Verily, every elevation is not safe. The bishops, following their high-church instincts, led the convention disastrously, to the mountains. The low-church men, in that as in some other questions, were wiser.

We hope there is time and opportunity to reconsider the location, without injuring the prospects of the University.

N.B.—This is not the "Southern University" located by the Alabama Conference, in Greensboro,' Ala.

God denies a Christian nothing, but with a design to give him something better.

METHODIST PRESS.

The North Carolina Advocate calls to duty—let the Church hear. [If you want Sabbath School books, they are to be had at the depository, 112 Camp street.]

In most of our circuits, owing to our uncomfortable churches and inclement season, the Sabbath Schools are often left to languish and die, during winter. Thus the work of reviving them has to be an annual effort. The season is at hand to revive them. We entreat our preachers and people to embrace the earliest opportunity to set them agoing. Sabbath Schools properly conducted are the hope of the church. We know the difficulties and the prejudices in the way of success, but they must be overcome. Inefficiency is often pleaded as a bar to making an effort, but still the thing must be done. God, the Church, our country and our duty to the rising race, demand it at our hands. Better call the children together every Sabbath, if nothing else be secured but their participation in the songs and prayers and the reading of the Holy Scriptures.

The editor of the Chicago Advocate attended the Missionary Anniversary in Washington—he says the Corresponding Secretary made one of his ablest addresses and that he speaks and preaches more effectively now than he did five or six years ago. His youth is renewed—he has more of his early vim—more of his youthful fire. The contributions made during the anniversary were a large increase upon last year. He thus describes him, in a mood:

"There is this peculiarity about Dr. Durbin's sermons and addresses: when in his successful moods he seems not to see his audience—not to look into the "upturned sea of faces" before him—but to be looking upon a filing cavalcade of facts, doctrines, and appeals. That intensely excited eye don't see you—don't see that excited throng—don't see that crowded gallery—it sees a panorama moving, scene after scene, as the mighty canvas sweeps along, and there he stands, looking upon it so intently that his strained eyeballs seem ready to start from their sockets, and nothing but that picture can be describe—nothing but that scene—nothing else now; by-and-by another one will stand out, then he will describe it, but there will be no blending. This seems to have been the mode of prophetic teaching—"Write the vision," was the order. The seer saw the picture, and copied it, though as he did so, he often longed to "search what or what manner of times the spirit which was in him did signify."

A correspondent of one of our Southern papers, speaking of ministerial dignity, says: "A preacher ought to be civil to every body, but he is not called on to sit on pine boxes in front of the village grocery store, and talk politics and smoke five-cent apiece cigars. Nor ought he to be too familiar with his brethren, calling to them in the street, Bill, Bob, Tom, Jack, or any thing of the kind."

We hope that correspondent drew a fancy sketch. Certain it is, one does not fancy the sketch he has drawn.

The Northern Advocate thus calculates the possibilities of the work that is going on—the limits, if any there be, to salvation. Truly, there is no reason why a nation should not be born in a day:

But, how rapidly can conversions be multiplied? Just as fast as conviction, repentance, and faith, can be wrought in and exercised by the mind. The first step in the process is conviction, knowledge of sin; then, godly sorrow, which worketh repentance; then faith in our Lord Jesus Christ; then comes the doctrine, "he that believeth shall be saved." This was the old method. This is the Scriptural and rational method of conversion, conviction, repentance, faith, salvation. What a brief transition from death to life! From the beginning to the end, "the Spirit helpeth our infirmities." "God worketh in us to will and to do his good pleasure." But regeneration itself, is God's sole and peculiar work, as much as the first physical creation was." Faith terminates the human act, and Christ saves the believer. Glorious work! It is all of grace, boundless free grace!

Now, we as Methodists, never place the process of the work of salvation in any other order. This is our faith and practice, and only this. And we believe that God can save a million of souls as quickly and as easily as one, if they are all prepared for the great change. The question of time in the work of salvation from sin, relates simply to the work of the creature. Christ is now ready to save—always ready. He could forgive and renew a world of sinners as easily as he could save one, and his grace is equally competent to the one as to the other.

The N. Y. Advocate is determining the historical stand-point of Methodism: thinks if a studious heathen had sought to ascertain the nature of the Christian religion, immediately after the completion of its canonical records, and solely from those records, he would have been surprised by its contrast with nearly all prior and cotemporary religious systems, in its suggestion rather than prescription of ecclesiastical arrangements, its general abstinence from ritual forms, and its total abstinence from dogmatic definitions; rites and creeds, as aids to faith, being left discretionary, however necessary.

A true Christian Church is a collective or organic form of spiritual life; all its external institutions, whether in doctrinal symbols, or modes of worship or government, are valuable only as far as they can be means to this end. And therefore any new practical measures which may be rendered expedient, by the ever-varying conditions of human history, for the effectiveness of the Church in the personal regeneration of men, are admissible, being in harmony with the original purpose and simplicity of the Gospel, however they may contravene ecclesiastical precedents or traditions.

Methodism, breaking away from a traditional influence, was a return to this model:

It reversed, in fine, the usual policy of religious sects, who seek to sustain their spiritual life, by their orthodoxy; it has sustained its orthodoxy by devoting its chief care to its spiritual life and for more than a century has shown no serious outbreaks of heresy, notwithstanding the masses of untrained minds gathered into its pale, and the general lack of preparatory education among its clergy. No other modern religious body affords a parallel to it in this respect. Admitting the absolute necessity of Church economies, Methodism would not admit that they were in any particular form fundamental or even authoritative, but that the kind and degree of moral life possessed by any body of men claiming to be a Church, constituted the proof or refutation of that claim. It admitted the Scriptural example, but not a Scriptural injunction of two orders in the ministry; and adopted but one as expedient in its English Conference, while it provided both for America; it admitted the Scripture example of ordination by the imposition of hands, but waived it in England for the sake of peace with the National Church, and ordained its ministry simply with prayer and exhortation, until within a few years, when it was adopted not as necessary, but as appropriate. It pretended to no Episcopal form of organization in England, but provided one for America—a Presbyterian Episcopacy—Wesley, a Presbyter, ordaining a bishop, and thus practically denying High-Churchism. It founded a lay ministry of traveling preachers, local preachers, and exhorters. It adopted the band meeting, the class meeting, the ancient agape or love feast. It was, in fine, a system of vital doctrines and practical expedients—a breaking away from all old dead weights which had encumbered the march of the Reformation—a revival Church in its spirit, a missionary Church in its organization.

The Nashville Advocate characterizes as "ungenerous" an attack that has been made upon the Book Agents of the Southern Methodist Publishing House through the Nashville Union and American for submitting to the late Legislature of Tennessee a proposition to publish the Revised Code of the State Laws.

The Southern Advocate is overwhelmed with correspondences on the subject of lay co-operation, which has taken on the marked aspect of a discussion of lay representation. The editor draws upon Dr. Bond's writings of 1827, to show the agreement of his views in favor of a modified plan, with those advanced then and since by that acknowledged champion of "Old Methodism." He sums up:

In a word, we desire representatives of the membership in council, who shall become representatives of the conferences (the churches aggregated) in action—so that these lay-representatives would first act with the ministry for the people, and then for the ministry with the people.—We have no doubt this end could be attained; but what can be done, when progress stands trembling, lest, if we change any thing, we ruin all? Let us go on then in the old way until it loses its efficiency, as we fear our statistics will show it is now doing; and then, perhaps, a change will be asked for, by those who now oppose it.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

IMPROVING QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

No one has failed to notice the little interest Quarterly Meeting Conferences usually excite. From five to ten, or fifteen is the number generally attending. I have been at some where only two official members were present. This is painful at least to the P. Elder and preacher in charge. Many of our people scarcely know what a Quarterly Meeting is, what business comes before it, and how it is disposed of.—There must be something wrong, either in the constitution or practical workings of these meetings. I see no reason why a Quarterly Conference should not excite as much interest among the people generally as a Baptist Association.

The question comes up, Can nothing be done to give prominence and interest to these bodies? I think so, without in the least infringing any of our landmarks. Our Quarterly Conferences are composed mostly of lay members, and the business, though important, is mostly financial. Why not increase the meager number of five, fifteen, or twenty, to forty, fifty, or sixty? Why not, beside the regular members, allow each Church to select from one to three delegates, according to number in communion, and send these to our Quarterly Meetings?

Again: each Church ought to have, beside the class leaders, a regular clerk, to keep a faithful record of all the proceedings of his Church; its organization, by what preachers served, its seasons of revival and declension, members admitted and received into full communion, baptisms, marriages, deaths, removals, expulsions, etc. In this way, a history of every Church would be preserved for future generations. By the operations of the present plan, no history of any particular Church is preserved. The yearly renewals of our class books soon fill them up, and then they are generally lost. I have found one church, where nothing remained, but the house, and a few divided, scattered sheep. No Church record of any thing, no class books, no class leader. By this negligence, we soon lose sight, except from memory, of our worthy fathers and mothers, who have lived and died in the Church. It certainly would be very pleasant, for the son, now occupying the place of his father, to refer to the class book, and there read his name as it stands connected with the history of his Church, through, perhaps, twenty, forty, or fifty years, and how at last he died in the triumph of a christian faith. I know this would be pleasing and edifying. Every Church, then, ought to pursue this plan. Let the clerk also be a member of the Quarterly Conference. In this way the numbers [illegible] this body would be more than doubled, [illegible] importance and interest would be given to the Quarterly Meeting, which it never can have under the present plan.

The body is too small. Little bodies, like little things, never excite much attention. The plan we suggest would have the advantage of throwing into the active business of the Church a great many of our male members, who are now in ignorance of our system. They would become acquainted, identified with, and interested in, all our operations. If you want a man to act, give him something to do. If you want him to give, show him your need. If you want him to work, show him what, when and how. I venture the assertion, if our people could become more identified with our Quarterly Meetings, a short time only would elapse before all our monetary demands would be fully met.—The preachers would be paid, the widows' and orphans' fund would meet all demands against it, and our Missionaries and Tract and Bible collections would be proportionally enlarged.—The people have the means and the will, if they only had knowledge of our real needs. Give them this knowledge, by a perfect identity with the operations of the Church, and the end is accomplished. Will the next General Conference at Nashville have an eye to this matter?

G. HAWKINS.

A new drama is being enacted in New York. Burton's theater, in Chambers street, opposite the Park, has been leased for the purpose of holding religious meetings. The first meeting was under the direction of the Rev. T. S. Cuyler. The Evening Post says of it:

The building was more that half filled by a devout audience, and the exercises, consisting of prayers, addresses, and the singing of hymns, were marked by unusual fervor. The contrast which the scenic decorations of the house, the footlights, boxes, and other indications of its former use, afforded to the purposes for which it was now employed was sufficiently striking to afford a fruitful theme to the speakers, several of whom spoke of the practicability and expediency of opening to members of the theatrical profession the way to salvation.

News from the Churches.

PLEASANT HILL, LA.

The pastor, Rev. S. H. Suratt, writes:

"In addition to what you have said, we would like to say a word or two about this liberal-hearted village.

"The church building spirit is as great as that for erecting a college. No sooner was the building of a church mentioned, than it was heartily concurred in. While the matter was talked about, a bystander remarked, that 'it was the first church enterprise he ever saw in which there was danger of having too much subscribed!' When you pay them another visit (which we hope will be soon) a fine church will be in course of erection."

Note.—We are glad to hear that our Pleasant Hill friends are thinking about a camp meeting, this year—one commodious and well enough provisioned to accommodate "forty miles round." This is well. Methodism began in a college: let their college begin in a camp meeting.—Ed.

VILLAGE CIRCUIT, Ala. Conf., March 22.

Your article headed "Those Five," is responded to by myself and my colleague. We send you ten new names, and what is still better, all these, except one, have been converted recently at a protracted meeting of five weeks held by us on this circuit at Pinegrove and Hunnicville. About thirty persons were converted at each place (over forty of these whites) all of whom joined the Church. Village circuit is a new appointment, embracing six little suburban stations, all close together and near Mobile. I think the arrangement was a very happy one indeed. A little starveling station of all places is the poorest and most undesirable. Where it can be done (as it has been here) join several of these together and we make a good appointment, a respectable one, one that is able to support itself. A poor little station, overshadowed as many of these have been by the city churches, with wealthy members living at the doors of the church and yet on Sabbath morning pass it by, is and ever will be an unenviable field of labor. Who does not like to belong to a church that can and will support its pastor—that can and will assist in the various enterprises of the Church? All like it, and this is one reason why these little stations have been passed around.

Again: our people like to say to the appointing power, Send us the man that can do the work and we will sustain him: it matters not what his circumstances may be—whether single or married. Then, when the preacher comes, to be able to say to him, Here is a good parsonage with every thing comfortable around. I believe that Village Circuit, though now in the formative state, will occupy this ground in less than a year.

The policy of making so many little "one horse stations" I verily believe is suicidal. But few of our young inexperienced men, to whom these works are almost invariably assigned, are capable of taking charge of a work. The many difficulties that too often exist in such works are caused from this very circumstance. Generally it requires, as every one knows, more tact and good hard sense to manage such work than it does larger and stronger appointments. Besides, many good circuits have been ruined by this policy.

I like the prestige of a name; I don't want the Alabama Conference divided partly on this account. What a name has this Conference! What power and what influence!

W. C. TURNER.

BAYOU PIERRE CIRCUIT, Miss. Conf., March 30.

We are having some of the most interesting prayer meetings in the neighborhood of Rehoboth Church, Bayou Pierre circuit, that I ever witnessed. I have received in the church at our prayer meeting many probationers. Our Baptist friends and brethren join us in these meetings and work like soldiers.

W. H. MULLINS.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 24.

My prospect for a good year's work is very good indeed. We have gathered a little fruit already in the shape of some 10 or 12 happy conversions.

D. B. LYNE.

GERMAN MISSION, Mobile, Ala., April 2.

We are at present surrounded with favorable indications. Revival influence seems to be spreading all over the city.

C. F. QUELLMALZ.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

WANTS OF THE SOUTH.

ORRVILLE, Ala., March 22.

MR. EDITOR: Rev. J. P. Perham has just completed a short course of lectures in our village, very much to the edification of our citizens. His subject was the "Wants of the South." His style of lecturing is clear, forcible, and highly instructive, abounding in anecdote and practical illustrations. We were informed, by Mr. P. that he, in connection with several other gentlemen, intend, within the next two years to canvass the whole state; the object of which is to awaken public sentiment to the importance of establishing a college for the education of young men in the arts and sciences pertaining to mechanics and manufacturing, and also to collect a sufficient endowment fund, that the poor may receive the benefits of the institution gratuitously, and thus be prepared for usefulness in any branch of mechanism or internal improvement they may choose to follow. Many of our citizens are much interested in the enterprise, and some promise "material aid" in carrying out the plan proposed by the lecturer. Upon the whole we must say, that no plan that we have ever heard proposed for the education of the poor and working classes has appeared to our mind so feasible and so promising of great and lasting benefit to the country. I am fully converted to the entire practicability of the plan, the details of which I will not give, as this will be done in due time by those lecturing upon the subject. There are thousands of men in Alabama that have long desired to do something for the improvement of our working classes and for the development of our vast capacities; but have not, hitherto, because no plain, common sense plan, the practicability of which could not be called in question, has been proposed. Go to hear Mr. P. when you have an opportunity, and we venture the opinion that you will not leave less inclined to lend a helping hand to promote this noble and philanthropic enterprise.

L. M. WILSON.

VALUABLE STOCK.—It is asserted that the stock on the Cunard line of European steamships is at over 200 per cent. premium. Very little of it is ever sold. A gentleman of Glasgow last summer offered £3000 for a share of £1000, but could not get it. With their first five ships they have built all their additional eight or nine ships, with the common earnings, without any assessments for additional capital.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

Married—On the 31st ult., by Rev. Mr. McRae, Mr. S. [illegible]ker and Miss Sarah Jane Hoomes, both of Jackson.

On the 25th, at the residence of E. Jones Harvey, Deer Creek, Mi., by the Rev. Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. J. R. Chrisman, of Louisiana, and Mrs. Nannie V. Gray, of Issaquena county, Mi.

On the 18th, at the residence of Mrs. Leanah Robertson, Deer Creek, Mi., by E. Jones Harvey, M. H. B., Col. William Rushing and Miss Mary Branford, both of Issaquena county.

On the 5th inst., at the residence of the bride's father, Livingston parish, La., by Rev. G. L. Crosby, Dr. J. Overstreet and Miss Eliza Virginia Strickland, daughter of Rev. E. R. Strickland.

Special Notices.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY,
112 CAMP STREET.

We have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, the invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the publications of the Church, South, the following:

Benson's Commentaries; Clark's do., in sheep and calf, 8; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Anecdotes for Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Discipline; Bible Index, by Barr; Checks to Antonomianism, by Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, by Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Covel's Dictionary; Conference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Unleavened Jerusalem; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred Wonders; Rollin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; Questions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; Sets Longking's Notes.

☞ All at Nashville prices.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

Southern Methodist Almanac for 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

Stevenson & Owen, Agents.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The undersigned propose to issue, during the approaching General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in which the proceedings of the body will be published.

Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names immediately; or, they may give to the delegates their names and the cash.

Terms: One Dollar.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance.

The first number will the issued on Monday, the 3d of May.

Stevenson & Owen, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts.

Local Intelligence.

The Park at Last.—We perceive that we are to have a Park which will be worthy of the name. The contract has been made for fencing it in and building a keeper's lodge. We refer to the Metairie Ridge Park, some two or three miles to the rear of the city, but which, now that the swamps are about to be drained, will ere long be in the very heart of New Orleans! Some of our readers may consider this a flight of fancy, a figuro of speech; but we were never more in earnest, and we ask the doubter to mark what we say, and remember it. The Metairie Ridge is now out of town, but New Orleans is upon the eve of an expansion that will send the waves of population bounding over it, and that will not stop till they meet the Lake shore. The alligators have had their day, and it is now our turn. They must move. Their beds are wanted, or soon will be, for smitheries, factories, fruiteries, gardens, residences, shops, stables, etc.—Bulletin.

RIVER AND BANKS.

The Mississippi above is rising and levees breaking. By telegraph we learn:

Vicksburg, April 5.—The levee has broken away at the State line between Louisiana and Arkansas.

Carolina Landing and Lake Providence are under water.

The water is running over Grand Lake and Eagle Bend.

At Napoleon it is at a stand.

The river has fallen two inches at Lake Providence, and is at a stand here.

The mayor has warned the city council, and the surveyor has been inspecting the levees from Carrollton to the lower city limits. A committee has been appointed to act.

We write on second story 112 Camp street, with the comfortable assurance of being on a level with the surface of the father of waters! The city levees would perhaps take six inches more. A vast volume of water must press down, from the upper regions, to fill up that.

Telegraph in Revivals.—The great religious excitement which has prevailed in the East for the last month is extending itself to the West. We hear of large numbers of accessions to many churches of different denominations in this city. At Cincinnati they are having morning prayer meetings, which are attended by immense congregations. And the telegraph is called into requisition to convey between the different cities the intelligence of the numbers which attend the meetings, and the dispatches are read during the service.

[Louisville Journal, 18th.

The only one Left.—It is now some thirty-five years since Edward Everett was a member of the House; yet, of the "three" hundred then in Congress with him, a single individual now occupies a seat at the capital—General Houston, then a Representative from Tennessee, now a Senator from Texas.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

From a long and interesting article in the London Times of the 11th ult., on this subject, we take the following extracts:

The general programme of the second, and, as we trust, final attempt to submerge this gigantic line of electrical communication between the New and Old Worlds, is, we believe, decided on, and all the preparations necessary to secure a successful plan of operations are rapidly advancing towards completion. Since our last notice of the progress of this great undertaking the machines at Glasse and Elliott's manufactory have been working night and day to complete the 400 additional miles of cable ordered before last Christmas, and intended to replace the 334 miles which were submerged and lost last autumn off Valentin. This additional length has now been completed. It is of precisely the same kind of cable as the rest, which we have already described—flexible, strong, small, and light; it has been tested and retested to insure its perfect insulation, and its completeness being thus definitely ascertained, the last miles of it were shipped last night on board the Adonis screw steamer for conveyance to Plymouth where it will arrive on Monday next. In the dockyard there, at Keyham the main bulk of the cable, to the length of 2200 miles, has been stowed away in gigantic coils during the winter, and a full staff of electricians, under the directions of Mr. Whitehouse, have been engaged in working messages throughout its entire length, and generally proving the electrical fitness of the cable to the fullest extent.

The results of these experiments, we are informed, has been in the highest degree satisfactory. Most of those acquainted with the first efforts which were made to send messages through the entire length of the cable know that the retarding influence, or whatever other names electricians may now choose to call it, which exists in a long conductor exercised a most serious influence upon the rapidity with which it was found possible to transmit words through the full extent of the wire. Constant experiments, joined with practical skill in working the wire daily, have enabled Mr. Whitehouse to overcome so much of this resistance that five words per minute can now be sent through the 2200 miles of cable at present at Keyham, and it is fully expected that before the time comes for its second submergement eight words will be transmitted with ease and certainty. To many of our readers unacquainted with the practical working of submarine lines, only eight words per minute may appear to be but a poor result, after all, though we can assure them that, if ever attained, it is such an improvement in the rate of transmission as not many ventured to anticipate who saw the cable worked for the first time last summer. At the same time such a result seems to show, with great clearness, that, though 480 words per hour through this line, if it is successfully laid down, might doubtless amply remunerate the company, it would still be almost as far as ever from accommodating the business messages between Europe and the New World. If, therefore, this line is submerged this summer, it will follow, as a matter of course, that three or four others must be laid as well, and there seems no reason why if one can be laid down there should not be as many telegraphs under the Atlantic as there are now under the channel.

The attempt to lay down the cable will be made this year at a much earlier period than on the last occasion. As soon as the coils, with all the necessary apparatus and appointments are stowed away on board the Agamemnon and Niagara (which will be about the beginning of May,) both vessels will leave for a short trip into deep water, when a number of experiments will be made with the paying out machinery; and to ascertain practically if any difficulties exist in the proposed plan for submerging the wire from the centre of the Atlantic. These experiments will be brought to an end in a few days, and any alterations which their results may suggest in the machinery or manner of paying out the wire having been adopted as soon as possible, the expedition will finally start about the beginning of next June. All the best authorities and most experienced seamen have been consulted on behalf of the company as to the state of the weather in the Atlantic in the month of June, and we believe the result of an immense mass of testimony goes to prove that there are some five or six consecutive days in that month during which a gale in the Atlantic was seldom or never known to occur. The expedition will leave these shores so as to arrive in the centre of the Atlantic at about the commencement of those halcyon days, and the object will be, of course, to get over the deep sea part of the undertaking before the weather changes. The line will be joined and laid from the centre of the ocean, the Niagara bringing her end to England and the Agamemnon conveying hers to America.—Communication by electric signal will, of course, if the wire holds, be kept up between the two vessels the whole way.

All these new arrangements and precautions are the result of the experience of last year's attempt; and, of course, all improvements conduce towards the chances of ultimate success. But it is no exaggeration to say that there is one portion of the apparatus upon the fitness and proper management of which the success or non-success of the whole plan must ultimately depend, and that is upon the paying-out machinery. That this machinery was bad last year, and that it was made still worse by the most absurd mismanagement, no one now denies; but we trust and believe that there is no chance of a repetition on this year of such blunders. How the new machinery is constructed we cannot at present say, further than a new self-acting brake has been devised, which is said to be perfect.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

Mr. D'Israeli announced the reception of a very satisfactory dispatch from France, and the termination of the misunderstanding between the two countries.

A lengthy pamphlet has been issued in Paris in regard to the refugee difficulty in England, appeals to the English Government, and the people not to be led away by false interpretations, and expresses the hope that the alliance will firmly stand the test it is now undergoing. It is regarded as a State paper.

The last of the series of dispatches arrived yesterday. Both Lord Malmesbury and Count Walewski, it is affirmed, have throughout shown great judgment and discretion.

FRANCE.

Orsini and Pierri were executed by the guillotine at Paris, at 7 o'clock on the morning of the 13th of March. The punishment of Rudio is commuted into penal servitude for life. Immense crowds assembled to witness the execution, the numbers, being estimated at from one to two hundred thousand persons; but they were kept at a distance from the scene by the military, who made an imposing display, as many as five thousand being on the spot. All passed off quietly. Both the prisoners met their doom with firmness, particularly Orsini, whose calmness never abandoned him for a moment. Pierri, on his way from the prison to the scaffold, sang the well known "Mourir pour la Patrie," and before his head was laid on the block he cried, "Vive l'Italie—Vive la Republique." Orsini's last cry was "Vive la France."

De Rudio, it was stated, would be sent to London to give evidence against Dr. Bernard, who had been fully committed to take his trial in that city.

IMPORTANT FROM JAPAN.

The following details, in regard to the concessions lately obtained by the Dutch government from the Japanese—concessions, in the benefit of which other European nations, together with the United States, will have a share—show what the peaceful and friendly appeal of the United States, under the wise conduct of the late lamented Commodore Perry, has accomplished in Japan:

[Translated from a Paris paper for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

At the time when it was least expected, letters from the Japanese seas bring us curious details in regard to the liberal disposition manifested by the Japanese in reference to Europe.

The Commissioners sent by Holland to the temporal Emperor of Japan, immediately after the conclusion of the treaty with the United States, have succeeded in obtaining an acknowledgment, as a principle, that all the ports of Japan, without distinction, shall be successively opened to European commerce. Not only have the ratifications of the treaty of 1856 been exchanged at Nangasaki, but new articles of the highest importance have been added to it, by virtue of which the ports of Nangasaki and Hakadadi, to which the Dutch alone were admitted under very severe restrictions, will be henceforth open to all nations; the first to date from October 16th, 1857, and the second ten months later.

Until a regular tariff of duties on imports can be established, the Dutch will continue to pay 55 per cent. on the value of goods imported; this value being determined by public sales, or even by private sales, the good faith of which is undoubted. But as a compensation for this truly exorbitant rate of duties the Court of Accounts is bound to recover, without charge, all claims of the Dutch upon Japanese, and guarantees the payment of all goods bought by Japanese at public sales.

Purchases made by the Dutch will be paid in bank bills, issued by the Court of Accounts, which is bound to change them on presentation for Japanese coin.

An Exchange and Bazaar will be established at Hakodadi to facilitate transactions between the natives and Europeans. Professors of the Japanese language will be appointed by the authorities, with power to receive as pupils, without distinction, all foreigners who may wish to learn the language of the country.—The Dutch resident will be received by the chief of the government whenever he may have internal questions to discuss. The free exercise of their religion is granted to all, the Dutch and the practice of obliging them to trample on the cross of Christ is abolished forever. They will also be allowed to bring their wives and children with them to Japan.

The Japanese have, however, combined some restrictions with their generosity. Thus, it is strictly forbidden to export specie of any kind, or to sell arms or munitions of war to any other parties than the government. It is believed, however, that in regard to the first of these prohibitions, the Commissioners are not far from obtaining some concessions.

To conclude, we are happy to see that spontaneously abolishing the system of exclusion in which she has shut herself up, Japan herself makes such generous concessions to Holland now, since it shows a desire to extend them to all the nations of the earth.

CUBAN NEWS.

A Havana correspondent of the Delta, 24th ult., tells of a new (is it not an old?) plan of despotism to intrench itself in power. Mexico and Central America, long ago would have been republics, but that free government has been forestalled in some way:

"As you know, it is some time since the Government attempted to have the Cuban male educated by the Jesuits, in order from their very infancy to instil into their hearts a stupid fanaticism. However, not contented with this, it is now trying to have the Cuban girls also educated in this school; and with this view is establishing a convent.

"And in order that you may see the promptitude with which these Spaniards put in practice any design to embruticise the country, it will be enough to say that three nuns have arrived from New York, being those who are to conduct the institution in question. One of these nuns is the Senora Hardy, Superior of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, at that city, who, flattered by the offers made by the authorities of this country, has been induced to quit her situation there. Another is the Senora Cosmayor, a French widow, who was engaged in taking care of the girls in the Convent, and the third is a pretty girl from Venezuela, who became a saint because she was cruelly abandoned by the man who ought to have married her."

Extent and Population of Mexico.

The population of Mexico at the present time is nearly 8,000,000, and the extent of territory is about a million square miles. About one-sixth part of the population is of European extraction. Three parts of the population consists of the pure aboriginal Indian race; and the two remaining parts consist of a mixed race of European, Indian, and African blood.—The number, however, of the latter mixture is very small.

The State of Sonora, which it has been conjectured, the Mormons would next locate in, and which it is supposed may also, before many years, be annexed to the United States, contains 147,133 inhabitants, and about 120,000 square miles, being the largest State in extent of territory in Mexico. The territory of Lower California, which will also probably at no distant day be settled from the United States, has only a population of 12,000, and is about 75,000 square miles. The State of Chihuahua, which will soon be added to the territory of New Mexico, contains a population of 147,000, and about 100,000 square miles.

The annual revenue of Mexico is about $15,000,000, and the expenditures about $25,000,000. The national debt is $117,000,000, of which $62,000,000 is owed at home, and $55,000,000 abroad.

The Revival Continues.—The N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, 1st inst., devotes columns to details of religious intelligence. The prevailing concern deepens and has found its way into unwonted places:

"We find no diminution in the attendance at the several places opened daily, nor does the interest of those meetings decline.

"At one of our large restaurants, a gentleman had taken out a book to read while his dinner was preparing. On the arrival of the waiter, with the articles he had called for, he laid down his book; when the waiter said, "Is that a Bible, sir?" "No," was the reply, "do you want a Bible?" "Yes, sir, I should like to have one." The gentleman promised to bring him one the next day; he did so; asking the waiter whether he attended any of the daily prayer meetings. "No, Sir, we have not time, being engaged here from early morning until late in the evening—but at 10 o'clock we close, and then all the waiters have a prayer meeting in one of the rooms in this house, and we know that good has resulted."

General Intelligence.

Weather and Crops in North Louisiana.—The Claiborne Advocate says: During the past week, the weather has been bright, warm and pleasant. The peach trees are now in full bloom, and our prospect for a good fruit crop the present season, decidedly flattering.

We are pleased to learn that the wheat, rye, and oat crops of this parish never looked more promising and flourishing at this season of the year. They are confidently expected to yield an abundant harvest this season. The soil and the climate of old Claiborne is well adapted to the production of all the cereals.

A New Orleans Merchant.—The Union, Monroe county, (Va,) Democrat, in noticing the recent sale of Col. Preston's "Ilonma" plantation for $1,000,000, thus speaks of the purchaser:

Mr. Burnside is a member of the great dry goods house of J. Burnside & Co., and was formerly a merchant in this place. After his arrival in this country from Ireland, he was first employed by a man by the name of Robert Wiley, a merchant then in Fincastle, Va., as a "store boy." He honestly served his time in that capacity, and then came to Union to clerk for Col. Andrew Beirne, which he did for several years, and then became a partner in the concern, and made one of the most popular, enterprising and substantial merchants this country and community were ever blessed with. After the expiration of five years he went to New Orleans, where he and Colonel Beirne engaged as partners in a wholesale commercial establishment which has resulted in enabling him to purchase the most desirable and extensive property of the kind in the United States. So much for early tutoring, business tact, and untiring application to business.

Alabama and Tennessee River Railroad.—The Talledega Watchtower speaks encouragingly of the business and progress of the work on this road. The track is completed to Talassahatchie Creek, ninety-two miles from Selma.—The building of the bridge across the creek is in such a state of forwardness, that it will be completed in three or four weeks, and track laying resumed and continued until the one hundred mile station is reached, which is expected to be accomplished by 1st of June.—The business has so increased that two trains are run over the road each way daily, and scarcely suffice to do the business.

The University of Virginia.—We stated on Saturday last, upon the authority of a letter received in this city, from Charlottesville, that a serious epidemic, in the form of typhoid fever, had been raging for several weeks at the University of Virginia, proving fatal in several instances, and highly alarming to the students.

We now learn that another meeting of the Board of Visitors was held on Thursday last, at which it was determined to suspend all exercises in the institution for six weeks, in order to thoroughly cleanse and renovate the building, freeing it from whatever infection or causes that may have led to this epidemic. All the students have left for their homes or more healthful localities.—Exchange.

What is to Become of Mexico?—The London Times says: "There is not a statesman who would wish to see Great Britain hamper herself with an inch of Mexican ground. Let the United States, when they are finally prepared for it, enjoy all the advantages and responsibility of ownership, and our merchants at Liverpool and elsewhere will be quite content with the trade that may spring out of it. The capacity of the Mexican population for appreciating a constitutional rule is not so remarkable that we should volunteer to administer it."

Colleges.—By the annual statement just printed, it appears, that in 47 colleges of the land there are 8540 students, of whom 3082 are professors of religion—987 who intend to become ministers. According to the fullest report we have ever seen, there are 122 colleges in the United States, of which 113 are Protestant, and 9 are Roman Catholic. Of the Protestant Colleges, 16 are controlled by the Baptists, 13 by the Methodists, 8 by the Episcopalians, some 11 by the Congregationalists, 2 by the Unitarians and the remainder by the various branches of the Presbyterians. Of all the colleges, 15, or about one-eight of the whole, are situated in New England. The free States have 65 of the colleges, and the slave States 57.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

C. W. Butt, Douglass Vass, Mobile. N. Orleans M. J. Smith, T. M. Foster, Jr.

BUTT, SMITH & Co,
MOBILE, ALA.
MARSHALL J. SMITH & Co.,
NEW ORLEANS.

General Commission Merchants and Dealers in Barging and Rope. Orders for Produce of all descriptions and Consignments will meet prompt attention ap10-6m

TIRRELL & HERSEY,

BOOTS and SHOES, BROGANS and HATS,
BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.

Planters and Merchants are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.

Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 38 Magazine street, New Orleans. mar 7-1m

R. M. Read. J. Robert Hedges.

READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.

Dealers in Drugs and Medicines, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common Street, between Camp and St. Charles streets.

Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S
CELEBRATED
GERMAN BITTERS,
PREPARED BY
Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Philad'a, Pa.
WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE
LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,
Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fulness or Blood the Head, Acidity on the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Flutterings at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of confidence in its virtues and a satisfaction in the assurance for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of a ten years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale is unrivalled by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IN FACT
DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A BRISK AND VIGOROUS FEELING?

If you do, use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr C. M Jackson, 418 Arch Street Philadelphia Pa., and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. Wright, & Co 21, and 151 Chartres street general agents for the South

Negro Children in the South.—The army worm is not more destructive to southern crops than intestinal worms are to southern negro children. Thousands are swept off annually by the complaint which is not only directly fatal in many cases but even in its mildest forms is the parent of a variety of deadly diseases. Every planter, therefore, if only from the lives of self interest, should keep on hand a supply of Worm's Canadian Vermifuge, which inevitably destroys these disgusting creatures and the means in which they are generated. In fact, no family, North or South, should be without this safe, certain and speedy remedy

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Wright's Canadian Vermifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this.

For sale by J. Wright & Co., 151 Chartres st

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 7th, says:

The week thus far has been characterized by a very fair degree of activity in nearly all of our leading staples.—The rates for Cotton have been maintained with remarkable firmness, considering the adverse tenor of recent European advices, and the later and more favorable accounts have thrown the advantage on the side of sellers. With moderate receipts both Sugar and Molasses have improved. In the various articles of Western Produce there is rather more activity and the rates generally are quite full.

At a late hour on Monday four days later European advices were received, brought to Portland, Me., by the steamer Indian, from Liverpool 24th ult. They report the Liverpool Cotton market to have recovered an ⅛d @ ¼d of the previous decline, with sales of the three days of 28,000 bales, but state that subsequently, on the arrival of the America from this country, the buoyancy was lost and the rates gave way again slightly at the close. Middling Orleans is quoted at 7¼ @ 7 3-16d against 7 1-16d by the previous steamer. Trade was more active at Manchester, Breadstuffs and Provisions had declined and Consols had advanced ¼ @ ⅜ cent., being quoted at 97⅞.

Our last report (Saturday) closed upon a very unsettled market, as buyers were contending for marked concessions, which holders generally resisted, and the contest was continued on Saturday, though with but slight if any advantage to purchasers, who took about 6500 bales. On Monday the inquiry was more active and general and sales were effected to the extent of about 12,500 bales, with a rather steadier firmer market. Our market opened yesterday with a good demand, and with advanced rates claimed, which were obtained to the extent of about an ⅛ @ ¼ cent to the Middling grades. The sales reached about 13,500 bales; making a total for the three days of 32,000 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Ordinary	8 @ 9	Good Middling	12 @ 12⅛
Good Ordinary	9¾ @ 10¼	Middling Fair	12½ @ —
Low Middling	10¾ @ 11	Fair	nominal

COTTON—Arrived since 2d instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 14,538 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 10,179, Arkansas 1,805, Mobile 462, Florida 8, Texas 1436; together 27,066 bales. Cleared since the same date, 31,155 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 6th inst. 425,118 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,361,643 bales, against 1,361,753 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 141,855 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase to Great Britain of 42,116 bales, and a decrease to France of 48,208 bales, and to other foreign ports of 90,426 bales.

SUGAR—Louisiana—Since our last report, with moderate receipts, an improvement of about ⅛ cent has been realized in the Fully Fair to Choice qualities, which have attracted most of the demand. The Sales of the three days sum up about 3500 hhds., and we quote as follows:

Inferior and Refining	3 @ 4¼
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¼
Fair to Fully Fair	6 @ 7
Prime	7 @ 7⅜
Choice	7⅜ @ 8⅛
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 @ 9½

Arrived since the 2d inst. 1911 hhds, 356 bbls and tcs. Cleared since same date 915 hhds and 706 bbls.

MOLASSES—The sales of the three days sum up about 4000 bbls, and we now quote for Inferior and Fermenting to Good 22 @ 26½, Prime to Choice 27 @ 28½, in barrels; half-barrels 30 @ 32½ ₱ gallon. Arrived since the 2d 4354 bbls—cleared 17 bbls.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, April 7.

There is a pretty free demand for paper, and we hear of several transactions in preferred names at 10 ₱ cent. A round amount was reported at even a fraction better for the seller. But there are also various sales of good paper at 10¾ @ 11 ₱ ct. The tendency of rates to-day appears to be more in favor of the borrower.

The letters by the Persia came through this morning. Those from Liverpool, speaking of the sudden decline of cotton, do not believe that the depression will be more than temporary. Indeed, the best informed express the opinion that the lowest point had been reached.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid			155 50
Louisiana State Bank			149 50
Canal Bank		122 @	—
Citizens' Bank		175 @	—
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock		premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank		@	100
Union Bank	100	98 @	—
Bank of New Orleans	100	98 @	100
Southern Bank	500		500
Crescent City Bank		98 @	—
Bank of America		90 @	—
Bank of James Robb			par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid		125 @	—
Carrollton Railroad	15		nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	100	68 @	70
Southern Pacific Railroad			nominal
Opelousas Railroad	25	6 @	6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid		7½ @	8
City Consolidated Bonds		85 @	86
City Bonds for Railroads		74 @	75
State Bonds			no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company			par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₱ cent Bonds		72 @	75

SPECIE.

American Gold	par @	— ₱ cent discount
California Gold	$17 00 @	17 50 ₱ oz
American Silver, old issue	2 @	2¼ ₱ cent prem
American Silver, new issue	1 @	1¼ ₱ cent discount
Mexican Dollars	4 @	4¼ ₱ cent prem
Five Franc pieces	90 @	— cents
Twenty Franc pieces	$3 75 @	3 80
Sovereigns	$4 80 @	4 85
Ten Thaler pieces	$7 70 @	7 80
Spanish Doubloons	$16 30 @	16 40
Patriot Doubloons	$15 50 @	15 75
United States Treasury Notes	¼ @	¼ ₱ cent discount

UNCURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
Ohio	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
Illinois	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.		par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company		½ ₱ cent discount
Aberdeen	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
North Carolina	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Virginia	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Alabama State	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Texas	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Tennessee	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Mobile	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	1 @	½ ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
North'n Bank, Huntsville	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester	½ @	½ ₱ cent discount

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres		31 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres		62 00
Land Warrants, 120 acres		93 00
Land Warrants, 160 acres		124 00

GEORGE H. VINTEN,
PRINTER'S WAREHOUSE,
63 Camp street, New Orleans.

Presses, Types, Inks, Paper, Cards and all requisites of every description. Agent for the sale of Field Book and Mapping Inks.

James Conner & Sons' Type.

All Type taken in exchange for new at same per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.

Constantly on hand a full assortment of Printing Paper of the following sizes, viz:

21 inches by 25 | 23½ inches by 32 | 28 inches by 40
22 inches by 32 | 24 inches by 36 | 30 inches by 42

And Paper of every description made to order.

mar 28 1y

ENGRAVINGS

Beautiful steel [illegible] executed in the highest style of the art, and at the lowest rates, by Jas. Conner, 11 Camp street. All orders executed with promptness, by 20 artists employed in the establishment. Also, all the latest improvements in the Union Printing Presses, Cases, Stands, Galleys, &c., &c., for sale at the lowest rates. Both cuts and presses can be seen at the office of the subscriber.

Price of plain copper [illegible]

Engraved Copper [illegible]

Dr. Boddie's Celebrated Stomach Bitters

[illegible] for a number of years, and [illegible] cause [illegible] for a moment question the [illegible] of these Bitters. [illegible] Bitters are now [illegible] by [illegible] the country, and [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] Bitters [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] Bitters [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] Bitters

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

IS IT NOT BEAUTIFUL?

Some two years ago while glancing over a spiritualist paper placed in our hands, amid a vast deal of transcendental, unintelligible stuff, we found the following lines, purporting to come from the spirit of Edgar A. Poe.—While we have no doubt the spirit of the gifted but ill-fated genius was otherwise employed, the lines are such as he would not have disdained to own. The fourth stanza is equal to anything in "Annabel Lee" or "The Raven." Who is the author?

The design of the poem seems to be to describe the deliverance of the poet from his remorse and despair, and his meeting with his lost "Lenore."

Shut out from the beautiful realms of the day,
In a region both gloomy and dire,
And right in the jaws of the terrible way
That leads to the kingdom of fire—
Down in the depths of the undermost world,
Ghost cast from the light of the day,
With a mountain of darkness high over me hurled,
My spirit despairingly lay.

Dustily I wandered forlorn and forsaken,
O'er dismal and night-shaded plains,
My soul with a tempest of passion was shaken,
And shrouded in torment like Cain's.

And then came an angel appareled in light,
With love in her luminous eyes;
And Hope, like a star arose on my sight,
As she pointed the way to the skies.

A chariot of lambs came down from above,
As I earnestly gazed on the sky,
And I heard a sweet whisper, in accents of love,
Shockingly dulling on high.

Then out of the darkness and torture and night,
The cloud of torrential woes——
Up into the beautiful kingdom of light,
Released by an angel, I rose.

And there with my lost, loving-hearted,
The angel whose name is Lenore,
I dwell, and we ne'er shall be parted,
The angel and I, nevermore!

RICH MEN.

Enough of censure; let my humble lays
Employ one moment in congenial praise.
Let other pens with pious ardor paint
The selfish virtues of the cloistered saint.
In lettered marble let the stranger read
Of him who, dying, did a worthy deed,
And left to charity the cherished store
Which, to his sorrow, he could hoard no more.
I eherish the noble man who gives
His generous dollars, while the donor lives;
Gives with a heart as liberal as the palms
That to the needy spread his bounteous alms;
Gives with a head whose yet unclouded light
To worthless objects points the giver's sight;
Gives with a hand still potent to enforce
His well-aimed bounty, and direct its course;
Such is the giver who must stand coafest
In giving glorious, and supremely blest!

[John O. Saze.

OBITUARIES.

Died—On the 24th ult., in New Orleans, sister ELIZABETH ALLEN, in the 27th year of her age. The deceased professed religion and joined the M. E. Church when quite young; but from inattention to the means of grace, lost sight of the favor of God and thereby became alienated from Him and his Church. During her last afflictions, (which lasted several months,) the writer was called upon to visit her, and found her much concerned on account of her unfitness to meet God. Her attention was at once directed to the subject of salvation by faith, and she soon obtained evidence of her acceptance in the beloved.—She continued in this happy state of mind until death released her from her severe afflictions. She bid adieu to her weeping friends, exhorting them to meet her in heaven, and calmly and peacefully slept the sleep of death.

"Let the prisoner is released,
Lighten'd of her fleshly load;
Where the weary are at rest,
She is gather'd into God!
Lo! the pain of life is past,
All her warfare now is o'er;
Death and hell behind are cast,
Grief and suffering are no more."

JAMES D. PARKER.

Nashville C. Advocate will please copy.

Father ALEXANDER MCDONALD, father of the late L. B. McDonald of the Alabama Conference, died near Columbiana, on the 18th March, of congestion of the lungs, after suffering for three hours. Father McDonald was in his 76th year; he was once a member of the Tennessee Conference; his end was peace. His children had all left the shores of time before him but one; he was emphatically a good man and a good preacher. He had labored faithfully for many years as a local preacher, and on the Sunday before his death filled his appointment punctually, as his footsteps were all filled. Quite cheerful, he attended to his affairs as usual till Thursday night. At the usual hour he led in family prayer, retired to his room, and in three hours after the family knew he was safe the spirit fled to a happier clime.

J. B. POWERS.

Nashville C. Advocate please copy.

Died—Near Annisgeville, Ala., on the 8th of Feb., 1858, EMMA CATHARINE, aged 5 years, 3 months and 24 days.—SAMUEL and GRACIAN LEWIS, on the 19th of Feb., the former aged 3 years, 1 month and 20 days, the latter 2 months and 13 days, and MARTHA M., on the 14th of Feb., aged 7 years, 1 month and 20 days, all children of Col. Samuel and Caroline W. Chamberlain. Oh the ravages of death! In the form of scarlet fever, he entered one of the loveliest, happiest families, and in the short space of six days consigned the lovely group of hopeful children to the silent tomb, leaving none to comfort the bereaved parents or shed a smile on the hearthstone. The two little girls were members of our Sunday School. Their minds had just commenced to expand under the genial influences of heavenly truth, and the acquisition of new ideas allured the affections of the fond parents. In these opening buds the parents' eye saw much to excite hope. But alas!

"Nipt by the wind's unkindly blast,
Parched by the sun's directer ray,
The unnecessary glories waste,
The short-lived beauties die away."

May the following sentiments cheer the hearts of the bereaved:

They are gone to the grave, but we will not deplore them,
For God was their ransom, their guardian and guide;
He gave them, he took them, and he will restore them,
And death has no sting, for the Savior has died!

WM. B. NEAL.

SAMMIE'S DREAM.

The Wellspring relates the dream of a little boy named Sammie. As his mother waked him one morning, he rubbed his eyes, looked round the room, and said:

"O, mother, why did you wake me up so soon? I was having a beautiful dream. I dreamed that I went up to heaven, and on the top of a high mount I saw father, and mother, and grandfather. Father didn't know me, and mother said to him,

"Why that's Sammie; don't you know our little Sammie?

"And I was just a-going to see God, when you waked me up."

What a beautiful dream! It showed what Sammie's waking thoughts were about, because we seldom or never dream of things which have not already been before the mind. Dear Sammie was drowned a year after he had this dream, so that he has now seen God, and is probably with him in peace and glory.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

For the Children's Column.

A CHILD'S ENJOYMENTS.

BY SALLIE M. WHITE.

I love to watch the white, young lambs
On the green grass day by day;
To see their gambols by running stream
When golden spots of sunshine gleam
On the waves that murmur away.

I love to watch the little birds
In their nests in the willow grove;
When their hemispheres of straw swing out
In the truant breeze that flutters about,
And leaflets are green above.

I love in the brown shade to sit at noon,
And hear the musical flow
Adown the rocks of the water drops,
Till their singing melody softly stops
In the sheltered lake below.

I love to sit in the rustic porch
When the eve goes lightly by,
Rustling along the quiet eaves
The woodbine flowers and jessamine leaves
In wind-taught minstrelsy.

And Heaven to me is very near
When the red star in the west,
Looks through my window from its throne on high,
And drops a kiss on my closing eye
As I gently sink to rest.

A white-robed angel sits by my bed,
Watch over my slumbers to keep,
And whispers me sweet dreams happy with love,
While my youthful footsteps in fancy rove
Through the kingdom of innocent sleep.

Opelousas, La.

AMELIA, ARABELLA, AND GERTRUDE;

OR, PRIDE, VANITY, AND LOVE.

"Ma, I won't go to Sunday-school any more!" said a nicely-dressed miss to her mother as she entered the parlor on her return from an afternoon session of her Sunday school. There was a fire in the eyes and a flush on the face of the speaker which showed that evil feelings were busily at work in her heart.

"My daughter should not say I won't on a subject about which her parents must judge what is best for her," replied her mother with a quiet air.

"But come here, Amelia, tell me what is the matter at Sunday school?"

"Well, our superintendent has brought a lot of poor people's children into the school, and has seated them right behind our class," said Amelia, looking daggers at the babe thought of the thing she was describing; "and I won't submit to it. Do you think it's right, mother, to place those poor, uncouth-looking creatures so near to me and my friends?"

"Why not, Amelia?" asked the mother, smiling; "is there anything about them to hurt you? They appear to be clean in their persons, and if their dresses are cheap they are tidy. I really do not see what harm they can do you."

"But, mother, only think of it," rejoined Amelia; "isn't it ridiculous to see those poor children sitting so near a class of young ladies whose fathers are all so rich as ours are?"

"I think the most ridiculous thing about the matter is your pride, my child," said the lady. "You forget that in all that gives value to a child those poor girls are equal to you and your richly dressed class-mates. Are they not made in the image of God? Are not their souls immortal? Did not Jesus die for them? May they not rise as high in God's favor as rich men's children? Why, then, do you despise them? Your scorn is the growth of a proud heart, my child, and as I have no wish to see you cherish your pride, I shall still require you to go to Sunday school until you can give some better reason for staying away."

Amelia was crest-fallen. She pouted, held down her head, and retired to her chamber with a heart as miserable as pride could make it.

Now let me introduce you to another miss, belonging to the same class with Amelia. Her name is Arabella. She went home from Sunday school, and, standing before the splendid mirror which adorned her father's parlor, said to herself, "Well, I am pretty, I know I am.—The girls all say I have fine eyes. I heard George Mulford say my cheeks are of a beautiful color. Amelia says I have splendid teeth. What a contrast my face presents to the homely faces of that class in calico which our benevolent superintendent has picked up from Poverty Hollow. How stupid to put those poor creatures so near us. Well, never mind, I shall look all the prettier for being seen in contrast with such homeliness."

"Ha! ha! ha! Miss Beautiful! Caught you admiring your pug-nose in the glass again, have I? Ha! ha! ha!"

This ungracious rebuke came from Arabella's brother who was always teasing her about her nose, which, to do her justice, was the only homely feature in her otherwise pretty face.—His remark was like the sting of a wasp to the vain child, and giving him a look in which anger and scorn were pretty equally expressed, she went to her chamber, feeling about as miserable as her friend Amelia, for, you know, mortified vanity is almost as painful to endure as wounded pride.

But there was another miss in the class with Amelia and Arabella, named Gertrude, who shared in no such feelings. She was glad to see the poor girls from Poverty Hollow, and having noticed one of them looking very sad, she asked her where she lived, and promised to call upon her.

Gertrude went home from school feeling very happy. Heavenly love had found a nestling-place in her heart and made it warm with sweet emotion. Having got permission from her mother to visit Poverty Hollow, she set out on her holy mission. She found the girl with a sad look in a comfortless chamber, without a fire, and shivering for want of warmth and thick clothing. The poor child was crying for sorrow and pain. Gertrude said:

"Do not cry, little girl. You are cold, but I have brought you some money to buy coal."

Then taking out her purse Gertrude gave the child half a dollar. As she put it into her hands she felt how cold they were.

"Oh how cold your poor fingers are," she said, "but don't cry. I will try to make you happy." But the poor girl did cry more and more. Then Gertrude put her arm around her neck, kissed her forehead, and said:

"Don't cry. I will love you, and be your friend. Jesus loves you also much more than I can. And he too will be your friend if you ask him. So don't cry, little girl; but cheer up, and look for better days."

Then a ray of hope shone on the poor child's heart. The words of Gertrude also sunk into it warm as summer sunbeams, and that poor, forlorn girl tasted more pleasure from Gertrude's visit than she had known for months.

As for Gertrude, she went back to her richly-furnished home as happy as the smile of Jesus and a loving heart could make her. She had comforted a child of sorrow, and the love she had poured out on another flowed back in delicious streams of bliss upon her own soul.

Children, which of these girls do you like best? Amelia with her pride, Arabella with her vanity, or Gertrude with her love? Gertrude. That's right. If your prefereuce is sincere, you will turn pride and vanity from your hearts, and invite love in. Remember, the love you want is in the heart of Jesus.—Ask him to shed it abroad within you, and when his love goes in, vanity and pride will go out, for these naughty vices can't stay where heavenly love has its abode.

THE BOY THAT WOULDN'T GET MAD.

I once heard an interesting story about two little brothers. One of them was ten years old, and the other eight. The oldest boy had, within a few months past, indulged the hope that God had given him a new heart. He thought he was a Christian, that he loved the Lord Jesus Christ. But his little brother did not believe that his heart had been changed.—He thought his brother was no more a Christian than he had always been. He said he could not see any difference. Yet he meant to try him and see; for as his brother now appeared more sober than usual, and was more willing to go to meeting than before, he did not feel certain that he was not a Christian.

Now, how do you think this little boy, eight years old, undertook to find out whether his brother was really a Christian? Why, every time he could get a chance he would tread on his brother's toes, kick his heels, or pinch his arms, to see if he would get mad, as he used to do. But his brother bore it all with meekness and good nature, without an angry word or look. This was different from what he used to do. He had before always been ready to take revenge on the spot for such an abuse.—The youngest brother was sure that he could not do so; for he knew he would get mad, if anybody should treat him so unkindly. He soon became convinced that his brother was a Christian, and that he was not. He became very anxious about the salvation of his soul, and in a short time he too indulged the hope that God had pardoned his sins and given him a new heart.

PROFESSIONAL.

J. O. FUQUA. R. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena, and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans. References—Payne & Harrison, Byrne, Vance & Co., Broadwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw. Nulle & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 20-1y.

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 128 Third street, near City Hotel. References—Hon. J. D. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. D. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Oglesby & Mcanally, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 6-2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 18 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

If practice as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,

RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct.8-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,

HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors, and Wens, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y.

JOSEPH C. BEALL,

ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.

☞ References can be furnished if desired. jan21-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

LEONARD FASH. P. S. LAURANS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSON Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. C. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. C. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM. H. HARRISON

Payne & Harrison,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

R. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. jc28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy5-1y.

T. T. TWITTY,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 82 Gravier street New Orleans. mh14m

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANDs, buns nor ha'n'abouts nothing some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, worny-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is bound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. B CLEGHORN,
Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb. 20

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"

No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,

KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.

The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.

Address, REV. E. B. CLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union,"
feb.27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

BUSINESS CARDS.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Chiems, Lumber, &c.,

In lots to suit purchasers. Orders promptly attended to. Box 385 Mechanics' Exchange, 91 St. Charles st. Shop, 355 and 357 Ramport st., First District, New Orleans. mar20-1y

Holmes & Clause.

GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. au30-

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.

KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET RAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.

Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.

L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.

A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices. L. W. LYONS & CO.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. DAYNE.

Dameron & Co.,

IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,

HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS I BELLS II BELLS III BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]

THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.

For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.

Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my16 1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)

THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coals. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,

A RCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.

For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.

THE Subscriber furnishes LOWER than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS, Prince's, Manning's Mason's Hamlin's &c., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman G. Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address

JAMES M. EDNEY,
ep26 55 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 40 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House,

All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.

WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.

PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.

The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch, and residents of the interior, may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,

Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.

We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.

We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.

We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.

☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ag29-6m

BE HUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.

This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at EQUALLY LOW RATES.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st.
jan18-12m

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.

CASH CAPITAL $500,000..... SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMADTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual

DIRECTORS:

H. Huntington,	Charles Boswell	Job Allyn,
Albert Day,	Henry Kenny,	John P. Brace,
James Absolom,	Calvin Day,	Charles J. Russ.

H. HUNTINGDON, President.
C. H. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on Buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.

Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.

Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17 1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,

CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. a25-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, P. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. } A. MONSEMEGE, GEO. C. KENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
s19-1y 116 Canal st., New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.

All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 3

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

Intrinsic virtue alone could insure the success which this article has attained—for Rheumatism, Salt Rheum, Burns, Bruises, Stiff Joints, or Galls, Sprain, Pole Evil, and Swellings upon Horses, it has no equal for man or beast. No person will be without it who has once tested its value. "And with reference to the general estimation of the Mustang Liniment, I can cheerfully say that no article ever performed so many cures in our neighborhood as Hind. L. W. Sears, Ridgefield, Ct." S. Baten, Hyde Park, Vt., writes: "that the horse was considered worthless, (the case was sparvin,) but since the free use of the Mustang Liniment I have sold him for $150. Your Liniment is doing wonders up here." Such testimony is reaching us every day. The half is not told. Every family should have it. Beware of imitations. The genuine article is sold by all respectable dealers throughout the world.
mar.27 BARNES & PARK, Proprietors, New York.

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY

Rev. H. C. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. LEATHERS, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE J. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles-Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. HICKS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURILLA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Purser.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department	25 00
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instruments	5 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	10 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.

Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.

Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid right per cent. interest will be charged.

Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates, entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.

No deduction from fee bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal.

Books, stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.

Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.

Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.

All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.

The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 16th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.

The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.

All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College, A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that the Spring Session will begin the 9th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.

It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana. Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.

After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees,

J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASON, Secretary. jan 23-1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.

THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY, the 6th of October, 1856.

FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN H. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. B. HANCOCK, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLOUETT, D. D., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....50 00
Matriculation on entering College Department.....5 00

Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.

This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.

Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.

For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.

THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this Institution to the consideration of every parent. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught probably more thoroughly than any where else, outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, in point of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen. G. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas parish; E. Miller, Esq., and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. G. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, LA.

PRINCIPAL.....REV. WILLIAM McCALLEN, M. D.

THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and thorough. None but well qualified Assistants will be employed in the various Departments. The Religious training of the youth will be an object of primary importance. The Bible will be a text book, but all sectarianism will be scrupulously avoided. The discipline will be strict, but mild and parental. Spelling, Reading, and Compos

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER II. WHOLE NUMBER 374.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY APRIL 17, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP ST.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

[CONTINUED FROM OUR LAST.]

After living about nine years in Tennessee, I removed to Missouri and settled in the township of Belview, near the lead mines. Here was work for more preachers than were in the country, traveling or local. I found two eminent men of God who were traveling preachers in that country—Samuel Parker and David Young. The former a Presiding Elder, the latter a circuit preacher, having the charge of the circuit in which I settled. This was in 1807. I was happy to meet the two brethren, as I had been acquainted with them in former years. The work of God had begun and was going on in that country before I removed there; but I had visited that part and preached in the year before. Some of the preachers had been visiting them, a few times before; but little had been done. I was then a local preacher and had traveled one year on the Roaring river circuit in Tennessee, employed by the Presiding Elder, Rev. Wm. McKendree. I was an assistant preacher with brother Edge in care of the circuit. Being in a strange country, I determined to unite my little labors with the good brothers above named, and before the year was ended there was a good work in that part of the circuit, though we had to contend with opposition of various kinds. God owned his word and many were, I trust, soundly converted, under the preaching of a free and full salvation through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, who tasted death for every man. Living societies were raised in the country, and one in the settlement of Belview where I lived, which was large and happy in love to God and each other, having the mind of Christ and fellowship with one another. Our camp meetings were fruitful; circuit preaching, prayer and class meetings were regular, and generally very lively, and the Church prospered. A few of our sheep were stolen, put under the water, went in and came out, no better in faith or practice; but lost their christian fellowship and union with those they once loved. I believe they lost much and gained nothing, except that they now were not like other men, nor even as those Methodists. O what a change cold water makes on some men's feelings! But love is the fulfilling of the law. The love of God and man is the bond of christian union; and by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another. By their fruits ye shall know them. What fruits? Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, temperance. Not water, not immersion, which often separates those which God had joined together in love. May God save his flock from him who cometh not but for to steal and to kill and to destroy. O when will Christians all rally round the standard of love and cease to judge and condemn ons another on those non-essential points on which God has given every man liberty to think for himself. Love will unite all against sin and for holiness. The Christian loves holiness, because it is of God. He hates sin, because it is of the devil. He that pleads for holiness pleads the cause of God. He that pleads for sin must be devil's advocate. All doctrines, rules, practices, or usages in the Church that tear asunder or keep apart those that love God and keep his commandments, are not of God.

True Christians all love one another, their peculiarities, by-rules, or a difference in opinions on points or doctrine not essential to salvation, notwithstanding. Nothing but a willful sin can exclude a brother from their communion. The laws of God are, Ye shall or ye shall not—thou shalt in any wise or thou shalt in no wise. Thus we see when we refuse to obey a plain command we sin; but there is no plain command at what time we shall take the Lord's supper, whether by night or day, whether leaning, sitting, standing or kneeling, how much bread or wine we may take; but all is left optionary with the communicants; so also it is with baptism. We have no plain command, whether we shall use much water or little. Whether it shall be performed by night or day, in the house or in the wilderness, or how deep we must go in or whether we must or must not go under, be poured upon, or sprinkled with clean water. As in the Lord's supper, so in baptism; as it is not the putting away the filth of the flesh, it is therefore left to the conscience of them that receive it, as each receives for himself.

Reader, have I wearied you by saying so much about love. You will bear with me when I tell you that it is eternal life to my soul. It is the soul of my soul, and the life of my life. Give me that and I am eternally happy. I can ask nor want no more, and no less will do me. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him. O yes 'tis heaven to know my Savior.

The above doctrines, principles and feelings of my heart, have been the reason I now give for trying to preach the gospel of Christ my Redeemer. His yoke has been easy and his burden light to me. When traveling through rains, snows, high waters, swamps and canebreaks, I have found the promise true—"Lo I am with you to the end of the world." I lived six years in the settlement of Belview, now Washington county, Mo., in which time I saw a great and good work, from the fall of 1809 until I left that country. The work of God gradually increased and grew up more and more, under the faithful labors of the Lord's servants who traveled among us. They were men called of God. Of this I have no doubt, as their fruits were abundant and testified that they were called of God to preach. Many of their names are yet dear to me; but none more so than that holy man, Samuel Parker, who presided there several years. He was an able minister of the truth, as it is in Jesus. On every point he was plain, pointed, clear and powerful; his arguments were almost irresistible; all that heard him seemed deeply interested, finding nothing to say against the man, his address or doctrines. Even when he reproved, he had the approbation of all; he used the sharp two edged sword, but it was so tempered with kindness that every mouth was stopped. It is true, some said he was not much of a disciplinarian; but if I ever saw a man follow his blessed Lord and Master nearer in that one thing than brother Parker did, I do not know it. When I last parted with him I felt more than my tongue or pen can express, believing I should see him no more on earth; but my spirit was sustained by strong faith that we should shortly meet again and mingle our voices above as we had frequently done on earth. As brother Parker is now beyond the reach of flattery, there is no danger in speaking a little of his great worth. Brother J. Walker was appointed Presiding Elder after brother Parker, and the good work of the Lord prospered under his care and labor, he was a useful man, a self-denying, cross-bearing, persevering soldier of the kingdom, leaving wife and children, houses and lands for the Lord's cause, yet providing for his household. He pressed on me the duty of receiving deacon's orders, as I had been elected to that office some years before in Tennessee, but had felt difficult and backward to take upon me that responsibility; for I really thought a license to preach the gospel as high a stand as I was qualified to fill; but at his request I submitted with trembling and was ordained, Bishop Asbury and Bishop McKendree officiating. This was a solemn day to me. Lord, pardon thy unworthy servant wherein he has come short of filling the place and office assigned him on that day. After this I felt bound to take heed to my ways as a servant of the Church of God, to do all and every thing required in the word of God and our good discipline for the advancement of the Church which Christ the Lord had purchased with his own blood. And so it was, the Lord was my helper in providing plentifully for my wife and ten children, and at the same time enabling me to spend a large portion of my time in traveling with the elders and preachers to the camp meetings, quarterly meetings, and through the country, getting and trying to do good.

The great earthquake came on about the middle of December, 1811, about midnight, when the people generally were heavy with sleep. They were suddenly awaked, as if with the trump of God; for the earth reeled to and fro like a drunken man. Our houses seemed to jump and skip; the cattle and other beasts ran and roared; the fowls on the roost screamed and fell to the ground; the trees trembled, as with fear, clasping each other in the arms of their long branches as if trying to lean on each other for help. Women and children, arising from sleep, fled to affrighted husbands and fathers for safety, while an awful sound of a subterraneous thunder rumbled beneath the ground, seeming to warn the unbelievers that hell was moving from beneath to meet them at their coming. They cried aloud to God to have mercy on them, beseeching the Christians, whose hearts and confidence was stayed on God, to pray for them. Some ran, like the trembling jailor, falling on their knees crying out aloud, "Oh father, pray for me." This was an awful night. Some leaving their own houses and running to their neighbors, pale, with death-looks in their countenances, inquiring, "What is this that is coming upon us?" They saw no way of escape. The next morning was awful. One shock following another; the solid ground running in waves, resembling those on the face of the lake, in time of high winds. It really appeared as if the ground must be split and torn asunder by the dreadful convulsions that passed one after another; but God was with us, and I felt assured that we had a building eternal in the heavens that could not be shaken. That part of the country suffered but little when compared to that about New Madrid, where those shocks tore the earth asunder, changing the face of the country, raising lakes to dry land and timbered lands becoming wet and swamp lands, level beautiful prairies thrown into mounds and deep chasms. About this time it was easy to preach to the people; all seemed to be humbled and came together in crowds to hear what they must do to be saved. Many, I believe, were soundly converted while the earthquake influence lasted, which was, I think, for about three months, though not so severe as at first; only at times the shocks were felt. Afterward, when the danger seemed to be past, some forgot their promises and turned to their sins again.

After bro. Walker, bro. Samuel W. Thompson was appointed as Presiding Elder, and the good work of the Lord still prospered. What I mean by the good work of the Lord, was not merely taking in members, or as many changing his mind on notions about religion; but it was a spiritual change, wrought upon the hearts and souls of the people; so that they obtained the witness of sins forgiven through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven. This witness was generally preceded by a deep conviction of sin and a cry for mercy to Him that was able to save. And frequently many would crowd to the altar, where prayer was made for them, and they would arise filled with love, joy, and peace giving glory to God for his mercy to them.

THE ALABAMA CONFERENCE

MUST NOT BE DIVIDED.

Mr. Editor: I find in the Advocate, 6th inst., an article over the signature of J. A. Spence, having this caption—"The Alabama Conference must be Divided."

Differing as I do, in toto, from our esteemed brother, I wish to examine his arguments consecutively.

The reasons he assigns in favor of dividing our Conference, may, for the sake of convenience and brevity, be condensed thus: 1st "It is impossible for the bishop and his advisers to duly consider the wants of 200 ministers and 1500 churches, in the time allotted for our Conference sessions." 2nd. "Important business is often entirely neglected, or driven through so hurriedly as to be altogether unsatisfactory—reports from important committees are passed through, under whip and spur—Conference societies press upon the heels of each other for time."

3d. "The extent of our territory."

4th. "Absence from pastoral duty, arising from distance to and from the seat of Conference.

5th. "The Conference is a burden to most places within its bounds."

The first reason assigned in favor of division has in it, I think, little or no force. I am unable to see why the bishop is not as liable to commit five errors in stationing forty men, as he is to commit twenty-five errors in stationing two hundred men, which is proportionately the tha same. The Wesleyan Conference, in England, station six hundred preachers, and these all meet in one body. Brother Jonathan can certainly do as well by two hundred men as cousin John can by six hundred.

The second reason brought forward by brother S., is the neglect of important Conference business, or the hurried manner in which it is pushed through. I propose to answer this by a few interrogatories. Would not the same items of business come before a small Conference that come before a large one? Would not the same committees be required to report?—Would not the same Conference societies exist? The only advantage that a small Conference has over a large one, in the way of saving time, that I am able to see, is in the examination of character, and, perhaps, the saving of a few speeches.

The next reason presented in favor of division is, the extent of our territory. This, including as it does, mountain and sea board, I regard as highly advantageous, as it presents us with a pleasing variety of climate, water, and scenery, to suit the various conditions of health, &c., among our preachers. Under this head, bro. S. speaks of the distance our brethren of East Florida will have to travel to reach Macon, the seat of our next Conference session. Of course he means West Florida, as no part of East Florida belongs to the Alabama Conference. He says, "Perhaps no state under the sun can furnish a greater extent of miserable roads than Alabama." We have to travel these roads three or four months of the year on our circuits, and, surely we should not complain at encountering them for three or four days, or even a week, in going to and from Conference. If Alabama has bad roads, she has, as an offset to these, the best rivers in the world.

Bro. S. next mentions "Absence from pastoral duty, arising from distance to and from the seat of Conference, as another reason for division." This will appear very small indeed, when we call to mind the fact, that the distance from one extreme of our territory to another can be made in a little more than a week, even on horseback.

The last reason assigned is, "The conference is a burden to most places within its bounds." To show that the writer is mistaken on this point, all that is necessary is a simple statement of the fact, that, for the last ten years our Conference has not held two sessions in the same place; and it is well known that we have a number of invitations each year, or rather petitions, each one asking for the next session in the town or village from which it comes.—These petitions are not merely complimentary, but come from people who really want the Conference among them, and who feel that they are both able and willing to provide for it.

Several reasons might be urged against the division of our Conference. Let us briefly glance at three or four. One almost insurmountable difficulty in the way is to determine upon the line of division. A very slight examination of a map of our territory is sufficient to convince most of us that any line that can be drawn across our boundaries will either give two Conferences, very awkward in form, or else, throw our navigable rivers and more desirable country on one side and our poor mountainous regions on the other. We should not overlook the fact, that there are societies connected with the Conference, some chartered by the Legislature of the state, having funds belonging in common to the entire body. It is true that these funds can be divided, but not without considerable inconvenience. We have also our institutions of learning, which we love and cherish, built up and held as the common property of the Conference.

Last, but not the least, we should not look with indifference upon the influence that our Conference, as it now stands, exerts upon the entire Church in all her interests. I feel confident, from conversations with both the ministry and laity of the church, that a large majority of both, are opposed to the division of our Conference, believing that she can best promote the interests of the Church and the glory of God as she now stands.

J. C. HUCKABEE.

"THOPHILUS, OR THE TRIAL OF FAITH,"

A new book, just gone to press, on the subject of Baptism, in answer to Theodosia Ernest.

This book is written in the narrative style of Theodosia, with the design of showing the inconsistencies and absurdities of the Baptist faith and practice, and also the sophistries contained in Theodosia Ernest. It is intended as an antidote to the poison of false reasoning contained in that work. It addresses itself particularly to that class of mind—searchers after truth—who would be attracted and influenced by the style of argument contained in Theodosia. It is written in a style to invite and command also the attention of classic scholars. The logic is peculiarly lucid and attractive; it has a rugged, piquant strength, ornamented at times with a graceful foliage of poetic beauty. By its firmly constructed argument, and its extensive classic research, it challenges the criticism of the choicest scholarship of the age on the subject of baptism. The author of the book is a theologian—a classic scholar of uncommon attainments—a man of large reading—a mind of far more than ordinary genius—and the fruits of wide extended research and study are manifest in the pages of his book—Theophilus, or the Trial of Faith.

The first section of the book consists of an examination of the "Bible Revision" by Baptist divines.

The second is a trial of the Baptist canons of criticism—by reductio ad absurdum.

The third is an examination of the classical use of bapto and baptizo.

The fourth, fifth and sixth sections treat of the baptism of Christ, scripture baptisms, and the history of the ordinance.

The seventh section—"When Greek meets Greek then comes the tug of war"— is a controversy on the mode of baptism, with a review of classical evidence showing the absurdity of the Baptist mode of verbal criticism, and turning their weapons against their own creed and practice and revealing the weakness of their foundation.

The eighth section treats of infant baptism.

The ninth on close communion, showing great inconsistences.

Theodosia Ernest is examined and criticised, the arguments of that book answered, its sophistries are exposed, its history corrected, at various points in Theophilus.

To those who are interested in the subject of baptism, and wish to read a book written in a luminous, attractive, argumentative style, showing the fruits of study gathered by an earnest mind of very high order, the book now in press at Nashville—"Theophilus, or the Trial of Faith," is warmly recommended.

M.

TO "A MEMBER," ON THE MINUTES, &c.

Dear Brother: You are a brave good "Member." The office of censor is usually so unpleasant to men of refined feelings that few have the disposition to assume it. Thank you sir. A little more of the oil of grace and less of vinegar would have given a finer polish, if I may suggest. The 13th chap. of 1 Cor. would much improve "A Member's" religious feelings when he exercises his office.

You characterize the Minutes wrong when you refer to them as "a copy of the journals." They nowhere purport to be such—were not so intended.

Has "A Member" the right to exercise the office of censor till it is certain the document has a public character?

The preachers can make it their own by paying for the publication. What have you done, my brother, to make it your property? It has cost the committee one hundred and fifty dollars, which is cheap. Eleven dollars and fifty cents of that the preachers have paid. Not a cent of that from you, brother Censor. The poverty of your logic is only equaled by that of your charity. "It is not the beginning of an important work," because it has errors! Then the first steam engine, rail car, telegraph and printing press were not the beginning of important works, nor any thing human.

The 1st, 2nd and 5th errors resulted from having to run over 42 pages of manuscript for a name, all in four evenings. Had it been in the power of brother Harris to assist, the errors would not have occurred. The 3d and 4th errors correct themselves. Errors in reports were copied from printed copies; the one harped on corrects itself to the intelligent reader. The report on education was never seen by me.

As to the strangeness of the report of the secretary of the missionary society it is matter of taste, and the secretary chooses to follow his own rather than bro. "M's." In regard to errors in said report, the secretary denies that one appears in it. He reasserts, "the constitution of our society is lost."

We regret the thrust at our present and former treasurers. Not that they will suffer; their characters are above suspicion fortunately, and no doubt either of them would have explained any seeming inaccuracy in their reports, had "A Member" asked them. I only regret the effect of such insinuations among our lukewarm friends and positive enemies.

Thank you, my dear Member; get in a good humor and send us $5 to pay for the Minutes.

Very truly, yours, etc.,

W. P. BARTON.

WHAT IT TAKES TO FEED LONDON.

This vast metropolis eats an amount of food of which it is curious to realize the daily bringing in. The tableau is thus ingeniously drawn by a late writer:—"Let us imagine ourselves on the top of a tower, a mile high, in Hyde Park; we look off to the North, and we see a drove of cattle, seventy-two miles long, approaching the city; we look to the West, and we see a mass of bleating wool, twelve miles in length; again to the South, and we see a herd of swine coming toward us, whose driver is ten miles off; after these have arrived at their journey's end, a cloud approaches, which we find to be composed of turkeys, geese, chickens, and game of all sorts—and this extends over fifty-one acres. When we estimate the amount of fish consumed yearly, we find their numbers to be billions, and equal in bulk to the river Thames. And besides those articles of food, if all the hams, bacon, smoked beef, etc., were placed in a pile, they would form a pyramid, whose bases would be two hundred feet square, and twelve hundred and ninety-three feet high."

LETTERS FROM ABROAD.

Cairo, Egypt, Jan., 1858.

A RIDE TO HELIOPOLIS.

Donkey riding in this city is one of no small consideration. It is a trade with the Arabs, in which their wealth consists, and those who have the greatest number are richest in possessions. It is a most agreeable mode of conveyance to see sights and go about the city and its environs, which we could possibly have. Their motion is easy, and they are so well trained that they can nimble about amid the confusion of this bustling place, where the streets and bazaars are thronged with people, and the thoroughfares, where we meet droves of camels laden, enormous loads of timber, household furniture, boxes of goods, slabs of marble, and every sort of thing, which looks so formidable in these narrow streets that when the little creatures come in contact it seems almost impossible to get along without being thrown from the saddle; but with the skill of the donkey boys, who always go with them, we seldom meet with an accident. There are 30,000 of these animals kept in Cairo and its precincts. A few days ago it was well night evacuated of the choice ones by the arrival of the British troops, who called them to their aid in the desert going on to India. Our party secured a few to visit Heliopolis and ride through the land of Goshen, once occupied by the sons of Jacob, which is spread along near this ancient city, rich indeed in vegetation, "where thou sowest thy seed and waterest with thy foot as a garden of herbs." It is a beautiful country: in soil it resembles Louisiana along the coast, with rich green fields bordered with olives, grain already a foot high and very luxuriant, irrigated by the wells from which all the water is drawn by oxen and conveyed in the large skins for domestic uses, except what is carried away in large jars which their women support upon their heads. Here we see them at their wells, some filling their pitchers others their skins like those of ancient days, with the same oriental appearance peculiar to the East.

Our ride over the country connected with historic associations of the Bible, commencing with Genesis, Exodus, &c., so many thousand years ago and which wears a similar aspect, is intensely interesting. When we meet groups of Arabs in their oriental dress with their donkeys laden with sacks, the mind is transferred to the period when the sons of Jacob came into Egypt in the same way to buy corn when the famine was sore in the land, and we feel to live in bygone ages.

Heliopolis burst upon our sight, with a view of the obelisk which stands isolated and alone as the only conspicuous relic of antiquity to mark the site of that ancient city of the Temple of the Sun. Here the patriarch Jacob and his sons gazed upon its shaft with astonishment. It is one solid block of stone 60 feet high, standing upon a pedestal buried in the earth many feet, which has been removed so as to enable persons to walk around the shaft below. Wasps or a bee have almost buried the hieroglyphics in their own mud habitations all the way to the top and defaced its pictorial language; but there it stands a monument of past ages like a pharos of light between the old and new dispensations, amidst the fallen fanes, buried in the sands of the desert, alone in its solitary grandeur. An orangery and garden are near and some miserable Arab huts and a still more miserable group of wretched looking beings. The desert is seen upon one side as we ascended the hills composed of loose stones, sand and broken pottery, or relics of sunburt brick, which might have been ruins of ancient buildings, although no ruins like those around the environs of Rome and Naples are seen here. The materials for building are so slight they soon crumble away. We saw two large blocks of marble lying upon the ground, which might have adorned the palace of Cleopatra, which rose in oriental magnificence not far off. They were covered with hieroglyphics, one very plain and distinct. The temples or schools of science in which Moses was instructed in all the learning of the Egyptians—where Pythagoras, Plato and Eudoxus were taught, have no stone to mark the spot where they stood. From the hills above we had a view of the vast expanse of the desert and fertile valley over which the patriarch Abraham had led his camels and servants to escape the famine, and dwelt here with his beautiful wife Sarah, and which was once filled with these mysterious people so often referred to by the prophets, whose history is so little known and who have left behind them such monuments of antiquity and grandeur in its obelisks, pyramids, &c., as to throw into the shade those of all other nations in their durability and strength.

This was the famous city of On, where Joseph married Asceneth, the daughter of a priest, and ruled all the land of Egypt, rich in all the productions of the earth and elevated to the highest degree in its schools of philosophy and astronomy, imparting to the savans of Greece their knowledge to enlighten through the most polished nation upon earth by their superior intelligence.

JOSEPH AND MARY'S WELL.

Not far from this city is a well, which tradition has connected with the mother of our Lord, and not without some probability. It is a well of sweet water, on the great Roman highway leading into Assyria; and as the road is lined with wells in different positions to supply the wants of the people and irrigate the fields, this having the precedency over the rest it would be more likely, while coming into the country to escape the persecution of Herod and save the young child's life, they might have stopped at this well among the cool shades of the sycamore to refresh themselves in the heat of the day. The tree under which the superstitious say they sat is a curiosity indeed. Its trunk is broad, hollow and scaly, out of which branches seem to have sprung and died and others to shoot up from the roots, until its body has more the appearance of fragments of a board fence than a tree. The boughs spread out horizontally, forming a wide and expansive shade. It might be some centuries old. Whether this is the exact spot where the mother of our Lord rested or not, one thing is certain, their flight into Egypt, and it seems hallowed by the association. The prospect along the way is very beautiful. We passed through olive groves richly laden with fruit and fields of barley just shooting out into the ear. The palace with its splendid apartments and observatory, military station, tombs, mosques and minarets, with the citadel, the red mountain, the lofty palm and wide-spreading acacia and sycamore planted along the avenues leading into the city, fill out the landscape with a pleasing variety of oriental beauty finished by the long trains of camels with groups of Arabs, adding to the picturesque in every scene.

HOWLING DERVISHES.

We have been to see this curious sect, in their fanatical exercises—an exhibition of the most singular kind invented by mortals for the exorcism of their physical powers. We were led into a vestibule on reaching the place, a wide open space shaded by trees and surrounded by a wall with seats. We were favored with chairs, and after sitting for some time coffee, in little cups about the size of a wine glass, set in stands of metal, were brought us by one of the fraternity dressed in a calico robe with a sash around the waist and a tall red cap, with his hair flowing upon his shoulders. The Arabs were smoking around the room; some well dressed—old men in scarlet and white trowsers with long flowing robes and turbans. All varieties of dress were seen. They were smoking the chibouk—some with, long circular stems like the coils of a serpent, drew the exhilarating draught through water, which bubbled up as they inhaled the fascinating odor. All around the room the pipe was in full operation, reaching to the floor. We sat for half an hour when the company arose, and we were conducted through a long, narrow passage into a mosque, where a number were seated beneath a large dome in a circle upon the floor. Around the walls were hung rude instruments of music and a floating banner, with an Arabic motto. In the center of the wall was an arched recess, occupied by the priest as master of ceremonies, and before whom they all bowed as they came in, kissing the floor. A few advanced and kissed him.—After the circle of fifty was filled out a fine looking young Arab arose and began to chant, responded to by a few with a low guttural sound. His voice rose higher and higher and he became eloquent in his theme, and his enthusiasm kindled into rapture as he raised his hand and eyes to heaven. This was contained full half an hour, the charmed circle bowing their heads to the floor in response. When he caused the circle arose to their feet by an intimation of the priest, who went around and had their shawls and cloaks removed for other exercises. Soon two young men came in with tall drab colored hats, without any rim, trowsers, full skirts, and close vests. They stepped into the middle of the ring and began to spin round like tops, with arms extended and their skirts forming a circle. Music and beating of drums through all the ceremonies and the circle keeping time by bowing their heads almost to the floor, chanting in the meantime, and the priest going around as if giving encouragement.—Their notes became more wild and terrific as they proceeded, and their long hair floating upon their shoulders added to their wild, maniacal expression. They moved in harmony like trees bending beneath a gale of wind, the young men in the center still swimming round with their eyes shut. Their notes at length became louder, and their aspect hideous. Language can not do justice to such a frightful scene of fanaticism. It appeared as though their bodies must break—that the human frame was incapable of such contortions and overwrought exertions. The whirlers were relieved once by substitutes. At length the priest broke the spell and they stopped; except two, who still kept howing as if they had no power to cease. It was frightful beyond description. I felt the most painful emotions of pity; for it seemed as though the poor creatures were completely overpowered by fanaticism. One ran against the wall and struck his head with force enough to kill him, only he was caught by two others who held him back; but he still made efforts to beat his head against the wall. Overcome at last by his exertions he felt helpless upon the floor and lay like one dead. The other had already fallen, and we left them with their dishevelled hair floating over their brows and their delicate forms extended as if paralyzed by the hand of death. And this tragical farce is repeated every Friday—an exhibition no rational being could even wish to see but once. O! what gratitude we owe God for our birth and education in a christian land, and especially in our loved America, the "home of the free."

A RIDE TO THE PETRIFIED FOREST.

On the borders of the desert, about five miles from the city we found the petrified forest, as it is called, but which is nothing more than sand hills, strewn with fragments of petrified wood, which at first glance you would mistake for stones. These are of all sizes and shapes, scattered thickly about as if by some convulsion of nature out of their natural position, and forming one of the most singular phenomena in the world. Not a tree or shrub is growing near them; yet there they are showing by all the form of bark, knots, roots and stumps the vegetable kingdom to which they really belong, without mistake, but as solid as rocks of adamant. I gathered as many as I could bring to show the specimens of this wonderful forest.

The prospect on our return was most beautiful. Whole caravans of camels laden with the treasures of India, met the eye—Cairo in the distance, with the valley of the Nile—the Red Mountain on the borders of the desert, with its central rocks of lighter color, which reflected the sunbeams in the evening so brilliant that it reminded us of the fire in the bush which Moses saw. In the narrow opening between this and the sand hills are the tombs of the Caliphs, with the graceful mosque and minaret; and just as we reached them the most brilliant Egyptian sunset threw its golden hue over the dome, with a few fleecy clouds retaining its rays in relief perfectly dazzling, while the canopy of heaven blended its peculiar eastern azure of the desert with a sky so clear, so transparent, that we could look away into its inner depths without the shadow of a mist to intercept our view. The sky in the desert has a submarine blue, unlike any other we have seen.

S. B. THOMAS.

Dispensing with Agents.—It is stated upon what seems reliable authority, that the managers of the American Sunday School Union have determined upon a total abandonment of the collecting agency system as soon after the first of May as may be consistent with their obligations to those now in commission. The New York Evangelist has a lengthy article on this matter, and comes to the conclusion that, sooner or later, all our benevolent societies must take the same course, mainly on account of the large cost of such agencies.

Repentance.—True repentance consists in the heart being broken for sin, and broken from sin; some often repent—yet never reform; they resemble a man traveling in a dangerous path, who frequently starts, and stops, but never turns back.—Thomson.

When a man unites with the church, he should not come saying, "I am so holy that I think I must go in among the saints," but "O brethren, I find I am so weak and wicked that I cannot stand alone; so, if you can help me, open the door and let me enter."

A lie always needs a truth for a handle to it else the hand would cut itself which sought to drive it home upon another. The worst lies, therefore, are those whose blade is false, but whose handle is true.

Men are willing to be thought sinful in supposition; but in special case they are disposed to praise themselves. They therefore confess their depravity and defend their conduct. They are wrong in general, but right in particular.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$3 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1858.

The General Assembly of the (O. S.) Presbyterian Church will, next month, be in session in New Orleans. This is a large body; not local, but, as its name implies, general in its representation of that Church. Its deliberations will be graced by some of the best sanctified talent of the country. Our citizens will have the high privilege, social and religious. Their pulpits will enjoy the able, evangelical ministrations of these visiting brethren and their homes be blessed by their intercourse. Such visitors leave a blessing behind them—the feeling of an enlarged liberality and a savor of godliness. The thirteen Methodist churches of New Orleans will enable our congregations to enjoy a fair proportion of the benefit, while the private hospitalities of our friends and members will be proffered in the spirit of those who consider acceptance a favor.

Oriental Painting.—Our young friend, Robert Downer, who moves about on crutches, has presented us with a very neat specimen of his handiwork, in what is called "Oriental Painting." The scripture text, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God," is printed in plain, tastefully colored letters, and enclosed in a neat gilt frame. A naked nail was convenient and it was hung over our desk, in full, momentary view, and for admonition. The art is cheap in its materials, simple in its practice and readily learned. It may also be beneficial to those who, though unfortunate in limb, would be independent in life. He teaches it for $5 at his office, 86 Carondelet street.

The Magnet is the title of a weekly paper lately enterprised in this city: the third number is before us—Denis Corcoran, editor and proprietor. It is dated as a Sunday morning paper, but we understand that it is put to press Saturday evening. The Magnet is a fine looking sheet, and rich in news and literary matter. The publisher pledges "a paper for the social circle—the family fireside; and while it will essay to attract everything to its pages calculated to improve the mind, to instruct and to amuse: it will repel from them with still greater force everything calculated to offend virtue or to injure."

Price $3. per annum.

CONCERTS OF SACRED MUSIC.

THE ORATORIO.

There be many that say, Who will shew us any good? The instinctive craving for enjoyment and the world's poverty of resource, are illustrated in the matter of concerts of sacred music. The papers of last Saturday morning trumpeted the forthcoming concert of the evening. It was to be the great event. At random, we clip from one of them:

"It is not probable that many of us will live to hear again that grand piece of sacred music, the Stabat Mater, given in full, by such a combination of talent as M'me Frezzolini, M'me Strakosch, Signors Peruzzi and Scola, and each of our home musicians as Professors Cripps, Le Blanc, and Brand, and the Academy of Music and the Philo Club. Some seats are yet to be had at Mr. Gabisch's on Canal street, and Mr. Werlein's on Camp street."

Friend Werlein sent us two tickets "for two." Liking sacred music and having heard that Rossini had pronounced Frezzolini the best living rendeser of his masterpiece, Stabat Mater, we went. Odd Fellow's Hall rarely presented such fullness—at $1 50 for secured seats.

A good while ago we were baited in to hear M'me Parodi sing, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," from the "Messiah" of Handel. M'me Strakosch repeated it, Saturday evening. We liked it no better. "Ave Maria," by Frezzolini—no better. The chorus of Stabat Mater was really deep and fine—performed by "our home musicians."

While the Stabat was under way—some of the vast crowd gaping with weariness, some with wonder and others affecting admiration, to get back their money's worth—we left in disgust. The press and public afterwards stated that it was the grandest performance of sacred music ever done in the crescent city.

The fact is, our ear has been spoiled. These Italian singers and artists cannot reach our conception, for we have, for several years, preached to the negroes. Let any of those people, who crowded Odd Fellows' Hall Saturday evening at $1 00 and $1 50 ahead, go with us to St. Paul's of a Sunday afternoon and we will give them better song, more soul stirring music, and charge them nothing—absolutely nothing! Seats free.

At St. Paul's the programme is simple. Perhaps a touch of hard names might help it out: say "Tenè Fons," (Come thou Fount, etc.,) p. 447. Tune pitched by Magnus Gulielmus (Big William—not to abbreviate further) and hymn carried by one thousand African voices, with three galleries thrown in. There is concert for you! Signor Peruzzi never led the like of it.

The "Quam Tedious"—(How tedious, etc.,) p. 441, raised by Meisinas Von Alexandrinus, (alias, Aleck,) with the same vocal accompaniment, would eclipse or rather drown out Strakosch, Frezzolini, Scola, Von La Hache, with all their combination.

Miss Bremer, when in this city, made St. Paul's colored church one of her special points of visit and observation, and wrote thereon the most readable chapter of her book of travels.

While Mr. Thackeray was lecturing, we invited him to go around and see and hear some things. He went and looked in at the door, upon a larger audience than any of his own. Was the author of Snobs too snobbish to go in? Was it too close a view of Africa for Mr. Jellaby? He fancied them rather at the distance of Boorioboolagha.

Second concerts are a sham, at Odd Fellow's Hall. While St. Paul's is open, we shall not throw away another hour, even on a free ticket, hearing Frezzolini and such like. Give us music that touches the heart as well as the ear.

"THE COMMON PEOPLE HEARD HIM GLADLY."

The holy evangelist, in these words, conveys a fine description of the preaching of Jesus. It is also the highest eulogy and a fit, authenticating sign of a divine mission. The "common people"—the masses—were his hearers; and however others were affected, they heard him gladly.

Wickliffe's version of the sentence of Matthew which is read, "The poor have the gospel preached to them" is—"Pore men ben taken to prechynge of the gospel."

The primitive translator might be supposed to have understood the text as meaning that one of the signs of the kingdom of the Messiah was, that such "poor men" as the twelve had been called to be its evangelists; as if the wonder was that gospel preachers had been taken from the poor.

Or another meaning might be drawn from the antique version: The poor were not only preached to—the preachers not only went to preach to the poor—but the poor were taken to hear the preaching. The poor sought to hear the gospel for themselves, or were led to it by those who had already heard. When John was preaching in the wilderness multitudes "went out to him." Great numbers "followed" Jesus from the whole regions round about him.

In any case, Jesus' audience were not fashionable or select; nor were those of his forerunner. And this was due, not to the times—for there was a fashionable class in Palestine eighteen hundred years ago, as different from "the common people," as now there is in England or America—but to the subject and manner of preaching.

"The common people"—that is the substratum on which social institutions rest. Whatever practice, or sentiment, or conviction begins there, works its way up. Whatever, of either, does not substantially rest thereon, is weak, superficial and ephemeral.

"The common people"—are not only the final, but fairest arbiters of the true and right. To them, truth and right may appeal for best human hearing. Correct general principles suit their case. For them there is no need of special legislation. They have no factitious interests to support, no exceptional privileges to maintain against reformation; no peculiar prejudices. What is good on the whole, is good for the common people. They are open to hear it, free to consider it.

It was meet that the God-man, humbling himself to our form and home, to teach the way and the life, should address mankind in their normal and massive character—should pass by the petty distinctions of caste and grade and title, things of human origin, and draw near to "the common people."

This divine Days-man, this Mediator from heaven, comes to save a world, and does not, therefore, accredit himself to Herod, or Pilate, or Cæsar, but to "the common people." And this, before the present advanced political notions prevailed of the worth and rights of the individuals who make up the masses.

If a scheme of redemption, originating in heaven and administered by a Divine Person, is to come down among men and touch ground, how could it be otherwise?

Critics sometimes speak disparagingly of the ministry that is followed by the crowd—the Church of the people, whose congregations, though large, are largely made up of "the common people;" whose free seats are seldom graced by the elite, fashionable leaders of society. Let that censure continue! Blessed is the Church and ministry entitled to it.

One has well said: "The literary, the philosophical, the rich, the political great men of that day, did not think much of Christ; but he had such a sweet way of carrying himself around Jerusalem, that whenever he went into a house to sit down and rest, all the vagabonds and wretches came round about him, as though he was their patron. They felt that 'somebody cares for me.'"

Ministers, don't get proud, shooting over the heads of the "common people" in your sermons or passing by them in your visitations. They were your Master's hearers.

Churchmen, don't get ambitious of rich and learned and titled congregations. The Church of a class can not be God's Church.

THE MEDIATOR.

No theoretic errors are so quickly felt and seriously, as those which inculcate wrong or inadequate views of Christ, in all his offices.—Though small the divergence from scripture truth may appear and glossed over with fine sayings, it soon and surely works out moral death. Whereas a good deal of other sort of theoretic error may consist with life and prosperity, where they hold the Head—Jesus Christ, in his true character.

A writer describing the religious deadness before the Wesleyan reformation, in England, draws a brief but faithful picture of the state of things:

"The present modish turn of religion looks as if we had no need of a Mediator, but that all our concerns with God were managed with him as an absolute God. The religion of nature makes up the darling topics of our age; and the religion of Jesus is valued only for the sake of that, and only so far as it carries on the light of nature, and is a bare improvement of that kind of light. All that is restrictively Christian, or that is peculiar to Christ (everything concerning him that has not its apparent foundation in natural light, or that goes beyond its principles) is waived, and banished, and despised."

Rev. Joseph Travis.—His numerous friends will be glad to learn that this aged servant of God still lives. He writes us, March 30: "I am glad to state that my dropsy is getting better and I am able to be out of bed occasionally. * * My own P. E. came and preached for me and administered the sacrament, many of my friends partaking with me, among whom was a goodly number of Presbyterians with their pastor, who aided in the service. We had a gracious season—a time of refreshing from the Lord."

METHODIST PRESS.

The Pacific Methodist, 10th ult., continues to hold a healthy and hopeful tone on the progress of the Church in California. There is no special news. The following, from the leader, shows that they have a sure foundation. It is a sentiment even more significant than statistics:

No intelligent believer in the Christian revelation can despair of the world's salvation. If that revelation be true, God is pledged to bring it to pass. One word which we know that He has spoken is sufficient to resolve every doubt, to silence every complaint. Were the moral condition of the world a thousand fold less hopeful than it is, the sincere believer would find no difficulty in expecting its ultimate deliverance, if he is assured God has promised it. Here is the sure foundation for our hopes: the promise of the Lord. Christianity is more powerful now than ever before; she possesses more wealth, numbers more votaries, and (as we believe) is doing more for the spread of her doctrines and beneficient influences than ever before. Yet our hopes are not based upon her wealth, nor upon her numbers, nor upon the wisdom of the plans she has devised and put into operation for the dissemmination of the Gospel; but upon the essential vitality, living power, and diffusive character of the Gospel itself.

The Western Christian Advocate answers the inquiry of a correspondent as to the character of the worship we should pay to Jesus Christ. The inquiry was substantially, whether, in our acts of worship, we should discriminate between the divine and human nature of our Lord, worshiping his divine nature only, or whether we should worship him in his compound character, as a being possessed both of divine and human nature:

The human and the divine nature are inseparably joined together in the person of the Lord Jesus. He will remain to all eternity what he was and is, "God manifested in the flesh." The only way in which finite man can hold intercourse with the infinite Spirit is through such a manifestation, and through this manifestation God reveals to us all we can know of his nature; so that he that has seen Christ has seen the Father. In the sense of an infinite, all-pervading Spirit, "no man hath seen God at any time"—this is impossible in the very nature of things. Whenever God at any time has revealed himself to men, it has been through some medium adapted to their finite capacity. The Word clothed himself with the appearance of a man when speaking to Abraham, even before he had permanently clothed himself in flesh to dwell among men. While it is true, therefore, that in the sense of a pure, infinite Spirit, no man has ever seen God, or ever can see him, it is also true that "the only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him;" and we suppose that no period will ever come in the ages of eternity when men will see God only in the face of Jesus Christ. For although a time will come when his office of intercessor will cease, the time will never come when he will cease to be "God manifested in the flesh."

God in condescention to our capacity and our wants, not for the purpose of being better acquainted with us, but that we may become better acquainted with him, speaks to us through a human voice, looks upon our sorrows through human eyes, listens to our wants through human ears, manifests his love through human affection, shows us his compassionate kindness through human pity, and carries the lamp of life through the dark valley of death in a human hand.

The uncreated glory of the Father, his holiness and justice, which, if brought directly in contact with a fallen human spirit, would be a "consuming fire," when shining through the person of the Lord Jesus as our great atoning sacrifice, become a mild and heavenly radiance, which human eyes may look upon and live.

To love the Lord Jesus Christ, therefore, is to love God; to serve him is to serve God; to obey him is to obey God; to honor him is to honor God; to worship him is to worship God; and all access to God is through him. Hence our Lord himself declares, "No man cometh to the Father but by me. If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him. Philip saith unto him, Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Show us the Father? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me?" John xiv, 6-10.

When we worship Jesus Christ, therefore, we worship God with a distinctness of apprehension, as to his individuality of being, which we could not have only through the doctrine of God manifested in the flesh; and this distinctness of conception is all important to any correct idea of accountability, or duty to love and obey.

Zion's Herald, remarking on a book lately published—"Lost Chapter of American Methodism"—says:

The German-Irish origin of the American Methodists is clearly shown—a fact which was first ascertained, we believe, in this paper—the Wesleyan emigrants being Palatines, or persons who had previously emigrated from Germany to Ireland, and thence to America—just as the Puritan Pilgrims emigrated from England to Germany and thence to New England.

Rev. J. S. R. Clarke, a member of the Virginia Conference, is contributing a series of papers to the Richmond Christian Advocate on the propriety of a larger infusion of the lay element into our secular-ecclesiastical affairs: thinks, for their good, the laity have not fellowship enough in the active and progressive or, "if you please, the aggressive movements of the Church:"

But it is necessary for our present purpose to state this truth, that the great and legitimate design of ecclesiastical government is Christian fellowship in the spread of the gospel of the church. There are three reasons for this design,—the benefit of self, the benefit of others, and the benefit of self in the benefit of others. And it must be observed that the greater the activity of the laity in such fellowship, without encroaching upon the scriptural prerogatives of the ministry, the greater the development of their Christian character is likely to be, as well as the more rapid the spread of the church, with all its benign agencies for good.

The Christian Advocate, of New York, thus describes the intellectual character of the late Bishop Waugh:

Without any unique trait of intellect which could give him the reputation of genius, he was a sound thinker, a dignified and, at times, a most powerful preacher; and if he possessed not that highest style of wisdom which originates great measures, or, by sagacious combinations, meets great emergencies, yet did he possess, in a degree seldom equalled, the more important wisdom called prudence; more important at least, in his own official responsibilities. We think we can say we never knew him excelled in this respect.

The Texas Christian Advocate indulges in pleasant and pious April morning reflections—the analogy of the season to that state when God shall make all things new:

The analogy is striking and beautiful between the renewing power of the spring season, and that general spiritual renewal which shall bring all nations under the gentle dominion of the "Prince of Peace."—When "they shall learn war no more;" when the sweet and beautiful charity of God shall be as prevalent and transforming in the souls, tempers, and manners of men, as the April sunshine now is in nature. When the "fruits of the Spirit" shall be as abundant and delightful to the spiritual appetites of man, as the fruits of the earth to his natural appetites.

But when the final restitution of all things shall come, and all our misery shall be exchanged for joy, and all deformity shall give way to harmony and beauty—when the winter season of the world shall give place to the dawn of the first spring morning of the resurrection—"this mortal shall put on immortality"—"there shall be no more curse"—"and God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away," O! cannot sorrow be endured for this night, when joy cometh in that morning!

The St. Louis Advocate takes this view of one of the benefits of itineracy to a preacher:

Besides this there is an actual and very great advantage to the preachers themselves in the constant travel and frequent exchange of work to which they are subjected. Motion prevents stagnation. Let a man remain for many years at the same village, preaching to the same little squad, under unvarying circumstances, he will become tired of the sound of his own voice, and every body else will be tired of it too. There will be nothing to inspire him, nothing to spring his mind to great exertion. Everything is monotonous and the man stagnates. With the latterant, on the contrary, every day the scene is changing. He encounters fresh incidents, comes in contact with strange men, and has intercourse with all varieties of intellects, so that if there is anything at all in the man it will be jostled out of him.

COME INTO COURT.

Pardon us, ye lawyers, for saying it—the law is a labyrinthal institution.

Under the head of Courts, the papers announce the result of a trial for divorce, in which the lady obtained a verdict; and this reminds us how we were called into court and got an insight.

One day, not long ago, as this editor was reading proof, not troubling any body, a confidence looking man, with whiskers, stood at his elbow.

"Is this Rev. Mr. ——?" We answered to the name. "I've come for you. You are wanted in Court—Sixth District—if you please; a little business there for you."

"Who sent you for me?"

"Read that;" and he handed us this document:

SIXTH DISTRICT COURT OF NEW ORLEANS.

The State of Louisiana—Parish of Orleans.

To the Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans:

You are hereby commanded, in the name of the State of Louisiana, and the Sixth District Court of New Orleans, to attach the body of [this Editor,] so that you have him before this Court at 4 o'clock * * * to answer for a contempt in neglecting or refusing to attend before the same as a witness in the case of R. vs. K.

Witness the Honorable S. K. Howell, Judge of said Court, this * * day of * * * 1858. * * * * Clerk.

Then was brought to mind another document found on the desk a few days before—a summons: we knew nothing of Knight vs Knight: glanced at it—forgot it.

"Got summons to-ther day—left here—" growled whiskers.

"Y-e-s, found this thing on my desk, but thought it was all over."

"Not by some," was the reply, and then and for the first time we carefully read the summons to "appear" &c, "then and there to testify" &c, and "hereof you are not to fail, under the penalty of $250."

We began to feel for our last dollar. Softly and in our best manner, to Whiskers, "What do you reckon the Judge will have to say: what will he do, friend?"

"See when you get there: fine, or commit to jail for contempt—both, maybe."

The "contempt" paper (by the way it impressed us as one of the strongest worded documents we had ever seen,) named 4 o'clock; it was then two. Resolved to take judgment by the forelock, we rose to start. "Too late—case passed—witnesses dismissed because you was'nt on hand. Four the time—Judge will have something to say to you then."

The functionary of law, just in there, showed a disposition to magnify his office. We had heard of habeas corpus: this might be one—"What do you call this?"

"Tachment."

The omnibus was passing, and we stept in—pulled out the paper and read it on the way. What could we say? There was no falling back on the Georgia plea: "guilty, but drunk." Sober as the judge, we were on the way to confront. Thought on the judge's points—had preached the gospel to him—if things got to their worst, might say, "Brother Howell."

In a few minutes the omnibus had rolled over the square pavement of Chartres street, and landed us at the grim old building. At the corner was a tempting stand of Havana fruit. Nothing like eating to keep up one's spirits. Invested a picayune, and fell to musing on what the poet Thompson said of the gelid, mellow fruit. He of the Seasons—which matters not, for the Anaan, as he terms it, is good at all seasons:

——"Oft in humble station dwells
Unboastful worth, above tastidious pomp.
Witness, thou best banana, thou the prid
Of vegetable life, beyond whate'er
The poets imaged in the golden age:
Quick let me strip thee of thy tutty coat,
Spread thy abrosial stores and feast with Jove!"

If Lopez had taken Cuba, bananas would have been cheaper; but Lopez did'nt—he was garroted—— and just there our soliloquy, the banana and the flight of steps to the Sixth District Court ended together.

The Judge, a small man, sat in a huge chair. We scanned his features: amiable! A lady in black and a few lawyers inside the bar—no witness on the stand. We listen and hear "Knight—Knight." It must be our Knight—we are in time! and soon on the stand.

Lawyer—"Do you know Rev. Mr. ——, of Alabama?"

Knew him well. And now, thought we, our friend is in some scrape again—mixed up in this case. But they only wanted to know whether he could marry people. He could. Counsel nodded to other counsel, who nodded back. Judge nodded. This editor nodded. And that was all! Having done duty, we put the case of the strong document to the leading lawyer.

"An attachment issued for you, I suppose."

We supposed so, too. Very strong language indeed; what of it?

"O pshaw—nothing—tut, give yourself no concern—I'll see to that—O, nothing."

Language is inadequate to convey the smallness he made of this most emphatic process of law, lining and jailing (in prospect) and sending a man after us." All nothing—gammon!

Relieved, we wandered forth through the Courts, meditating on the law and all its paraphernalia. Look at the judges, inferior and superior, federal and state; lawyers, sheriffs, clerks of all grades, justices, constables, deputies. What a host! Look at their archives, count the hangers-on and witnesses. Consider their processes and pleadings, briefs, injunctions, writs, judgments and juries. No department of society so much needs radical reform. Here civilization shows its weakness, if not its vice. Cumbrous, complicate, costly—what an outlay of men and means it takes to keep this machinery in unsatisfactory operation! Heaps upon heaps statutes, mouldy and misty, accumulate. Indirectness is the rule, delay the way, uncertainty the end. Here shine and are absorbed the brightest intellects of every age. Men of the bench and bar are proverbially so. Is not the result vastly disproportioned to the extent and expensiveness of the machinery in motion?

The church and its machinery is the cheapest and most efficient organization the sun ever shone upon.

The wonder is that preachers ever turn lawyers, and not (as too seldom happens) that lawers become preachers.

DELEGATES

ELECT TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE, TO CONVENE IN NASHVILLE, TENN., MAY 1, 1858.

Western Virginia.—Samuel Kelly, S. K. Vaught, Stanton Field, 3.—Reserves, G. B. Poage, C. M. Sullivan.

Kansas Mission Conference.—Nathan Scarritt, William Bradford, 2.—Reserves, T. Wallace

Kentucky.—John H. Lina, John G. Brace, Lozenzo Dow Huston, William C. Dandy, John C. Harrison, George W. Brush, 6.—Reserves, Robert Hiner, Edmund P. Backner.

St. Louis.—Joseph Boyle, David R. McAnally, Thomas T. Ashby, J. T. Peery, Enoch M. Marvin, D. A. Leeper, H. S. Watts, 7.—Reserves, Charles B. Parsons, Wesley Browning, Wm. M. Prottsman.

Louisville.—Nathaniel H. Lee, Francis A. Morris, Zachariah M. Taylor, Edward Stevenson, Albert H. Redford, Robert Fisk, 6.—Reserves, James H. Bristow, James S. Wools.

Tennessee.—John B. McFerrin, John W. Hanner, Alexander R. Erwin, Alexander L. P. Green, Fountain E. Pitts, Thomas Maddin, John F. Hughes, Thomas W. Randle, Adam S. Riggs, Moses M. Henkle, William C. Johnson, Samuel D. Baldwin, 12.—Reserves, Joseph B. Wear, Ferdinand S. Petway, Samuel S. Moody.

Missouri.—William G. Caples, Andrew Monroe, W. H. Anderson, Tison Dines, E. Robinson, 5.—Reserves, P. M. Pinckard, B. R. Baxter.

Memphis.—E. C. Slater, Thomas L. Boswell, Michael J. Blackwell, George W. D. Harris, Guilford Jones, Joseph H. Brooks, Samuel Watson, William McMahon, Nathan Sullivan, Francis A. Owen, 10.—Reserves, Phillip Tuggle, Thomas Joyner, Arthur Davis.

Holsten.—Elbert L. Sevier, Wm. Hicks, Thos. K. Mansey, E. E. Wiley, James Atkins, Rufus M. Stevens, Wm. Robeson, 7.—Reserves, William C. Graves, Wm. C. Daily.

Arkansas.—Lewis P. Lively, Thomas Stanford, Stephen Carlisle, 3.—Reserves, John Cowle, John M. Steel.

Washita.—A. Hunter, William P. Ratcliffe, Augustus R. Winfield, William Moore, 4.—Reserves, Russell M. Morgan, John H. Blakely.

Virginia.—David S. Doggett, William A. Smith, Leroy M. Lee, Leonidas Rosser, John E. Edwards, William B. Rowzie, George W. Carter, George W. Langhorne, William W. Bennett, Robert Michaels, Joseph H. Davis, 11. Reserves, Wm. H. Wheelwright, James Coulling, Jacob Manning.

Mississippi.—David M. Wiggins, Levi Pearce, John G. Jones, Charles K. Marshall, Benjamin M. Drake, Lewell Campbell, Henderson H. Montgomery, John Lusk, 8.—Reserves, Henry J. Harris, Wm. H. Watkins, James Walton.

Alabama.—Thomas O. Summers, Jefferson Hamilton, Oliver R. Blue, Archelaus H. Mitchell, Frederick G. Ferguson, Edward Wadsworth, Thomas J. Koger, George Shaeffer, Joseph J. Hutchinson, T. W. Dorman, Christopher D. Oliver, Phillip P. Neely, 12.—Reserves, Josh. T. Heard, Ebenezer Hearn, James A. Heard.

Indian Mission Conference.—John Harrell, Wilson L. McAllister, 2.—Reserve, David B. Camming.

South Carolina.—Wm. M. Wightman, Whatcoat A. Gamewell, Albert M. Shipp, Hugh A. C. Walker, Robert J. Boyd, Wm. A. McSwain, Nicholas Talley, John W. Kelly, James Stacy, Charles Betts, 10.—Reserves, Wm. P. Mouzon, Hilliard C. Parsons.

Georgia.—Samuel Anthony, John W. Glenn, Wm. J. Parks, Lovick Pierce, Jesse Boring, Alfred T. Mann, James E. Evans, G. P. Pearce, James P. Payne, Wm. J. Sasnett, Ed. H. Myers, Walter Knox, Walter R. Branham, 13.—Reserves, Osborn L. Smith, W. M. Crumley, Josiah Lewis.

East Texas.—Clayton C. Gillespie, J. W. Fields, S. A. Williams, John B. Tullis, Napoleon W. Burkes, 5.—Reserves, Jefferson Shook, James T. P. Irvine.

North Carolina.—David B. Nicholson, Wm. Barringer, Charles F. Deems, N. H. D. Wilson, R. T. Heflin, Wm. Closs, Peter Doub, Numa F. Reid, 8.—Reserves, Irn T. Wyche, Charles P. Jones.

Florida.—Thomas M. Gardner, Simon P. Richardson, Peyton P. Smith, Josephus Anderson, John Mills, 5.—Reserves, Alexander Graham, Samuel Woodberry.

Texas.—Robert Alexander, John W. Phillips, Josiah W. Whipple, Wm. H. Seat, Robert W. Kenion, Mordecai Yoll, Wm. C. Lewis.—Reserves, Daniel Morse, D. Carle, Asbury Davidson.

Louisiana.—Robert J. Harp, Stephen J. Davies, Holland N. McTyeire, Henry C. Thweatt, James A. Ivey, 5.—Reserves Richmond Randall, Lewis A. Reed.

The Pacific Conference did not elect delegates, owing to the distance from the seat of the Conference, and the expense attending the journey.

Dr. Henry Holmes, an old citizen, died Sunday morning last. Dr. H. had for years been a local preacher, and in the tract cause manifested a lively interest. He spent much time in the markets and other public places, distributing tracts, personally. We learn that his will provides for this useful cause, to the extent of a bequest of $10,000.

Rev. Jesse Fulton, sending an order to the Depository, April 5, for Sabbath-school books, at Livonia, La., says:

I was much pleased yesterday, on arriving at the Church to find quite a number persons listening to the recitation of the Bible class. Bro. McArthur, I think, is doing a good work with his class. There are quite a number young and old persons belonging to it.

Old Humphrey.—The last official act of Lord Palmerston was to send a donation of $500 to Mrs. Mogridge, the widow of the admirable writer so long known as "Old Humphrey."

THE GREAT AWAKENING.

The New York Times, says:

"The great wave of religious excitement which is now sweeping over this nation, is one of the most remarkable movements since the reformation. From every hamlet and village and town; from the forests of Maine, the crowded city-ports, the manufacturing towns, the new cities of the West; from the villages of the Southwest, and even from the mines and mountains of California, we have constant reports of the profound religious feeling and interest of the people on this great subject. Travellers relate that on cars and steamboats, banks and markets, everywhere through the interior, this matter is an absorbing topic."

There is another fact worthy of note. This general and simultaneous awakening has not resulted from the employment of extraordinary instrumentalities. No Whitefield has gone through the land with ringing voice, crying "repent and believe the gospel," to gathering thousands. The journal, heretofore quoted, says:

"All this great movement goes on moreover quietly; there is but little nervous excitement or extravagance so far as we have heard. The machinery of revivals which supported the older movements is not in use; the 'revivalist preachers' have not appeared and we trust will not appear."

The American Presbyterian, in speaking of the noon prayer-meeting at Jayne's Hall, Philadelphia, says:

"No man there—no man, perhaps, living or dead—has ever seen anything like it. On the day of Pentecost Peter preached. Luther preached, and Livingstone, Wesley, and Whitefield, and the men of fire of the great Western Revival of 1801. Great spiritual movements have been usually identified with some eloquent voice. But no name, except the Name that is above every name, is identified with this meeting."

Similar is the language of the New York Journal of Commerce:

"This religious movement is characterized by features which give in the impress of a Divine origin, and to ascribe it to human agency is little short of blasphemy. On many former occasions, great clerical demonstrations have been made, and all the exertions put forth which are usually resorted to for the purpose of awakening public attention—but with as little effect as when the false prophets cried all day long, 'Baal, hear us.' Now, none are more astonished than the clergy themselves, when the fire is seen to descend and consume the sacrifice."

These statements are remarkable—they show the unanimity of the public sentiment and general conviction that "this is the Lord's doing."

LIBERIA COLLEGE.

A plan has been adopted by the friends of Liberia to provide the Republic with a College, where its young men may be trained for usefulness in the learned professions, as legislators, teachers, &c. "The Trustees of Donations for Education in Liberia" were incorporated by an act of the Legislature of Massachusetts, approved March 19, 1850; and the College was incorporated by an act of the Legislature of Liberia, approved December 24, 1851. Its charter is nearly the same as the best College charters in the United States. The amount of funds received by the Trustees is believed to be about $30,000. The New York Colonization Society has $52,000, which is applicable, at its discretion, to this object. The late Mr. Phelps bequeathed to his executors $50,000 for this College, provided the enterprise of these trustees should proceed, and $100,000 be secured in this country for that purpose. It is hoped that this latter sum may be raised during the present year, and thus render available Mr. Phelps' legacy.

A short time since, well selected and suitable materials for college buildings were procured and shipped from Boston, and landed safely at Monrovia, at a cost, including erection, which will reach at least $20,000. At the latest accounts from Liberia, the work of putting up the college structure was in progress, and the walls and roof will speedily be completed. Contrary to general expectation the building is being erected on Cape Mesurado, about a mile from the City of Monrovia, "on the southwestern slope of the promontory fronting the ocean." Ex-President Roberts, has been appointed President of the College, and has accepted the position. Progress has been made in securing such other officers as may be necessary during the infancy of the institution.—The schools of the Republic will doubtless furnish some students fitted for college when the building is completed. Some provision has also been made for the support of indigent youths while pursuing their studies.

Colonization Herald.

UNITARIANISM AND UNIVERSALISM.

We find, in the daily papers of Cincinnati the following items:

Rev. Mr. Conway, of the Unitarian Church, and the Rev. Mr. Gaylord, of the second Universalist Church, exchanged pulpits Sabbath forenoon.

At a Universalist festival on Tuesday evening Mr. Conway made a speech, and said, according to the reporters:

"Universalism and Unitarianism were the same thing. Universalism had once to protest against fire and brimstone—old doctrines not believed by any body now. If a man did, his friends would tie wet clothes around his head. Universalism has as great a life to-day as ever; its mission is to trace out evil, and give man a free faith from ancient superstitions. The old demons meet us in some way or other. As soon as the devil is dislodged from his glorious throne of fire and brimstone, he'll be found popping up in some other shape. Its a problem often investigated how Unitarians and Universalists differ. They differ because they have different things to attend to. They see with two eyes, but do not on that account see double."—Presbyterian of the West.

Seventy Years a Preacher.—The London Watchman records—that the Rev. John Hickling, ninety-three years of age, and having been seventy years a preacher, on the 26th of February delivered a discourse of an hour and twenty minutes on "Early Methodism," and that in its delivery "there was no deficiency of voice, memory or mental power, but the whole was connected, interesting and instructive." On the 28th he preached twice to overflowing congregations, his discourses being each an hour long, and distinguished "by good sense, fervor, energy and pathos."

Patrick Henry's Letters.—The Virginia Historical Society has just received a fair copy of all the letters or papers left by Patrick Henry at his death, or, at all events, all that are known to exist, in the name of John Henry, of Red Hill, Virginia, the youngest of all the children of Patrick Henry. Here we have letters of Silas Deane, of George Mason, of Lafayette, of William Grayson, of Richard Henry Lee, of James Jones, and of others, including some of the letters of Patrick Henry himself. There are sixty letters in all.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Marriages.

Married—On the 11th inst., in Mobile, by Rev. A. C. Ramsey, Mr. JAMES F. NEWNEBUY, of Wilcox county, and Miss MARGARET A. VAUGHAN, of Mobile.

On the 11th ultn at the residence of Jerome Clanton, Esq., by Rev. T. Y. Ramsey, Mr. JAMES D. CLANTON, of Arkansas, and Miss WILLIE D. GEE, of Sumpter co., Ala.

On the 4th ult., by Rev. George Shneffer, NELSON F. SMITH, Esq., editor of the Pickens Republican, and Miss ANNA M. BUADINE, of Pickens county, Ala.

Deaths.

Died—On Lake Bistenen, Blenville parish, La., Mrs. SARAH TOOKE, wife of James J. Tooke, and daughter of Col. James Wimberly, of Muscogee county, Ga., aged 43 years and 5 months.

Special Notices.

SABBATH SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The Twelvth Anniversary of the New Orleans District Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, will be celebrated on Sunday next, (April 18th,) at 4 o'clock, P. M., in McGehee Chnrch, Carondelet street. Exercises by the children. The public are invited to attend.

The Sabbath Schools of the Union will meet at 4 o'clock on Saturday next, (April 17th) in Carondelet street Church to rehearse their pieces and sing their hymns.

R. S. NUGENT, Sec'y.

April 14, 1858.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY, 112 CAMP STREET.

We have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, the invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the publications of the Church, South, the following:

Benson's Commentaries: Clark's do., in sheep and calf, gilt; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Anecdotes for Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Discipline; Bible Index, by Barr; Checks to Antonomianism, by Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, by Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Coyel's Dictionary; Conference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Universalism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred Wonders; Rollin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; Questions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; 60 sets Longking's Notes.

☞ All at Nashville prices.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The undersigned propose to issue, during the approaching General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in which the proceedings of the body will be published.

Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names immediately: or, they may give to the delegates their names and the cash.

Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance.

The first number will the issued on Monday, the 3d of May.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

HIGH WATER.

The Memphis Avalanche, speaking of the break in the levee below Island Ninety-six, says:

In a short time the whole country for miles in extent was flooded. Large plantations, valued at fifty dollars per acre, were completely covered, and nearly all the live stock swept away—all, in fact, save the few who congregated upon little patches of rising ground here and there, of some few feet in extent.

In many places private dwellings furnished shelter and protection to "man and beast." As in cases of double tenements somewhat elevated, whites occupied one end of the building, negroes the other, while in the intermediate porch cattle would be huddled as thick as they could stand. In very many instances, however, the houses themselves were deserted, the owners having been compelled to betake themselves to dug-outs, boats and rafts, or whatever came first to hand.

The damage done to the fertile country covered by this overflow cannot be easily estimated, as, in addition to the actual loss of property, the land is rendered totally unfit for cultivation during the present season. Moreover, it is highly probable that this influx will cause the waters of the Yazoo to back up so as to flood that rich delta likewise. And if so, a material curtailment in the great staple, of which Mississippi is the chief producer, may be expected for the coming season.

River Intelligence.

ST. LOUIS, April 14.—The Mississippi is rising from St. Paul down.

The Missouri and Illinois are both very high, and still rising, all their tributaries are at flood heights, occasioned solely by the heavy rains through the Western and Northwestern country. Should the usual spring freshets now occur, immense devastation must necessarily follow. Serious consequences are apprehended to lower Mississippi from the combined floods coming from the upper rivers.

Crevasse Below Baton Rouge.

The Advocate states that on Sunday morning about 40 feet of the levee at Mr. C. G. McHatton's plantation, below Baton Rongo, gave way, and the breach soon widened to 200 feet. Hundreds of acres on this plantation, and on those of Messrs. J. A. McHatton and F. D. Conrad, were soon under water.

TAKING IT BACK.—The action of the Liberian Government in opposition to the new scheme of African emigration, has so incensed the French Government as to cause a retraction of the sloop-of-war tendered by the latter as a gift; although an agent had been sent to France to receive it.

Local Intelligence.

It is our rule not to draw upon the dark and fruitful criminal calendar of this city for items, under this head; but, this week, we so far depart from this rule, as to present from the daily papers a few cases:

On Friday, 9th inst., George W. Stovall was hung in the parish prison. He had in time been a school teacher and Baptist minister; had abandoned his wife and family and taken up with one Mary Durand, whom he killed in a fit of jealousy, and finding himself observed, endeavored, with feeble resolution, to commit suicide, by leaping into a well. Thoroughly sobered, after a long career of crime, when brought to the bar he plead guilty.

——"The morning lowered,
And heavily in clouds brought on the day—".

The day fixed for the execution of the murderer.

In the expectation that the appeal for Executive clemency would not be in vain, the Sheriff delayed the execution of the sentence till after 11 o'clock, but at that hour it was definitely ascertained that the sentence would not be commuted, and preparations were at once commenced for vindicating the law's sternest vengeance.

Shortly after 11, the prisoner, dressed in white and attended by his religious advisers, was led to the spot where the fatal trap had been prepared. His step was firm, and his appearance venerable and imposing. Directed by a motion he took his seat, and the executioner adjusted the fatal noose. The prisoner then said:

"Gentlemen—You have assembled as spectators to witness the last of an unfortunate man. Not like some can I plead that my fate was brought about by any agency other than my own. I have no one but myself to blame for the position which I now occupy, for it is true that I committed the terrible crime for which I am to suffer.

"I wish here to say that I entertain no unkindly feelings towards the Governor for not yielding to the solicitations which have been made on my behalf. I believe that in refusing to commute my sentence he did what he conscientiously believed to be his duty, but I trust that I have obtained pardon from a higher power. All blood stained as I am, I have appealed to the Savior of mankind, and in his pardoning grace I believe that I have found redemption.

"Now, gentlemen, I must tell you that I have not been brought to this end because I didn't know better. I was raised in Powhatan county, Va., by respectable parents, and received a pious education. Indeed I may say I occupied a respectable position in society. But I fell, and for the last fifteen years I have been led captive by the devil, at his will, and now, by an ignoble death, I am about to receive the wages of sin. I have even held the position of a minister of the gospel, and was beloved and respected as such; but this only shows the height from which I have fallen, and from which all are liable to fall, if they yield to their baser feelings.

"For ten years past I have followed the path of ruin in New Orleans, and here a misfortune happened me which darkened all my future life, but to which I do not wish more particularly to refer. I intend to cast blame on no one but myself. Afterwards, I went to Nicaragua, but, being forced to return again, gave loose rein to my vile propensities, and in due course of time became the murderer that I am to-day.

After acknowledgments to those who had been kind to him during imprisonment and to Mr. Soule and others for endeavors to obtain a reprieve or commutation of sentence, the cap was drawn over the victim's face, the trap fell and he was launched into eternity. Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Laurn Williams, young and beautiful, but frail, was found dead in her bed, on Saturday night, in the house of Eliza Holley, at the corner of Bienville and Treme streets. She came from Baltimore, about eighteen months ago, and was quite a belle among the women of her kind. Latterly she sought in alcohol the comfort which so often leads to death; and for a week prior to her death, she had indulged to an unusual extent. Late on Saturday night she went to her room, there being nothing the matter with her, to any appearance, beyond that of a slight intoxication. Shortly afterward, one of the other women went to her and found her dead. It was believed that she had taken poison.

Coroner Dannoy proceeded to hold an inquest on the body. Dr. Delery held a post-mortem examination, but was unable to trace death to intemperance, or to poison, or to any other cause. In consequence, the stomach and contents were sent to Dr. Lady, of Condo street, for chemical analysis.

The deceased was twenty-three years of age, and a native of Baltimore. Among her effects were an old leghorn bonnet and a purse, which she had cherished as remembrances of her mother, and the women in the house, with that feeling which never deserts woman in her lowest state, asked the Coroner that these relics of her former innocence might be buried with her; a request which was, of course, complied with. The youth and beauty of the deceased frailty, as disclosed at the post-mortem examination, were well calculated to remind the jury of Hood's lines in the "Bridge of Sighs:"

"Make no deep scrutiny
Into her mutiny,
Rash and undutiful,
Past all dishonor,
Death has left on her
Only the beautiful."

And here is another, with its peculiar interest: On Saturday the workmen in Bosworth's ice-house were stowing away. A quarrel arose in which one Sullivan was stabbed with an ice-hook and killed. The Coroner held his inquest.

Outside of the testimony taken, we learn that Sullivan had but recently arrived from Ireland, and being employed as a new hand at the ice-house, was persecuted by the old hands. Whatever may have been his merits or demerits, there were some sad features connected with his death. He was to have been married Sunday evening; and the post-mortem examination of his body was held in a house which he had just furnished, and in which he expected to receive his bride within twenty-four hours of the time of the luckless affray in which he met his death. We learn also that he had sent remittances to his mother and sister in the old country, to enable them to rejoin him, and that they are now on the way here.—He was a large muscular man, 37 years of age, and has the reputation of being quiet and peaceably disposed.

THE VOTE OF THE JACKSON RAILROAD STOCKHOLDERS.—In conformity with the provisions of the law, the stockholders of this company were required to cast their votes on Saturday for the acceptance or rejection of the act of the Legislature giving to the State of Louisiana an equal right to vote for directors with the State of Mississippi. On counting out the votes the poll stood as follows:

Mayor Waterman, for the city of New Orleans	50,000
Gov. McWillie, for the State of Mississippi	16,568
Private subscriptions	636
Against the act	97,196
Gov. Wickliffe, for the State of Louisiana	64,000
Private subscriptions	19,395
For the act	83,395
Majority against the act	13,801

The law required a vote of three-fourths of all the stockholders, for acceptance; instead of which it was rejected by a majority of 13,801 votes. So the road is to be extended beyond Canton, Mi., its present terminus.

The Mayor has published, at length, his reasons for his vote—and the majority of the Council has approved it. The City Attorney's opinion to him advised—"Good faith toward the state of Mississippi and private stockholders, as well as a due regard to her own interests, should, in my opinion, induce the city of New Orleans to vote against the acceptance of the Act of the 18th of March, 1858."

The anxiety on both sides occurs from this: It was known that if the law was ratified, the Governor of the State would vote for a directory favorable to the views of the majority; and that if it was not, the minority would triumph. The law was not ratified, and hence the policy of the minority has been sustained.

The election for a Board of Directors comes off next Monday, when it is expected that the extension beyond Canton partly will prevail.

THE LEVEES.—The high wind, which was accompanied by the heaviest fall of rain we have had for a long time, that prevailed Sunday morning, gave dangerous accessions to the mighty pressure of the river against the levees, and the consequence was that the flood made several breaches along the line of the city and above the upper limits. That which threatened disastrously was a break above Carrollton, but a continued encroachment of the waters was finally prevented. Between Louisiana Avenue and Carrollton, more than one breach occurred, but the measures taken to repair the damaged places were successful. Opposite the Third District a portion of the levee gave way, but the injury was promptly remedied. The water came freely over the wharves near Race street, opposite Bienville street, and the Tobacco Warehouses, but this was occasioned by the force of the wind, and ceased when it became calm. We heard that a serious break had taken place on the other side of the river at Mr. J. Bell's plantation, and that he has suffered considerably.

THE BELL CREVASSE.—The crevasse over the river is becoming still more calamitous. Efforts were made Wednesday to sink boats in the breach, so as to afford a purchase for other obstructions; but we learn nothing was achieved by the operation. The breach had grown to 100 feet wide on Thursday, and the furnishing flood was proportionately greater. The right bank seems to be doomed to a general inundation. The river is falling; but it will have to fall a great deal before the crevasse can cease to be disastrous.

The plantation of Mr. Bell and several adjoining, are overflowed. The Opelousas railroad is two or three feet under water. The parish police and railroad company have agreed to spend $25,000 each, on stopping the crevasse, but nothing up to our going to press has been done. This crevasse is about n mile above the city, on the opposite side of the river.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.—The steamer Falls City left our levee on Wednesday evening for St. Louis. She had not got farther up than Jeffersoa City, when her steam-drum exploded, with disastrous results. The boat was filled with sculding steam, which, besides the explosion, contributed to the fatality. Though the cabin passengers escaped unharmed, the following lives were lost: Wm. Weirch, son of R. J. Weirch, clerk of the boat; the child and nurse of Capt. Cable, pilot of the boat; Willis Rollins, colored, second steward; Harris, cabin-boy, colored; two deck passengers, names unknown, drowned by jumping overboard.

The damage to the host was little besides the loss of the drum.

The steamer John Simonds was going up with and close to the Falls City at the time of the explosion. One of her passengers, a Mr. Parker, who was standing on the hurricane deck, fell to the lower deck, and broke one of his legs, and whilst lying crippled and senseless on the deck, he was robbed of his gold watch and $1300 in cash. The Simonds landed, and the wounded man was brought down to the city in a cab. The explosion of the Falls City gave the Simonds such a shock, that her crockery, being spread on the table for supper, was generally smashed, and the steward had to come down to the city to get a new supply.

FOURTH DISTRICT PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—These admirable schools, under the principalship of Mr. J. G. Perham, have been the chief interest of the upper portion of the city, for the week.—Their examinations have passed off creditably to teachers and pupils; and several young gentlemen and ladies, at the "Commencement," held in Felicity Street Church, on Thursday, received diplomas. W. S. Mount, Esq., President of the Board of Directors, delivered the testimonials handsomely.

DEATH OF T. H. BENTON.

Thomas Hart Benton died in Washington City, April 10, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. His life has been an eventful one, and is part of his country's history.—From the N. O. Crescent we condense:

He was born in North Carolina, in 1783. He received that first and great start in life, a thorough education, at Chapel Hill, in his native State, and subsequently at William and Mary College, in Virginia. In his twenty-seventh year he entered the U. S. Army, from which he had sent remittances to his mother and sister in the old country, to enable them to rejoin him, and that they are now on the way here.—He was a large muscular man, 37 years of age, and has the reputation of being quiet and peaceably disposed.

He was one of the first Senators from Missouri, after the admission of that State into the Union. In that responsible station his powers matured to greatness.

Besides being so notable in the discharge of his duties, he exercised a long and important influence in the Cabinet councils of the nation. He was the intimate friend and counsellor of Andrew Jackson during the eventful Presidency of that hero, and at his death was engaged upon his biography. He opposed the rejection of Van Buren, by his party, in consequence of that gentleman's opposition to the admission of Texas; he did not endorse as heartily as would have become his position the election of Polk or the attempted election of Cass; he disclosed an avowed and unmistakable sympathy with the Free-soilers; and these causes, added to the dictatorial and arbitrary manner which he had suffered to grow upon him from his long popularity and power, and the effect of narrowing down his influence to a mere coterie of personal friends in his adopted State. He was finally made aware of his fall by his failure of re-election to the Senate in 1851, and by a subsequent defeat in running for the House of Representatives. His party voted him politically dead; he felt that he was so; and from that time, took no more part in active politics.

His mind, however, still possessing its youthful vigor, could not remain at rest, and sought relief in literary labor. For several years past he has been engaged in the work of collating and condensing the political history of the country. His "Thirty Years in the U. S. Senate" is a work whose value is appreciated by every body who takes any interest in national affairs. Of his last work, the "Abridged Debates of Congress," which he announced would make thirteen volumes, five volumes have been issued. Death overtook him while engaged on the sixth—a work to which he clung in defiance of his bodily debility and the almost certain approach of the grim, relentless tyrant. His literary labor was not, properly speaking, a labor. His long public life and his wonderful retention of memory had made him, so to speak, a living cyclopedia of his country's history; and no possible question on that subject could be propounded more readily than he would answer it.

He had a large family, and in their education took pains and pride. He was Mrs. Fremont's father. We like to see a politician grow old in such a way, making his knowledge useful to his countrymen, digesting and storing. Benton had just begun to be useful where few men have the patience and the ability to labor.

CONSUMPTION OF COTTON.

In the Senate, on Monday, the 22d ult., the Vice President presented a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the report of John Claiborne, appointed by the Commissioner of Patents special agent to collect information upon the consumption of cotton in Europe. According to the reporter of the National Intelligencer, the document runs in the following order: France, Switzerland, the Hanse Towns, Russia, the Zollverein, the Austrian Empire, Sardinia and Belgium. The following is a synopsis of the instructions given to the agent under twelve distinct heads, which the Secretary tells him are intended rather to aid than restrain investigation:

1st. Ascertain the amount of cotton consumed in the manufactories of each city, district or county, either in Europe or any other portion of the earth where cotton is manufactured, the amount of capital invested, &c. Aggregate results for each county or district are desirable, as far as practicable.

2d. The immediate sources from whence the establishments procure their supplies of raw material, the nearest seaport where they might be furnished direct from the United States, and the diminution of cost which might be effected by any change in the course of trade.

3d. If direct trade were established, what are the commodities we should receive in exchange? Would they be sufficient in amount to furnish adequate return freights for vessels employed in transporting cotton.

4th. What portion of the supplies furnished to those establishments is in the shape of yarn, and what in the shape of raw cotton; ascertain the price of each, in order to show what profit is made by the manufacturing of the yarn.

5th. What is the quality, grade, or number of the yarn principally used; and is it such as could be produced by the unskilled labor on plantations or in Southern cities.

6th. To what countries do the manufacturers of Europe generally send their yarn and goods; and what diminution of expense would result from manufacturing or opening in our own country and shipping direct to those countries.

7th. What duties are levied on cotton or yarns, respectively; their effect on the consumption of each; the probability of procuring their remission or modification, and the probable effect on consumption of such remission.

8th. What are the agencies in each country which are now tending either to advance or check the consumption of cotton.

9th. What modes of applying cotton to the use of man are now in use in Europe; to what extent used for mixing with wool in making clothes, cordage, or for any other purposes.

10th. What proportion of the cotton goods consumed in each country is imported, and what supplied at home.

11th. Examine the subject in its financial aspect; inquire how, in the actual operation of commerce, a merchant could have his orders for cotton executed, and pay therefor at the ports of exportation.

12th. Direct attention to the subject of the production of cotton in foreign countries, with a view of ascertaining whether our planters may apprehend any formidable opposition from any such source; what are the obstacles in the way of such foreign productions, and are they such as are likely to be removed hereafter.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

JAMES W. FEE & Co.,
GROCERS, No. 90 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.
apr 17 1y.

J. BOYD & Co.,
Cotton Factors, Receiving & Forwarding Merchants,
No 40 CRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Apr 17 1y

A Syllogism!

PROPOSITION 1st.
Every Lady and Gentleman desires a beautiful head of Hair.
PROPOSITION 2d.
The use of Lyon's KATHAIRON will, without fail, produce such an one.
THEREFORE:
Every Lady and Gentleman will, of course, immediately commence using Lyon's Kathairon. All propounce the Kathairon to be the finest and most agreeable preparation for the Hair ever made.
Its immense sale—nearly 1,000,000 bottles per year—attests its universal popularity. Sold every where for 25 cents per bottle.
HEATH, WYNKOOP & CO., Proprietors and Perfumers,
63 Liberty street, New York—and for sale by apl7-1m J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 Chartres st.

GEORGE H. VINTEN,
PRINTERS' WAREHOUSE,
68 Camp street, next door to Picayune office, New Orleans.

PRESSES, TYPES, INKS, PAPER, CARDS, and Furnishing of every description. Agent for the sale of Hobl Roe & Co's Presses, and James Connor & Sons' Types.
Old Type taken in exchange for new at 9 cents per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.
Constantly on hand and for sale Printing Paper of the following sizes.
21 inches by 28 | 23½ inches by 31 | 24 inches by 28 | 26 inches by 40
22 inches by 32 | 24 inches by 36 | 26 inches by 37 | 28 inches by 42
32 inches by 44.....36 inches by 48
AND OTHER SIZES TO ARRIVE
Also, Double Me lium Book Paper, Manilla Wrappers, Note, Letter, and Cap Papers of every description; Cards, Card Boards, &c mar 20 1y GEORGE H. VINTEN.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"
No. 197 Camp Street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,
KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.
The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Address REV. E. B. GLENDON,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union," feb 27-1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 14th, says:

The week opened with but moderate transactions in the market generally, and our leading staple, Cotton, has moved but slowly and rather heavily within the past few days.

On Saturday morning the particulars by the arrival of the America were before the public. They state sales at Liverpool for the week ending 26th ultimo, to have been 65,000 bales, and a decline of an ⅛ @ ¼d is reported in the Middling and lower grades. The quotations given are 7¼d for Fair Orleans and 7d for Middling ditto. The whole stock in port was estimated at 402,000 bales, of which 299,000 were American. The advices from Manchester were said to be unfavorable, but Consols had improved ⅛ @ ¼ per cent., being quoted at 97¼ @ 97⅜ for money and 97⅜ @ 97½ for account.

Yesterday evening the telegraph announced the arrival of the City of Washington, with four days later European advices, and reporting a further decline of an ⅛d @ ¼d in the Liverpool Cotton market, with sales for three days of 21,000 bales.

In our own market no marked effect was produced on Saturday, though but few buyers came forward, and the sales were confined to some 4000 bales, at about previous figures. On Monday also there was but a meager attendance of buyers, and only some 3500 bales were disposed of, mostly in small lots and at irregular and somewhat easier prices. Yesterday passed under similar circumstances, and with sales of only about 2500 bales; making a total for the three days of 9500 bales. Our previous quotations are retained, but we have to remark that they are mostly nominal, and that inside figures have prevailed within the last day or two.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Interior	5 @ 7	Middling	11¼ @ 11½
Ordinary	8 @ 8¾	Good Middling	12 @ 12¼
Good Ordinary	9¾ @ 10¼	Middling Fair	12¾ @ —
Low Middling	10¾ @ 11	Fair	nominal

COTTON—Arrived since 9th instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 8054 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 5554, Arkansas 1137, Mobile 208, Florida —, Texas 232; together 15,947 bales. Cleared since the same date, 27,581 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 13th inst. 321,575 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,382,635 bales, against 1,373,331 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 118,325 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a increase to Great Britain of 55,967 bales, and a decrease to France of 41,373 bales, and to other foreign ports of 91,176 bales.

SUGAR—LOUISIANA.—The demand has been moderate, but with reduced receipts there has been no further marked change in prices. The sales of the three days sum up about 2500 hhds, and our quotations are as follows:

Inferior and Refining	2¾ @ 4
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¼
Fair to Fully Fair	6¼ @ 7
Prime	7¼ @ 7½
Choice	7¾ @ 8¼
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 @ 9½

Arrived since the 9th 1757 hhds 254 tierces and bbls—cleared 226 hhds 202 bbls.

MOLASSES—The three days sales sum up about 4000 bbls, and we now quote for Inferior and Fermenting to Good 24 @ 26½, Prime to Choice 27 @ 29 in bbls; half-barrels 31 @ 34c ₩ gal. Arrived since the 9th 3651—cleared 282 bbls.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, April 14.

General depression seemed to command to-day. In the paper, money and cotton market, dullness ruled supreme. In domestic exchange there was some activity and liveliness. In foreign exchange the same features did not attend transactions. There were some small amounts of paper negociated at the rate of 11, and some at 12 per cent. There is no diminution the amount of unemployed money. The line of deposits with the banks hold up well, notwithstanding thousands of temporary residents are departing weekly, taking with them, of course, more or less money.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 140 paid	155 50
Louisiana State Bank	140 50
Canal Bank	122 @ —
Citizens' Bank	173 @ —
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock	premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank	—@100
Union Bank	100	98 @ —
Bank of New Orleans	100	98 @ 100
Southern Bank	500	500
Crescent City Bank		98 @ —
Bank of America		90 @ —
Bank of James Robb		par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid		125 @ —
Carrollton Railroad	75	nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	100	68 @ 70
Southern Pacific Railroad		nominal
Opelousas Railroad	25	6 @ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid		7¼ @ 8
City Consolidated Bonds		83 @ 85
City Bonds for Railroads		74 @ 75
State Bonds		no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company		par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₩ cent Bonds		72 @ 75

SPECIE.

American Gold	par @ — ₩ cent discount
Californig Gold	$17 00 @ 17 50 ₩ oz
American Silver, old issue	2 @ 2½ ₩ cent prem
American Silver, new issue	1 @ 1½ ₩ ct discount
Mexican Dollars	4 @ 4½ ₩ cent prem
Five Franc pieces	95 @ — cents
Twenty Franc pieces	$3 75 @ 3 80
Sovereigns	$4 81 @ 4 85
Ten Thaler pieces	$7 70 @ 7 80
Spanish Doubloons	$15 30 @ 15 60
Patriot Doubloons	$15 50 @ 15 75
United States Treasury Notes	4 @ 4 ₩ ct discount

INCURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @ 3 ₩ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @ 2 ₩ cent discount
Ohio	1 @ 2 ₩ cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	2 @ 5 ₩ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @ 2 ₩ cent discount
Illinois	3 @ 5 ₩ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.	par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	3 @ 5 ₩ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @ 2 ₩ cent discount
North Carolina	3 @ 4 ₩ cent discount
Virginia	2 @ 3 ₩ cent discount
Alabama State	3 @ 5 ₩ cent discount
Texas	4 @ 1 ₩ cent discount
Tennessee	1½ @ 2½ ₩ cent discount
Mobile	par @ ¼ ₩ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	8 @ 10 ₩ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	1 @ 3 ₩ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	5 @ 7 ₩ cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	8 @ 10 ₩ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	40 @ 50 ₩ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi	par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	₩ acre—$1 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	₩ acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	₩ acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	₩ acre—85c

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S
CELEBRATED
GERMAN BITTERS.
PREPARED BY
Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Philad'a, Pa.
WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE
LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,
Chronic or Nervous Debility. Diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach.

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, or Fullness or Blood the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or webs before the sight, Fever and dull pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imagining of Evil, and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and a belief in the disease for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of ten years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sales unrivalled by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IN FACT
DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A HUSK AND VIGOROUS FEELING?

—If you do, use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch Street Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by druggists and store-keepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT, & CO. 21, and 161 Chartres street general agents for the South.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	— 13 @ 14
East India	— 13½ @ 14
HALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	— 6½ @ 6¾
Northern	— — @ —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	— 25 @ 27
BUCKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 @ 12 00
English, Fire	32 00 @ 36 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	— 65 @ —
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	— 10½ @ 11½
Havana, good, pr g'n	— 12½ @ 13
——— interior to middling	— — @ —
Java	— 19 @ 20
Laguayra	— 11½ @ 11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	— 43 @ —
Tallow	— — @ —
Adamantine	— 20 @ 22
Star	— 18 @ 21
CORN MEAL, per bbl	— — @ —
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 5 @ 6
——— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	— 8 @ 12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	— 4½ @ 10½
——— Sheetings, 4-4	— 9 @ 15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	— 11½ @ 13½
——— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	— 12 @ 15
Tickings, ¾ to 4-4	— 9 @ 18
Stripes and Checks	— 8½ @ 18
Denims	— 7½ @ 16
Cottonades	— 12½ @ 25
Satinets	— 25 @ 75
Calico Prints	— 5 @ 15
DUCK, Russia, per bolt	— — @ —
English	— 10 00 @ 16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 pr yd	— 19 @ 27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	— 40 @ 1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 55 @ 4 87½
Illinois and Missouri	4 35 @ 4 45
St. Louis City	4 40 @ —
FEATHERS, per lb	— 30 @ 45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 @ —
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50 @ 14 00
——— No. 2	10 00 @ 13 00
——— No. 3	8 50 @ 10 50
Herring, per box	— 35 @ 55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	— 12 @ 15
Raisins MR, per box	2 50 @ —
Lemons	2 50 @ —
Currants, Zante	— 13 @ 13½
Almonds, soft shell	— 18 @ 21
——— hard shell	— — @ —
FURS, raccoon, per skin	— 25 @ 25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	— 85 @ 1 15
Oats	— 42 @ 45
Corn, in ear, per bbl	— 55 @ —
——— shelled, per bushel	— 40 @ 55
Beans, per bbl	4 00 @ 5 50
GUNPOWDER, common, per keg	4 00 @ —
Sporting	7 00 @ —
GLASS, per box of 50 feet
American, 8 x 10	1 80 @ 1 90
——— 10 x 12	1 90 @ 2 10
——— 12 x 18	2 80 @ 2 80
HAY, per ton	17 00 @ 19 00
HIDES, W. I. & Mex. flint, per lb	— 14 @ 15
Dry salted Mexican	— — @ —
Wet salted, heavy	— 5½ @ 6
Dry, country	— 9 @ 11
Kip and Calf	— 5½ @ 6
IRON, pig, per ton	35 00 @ —
Country bar, per lb	— 4½ @ 5
English, per ton	70 00 @ 80 00
Swedes, assorted	112 00 @ 134 00
Hoop, per lb	— 4½ @ 7½
Sheet	— 4½ @ 7
Nail Rods	— 6½ @ 8
Castings, American	— — @ 3½
LUMBER, yard prices;
Boards, pine, white, per M ft	25 @ 60
——— yellow	15 @ 20
——— Cypress	25 @

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

[illegible]

The sun is setting. Brilliant beams of gold
Fall mildly on the spring-enamelled earth,
Clothing with loveliness each budding flower,
To which the vernal skies have given birth;
While rural Singsters linging in the grove,
Breathe their sweet, saddened strain to parting day.
As if the deepest pathos upmost gives
Were thrown into their last, lone, vesper lay.

Thus night to us Time's sun is sinking fast
Beneath the clouds of sorrow or disease;
Those joys so highly prized in by-gone days
Have lost their power the craving soul to please—
Oh! why remembrances of former days,
Like spring's first flowers to bloom within the heart,
Or like the warbler's farewell hymn to eve,
Twill with the sweetest music ever part.

'Tis twilight. Gathering shadows close around
All objects slowly "sailing from the view,"
Bright, golden beams of Western cloud grow dim,
Yet luminous with the tint of Heavenly blue,
Soft shades sigh gently 'mongst the budding boughs
Of trees receding from the grasping sight,
While for a momentary pause, most brightly shine,
O'er earth, day's last, few lingering rays of light.

Thus death life's roads are ebbing fast away,
And then withdraws its pleasure from our eyes;
When from the shore of fading earth the waves
Of that "Great Ocean" to our visions rise—
And may the brightly pinnaged angel, Faith,
Fling Heaven's own radiance o'er the swelling tide,
Guiding the lonely pathway of the soul,
That o'er Death's billows safely it may ride.

The night. Wild winds are sweeping fast along
The outstretched, darkened plain, which now alone
Remains of all those objects which of late,
In nature's golden beams so brightly shone;
And, far above, within the "other ocean,"
Myriads of bursting stars are shining bright,
Guiding, perchance, with their mild, twinkling rays,
"Benighted travelers" through the shades of night.

Thus when the spirit, freed from earthly cares,
Shall wing its way beyond this "vale of tears;"
When its substance free from every light,
Shall be remembered by the flight of years,"
Oh! may the stars of Christian virtues shine
In beams reflected from the Savior's face,
Lighting its entrance to that mighty throng
Who shout His praise around the throne of Grace.

NELLIE.

Oak Grove, March, 1858.

OBITUARIES.

"In a few minutes I will be in Heaven."

Sister MARINA HICKFORD has been declining with consumption for several months, and last night at 8 o'clock she took her departure from earth to heaven. I visited her frequently during her last illness, and had much religious conversation with her. I have always regarded her as a very interesting Christian, and a woman of sterling worth.

Throughout her illness, her religious enjoyment was unusual. Sometimes she appeared very happy, and full of gratitude to God for his goodness to her; at other times she had feelings of depression and temptation. She had a desire to live for the sake of her husband and children, and while clinging to life she did not realize that full trust in God which flows from an entire resignation of our own will. She recently accompanied her husband to Mobile, with a hope that her health might be improved, but she returned much more prostrate, and since her return has cherished less hope of life, and her spirituality has increased in proportion as she has been enabled to accept the cross that bound her to earth.

On the third Sabbath in the afternoon, brother Baldwin, her pastor, administered the sacrament to her, and her husband, with a few friends in her own room. On that occasion she and brother Eckford were much blessed, and both rejoiced in hope of eternal life, and all present felt that it was good to be there. While conversing with her she would occasionally smile when dwelling on the goodness of God. After prayer, I left, and did not see her again till yesterday morning, when I found her calm and tranquil. She said she could now do nothing but trust in God. Her strength was gone, she could only speak in a whisper, and she was manifestly wearing away. Brother Baldwin and myself were with her together, and we both congratulated her upon her peaceful state of mind.

Late in the afternoon she sent for me, and when I arrived at her room, I found her seated in her arm chair, near the window, which had been thrown open to give her air. She was surrounded with her weeping friends; I approached, and found her evidently near her end. She looked calmly at me, and extending her hand said, "I believe I am going, pray for me that I may die soon and die easy." I stood looking at her some time, in silent prayer to God for her, and then we all kneeled around her couch, and according to her request, prayed that she might die without suffering—that she might quietly fall asleep in Jesus.

When I arose after prayer, she said, "I requested you to pray that I might die easy." I replied, "so I did, and I believe you will;" she smiled and said, "so do I." In a short time her sister Alice came in from the Institute. When Alice approached, and she was informed of her presence, she opened her eyes and extended her hand, saying, "Good-bye, meet me in heaven." Alice was quite [illegible] burst into tears, exclaiming, "I will."—[illegible] but little, but lay with her eyes closed, occasionally opening them and looking around on her friends for a few hours. She requested me to stand by her, and said her pains, and till her new death was advancing. Her mind was remarkably clear, not the least appearance of [illegible].

A short time before she expired she commenced talking to her friends. Her voice seemed to gain strength as she proceeded, and she became very happy and praised the Lord. She told us she was dying easy. "Oh," said she "is this death? How sweet is death—I feel like I am lying down to sleep sweetly in Jesus." She was then dying, and labored for breath, but said, "I may appear to you, to be suffering, but I am not suffering at all. I don't mind anything now; I am happy and free from all suffering; God has answered prayer, and His grace has taken away the poisoned death. O! I am so happy; I am going to heaven; in a few minutes I will be in heaven; I believe God will [illegible] my children—Glory be to God." A few minutes intervened, brother Baldwin and sister Winston came in. Extending her hand to each of them, she said, "I am happy, in a few minutes I will be in heaven." And after thus triumphing, she ceased to speak, and calmly resigned her breath.

What but the religion of Jesus Christ could produce such a death, and enable a young wife and mother to leave her husband and little children, not only resigned and [illegible] to death, but actually happy and triumphant?

G. SCARITTE.

Hamburg, March 30, 1858.

[illegible] ANDREW E. DRAKE, the 24th of March, 1858, [illegible] years, 2 months and 24 days. He was born in Ash county, N. C., on the 19th Jan., 1810. He lived near Chapel Hill, Texas, and returned to Starksville on business. He professed religion in Raleigh, N. C., and joined the church [illegible] about twenty years of age. I have been intimately acquainted with him about twelve years, and although he was not a very active member of the church, he was [illegible] a very useful member. His [illegible] great deal in our community. In a word, he was a Christian in deed and in truth.' He [illegible] religion, and said several times, 'My [illegible] I have no doubt.' His [illegible] all the time, although his [illegible] every struggle that faithful [illegible] could give. His body was [illegible] he was beloved and esteemed by [illegible].

C. de SULLIVAN.

Died.—In Prairie Mercrouge, Morehouse Parish, La., 23d March, SARAH ELIZABETH, consort of J. G. Wiseman. She was married the 12th of October, 1853; joined the Church, and was converted a few days after.

Of her character as a noble spirited member in society, a generous hearted Christian, and an affectionate wife, I need say nothing; for her whole manner of life is known to all those among whom she was born, lived, and died.

When death drew near, being sensible of his approach, for a time her faith wavered so as partially to loose her hope from its fastening. But the "Prayer of faith removed the cloud;

Revealed again the Savior's face,
And brought her near in God."

while hope, that anchor, was again fastened hard by the throne, inasmuch, that her heart and soul embraced the sentiment as others sang those soul-stirring lines

"O 'tis delight without alloy,
Jesus, to hear thy name,
My spirit leaps with inward joy,
I feel the sacred flame."

She then, calling her friends and relatives around her said she was going to Heaven, and asked them to serve God and meet her there. They all, weeping, and some kneeling, promised to do so. This seemed to increase her joy and brighten her hope; for she said "I think I shall die more happy with the thought of meeting you all where Jesus is." Thus she followed that sainted cherub, her infant child, which went to Jesus eight days before.

PASTOR.

Rev. A. E. Goodwyn and wife, are under sore affliction. Their little HENRY KAVANAUGH is taken from them. He died of cholera infantum, 31st March, aged two months and ten days. This initiated them into the trials incident to parents. The stroke is, to them, heavy indeed, yet they bow with christian resignation to the will of an All Gracious Providence.

To-day, after our earnest prayers to God that this dispensation might be sanctified to us all, we deposited the tiny form in the Minden (La.) cemetery, where, though they may find a lot far elsewhere, it must sleep until He who bade "little ones" come to Him shall awake to a life which knows no death.

R. R.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

WISDOM FROM THE BIBLE.

Take all the books wise men have made,
They darken while you read;
But if you learn the Bible lore,
You will be wise indeed.
And then, when you have learned the right,
But one rule need be given;
Do it—and sure as God is good,
You will be sure of heaven.

THE SINGING STUDENT BOY.

Many years ago a student boy was seen and heard in the streets of an ancient town singing. He was a stout, plainly-dressed boy, but his face was pale, and his eyes were sad and tearful. His voice was most musical, and the songs he sang were in beautiful words and about sacred things. Every time he finished a song, he stepped to the door of a house and gave a gentle tap. When it was opened, he said in gentle tones:

"Please give a poor student boy a morsel of bread."

"Begone with thee! thou beggar's child," was the rough reply that met his ear as the poor child shrank from the door steps.

Thus driven from door to door, he sang his sweet songs until his body was weary and his heart sad. Scarcely able to stand, he at last turned his steps homeward. Striking his noble forehead with his hand, he said:

"I must go home to my father's house and be content to live by the sweat of my brow.—Providence has no loftier destiny for me. I have trodden out its paths by aiming higher."

Just at that moment, Ursula Cotta, a burgher's wife who had heard his songs and seen him driven from a neighbor's door, felt her heart yearn with pity toward the helpless boy. She opened her door, beckoned to the young singer, smiled sweetly upon him, and in tones that sounded like heavenly melodies to his ears, said:

"Come in, poor boy, and refresh thyself at my table!"

Happy little singer! How he enjoyed that delicious meal! And when the good dame and her husband told him to make their house his future home, his heart melted. With eyes all blinded with tears, he looked in the face of his friends and said:

"I shall now pursue my studies without being obliged to beg my bread from grudging hands. I shall have you, sir, for a father, and you, sweet Ursula, for a mother. My heart will once more learn to love. I shall be happier than I can express."

After that day the singing boy studied hard and well. Years afterwards the world heard of him, for it was he who uttered his voice against popery, and became the chief of that Reformation which gave an open Bible to the World. His name was MARTIN LUTHER.

Courage, then, poor boy! You may be friendless and unknown to-day—you may have to plod through trials and toils uncheered by the smiles of even a sweet Ursula. But never mind. Plod away. Stick to study and duty. God cares for you. He has a work for you to do, and if you are faithful and true, he will in due season put you into your proper place.—Toil on.—[Sunday School Advocate.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

Every little boy, and every little girl, has a great desire to live long; at least, till they have growu to be men and women. Now God tells us how we may hope to live long on the earth.

Turn to Exodus 20: 12, and read, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." There are a great many ways in which this promise is made true. But I want to tell you of one little boy who saved his life by obeying his father.

Almost twenty years ago a noble steamboat took fire, far out on the shore from lake Erie, and though it was surrounded with water, and there were men enough there to help, they could not put out the fire.

Soon all was in a blaze, and many jumped into the water, hoping to save themselves on floating planks, or such things as they could get hold of. Among these, one little boy got hold of the rudder, partly under the boat; and his father, seeing him in this perilous situation, shouted, "Hold on; hold on; hold on, my boy!"

Sometimes he was thrown up, and then down, by the violence of the waves, or the rolling of the boat. Sometimes under the water, and sometimes up close to the scorching heat, just over his head, while melted lead ran down upon his hands and his arms. Still he did hold on, and was saved, while hundreds perished around him.

Brave little fellow! I crossed the lake with him a few days after this, over the very spot where he wrestled thus manfully with the fire and the water, and obtained the victory by obeying his father.

If you would live long on the earth, learn to obey your parents, though it may sometimes be very hard. And always hold on to that which is true and right, and which God commands, though it may expose you to present suffering for in the end it will save you.—[An Messenger.

CHILDREN SAY QUEER THINGS.—"There now!" cried a little girl while rummaging a drawer in a bureau, "there now; grandpa's gone to heaven without his spectacles! What will he do?"

SMART CHILDREN.

A writer in Blackwood's Magazine thus discourses on the habit of trying to stick "book larnin" in the heads of children while the are yet babes:"

"How I have heard you, Eusebius, pity the poor children! I remember you looking at a group of them, and reflecting, 'For of such is the kingdom of heaven,' and turning away thoughtfully, and saying, 'Of such is the kingdom of trade.'

"A child of three years of age! What should a child three years old—nay, five or six years old—be taught? Strong meats for weak digestions make not bodily strength. Let there be nursery tales and nursery rhymes.

"I would say to every parent, especially to every mother, sing to your children; tell them pleasant stories; if in the country, be not too careful lest they get a little dirt upon their hands and clothes; earth is very much akin to us all, and in children's out-of door play soils them not inwardly. There is a kind of consanguinity between all creatures; by it we touch upon the common sympathy of our first substance, and beget a kindness for our poor relations, the brutes.

"Let children have free, open-air sport, and fear not though they make acquaintance with the pigs, the donkey, and the chickens, they may form worse friendships with wiser-looking ones; encourage familiarity with all that love to court them; dumb animals love children, and children love them.

"Above all things make them loving, then they will be gentle and obedient; and then, also, parents, if you become old and poor, these will be better than friends that will never neglect you. Children brought up lovingly at your knees will never shut their door upon you, and point where they would have you go."

PROFESSIONAL.

J. O. FUQUA. J. O. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena, and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans.
References—Payne & Harrison, Byrne, Vance & Co., Broadwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw. Hale & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 20-1y

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 126 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. Dr. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Oglesby & Macau y, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6-2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of Law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.
Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts.
A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-8m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.
He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Wens, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.
Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and Demands other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 15 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.
☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

C. W. BUTT, SOCOLARS VANS, } Mobile. N. Orleans { M. J. SMITH. T. G. FOSTER, Jr.

BUTT, SMITH & Co,
MOBILE, ALA.
MARSHALL J. SMITH & Co.,
NEW ORLEANS.

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS and Dealers in Bagging and Rope. Orders for Produce of all descriptions and Consignments solicited. ap16-6m

LEONARD FASH. F. S. LAURAIN.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS.

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Onion street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No. 94 Gravier street, New Orleans. au2 1y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE

Broadwell & Payne,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

A. G. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
H. W. HUNTINGTON. WM S. DARRISON

Payne & Harrison,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 61 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

S. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ASST. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 79 St. Charles street New Orleans. jy6-1y

T. T. TWITTY.
COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh14n

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered, in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a running sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no IFS nor ANDS, humor has about it nothing some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.
To those who are subject to sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warran street Roxbury Mass. Price $1 per bottle
For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by
dec5 1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society
Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound
BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,
Published by the American Bible Society and for sale at cost prices, varying from 1 cents to $12.
Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.
Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. B. CLEGHORN, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY
Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $5 annually
Life Members—Contributors of $50.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb. 20

BUSINESS CARDS.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Cisterns, Lumber, &c.,
Bricks to suit purchasers. Orders promptly attended to Box 388 Steamship Exchange, 149 Chartres st. shop, 355 and 357 Rampart st., First District, New Orleans. marc6-1y

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCKERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans.

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82, Common street.
KEEPS SUPPLIED on frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—ALSO—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.
jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.
Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.
L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & CO.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

Dameron & Co,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpetings, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1858, all my business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 58 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS | BELLS || BELLS ||| BELLS ||||
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]
THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.
For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.
Address, A. MENELLY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE, (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)
THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 48 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers of Wholesale in HATS, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.
For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises aug30

TIRRELL & HERSEY,
BOOTS and SHOES,
BROGANS and HATS,
BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.
PLANTERS and MERCHANTS are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.
Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 84 Magazine street, New Orleans. mar 27-1mo

R. H. READ. J. HOGART SEDGE.
READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.
DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street between Camp and st Charles street.
Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warrant ed PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 24

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.
THE Subscriber furnishes to his trade on as low terms as they can be purchased of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS, Prince's, Mathias's Mason's & Hamblin's do., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS. Chickering's, Nunes & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Stool Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church, Meister and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
sp26 56 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.
All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.
WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE. Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.
PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CANE STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS—OFFICE LOUNGES—and DESKS of all styles.
The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprises the best and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries, East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.
We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.
We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.
We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may come to favor us with their patronage.
☞ Remember No 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the BIG COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap29-6m

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS,
This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at
LOWER RATES
Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
jan16-15t BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.
Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:

H. Huntington,	Charles Boswell	Job Allyn,
Albert Day,	Henry Keesy,	John P. Brace,
James Goodwin,	Calvin Day,	Charles J. Russ.

H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans
The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.
Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan11-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,
CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch. Orders respectfully solicited. ap24-1y.

VAN BENTHUYSEN } {A. MONHEIMER
P. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. } {GEO. C. KENDALL.
BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
s19-1y 116 Canal st. N. Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.
ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Dressers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 3

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.
Rev. H. C. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. H. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss ALLIE J. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles-Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. DUPUIS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURELIA C. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Miss SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Nurse.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department	25 00
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	5 00
Use of instruments	1 00
Vocal Music	1 00
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with use of copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.
Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $7 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.
Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent. interest will be charged.
Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged full rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.
No deduction from fee bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ This rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's consideration at one time, or where an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal. ☜
Books, stationery, &c., are kept in the village for sale at the usual rates.
Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.
Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.
All letters received and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.
The scholastic year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the first Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first of July.
The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.
All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.
THE Trustees of this prosperous institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-one weeks.
It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana.
Terms per session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15; Academic Department, $20; Collegiate Department, $25; Modern Languages, each, $10.
After the first month, students are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness of one month. By order of the Board of Trustees
J. M. THOMASSON, Secretary. J. C. BLACKMAN, President. jan 23 1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.
THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1858. FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
O. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. JONES, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. P. CALLOWAY, U. B., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. C. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.
Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance:
In Preparatory Department.....$21 50
In College Department.....30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department.....5 00
Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.
This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings, large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.
Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.
For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 117 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.
THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.
THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 26, 1858. The spacious buildings, elegant organization, the superior Faculty, and the extraordinary facilities of an accomplished education, recommend this institution to the consideration of every patron. The French Language is taught by Parisians, and taught possibly more thoroughly than any where else outside of a native French family. This is a regular Boarding School of the highest order. Besides, Huntsville, as a location for a Female School, is joint of beauty and healthfulness, has no equal in the South. I would refer to my patrons in Louisiana: Gen B. M. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe, McReynolds & Co., New Orleans; W. W. Walker, Esq., Mound Bayou, Tensas, parish; E. Miller, Esq. and Rev. Mr. White, Waterproof; also, to the Editor of this paper. O. M. EVERHART. d19-1y

FELICIANA FEMALE INSTITUTE,
JACKSON, LA.
PRINCIPAL..... REV. WILLIAM McCALLEN, M. D.
THE First Term will commence on Monday, the 15th of March next. The course of instruction will be extensive and th

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 13. WHOLE NUMBER 375.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY APRIL 24, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—113 CAMP ST.

DAYBREAK.

A wind came up out of the sea,
And said, "O mists, make room for me!"

It hailed the ships, and cried, "Sail on,
Ye mariners! the night is gone!"

And hurried landward far away,
Crying, "Awake! it is the day!"

It said unto the forest, "Shout!
Hang all your leafy banners out!"

It touched the wood-bird's folded wing,
And said, "O bird, awake and sing!"

And o'er the farms, "O chanticleer,
Your clarion blow! the day is near!"

It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down and hail the coming morn!"

It shouted through the belfry tower,
"Awake, O bell! proclaim the hour!"

It crossed the churchyard with a sigh,
And said, "Not yet! in quiet lie!"

AUTOBIOGRAPHY
OF THE REV. WILLIAM STEVENSON.

CONCLUDED.

In the fall of the year 1813 while I was living in the township of Bellview, Mo., following farming, by which I was enabled to support my family decently and to labor as a local preacher, my brother, James Stevenson, who then lived on the Ouachita river, now state of Arkansas, Clark county, visited me and remained a few weeks with us; and seeing the great advantage of a preached gospel among the people, he lamented the condition of the wilderness settlements of the Ouachita, Red river and Forte Caddo, where he lived, and also the settlements of White river and many other settlements on the smaller streams of the West. These bounds were about four hundred miles in length and at least, on an average, one hundred in breadth. While conversing with him I saw, as he described it, a vast region sitting in darkness and the shadow of death, scattered like sheep on the mountains, having no shepherd to guide their feet into the way: none to say, Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world. I felt a great desire for the salvation of those destitute people, and was pressed by my brother to go home with him, see the people, and preach to them. He hoped also that I might like the country and move to it. I agreed to accompany him. We prepared for the journey, it being about four hundred miles, mostly wilderness except on the rivers and rich lands, where we found settlements of industrious people; but among them many hunters, for wild game, buffalo, bear, deer, beaver, etc., were common. All were alive to their calling and we found them friendly and humane. Prayer in families and the gospel preached was a new thing; but all, with few exceptions, received us, joined in family prayer, or at least had nothing against it, and truly my soul was happy in praying with and speaking to them on the importance of providing for the soul as well as the body. Our journey was a pleasant one. Sometimes we camped in the wilderness, by a running stream, the water and range for our horses good; and sometimes we found room in the friendly man's cabin, shared with him in the fruits of his chase, belled our horses, turned them out in a large pasture of the wilderness, had prayers with the family, laid ourselves down on a bear or deer skin, slept soundly and arose happy. At some places we found good beds and better fare; but all was well, for God was with us. At length we arrived in the settlement where my brother lived, but did not reach his home before night, but stayed at the house of Mr. F. McMahon, who had once been a member of the Baptist Church in Kentucky. He had greatly backslidden. At the moment I was introduced to him by my brother, he looked wild and somewhat surprised, and said within himself, Is it possible that God has sent a preacher among us? This I learned of him afterwards. He was kind, fed us and our horses, and his wife also received us cheerfully. All soon became acquainted, conversation free and social; but turning on the subject of religion, he appeared not rightly to understand the gift that had come upon all men unto justification of life. After hearing the word of God read on those points, I saw joy spring up in his eyes; for he had been for several years nearly in despair, and truly it is good news to hear that Christ died for all. Night came on, we proposed to have prayer; all was right and when we kneeled to pray, I felt like God was near, for Mr. McMahon cried aloud for mercy; his wife wept, and some of his children, the oldest in particular. Here the work began in this family; they were evidently the first fruits of my labors in that part now called the state of Arkansas.

Next Sunday I had an appointment at Mr. Cumming's, a few miles below on the Forte Caddo, a branch of the Ouachita. The congregation was respectable, and before meeting commenced I was introduced to an old mother in Israel, a widow indeed, late from the States. Her name was M. Dickson. She appeared delighted to hear that God was mindful of the country in sending the gospel to them. While preaching that day to a desirous looking people, the good spirit was among them; some were deeply affected, and cried for mercy. The old widowed mother rejoiced in God her Savior, and there appeared to be a good work beginning, and so it was, for the fruits are yet seen even in 1841.

Thus the Lord opened the way. We know that without Him men labor in vain; but all the promises are yea and amen to them who believe on, trust in and obey Him. From this settlement I went westward, visited the settlements, and preached on the Turnwnw, Wolf Creek, Little Missouri, and Mound Prairie, and was greatly comforted in having reason, from what I saw and heard, to believe that God had called his servants the preachers to spread the gospel through this vast territory now settled and settling fast. The people had made a great many small settlements all through the country from five to twenty miles apart. No wagon ronds yet laid out, as they had generally moved on pack horses; nothing but horse-paths, many of them along the buffalo ronds or trails, rivers, large creeks, etc. No ferry boats, except on one or two rivers. We had to cross by canoes or rafts, or on horse back. Hence, I saw a great difficulty in getting men who would be willing to face all these difficulties to carry the gospel to this people; and when they pressed me hard to come, or get some of the preachers from the Illinois Conference to come and preach to them, I said, being a local preacher, I could not tell what the Conference would do for them, but if I could not get a preacher sent to them, I would return next fall and stay as long as possible with them.

While I remained among them I visited families, preached when and where I could; but after having labored six or eight weeks with them I left them, having made up a few little societies. I left them, commending them to God and the word of his grace. I left them with a heart truly mixed with joy and sorrow. I rejoiced that God had begun a good work among the people in the wilderness; but to part with them and leave no help, none to look over them was heart-rending. I was not without comfort even in this case, for I did believe that the great Shepherd of Israel would take care of those lambs. A goodly number of mourners were inquiring what they must do to be saved. I had to leave them; but not without hope for their welfare. And so it was. Glory to God, I found many of them, after one year's absence, in the highway.

Returning to my family in the dead of winter, I found I had taken a violent cold, which was followed by acute rheumatism, which lasted nine or ten weeks, a great part of which time my pains were past description. I was happy in knowing that they were not eternal. Then even I could sing.

"Oh what are all my sufferings here,
If Lord thou count me meet,
With that enraptured host to appear,
And worship at thy feet."

God raised me up and I was again able to labor on my farm and attend camp meetings and other meetings as formerly.

At home with my family in the spring of 1814, I had not forgotten my promise to the people of Red river, Ouachita and Arkansas, White Spring and Current rivers, with many of less note. Having a sufficiency of the things of this world to sustain us comfortably, I felt it my duty to travel and preach in the country where I then lived; and bro. Samuel Thompson being Presiding Elder, a man whom I loved, invited me to travel with him, as I had done with bro. Parker and bro. Walker, to quarterly and camp meetings. I accepted bro. Thompson's offer and accompanied him to his camp and other meetings, which were always a blessing to me. This summer, while in company with bro. Thompson, I frequently spoke to him about Arkansas country, where I had been the fall before, hoping he would speak to the Conference and particularly the Bishop to send a preacher to those growing and promising settlements, telling of the extent of fine country, good land, excellent water and navigable streams, all of which discharged their waters into the Mississippi river, and which must shortly become a fine state, and I thought the gospel should begin and grow with its youth. He consented to the propriety of sending them a preacher; but thought it was hardly possible, as the Conference was young and weak in members and the work already taken in by them was so extensive; but he advised me to join the Conference and travel some of those circuits already formed, as they could not all be filled. I said I had got my consent to do so, but could not, for I had promised the people in those wilds of Arkansas and Red river to visit them again, and if I joined the Conference I should not be sent there and they would be left out. He then proposed that if I did go on to that country in a few weeks, as I said I must, to keep my promise, he would, with my consent, have my name enrolled on the minutes as a traveling preacher. So it was, I joined Conference as a traveling preacher, while in the wilderness of the Arkansas, five hundred miles from the Conference when it was done. I traveled six months in Arkansas, returned to the Bellview circuit, got home on Friday and my appointments were made before I arrived to begin on the next Sunday at the meeting house where I lived. I rested one day and started again, the next being the Sabbath and rode the Bellview circuit the balance of the year.

I proceed to give some account of the work in Arkansas. I left my family early in the fall of 1814, in company with bro. Joseph Reed, a local preacher and bro. John Johnson, a professor of religion and husband of my eldest daughter. We had a pleasant journey to the new circuit which I intended to form and travel, beginning on the South side of the Current, about one hundred miles from my family, and extending southwest 400 miles to Pecan Point on the southwest side of Red river—a settlement of Americans in the bounds of the province of Texas. Here I formed a Methodist society in the same year; but on our journey we commenced where we could get a few people to preach to, exhort and pray with. Bros. Reed and Johnson were great helpers while they remained with me; but they were looking at the country and stayed but a few weeks with me. We found wherever we preached the Lord was there and the people received us gladly. It would be too tedious to speak of one-tenth of the various things, the privations and joyful meetings, conversions, etc., of this six months tour among this people. The work of the Lord had begun on the waters of Ouachita last year; but this year it extended from the Ouachita east to the Current river and west to the Pecan Point on the Texas side. We got up small societies on the rivers and large creeks where the people had found good land, stock range, etc. Most of the rivers were at the time without ferry boats; of course we were compelled to swim our horses by the side of canoes or rafts, with our saddle bags on our shoulders. I had not appointments so many as we had in years following; yet whenever there was hearers I attended as far as in my power, and almost in every place the word found access, for the Lord was present and had given the hearing ear and the understanding heart. The gospel was glad tidings to those people, who were generally honest, humane, industrious and peaceable, and but very few of them had yet learned to be quibblers about foreknowledge, unconditional election and final perseverance. In death, many of them received the end and fruits of their obedient faith—the salvation of their souls. They left us and have gone to rest, testifying that Jesus was with them in the valley and shadow of death. These were the first fruits of the gospel in many places throughout the then wilderness country, but now the state of Arkansas. I must say in truth, to the credit of the first settlers of Arkansas, that they as a people in general, would have been no discredit to the better part of the community of the most respectable of the old or new world. And even those who did not unite with us in the Church had sound reason and good sense and courage to know and say that the gospel of Christ was the only means which God generally made use of to civilize, moralize, and christianize a country; therefore, they received us and freely gave us such things as they had. I have never seen harder times than these people had to encounter, while I was traveling and preaching to them. That year provisions were scarce indeed. The drought had ruined their crops; there was not bread for the people in the country; no market near to supply them; no boats then running. But being a firm, resolute, soldierly people, they endured all with patience. Some of them went far up the rivers into the prairies and returned with meat; others, destitute of horses to travel on, hunted about home, lived on deer, fish and such things as they could find; but all these afflictions never prevented them attending the meetings. They came from afar, heard and received the word with joy, and so it was that the preacher and the people suffered and rejoiced together. At one of my appointments on Wolf Creek, I was hindered from going on my way for several days; but having formed a society there some time before, with some conversions and a goodly number of mourners, we had meeting every day; for I had brother McMahon with me as an exhorter, whom I had licensed, and he was warm in love. Here we labored day and night while we stayed and the word was fruitful. One poor Indian, a Choctaw, was converted under preaching; he could speak but little English, but I saw by his looks that he understood truth, at least to make him tremble and weep; and while some of the people were crying for mercy and others praising God for what he had done for them, the Indian received the Spirit of joy and peace in the forgiveness of sins. He came to me, took hold of my hand, looked up and by signs told me that the Great Spirit had come down into his heart and he now loved him. This he told in his own tongue to an interpreter. Afterwards he was always glad to see me. I saw him a year after, with some eight or ten Choctaws; he ran to meet me, held me by the hand, spoke to the others and they all came up and took me by the hand and, in their tongue, called me brother. None can tell how I felt on this interview. Bro. McMahon frequently accompanied me to the different appointments where we had two or three days meetings. My design is only to give an outline of what I know of the planting of Methodism in the state of Arkansas. This year I found one local preacher on Spring river, bro. Henry Stevenson. He was preaching in that settlement with acceptance and removed, I think in the fall of 1816, to Ozan or Mount Prairie settlement and was useful in the good work afterwards. Thus the work of the Lord took its start in that new country.

Still I am trying to labor in the good work of the Lord, which has been life to my soul for forty years. I am now in the 73d year of my age, and waiting, in great confidence, for the fulfillment of the promise of that crown which the Lord hath laid up for all them that love his appearing. Amen. W. S.

NOTE BY ANOTHER.

We spend our years as a tale that is told—here ends this one. It had its trials, its blessings, its dark and its bright days—changes of season, society, time and place—all necessary for such probation as ours. Like a silver thread, grace runs through all this experience. Grace makes its chara and worth. Grace had its triumphs and finally ended in glory.

The experiences of such lives, simply and truthfully put forth, form the basis of the safest and largest inductions, as to the nature of experimental religion.

On the 5th of March, 1858, at the house of his son-in-law, Major Dyer, in Claiborne parish, La., the good old man died, in the 89th year of his age. Long had he been waiting, in patience, for the change. After being speechless three or four days, he raised his shrivelled and wrinkled arms in bed, smote them together and said—"Heaven's just up yonder! Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly"—then died.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

A TRIBUTE TO FATHER C——.

Our old white-haired pastor! how deeply my heart was affected last Sabbath eve, as I sat and listened to the trembling voice of the good old man. Methought I could see the savior bending from his throne in heaven, to crown those hoary locks with a circlet of glory, and to whisper sweet words of comfort to him who had so long borne His cross. Yes, for many a weary year, has this aged pilgrim preached to a sinning world. Many and many a time have I heard him entreat the erring, with tears in his eyes, to come to Jesus. I love the old man, and always have, since first he was sent among us. It has been four or five years since he was called away from us to another circuit. But this year, the young gentlemen of our little town petitioned Conference for our loved pastor, and the petition was favored. Oh! how glad we were! Now we should love to go the Methodist Church more than ever. I cannot tell you what a rush of emotion swept over my heart, when, after the lapse of so many years, I saw Father C—— arise in the old pulpit, and commence that beautiful song, "Children of the Heavenly King" The old man loves that song. He sings it oftener than any other, and could you but see the glow of joy that irradiates his countenance as he sings, you would be rejoiced. Our minister lives very near our town in the quietest spot you ever saw. The first time I was there, it seemed to me that everything was more beautiful around that house, than elsewhere. All things seemed to partake of that peaceful serenity that reigns supreme in the minister's heart. His wife, too, what a calm, gentle, old lady she is. I wonder if life is not all sunlight to her. On how many happy hours she and her husband can look back upon. Memory, to them, must sing her sweetest notes of a long life well spent. How beautiful will be the setting of their sun! Calmly they shall fall asleep, and awake in Heaven.

CORA CORAL.

Henderson, Texas, April, 1858.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

A REMINISCENCE OF GOVERNOR COLLIER.

On a cold but pleasant day in December, 1854, late in the afternoon, four traveling preachers, on their way to Talladega to attend the session of the Alabama Conference, stopped at a farm-house to obtain lodgings for the night. They had been repulsed but a little while before, on making a similar application, but comforted themselves with the assurance that a mile or so further on they would certainly find accommodations.

As I have said, there were four of us. Now the log cabin we were approaching evidently had but two rooms; but then one was sufficient for our accommodation, and we were already anticipating a pleasant time, free from interruption, when, just as we called a halt before the door, a stranger in a two-horse buggy, having a little negro boy in company, drove up from the opposite direction.

As we were weary, and had been anticipating a quiet happy time among ourselves, the appearance of the stranger at this particular juncture was regarded in the light of a drawback on our contemplated enjoyments; consequently, we did not return his cordial "Good evening, gentlemen," as warmly as might have been expected. We scanned the stranger closely, meanwhile conjecturing as to who he was, etc.

He seemed in no wise affected by our lack of sympathy, but at once inquired our destination. Being posted on this point, he next desired to know if we had stopped for the night. That was our purpose, providing there is room for us, emphasizing the word by way of hint. Our hint, however, seemed to be lost on the stranger; for without further parley he at once alighted, saying as he did so, "Then I will stay too." We were fairly in for it, and so had nothing to do but to put the "best foot foremost."

After attending to our horses we walked into the house and drew up around the fire, the stranger all the time amiable whether or not. Without being guilty of the rudeness of asking him who he was, we were on the look out for something that would throw light on that subject. Presently he spoke of Tuscaloosa, and spoke of it as one who resided there. This was something. A moment after he spoke of Dr. Summers in terms of highest commendation, remarking at the same time, that he feared the doctor was not fairly appreciated. We assured him that no man ranked higher with the preachers. He then said that he had reference to the congregation at Tuscaloosa. By this time we began very naturally to warm up toward our new acquaintance, and the conversation assumed a more genial tone, when in stepped "mine host," just returned from the cotton field, and addressed the stranger as Judge Collier.

Somewhat suprised at this discovery, one of the brethren arose and introducing himself to the governor, proceeded to introduce the rest of the company, all of us of course glad of the opportunity thus afforded us of making the acquaintance of so clever a man. We entered freely into conversation, religion constituting its base.

Our hostess, a member of the Baptist Church, became deeply interested in the conversation, and manifested a good deal of solicitude on her husband's account, who was not only not a member of the Church, but a rather "hard case." The governor who was slightly acquainted with him, spoke to him very kindly about his spiritual condition, urging upon him the necessity of immediate attention to the great, the paramount interests of the soul. He seemed to be affected, and I trust that the seed sown on that occasion, under the blessing of God, has before now brought forth the "peaceable fruits of righteousness."

In the course of the evening we discovered that brother Collier was deeply interested in the success of the missions to the blacks. This brought fresh to memory a conversation had with Dr. J. C. Keener some years ago, in which he spoke of the governor's devotion to that cause, and stated, as an exemplification of the fact, that during his pastorate in Tuscaloosa, the governor taught a class of little negroes in the Sabbath school, and that he was prompt and efficient in the discharge of his duties in that humble station. One of our number was a missionary, and he and brother Collier gave their views with regard to missionary labor, etc. Pleasantly the hours passed until we were admonished by the clock that the time for family devotion had arrived. Our devotions were sweet. In the morning betimes, again we all met at the family altar, brother Collier conducting the exercises.

Breakfast over, our rested and well fed horses were soon brought forth. And now, "Good bye," "God bless you," and we separated—brother Collier for his home in Tuscaloosa, and we for Talladega.

Just before parting one of the brethren apologetically referred to our manner toward him in the beginning. He laughed and said he understood it all, remarking that he had the advantage of us, knowing at once who we were, while we were in total ignorance of him. I do not think any of our party ever saw brother Collier again; but the memory of that pleasant meeting will never fade away.

When will his place be filled? When will the people of Alabama, in the person of her Christian Governor, "look upon his like again?"

DALTON.

MOUNT HERMON FEMALE INSTITUTE.

This model institution for female education is located one mile and a half north of the Clinton depot. It is one of the most beautiful, salubrious, romantic and tastefully improved localities in Mississippi—the impersonation of the beau ideal of order, fine taste and elegance. The trustees, this day, held their semi-annual meeting amid the fragrant bowers of Mount Hermon, and they would announce to the public that the institution has passed its initiatory ordeal, and it is now one of the permanent institutions of the country. The President, Mr. T. G. Rice, is a finished gentleman and scholar. Under his superintendence, aided by his very accomplished and competent assistant teachers, the institution gives unmistakable promise of future usefulness. The trustees take great pleasure in saying they can, with entire confidence, recommend this institution to all who have daughters to educate.

T. FORD,
Pres. of the Board.

J. B. GRAVES, Sec'y.
March 26, 1858.

LETTER FROM MR. WEBSTER ON SABBATH SCHOOLS.

MARSHFIELD, June, 15, 1852.

PROF. PEASE: Dear Sir—I have received your very able and interesting annual report of the condition of New York Sabbath school Association, and read it with great pleasure and instruction. It is gratifying, very gratifying, to learn that in "a city where vice and immorality run riot with impunity," a few humble Christians have devoted their time and energies to the cause of religion, and I fervently pray that your labors may be crowned with abundant success.

The Sabbath school is one of the great institutions of the day. It lends our youth in the path of truth and morality, and makes them good men and useful citizens. As a school for religious instruction it is of inestimable value—as a civil institution it is priceless, and has done more to preserve our liberties than grave statesman and armed soldiers. Let it then be fostered and preserved until the end of time!

I once defended a man charged with the awful crime of murder. At the conclusion of the trial I asked him what could induce him to stain his hands with the blood of a fellow-being. Turning his blood-shot eyes full upon me, he replied in a voice of despair, "Mr. Webster, in my youth I spent the holy Sabbath in evil amusements instead of frequenting the house of prayer and praise." Could we go back to the early years of all hardened criminals, I believe, yes, firmly believe, that their first departure from the path of morality was when they abandoned the Sabbath school, and their subsequent crimes might thus be traced back to the neglect of youthful religious instruction.

Many years ago I spent a Sabbath with Thomas Jefferson, at his residence in Virginia. It was in the month of June, and the weather was delightful. While engaged in discussing the beauties of the Bible, the sound of a bell broke upon our ears, when, turning to the sage of Monticello, I remarked, "How sweetly, how very sweetly sounds that Sabbath bell!" The distinguished statesman for a moment seemed lost in thought, and then replied: "Yes, my dear Webster yes, it melts the heart, it calms our passions, and makes us boys again." Here I observed that man was an animal formed for religious worship, and that notwithstanding all the sophistry of Epicurus, Lucretius, and Voltaire, the Scriptures stood upon a rock as firm, as immovable as truth itself. That man, in his purer, loftier breathings, turned the mental eye towards immortality, and that the poet only echoed the general sentiment of our nature, in saying that "the soul, secure in her existence, smiles at the drawn dagger, and defies its point."

Mr. Jefferson fully concurred in this opinion, and observed that the tendency of the American mind was in a different direction, a very different direction, and that Sunday schools (he did not use our more correct term, Sabbath), presented the only legitimate means, under the Constitution, of avoiding the rock on which the French republic was wrecked. "Barke," said he, "never uttered a more important truth than when he exclaimed that a 'religious education was the cheap defense of nations.'" "Raikes," said Mr. Jefferson, "has done more for our country than the present generation will acknowledge; perhaps, when I am cold, he will obtain his reward; I hope so, earnestly hope so; I am considered by many, Mr. Webster, to have little religion, but this is not the time to correct errors of this sort. I have always said, and always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands. Of the distinguished Raikes, he was 'clarum et venerabile nomen.' I took the liberty of saying that I found more pleasure in Hebrew poetry than in the best productions of Greece and Rome. That the 'harp upon the willows by the waters of Babylon,' had charms for me beyond anything in the numbers of the blind man of Smyrna. I then turned to Jeremiah, (there was a fine folio of the Scriptures before me, of 1458,) and read aloud some of those sublime passages, that used to delight me on my father's knee. But I fear, my dear friend, I shall tire you with my prolix account of what was a pleasant, a very pleasant Sabbath, spent in the company of one who has filled a very large space in our political and literary annals.

Thanking you for your report, and heartily concurring with you in the truth of your quotation that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people," I remain, with a high regard, your friend.

D. WEBSTER.

There is frequently more love in a frown, than there could be in a smile: "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten."

Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all.

FASCINATION—AN EXPERIENCE.

An article in this week's paper, signed J. H. Tackit, replying to the previous article of professor Christy, brings to my mind an incident of my own experience, bearing upon the subject of discussion. Early in the summer of 1851, while traveling Logan circuit, on the Hocking river, I met, one warm afternoon, a large black snake of the "racer" species. He was lying perfectly at his ease in the road, seemingly disposed neither to hostilities nor retreat. I determined to kill him; and rode back some distance to hitch my horse out of harm's away. Returning to the spot I found the snake moving slowly off. On my approach, however, he turned his head and gave me a look of serpentine malignity which I will never forget. I seized a pole some twelve feet long, and began cautiously to approach within striking distance. When near enough to reach, I paused to estimate the chances and consequences of failure. Meanwhile I became conscious of strange sensations. The reptile began to move toward me, and fixed his eyes upon mine with a most intense and penetrating gaze. Circles of light began to flash out from them, decomposed into the primary colors of the spectrum. I could trace each color with a vividness and exactness that startled me. This decomposition, however, I attributed to the tears which suffused my own eyes; forming refracting lenses. A cold sweat started upon my forehead, and in speechless horror I found my muscles refuse obedience to my will. I stood for some seconds with the pole in a perpendicular position, conscious that the snake was exercising upon me his dreaded power of fascination. Feeling the charm becoming momentarily stronger, I knew that I must soon break it or die a horrible death. In perfect desperation I made another effort, which was fortunately assisted by the circumstance that the heavy end of the pole was elevated. I succeeded in drawing the lower end from the perpendicular, and the weight of the upper end carried it to the ground, striking the snake a crushing blow just behind the head. His eyes being thus turned away, the spell was broken, and I breathed more freely. Uttering a devout but inarticulate thanksgiving to my Preserver, I next proceeded to measure my now extinguished foe. I found him over ten feet long. That this species of serpent possesses the power of fascination, and that I was subjected to that power on the above occasion, are propositions which I never can doubt, while I remember the awful sensations of that minute. I was conscious of a most rapid action of my perceptions. The smallest variations of color in the flashing circles of light, seemed to be daguerreotyped upon my very soul, and are ever and anon awakening shuddering recollections of that encounter. I will be readily believed when I say that I resolved never to venture upon another such experiment.

E. C. MERRICK.

Williamsburg, O., March 10. West. Ch. Adv.

LACONIC CORRESPONDENCE.

An anxious mother in Maine thus writes to her son in California:

My Dear Son—
Come home. A rolling stone gathers no moss.
Your affectionate mother.

To which Young America with equal laconism replies:

My Dear Mother—
Come here. A setting hen never gets fat.
Your affectionate son.

ANOTHER.—A merchant in New York, wishing to know whether there is any change in the market at Liverpool, writes to his correspondent there as follows:

Dear Sir—
?
Truly yours.

The faithful correspondent replies:

Dear Sir—
0
Truly yours.

Explanation:—(?) What is the news? Answer, (0) nothing.

STILL ANOTHER.—Jonathan used to manage the business of an uncle in Pittsburg, who, among other peculiarities, was very economical of words. One day the old gentleman, hearing that there was a boat at the wharf by which he wished to make a large shipment of coal, wrote thus to Jonathan:

Dear Jonathan—
; board.
Yours, UNCLE.

Jonathan beat him, though, at his own game. He wrote back:

Dear Uncle—
:
Yours, JONATHAN.

Explanation:—Se-mi-col-on board. (See my coal on board.) Col-on. (Coal on.)

CURE FOR SHYING.

If a lady's horse be addicted to shying, I will give her a cure and a simple cure for the same, one which I have never known to fail. Let us, for instance, suppose the existence of a large heap of stones on the near side of the road.—The horse sees an indistinct, gray object, and prepares to shy at it. The moment he shows such symptoms let his fair rider turn both her eyes on exactly the opposite side of the road, that is, the off side—and look steadily away from the offending heap, and I'll engage that the horse will walk quietly by. For many years I have ridden horses of all tempers and dispositions, some of them much given to shying, and have never yet found this simple remedy to fail in its effect. Let those who scoff at me try it. The reason is this: The human eye has, doubtless, a great influence on all animals, and there is a strong and secret sympathy between the horse and his rider; the horse sees an indistinct object, and looks doubtfully at it; his rider becomes alarmed, imagining that the animal is going to commit some eccentricity; the fear is communicated to the animal, and he starts in terror from the object which has frightened him; whereas, if he finds that his rider sits unmoved and unconcernedly, he regains his confidence, and goes on "in the even tenor of his way." I believe that one-half of our horses are ruined for life by being "hit over the head" by grooms to cure them of shying.

The call to religion is not a call to be better than your fellows, but to be better than yourself. Religion is relative to the individual.

The superfluous blossoms on a fruit tree are meant to symbolize the large way in which God loves to do pleasant things.

He that is company for every fool, is justly made a fool of by every company.

To accuse one's self before one is accused, is to own a foul crack in a false conscience.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1858.

Editor Absent.—Brother McTyeire, in company with brothers Harp and Ivy, left on Wednesday evening for Nashville. During his attendance upon the session of the General Conference, the columns of this paper will be supplied with a liberal editorial correspondence; and will, besides, contain the very latest and fullest proceedings of the General Conference. These proceedings will be of absorbing interest to Southern Methodists, and their publication should induce many new subscribers. Names sent within the next two weeks will not be too late. Nor indeed at any time for a month or six weeks to come will this cease to be an inducement, as our columns for this space of time will be enriched with matters of importance to the whole connection. We count on reaching the seven thousand by the last of May. Five hundred are yet wanting.

The Depository Meeting.—The meeting of all the Methodist congregations, to present this important interest of our Church, was not held on last Monday night, but is to be on Sabbath evening next, at Carondelet street Church, at ½ before 8 o'clock. We hope that all our members and friends will be present.

New Orleans Methodism is as much interested in the immediate and complete success of this enterprise as in any which at any time may have appealed to its wonted liberality.—It is especially desirable, as the General Conference is about to assemble; and if we can report to that body that a Depository has been actually secured, it may go far toward determining that body to select this city as a center for the Missionary, Tract, and other general societies of the M. E. Church, South.

Day of Fasting and Prayer.—The Louisiana Conference, by resolution, appointed the first Friday in May to be observed for this purpose. It was resolved upon with special reference to a revival of religion in our bounds. Last year, we scarcely held our own in membership, as a Conference. Is it not time to humble ourselves before God, and to wait upon God as an entire Conference? The observance of this day will depend very much upon the preachers.—Let the Churches be opened, and special services be held. The great revival has not yet reached Louisiana. Will God pass us by?—"Return, O Lord, how long? and let it repent thee concerning thy servants."

Collection for Delegates.—We are informed that but a trifle of this fund had been received up to Wednesday evening. Most of the delegates from Louisiana Conference, have left for Nashville. Money raised for their expenses, if sent to this office, will be duly forwarded to the delegation at the seat of General Conference.

Delegates.—The Texas delegation passed through this city on Monday and gave us a call. Really, their number and appearance impressed us and would impress any one, with what is going on in the Lone Star State. A few years back Texas was a Mexican province—then, a doubtful republic. It was all missionary ground. Now, from that region, the twelve delegates of two Annual Conferences come forth, led by the veteran Alexander: a noble band of men. They have seen service.

Affording Affliction.—Passing a cottage door, a few evenings since, we recognised an humble and sincere friend in the person of an invalid refreshing herself in the balmy air.—The soft breeze seemed doubly grateful to her pale face as she sat upon the door step. This Protestant Irish girl makes her living by sewing. A fortnight's sickness laid up nothing for rent. An unfinished dress lay by her, upon which she had feebly resumed work. Upon our expression of sympathy she replied:

"Really, sir, I feel tho better for all this sick I've been. It humbles me flesh and gives me the upper hand of meself, like. If I could only afford it I could wish to be sick ever now and then—its good for me—it is."

We put that down as the best lesson of the day.

For China's Salvation.—One man, at least, continues to feel and manifest a christian interest on this subject. John Dunwoody, of Rapides parish, La., encloses in a letter to the assistant treasurer of the Missionary Society, two hundred dollars. If there were a thousand—just nine hundred and ninety-nine more such friends of the heathen—in the bounds of the Church, South, she should be doing more than her half million of members is now doing.

Tracts for China.—Some right handed one, without a left hand or a name, dating the letter, "Hopewell, Ala., April 13," sends us $10 to "aid Bro. J. W. Lambuth in publishing tracts for China."

Autobiography.—The old plan of selling one's self to the doctors and receiving pay before death, on which to live, was not so pleasant or profitable as the modern autobiography. We see it stated by Carlton & Porter, 200 Mulberry st., New York, that since the issue of the first copy of Peter Cartwright's Autobiography, the sales have been two thousand copies per month, making the total sale to this date over thirty-two thousand.

It is worth while for a man to live the interesting and eccentric for three score years, in order to have "the tale of my life" to tell, the remaining ten. He speaks to other generations: his auditors are fresh. It keeps up a living line of history—of the best history, for the individual experience gives natural color and interpretation to the events it is interwoven with. Really there is something pleasant in seeing old age repose on the autumn gatherings from its own past.

God hates sin everywhere, but especially in his own people; he will not let his children sin without correction.

A TRACT OF THE TIMES.

The religious awakening is an epoch-making event. One of the most original and significant things that has fallen under our eye is the N. Y. Tribune, April 3, 1858—"A Revival Extra." It is a double sheet, closely printed, and entirely taken up with reports of religious meetings in different places. Politics, monetary and financial articles, local news, advertisements, all are excluded to make way for religious items. A description of this sheet gives our readers a better idea of the revival than any thing else. We had a thought of copying it, bodily, but the Advocate, in its finer type, would not hold the half.

The Tribune, as is generally known, is a freesoil organ in politics and has leaned to free-love, in ethics. Proclivities both, that would yield such space to any other subject only upon the pressure of a controlling public interest.

The headings of some of the articles arrest the eye and their contents are often of thrilling interest. Think of it, that a secular paper of over one hundred thousand circulation sends forth this Tract among the people! We read of Daily Union Prayer Meetings—Number of Conversions—The Policemen's Meeting; Address by a Police Captain—Speedy Conversions—Revival in a Printing Office—A Merchant's View of Prayer—Demand for Hymn Books and Tracts—A Drunkard Converted—Prayer Meeting in the Legislature—Three Hundred Fishermen Converted—Conversions on Board a Receiving Ship—Religious Conversation on Railroad Cars. Under the head of Prayers for Pickpockets, is this paragraph:

"At one of the prayer meetings in the Methodist Church in John street, it was announced that several losses of money had been suffered from pickpockets in the crowd, whereupon the conductor of the meeting said, 'that they were proper persons to be prayed for,' and a petition was accordingly made 'that if they had come to steal purses, God might steal their hearts.'"

No Shaving on Sunday, announces that the barbers of Utica have unanimously agreed to close their shops on that day and neither to work themselves nor allow their assistants to work for them.

The states from which the news is mainly gathered are New York, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Maine, Massachusetts, N. Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Ohio, Virginia, Tennessee and Canada. The Jews are not passed by.—Says this Revival Extra:

"Many Jews have participated in the operations of the present revival movement. They have been in attendance at nearly all the meetings in the various parts of the city, and have presented numerous requests for prayers in their behalf. In the Twentieth Ward quite a number of Jews of both sexes have gone over to the profession of the Christian faith. One convert is about to go forth as a missionary among his own people. Many Jewish families have sent their children to Christian Sunday-schools. At a meeting in Burton's old theater a few days ago, a Jew complained that the seed of Abraham had been neglected in the prayers of his Gentile brethren. He said that a class numbering as many as thirty-five or thirty-six thousand souls in the population of this city, surely had a high claim upon the interest of Christians in heart. He begged that in future they be prayed for at every meeting. In Brooklyn an entire family of Jews were recently led to embrace Christianity."

The telegraph tells the news and joins rejoicing hearts, in distant localities, with angels in heaven:

"It is not surprising, perhaps, that many of the large number of conversions every day occurring should be reported by telegraph as well as by letter to the friends and relatives of the persons on whom the revival has wrought a spiritual change. At many of the telegraph offices in this city, as also in other places, messages have been sent to all parts of the country, announcing conversions, and that many of them have been exceedingly tender and touching. Some have been as follows: 'Dear mother, the revival continues, and I, too, have been converted.' 'My dear parents, you will rejoice to hear that I have found peace with God.' 'Tell my sister that I have come to the Cross of Christ.' At last I have faith and peace.' Many young men, engaged in business in this city, have sent such news to their homes in New England. Many of the dispatches mention that letters, containing more full information and details, will follow by mail."

Facts and incidents chime in like a love-feast recital. A Whole Town Converted, tells of several villages in which not a single adult inhabitant is out of the Church. An Old Man's Prayer Answered—A Pugilist Converted—Another Prize-fighter Converted. Under the last is this communication:

"Sir: It seems that the present revival of religion is reaching all classes of the community. I noticed a few days ago that Awful Gardner, the celebrated prize-fighter, had been among the converts, and could scarcely believe it. But what was my surprise, on last evening, on entering the Baptist Church in this city, to find among the seekers after grace old William Harrington, known, I believe, among the men of his caste as 'Boss' Harrington, one of the most notorious prize-fighters of the day. The old gentleman had been here on a visit, and was induced to attend the meetings for several evenings previous, until last night, I am happy to say that he professed justification by faith before the meeting closed. He was heard to say before the meeting closed, 'I have fought men all my life; the rest of it I will fight for Jesus.'"

The Conversion of a Sailor is thus told, at a meeting for prayer and experience in Brooklyn:

"The leader of the meeting then announced that several seafaring men, recent converts from the Baptist Mariners' Church, were present, who were requested to speak. In response to the invitation, a young man, an American, arose and spoke as follows:

'I am a stranger here, but I trust I am not a stranger to Christ. It is not long since I was converted, yet now I know Him, and am no longer a stranger to His love. I speak with great trembling before my brethren, because I feel my weakness; yet I am made strong through the grace of God. When I went to sea I left behind me one of the best mothers that ever lived. She was a pious woman, and used to pray for me before I went away from home, and after I had gone she prayed more than ever. Her prayer always was that I might become a Christian. In my early youth, before I went away from my father's house, I was a scholar in a Sunday-school, where I learned many lessons that I shall never forget. When I was at sea, off St. Vincent, a great storm arose. It was a tremendous gale, and many vessels were wrecked. We all thought that we should go to the bottom. There seemed to be no possibility that the ship could hold out against it, and we gave up hope. There was not a single person on board that was a Christian—none to whom I could go to seek counsel in view of preparing for eternity. I sat alone by myself, thinking what I could do. I was afraid to meet death, for I was unprepared to die. All the lessons that I had learned in the Sabbath-school came up before my mind. It seemed as if all that I had ever heard, or read, or known, flashed before me, and appeared as if it had all happened but yesterday. I thought of my religious instruction; I thought of my mother's prayers; I thought of the Bible; I thought of God; I saw my mother's tears; I determined to pray, and I did pray. I made a vow before God, that, if he would spare me, and suffer me to get ashore once more, I would consecrate all the rest of my life to his service. He heard my prayer, and we were saved. Not one of the crew was lost, although the storm proved fatal to many vessels. One of these, the bark Resolute of New London, went down with all on board. Another lost eight men, and came near losing all, with the vessel itself. In a day or two afterward we ran into St Vincent, and were ashore safe. The danger was over, and so was my resolution. I forgot in a great measure, my solemn obligation to God. There was no house of worship in St. Vincent, but if there had been I doubt whether I would have gone into it. We are always apt to forget, when peril is past, the prayers we utter when it is upon us. A short time afterward we were at St. Helena. Here there was a church, and when I saw it I began to remember what I had told God in the storm. It came upon me with great seriousness. We did not remain long at the island, but I determined if possible to fulfil my promise. I determined to seek and to find Christ. I began to pray, and to pray earnestly for my salvation; and now I rejoice with great joy, and thank God with many thanks that he has shown me the way of life, and led my feet to walk in it. The prayers of my good mother are answered for I trust that I am a child of God, redeemed by the blood of Christ.'

"These words were uttered with some hesitancy, occasioned by great caution, and were listened to with intense eagerness by the congregation. The leader of the meeting then called upon some member of the Church to offer a prayer of thanksgiving, in view of the story that had been related; and prayer was accordingly offered.

"Before the meeting concluded, two other seamen narrated the circumstances of their conversion at sea."

Among the Requests for Prayer, are some touching things:

"At all the prayer meetings many written requests for prayers, from various persons, are every day read by the conductors. These requests are frequently made the subjects not only of prayer but remark, and thus give direction to the meetings. At the large gatherings, these documents are often so numerous that they would consume the entire hour. We give the following as specimens, showing the spirit and style in which they are written:

'The prayers of Christians are requested for a young man—the son of a clergyman—who is an idle jester on the subject of religion, and who has, within the last hour, been heard to ridicule these meetings, and to jest upon those subjects.'

'A lady, 87 years of age, who has always lived a worldly life, and who seems bent upon going into eternity trusting in her own righteousness, declined an earnest invitation of the writer, to accompany him to this meeting; but she seemed unusually impressed when told that between 1 and 2 o'clock to-day, the prayers of this congregation of several hundreds of persons, would be offered up to God in her behalf. The writer on leaving her, requested her to pray for herself at the same hour of the day.'

'A sister earnestly entreats the prayers of God's people in behalf of four brothers, that, in this time of his mercy, they may be all gathered into the fold of Christ.'

'Prayers are requested for a young man who has thus far resisted all persuasions to attend these meetings, and who is in these rooms today for the first time.'

'The writer asks the prayers of the audience in behalf of three of his friends who have manifested a desire to seek Christ.'

'A lady who was present yesterday, and much affected with the prayers, &c., of the brethren, wishes prayer for her two sons, one seventeen and the other nineteen years of age, who are the last of the family remaining.'

'A brother who has been a constant attendant upon and laborer at these meetings, asks an interest in your prayers in behalf of two brothers for whom many prayers have been put up with strong crying and tears by a now sainted mother.'

'A sister who has been praying daily three years for the conversion of an only brother, asks an interest in your prayers.'

A card, with the title "Come! Come!! Come!!! Let him that heareth say come," has been issued for gratuitous distribution.

Certainly never was religious propagandism so throughly carried out. Printed hymns, tracts, placards, everywhere remind the inattentive of their duties.

In these things we rejoice, yea and we will rejoice.

A Scribe.—Our friend, Rev. C. K. Marshall, has been cogitating for years on a cogwheel or other machine for printing the name of subscribers on the margin of newspapers. How the machine is to be used we do not know, but he has sent us a specimen of the work done by it, and therefore the machine must be "done." The name printed, on the margin, is clear and emphatic. If, as the inventor states, the "scribe" can "easily sign two hundred papers per minute with plain or ornamental letters," then he may exclaim Eureka. It is the thing desiderated, unless, by the way, the mode be too expensive for general application. A plain and cheap working invention, printing subscribers' names on papers, at the rate of one hundred a minute, would make a millionaire of the inventor. We are acquainted with some experiments in that line, but they are all on a small and slow plan and not capable of extension. "The Church Evangelist," with half a million of patrons, would go, with such an appendage.

J. Wright & Co., 21 and 151 Chartres street, whose advertisements appear in our columns, are not men of straw, but substantial, business men. The Canadian Vermifuge is highly commended by those who have used it.

J. W. Fee & Co, Family Grocers, No 99 Camp st., enable their neighbors of 112 Camp st. to speak understandingly of the qualities of the fresh butter, crackers, cheese and other edibles they keep on hand. A "complimentary" assortment has been duly transferred from one table to the other and found good. Those who have families to supply would do well to call at 99, on their way to and from the Advocate office.

METHODIST PRESS.

At a recent consecration of a new chapel for the use of a Unitarian Congregational Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., the following act of dedication is reported:

"And now to the worship of the one God and Father of all who is above and through all and in us all: to the service of Man, our brother, the child of God: to the memory of Jesus, the Man of Nazareth, the Martyr of Calvary: to Truth and Freedom; to Justice and Humanity; to Piety and Virtue and Knowledge and Charity;

We devote and dedicate this house."

Upon which the Pittsburg Advocate remarks:

No Christ in the gospel of Unitarianism; "Jesus of Nazareth, the Martyr of Calvary," is the highest designation assigned in this creed to Him who was declared to be equal with the Father, "God over all, blessed forevermore!" But the "Martyr of Calvary" of whom they speak is not the divine Christ of the true gospel, the Savior of sinners. They neither know Him nor the Father.

Rev. R. A. Young, of Missouri, the Border Correspondent of Nashville Advocate, writes:

I notice, in the last Nashville Advocate, an article from "Sea-Coast." He thinks we have bishops enough; I dare say he does. Virginia is on the sea-coast; Georgia is on the Gulf-coast; so are Alabama and Mississippi. These all have resident bishops. The other two reside in Tennessee and Kentucky. Of course "Sea-coast" is satisfied: four bishops at hand, and the remainder living near, ought to satisfy anybody. I make no doubt he is in the habit of seeing bishops at camp-meetings, church dedications, and annual commencements. But who of us, "beyond the river," ever witness such a sight? These Conferences—Missouri, St. Louis, Kansas, Indian Mission, Arkansas, Ouachita, Louisiana, Texas, East Texas prime, all without a sight of a bishop, except when one comes along to hold an annual conference, and hasten off to another region, towards the "sea-coast." We, of the West, like the Episcopacy, the itinerant general superintendency; but our habits are not familiar with the institution, except when we "go up to Annual Conference." I could give six pages of reasons why the "sea-coast" ought to allow the "border" a bishop, but they are the same old reasons.

The Northern Advocate, alluding to our notice of Summers' Watson's Dictionary, as an edition bringing it up to the present advanced stage of biblical and theological lore, says:

We have long regretted that modern editions of our old standard works were not brought out to keep them up with the unprecedented progress of sacred literature.—New books are not more needed than new editions of old books. Besides, this plan of editing and revising old standard works has a happy effect to keep the present generation in sympathy with the best thoughts, and sentiments, and modes of thinking of the past, and thus perpetuates the spirit and unity not only of doctrinal faith, but of Church history and fellowship.

Rev. Wm. Butler, Methodist missionary to India, has survived the dangers of the revolt and reports favorably to the Church on his prospects. Writing from the city of Delhi to Zion's Herald, he presents a glorious future for converted India:

That beauty of design, that richness of coloring, that exquisite finish which we now admire in the houses of their idolatry, all point significantly to the glorious future; they intimate what will be the outward expression of India's Christianity in the days to come. That splendid liberality and consummate taste of the Asiatic mind which produced such creations as this temple, the Taj, and the Motte Masjid in honor of idolatry, vanity and a false faith, is destined a worthier devotion.

Surely an hour is coming when that taste and magnificence, under the noble impulses of the "love of Christ," shall lay its highest services at the foot of his cross, and present in its result a richer realization of Isaiah's glowing descriptions than Christendom has yet elsewhere witnessed. And let us remember that Isaiah's images, descriptions and references to real life are all oriental, and bear a special reference to that abounding mercy God has reserved for the teeming millions of the East! The 60th chap. of his prophecies is so apposite, it might have been written solely with reference to India, and her glorious future!

Rev. P. Moelling, editor of the Evangelist, who was born in Germany and "born again" in New Orleans, writes in a pleasant strain to the Texas Advocate. Passing through his old home, he visited the Cathedral and comments on a picture there that has staggered many of us heretics:

The air is here, with a smell from incense, how "holy!" I stop and look around. High from the vaulted dome look the images of the Saints with scorn upon me—a heretic. Above the St. Joseph's altar, in the choir, there hangs a tremendous large picture representing the Holy Franziskus of Assisfy. The position of the saint is half-kneeling, half-falling, with the eyes lifted up towards the figure of Christ upon the cross. His forehead, ex necessitate, is therefore shortened, his features broken and disfigured, and, to tell the truth, he looks more like an old, drunken, misshapen shoemaker, staggering home, and cursing at every step, than the Saint of Assisfy. Bless you! when I found Jesus, why the very hair upon my head waited for joy, no power upon earth could keep me in a position as if I had the delirium tremens, and I only wish that the saint represented here could see the likeness under which he is worshiped and prayed to every day; he would create a wonderful stir in purgatory. And as "we Catholics" believe that the saints are present, to hear our prayers (how otherwise could they make supplication for us?) just imagine to yourself St. Catherine approaching the real saint represented here: "Why, Frank, they have given it to you marvellously upon that picture there!" "No matter, Catty, it is all done to scare the Irish, for as soon as they give up fear, they turn heretics!" But the Church, in concert with the art, know these things well.

A letter in the New York Advocate and Journal gives an interesting account of the rise and progress of Methodism in this city. The writer has evidently sojourned in the Crescent City, observed things and writes freely of them, though kindly. Speaking of New Orleans, he says: "Methodism has advanced more in the last five years than perhaps in the twenty years previous. Still there is great room for improvement—very great."

The Southern Christian Advocate, copying the letter, draws inferences:

It shows the efficiency of concentration of effort, and proves, we think, the benefit of sometimes relaxing the rigidity of rule where peculiar circumstances seem to demand it. The provision made for continuing the same preachers in a city circumstanced as New Orleans, was doubtless wise and has been the means of giving them an influence they might never otherwise have acquired.

This writer tells the people of the New Orleans Churches a thing which though it rebukes we trust it may mend them—a shyness of strangers carried from the counting room to the Church:

'Tis true there are a great many rogues in large cities who might take advantage of courteousness. But is it right that nine out of ten virtuous, perhaps elevated Christians, should be treated coldly, because there might happen one of ten who was vicious and hypocritical. Our word for it, if a hypocrite comes into a church, and he is treated kindly, the place will get pretty hot for him, and he will vamoose. We have noticed this don't-care spirit of Church members in this city wide pain; and heard strangers complain of it. We hope our New Orleans Methodist friends will reform in this respect; and, instead of taking comfortable seats themselves, will see on every Sabbath day that the hundreds of visiting, stranger Methodists are not only comfortably seated, but made to feel, from some kind words spoken, that they are in their Father's house. We fear many Methodists, with certificates in their possession, visit our city churches, and intend to hand in the same, but are deterred because of the frigid greeting they receive. This is a common failing in large cities everywhere, as well as in this place. Methodists should feel the importance of this matter, as other Protestant denominations here are calling in the aid of the secular press, as well as having the untiring exertions of prominent laymen to divert strangers to their houses of worship. We have seen Presbyterians come to the hotel and solicit persons to accompany them to church; also take occasion to hand their minister. Strangers deserve such attentions. Every Methodist in New Orleans has a very great mission to accomplish, not only as instruments in assisting to mould the morals of the resident citizens, but in encouraging the thousands of stranger Christians who sojourn here in the business season. Try it, ye New Orleanians."

A Correspondent of the Chicago Advocate states his objections to union meetings. We never did like "our house," that is, Union meeting-houses; but the present, especially, is a time when Union meetings express as well as promote the harmony of the Church of Christ.—However, we let him speak for himself:

I have observed that many of our protracted meetings this winter have been "union" meetings. This, in my opinion, is a movement backward. I have tried it for some years, and found it "wanting." I think it better for other denominations to have their own protracted meetings, as other meetings, by themselves and for themselves, and we the same, rather than to have one general "union" meeting of three or four denominations together, working on shares. If we unite with them we must do as they do, and I never knew a Methodist preacher work in Presbyterian or Baptist harness that did not get his back galled with it. David cannot fight in Saul's armor, though it may do well enough for Saul to fight with. Neither do our people work as well in other meetings as in their own. They dare not rejoice aloud, or say "Amen" Methodistically for fear of shocking the nerves of some good Baptist or Presbyterian brother; and if there is not a feeling of "liberty," how can good be done?

Minutes of the Annual Conferences.

For the year 1857-8. Nashville: Stevenson and Owen.

After many vexatious delays, this important annual is in type. It has been a troublesome, perhaps thankless, work to edit it; besides the annoyances and difficulties arising from imperfect, illegible, and contradictory copy, the statistics have given us great anxiety. The increase does not keep pace with the growth of our population—in several Conferences there is a positive decrease, and in some others there is a decrease in the colored membership. What becomes of all the children of the Church? What becomes of all the converts at the great revivals? But we do not intend to moralize on this subject at present. The following table, which is correct in its arithmetic, and approaches correctness in its data, will exhibit the present numerical strength of the Church:

Conferences.	Trav. Prs.	Supls. Prs.	Local Prs.	White Memb'rs	White Prob'rs	Colored Memb'rs
1. Kentucky	77	11	235	16,386	1221	4,526
2. Louisville	79	13	201	19,037	1820	3,581
3. Missouri	82	4	142	14,440	1746	1,543
4. St. Louis	101	9	202	16,526	2389	1,424
5. Kansas Mission	22	1	12	663	77	13
6. Tennessee	178	9	364	30,081	3963	6,724
7. Holston	106	16	388	30,527	6450	3,649
8. Memphis	130	7	430	28,258	8877	6,666
9. Mississippi	120	12	265	13,736	3380	10,592
10. Virginia	164	4	185	31,703	5040	5,270
11. Western Virginia	48	1	66	7,253	1281	253
12. North Carolina	114	10	244	29,247	3098	11,560
13. South Carolina	145	11	231	34,231	4205	38,219
14. Georgia	182	25	578	43,425	6967	19,327
15. Alabama	187	16	493	35,080	6455	17,892
16. Florida	71	8	106	7,269	1698	5,618
17. Texas	122	6	178	8,805	2500	2,184
18. East Texas	89	4	192	10,183	2387	1,608
19. Arkansas	56	1	143	9,652	2280	770
20. Ouachita	68	3	144	7,247	2001	1,835
21. Pacific	34	1	30	1,054	610	9
22. Indian Mission	35	-	64	102	-	270
23. Louisiana	77	-	144	6,430	1797	4,926
Total in 1857-8	2257	167	4907	404,430	62231	9148,525
Total in 1856-7	2171	163	4663	399,382	60779	140,634
Increase	186	4	247	5,048	1452	1,891

Conferences.	Colored Prob'rs.	Indian Mem'rs	Indian Prob'rs	Total M'rs. and Pb'rs	Increase.	Decr'se.
1. Kentucky	470	....	....	22,934	....	461
2. Louisville	455	....	....	25,186	....	1240
3. Missouri	217	....	....	18,174	861	....
4. St. Louis	178	....	....	20,809	1,059	....
5. Kansas Mission	....	178	....	756	80	....
6. Tennessee	606	....	....	42,527	136	....
7. Holston	575	110	....	47,815	1,595	....
8. Memphis	1,056	....	....	40,418	430	....
9. Mississippi	3,996	....	....	82,041	2,251	....
10. Virginia	364	....	....	40,730	....	614
11. Western Virginia	43	....	....	8,945	253	....
12. North Carolina	1,030	....	....	45,263	463	....
13. South Carolina	6,971	....	....	84,310	2,307	....
14. Georgia	3,910	....	....	73,407	124	....
15. Alabama	4,490	....	....	64,823	162	....
16. Florida	1,606	....	....	16,370	1,887	....
17. Texas	1,014	....	....	14,812	800	....
18. East Texas	260	....	....	14,794	450	....
19. Arkansas	221	....	....	12,841	766	....
20. Ouachita	618	....	....	11,919	....	4
21. Pacific	....	....	....	1,720	483	....
22. Indian Mission	....	3101	467	4,045	482	....
23. Louisiana	1,370	....	....	14,710	....	6
Total in 1857-8	29,394	3389	467	655,777	14,304	2425
Total in 1856-7	26,433	3190	296	643,708	....	....
Increase	2,961	199	171	12,069	Net increase.

[The transferred preachers are reckoned with those of the Conferences to which they now belong. The six bishops are not counted. Their addition would make the number of travelling preachers, including those on the superannuated list, 2440. The preachers who located this year (80) are not counted; on the other hand, the preachers who were admitted on trial, (225,) and those who were re-admitted, (57,) are counted among the travelling preachers, though many of them are also reckoned with the local preachers. There are several members in China who are not counted, not being officially reported. There are errors and defects in the work, which, for want of the proper data, the editor could not prevent. To make it as correct as possible, he has bestowed a vast amount of time and labor on it, for the four years that it has been edited by him.]

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference.

Bro. McTyeire: I fear not a few of the ministers belonging to this Conference, may neglect to raise the means to defray the expense of the delegates to the General Conference. As the Treasurer, I have very little yet to report, and only a few days remain before I leave for Nashville, and so of the delegates generally.

I write to say that funds collected can be forwarded to this place and they will reach me at Nashville. And collections can be taken any time during the month of May, where it could not be attended to earlier. Yours,

C. K. MARSHALL.

Vicksburg, April 10.

To the Members of the Alabama Conference.

I have received several letters from the brethren on the western side of the Conference, inquiring for the Minutes, and I take this method of giving the information asked for.

The manuscript of the Minutes of the last session of our Conference was in the hands of the printer in about ten days after the adjournment of Conference, and the printer, with unusual promptitude, had them ready for delivery in about two weeks after he received the manuscript. Why they have not been received by the preachers I can not say, as bros. Blue and Mitchell were appointed by the Conference to take charge of them and destribute the same to the several preachers of the Conference. Those not having as yet received them, will please write to the above named committee at Montgomery, Ala.

T. W. DONNAN, Sec'y. Ala. Conf.

The income of the English Wesleyan Missionary Society for the year has exceeded £120,000, being about $600,000.

News from the Churches.

Eufaula, April 16, 1858.

Mr. Editor: We have just closed a meeting of four weeks, in the Methodist church of this place. During that time great were the manifestations of God's power. About one hundred were converted. All denominations labored together and shared the fruits. Fifty-four—forty whites and 14 colored—have joined our church—twenty-nine—21 whites and 8 colored—the Baptists; sixteen whites, the Presbyterians. There are others who will join some one of the Churches.

WM. M. MOTLEY.

Columbus, Ms.—Dr. Eckford, who called at our office this week, reports a gracious revival at this place.

East Baton Rouge, La.—Rev. W. S. Townsend, pastor, writes April 19: "Very interesting time here. Of these prayer meetings as a great and blessed means in the conversion of sinners."

West Ward, Mobile, Ala.—About the 1st January, we commenced protracted meetings which have increased in interest to such an extent, that we have not yet learned how to discontinue them, in justice to the many inquiring souls, and our duty to God and the Church. This little Church has been built up. We have had an accession of fifty-nine to the Church, most of whom were converted at the altar. Last night over twenty were at the altar of prayer.

J. W. W.

A SABBATH SCHOOL UNION.

Among the Unions we like this one—the Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Churches of New Orleans and vicinity. We recommend the plan to other cities. Let the several stations and missionary charges unite their Sabbath schools in an annual celebration at some central point. It will give an impetus to the cause. The teachers would thus be brought into consultation and concert of action, to the benefit of all.

To W. H. Foster, President of the Sabbath School Union, we are indebted for copies of a pamphlet containing, besides the exercises of a celebration, the constitution and by-laws of the Union and a list of the schools composing the Union, with the officers, number of teachers, scholars, etc. As a matter interesting to many of our readers, we take from the pamphlet the list of the schools, with the number of teachers and pupils:

Schools.	No. Teachers.	No. Pupils.
McGehee, Carondelet street	28	180
Elijah Steele, Felicity street	21	225
Morena street	28	350
Jackson (branch of Elijah Steele)	6	120
Lisurel street	9	120
New Hope, Algiers	15	180
Gretna	8	120
Jefferson City	7	100
Carrollton	6	80
Dryades street, (German)	12	150
Piety street	9	120
Union street	14	200
Lafayette	9	120
Carrollton	3	20
Fourteen Schools	177	1895

On last sabbath afternoon these schools, under their teachers and banners, made a grand and glorious muster, at Carondelet St. Church. The lower floor or nave of the building was given to the children. The crowd clustered in the galleries.

We copy from the Crescent of Monday morning, 19th inst., an account:

"The Sabbath School Celebration.—The anniversary celebration of the Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church came off yesterday afternoon, at the McGehee Church, Carondelet street. The church, as might have been expected, was densely crowded, and the exercises passed off to the satisfaction of all. The army of juvenile Methodists sang sweetly in chorus, and answered the Scriptural questions of the teachers in chorus, and in a manner altogether charming to hear.

"The German children, who sang and went through the exercises in their turn, in their own language, gave equal pleasure to the spectators. Mr. Foster, President of the Sabbath School Union, presided over the celebration, and all the ministers, teachers and other prominent members of the denomination dignified the occasion with their presence.

"The Methodists of this city, we think, have just reason to be proud of the force of their Sabbath schools; for, differ on sectarian points as we may, no one can deny that Sabbath schools of whatever denomination, are the most potent of all agencies in inculcating a healthy morality and interest with which it might be possessed.

Religious Revivals.—In every section of the State, says the Columbus, (Ga.,) Times, April 15, there has been or are still progressing religious revivals. Augusta, Cassville, Dalton, LaGrange, Columbus, Lumpkin, Athens, and other places in the State have felt the influence of religious revivals. There has not been such an awakening among the people upon this subject since the year 1839.

VISITING COMMITTEES.

Centenary College.—R. J. Harp, Henry Ayers, S. Haws.

Mansfield Female College.—J. L. Chapman, B. Suratt, P. M. Goodwyn.

Homer College.—R. Radle, S. J. Hawkins, E. Goodwyn.

☞ The Bishop made out a list of Visiting Committees the day previous to our arrival in the city from Conference. He wrote the committees down in pencil on a slip of paper, which I put in the secretary's book with other papers. I send you for publication in the Advocate, as nearly as I remember, the committees as appointed by the Bishop. Yours,

J. W. JOHNSON, Cor. Sec'y.

EFFORTS OF LAYMEN.

The lay effort, which is now more than ever apparent in the churches, is thus commented on by the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser:

Laymen have never taken that position of service in the cause of Christ, which they should have done. There are multitudes of them who can preach, exhort, and pray, with an interest which would surprise their own minds, if the talents could only be brought forth. Until laymen take more responsibility in the work of the Lord, the cause will not assume the magnitude and interest with which it might be possessed.

Marriages.

Married—On the 11th instant, at the residence of Gen. Clark, by Rev. James H. Shelton, Mr. THOMAS B. LENOIR and Miss EMMA S. CLARK, all of Bolivar county, Mi.

On the 31st ult., at Pastimataha, Choctaw county, Ala., by Rev. S. U. Smith, Mr. ABNER L. GAINES and Miss BETTIE HOPKINS. At the same time and place, J. P. McGOWAN, Esq., and Miss JULIA COMBS, all of the above county.

Special Notices.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

The annual meeting of the Board will be held in Greensboro', Ala., on Wednesday, the 9th of June, at 9 o'clock A. M. A full attendance of the Trustees is earnestly desired.

E. WADSWORTH, Cor. Sec'y.

April 16, 1858. 4t

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY,
112 CAMP STREET.

We have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, a fine invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the publications of the Church, South, the following:

Benson's Commentaries; Clark's do., in sheep and calf, full; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Aucebotes for Fireside, Ministry and Young; Baker on Disciplinae; Bible Index, by Barr; Cheeks to Antonomianism, by Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, by Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Covet's Dictionary; Conference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Universalism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred Wonders; Rottin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; Questions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; 50 sets Longking's Notes.

☞ All at Nashville prices.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

At the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append the publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains the Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The undersigned propose to issue, during the approaching General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in which the proceedings of the body will be published.

Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names immediately: or, they may give to the delegates their names and the cash.

Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance.

The first number will be issued on Monday, the 3d of May. STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octavo, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

LIST OF REMITTANCES

Received through the postoffice during the month of March.

W. Aldridge	$2 00	S. Hamilton	2 ..
J. C. Ardis	2 ..	A. R. Hines	2 ..
C. Abercrombie	2 ..	E. H. Hobbs	2 ..
Mrs. Aycock	2 ..	J. Hamill	2 ..
H. Avery	3 ..	W. Hathorn	2 ..
A. K. Anselm	2 ..	Dr. Harris	2 ..
J. F. Allston	2 ..	W. Hottingsworth	2 ..
W. Beck	2 ..	H. G. Johnston	2 ..
B. Barr	2 ..	S. Jones	2 ..
J. Bryan	2 ..	Miss Jones	2 ..
J. Boyes	12 ..	E. A. Jones	2 ..
J. Barker	10 ..	T. J. Koger	10 ..
B. Brown	2 ..	A. F. Kennison	2 ..
Dr. Bickham	2 ..	J. Kerr	2 ..
J. Beeman	2 ..	A. M. Low	2 ..
F. Brandon	2 ..	R. H. Leonard	2 ..
J. Baker	2 ..	W. E. M. Linfield	36 ..
H. Boyd	2 ..	H. T. Lewis	11 ..
S. R. Barbey	2 ..	T. H. Lewis	2
C. Brown	2 ..	J. R. Mason	2
H. Balance	2 ..	W. H. McDaniel	4
Mrs. Brigham	4 50	A. McBride	2
J. Crawford, sen.	2 ..	W. McCutten	2
A. Carnes	3 ..	P. B. Menifee	2
W. Carney	8 ..	R. Mortimer	8
R. Coons	5 ..	H. H. Montgomery	10 ..
W. Collins	2 ..	L. Martin	2
A. J. Coleman	2 ..	T. McClendon	6
Dr. Cobb	2 ..	J. McCracken	2
J. H. Chaney	3 ..	J. Phillips	2
R. Crawford	1 ..	A. Popo	2
G. J. Dick	2 ..	J. Peebles	13 ..
M. A. Dickson	2 ..	Dr. Powell	2
J. P. Dickinson	16 ..	J. B. Powers	2 ..
B. Dochterman	2 ..	O. R. Rencher	2 ..
J. T. Dew	10 ..	A. Russell	2 ..
D. E. C.	2	M. Robison	2 ..
R. P. Davis	2 ..	J. Robertson	2 ..
R. C. Elsey	2 50	C. Ruse	7 50
Mrs. Elsey	2 50	J. Robins	2 ..
Geo. Evans	2 ..	B. B. Ross	11 ..
T. Featherston	5 ..	R. Sibley	3 50
W. Ford	10 ..	W. Spell	2 ..
D. W. Foster	2 ..	J. L. Sampey	9 30
D. Ford	2 ..	J. O. Stewart	2 50
S. Fenner	2 ..	J. W. Scott	2
R. P. Gordon	2 ..	J. Shinn	2
J. Genella	2 ..	S. Simmons	5 ..
D. Gray	2 ..	J. Shores	10 ..
S. Girod	2 ..	J. Snead	5 ..
W. Griffin	10 ..	J. F. Scott	2
Dr. Gourlay	2 ..	J. Sexton	2 ..
L. P. Golson	2 ..	M. C. Spivey	2 ..
E. A. Givens	4 50	A. Tadlock	1 ..
Mrs. Godbold	2 ..	W. Thomasson	2
A. A. Grace	2 ..	W. Thorp	2
H. S. Gilmore	10 ..	W. Vernon	2 ..
T. Hardison	8 ..	F. D. Willis	2 ..
W. Hamilton	5 ..	G. Watson, jun.	4 ..
A. Hawthorn	4 50	T. C. Wright	2 ..
M. M. High	2 ..	S. C. Weeks	5 ..
E. C. Hardy	2 ..	D. Wiggins	10 ..
B. Hawkins	2 ..	A. Williams	2 ..

☞ PERSONS WAITING TO THE OFFICE will please observe that business letters are filed by the clerk. If they write but three words to the Editor or for publication, they must so write it, that it can be separated from the business letters, if they expect the Editor ever to see it.

☞ THOSE WRITING TO DEPOSITORY will please observe the same rule. If matter for the three departments is contained on the same sheet, let it be so written that it can be separated, or better still, write it on separate slips; and then if it goes wrong, the fault is not with the writer—otherwise it will be.

In sending subscriber's names always give their Post-office, and say whether they are old or new.

In changing papers, always name the Post-office changed from as well as the one changed to.

A LINE OF PRAYER MEETINGS.—A cotemporary says:

A gentleman from Ohio lately stated that by adding his personal observations to those of a friend, he could say that from Omaha City, Nebraska, to Washington, there was a line of prayer meetings along the whole length of the road, so that whenever a Christian traveler stopped to spend the evening, he could find a crowded prayer meeting, across the entire breadth of our vast republic.

LETTER FROM NEW ENGLAND.

CONCORD, N. H., April, 1858.

MR. EDITOR: The work of the Lord still continues to spread, and to increase in interest in New England. The prayer meetings are better attended, and are growing more interesting every week. The manner in which they conduct their prayer meetings is very excellent. The meetings are held only one hour, and the time is taken up in speaking and praying—and they have only three minutes each to relate their experience, or to offer up prayer. If they trespass upon the time allowed, the little bell, which is kept for that purpose, rings to give them warning that their time is up, and that they must give way to others, who are anxious to participate. Every moment of the time is taken up; as soon as one sits down another rises to relate his experience, or to offer up prayer to Almighty God. The speeches and prayers are short and to the point: they do not rise to exhort others to seek the pardon of their sins, and never mention once a single word concerning their own spiritual welfare; but each one informs the brethren what the Lord is doing for him—how happy he feels to know that God has forgiven him, and that he now has the witness of the Spirit of God, whereby he can cry, "Abba Father." Whenever I hear a man exhorting others to seek to lead a more holy and devoted life, without once relating his own experience, unless it is how the Lord blessed his soul some five, ten, or even twenty years ago, I am a little prone to believe that he has no religious experience of his own to relate; and in order to keep a good face and say something, he will arise and exhort his brethren—those brethren who are more pious and devout than himself—to lead a better life. How much time of our prayer and class meetings are worse than thrown away in this manner! But to the present "great awakening," which is spreading its salutary and saving influence over this our happy land. Certain religious denominations, whose avowed object has been to throw a cold damper upon the religious meetings, and, if possible, to entirely destroy the religious feeling which pervades the country, still continue to jeer and scoff at the animal excitement, as they are pleased to term it. They remind one of the fable of the dog barking at the moon.

In Boston prayer meetings are daily held in what used to be dance houses, and in other places of ill fame; and, what is better, great numbers of those poor, ruined creatures have been converted, and have determined by the grace of God to arrive safe in the haven of eternal rest—"a home in Heaven." May God in his mercy protect and save them!

As it is customary with correspondents to give their opinion of the people with whom they are sojourning—to mention the good traits in their character, or to only notice their faults. I shall follow their example by writing a little concerning the character of the Yankees, with whom I have associated the last two years, and whose character I have tried to study. I do not promise to mention their virtues or their faults; but to give "my impressions." A person coming to New England would judge the people to be cold and distant—would immediately think of an iceberg; but after they remain here a short time and become well acquainted with the habits and dispositions of the people, their views would be very much changed: they would find them a warm-hearted and generous people; though they may appear unsociable and hard to become acquainted with at first, yet, after you have made their acquaintance you will find them to be as familiar and sociable as you please. They will appear kind and generous to you—generous even to a fault. It is true that they must always prove a man before they can give him their confidence—before they can become a friend to him; but when they do give him their friendship, it is lasting; when they are your friends, they are your friends in truth; their friendship is as firm and immovable as the granite hills of New Hampshire. This is no idle flattery; but it is truth; sober, honest truth. I have been here for sometime, and have freely mixed with the people, and the above I have found to be true respecting their friendship. When I came here, I had as strong prejudices against the Yankees as any one. I know that a few letter-writers give a different report; but they looked through prejudiced spectacles: they misrepresented the people of the North, like persons writing from the South misrepresent southern society. If we would remember how unfounded the stories are that are written to northern papers concerning southern society, we would then know how much reliance is to be placed in the reports of scribblers for the papers and periodicals of the day. It is a notorious fact that no confidence is to be placed in the reports of letter-writers to the secular, not religious press; still it is true, that some who write for the religious press ignorantly prevaricate now and then.

But it is said, the Yankees are close-fisted and penurious—that they will horde up their money until it rusts, before they would give any thing to the poor and needy. Such is not the case. They are liberal, and give freely according to their means. The churches they have built, the institutions of learning they have endowed, the public schools they have established, and the charitable institutions they have erected, all stand forth as living monuments to their beneficence and to their willingness to give, and to give freely according to their means, for charitable objects. It must be remembered that it is no easy matter for a man to gain a living in New England; and that to gain wealth it requires shrewdness and hard digging; but, notwithstanding the little they make, and the incessant toil and labor it costs to make that little, they give freely to all benevolent objects. For a proof of this see how they were bled by freedom-shrieking politicians, who came to them with lies concerning the wrongs perpetrated by the "border ruffians" upon the free-state party in Kansas. I am a Southerner, and love the people of the South better than I do any people upon the face of this globe; but, notwithstanding all that, I must say that the Yankees are a noble, generous, open-hearted, and liberal people. I do not believe them to be more liberal and generous than the people of the South, nor do I believe the people of the South to be more liberal than they; but both, united by the bond of brotherhood, are a noble-hearted, liberal, and generous people. There are noble men in the North, so in the South: there are base men in the North, so in the South. Mr. Editor, I have come to the conclusion that there is precious little difference between the people of the North and those of the South; they are alike, save in a few characteristics, which upon the whole does not amount to much.

I will notice only one more objection which is brought against the Yankees, and will close this letter. It is said that they are notorious abolitionists, and that they make war upon our institutions, which is meddling with business that does not concern them. It is true that they are opposed to slavery; but are not abolitionists, save the few who belong to the Garrison school. They do not wish to see any more slave states; but as for slavery as it exists in the South, they do not wish to meddle with it. There are very few here who wish to meddle with slavery in the South. I believe in the Smithsonian doctrine in reference to slavery—believe it a divine institution, planted and watered by the hand of God, and therefore right per se; but if I had lived North, and had heard the stories that are circulated here in reference to the cruelty of masters to their slaves, I am inclined to believe I might have been opposed as they are; but as it happened I was born South, and know these tales to be false; and therefore they have no effect whatever upon me. Perhaps you may think a great "dream has come over my spirits." It is true. W. G.

GAMBLING GIFT STORES.

This humbug has not yet exploded, as may be seen by a walk on the streets or a glance down the advertising columns of the newspapers.

We stepped into a genteel looking Gift Store last week, on Camp st., to see how they did things so neatly as to gull the throng of customers and carry out their pledge of giving away $100,000 worth of jewelry.

"What do you sell this volume for?"—and we took from the counter a child's story book, sold at a regular book store next door, for 30 cents, with fair, living profit. "Fifty cents," was the reply.

We priced other stock—mostly trashy, and such as can be bought very cheap, at auctions, by the cart-load; and found the same extra rates on every thing.

Where the "lottery" feature is retained, the extra 20 cents, was no more nor less than buying a ticket and taking a chance: principle the same as the Havana or any other lottery.

Under the "gift" plan, the clerk steps behind a screen, selects some pinchbeck trinket and hands it over as a gift. He has made 25 per cent. on his book and perhaps 50 per cent. on his jewelry. Having satisfied ourselves of the game we left in disgust, without taking a chance—but we took these notes, for our readers.

The Mississippian speaks well to the point:

"The progress of the twin vices of lottery and gambling, if indeed the line of demarcation can be drawn between them, is as rapid of late years as if the law offered a premium to those who engage in those pursuits.

"The most undisguised form of gambling is that conducted by gift book stores, gift periodicals and gift newspapers, and we presume we shall soon have gift groceries and butcher shops, where the purchaser of a bar of soap or a leg of mutton will have a chance to receive a gold watch or a farm out West. These concerns are lotteries and ought to be put down as such. The gift trash and tinsel trumpery given away with books or any other article purchased in such stores, are of course paid for by the customers; and by purchasing of a respectable book store, they could secure books cheaper, and with the balance purchase the trinkets of any peddlar of brass jewelry.

"But the flood of customers who attend these gambling shops show how wide spread is that shallow cupidity which, instead of honest dealing and fair money's worth, grasp at something which they expect to get without paying for it, and in the hope of cheating somebody else, get swindled themselves. Such delusions while they fleece dupes for the benefit of speculators in credulity, disseminate a pernicious sentiment among the class of the population most liable to be injured by it; a foolish idea that any establishment is put to distribute fortunes to all who choose to call, or that the man who offers you more for your money than what it will bring at a fair and honest market, is not a knave and cheat. These delusions break down the reliance upon the result of slow, but secure and honest industry, upon which alone every member of society should rely; and prepare their victims for the faro table, robbery, murder, suicide, which are the frequent consequences of the spirit and pursuit of gambling.—They prepare the minds of their patrons to stake their fortunes, honors or lives, upon the cast of a die; awaken that feverist avarice which disqualifies for the steady pursuit of an honorable calling that does not promise an immediate golden harvest; and prepares dupes for every swindler who has ingenuity enough to start a device different from the thousands already in operation."

REASONABLE WANTS.—The agent for Tuskegee (Ala.) Female College, Rev. S. Armstrong, is zealously pursuing his appointment. He aims to raise $5000 to build a boarding house, $5000 to perfect the internal arrangement of that admirable institution and $10,000 to free them from debt. The public, rightly judging their privilege overwhelmed them with patronage from the beginning.

The Agent says:

"We need additional rooms, at this moment for the accommodation of our Art Department. This is a most interesting feature of our plan. It is a regular school of design, in which young ladies are systematically educated in the arts of designing, of drawing patterns for useful domestic articles, for wall paper, dress goods, carpetings, embroideries, and such purposes, together with studies in portrait drawing, landscape gardening, and painting in water colors and in oil, together with etching and engraving on wood and stone if desired. About forty young ladies are now engaged in this department, with the most flattering success."

THE PASTOR'S AND PEOPLE'S JOURNAL.—The March number of this periodical which closes the first volume, announces the discontinuance of the work.

Local Intelligence.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—The returns of our leading auctioneers, of late, show New Orleans to be in anything but a decline, so far as regards the value of her real estate. The sales for some weeks past have been extensive, but property in general has brought a high figure, in many cases considerably exceeding the appraised value. On Saturday, for instance, Messrs. Grayson & Poindexter sold for $1525 a small house and lot on Fourth street, Fourth District, which had been appraised at $1000. Messrs. C. E. Girardy & Co. sold twelve unimproved lots on Common, Gravier, Bolivar and St. Jane streets—four or five squares back of Charity Hospital—at figures showing an increase of 20 per cent. in value over lots in the same vicinity sold a year or two previously; also, a lot with a two story house on Girod street, at $2,390, and a lot with one-story houses on Camp street, Fourth District, at $3475. Messrs. J. A. Beard & Co. made several succession sales, which realized 25 per cent. more than appraisement.

THE GAINES CASE.—In the U. S. District court on Saturday, Judge McCaleb delivered a lengthy opinion and decision, in the case. The decision was adverse to the plaintiff, Mrs. Gaines, on all points set forth in her bill, which was dismissed, with costs. This, we believe, settles this long pretracted and most complicated law suit, finally and forever, so far as the inferior Courts in this State are concerned. There is yet one more move in the case, and that is or will be the appeal from Judge McCaleb's decision to the U. S. Supreme Court at Washington.

An appeal has been or will be taken: the plaintiff has good hope, yet.

CITY MORTALITY.—There were 116 deaths in the city of New Orleans for the week ending Sunday morning, the 18th, 22 of the number being of consumption, and no case of small-pox.

FIRE.—Episcopal Church Burnt.—A fire occurred about five o'clock Monday morning in the Episcopal Church, situated at the corner of Orange and Annunciation streets, fronting Annunciation Square. The building, with its contents, was entirely destroyed. The buildings opposite were somewhat scorched, but not materially injured. We learn that the church, organ, &c., were insured for $12,000. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

NEW ORLEANS AND JACKSON RAILROAD.—On Monday, after an exciting contest, the extension ticket was elected by the following vote, as reported after the counting, which extended to 12 o'clock in the night:

For Extension	25,160 shares.
For Non-extension	16,057 "
Majority	9,103 "
Split tickets not counted	1,500 "

The following are the names of the new Directors elected:

Louisiana.—John Calhoun, N. C. Folger, C. M. Waterman, James R. Caldwell, S. F. Slatter, Charles Pride, George W. Christy, J. M. Reid, Richard Swain, R. M. Saunders, Thomas Murray, Johnson Armstrong.

Mississippi.—Wm. McWillie, F. Zollicoffer, E. D. Brower, E. H. Saunders, R. D. Brown, C. S. Tarpley.

THE CREVASSE.—The crevasse at Bell's plantation laughs at the efforts to stop it, and grows more mighty. The labor of aeoring a lighout, from which to drive piles, has been accomplished; but the boiling torrent jerks and twists the heat so, that its pile-drivers make a headway amounting to nothing.

The object in driving piles is to make a sort of comb across the crevasse, against which to build a dam of sand bags. Several of the piles had been firmly driven, but they only served to aggravate the flood, which licked away six or eight feet more of the levee, and thereby acquired greater strength.

Meantime, the effects of the crevasse are becoming more alarmingly manifest in the settlement below. The back parts of McDonoghville and Algiers are rapidly filling up.

The Mountain Echo is the handsome name of a handsome little sheet, edited by the faculty and pupils of Spartanburgh, S. C., female college, the first number of which has been sent us.

Green Martin, a farmer in Georgia, has been convicted of whipping one of his slaves to death, and sentenced to be hung on the 7th of May.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 21st, says:

No very important changes have occurred in the general market since our report of Saturday. More movement, however, has taken place in Cotton, while in Sugar and Molasses and the various articles of Western Produce the transactions have been to but a moderate extent, tho' without any very marked change in prices.

Yesterday the Arago arrives, three days later than those previously to hand, were received, reporting an advance of an ⅛ @ ¼d in the Liverpool Cotton market, said to have been caused by accounts from this country, carried out by the Canada. The sales for two days were 27,000 bales, and the quotation for Middling Orleans is 5d ⅛ pound. Manchester advices were more favorable and Breadstuffs dull, while the quotations for Consols, 96¼ @ 96⅜, indicate a decline of a ⅛ P cent.

This intelligence induced more full orders on the part of holders in our market yesterday, and at the close there were sales that indicated an advance of about a ¼ cent in the Low Middling and Middling grades, the lower qualities being still comparatively neglected. The day's sales amounted up about 11,000 bales; making a total for the three days of 31,500 bales.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7	Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Ordinary	8 @ 9	Good Middling	12 @ 12¼
Good Ordinary	9¾ @ 10¼	Middling Fair	12¼ @ —
Low Middling	10¾ @ 11	Fair	nominal.

COTTON—Arrived since 17th instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 6773 bales, Tennessee and North Alabama 1135, Arkansas 1052, Mobile 590, Florida 185, Texas 841; together 13,879 bales. Cleared since the same date, 21,335 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 20th inst. 371,332 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,413,151 bales, against 1,384,091 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 73,531 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is a increase to Great Britain of 93,106 bales, and a decrease to France of 11,886 bales, and to other foreign ports of 32,767 bales.

SUGAR LOUISIANA There has been a fair movement in Sugar since our last report, and no very marked changes have taken place in prices. The sales of the three days sum up about 3000 hhds, at rates within the range of the following quotations:

Inferior and Refining	2¾ @ 4
Common to Good Common	4 @ 5½
Fair to Fully Fair	6 @ 7
Prime	7 @ 7¾
Choice	7¾ @ 8
Centrifugal and Clarified	8 @ 9

Arrived since the 16th 2513 hhds 47 tierces and bbls—cleared 396 hhds 227 bbls.

MOLASSES The three days' sales sum up about 2500 bbls, and we now quote for Inferior and Fermenting to Good 24 @ 26, Prime to Choice 26½ @ 28½ in bbls; half-barrels 29 @ 30c P gal. Arrived since the 16th 2613—cleared 1109 bbls.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid	155 50
Louisiana State Bank	149 50
Canal Bank	122@6
Citizens' Bank	173@6 —
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock	premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank	—@100
Union Bank	100 98@—
Bank of New Orleans	100 98@100
Southern Bank	500 500
Crescent City Bank	98@—
Bank of America	99@—
Bank of James Robb	par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid	125@—
Carrollton Railroad	75 nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	100 68@ 70
Southern Pacific Railroad	nominal
Opelousas Railroad	25 6@ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid	7¼@— 8
City Consolidated Bonds	83@ 85
City Bonds for Railroads	74@ 75
State Bonds	no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company	par
Jackson Railroad 8 P cent Bonds	72@ 75

SPECIE.

American Gold	par @ — P cent discount
California Gold	$17 00 @ 17 50 P oz
American Silver, old issue	2 @ 2½ P cent prem
American Silver, new issue	1 @ 1½ P ct discount
Mexican Dollars	4 @ 4¼ P cent prem
Five Franc pieces	95 @— cents
Twenty Franc pieces	$4 75 @ 3 80
Sovereigns	$4 80 @ 4 85
Ten Thaler pieces	$7 70 @ 7 80
Spanish Doubloons	$16 30 @ 16 60
Patriot Doubloons	$15 50 @ 15 75
United States Treasury Notes	¼ @ ⅜ P ct discount

CURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @3 P cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @2 P cent discount
Ohio	1 @2 P cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	2½@5 P cent discount
Kentucky	1 @2 P cent discount
Illinois	3 @5 P cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at bank of N. O.	par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	3 @5 P cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @2 P cent discount
North Carolina	3 @4 P cent discount
Virginia	2 @3 P cent discount
Alabama State	3 @5 P cent discount
Texas	4 @1 P cent discount
Tennessee	1½@2½ P cent discount
Mobile	par@— P cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	8 @10 P cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	1 @3 P cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	5 @7 P cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	8 @10 P cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	40@50 P cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi	par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	P acre—$1 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	P acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	P acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	P acre—85c

A Syllogism!

PROPOSITION 1st.

Every Lady and Gentleman desires a beautiful head of Hair.

PROPOSITION 2d.

The use of Lyon's KATHAIRON will, without fail, produce such an one.

THEREFORE:

Every Lady and Gentleman will, of course, immediately commence using Lyon's Kathairon. All pronounce the Kathairon to be the finest and most agreeable preparation for the Hair ever made.

Its immense sale—nearly 1,000,000 bottles per year—attests its universal popularity. Sold everywhere for 25 cents per bottle.

HEATH, WYNKOOP & CO., Proprietors and Perfumers,
63 Liberty street, New York—and for sale by ap17 1m J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 Chartres st.

GEORGE H. VINTEN,
PRINTERS' WAREHOUSE,
88 Camp street, between Poydras and Perdido, New Orleans.

PRESSES, TYPES, INKS, PAPER, CARDS, and Furnishing of every description. Agent for the sale of Robt. Hoe & Co's Presses, and James Conner & Sons' Types.

Old Type taken in exchange for new at 9 cents per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.

Constantly on hand and for sale Printing Paper of the following sizes.

21 inches by 28	22¾ inches by 31	24 inches by 28	26 inches by 40
22 inches by 32	24 inches by 36	26 inches by 37	28 inches by 42
32 inches by 44		36 inches by 48

AND OTHER SIZES TO ABOVE.

Also, Double-Medium Book Paper, Manilla Wrappers, Note, Letter, and Cap Papers of every description; Cards, Card Boards, &c.

mar 20 1y GEORGE H. VINTEN.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"

No. 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,

KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.

The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.

Address, REV. E. H. GLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union"
feb 27 1y at Bible House, 197 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

WINER'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE has established its superiority over every other preparation for worms, by the rapidity, number and thoroughness of its cures; although it is entirely a vegetable compound, its remedial action is made more summary than that of the Vermifuges containing Mercury. It has the merit of uniting efficiency and of perfect harmlessness, so far as the human system is concerned.

☞ Be particular and remember the name "Winer's Canadian Vermifuge." This if the only article that can be depended on. Remember this. For sale by

J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 181 Chartres st.

Dr. Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters have proved such a certain cure for all diseases of the Stomach, that no one for a moment questions its efficiency in the most dreadful and alarming cases. For many years we have watched its steady progress in public estimation, and its beneficient effects as a cure for all complaints arising from the stomach, of a morbid nature, and, we are free to say that it can be relied upon as a certain relief and remedy. The proprietor has made the above preparation after years of careful study and sifting, and it now receives the reward claimed, by this valuable specific, and which he so richly merits. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all cases, and it therefore demands the attention of the afflicted.

Sold by Druggists everywhere, and by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Sole Proprietors, 58 Water and 56 Front streets, Pittsburg. mar 27 4t

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	12	a	14
East India	11¼	a	14¼
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	6	a	8½
Northern	—	a	—
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	25	a	27
BUCKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00	a	12 00
English, Fire	32 00	a	36 00
BRAN, per 100 lbs	60	a	62½
COFFEE, Rio, per lb	9½	a	10¾
Havana, good, pr g'n	12½	a	13
—— inferior to middling	—	a	—
Java	19	a	20
Laguayra	11¼	a	11¾
CANDLES, Sperm, per lb	43	a	—
Tallow	—	a	—
Adamantine	20	a	22
Star	18	a	21
CORN MEAL, per bbl	—	a	—
DOMESTIC GOODS, per yard.
Brown Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	5	a	8
—— Sheetings, 4-4 to 6-4	8	a	12
Bleached Shirtings, ¾ to ⅞	4½	a	10½
—— Sheetings, 4-4	8	a	15
Brown Lowell Osnaburgs	11½	a	13½
—— Virginia ditto, ¾ to 4-4	12	a	15
Ticklings, ¾ to 4-4	9	a	18
Stripes and Checks	8½	a	16
Denims	7½	a	16
Cottonades	12½	a	25
Sattinets	25	a	75
Calico Prints	5	a	15
Duck, Russia, per bolt	—	a	—
English	10 00	a	16 50
Am. No. 2 to 10 pr yd	19	a	27
DYES, Indigo, per lb	40	a	1 20
FLOUR, Ohio, &c. superfine, pr bbl	4 12½	a	4 15
Illinois and Missouri	4 15	a	4 25
St. Louis City	4 20	a	4 30
FEATHERS, per lb	40	a	45
FISH, Cod, per box	1 ..	a	—
Mackerel, No. 1, per bbl	11 50	a	14 00
—— No. 2	10 00	a	13 00
—— No. 3	8 50	a	10 50
Herring, per box	35	a	55
FRUIT, Prunes, per lb	12	a	15
Raisins MR, per box	2 50	a	—
Lemons	2 50	a	—
Currants, Zante	12	a	12½
Almonds, soft shell	18	a	21
—— hard shell	—	a	—
FURS, raccoon, per skin	5	a	25
GRAIN, Wheat, per bushel	85	a	1 20
Oats	38	a	44
Corn, in ear, per bbl	55	a	—
—— shelled, per bushel	40	a	57
Beans, per bbl	4 00	a	5 50
GUNPOWDER, common, per keg	4 00	a	—
Sporting	7 00	a	—
GLASS, per box of 50 feet.
American, 8 x 10	1 80	a	1 90
—— 10 x 12	1 90	a	2 10
—— 12 x 18	2 30	a	2 60
HAY, per ton	16 00	a	18 50
HIDES, W. I. & Mex. flint, per lb	15	a	17
Dry salted Mexican	—	a	—
Wet salted, heavy	5½	a	5¾
Dry, country	11	a	12½
Kip and Calf	5½	a	6
HOGS, pig, per ton	35 00	a	—
Country bar, per lb	4½	a	5
English, per ton	70 00	a	80 00
Swedes, assorted	112 00	a	134 00
Hoop, per lb	4½	a	7½
Sheet	4½	a	7
Nail Rode	6½	a	8
Castings, American	—	a	3½
LUMBER, yard prices:
Boards, pine, white, per M ft	35 ..	a	60 ..
—— —— yellow	15 ..	a	20 ..
—— Cypress	25 ..	a	40 ..
Staves, p. c., per 1200	40 ..	a	60 ..
—— white oak hhd. u	50 ..	a	80 ..
—— French butts	40 ..	a	70 ..
—— white oak bending	—	a	—
LEAD, pig, per 100 lbs	—	a	7 50
—— Bar, per lb	—	a	8
—— Sheet	—	a	8½
LIME, Western, per bbl	1 25	a	—
—— Thomaston	1 75	a	2 00
MOLASSES, in the city, per gal	23	a	29
—— On plantation	23	a	—
MOSS, rough, per lb	1½	a	4
NAILS, 4d to 20d, per lb	4	a	4½
PROVISIONS, per bbl
Beef, Mess, North'n	—	a	—
—— " Western	14 ..	a	16 50
—— " half bbl	8 50	a	8 75
—— India mess, per tierce	—	a	—
—— Prime mess	17 50	a	—
—— Prime, per bbl	11 ..	a	12 50
—— B. Beef	—	a	—
—— Dried, per lb	7½	a	8½
Tongues, per dozen	6	a	—
Pork, Clear, per bbl	—	a	—
—— Mess	17 50	a

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

GOOD NEWS.

[At one of the great meetings for prayer, says the Evangelist, which are held every mid-day in this city, a gentleman from Philadelphia rose and read the following hymn. He stated the singular fact that it was written by a young man in Scotland, whose mind had become shattered and broken, but which on the single subject of religion still remained calm and clear. The Sun of Righteousness shed a holy light into that darkened mind, and filled that troubled soul with peace. In one of his tranquil and happy moods he wrote the following lines. After this explanation, the speaker proceeded to read them, and the effect upon the crowded audience was thrilling.]

Where'er we meet, you always say,
What's the news? what's the news?
Pray, what's the order of the day?
What's the news? what's the news?
Oh! I have got good news to tell;
My Savior hath done all things well,
And triumph'd over death and hell,
That's the news! that's the news!

The Lamb was slain on Calvary,
That's the news! that's the news!
To set a world of sinners free,
That's the news! that's the news!
'Twas there His precious blood was shed,
'Twas there He bow'd His sacred head;
But now He's risen from the dead,
That's the news! that's the news!

To heav'n above the Conqueror's gone,
That's the news! that's the news!
His work's reviving all around—
That's the news! that's the news!
And many have redemption found—
That's the news! that's the news!
And since their souls have caught the flame,
They shout Hosanna to His name;
And all around they spread His fame—
That's the news! that's the news!

The Lord has pardon'd all my sin—
That's the news! that's the news!
I feel the witness now within—
That's the news! that's the news!
And since He took my sins away,
And taught me how to watch and pray,
I'm happy now from day to day—
That's the news! that's the news!

And Christ the Lord can save you, too—
That's the news! that's the news!
Your sinful heart He can renew—
That's the news! that's the news!
This moment, if for sins you grieve,
This moment, if you do believe,
A full acquittal you'll receive—
That's the news! that's the news!

And now, if any one should say,
What's the news! what's the news!
Oh, tell them you've begun to pray—
That's the news! that's the news!
That you have joined the conquering band,
And now with joy, at God's command,
You're marching to the better land—
That's the news! that's the news!

OBITUARIES.

"All that's bright must fade,
The fairest still the fleetest;
All that's sweet was made,
But to be lost when sweetest."

DIED—On the 2d April, 1858, at 11 o'clock A. M., MARIA J., daughter of Dr. E. Barton and wife of Joseph H. Cetching, of Georgetown, Md., aged 19 years.

It is a sad thing to record the death of our friends—it is a fearful thing, as we stand on this narrow isthmus between the past and the future, to look into the dark abyss of death; but the fell monster is disrobed of his terrors when we see a friend fall calmly to sleep to awake in heaven. Thus passed away the loved subject of this obituary. Truly "Death loves a shining mark." So young, so beautiful and good, sinful, selfish mortals would murmur at the dispensation; but God speaks and the lovely flower is transplanted. She had been the victim of that most dread of all diseases, consumption, more than a year; and though she clung to earth with all the tenacity of a young, loving and hopeful heart, yet she said, "Thy will, oh Father," and calmly looked forward with christian confidence to a home in heaven.

Hers was a pure and exalted Christian piety that the worldly heart cannot understand or appreciate. Speaking of religion, she said, "I feel the holy calm in my soul, but it seems too sacred to be expressed in words." Once, supposing herself to be dying, she exclaimed, "Mother, my angel mother, I will soon be with you." On the night previous to her death she said she wanted christian friends to talk sweetly to her; and indeed it did seem that angels were already holding communion with her departing spirit, bidding it welcome to the world of light. She bade her husband and father not to weep, but meet her in heaven; then, calmly and without a struggle, passed away. Thus, in the hour of death, shone the piety which her whole life exemplified; we saw its luster as it passed from earth, but we may not look beyond—cannot withdraw the veil and behold the halo of glory that awaited the spirit of the just made perfect. To her mourning friends we would say nothing, for there is a sacredness in grief like theirs that the unskilful hand may not rudely touch; but when they think in sadness of the last wife, daughter and friend, let them remember that her spirit is still hovering near—an angel messenger to win them to her beautiful home above. She has passed away.

"Oh who would bid her live again,
A prey to sorrow sin and pain?"

A FRIEND.

DIED—At the residence of Horace Chadwick, near New Madrid, Mo., on the 23d day of February, 1858, from injuries received at the explosion of the steamer Col. Crossman, KIRK WHITE MOSE, of Clinton, La., in the 19th year of his age.

Never did the adage, "Death loves a shining mark," seem to be more fully verified than in the painful instance above related. Gifted with rarest virtues of mind and heart, the deceased gave great promise of a brilliant future, to which his many devoted friends looked forward with well grounded and delightful anticipation.

A few nights after he was wounded a hemorrhage from his wound prostrated and sickened him very much and induced the belief that he was about to die. Although surrounded by friends, whose attentions were unremittingly kind, none of them were professors of religion. At his request the writer was sent for and reached him about 3 o'clock A. M. He seemed gratified at the visit. He said he had been a member of the Church for a few years, but at college had become a "little wild and skeptical," but without falling into any vicious habits. He requested us to pray with him. We did so, and during the prayer he frequently responded by a feeling and hearty "amen."—Upon our next visit we found him composed and resigned. All clouds were removed from his mind and his conduct and conversation exhibited, in all its glorious sublimity, the truth and reality of the Christian religion and its sustaining power in the soul-trying hour of death.

He said he was "going to meet his dear mother in heaven," and he felt assured he would eventually meet his dear father there. His only concern about dying was the grief which he knew his death would inflict upon his "poor father," of whom he was constantly speaking in the tenderest terms. He said "his father's hopes and ambition in regard to him were highly excited, and a knowledge of that fact had excited his own ambition to a very high degree; and while at college he had exerted himself constantly to fulfill his father's hopes; but though they were to be disappointed, God knew what was for the best and He had willed it otherwise." He said it was a great mercy that God had not taken him off suddenly as he had done other passengers of that ill-fated steamer, but left him time for reflection and repentance. Yet he prayed God to spare him once again to meet his father. That prayer was granted, and his last moments were cheered by the comforting presence of that doating father. At our last visit he requested us to read the Bible to him. We read to him many words of cheer from that blessed book, and many of God's delightful promises contained therein, at which his countenance brightened and his eye glistened and many fervent ejaculations, such as "Bless the Lord," "Thank God," etc., attested the depth of his feelings and interest in the subject.

In this crushing affliction the father and friends of the deceased have the warmest sympathies of the whole community in which this sore bereavement occurred. Words of comfort from human tongues avail not in such an hour of grief as this; but there is one sure and unfailing source known to that heart-stricken father to which he is earnestly and prayerfully commended. That son "who never told an untruth or swore a profane oath" is now with his sainted mother in the paradise of God; and tho' he cannot return to the father, the father can go to him, for Kirk "is not lost but gone before."

R. A. H.

New Madrid, Mo., April 1, 1858.

Our infant daughter, BEULAH INA, died near Cayuga, Hinds county, Mi., Friday, April 2, 1858, aged nearly three weeks.

"As the sweet flower that scents the morn,
But withers in the rising day,
Thus lovely was the infant's dawn,
Thus swiftly fled its life away.

She died, yet death could scarcely chill
Her smiling beauties, though she lay
With cold, extended limbs, for still
Her face looked fairer than the day.

Her gentle soul we strove to think,
Would linger yet mid earthly flowers,
Even when 'twas lingering on the brink
Of lovelier worlds than ours."

V. H. JOHNSTON.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

"THE WEED."

What makes my teeth from day to day
Exhibit symptoms of decay,
With pain and anguish rot away?
The weed, the weed.

What makes my breath so foetid, foul,
What makes the ladies on me scowl,
And shun me as they would an owl?
The weed, the weed.

What makes me, when I'm called to speak,
Fly quickly, lest my mouth should leak—
The spit-box or the door to seek?
The weed, the weed.

What is a cause of war and strife
Between the good man and his wife,
Embitterlag every hour of life?
The weed, the weed.

What makes an appetite for rum,
And sends the stagg'ring drunkard home,
And prematurely seals his doom?
The weed, the weed.

These are the facts—then let us shun
That weed that many has undone,
And our just vengeance wreak upon
The weed, the weed.

"WHERE IS YOUR BIBLE?"

Alfred Bell, when the fever for emigrating to California was at its height, did not escape the contagion, and, though but nineteen years old, nothing would do but he must leave a pleasant home, and a kind mother, and a little sister, and go to dig for gold in the newly found State.

After three years he returned, and his mother and sister greeted him with warm embraces.

"I have something pretty for you in my trunk, Minnie," he said to his little sister. "You see I have but little baggage: that one small trunk has been with me through sunshine and storm."

"Let me unpack it, brother, please," said Minnie; "I will be very careful, and not tumble any of your nice clothes;" and, taking the key from Alfred's hand, she proceeded to take out carefully one article after another, and put them on one side, until she came to the bottom of the trunk. She paused a moment, and seeming to distrust herself, she put her hand first upon one article and then upon another; then looking up earnestly in her brother's face, while she still sat on the floor beside his unpacked things, she said:

"Where is your Bible, brother?"

"I have none," he said, quickly.

"No Bible, Alfred?" said Minnie, as she arose, and put her hand upon his arm, "no Bible, brother?"

"No, Minnie," he said, a little impatient at her questions; "I left all my books in New York when I started for California; they took up too much room."

"And have you had no Bible for three whole years, brother?"

"No, Minnie," he answered.

"Whose did you read at night, then, brother?"

"I did not read anybody's, Minnie. Come don't bother me now. Let us find that pretty, fine dress I have for you."

"No, stop a moment, brother. Have you not read the Bible for three whole years?"

"No, Minnie, I have not; and I don't know as I have ever seen one since I have been in California."

Minnie stood, and looked at him in utter astonishment, while the tears poured down her cheeks. At length raising her eyes, she said in a low, earnest voice: "O brother, were you not afraid that God would forget you?"

What an appeal to the brother's heart! He took the little Minnie in his arms, and, kissing kissing her, he said: "I am almost afraid I have been forgetting God, Minnie?"

The case of Alfred Bell is not a single one. Think upon it, Christian parents. Many a young man leaves home influence behind him when he goes out into the world in search of gold. His Bible is forgotten, his God forgotten. A mother may have prayed for him earnestly, and placed the Sacred Volume in his trunk, with supplications that it may be read daily; but, in the earnest pursuit of wealth, prayers and supplications are often unheeded. Under the influence of irreligious companions, and in the absence of all the ordinances of religion, great is the peril to the immortal soul.

LORD BLESS FATHER.

A Sunday school boy, some six summers old, was on the bed of death. Beside his bed sat his father, who loved his boy, but who had no faith in Christ. So calm was the repose of the child's pale features that the father thought him dead. Leaning gently over him, he saw his thin lips moving. Placing his ear close the lips he heard the child murmur this prayer:

"Lord, bless father, bless mother, bless brothers and sisters, bless aunt, and let them all come to me in heaven. Lord, bless father."

Death set his seal on those thin lips the moment that prayer for "father" passed them.—The soul of that Sunday-school boy flew to heaven breathing with desire for his father's salvation. It was a touching and beautiful death to die.

Did God hear that child's dying prayer? He did. That father had felt many weighty burdens resting on his heart, but none that ever pressed so heavily upon him as that prayer.—Nor could he throw it off, until, kneeling at the cross, it was taken away by Him who had called his sweet child to heaven.

How happy that child will be when his father enters heaven by and by, and tells him that his dying prayer was the means of saving his soul. Happy child of a now happy father!

PROFESSIONAL.

J. G. FUQUA. G. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans.
References—Payne & Harrison, Bayne, Vance & Co., Brandwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw Nalle & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. mar 20 1y

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 126 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennell; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court. Rev. H. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Oglesby & Macauley, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 6 2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

Investigations as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,

RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts. A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,

HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula White Swellings, Tumors and Wens, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

JOSEPH C. HEALL,

ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 18 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.

☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

J. BOYD & Co.,
Cotton Factors, Receiving & Forwarding Merchants,
No 40 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
apr 17-1y

C. W. BUTT, DOUGLAS VASS, } Mobile. N. Orleans { W. J. SMITH. J. S. SLOCUM, Jr.

BUTT, SMITH & Co.,
MOBILE, ALA.
MARSHALL J. SMITH & Co.,
NEW ORLEANS.

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS and Dealers in Bagging and Rope. Orders for Produce of all the Kingdoms and Consignments will meet prompt attention. apl0 6m

LEONARD FASH. F. S. LAURANS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. my21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. U. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans jy21 1y

J. U. PAYNE. J. P. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM H. DAMERON

Payne & Harrison.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans dec7-1y

S. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 37 Carondelet street, New Orleans. jn28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,

COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS. No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. ly6-1y

T. T. TWITTY.

COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herring's celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes, No. 32 Gravier street New Orleans. mh1-1m

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society

Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound

BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,

Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country accompanied by cash or unobjectionable, supplied and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. H. CLEGHORN, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.

Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $160.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,

From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.

One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.

Two or three bottles are, warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are no if's nor ANS, hanis nor ba's about doubling some cases, but not yours. I doubted over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It is already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, worray-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick head ache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been sensitive for years, and have been regulated by it. Where the body is sound, it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it, on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by dec5 1y J. WRIGHT & Co., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S
CELEBRATED
GERMAN BITTERS,
PREPARED BY
Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Philad'a, Pa.
WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE
LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,
Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, or Fullness of Blood the Head, Acidity on the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article but one that has stood the test of a ten years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale is unrivalled by any similar preparation in the country. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is unknown, and a careful perusal of the Almanac published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia Pa.

TRY FACT

DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A BRISK AND INVIGORATING FEELING?

If you do use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch Street Philadelphia Pa. and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT & Co. 21, and 151 Chartres street general agents for the South.

BUSINESS CARDS.

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Cisterns, Lumber, &c.,

Is now to be found at his old place of business. Orders promptly attended to. Box 588 Mechanics' Exchange. 19 St. Charles st. Shop, 355 and 357 Rampart st., First District, New Orleans. mar20 1y

Holmes & Clauss,

GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. ap10

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82. Common street.

KEEPS SUPPLIED by frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description which we will sell low for cash.—Also—
A good Assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and GINGHAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.,
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Camp street.

CLOTHING.

Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest Cash Prices.

L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 87 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS
A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.
L. W. LYONS & Co.,
d12 85 Canal st. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
.....AT.....
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 D. W. BAYNE.

Dameron & Co.,

IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,

HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 58 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!! BELLS!!!!
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDERY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]

THE subscribers, have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.

For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.

Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents,
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
15 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)

THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Furnaces, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,

ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.

For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department in the same premises. aug30

TIRRELL & HERSEY,
BOOTS and SHOES,
BROGANS and HATS,
BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.

PLANTERS and MERCHANTS are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.

Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 38 Magazine street, New Orleans. mar 27 6m

S. H. REED. J. ROBERT HEDGES.

READ & HEDGES,
Plantation Drug Store.

DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street, between Camp and St. Charles streets.

Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

Parlor and Church Organs, Piano, Melodeons.

THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS, Prince's, Mannings & Mason's Hamblin's, and most all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Jones & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gilsel, and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS, HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Sheet Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every Instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
66 John street, New York
ap26

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.

All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
41 and 46 Royal street, N. O.

WE WOULD INVITE the attention of City and country purchasers, to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes, MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS and HAIR CLOTH.

PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors, Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CANE STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, DEFUSE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.

The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,
Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 45 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, to be found in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprises the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.

We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPPANED WARE.

We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.

We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.

☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House and the sign of the tea COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap29 1m HENTHUYSEN, JEWIS & Co.,

116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.

This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at

LOWER RATES

Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES
HENTHUYSEN, JEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st.
Jan16-13t

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.
CASH CAPITAL $500,000; ..... SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies issued by the Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 40 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $500,000.0 ..... Charter Perpetual
DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell, Job Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Kenny, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Ely, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandize, shipping and their cargoes. Also, cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in this city and in the country.

Ten per cent cash returned on payment of premiums
Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17 1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent.

Bulletin.
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,

CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and despatch. Orders respectfully solicited. ap29 1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN, P. E. LEWIS, of Rapides. } { A. MONMEMEN, GEO. C. KENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
s19-1y 116 Canal st. New Orleans.

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Slops, Steamboats, Plantations. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 3

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.

Rev. H. C. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Sciences, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. F. D. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Mrs. SALLIE A. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles Lettres.
Miss MARTHA ANN HODGES, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. ALMIRA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY HOGE, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Porter.
The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

Primary and Academic Department	$15 00
Collegiate Department	25 00
Ornamental Department	50
Music on Piano Forte, Harp or Guitar	25 00
Use of Instrument	5 00
Use of Melodeon	1 50
Modern Languages, each	10 00
Drawing, with colored copies	12 00
Painting in Oil	20 00
Crayoning	15 00
Water and Chromatic Painting, each	15 00
Embroidery	10 00
Incidental Expenses	2 00
Fee for Graduation and Diploma	5 00

No extra charge for Latin and Greek.

Board, including lodging, washing and fuel, can be procured in the College or immediate neighborhood at $12 50 per month. Each pupil must furnish her own towels and bed linen, distinctly marked with her own name.

Payment of tuition to be made at the close of each session, and when not so paid eight per cent interest will be charged.

Pupils entering within two weeks of the beginning of the session will be charged half rates; entering thereafter the charges will date from the first or middle of the month of entrance.

No deduction from the bills, except at the option of the Faculty.—☞ The rule will not be departed from unless in case of sickness of a month's continuance at one time, or when an unavoidable Providence necessarily requires a removal. ☜

Books, Stationery, &c., are kept in the Village for sale at the usual rates.

Semi-annual reports will be sent to parents and guardians.

Pupils are required to attend some Church once each Sabbath, and to recite a lesson each Monday morning.

All letters respectfully and written by pupils are subject to the inspection of the Matron of the College.

The session is one year, embracing nine months, is divided into two equal parts—the one immediately succeeding the other. The first session commences on the 1st Wednesday in October and closes on the 15th of February; the second commences on the 16th of February and closes on the Wednesday after the first Sunday in July.

The annual examination and commencement exercises take place during the latter days of the second session, and all the pupils are required to be present and participate.

All applications for admission of pupils, &c., must be made to the President of the College. A. M. CAMPBELL,
Mansfield, Feb 27 Secretary Board Trustees.

HOMER COLLEGE.

THE Trustees of this proposed institution take pleasure in announcing that its Spring Session will begin the 8th of February, and continue twenty-six weeks.

It is permanently established in the moral and healthy village of Homer, under the patronage of the Methodist Conference of Louisiana. Terms per Session of five months: Primary Department, 1st Class $12 50; 2d Class, $15. Academic Department, $20. Collegiate Department, $25. Modern Languages, each, $10.

After the first month, no pupils are charged from the time of entrance. No deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of continued sickness for one month. By order of the Board of Trustees.

J. C. BLACKMAN, President.
J. M. THOMASSY, Secretary. jan 23 1y

Centenary College, of Louisiana.

THE next term of this institution will open on MONDAY the 6th of October, 1856.

FACULTY:
Rev. JOHN C. MILLER, M. A., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.
Rev. WM. H. SCALES, M. A., Professor of Mathematics.
Rev. A. B. HUNTSMAN, A. M., Professor of the Greek Language.
G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of the Latin Language.
THOMAS S. DENIS, M. A., Professor of Natural Science.
T. H. CALLOUETT, B. L., Professor of Modern Languages.
Rev. A. G. MILLER, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Tuition per session of five months, payable in advance.

In Preparatory Department	$21 50
In Collegiate Department	30 00
Matriculation fee on entering College Department	5 00

Board can be obtained at the Steward's Hall or in private families, at prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars per month.

This institution having an able Faculty, extensive buildings large library, cabinet and apparatus, commends itself to all desiring a thorough classical or scientific education.

Centenary College is located at Jackson, La., twelve miles East of Bayou Sara.

For information apply to Rev. H. N. McTyeire, No. 112 Camp street, New Orleans. JOHN C. MILLER, President. sep29

Mrs. Reed's Seminary, Baton Rouge.

THIS Institution is open for the reception of Pupils wishing to pursue a thorough and finished course of study. The present session of the School will close 24th July, next, and the next session will commence 4th of October following. M. W. REED, Principal. d12

HUNTSVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE,
HUNTSVILLE, ALA.

THE latter half of the scholastic year of this Institution will begin January 25, 1858. The splendid buildings, elegant organization,

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY A COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS FOR THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH---H. N. McTYEIRE, EDITOR.

VOLUME VIII—NUMBER 18. WHOLE NUMBER 370.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY MAY 1, 1858.

$2 00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE OFFICE—113 CAMP ST.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

ENLARGEMENT OF OUR DISCIPLINE.

There has been considerable discussion in our church papers for some time past, in reference to several proposed radical changes in our Book of Discipline.

Some are clamorous for an abolition of the rule concerning probationary membership; much has been said about the support of our Bishops; and a great deal on the delicate subject of Lay Delegation. Now I seriously ask, all this restlessness about our Discipline, and argumentation about its alteration is not an indication that we are fallen from grace? Does it not show a disposition to accommodate that little book to the prejudices of the world and to make it popular? I can see no other end to be accomplished by some of the proposed changes. If the prosperity of the Church, the salvation of perishing sinners, would be promoted by any or all of these changes, then, in the name of our holy Christianity let us have them: if not, then we had better keep in the old paths. "If the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do?" This very itching after something new and popular—this spirit of innovation—this effort to accommodate the peculiarities of religion to the depraved wishes of the world, was the very thing that ruined the primitive Church. It threw open the door of error, and finally led on to the revelation of the "man of sin, whom the Lord shall consume with the Spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." If we would attend more diligently to the great object for which God has raised us up, "to scatter scriptural holiness over these lands," we would have little time to be carping about our Discipline. It has worked well for a long time. Incalculable good has been accomplished by the operation of its machinery: and if we will live up to the standard of religion in it enjoined, it will work well still, and good immeasurable will be achieved for ages to come.

Now, while some may call me an "Old Fogy" in reference to any alteration, they may think me a "Young America," as it respects an enlargement of our Discipline. I think it is too small a book. It can scarcely be seen in a large library; and when it is seen, it is so small a book that people think it hardly worth reading. The truth is, with the exception of the doctrines and rules of the Church, every thing in it, is so closely connected with the workings of the itineracy, and has such an exclusive appropriateness to the preachers, that it is not interesting to our lay members; and hundreds of them, consequently, never read it. It ought to be enlarged. I like, and most of people like large things: large churches, large bodies of men, large animals, large men and large women. Every thing God has made is upon the large scale. The Bible is a large book. Now, why not follow this order of Providence in enlarging our Discipline? I want a book that the children will read, that the old people will read, that all will read. Such a book must have something in it that will interest them What that something ought to be, we will now inquire.

1st. A child's catechism. That something of this sort is needed, is known by every Methodist Sabbath-school superintendent and every Methodist family. It is objected, however, that we have our Capers' and Wesleyan Catechisms. Let Sunday-schools and families furnish themselves with them, and teach them to the children. This is all very true, but the end is not accomplished. Our objection to small things applies with greater force to these catechisms. They are so small that children tear them up before they learn half that is in them. Besides, few Sabbath-schools and families of my acquaintance have them. Many of our schools are taught in the Union books, and in union schools. The catechisms cannot be introduced; consequently hundreds of our children grow up without ever being taught any of the peculiarities of our Church. We certainly lose immensely on this account. The children is the nursery of the Church, from which it is to be replenished after we are dead and gone. In the children the Church has a vital interest. They should be cared for. "Feed my lambs," said Christ to Peter. Before this subject, the support of the preachers, the publishing house, lay delegation—every thing, except the salvation of precious souls, pales in importance. If the General Conference can adopt any plan, for the more thorough and correct instruction of the children, it has done a great work. Let a child's Catechism then be prepared and appended to our Discipline; let the preachers introduce it into all Sabbath-schools and families where it can be done, and the parents be urged to teach it to their children; and then all will have been done that we can do to accomplish our object. This, I think, would greatly increase the circulation and study of our Discipline, the prosperity of the Church, and the general diffusion of religious knowledge among the children. These we want.

2d. A Church Catechism for adult members. This should contain questions, and answers upon the doctrines, government, and rules of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; upon dancing, circuses, theaters—in a word, upon all the duties of church members. That something of this sort is needed, is known by every observing itinerant preacher. What preacher has not felt the embarrassment arising out of the indefiniteness of our rules about the various amusements practised in our day? Last year one of the best and oldest members of my charge went to a circus in company with some female friends, and he told me afterwards that he did not know it was contrary to our rules.

Now if we had Catechisms in our Discipline for which I am contending, all our people would be instructed upon these points of duty; the rules of our Church would be better known and kept; our people would be better indoctrinated; fewer of them would be led off, after other and strange doctrines; their knowledge of, and attachments for, the Church would commence in childhood and increase as they grew older, until God called them from labor to refreshment in the better land.

Now, Mr. Editor, you see how our Discipline might be made a large respectable book; and how something might be put into it, that would be interesting to all our members. If this would not add immensely to the prosperity of the Church, I have looked at the subject from a wrong stand point.

The book thus enlarged would cost perhaps double what it does now. But what of that? What if it cost four times as much? It would be ten times more valuable to children and lay members, and the Church would soon reap a thousand fold harvest from the enlargement. Will the General Conference give us such a book? If so, I for one will do all I can to scatter them broadcast wherever I go. I will do all I can to get them into Sabbath-schools, and persuade all parents to teach it to their children.

As the time of the session of the General Conference is near at hand, and as matters of vital importance to the Church will doubtless come before it—matters that will affect the prosperity of our beloved Zion for years to come—every Christian's heart should be lifted to God in solemn prayer that the Great Head of the Church may preside over its deliberations, and order all things aright.

G. HAWKINS.

Pickinsville, Ala.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

OUR SABBATH SCHOOL INTERESTS.

"Put the brethren in remembrance of these things."

BRO. McTYEIRE: At the last session of our Conference there were some resolutions offered by brother J. B. Walker, urging renewed and vigorous efforts, zealous prayers and faith unfeigned, on the part both of preachers and lay members in the great and noble work of extending, during the present year, our Sunday school interests far beyond their present limits.

The resolutions in question, I well remember, were unanimously adopted by the Conference, and I am sorry they were not incorporated by the "Publishing Committee," in the otherwise satisfactory report of the committee on Sabbath-schools. Whether intentional or otherwise, the resolutions were left out, and as a body of resolutions they are lost to the Church; but they stand with as full force to-day, and will till the close of the year, as if "they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever." We must, therefore, remember that in voting for the resolutions, we pledged ourselves as a body of Christian ministers to use our best efforts to promote the interests of our Sunday-schools, in our respective circuits and stations. If we fail to exert our influence we violate a most solemn obligation; so that not only is the cause neglected, but we fall under condemnation. This fact, of itself, should be a sufficient stimulus to urge us on in carrying out the spirit and letter of the resolutions. But there are other incentives, higher and holier.

In looking over the Sunday School statistics, I find there are at least 19 circuits and stations without a school. These, I should think at a moderate estimate, ought to average at least two schools—in the aggregate 36 schools. And why not? Is it because there are no children within those limits? I trow not. There is some cause then why there are no schools in those works. But whatever the cause may have been heretofore, brethren at the last Conference resolved to try and establish schools where there were none and build up those already in operation. Our schools this year ought to be raised to at least 100, and all the other figures in the same ratio. With the ground yet to occupy, this can easily be done if we will only "put the brethren in remembrance of these things." J. W. J.

Pattersonville, April 1858.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE FIRST LIGHT.

MR. EDITOR: I notice that some of your correspondents have taken up this subject, one for and another against the views advanced by me in an article which appeared in your paper of Feb. 6. In that article, in speaking of the "first light," I said, it might have illuminated the earth for years, or centuries, or even for thousands of years, etc. To this, "W" demurs, without, however, attempting to offer an argument against it. As this is quite an interesting subject, I hope you will pardon me for trespassing on you again. Now, let us examine the Bible on the subject and see what is there said.

In the 1st verse 1st chap. of Genesis we find the following words: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." No allusion, whatever, is made to the time of the beginning; for God, in his wisdom, did not deem it necessary to the happiness of man to instruct him in the minute chronological history of creation; but the great and important truth intended to be taught in this beautiful and sublime passage is this: that in what time soever the heaven and the earth were created, it was God, the Great Jehovah, that created them, and he alone. In the next verse we find these words: "And the earth was without form and void." This passage, alone, would satisfy my mind that God, dropping the earth in a shapeless and void state, left it to be operated upon and reduced gradually to order and system by the great high laws of heaven that were enacted at the beginning of time. Very little alteration would have been made in this immense mass of confused matter by the laws of gravitation and cohesion in the short space of a few hours.—Again: "And God said. Let there be light, and there was light." Dr. Adam Clarke says, that the word, here rendered light, means, also, electricity, lightning, and is so used in other passages. Electricity is one of the most powerful and mysterious agents in nature, and produces the most intense heat known to man. Now, geologists tell us that the earth was once in a molten state, and I believe this opinion is generally acquiesced in. Now, the question arises, when was the earth subjected to this intense heat that reduced all its solids to one fiery mass of melted matter? Was it before or after Adam? The answer by all is, before. Then, how long before? It certainly was not in "the beginning;" for we are told that "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters;" and it is universally known that if water be subjected to heat above a certain degree it will pass off in the form of vapor. Now, the intense heat that was necessary to reduce the earth to a molten mass was sufficient to dissipate every drop of water on the face of the globe, which was not the case in "the beginning;" for we are told that "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." And, too, it is known that if stone and many of the metals be heated they will emit or give out light; and if the heat be intense, as must have been the case when the solids of the earth were melted, the light will be great. Now, light was not in existence at this period, so we must conclude that it was not at this time that the earth was subjected to this intense heat. Then, the only conclusion to which we come is, that it was between the morning of the first day and the birth of Adam. I think that it was during the first day that this great light that was first called into existence was concentrated around the earth with sufficient intensity to dissipate its waters and liquify its solids; for, on the second day, "God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters," etc. "And God called the firmament heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day."

By consulting the 14th, 15th, 17th, and 20th verses of the 1st chapter of Genesis we will find that the firmament here spoken of means the clear, open space embraced within our solar system. Prior to the morning of the first day, we find the spirit of God moving upon the face of the placid waters of earth. On the morning of the second day we find those waters pervading the immense space included within our solar system. What produced this sudden and wonderful change in the state of the waters? What converted them into vapor and caused them to expand to such an extent as to fill this immense space? Nothing could have done it but intense heat—the heat that is spoken of by geologists, that reduced the earth to a molten mass—the light that sprang into existence when God said, "Let there be light, and there was light;" for light and heat are synonimous terms, as applied to the light that produces day. Well then, if it was on or during the first day that the earth was subjected to this heat, could it have been so intensely heated in the short space of twelve hours? And could this immense mass of intensely heated matter have cooled sufficiently in the next twelve hours to permit water to condense on its surface? Such a supposition is hardly presumable; and, too, when we consider that the first three days were not produced or affected by the revolution of the earth on its axis, the sun not then being the source and center of light. I cannot conceive why any one should contend that they were of the same length as our days; and that too when they were not produced by the same cause, and when the facts of geology require that they should be immensely longer.

We are told that the sun was made to light on the fourth day; and we know that it has enjoyed one uninterrupted day over since that time, a period of about six thousand years. Then might we not suppose that the light that is now concentrated around the sun was, on three different occasions and for indefinite periods, arranged around the earth, and during the intermediate intervals around some of the other planets, perhaps with less intensity on the second and third days? And might we not account for the appearance and subsequent disappearance of the new stars that have appeared at different periods, in this way? We find in Matthew 24th chap. and 29th verse these words: "Immediately after the tribulation of those days, shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven," etc.

May we not suppose that these truly sublime and awful events will be produced by the re-concentration around the earth of the light that is now around the sun? Such an event would cause the sun to be darkened; the moon would cease to give her light; the stars would fall or vanish from heaven, and the elements would melt with fervent heat, etc. As we know not at what hour this will take place, let us watch.

M. P. STEVENS.

Lexington, Mi.

GREEKS—PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

The Greeks were the first to announce the law of education: that it should consist in nearly equal proportion of the arts which elevate the mind, and the exercises which strengthen the body. The combination of the musical with the gymnastic, was first displayed in the public games of Greece, and was repeated in the daily life of every Grecian commonwealth. They considered "all pastimes," as Roger Ascham says, "which be joined with labor, and in open place, and in the day light, as not only comelie and decent, but verie necessarie for a courtly gentleman." He was deemed a boor who could not add to the conviviality of the table by song or recitation, and it needed all the fame and talent of Themistocles, to excuse himself for his inability to play on the flute. It was considered unbecoming a citizen to be inexpert in any warlike or manly accomplishment, and the admiration for physical beauty, rendered indispensable the exercises that develop the muscles, or give precision to the eye and the hand. It was for woman to be sedentary, because she was regarded as a slave. But an indolent or invalid man was a prodigy and a laughing stock; and some of Plato's keenest satire is pointed against the sophists who sat by the stove, and lapped themselves in cloaks and blankets.

AN ORGAN OR NO ORGAN.

Quite a discussion has sprung up between the parent Free Kirk of Scotland, and that branch of the establishment located in England. The latter, finding all other denominations using organs, have fallen into the heresy; and, it has been intimated to them, that they cannot remain in connection with the Free Kirk unless organs are given up. Dr Guthrie, a leading member of the parent Kirk, a man of genius, of good sense, and, above all, of true Christian liberality, has declared for letting all consult their own tastes in the matter. He asserts, that the result is entirely trivial; "let every one be persuaded in his own mind."

"Think," he continues, "of the good old seceders splitting into two parties on the question, whether the bread at the Lord's table should, or should not, be lifted up before it was distributed to the communicants, and forming themselves into two Churches, called Lifters and Anti-lifters. And think of some of our own Free Church Congregations, to say nothing of other bodies, who would be almost as much shocked by the sight of gown and bands in the pulpit, as by the humming of an organ, or even the bursting of a shell. If the Free Church should go a-fighting about organs, after the noble battle she has fought so well for high and holy principles, what a fall will be there! What a descent, from keeping the field around the old time-honored banner of Christ's Crown and covenant, to an organ controversy!"

BOYS AND GIRLS.

Speaking of the plan of separating the sexes, in schools, Mr. Stowe, the celebrated Glasgow teacher, says:

The separation has been found injurious. It is impossible to raise the girls as high, intellectually, without the boys as with them; and it is impossible to raise boys morally as high without girls. The girls morally elevate the boys, and the boys intellectually elevate the girls. But more than this, girls themselves are morally elevated by the presence of boys, and the boys are intellectually elevated by the presence of girls. Boys brought up with girls are made more positively intellectual by the softening influence of the female character.

ANECDOTE OF HENRY CLAY.

The great statesman and orator was traveling somewhere "out west," and put up for the night at a country tavern. "Mine host," in looking over the register, discovered the name of Henry Clay. There was but one "Clay."—Could it be possible that he had this distinguished man under his roof. He was astonished, delighted. Next morning, as soon as the "great man" appeared, the admiring Boniface bustled forward, and made his rude bow.

"Mr. Clay, I believe, sir?" said he.

"That is my name," said the gentleman, in his affable tone.

"Mr. Clay, the Congressman?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, sir, I've heard of you, and I thought I'd just ask if you wouldn't give me and my old woman a little speech before you go?".

Those that slight God in their prosperity will find themselves under a necessity of seeking him when they are in trouble.

OUR FATHER WHO ART IN HEAVEN.

BY R. CLAY PROFFS.

Father in Heaven! we bow to Thee,
Poor humble insects at thy nod,
And own Thee as the source of all
The only true and living God!

The countless worlds that roll through space
In spheric hymns proclaim
That Thou art King and Lord of all
O! hallowed by Thy name!

Imprisoned in this dark estate,
As exile from his home,
We blindly grope through doubt and sin—
Oh! let Thy Kingdom come!

Against Thy just and holy laws
Our foolish souls have striven;
Oh Father! let Thy will be done
On Earth as 'tis in Heaven.

With earthly wants, and low desires,
Our angel natures starved and dead,
We call on Thee as helpless babes—
Give us this day our daily bread.

With contrite hearts, and pleading sighs,
We fall before Thy throne;
As we forgive a brother's sins,
Oh, God! forgive our own!

Let not the wily Tempter's art
Seduce our erring souls from Thee;
But save us from all evil, Lord!
In time, and in Eternity.

Almighty God! to Thee is due
The glory of the earth and Heaven;
All praise, all faith, and holiest love,
To Thee, Oh, Lord! alone is given.

LETTERS FROM ABROAD.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb., 1858.

THE COPTIC WEDDING.

The longer we stay in this place the more we are interested. New scenes develop every day to fix the attention and awaken feelings of surprise and wonder in the oriental world.—Though the kindness of our friend Mrs. Leider, we have had the privilege of attending a Coptic wedding—a rare occurrence for a stranger.

With her son for a guide, we were led to the house of the bride, in the Coptic quarter of the city, through arched gateways (which are always closed at night) and interminable dark and narrow streets by the light of a lamp, which these Egyptians design in elegant shapes and which are nicely folded up like a fan in little tin boxes. When opened and lighted they shine around our pathway with intense brightness, and are peculiarly calculated for safety while groping our way along these obscure streets at night. After various windings we reached the house of the bride or brides, for there were two to be married at the same time. Our arrival was announced by a shrill cry of joy* something like that of a locomotive, and which is repeated at the reception of all their guests. We were met at the door and led through some rooms, where groups of men were sitting cross-legged smoking like the Turks, to an inner chamber where the bridal ceremonies were to be performed, and where the bishop, with his black turban, bronzed face, long beard, and flowing robes sat smoking in comfort waiting with patience the nuptial hour. Other ecclesiastical dignitaries came in one after another, approached the bishop, kissed his hand, touched their hearts, lips and foreheads—a common salutation among the Arabs—and bowed with profound reverence. A few only were permitted to witness the ceremony besides the priests, and all those appeared to bear some part in the performance. One brought in a small wooden frame, which opened like a book, and placed it upon an ottoman in the center of the room. This is called a portable altar of the church, and wherever this is erected there is the church, if in the wilderness.—In the center of it a priest placed a silver casket containing a rare copy of the four gospels, fastened by a jeweled clasp of great value. Upon its sides were placed emblems illustrative of their faith—two Coptic crosses upon one side and two circular pieces, about the size of a common plate, fixed upon stands, upon the other, all of solid silver, each mounted with three lighted wax candles emblematic of the holy Trinity. The silver casket had four, illustrative of the four gospels, most beautifully arranged and significant in meaning. A blind preacher entered with the cymbals and a young black-bearded monk with a small bell to keep time with the music. The two bridegrooms were present, the eldest about 20, dressed in a robe of dark striped satin confined around his waist with a shawl like a sash falling to his feet over loose trowsers, and a cloth coat over the whole. A turban of rich black cashmere, relieved by yellow stripes in its corners, twisted around his scarlet tarboosh, gave him a grave and dignified aspect above his years. His costume was that of a scribe. The black turban is worn by the Copts to distinguish their sect. The young bridegroom, a lad of 15, was dressed like an Effendi—a simple tarboosh, close fitting cloth vest with long sleeves, fine claret colored cloth trowsers confined half way below the knee, and with stockings without slippers or sandals. A shawl encircled his waist and hung at his side. His countenance, though of a bronze color, was animated and good looking, but with too much of the boy's playfulness to be married; and the priest had to give him a lecture upon his movements. One of the party brought us a delightful drink of a beautiful color, without any spirituous liquor in it, and the young bridegroom a cordial in small glasses, which would scarcely hold more than two table spoonsfull, of richly colored crimson, highly perfumed and exquisitely flavored to the taste, with little nuts to eat with it. After a few preliminaries, the bishop called the bridegrooms to him, addressed them in Arabic, and then fastened around their necks magnificent silk shawls of scarlet ground relieved with gold colored figures, falling in graceful folds to their feet.—They then retired to the circle and the ceremonies commenced by reading the marriage service in the Coptic and Arabic languages, alternating between the bishop and priest, with chanting and striking the cymbals, the monk keeping time with his bell. At length the shrill cry was heard announcing that the bride cometh! and soon two figures, clad in white appeared, slowly moving toward the door, with some virgins their attendants, who were not permitted to enter the room. The priests then conducted them to their respective places beside the bridegrooms, already seated. The brides were enveloped in white veils, one suspended from the forehead reaching to the chin, delicately wrought in open work with fine gold thread, through which they could see and not be seen. This was fastened around the head with a broad bandeau of diamonds sparkling like stars. Beneath this another was fastened, which fell over the head behind enveloping the whole figure; but not concealing the entire dress. The neck and bosom were exposed, with their gorgeous ornaments of gold and precious stones. A breastplate, called a pectoral, composed of fifty strings of gold coins, reached to the waist in a point, between which were diamonds thickly set, and perfectly radiant with beauty. The delicate waist was encircled with a girdle fastened with an enormous gold clasp over a pink satin drapery, called a yellek, which hung gracefully over the yellow and blue trowsers of the two brides. After repeated ceremonies of reading and chanting, the bishop joined their hands, knocked their heads, together, and threw a white embroidered scarf over them and went through the ceremony of crowning them with symbolical plates with inscriptions illustrative of the holy institution. The benediction being then pronounced, they all arose, the brides retiring to their own exclusive apartments and the bridegrooms to theirs. We were privileged to follow the ladies and found them sitting upon mats on the floor in one corner of a small unfurnished room, surrounded by groups of veiled friends (though their faces were uncovered) looking at their fine dresses and congratulating them, as we supposed, by their poetic and graphic salutations and graceful gesticulations, entirely different from European customs. Our friend, Mrs. Leider, being acquainted with the parties, was privileged to lift their veils and show us their faces, which were of a bronze complexion, with features neither classic or beautiful, but mild and pleasant. Their eyes were deeply stained with a dye, which imparted to them a dreamy, languishing expression peculiar to oriental countries where the intellect is uncultivated. The youngest bride was 12, the other 18, a rare occurrence for a lady to live so long unmarried in the East, where they frequently marry at 10. We passed from this to other apartments, where the company of friends, priests and bridegrooms were sitting upon mats on the floor smoking. A band of Turkish musicians were seated in a corner, with rude, oriental instruments, making melody of a kind in harmony with the company and scenes around them.—We left them engaged in the grand festival, which we were told continued until morning.

THE BRIDAL CALL.

The next day we were privileged, with our friends, to call upon the brides, a favor of no ordinary kind. We found them attired in the most rich and splendid costume almost entirely of crimson, scarlet and gold. Their full trowsers were embroidered on the sides from top to bottom with gold braid. One wore a scarlet silk yellok or gown, embroidered with gold, the other an entire cloth of gold, both looped up and falling in graceful folds around their light and symmetrical forms in front and behind with great richness and beauty. Dark cloth vests fitted to their shapes, with flowing sleeves, were embroidered with pure gold in front and upon the back, with a deep border upon the sleeves, under which was a chemise of crimson confined to the wrist with a massive gold chain. The bosom also was embroidered in the same manner, relieved by the dark vest superbly wrought with gold. Around the neck was suspended a magnificent gold chain with a string of gold coins. The pectoral or breastplate belonged to the church and was removed, only being used in the marriage ceremony. A bandeau of diamonds encircled the brow of each, with the crescent and cross suspended in front, flashing with their luster. A short black lace veil was fastened to the head dress behind falling upon the shoulders, ornamented a quarter of a yard deep with burnished gold, shining like thickly set stars—a fringe of small gold coin kept them in motion, and they were perfectly dazzling. Around the waist a sash and heavy gold cord and tassels completed the dress, with gold embroidered slippers, except a transparent veil of deep pink lace wrought with gold, thrown over their heads and falling down to their feet, which, floating back from their heads, had a most charming effect, as the gossamer drapery waved so lightly over their delicate forms, so richly and tastefully adorned. Their eyes were deeply stained and their henna-tipped fingers shone more brightly contrasted with the blue paint with which the palms of their hands and inside of their fingers were tattooed in a kind of net work resembling a glove, with a strips encircling the nails upon the outside—a relic of barbarism purely oriental in custom. It is said that the brides have all their dowry upon their persons.* The embroidery is all wrought by their own hands, in which they excel. We met several Egyptian ladies at the house; all go through the salutation of laying their hand upon their heart, the lips and forehead very expressive and gracefully. We left them after a most affectionate adieu of kissing our hand and bowing.

S. B. THOMAS.

* This is given by the bridegroom to the parents, who purchase the ornaments, place them upon the person of the bride, and she keeps them as her own private property. He literally buys his wife. The common weddings are attended by singing women in procession through the streets at night, who attend the bride.

* This cry of joy it is said cannot be given by another person but the Coptic women; and it is a sound so shrill that it seems as though no human being could utter it.

THE MEASURE OF FAITH.

A Christian sailor, who lost one of his legs in the battle of Trafalgar, said that he could very often measure the faith of the people who conversed with him, by the way in which they alluded to his misfortune. Nine out of ten would exclaim, "What a pity that you lost your leg!" and only one in ten, "What a blessing that the other was preserved!"

MODERN SERMONS.—The style clear, strong, and pointed, the divisions and subdivisions not too numerous, but distinct, are a great assistance to the memory. I cannot hear the new-fangled essay plan, with no subject announced, no plan, no application.—Bishop Wilson of Calcutta.

DOTH GOD REASON?—We have seen this before, but it is good enough to repeat. It is an admirable sylogism. A deaf and dumb pupil in Paris was asked, "Doth God reason?" He replied, "To reason is to hesitate, to doubt, to inquire; it is the highest attribute of limited intelligence. God sees all things; therefore God doth not reason."

In nothing is the corrupt memory of man more treacherous than in this, that it is apt to forget God; because out of sight, he is out of mind; and here begins all the wickedness that is in the world; they have perverted their way, for they have forgotten the Lord their God.

They who indulge their lusts and corruptions, which they should mortify, forfeit the grace of God, and it is justly withdrawn from them. If we will not resist the Devil, we cannot expect that God should tread him under our feet.

Those that resolve to serve God, must not mind being singular in it, nor be drawn by the crowd to forsake his service. Those that are bound for heaven, must be willing to swim against the stream, and must not do as the most do, but as the best do.

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Terms—$2 00 per annum, in advance.

NEW ORLEANS:

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1858.

Funeral Sermon.—The funeral sermon of the late Mrs. W. H. Foster will be preached at the Felicity Street Church on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock A. M.

Dedicatory Meeting.—In accordance with notice given, the friends of this enterprise assembled at the Carondelet Street Church on Sunday night last. The meeting was opened by the Rev. Dr. Walker with singing and prayer. Speeches were made by Rev. Dr. Keener and W. P. Hill, Esq. The speeches were excellent, and the subject was well presented and ably advocated. With what was collected on the spot and collections subsequently, nearly five thousand dollars have been realized. The Board last year pledged the city for $5000, and this pledge will be fully redeemed. We regard the Depository House as good as secured. Before the adjournment of the General Conference, the keys will be ready for the book agents. There is now an open door through our great emporium to the Southwest.

The Orphan's Home.—We are glad to learn that the net proceeds of the entertainment given last week for the benefit of this institution amount to $4,538 05.

Cool Weather.—For some days past the weather has been remarkably cool for the season, superinducing the use of thick coats in day time and warm blankets at night. Indeed, some of our comfortably disposed folks have rekindled fires in their parlor grates and renewed the practices of winter.

Harper's Magazine for May.—We are indebted to H. D. McGinnis, 86 Camp st., for a copy. The present number completes the sixteenth volume. There is no falling off in the table of contents. The Editor's Table is on "The revival of Religion." One article, "My acquaintance with Rachel," is objectionable. For our part we are willing that the memory of the great tragedienne should rot. We cannot readily separate the character of the woman from that of the artiste. In the name of virtue and decency let the name of Rachel, the tragedienne, perish.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Orphans' Home, held this day, the following was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased an Almighty God, in his infinite and inscrutable wisdom, to take from our midst a member both useful and beloved, Mrs. Mary J. Fourm—one whose memory among us will always be cherished with love and affection, and whose zeal in her labors will ever be imitated by us—therefore,

Resolved, That we would hereby express to her family our sincere sympathy in and our earnest hope that that comfort and consolation one who put their trust in God

MRS. L. ELKIN, Sec'y.

New Orleans, April 15, 1858.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Mr. Editor: You are probably aware that the center building of Centenary College of Louisiana is completed. The architect and builders have nobly done their work. The corner stone was laid in hope, and the cap stone is now forth. It should be matter of joy and congratulation throughout the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences. We took hold of the enterprise in troublous times. After abandoning a former location, pressed with insuperable difficulties, and not without some disgrace, we set up our banners over the ruins of the fallen Louisiana College. She had commenced a magnificent design in the way of buildings. Two substantial wings, each more than two hundred feet long and two stories high, were finished. Between these there was a space where the center building "was not." I am happy to say it is there now, "polished after the similitude of a palace." The building is unique—an drivelling copy—the production of a master genius (Mr. Simpson.) It is worth a pilgrimage to the place to see the beauty of its design and the symmetry of its proportions. But I will not attempt to describe, as I am no architect; hope a description will soon be given by one well qualified.

The object of my communication is to call the liberal portion of the Church and friends of education to the fact, that the trustees are still deficient in funds to the amount of fifteen or twenty thousand dollars. The building costs about sixty thousand dollars. Forty to fifty-five thousand have been secured, principally in the immediate vicinity of the college. The trustees had every reason to suppose that the remainder would be forthcoming as soon as the building was completed. That is now accomplished. It is an honor to the Church which projected it and the country whose liberality will foot the bills. The trustees are now pressed for about six thousand dollars. We have no paid agent in the field to excite the liberality of the community. We have trusted to spontaneous benevolence, or such as might be excited by public calls like the present.—You who read this appeal please sit down at once, for our necessities are present and pressing, and write a draft on your merchant or banker for such sum as you can spare, and inclose it by the very next mail to Rev. J. C. Miller, Jackson, La. He is the treasurer of the Board of Trustees, as well as President of the College. He is now sorely pressed with the pecuniary interests of the college, when all of his energies should be given to the last touch of polish to our magnificent Senior Class. The college is proud of her jewels, which she has already sent forth. All the valedictories in the Law, and Medical Schools of New Orleans, last March, were taken by Centenarians, sans ca, and he received the principal part of his training from a former professor of [illegible]. Her sons should be proud of her. Don't forget that check. Do it up at once.

B. M. DRAKE.

Magnolia Springs, Mi., April, 1858.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

Shanghai, Feb. 6th, 1858.

Bro. McTyeire: Some weeks have elapsed since I last wrote to you. Shanghai is quiet and greatly improving. Canton is now in possession of the English and the governor a prisoner of war. The English now govern Canton, in connection with the French. Gov. Yoh, when taknn prisoner, seemed not to be intimidated in the least and the next morning devoured a whole chicken for his breakfast and other things in proportion. He weighs between three and four hundred and his head is larger in proportion than his body. We are looking daily for the American Minister, Reed, at this port.

Myself and family are all well and able daily to testify for Jesus to a dying people. The other mission families are well. The work of God is still progressing at this and other ports. There must be no half way ground in this important matter, or no coming to terms of peace with the power of darkness, but the victory must be ours, that God may be glorified. I have just returned from a nine days excursion into the country preaching the gospel of our Savior to tens of thousands from morning until night and sometimes after night. There is still great interest manifest at Shanghai among the people. They are becoming greatly dissatisfied with their own religion, and the only alternative must be for them to take up the Christian religion and try its merits. May God help them to turn in my earnest prayer to Him. In 1856 I baptized one and in 1857 three. O that God would make it ten fold this year. The next month I hope to baptize one or more and take three into the fold of Christ.

One main object in writing these few lines is to speak of one very important subject connected with our mission. It is this: The press, and what shall we do with it? Or rather what will the Board do with the press? Will they give us power to move the lever? Two thousand dollars given by the "Tract Society" and new in their hands is a beginning, and more would be given if we would but ask. Why not add four thousand dollars to it and send Bibles and Tracts and religious books throughout this whole empire? Send two thousand dollars and other missions new on the field will add the other four thousand dollars. Some may say, "You once advocated the sale of the press and now wish to set it in motion." So I did, but seeing the impracticability of it, and the great loss of re-shipping it to the United States, I am led to my present views on the subject. The press is here and it only requires the means to get it into operation. Our mission is without a book for distribution and I am compelled to go to others of my brother missionaries begging a supply. Do you wish your missionaries' hands to be tied in doing the work of the Lord? Tell our good brethren in the South to open their generous hearts and give Bibles to the perishing millions of China. China will be christianized, and will not our beloved brethren help in this good work? Will not the Church respond and come up to the help of our Lord? Will not the Board take into consideration this important matter at their next meeting? All American missions on the field are anxiously waiting the conclusion of our Board in reference to it. They are ready to help. I would like to see a church also in Shanghai belonging to our mission; but as the press cannot be disposed of for that purpose, we must try and get it into operation. Will not my own state respond and give me Bibles for distribution? If no help is to be given, tell us what we are to do with the press, for it cannot be sold here. To get it here was an expense and to send it home will be no little expense. Let us hear the views of the whole Church. Remember me kindly to bro. Walker and bro. Price and their families

WILLIAM LAMBUTH.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

Bro. McTyeire: The friends of this institution, at Auburn, are no doubt anxious to know how we are progressing with our vast enterprise.

I am happy to assure them and all your readers that all our movements are in the right direction. Our beautiful edifice, unsurpassed by any college building in the South, and fit, as Brownlow says, to adorn any city in the Union, is about roofed. Our Preparatory Department is in full blast with a large number in attendance. Our brick work is paid for, notwithstanding the financial crisis through which we have passed, and our endowment fund is increasing in a way very much to our satisfaction. Recently our noble brother, Joel Hamiter, of Barbour county, who gave me twenty-five hundred dollars last year, added ten thousand more—in all $12,500—a donation as remarkable, perhaps, when we consider the circumstances of the case, as any thing of the kind in the United States. This large sum was given in the name and memory of his sainted daughter, Julia A. Hamiter, who fell asleep in Jesus last year. One of the professorships will bear her name to posterity forever. If I remember rightly, Mr. Editor, some one suggested the design of getting up a volume containing a brief sketch of the distinguished benefactors of our Church. If this book of great examples be gotten up I claim a place in it for our excellent bro. Hamiter.

Yours, etc., E. J. HAMILL.

April 21, 1858.

A GOSPEL PRIVILEGE.

Have you not obtained the pardon of your sins?

"That is a question which I cannot answer. I have prayed, read my Bible, attended the means of grace, and at times felt some comfort, but I could not say that my sins are forgiven."

You cannot! Don't you think that the knowledge of one's pardon is to be obtained and enjoyed?

"I don't exactly know; sometimes I think not, and sometimes I think some very eminent saints may enjoy that blessing."

Eminent saints! Why the apostle John speaks of it as the privilege of God's little children, hence he says, 'I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake.' (1 John, ii. 12.) You believe the Bible, do you not?

News from the Churches.

Montevallo, Ala., April 15, 1858.

Bro. McTyeire: On the last Sabbath in March bro. Brown from Columbiana preached for us; his subject was "Christ the Intercessor." After preaching as usual we held a class-meeting and as we spoke one to another the Holy Spirit came upon us, as upon the disciples on the day of pentecost, and I suppose many of us had feelings similar to those experienced by Mary as she sat at the feet of her Savior. All of our members in Montevallo, with the exception of a few very lame ones, love to attend class-meeting. Indeed we thank God for this institution of our Church, which has proved within the last few months a source of so many blessings to us. If these members of our Church who oppose them could be with us in some of our spiritual meetings, we are sure they would be delighted, that is if their religion is not a skeleton without a soul. But alas! many of our members stay away from these meetings and, like a Thomas, are absent when the other disciples meet with, and talk to the Savior. Thank God, the class room, which is a good thermometer giving a true state of the Church, indicates its spiritual condition good here. From that notable class-meeting held in March we protracted a meeting for two weeks. By the middle of the first week many penitents were at the altar for prayers, and the members of the other Churches in town had become deeply interested and were actively engaged at work. I never have attended a meeting in which Christians of all denominations worked so harmoniously together. Our prayer meetings of a morning were well attended and signally blessed. I have not seen such crowds at prayer meeting since I have been in the ministry. The ladies' prayer meetings in the evening were also well attended. Our congregations at preaching hours were large, attentive and serious. We had a good supply of ministerial aid. Bro. Cooper, who seems ready at all times for the conflict, was present all the time. Bro. Brown, who seems to have unshaken faith that the battle will always turn on Israel's side, was present most of the time. Bros. Roach, Gardner and McKinnon (Presbyterian ministers) who have charge of their schools here, labored assiduously and effectually. We think the friends and patrons of their schools need have no fears but what these Christian gentlemen will strive to make good the heart and wise the head of their pupils. As the result of the meeting, the Churches have been greatly revived. Many have been awakened, over twenty-three or four professed saving faith.

FRANK BRANDON.

Hancock County, Mi., April 20, 1858.

Rev. H. N. McTyeire:

My dear Sir: Do you ever propose to visit us in this benighted region, where there is an ample harvest waiting for the reaper? Conference sent us this year a devoted laborer, Rev. H. D. Berry, and he is doing much good. He is faithful and indefatigable, acceptable to all, and leaves no duty neglected. His discourses are plain, scriptural, evangelical, and his example a shining light. Besides his regular appointments, he has established two colored missions, one on the plantations of Col. Claiborne and Maj. Andrew Jackson, on Mulatto bayou, and one at Col. Claiborne's seashore residence, Bay St. Louis. At both of these he has large and attentive congregations. He has another colored mission at Mrs. Lamkins, on Jordan river. These arduous labors he performs faithfully and cheerfully; but he and all of us would be rejoiced if, at least during the approaching summer, you and other ministering brethren in the city would pay us an occasional visit.

A SEEKER.

DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Carroll Col'd Mission, La. Conf.

During the first quarter I have, by the grace of God, gained access to five plantations, where I try to preach the truth as it is in Christ, averaging from 40 to 70 field hands. And they are places of the first class in point of value, beauty and fertility, and the proprietors are men who stand pre-eminent as gentlemen and citizens.—Should the gospel work well on those five places the matter will be settled and the mission organized before the year closes, and the bread of life distributed to the starving souls of the colored race of this beautiful, wealthy and highly favored portion of our state. O that God may touch the heart of the slave owner and impress upon him this important truth that his slave has a soul to be saved! And how can it be saved without the gospel, and how can the gospel reach that soul without the gospel carriers.

In conclusion, I would say that I feel truly thankful to bros. Beard and McGaughy for their influence in the great work. May God abundantly bless them in their labor.

H. W. SEGRIST.

April 10, 1858.

SECRET PRAYER.

Do not say you have no convenient place to pray in. Any man can find a place private enough if he is disposed. Our Lord prayed on a mountain, Peter on the house top, Isaac in the field, Nathaniel under the fig-tree, Jonah in the whale's belly. Any place may become a closet, an oratory, and a Bethel, and be to us the presence of God.

Do not say you have no time. There is plenty of time if men will only employ it. Time may be short, but time is always long enough for prayer. Daniel had all the affairs of a kingdom on his hands, and yet he prayed three times a day. David was ruler over a mighty nation, and yet he says, "Evening, and morning, and at noon will I pray."—Psa. 55: 17. "Seven times a day do I praise thee, because of thy righteous judgments."—Ps. 119: 164.

Where there is a will, there is a way. Jesus had not a place to lay his head, no house whose rules and apartments be controlled—yet he prayed in secret. Here lies one great difference between hypocrites and true disciples.—Both pray in public—the latter in secret, also.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

MRS. MARY JANETTE FOSTER.

Died, in this city, on the 9th instant, of typhoid fever, Mrs. Mary Janette Foster, wife of Wm. H. Foster, Esq., and daughter of Rev. Calvin and Mary Brewer, in the 29th year of her age. She was born in Wilbraham, Mass., and was educated at the Wesleyan Academy, of Wilbraham, an Institution of long standing and high grade. In the summer of 1841, and when in her twelfth year, she was converted and joined the Methodist Church as a probationer. In 1848 she came South and engaged in one of the highest and most responsible of vocations, the instruction of youth; and in 1852 she was married in this city, where she has since resided, and where her dust shall repose until the final day.

Converted in childhood, her religious experience was firm and progressive from first to last. This fact is a significant index of character, the truth of which was confirmed by those whose privilege it was to know her in the sacred intimacies of christian fellowship.—Neither in life or thought was there any compromise of religious principle. Her path was "as the shining light, shining more and more unto the perfect day." Unyielding in her devotion to truth and duty, pure religion has rarely had a more beautiful and attractive exponent. Never eminently demonstrative, her piety possessed a subdued fervor which exhibited itself in every word and action. Meekness, gentleness, and humility were striking features of her character; but above all, that "charity which is the bond of perfectness." During a long and intimate acquaintance we never heard from her an unkind word of any; and there were none, however obnexious to censure, whom she did not shield by that love which "suffereth long and is kind." In her tongue was the law of kindness, and her hands dealt out charities which she was unwilling the world should know.

If in her life our departed sister adorned the doctrine of God our Savior, in the interior life of faith there was a depth and power which few could know and appreciate. It was a life "hid with Christ in God"—a walking with God and a dwelling in the secret place of the Most High. The inward depth and thoroughness of her piety was of the highest type. It was an all-pervading spirituality, which permeated her whole being and brought every thought into captivity to the will of Christ.

Intellectually sister Foster was highly endowed, and the gift of nature was improved by a thorough academic education. We have met with few women who were better read in the higher walks literature, and none who possessed a finer discrimination and sounder judgment of books. Her religious reading was full and accurate, and her piety was enlightened by an acquaintance with some of our best standard authors. It was this, in part, which made her services as a teacher in the Sunday-school most invaluable, and fitted her for usefulness in other institutions of benevolence where piety and intelligence were required.

Gifted in mind, and accomplished as well as educated, there was nothing unwomanly in her character. Strength and delicacy were admirably combined: strength of principle was united with refinement of sentiment and delicacy of feeling. Woman's mission as the evangel of the social circle and the home she fulfilled. Qualified to invest the former with surpassing interest, she threw around the latter all the sunshine and goodness of her nature. In the relations of sister, daughter and wife, her sympathetic and affectionate heart was exhibited in all its purity and sweetness. A being so utterly unselfish we have seldom known. The comfort and happiness of others seemed to be her sole concern.

During the last few years she had been a great physical sufferer; but in pain, however severe, she never murmured, displaying the fortitude and submission of one who could say with Paul, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Doubtless these painful conflicts were not lost upon her soul. Evidently they were sanctified, and following her adorable Lord in this vale of tears, she was "made perfect through suffering."

Death came unexpectedly—almost as a thief in the night. At midnight there was a cry made: the bridegroom came, but her lamp was trimmed and burning. No parting words—no farewell to those dear ones whom she left lingering upon the shores of time. The affectious crave this, but God denied. It is well. None could better afford to die suddenly. Her soul was ever upon the watchtower of Christian vigilance, and when death came he came but to be conquered. Better for assurance than any parting words is the life we have sketched and the character we have feebly delineated. This may be the significance of such a providence, that we look to the life for the hope with which we invest our loved ones gone before. She walked with God and was not, for God took her. Clothed upon with immortality and moving amid the glories of the tearless world, she is added to that cloud of witnesses with which we are compassed about. Already clothed with the life immortal, she waves the victorious palm and bids us follow. Vacant places and aching hearts are left behind. What a void in the home so lately made happy by her presence! And the Church she loved and the Christianity she lived, how much have they lost! There remaineth pleasant memories and an example which distils a savor of life. We turn from the grave to that life and immortality which hath been brought to light through the gospel, and thank God for the unspeakable gift. She sleeps in the grave, but she rests in hope. In the morning she shall arise. "Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." Meanwhile angels guard her dust, "one at the head the other at the foot," until the trumpet shall sound and she shall come forth to the resurrection of the just.

Many complain of neglect who never tried to attain regard.

THE SUFFERING AND VICTORY OF JESUS.

They have inadequate ideas of the Savior's sufferings who place them only or mostly in the scourges, the stripes, the crowny thorns, the cross, the bodily sufferings. It was the soul agony that produced the bloody sweat—the "If it be possible let this cup pass from me."

The Witness and Advocate make these reflections:

Terrible indeed was that conflict. The powers of darkness appeared for a time to triumph. It was not the betrayal, the denial, the oppressive judgment, or all the cruel scenes of mockery and insult, which formed the chief ingredient in that bitter cup from which the Savior drank; nor was it the physical anguish of the crucifixion which wrung from him that last bitter cry upon the accursed tree. All these he could have endured, as others have done before, and as his followers, in cases without number, have done since. But it was the final grappling with sin. The Lord caused to meet upon him the iniquity of us all, and He was suffering the heavy penalty. The chastisement of our peace was upon him, and all the powers of hell were striving for the mastery. This it was which composed the crushing weight of those truly unknown agonies. The atonement alone explains them, and this it is which gives them all their prominence in the mention which the Scriptures make of what our Lord has done. It is in that sacrificial death, as the Lamb of God, that he is represented as the great source of all our hopes; and this it is which calls most of all for our adoring gratitude and praise. How marvellous the price. How great the redemption. How awful the evil, and how terrible the deserts of sin, when they could thus crush the Son of God with sorrow, and bring him into the cold embrace of death. Well may the earth have quaked and the sun refused his shining, when sin and death had achieved such a mastery.—Well may all heaven have been filled with wonder when the Lord of life thus humbled himself even to the grave and gate of death.

But he could not be holden of them. Vain the watch, the stone, the seal. The rockribbed sepulchre could not retain its victim. Death was conquered by its very victory, and all the powers of darkness spoiled by their seeming triumph. He who was crucified as man, came forth from his tomb, declared to be "the Son of God with power." He did not come down from the cross at the bidding of his scornful enemies, but when his work was fully completed, by a far more transcendent wonder he challenged the belief of a ransomed world. That short night of sorrow was followed by the morning of an endless day; every shade was scattered and the victory was complete. "Death hath no more dominion over him."

A REMARKABLE CONVERSION.

At a recent midday prayer-meeting, held in the old John Street Methodist Episcopal Church, New York city, the following account was given of the conversion of a notorious character at Port Chester, who passed generally by the name of "Awful Gardner:" (W. C. Adv.)

A Christian man said to him one day: "Now, Mr. Gardner, don't you feel as if you ought to change your course of life?" Said he, "I do." "Then," he asked, why don't you do so?"—"Well," said Gardner, "I can't begin now."—"Why not now?" "I have some matters in New York to settle up first?" "Ah," said the gentleman, "but you had better settle with your Maker first." "Well," said Gardner, "I am going to the city to-morrow morning, and when I return I will seek salvation." Well, in the morning he had his carpet-bag ready to start, but, said he, "I guess I will wait till to-morrow morning;" and so he kept on putting it off till to-morrow for a week. The Spirit of God had kept him there. On Friday night he went to the meeting, and while he was there, the minister said to him, "Had'nt you better make up your mind to come forward and seek salvation?" "Well," said he, "If I felt like that man I would"—referring to a man who showed his desire to be saved, but was not yet converted. "Ah," said brother Gilbert, "your case is more critical than his." "Do you think so?" said he. "Yes, you knew your duty and will not do it?" Gardner went home that night. "I don't like the remark the minister made," said he, "and I won't stay if he thinks I'm in that condition." His wife said she didn't sleep that night. He twisted and rolled about as if in great distress. He again put off going to the city. He said to another friend, "I am not satisfied with the life I have led. I am going, by the grace of God, to change my course; I am going to try and be a different man."

He was under deep conviction for several days, but found no peace. "Ah," said the minister, "God means to give you such a struggle that you will never forget it; he means to use you as a means of converting others." On Monday afternoon they got him into a private house. He prayed so that nearly all that part of the town gathered about the house. "What is that?" "It's Gardner praying for mercy." That was good, was it not? (Cries of "Amen.") On Monday night he went again to the altar. On Tuesday he said, "I have got to go to White Plains," and a friend said, "I will go with you," and he put up his horse, and they left together. They talked on without knowing where they were going, till he hauled the horse up on one side of the road, and shouted out, "Hallelujah." All at once the devil came to him, and said, "What are you doing—praising God—a man as wicked as you have been—you have made a mistake!" Gardner said he thought he had made a mistake, but he came to the church, and while kneeling, the clouds began to dispel, and a bright light surrounded him; soon he took his handkerchief, and covered his eyes. Said the minister, "What are you doing, Gardner?" "Why," said he, "there is such glory shining all around me, I thought it must be a mistake, and I covered my eyes to see if I could see it yet; it is all light and beautiful."

DR. BUNTING.

A correspondent writes us concerning Dr. Bunting, that he still continues seriously ill.—An attack of influenza, and then a relapse near the close of last year, had utterly prostrated him, and for several weeks he became gradually weaker, while his sufferings were often aggravated by repeated severe neuralgic pains in the shoulder, which gradually increased in frequency and severity, and at times seemed to be almost unbearable. In the course of the last week of February he was seized with faintness and sickness, which so alarmed those around him, that his sons were immediately sent for.—He however happily recovered from the attack, and is still left to wait the Lord's time. The servant is found watching. "Blessed are those servants."

Don't Forget.—Don't forget to give every person who does not already take some religious paper an opportunity to subscribe for the Christian Advocate.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Novel Mode of Getting a Pardon.—The St. Louis papers of the 11th instant bring intelligence of a strange and most daring atrocity in the Penitentiary at Alton, Ill., ending in the death of a turnkey and one of the prisoners, his murderer. The Leader says:

On Monday, Hall, a convict for a term of seven years, struck with a sling-shot the keepor, Crabbe, as he was in the act of locking him into his cell, and felled him, after which he placed himself with a lifted dirk over the disabled man, and when (the alarm being given) other officers came to rescue Crabbe, he threatened instantly to slay him if they entered. All this passed through the opening in the cell door.

He commanded them to go to the Governor at Springfield and procure him a pardon, and then set him at liberty, with a loaded revolver, a hundred dollars in gold and a carriage, or he would murder Crabbe before their eyes. Thus things continued all day Monday, they attempting in vain to intimidate or to allure him to let go Crabbe. They fired at him, but he avoided their aim or placed Crabbe before him as a shield. At last a pardon was procured; but meantime the town people had become incensed and threatened vengeance, so that the villain refused to accept it.

Last evening, all other means having failed, the warden, Mr. Buckmaster, had the door broken in; but as the officers entered the cell, the detestable criminal plunged his dirk into Crabbe's heart, and was, a moment after, riddled with balls by the enraged company.

RESOURCES OF THE SOUTH.

Governer Hammond, of South Carolina, in his late speech, gave the following glowing description of the resources of the South:

"The South, he said, has eight hundred and fifty thousand square miles of territory, an area as large as that envered by Great Britain, France, Austria, Prussia and Spain. The North, even after the admission of the two large Territories of Kansas and Minnesota, will fall one hundred thousand square miles short of the South. This does not include the territory lying west of the Rocky Mountains, which will never come into antagonism with the South. We have the best soil, the best climate, indispensable productions that cannot be grown elsewhere, a short line of three thousand square miles, and so indented with bays and crowded with islands as to make the whole measurement twelve thousand miles. Through the heart of our country runs the mighty Mississippi, into whose bosom are poured thirty-six thousand miles of tributary streams. In the great valley its drains will be the seat of the world's empire. We have a population four times as large as that which conquered our independence, and a thousand fold as strong.—Upon our muster rolls we have a million of men. At any time the South can raise, equip and maintain in the field a larger force than any power on earth can send against her—men, too, brought up on horseback, with guns in their hands. The wealth of a people is to be estimated by their surplus productions. All the enterprises of peace and war depend on what a nation is able to spend. The reports of the Secretary of the treasury show that the exports of the United States amounted last year to $279,000,000, exclusive of gold and foreign merchandise re-exported. Of this amount, the productions of the South are $185,000,000. In addition to this we sent to the North $35,000,000 of our staples, making our surplus productions worth $220,000,000, equal to $16 66 per head of our population, supposing it to be twelve millions, a dividend which no nation on earth can show."

THE GREAT STEAMER LEVIATHAN.

From an article in the London Times we learn the progress that is making in fitting the Leviathan for sea. The cost of completing her fittings is estimated at $500,000, and the time four months, or to the end of July. No less than ten anchors are now required to hold the monster vessel at her present moorings—five at the stem and five at the stern, and each with lengths of cable attached varying from 40 to 100 fathoms. There are to be six masts in all, three square-rigged and three rigged with fore and aft sails. All these masts will be composed of plates of wrought iron one inch in thickness, and riveted together in the same manner as the sides of the ship, or a steam boiler of the strongest description.—They will vary in height from 130 to 170 feet from the keel to the truck. Each will be three feet four inches diameter at the deck, and each will weigh from 30 to 40 tons, exclusive of yards or rigging. Each mast rests in a square column of plate iron, which reaches direct from the keel to the upper deck, and is riveted and built into all of the successive decks through which it passes. In case of its ever becoming necessary to cut away the masts, at the base of them all, about three feet above the deck, will be fixed a peculiar apparatus, which, working by means of a powerful screw, is made to compress two sides of the mast together in such a manner as to completely crush them in, and let the masts fall over the sides immediately. All the main and topmast yards of the square-rigged masts will be also of iron plates. The main yard will be 130 feet long, or about 40 feet longer than the main yard of the largest line-of-battle ships, about four times the strength of any mainyard yet constructed, and several tons lighter than if it was made of wood, as is usually the case.

"The Women of America have Purchased Mount Vernon."—Under this heading, the Richmond Enquirer, of the 9th inst., has the annexed interesting announcement:

We are happy to announce that on the 6th inst., in the presence of the two parties, and the counsel of the Association and of the proprietor of Mount Vernon, a contract was formally entered into, before a notary, between John A. Washington, Esq., and the Regent of the Association, for the purchase of the Home and Grave of Washington, by the Association. The particulars will be given in a few days.

Mount Vernon.—The Alexandria (Virginia) Gazette, speaking of the sale of Mount Vernon to the Ladies of Mount Vernon Association, says that $18,000 of the purchase money has been paid in cash. Mr. Washington retains possession until a payment of $75,000 is made, which will probably take place in a few months.

A Missouri Surgeon.—During a late revival in the Baptist Church, at Lagrange, Mo., a lad 17 years old, who had acquired some notoriety in the town as a theatrical performer, joined the church and prepared himself for the ministry. He has recently been licensed, and has entered on his clerical duties; and so wonderful are his powers, that the whole community is in ecstacies with his efforts. When he preaches, the church is crowded; persons from all the country round about flocking to hear him; and the oldest veterans declare that they never before listened to such thrilling eloquence. The name of the "boy preacher" is J. B. Fuller.

A great revival of religion, it is said, is in progress in Brown University. Meetings for prayer and conference are held daily among the students.

Marriages.

Married—On the 17th ult., by Rev. Wm. P. Miller, Mr. ...NET PARMER, of Wilcox county, and Miss MARTHA ...ON, of Conecuh county.

...the 8th instant, by the same, Mr. D. F. BROWN and AMANDA BETTS, of Monroe county, Ala.

...the 8th inst., at the Methodist Church in Patterson, by Rev. S. J. Davies, Mr. DAVID ROBBINS and Miss ... BRADLEY.

...the 20th instant, at the residence of the bride's brother, by Rev. A. E. Flowers, Mr. GEORGE CONFER and Miss HARRIET S. GALLY, all residing in East Feliciana Co., La.

...the 25th inst., at the Poydras Church, West Baton Rouge, by Rev. J. R. Fulton, Mr. THOMAS R. BLAKE and Miss MARGARET SHERIDAN, all of this parish.

Special Notices.

SECOND ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Lake Providence District.

...insboro' circuit, at Wiasboro', May..... 8—9
...dy Island Mission.
...chmead circuit and Madison mission, at Willow ...
...Bayou chapel, May..... 15—16
...w Carthage Mission.
...nity circuit, at Wesley Chapel, May..... 22—23
...cordia Mission.
...terproof circuit, at Tensas chapel, May..... 29—30
...nsas Mission.
...oll circuit, at Solitude, June..... 5—6
...rovidence circuit, at Pecan Grove, Juas..... 12—13
...roll Mission.
...oseph circuit and mission, June..... 19—20
...circuit, Juno..... 26—27
...e District Steward's Meeting will be held at Waterford Wednesday, May 5th. Business of importance—attendance needed.

LEWIS A. REED, P. E.

...terproof, April 19, 1858.

SECOND ROUND QUARTERLY MEETINGS
Ouachita District.

...chita, at Mars Hill, June..... 5—6
...gdemona, at Lebanon, June..... 12—13
...rc. Bellamy in charge.
...nfield, June..... 19—20
...kson, at Center Camp Ground, June..... 26—27
...den, at Cross Roads, July..... 3—4
...er, at Homer, July..... 10—11
...merville, at Lisbon, July..... 17—18
...roe, at Monroe, July..... 24—25
...trop, at Oak Ridge, ... July 31—Aug. 1

There will be a District Steward's Meeting at Mars Hill, Ouachita circuit, June 5.

R. R. R. ALEXANDER, P. E.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

The annual meeting of the Board will be held in Greensboro', Ala., on Wednesday, the 9th of June, at 9 o'clock, A. M. A full attendance of the Trustees is earnestly desired.

E. WADSWORTH, Cor. Sec'y.

April 16, 1858. 4t

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THE DEPOSITORY,

112 CAMP STREET.

We have just received from the Agents, at Nashville, the invoice of Books, including, in addition to all the Publications of the Church, South, the following:

Benson's Commentaries; Clark's do., in sheep and calf, 8 vols; Defense of Our Fathers; Butler's Analogy; Anecdotes for Fireside, Mainstry and Young; Baker on Discipline; Bible Index, by Barr; Checks to Autonomianism, by Fletcher; Fletcher's Works; Sketches and Incidents, by Stevens; Coles' Concordance; Covel's Dictionary; Conference Minutes from 1773 to 1851; Power on Universalism; Mosheim's Church History; Chain of Sacred Wonders; Rollin's Ancient History.

Sabbath School Books.—Capers' Catechism, Nos. 1 and 2; Questions on Genesis—120 dozen Longking's Questions; Sets Longking's Notes.

☞ All at Nashville prices.

JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE

at the Depository, 112 Camp st., a large supply of Longking's Notes and Questions, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Also, 2000 Southern Methodist Almanacs. We append publishers' notice:

SOUTHERN METHODIST ALMANAC FOR 1858.—The calculations in this Almanac are adapted to the States and Territories within the bounds of the M. E. Church, South.—Besides the usual astronomical matter, this work contains Statistics of the Methodist Churches throughout the world; statistics of religious denominations in the United States; poetry, &c.; to which is appended a Descriptive Catalogue of the Publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House. It is a handsome pamphlet of 96 pages, price five cents retail.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

DAILY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The undersigned propose to issue, during the approaching General Conference at Nashville, a Daily Journal, in which the proceedings of the body will be published. Those who desire to subscribe will furnish their names immediately: or, they may give to the delegates their names and the cash.

Terms: ONE DOLLAR.

No paper will be forwarded without the cash in advance. The first number will be issued on Monday, the 3d of May.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Agents.

HOME CIRCLE.

This very attractive and deservedly popular periodical is published monthly by Stevenson & Owen, Ag'ts, Nashville, Tenn., L. D. Huston, D. D., Editor, at $2 per annum, strictly in advance. Each number contains 64 pages royal octave, embellished with one or more beautiful steel-plate engravings. The matter is mainly original, and of the most important and interesting character.

To ministers of the gospel, and all others who may be disposed to act as agents in procuring subscribers, a discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed on the subscription price.

As the patronage of this admirable issue has not yet been sufficient to meet the cost of its publication, it is therefore respectfully proposed that a prompt, energetic, and continuous effort be made in all the Conferences to increase the list of its patrons to at least twelve thousand!—Come brethren, you have but to submit the claims of the "Circle" to the Church and her friends, and this desirable object will be more than realized at an early day.

STEVENSON & OWEN, Ag'ts.

THE UPPER RIVERS.

The St. Louis Republican, of the 21st inst., says:

The river at this point swelled six or eight inches more up to 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when it became stationary, and remained so till 6 o'clock last evening. It is now higher than it was at any time last season, and the prospects are for still more water. The Illinois is reported rising, and all the bottom lands from Peoria down overflowed. The Excelsior, from Dubuque, reports the Upper Mississippi falling from Dubuque to LeClaire, from there to Montrose stationary, and rising from Montrose to St. Louis. The Missouri river is falling slowly from Weston down. There is plenty of water in the Missouri, plenty of boats, and very little business.

It rained heavily on Monday night, and at intervals all day yesterday. The evening was cloudy, and portended rain.

Dispatches received yesterday state that the Upper Mississippi has risen two feet one inches at Dubuque since Saturday. There is nine and a half feet water on the bar.

The English Admiral has discovered that Canton is situated on an island; one of the gun boats has just made a passage around it. It is somewhat singular that this fact was never known before, and only goes to show how jealous these people are of giving any information of the internal affairs or formation of the country.

Local Intelligence.

THE CREVASSE.—The works in progress to close the Bell crevasse are not yet complete, though each day some progress has been made in the attempt to construct a barrier of piles. The amount of water which pours through the opening in the levee is slightly increased by a gradual wearing away of the upper edge of the broken defence.

The spectator of this curiosity, for curiosity it may truly be called, has an opportunity of obtaining a juster view of the magnitude of our great river than he could otherwise ever hope to acquire. To look upon the expanse of waters in the bed of the river, and see its ceaseless currents roll on to the sea—the gathered floods of half a continent—affords little conception of the vastness, the power, or even the volume of the Mississippi. The crevasse offers a contrast to the river which aids in comprehending its majesty. Here, pouring through the levee some twenty feet in depth, and suddenly expanding over an area vaster than that of our vision, affording the miniature resemblance of angry rapids near some great falls; even the small portion diverted from its natural bed impresses the mind with the idea of power, and surprises it with the amount of the discharge. But when, after looking upon the current rushing back to the swamps, the spectator turns and looks upon the river itself, and finds that it moves resistlessly on, undisturbed by the crevasse, the latter not making even an eddy or ripple more than forty feet from the brink, the greatness of our mighty river begins to be faintly apprehended. The visitors, impressed with this contrast, become contemplative as they stand and gaze upon the lesser and the greater flood of waters, and retire instructed with the scene they have witnessed.—Picayune.

MORTUARY.—The Board of Health reports 140 interments for the week ending on the 26th inst.

FRESHET AT ABERDEEN, MISS.

Great Damage Done.—The Aberdeen Sunny South of the 22d inst., says:

On Monday night last, the heavens were opened, and the country round about completely deluged. The "oldest man" saw something new on Tuesday. Matubba creek, flowing into the river, half a mile above the city, was never known to contain so much water. The waters rose so rapidly that by morning many persons living on the opposite side of the creek, were surrounded. Assistance was immediately rendered, and all were saved. Several persons came near being lost in attempt to rescue the sufferers.

The river rose sixteen feet in twelve hours, and at the present writing, continues to rise.—It has already attained the highest water mark of the season. There has probably been much loss of property, and some of life.

This morning the river is within eighteen inches of the high water mark and still rising at the rate of an inch an hour. The probability is it will reach the highest point. The lower part of the city is completely submerged, and many have forsaken their dwellings and business houses. Such a rise was never known from the one night's rain. The destruction to stock has been immense.

Dreadful Tornado in Conway County, Ark.

Springfield in Ruins.—The Little Rock True Democrat has a letter dated Springfield, Conway county, Ark., April 12, giving the following account of a tornado which laid the principal part of that (the county) town in ruins. Heppily there wes no loss of life:

Our little town has just witnessed one of those dreadful visitations, which in one fell moment lays waste the labor of years. It now lies in ruies. Saturday, the 10th inst., was a warm, cloudy day, with occasional showers, and dark heavy masses of cloud passing. Thus the day passed until about four P. M., when the terrible warning of the approaching tornado was faintly heard in the distance. A sense of terror and utter helplessness came over all as the dreadful roering each moment came louder and louder, and hercer, increasing in violence until it absolutely roared louder than thunder. As yet, no signs of the dread destroyer were visible, but in an instant more, the fiery livid cloud of blue, black, yellow and svery color, came liks a whizzing bullet, bearing destruction on its wings, and leaving along its desolating course the tokens of its terrific power. So rapid was its flight that an eye witness saw a scope of timber embracing some fifteen or twenty acres immediately south of the town go to the ground simultaneously.

The storm came from the south and passed directly through the center of the town, leaving a heap of ruins; yet by some miraculous dispensation of Providence, no person was killed or even seriously injured; although there were many persons in town at the time. There are no more than one sixth part of the buildings left standing—some were thrown prostrate—others unroofed and carried several feet from their fonudations and others wrecked and shattered so as to be useless. Immediately after the storm abated, there were to be seen the confused heaps of brush, logs, house roofs, shingles, furniture, clothing, &c., scattered in every direction, where a few minutes before stood the town of Springfield—while the homeless, shelterless inhabitants were seen hunting in tree tops and under brush heaps for their clothing. The succeeding day (Sunday) was a busy day in Springfield. The citizens went immediately to work to fix up and recover their shattered homes to protect their families from the inclemency of the weather. All are now busy rebuilding and clearing up the rubbish, and striving bravely to repair their losses.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH ON DRUNKENNESS.—Bishop Bayley, the Catholic Bishop of New Jersey, has issued a manifesto bringing the machinery of the church to bear against the vice of druckenness. His letter on the subject has been read in all the churches, in which he calls attention to two classes—the drunkards themselves and the dealers in liquor. Leaving to the pastors the choice of the particular means to be used, he suggests that each should keep a list of the drunkards and liquor dealers in his church. He says:

"I am determined to make use of the most severe measures against all who are addicted to this scandalous and destructive vice; and if they continue in the practice of it they must do it as outcasts from the Catholic church, who have no right to the name of Catholic while they live, nor to Christian burial when they die."

A HEALTHY CITY.—The Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer learns from the sexton of that city that there has not been a death within the corporate limits since the 18th of February last. Columbus contains a population of near ten thousand.

LOUISIANA INTELLIGENCE.

The Plaquemine Gazette, of Saturday last, 24th, says:

Within the last week the Mayor has been actively engaged in strengthening the levee opposite Main street, and the property of Mr. Desobry. At that point, the levee being new, a considerable portion of it had sunk, or been washed away, and the transpiration water was oozing through in such a manner as to demonstrate that unless it was well repaired, and soon, bad consequences might follow. It is now as strong and safe, we are happy to say, as the best levees.

The West Baton Rouge Sugar Planter, of the same date says:

The river is still rising at this point. Everywhere in our parish the levees are being repaired and strengthened where they require it. So far they have stood firm.

The Pointe Coupee Echo, of the same date, says:

The river at this point has been on a stand for the past two days, and as the upper rivers are reported as falling, we may expect a fall here very soon. At no time have we had any fears on account of our levees, and we could have stood a rise of four feet more before we could have apprehended any danger. The river above and below us is said to be up to high water mark, while with us it is fully four feet below it. Who can account for this?

The Concordia Intelligencer, of Friday, the 23d, says:

A powerful thunder storm, on Monday night, in the parish of Concordia and its surroundings, projected an immense quantity of water upon the cotton fields, making many miniature lakes through which the half drowned new cotton modestly lifts up its green leaves and appeals to the warm sunbeams for relief from inundations. But, from the present high stage of the water, the process of evaporation cannot be expected to be very rapid.

On the Tuesday morning succeeding this violent storm the weather was clear with occasional masses of clouds from the south. We have heard of the progress of this heavy storm before it reached us. On Red River, an exchange paper says, "it rained in torrents, accompanied with thunder, lightning and hail during Saturday night." Hail fell in Vidalia on Monday night amidst the paroxysms of the rein deluge.

The Harrisonburg (Catahoula parish) Independent, of the 21st inst., says:

The Ouachita and its tributaries in this vicinity are at full banks, and considering the height to which they have attained, the present steedy rise will soon begin to incommode many portions of our swamp country.

The Shreveport Southwestern, of the 21st, says it rained nearly all Sunday night, and we had two or three showers during Monday. It would appear that the rainy season will never come to an end.

The river having receded within its banks, a large number of planters whose place are again preparing to plant cotton and corn.

THE FLORIDA INDIANS.

Latest Intelligence.—The Tampa Peninsular, of the 17th inst., furnishes the annexed interesting intelligence:

By the arrival of Col. Rector, yesterday evening, we have gratifying assurances of the complete success of his negotiations with the hostile Seminoles.

Col. R. is aangnine that all the hostiles will assent to the conditions of a peaceable removal, and be ready to embark for the West on the 1st prox. A large number of them are now sojourning at the encampment of the delegation; goverument teams are sent out for others and their baggage.

Six or eight members of the delegation, together with Billy Bowlegs's lieutenant, are now in this place. They intend visiting the Istapoga country to hunt a party of fourteen warriors of Sam Jones's band. They will be accompanied by several volunteer captains who are well acquainted with that section.

Sam Jones, himself, is unwilling to leave Florida, but his objections will not influence his followers to persist in resisting government. He says he has but few days to live—he wishes to die in the land of his nativity.—We presume he will be forced to terms—either to go West, or remain here under the special chargo of Uncle Sam.

DEPARTURE OF DR. LIVINGSTONE.

The screw steamer Pearl left Liverpool on the 10th March, for Sierra Leone, whence she will sail for the Cape, and thence for the Zambesi river, up which she will steam as far as her draught of water will permit her to go. The little launch will then be unshipped, and will commence her part of the enterprise. Besides Dr. and Mrs. Livingstone, the Pearl has on board their little son; Mr. Livingstone, brother to Dr. Livingstone, and assistant commender; Captain Bedingfield, R. N., government surveyor and nautical commeeder of the expedition; Dr. Kirk, of Edinburgh, the botanist and medical officer; Mr. Thornton, the geologist; Mr. Rae, the engineer of the launch; and Mr. F. Bains, the artist of the expedition.

PASSPORTS TO MEN OF COLOR.—Senator Wilson, of Massachussetts, recently applied at the State Department for a passport for D. J. S. Rock, a colored citizen of Boston, and received the following answer from the Secretary:

Department of State, Washington, April 2.—To the Hon. Henry Wilson, Senate Chamber.—Sir: I have had the honor to receive your note of yesterday, with its accompaniments. In reply, I have, to inform you that it is not the practice of the Department to issue any other paper than passports to persons going abroad from this country. A passport being a certificate of citizenship, has never since the foundation of the Government been granted to persons of color. No change in this respect has taken place in consequence of the decision of the Dred Scott case. Returning the inclosure in your letter, I have the honor to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

LEWIS CASS.

A NEW RECOMMENDATION.—The New York Observer says: We saw a letter the other day which a gentleman coming to town presented to a mercantile house. It was a sealed letter of introduction, and read this: "Dear Sir—The bearer of this letter, Mr. James B. Smith, goes to New York to purchase goods. I can recommend him as good for all he pays cash for.—Yours truly, S. P. Jones." We understand that since the revolution, letters of this description are considered "A 1," and command the very highest degree of confidence.

QUEEN VICTORIA A BAD "CHURCHWOMAN."—The head of the English Church does not seem to be a very good "churchwoman." The London Times complains, that "Her Majesty is no safe guide, her disregard of Lent is proverbial."—And now she has "held her first royal drawing-room after her daughter's marriage, on the day of the martyrdom of the blessed King Charles I." In addition to which, it is well known, she goes to hear Presbyterian preachers in Scotland, and requests their sermons for publication. What a wicked woman!

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The R. M. steamer Arabia arrived this morning from Liverpool bringing dates of the 16th.

MARKETS.

Cotton—sales of the week 44,000 bales; speculators' sales 4500 bales, and exporters' sales 7500 bales. All qualities slightly declined. Inferior declined ⅛. Middling declined ¼.

Fair qualities generally unchanged. Sales on the day of sailing 10,000 bales, of which speculators took 4800, and exporters 1500. The market closed dull. Little inquiry, and prices weak.

Manchester advices unfavorable. Breadstuffs dull.—Provisions steady. The Money market generally unchanged.—Consols for money 95¾ @ 96¼.

General Intelligence.

Mr. McMicken, of Cincinnati, Ohio, lately died possessed of property valued at one million of dollars, the greater part of which, about $800,000, so reported, he donated for the establishment of an university for the education of poor children on the same plan as the Girard College of Philadelphia. He lived and died a bachelor. Mr. McMicken was once a resident of Louisianna. Thirty-nine years ago he followed commercial pursuits, or merchandizing, in the town of St. Francisville, where he resided until the year 1820 or 30, laying the foundation of the great fortune which he left behind.

METHODISM IN FRANCE.—"Methodism began its labors in France near the close of the last century; but such was the hostility between England and France that the labors of its ministers were attended with many difficulties, and were not unfrequently interrupted. After having toiled for six years, and having gained considerable strength, the British Conference judged it best to give them the position of an independent, yet an affiliated Church. It has full powers to enact its own laws; but receives a President appointed by the English Conference. This change took place in 1852.

A RELIGIOUS DAILY PAPER.—The New York Churchman is to be published as a daily paper. This will be the first instance of a daily religious journal. The Churchman, has been sinking money as a weekly paper, but as its owner, Mr. Hecker, has accumulated a large fortune in the flour and Farina business, he will probably be ready to meet all deficiences. It is to be regretted that this experiment is not to be made by some other paper than the Churchman, as its circle of sympathizers is extremely limited.

It appears from an exchange that the total number of members in connection with the British Conference is 426,860; last year it was 423,164; so the increase is only 3,696 during the year. The loss in the foreign and colonial portions of the connection is 6504; nearly the whole of this has been in Canada.

Dr. Kingsley says, "The revival notices published in the Western Christian Advocate, March 17th, showed an accession of 4000 to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

GERMAN METHODISTS.—The efforts of Methodists among the Germans in this country commenced in 1835, and now they number 120 German preachers and 15,000 German members.

DAILY PRAYER.—Nineteen Union prayer-meetings are now held in New York daily, and six in Brooklyn. The average attendance is thirty thousand.

THE CALORIC MOTOR.—We see that this experiment has not been abandoned. A bill has been introduced in the New York Legislature to incorporate the "Ericsson Manufacturing and Navigation Company," which has for its object the construction of vessels to be propelled by means of engines worked by heated air, or caloric. The company is authorized to use boats with this motive power on the canals.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED—Three Good Seamstresses, to do piece-work. None need apply but the most expert with the needle. may 1-3t MRS. BOYD, 157 Camp st.

A TIMELY BOOK OF SPECIAL INTEREST.
NOW READY:
NARRATIVES OF REMARKABLE
CONVERSIONS AND REVIVAL INCIDENTS,
Including an account of the Rise and Progress of the present wonderful Great Awakening among the people, in all parts of the country.
BY WILLIAM C. CONANT.
One large and handsome 12mo volume. Price $1.

LIST OF CONTENTS (IN PART.)

SUMMARY REVIEW OF REVIVALS FROM THE DAY OF PENTECOST TO THE GREAT AWAKENING IN HER LAST CENTURY.

CONVERSIONS OF EMINENT PERSONS

Martin Luther,	C. H. Spurgeon,
Bishop Latimer,	Hedley Vicars,
John Newton,	Samuel Budgett,
John Bunyan,	Samuel Pearce,
Colonel Gardiner,	Andrew Fuller,
Jonathan Edwards,	Adoniram Judson,
John Summerfield,	St. Augustine,
	Isabel Graham,
	Samuel Nelson,
	Earl of Rochester,
	Caroline Fry,
	Wm. Wilberforce,
	Abigail Hutchinson,
	Harlan Page.

INSTANCES OF REMARKABLE CONVERSIONS

Conversion of a Moralist.	It is but a Moment's Work.
Dr. Spring's Discouragement.	Woman who had no Feeling.
A Singular Revival.	Word Spoken in Season.
The Discouraged Father.	Hired to go to Prayer Meeting.
Power of a Child's Prayer.	"It's too late now, Pa."
The Infidel's Sermon to Pirates.	Beecher's Sermon to one Hearer.
A Pious Boy's Fidelity.	Mathematician Confounded.
The Little Babe's Prayer.	The Actress' Last Appearance.
Hundred Scholars Converted.	Burglars Arrested.
School Boy's Prayer Meeting.	The Three Scoffers.
The Unanswerable Argument.	An Affecting Meeting.
The Bird in the Church.	The Blind Man and his Wife.
"Do let me alone."	Revival in Ten Schools.
Proud Husband and Praying Wife.	The Elder's Twelve Prayer.
The Lost Bank Note.	The Man of Decision.
My Mother's Prayers haunt me.	Influence of a Wife.
A Happy Mistake.	Don't put it off.
Mission of a Tear.	Thirty Years' Prayer.
A Terrible Reason for it.	The Stone Rolled Away.
The Irresistible Spirit.	Answer to United Prayer.
Forgiveness Received.	A Bold Personal Appeal.
Outcast Converted.	The Thoughtless Swearer.
Refusing Revival.	Ask and ye shall receive.
The Quietness of Grace.	The Last Chance—"Here Goes."
A Wanderer Restored.	Sudden Conversion of an Officer.
A Terrible Death Scene.	Infidel Convinced by a Child.
A Bible instead of a Sword.	Play-House a House of Prayer.
A Bigot Converted.	Profanity made a Means of Grace.
Great Revival in N. York in 1831.	Faithfulness of Harlan Page.
The Tract House Revival.	The Reward Gained.
The Dying Father's Request	Getting Respectability.
The Mutilated Bible.	Only Daughter's Death.
A Dream of Salvation.	Conversion at the Masthead.
Girl afraid of her Parents.	Woman who kept out of the way.
The Infidel Bible Class.	Revival from an Overnight.
Woman afraid of her Husband.	A Great and Speedy Result.
The Unconscious Convert.	The Promise Fulfilled.
Conversion of a Child.	Forsaking all that she had.
Feared not go before he Repented.	The Infidel Lady.
Remarkable Answer to Prayer.	Return of a Prodigal.
Rise and Progress of the Great Awakening of 1857-8.

FOUR FREE COMMENDATIONS.

"It will be sought for at the present time."—N. Y. Observer.
"A means of grace and encouragement to the hearts of praying men."—N. Y. Examiner.
"It cannot but prove eminently seasonable and useful."—N. Y. Independent.
"The work cannot fail to become of interest."—Christian Advocate.

DERBY & JACKSON, Publishers,
No. 119 Nassau st., New York.

Copies sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price.
☞ Agents wanted to sell the above. may 1-1t

GEORGE H. VINTEN,
PRINTERS' WAREHOUSE,
68 Camp street, next door to Picayune office, New Orleans.

POSSESSES, TYPES, INKS, PAPER, CARDS, and Furnishing of every description. Agent for the sale of Robt Hoe & Co's Presses, and James Connor & Sons' Types.
Old Type taken in exchange for new at 9 cents per pound.

PRINTING PAPER.
Constantly on hand and for sale Printing Paper of the following sizes.
21 inches by 28 | 23½ inches by 31 | 24 inches by 28 | 26 inches by 40
22 inches by 32 | 24 inches by 36 | 26 inches by 37 | 28 inches by 42
32 inches by 44..... 36 inches by 48
AND OTHER SIZES TO ABOVE
Also, Double Medium Book Paper, Manilla Wrappers, Note, Letter, and Cap Papers of every description; Cards, Card Boards, &c.
mar 20-1y GEORGE H. VINTEN.

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS!

The "South-Western Sunday School Union,"
No. 107 Camp street, New Orleans, La., in the Bible House,
KEEPS constantly on hand a full stock of the American Sunday School Union's publications, for sale for cash, at the Catalogue Prices of the Parent Society.
The "S. W. S. S. Union" is in the hands of Southern men, to do this important work in our great and growing field. We solicit contributions, and assure our friends that all we receive shall be applied to benefit Sunday Schools in the South. All orders promptly attended to.
Addresses, REV. E. B. OLEGHORN,
General Agent "S. W. S. S. Union,"
feb 27-1y at Bible House, 107 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

WHEN A SWARM OF VORACIOUS CREATURES are in motion in the stomach and intestines, the sensitive lining of those organs is necessarily in a state of intense irritation. This irritation extends sympathetically, to the brain, the nerves, and the skin, and affects the organs of respiration and the condition of the blood. Terrible must be the mischief ensuing from the neglect of such a disease. Worms of all kinds, from the enormous tape worm to the thread worm, are dangerous to health and life. Remove them then, and restore the organs they infest and irritate to a normal condition by using that unestimable specific, WINER'S CANADIAN VERMIFUGE.
☞ Be particular and remember the name "Winer's Canadian Varmifuge." This is the only article that can be depended on. Remember this. For sale by
J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 161 Chartres st.

COMMERCIAL.

The New Orleans Price Current, of the 28th, says:

The week opened with but moderate transactions in our leading staples, and the improvement in Cotton has been checked by the reduced supply of desirable lots and the advanced rates claimed. Sugar and Molasses remain firm, the moderate receipts readily finding purchasers, and we notice more activity in Western Produce, particularly in Indian Corn which is in active demand for export.

The steamer Kangaroo was to leave Liverpool for New York on the 14th instant, and her accounts, which will be four days later, are now due by telegraph. She was to be followed on the 17th by the Arabia, also for N. York.

Our report, on Wednesday, left the market very poorly supplied with desirable lots, and under similar circumstances, with still more full rates claimed, the business of Saturday was confined to about 4500 bales, while on Monday there was scarcely any movement, only a few buyers coming forward, who took barely 2000 bales, in several small lots. Yesterday there was more demand (influenced in some measure, perhaps, by telegraphic accounts of frost) and the sales reached about 6000 bales; making a total for the three days of 12,000 bales. In prices there does not appear to be any marked change and we continue previous quotations, though we remark that holders of desirable lots seem to be strengthened in their position by the character of the advices from the interior.

NEW ORLEANS CLASSIFICATION.

Inferior	5 @ 7¼	Middling	11¼ @ 11¾
Ordinary	8¼ @ 9¼	Good Middling	12¼ @ 12¾
Good Ordinary	10 @ 10¾	Middling Fair	12¾ @ 13
Low Middling	11 @ 11¼	Fair	nominal.

COTTON—Arrived since 23d instant, of Louisiana and Mississippi 8064 bales, Tenaessee and North Alabama 5441, Arkansas 1150, Mobile 581, Florida 129, Texas 559; together 15,964 bales. Cleared since the same date, 19,159 bales. Stock in presses and on shipboard not cleared on the 20th inst. 338,617 bales.

The receipts at this port since 1st September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida, and Texas) are 1,413,587 bales, against 1,398,368 bales to same date last year; and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year is 47,437 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase to Great Britain of 118,414 bales, and a decrease to France of 31,346 bales, and to other foreign ports of 88,595 bales.

SUGAR—LOUISIANA.—The moderate receipts continue to meet with quite ready sale, and the business of the past three days sums up about 1800 hhds., without material change from the previous range of prices, and we continue to quote for

Inferior and Refining	2¾ @ 4
Common to Good Common	4¼ @ 5¾
Fair to Fully Fair	6¼ @ 7
Prime	7¼ @ 7¾
Choice	7¾ @ 8¼
Centrifugal and Clarified	6 @ 9½

Arrived since the 23d 2333 hhds 70 tierces and bbls—cleared 410 hhds 600 bbls.

MOLASSES—The three days sales sum up about 2000 bbls, and we now quote for Inferior and Fermenting to Good 26 @ 28½, Prime 29 @ 30 in bbls; half-barrels 30 @ 34c ₱ gal. for Fermenting to Choice. Refinery reboiled 32c in bbls and 35 in half barrels. Arrived since the 23d 2222—cleared 249 bbls.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

Wednesday Evening, April 28.

An extreme degree of dullness pervaded almost every department to-day. Amongst discount brokers there was a general complaint of diminished transactions, and only a few sales of paper were made at 10 @ 12 per ct. This great clearness of money is in striking contrast to the low rates at other points, and tells materially to our disadvantage, since it does not proceed from any scarcity, as capital was never more abundant, but is attributable rather to the distrust and timidity of lenders. It is a bad feature that money should be twice as high here as in the other leading markets of the country.

WEEKLY QUOTATIONS OF THE STOCK MARKET.

Bank of Louisiana, 100 paid	155 50
Louisiana State Bank	149 50
Canal Bank	122 @ —
Citizens' Bank	173 @ —
Citizens' Bank Mortgage Stock	premium asked
Mechanics' and Traders' Bank	— @ 100
Union Bank	98 @ —
Bank of New Orleans	98 @ 100
Southern Bank	500
Crescent City Bank	98 @ —
Bank of America	90 @ —
Bank of James Robb	par
Gas Light Company, 100 paid	125 @ —
Carrollton Railroad	75 nominal
Pontchartrain Railroad	100 68 @ 70
Southern Pacific Railroad	unoffered
Opelousas Railroad	25 6 @ 6¼
Jackson Railroad, 25 paid	7¼ @ 8
City Consolidated Bonds	83 @ 85
City Bonds for Railroads	74 @ 75
State Bonds	no sales
Louisiana Manufacturing Company	par
Jackson Railroad 8 ₱ cent Bonds	72 @ 75

SPECIE.

American Gold	par @ — ₱ cent discount
California Gold	$17 00 @ 17 50 ₱ oz
American Silver, old issue	2 @ 2½ ₱ cent prem
American Silver, new issue	1 @ 1½ ₱ ct discount
Mexican Dollars	4 @ 4½ ₱ cent prem
Five Franc pieces	95 @ — cents
Twenty Franc pieces	$3 75 @ 3 80
Sovereigns	$4 80 @ 4 85
Ten Thaler pieces	$7 70 @ 7 80
Spanish Doubloons	$16 30 @ 16 60
Patriot Doubloons	$15 50 @ 15 75
United States Treasury Notes	¼ @ ½ ₱ ct discount

UNCURRENT BANK NOTES.

Missouri	1 @ ¾ ₱ cent discount
Indiana State Bank	1 @ 2 ₱ cent discount
Ohio	1 @ 2 ₱ cent discount
Other Banks, Ohio and Indiana	2½ @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Kentucky	1 @ 2 ₱ cent discount
Illinois	¾ @ 5 ₱ cent discount
W. Feliciana R. R. Co., redeemable at Bank of N. O.	par
Mississippi Mutual Insurance Company, certificates of, at Aberdeen	¾ @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Georgia and South Carolina	1 @ 2 ₱ cent discount
North Carolina	¾ @ 4 ₱ cent discount
Virginia	¾ @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Alabama State	¾ @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Texas	¼ @ 1 ₱ cent discount
Tennessee	1¼ @ 2½ ₱ cent discount
Mobile	par @ ¼ ₱ cent discount
Tennessee Free Banks	¾ @ 10 ₱ cent discount
Central Bank, Montgomery	1 @ 3 ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank, Selma	¾ @ 5 ₱ cent discount
Northern Bank, Huntsville	¾ @ 10 ₱ cent discount
Northern Bank Mississippi	40 @ 50 ₱ cent discount
Commercial Bank of Manchester, Mi	par

LAND WARRANTS—BUYING RATES.

Land Warrants, 40 acres	₱ acre—$1 00
Land Warrants, 80 acres	₱ acre—80c
Land Warrants, 120 acres	₱ acre—75c
Land Warrants, 160 acres	₱ acre—85c

A NEW BOOK.
THEOPHILUS WALTON, or THE MAJESTY OF TRUTH;
A REPLY TO THEODOSIA ERNEST.
By a Member of the Alabama Conference.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER 1. Love and Marriage. 2. The Great Secret. 3. The Lovers. 4. The Affliction of Joseph. 5. The Revival and its Fruits. 6. Consistency is a Jewel.

First Evening.—The word immerse is not in the Bible; the reasons why as given by Baptist writers, contradicted by Baptist writers.—The babel of Baptist Bible Revision overthrown by its own Builders.

CHAPTER 7. Job and his Comforters. 8. The Doubt removed. 9. Review of Theodosia Ernest.

Second Evening.—Trial of the Baptist Canons of Criticism, as laid down by Drs. Carson, Gale, Fuller and others; the Result of a Reduction to Absurdity of Baptist Theory, by proving all Baptists to be one-ines of Christ.

CHAPTER 10. New Troubles in the Cabinet. 11. The Day of Trial.—12. The Interview and its Results. 13. Review of Theodosia continued.

Third Evening.—Examination of Bapto and Papidzo; their Classical and Scriptural Use. More Baptist Testimony; Fuller, Gale, Carson, Conant, others.

CHAPTER 14. Narrative continued. 15. Review continued.

Fourth Evening.—New Testament Baptisms. Why was Christ baptized? How was Christ baptized? More light and more Testimony.

CHAPTER 16. Narrative resumed. 17. Review concluded.

Fifth Evening.—New Testament baptisms continued. No proof of Immersion in any case.

Sixth Evening.—History of Baptism. Its Early Corruptions. Origin of Baptist Immersion.

Seventh Evening.—Controversy on the Mode of Baptism. Argument from the Greek Classics. Mr. Battle for the Baptist—Mr. Mason for the Pedobaptist side.

Trial and Expulsion of a Baptist Sister for the crime of Communing with the People of God.

Eighth Evening.—Is Infant Baptism of God or Men? The Law and the Testimony. Conclusion.

The work will be ready for delivery early in May. Price One Dollar. Thirty per cent. discount for cash (twenty five on time) to wholesale purchasers. The book will be sent by mail, free of postage, on receipt of one dollar. Orders should be addressed to Messrs. Stevenson & Owen, Nashville, Tenn. ap24-3t

Dr. Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters have proved such a certain cure for all diseases of the Stomach, that no one for a moment questions its efficiency in the most dreadful and alarming cases. For many years we have watched its steady progress in public estimation, and its beneficient effects as a cure for all complaints arising from the stomach, of a morbid nature, and we are free to say that it can be relied upon as a certain relief and remedy. Its proprietor has made the above preparation after years of careful study and sifting, and is now reaping the reward claimed by this valuable specific, and which he so richly merits. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all cases, and it therefore demands the attention of the afflicted.

Sold by Druggists everywhere, and by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Sole Proprietors, 55 Water and 56 Front streets, Pittsburg. mar 27-4t

New Orleans Wholesale Prices Current.

CORRECTED WEEKLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BAGGING, Kentucky, per yd	12 @ 14
East India	14½ @ 14¾
BALE ROPE, Kentucky, per lb	6 @ 8½
Northern	— @ —
BEESWAX, yellow, per lb	25 @ 27
BRICKS, Lake, per thousand	10 00 @ 12 00
English, Fire	32 00 @ 36 00
BEAN, per

THE NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

POETRY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE GOD-MAN.

Respectfully inscribed to Rev. R. H. R.

Two beings strangely blent in one;
Heaven-sent, earth's vale he trod;
A timid virgin's suffering son,
And yet the Son of God!

His humble birthplace, helpless child,
Was in a manger's stall,
Yet angels sang his cradle hymns,
And shouted "Lord of all!"

Twelve rapid years, and still a child,
He heeds his mother's word;
Yet in the Temple hear him teach,
And prove himself "The Lord."

An hungered, in the wilderness,
Behold him faint and weak,
A tempting devil dares assail—
As God, behold him speak!

A houseless wanderer o'er the world,
No spot to call his own;
Yet Maker of earth's wide domain,
And heir of Heaven's high throne.

A man—he suffered grief and woe,
And hunger, care and pain;
A God—he comforted the sad,
And bade them hope again.

A man—he met with gathered friends,
Yet proved himself divine;
The silent water owned him Lord,
And, blushing, turned to wine.

Asleep upon a vessel's deck,
A wearied man he lay;
A God—he still'd the angry storm,
And drove the winds away!

Beside his buried friend he came,
And as a man he wept;
A God—he broke death's iron chain,
And wakened him who slept.

Athirst and weary, as a man,
By Jacob's well he stood;
Samaria's daughter heard his voice,
And knew him as a God!

A tortured man, Gethsemane
Attests his grief untold;
Yet mid his deep humanity,
Divinity beheld!

Upon the cross, a sinless man,
For sinful men he died;
But hark! the muttering heavens proclaim
A God is crucified!

A man—his throbbing heart is still'd
By death's relentless blow;
But lo, he bursts the iron bands
A conquering God to show!

Touched with a feeling of man's woes,
A God above the sky
He lives a loving Savior still,
To draw our souls on high!

LIZZIE C. SEYMOUR.

New Orleans.

OBITUARIES.

DR. HALCOTT ALFORD was a native of Georgia. Shortly after his marriage he removed to Wilkinson county, Mi., from thence to Copiah county, thence to Madison county in 1833, where he lived until his death on the 13th of March, 1858, in the 70th year of his age, in the faith and hope of a Christian.

Dr. Alford had always been the friend of the Church, and was the advocate of the institutions peculiar to the Methodist Church, the supporter of camp meetings. He was the friend and supporter of the preachers. It afforded him great pleasure to minister to their wants, have them visit his family and there his hospitality, and exert himself to relieve any that were in want. Many of those who have travelled the circuits where he has lived could testify to his prompt liberality for their support and relief long before he became a member of the Church. The missionary cause had his sympathy and purse. He loved to give to that cause. Especially was he interested in the missions among the colored people, so that he would, years before he became a member of the Church, ride to secure appointments for the missionaries, and then take it on himself to collect money for their support. He did much for his own negroes. He had a house on his own farm for them to worship in; and when the missionary was not convenient the preacher of the circuit must come and preach, and if local preachers passed in the afternoons of Sabbaths returning from appointments, they must stop and preach to the negroes. Nor was the Sabbath day the only time they were preached to. A regular service must be held, and if that could not be on the Sabbath it must be in the week. The writer had the privilege of preaching to his negroes in '52 and '53, but it was in the week. Twice a month have I gone on the week days, and all hands were called in and allowed an hour to get ready for service. Nor was the preacher hurried to get through. Rev. Jas. S. Harris preached to the same in '54 and '55 on the week days. I think this an example worthy of imitation. How many more plantations might be visited by our missionaries, and circuit preachers, if the owners would open such a door as did Dr. Alford. They might have as orderly, quiet and obedient negroes as he had, too.

Dr. A. began life with himself and personal efforts to depend on, yet he accumulated riches. He believed that his success in accumulating property was from God, and sent as a blessing for his kind and humane treatment of servants and his liberality in supporting the gospel. I have known him to give more than one-tenth of the support of his minister when he was not the most wealthy by some considerable.

Dr. A. did not join the Church until 1852. In September of that year he professed religion and joined the Church. He filled the office of steward faithfully and acceptably for some years.

His last illness was acute. On Monday before his death he was asked what were his prospects? He replied, "I have been trying for some years to be a Christian, yet all is not now as clear as I wish." Are you not resigned to the will of God? "I am trying to give up all, and praying to be perfectly resigned." On another occasion he exclaimed, "Glory to God! for his goodness and mercy to me." Just before he died he pointed upward and exclaimed, "My Father's house—my home—al-most-there!" These were his last words. Precious words too.

May Heaven's blessings be with his bereaved family.—All but two, I believe, are in the Church—one a preacher of the gospel.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

P. S.—Texas Christian Advocate will please copy.

DIED.—At his residence in this parish April 5, 1858 of typhoid pneumonia JOHN W. LEWIS, aged 45 years.

Some five years since, under the ministry of the Rev. R. Randle, he became awakened to his lost condition, and in the act of joining the Methodist Church, obtained religion. Some three years since, the Church, appreciating his merit and deep piety, elected him unanimously as one of their class leaders, which office he filled with honor and to the satisfaction of the Church up to the day of his death. He leaves a pious wife, several children and two brothers to mourn his loss and rejoice in his gain. A short time before his death one of his associate leaders inquired of him if his way was clear. He replied, There was no obstruction that he knew of, the vista to glory was opened. The writer knew him well, and can say of a truth that the community has lost a worthy man and Christian in every relation of life. Few men with the same Christian experience were his equal in expounding the doctrines and ordinances of the Church. He served his God from principle. Peace to his remains and Heaven the home of his spirit.

A. P. K.

Salt Spring, La.

Texas Advocate please copy.

DIED.—At the residence of Nicholas Reedy, her son-in-law, in Ouitibeha county, Mi., March 16, 1858, Mrs HANNAH TOMBERY, a native of Fauquier county, Va., 17th of March, 1777. She embraced religion when young and joined the Baptist Church, of which she continued a faithful zealous and consistent member as long as she lived. She conversed about death with great calmness in her last hours, and to her it had lost its terrors. Her faith was strong and unshaken until the lamp of life ceased to burn, and she passed calmly away to join her friends on the other shore. Her remains were deposited by the side of the companion of her youth just eighty-one years from the day of her birth.

MATTHEW D. THOMASON.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Edited by Mary.

THE CHRISTIAN CHILD AT HIS MEALS.

In silence I must take my seat,
And give God thanks before I eat:
Must for my food in patience wait
Till I am asked to hold my plate;
I must not scold, nor whine, nor pout,
Nor move my chair nor plate about;
With knife, or fork, or napkin ring,
I must not play—nor must I sing;
I must not speak a useless word,
For children must be seen—not heard;
I must not talk about my food,
Nor fret if I don't think it good;
My mouth with food I must not crowd,
Nor while I'm eating speak aloud;
Must turn my head to cough or sneeze,
And when I ask, say, "If you please;"
The table-cloth I must not spoil,
Nor with my food my fingers soil;
Must keep my seat when I have done,
Nor round the table sport or run;
When told to rise, then I must put
My chair away, with noiseless foot,
And lift my heart to God above
In praise for all his wondrous love.

THE FIRST PURCHASE.

There is now a young man doing a flourishing business in Massachusetts, whose boyhood was adorned by the following act:

He was reared in poverty and was early instructed to save his money. This he did with extreme care, until he had enough to pay for a Bible, when he laid it out for this Book of Books. As fast as he acquired the means, he purchased other volumes, and read them over with the deepest interest. He grew up a model young man, and has been pursuing a successful business for some years. Although a young man now, he is yet the possessor of much property. If he had spent the first twenty-five cents he possessed for a visit to the theatre, or some other pleasure, he might have been a miserable spendthrift now, without wealth or character.

GOOD FOR EVIL.

"Mamma," said little Annie, "please give me two apples for my lunch to-day. I want to give one to Jane Woods."

"Certainly, my dear; but why do you want to give Jane one particularly?" said the mother.

"Because, dear mamma, she stole one out of my basket yesterday, and I want her not to be tempted any more; for our teacher told us last Sunday that if we are sincere in praying, 'Lead us not into temptation,' we should not only keep out of the way of evil ourselves, but try to keep others from being tempted; and I think if I give Jane an apple she will not want to steal any more."

The apple was given, and a little while after Jane came to Annie, looking very penitent, and said:

"Won't you please take this apple back again; I suppose it is mine now, as you gave it to me, and I want to pay back the one I stole from you yesterday," Jane never stole again. Annie's kindness saved her.—Reaper.

A BOY'S LEGACY.

Milton D. Fellows, a fine boy about eleven years old, was on his death bed. Calling for his little savings bank, he gave it to his father with the request that, after his death, its contents might be given to our Sunday-school Union. The sum of three dollars was in the bank.

Happy Milton! he had loved the Sunday-school in life, and it had done him good. He loved it in death, and, as a proof of his love he left it all his earthly treasure. It was his dying love-gift, precious as the mites of the widow whom Jesus blessed. It will do good, too, for those three dollars have already sent some fifteen volumes of blessed books to tell scores of poor children about the way to Milton's Savior. Should the dear boy ever meet the spirits of some of those children in heaven, saved by the books he sent them, how glad he will be that he gave his "bank" to the Sunday-school Union.

I wish, my children, you would all give something to the Sunday-school Union every year of your lives. What do you say, boys and girls? See if your Sunday-school can't raise five dollars to send books to poor children who have none. What school will be the first to try?

ECONOMY OF A KING.

George II., passing through his chamber one evening, preceded by a single page, a small canvas bag of guineas, which he held in his hand, accidentally dropped, and one of them rolled under a closet door, in which would was usually kept for the use of his bed-chamber. After the king had very deliberately picked up the money, he found himself deficient of a guinea, and, guessing where it went, "Come," said he to the page, "we must find this guinea; here, help me to throw out the wood." The page and he accordingly went to work, and in a short time found it.

"Well," said the king, "you have wrought hard, there is the guinea for your labor; but I would have nothing lost."

GOD SEES ME.

Persons inclined to the sin of stealing are satisfied if they can only be certain they shall not be discovered. I once heard it related, that a man who was in the habit of going to a neighbor's corn field, to steal the ears, one day took with him his son, a boy of eight years of age. The father told him to hold the bag, while he looked if any one was near to see him. After standing on the fence, and peeping through all the corn rows, he returned to take the bag from the child, and began his guilty work. "Father," said the boy, "you forgot to look somewhere else." The man dropt the bag in a fright, and said, "which way, child?" supposing he had seen some one. "You forgot to look up to the sky, to see if God was noticing you." The father felt this reproof of the child so much, that he left the corn, returned home, and never again ventured to steal; remembering the truth his child had taught him, that the eye of God always beholds us. "God sees me," is a thought that would keep us from many evil acts, if we tried constantly to feel its truth.

A HARD QUESTION.

"Mother, mother," said a little Sabbath scholar, a few evenings ago, "my teacher says she would rather go to bed without her supper, than to omit reading the Bible at night."

MOTHER. Well, my child, so would any good Christian.

CHILD. Then, mother, why don't you read the Bible?

In this world, it is not what we take up, but what we give up, that makes us rich.

PROFESSIONAL.

J. D. FUQUA. J. G. KILBOURNE.

FUQUA & KILBOURNE,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
CLINTON, LOUISIANA,

PRACTICE in the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge and St. Helena, and in the Supreme Court at New Orleans.
References—Payne & Harrison, Byrne, Vance & Co., Brantwell & Payne, Pritchard & Flower, Edw. Nalle & Co., Rev. H. N. McTyeire, New Orleans. may 26-1y

J. W. TUCKER,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Office (for the present) 126 Third street, near City Hotel.
References—Hon. J. L. Orr, Speaker U. S. House of Representatives; Hon. L. M. Kennett; Hon. Samuel Treat, Judge U. S. District Court; Rev. D. R. McAnally—St. Louis. Oglesby & Macauley, Rev. H. N. McTyeire, Rev. J. C. Keener—New Orleans. mar 5-2m

W. P. HILL,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 13 Camp st., New Orleans.

HAS been a citizen of Texas—extensively and laboriously engaged in the practice of law more than twenty years—and confidently refers to the Bench and Bar of that State.

Information as to the Laws, Lands and Land Titles of Texas can be had at my office; and any business in that State will be transacted through reliable correspondents. dec12

DR. AUSTIN,
RESIDENCE, WASHINGTON AVENUE, between Nayades and Apollo streets, Fourth District. Office, corner Magazine and Richard sts.
A Servant at the Office day and night. oct 3-6m

A CARD.
DR. S. GILBERT, Sr.,
HAS RETURNED to his old homestead, near Memphis, and re-opened his INFIRMARY, and will remain permanently.

He treats the following Chronic Diseases: Cancers, Scrofula, White Swellings, Tumors and Worms, without surgical operations. He also treats all Chronic Female Diseases—Tetter, Sores of long standing, Rheumatism, and Mercurial Diseases, of every grade.

Dr. G. deems it unnecessary to say more, as he has living witnesses from Maine to Oregon. my9 1y

JOSEPH C. BEALL,
ATTORNEY and Counsellor at Law, Shreveport, La., will give prompt and strict attention to the collection of all Claims and to any other law business entrusted to his care. A residence of more than 13 years at this place, (during which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession,) has given him an extensive acquaintance in North Louisiana, Eastern Texas, and Southern Arkansas, where he will take Claims for Collection.

☞ References can be furnished if desired. mh21-1y

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

J. BOYD & Co.,
Cotton Factors, Receiving & Forwarding Merchants,
No 40 ORAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
apr 17-1y

C. W. BUTT, DOUGLAS YANS, } Mobile. N. Orleans { M. J. SMITH, T. B. FOSTER, Jr.

BUTT, SMITH & Co.,
MOBILE, ALA.
MARSHALL J. SMITH & Co.,
NEW ORLEANS.

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS and Dealers in Bagging and Rope. Orders for Produce of all descriptions and Consignments will meet prompt attention. ap10-3m

LEONARD FASH. P. E. LAURANS.

LEONARD FASH & Co.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
45 POYDRAS STREET,
Oct 24. NEW ORLEANS.

PILCHER, GOODRICH & CO.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS and Commission Merchants, No. 47 Carondelet, corner Union street, New Orleans. jy11-1y

JOHN F WYCHE & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No 119 Common street, New Orleans. my2-1y

A. H. May & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS and GENERAL COMMISSION Merchants, No 94 Gravier street New Orleans. au21y

W. A. BROADWELL. M. L. PAYNE.

Broadwell & Payne.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 40 Union street, New Orleans. jy21 1y

J. D. PAYNE. J. F. HARRISON.
G. W. HUNTINGTON. WM B. DAMEROS

Payne & Harrison.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 51 Union street, New Orleans. dec7-1y

A. L. WALKER, New Orleans. ROBT. C. HUTCHINSON Caddo Parish, La.

Walker, Hutchinson, & Co.,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 87 Carondelet street, New Orleans. je28

Lane, Mayfield & Co.,
COTTON AND SUGAR FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 79 St. Charles street, New Orleans. jy6-1y

T. T. TWITTY.
COMMISSION MERCHANT, and Agent for the sale of Manufactured Tobacco, Cigars, and Herrings celebrated Fire and Burglar Proof Safes. No 82 Gravier street New Orleans mh14m

BIBLE HOUSE, 197 CAMP St., NEW ORLEANS.
The Southwestern Bible Society
Keeps constantly on hand as above a stock of plain and elegantly bound
BIBLES AND TESTAMENTS,
Published by the American Bible Society, and for sale at cost prices, varying from 7 cents to $12.

Citizens and persons from the country are respectfully solicited to call and examine the Books and prices.

Orders from the country, accompanied by cash remittances, supplied, and catalogues furnished by addressing Rev. E. R. CLEGHORN, Gen. Agt. S. W. Bible Society.

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY.
Annual Members—Persons who contribute not less than $3 annually.
Life Members—Contributors of $30.
Life Directors—Contributors of $150.
Patrons—Contributors of $1000.
Honorary Members—Ministers of the Gospel whose congregations make annual contributions. Feb 20

THE GREATEST
Medical Discovery
OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR,
From the worst Scrofula down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.
One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure ruenlig of the ears and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corns and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm.
Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing on the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is a fixed fact. If you have a humor, it has to start. There are NO IFS nor ANDS, but no one has about quitting some cases, but not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I give it to children a year old, to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, wormy-looking children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It gives great relief in catarrh and dizziness. Some who have taken it had been costive for years, and have been required by it. Where the body is sound it works quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular feelings, but you must not be alarmed; they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it; on the contrary, when that feeling is gone you will feel yourself like a new person. I heard some of the most extravagant encomiums of it that ever man listened to.

Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren street, Roxbury, Mass. Price $1 per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by dec5.1y J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres st.

DOCTOR HOOFLAND'S
CELEBRATED
GERMAN BITTERS.
PREPARED BY
Dr. C. M. JACKSON, Philad'a, Pa.
WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE,
Chronic or Nervous Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach.

Such as Constipation, Inward Piles, or Fullness or Blood the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin, and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and great Depression of Spirits.

The proprietor, in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of a ten years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale is surpassed by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietor, and to be had gratis of any of his Agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

Principal Office and Manufactory, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

IN FACT
DO YOU WANT SOMETHING TO STRENGTHEN YOU?
DO YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?
DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?
DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?
DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NERVOUSNESS?
DO YOU WANT ENERGY?
DO YOU WANT TO SLEEP WELL?
DO YOU WANT A BRISK AND VIGOROUS FEELING?

If you do, use Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, 418 Arch street Philadelphia, Pa., and sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout the United States, Canadas, West Indies and South America, at 75 cents per bottle.

For sale in New Orleans wholesale and retail by J. WRIGHT & Co. 21 and 151 Chartres street general agents for the South.

New Sewing Machines.
E. L. NIMMO
No. 7. CAMP ST., NEAR CANAL ST. No. 7.

AGENT for all the latest improved styles. The Woodruff patent has just been received, is very simple and suited to all kinds of work. The stitches will not rip or unravel, as two threads are used. It makes the same stitch on both sides. Price only $60. I am also agent for other Machines from $40 to $120. Needles and other findings for sale. Sewing Machines repaired. ap24 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

ROBT. H. READ. J. H. HOBART HEDGES. CHARLES S. BREW.

READ, HEDGES & BREW,
Plantation Drug Store.

DEALERS IN DRUGS AND MEDICINES, Paints, Oils, Brushes, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Patent Medicines, etc., No. 84 Common street between Camp and St. Charles streets.

Plantation and other orders carefully put up. Every article warranted PURE and GENUINE, and at reasonable prices. feb 27

D. J. WASSON,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Also, Sash, Blinds, Doors, Cisterns, Lumber, &c.,

In lots to suit purchasers. Orders promptly attended to. Box 388 Mechanics' Exchange, 19 St. Charles st. Shop, 355 and 357 Rampart st., First District, New Orleans mar26-1y

Holmes & Clauss.
GROCERIES AND DEALERS IN PRODUCE, No. 14 Tchoupitoulas street, and 14 New Levee, between Common and Gravier streets, New Orleans. ap30

FASHIONABLE CLOTHING.
T. H. JACKSON & CO.,
No 82 Common street.

KEEPS SUPPLIED yb frequent arrivals from New York, a well assorted stock of CLOTHING and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS of every description, which we will sell low for cash.—Also—
A good assortment of TRUNKS,
CARPET BAGS, VALICES,
SILK and ONGUAM UMBRELLAS, &c., &c.,
All on reasonable terms. T. H. JACKSON & Co.
Jan 31 No. 82 Common street, 2 doors from Carondelet.

CLOTHING.

Just received per late arrivals, a full stock of FALL and WINTER CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS of the Latest Styles, at the Lowest City Prices.

L. W. Lyons & Co.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

BOY'S CLOTHING.
PER LATE ARRIVALS.

A large assortment of YOUTHS', BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, SHIRTS and FURNISHING GOODS—Latest Fashions, at Very Low Prices.

L. W. LYONS & CO.,
d12 83 Canal St. near Camp.

To Merchants and Planters.
MANUFACTURERS' COMMISSION HOUSE
LARGE STOCK OF
BOOTS, SHOES, AND HATS.
CALL AND EXAMINE THE STOCK,
AT
No. 41 Magazine st., opposite the Arcade,
NEW ORLEANS.
nov 14 R. W. RAYNE.

Dameron & Co.,
IMPORTERS and Dealers in Carpeting, Oil Cloths, Matting, Curtain Goods, Upholstery Goods, etc., No. 26 Chartres and 72 Customhouse streets, New Orleans. jan1

Cuddy Brown & Co.,
HAVING closed the office of MILES OWEN & CO., the first day of January 1857. My business connections in future in this city will be with Messrs. Cuddy, Brown & Co., 38 Camp street.
jy11 MILES OWEN.

BELLS I BELLS II BELLS III BELLS IIII
WEST TROY BELL FOUNDRY.
[ESTABLISHED IN 1826.]

THE subscribers have constantly for sale an assortment of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Locomotive, Plantation, School house and other Bells, mounted in the most approved and durable manner.

For full particulars as to many recent improvements, warrantee, diameter of Bell, space occupied in Tower, rates of transportation, etc., send for a circular. Bells for the South delivered in New York.

Address, A. MENEELY'S SONS, Agents.
West Troy, N. Y. my16-1y

P. H. WILLARD,
COAL MERCHANT,
18 EXCHANGE PLACE. (OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.)

THOSE desirous of purchasing Coal or Wood, can be supplied at short notice at the—CITY COAL OFFICE, where is constantly kept on hand Pittsburgh, English, and Cannel, Anthracite and Lower Ohio Coal. Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Steamers, &c., &c., supplied at the lowest market prices. n22-1y

BOOTH & CO.,
ARCADE HAT STORE, No. 45 Magazine Street, New Orleans. Established in 1843. Manufacturers and Jobbers at Wholesale in Hats, Caps, Umbrellas, etc., etc.

For the accommodation of our friends and the public, we have opened a retail department on the same premises. aug30

TIRRELL & HERSEY,
BOOTS and SHOES,
BROGANS and HATS,
BY THE PACKAGE OR DOZEN.

PLANTERS and MERCHANTS are requested to call and examine their stock before purchasing elsewhere, as they engage to sell at as low prices as any house in the South.

Nearly opposite the Arcade Hotel, 38 Magazine street, New Orleans. mar 27-1sep

Parlor and Church Organs, Pianos, Melodeons.

THE Subscriber furnishes lower than they can be procured of any dealer in America the celebrated ALEXANDER CHURCH AND PARLOR ORGANS; Prince's, Mannihg's Mason's Hamblin's do., and all other American make of HARMONICONS and MELODEONS; Chickering's, Nunn & Clark's, Gilbert's, Boardman & G. Gray's, Worcester's, Stoddart's, Gales', and all other prominent manufacturer's make of PIANOS. HARPS, GUITARS, VIOLINS, Steel Covers, Instruction Books, and Music of every description at wholesale and retail. Church Ministers and Schools supplied at a large discount. Every instrument guaranteed. Circulars and prices sent free. Address
JAMES M. EDNEY,
sp28 58 John street, New York

BLOOMFIELD'S
PRINTING & BOOKBINDING
ESTABLISHMENT,
No. 46 Camp street, corner of Gravier,
Over Barker's Banking House.

All kinds of BOOK AND MERCANTILE PRINTING AND BINDING executed neatly and correctly, at moderate prices.
dec 26 1y WM. BLOOMFIELD, Jr.

FURNITURE! FURNITURE!!
C. FLINT & JONES,
44 and 46 Royal street, N. O.

WE WOULD INVITE the attention of city and country purchasers to our large and most complete stock of HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, Embracing every variety in ROSE WOOD, MAHOGANY, WALNUT, OAK and imitation woods together with MIRRORS of all sizes; MOSS, HAIR and SPRING MATTRASSES, FEATHERS, and HAIR CLOTH.

PAINTED ENAMELLED and FLOWERED CHAMBER sets in all colors. Parlor suits in BROCATELLE, and fancy goods, CAMP STOOLS, IRON BEDSTEADS, OFFICE LOUNGES, and DESKS of all styles.

The increasing facilities of communication enables us to fill all country orders with despatch and residents of the interior may always rely upon goods being packed in such a manner as to insure their safety, from damage in transit. C. FLINT & JONES,

Wholesale and retail dealers in Cabinet Furniture, Nos 44 and 46 Royal street, New Orleans. ap18

STOVES! STOVES!! STOVES!!!

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE ON HAND, AND ARE DAILY receiving the largest and best selected stock of STOVES, at present in the City, or any where in the Southern country. Our stock comprise the best, and most improved patterns from all of the most Celebrated Foundries East and West. Consumers and Country dealers especially are invited to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Our style of trimming and fitting up stoves is inferior to none, and superior to many.

We also have on hand and are daily manufacturing every description of PLAIN TIN and JAPANNED WARE.

We are prepared to fill all orders for any amount on reasonable terms, and in the shortest possible notice.

We are both practical mechanics, and after an experience of fifteen years in the business flatter ourselves that we can give entire satisfaction to all who may choose to favor us with their patronage.

☞ Remember No. 1 Front Levee corner of Custom House at the sign of the IRON COFFEE POT. AUSTIN & GOODWYN. ap20 6m

HENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
116.....CANAL STREET.....116
Would call the attention of
STRANGERS
To their large stock of
PLANTATION, HOUSEKEEPING, AND FANCY DRY GOODS,
All of which they are now offering at
GREAT INDUCEMENTS.

This stock offers great advantages to PLANTERS, in the fact that it enables them to make all their selections, by the package, piece, or at retail, at one establishment, at

LOWER RATES

Than any other house will sell. The stock of
BLANKETS AND NEGRO CLOTHS
is extremely large, and embraces the best manufactures at
VERY LOW RATES.
jan18-13t HENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co., 116 Canal st

New Orleans Branch
OF THE
HOME INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK.

CASH CAPITAL $500,000.....SURPLUS OVER $250,000.
CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
A. F. WILLMARTH, Vice President.
J. MILTON SMITH, Secretary.

Policies issued by this Company against Loss and Damage by Fire, and the Risks of Inland Navigation, on application to
R. W. & R. P. RAYNE, Agents, 46 Camp street, New Orleans.

Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
(INCORPORATED IN 1810.)
Capital, $300,000.....Charter Perpetual

DIRECTORS:
H. Huntington, Charles Boswell, Jah Allyn,
Albert Day, Henry Kenny, John P. Brace
James Goodwin, Calvin Day, Charles J. Russ.
H. HUNTINGTON, President.
C. B. BOWERS, Secretary.
R. W. RAYNE, Agent, 46 Camp street, New Orleans

The undersigned, Agent of the above responsible Companies, is duly authorized to issue Policies of Insurance on buildings, merchandise, ships in port and their cargoes. Also cotton in press, gin and sugar houses, household furniture and personal property generally, against loss or damage by fire in the city and in the country.

Ten per cent. cash returned on payment of premiums.

Losses equitably adjusted and promptly paid.
jan17-1y R. W. RAYNE, Agent

Bulletin
BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE
No. 35 Gravier street,

CONFERENCE MINUTES, Sermons and Addresses, Catalogues for Schools and Colleges, Commencement Programmes, Circulars, Lawyer's Briefs, Pamphlets, Notarial and Court Blanks, Cards, Bill Heads, Dray Receipts, Check Books, Bills of Exchange and all kinds of plain and fancy printing, executed with neatness and dispatch
Orders respectfully solicited se26-1y

C. VAN BENTHUYSEN. A. MONEMMEN.
F. F. LEWIS, of Rapides. GEO. C. KENDALL.

BENTHUYSEN, LEWIS & Co.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers
IN ALL DESCRIPTIONS OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
DRY GOODS,
116 Canal st., New Orleans.
s19 1y

158 CAMP STREET. 158
Mrs. Boyd's Ladies' Emporium.

ALL kinds of Sewing done by machinery for Grocers, Ships, Steamers, Hotels and Families. A good stock of Ladies' Under Garments always on hand. Embroidery and Tucking.
All kinds of Toilet Soaps and Perfumeries. Feb1 8

EDUCATIONAL.

Mansfield Female College.
FACULTY.

Rev. H. C. THWEAT, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, and Ancient Languages.
Rev. E. H. PITTS, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
GEO. W. THACHER, A. M., Professor of Physical Science.
——— Professor of Music and Modern Languages.
Miss SALLIE J. McNEELY, M. E. L., Instructress in English Literature and Belles-Lettres.
Miss JUDITH A. DEBOIS, Instructress in Music.
Mrs. AURELIA G. THACHER, M. E. L., Instructress in the Ornamental Department.
——— Instructress in the Academic Department.
Mrs. MARY BELL, Instructress in the Primary Department.
Mrs. SARAH PORTER, Matron.
JAS. C. PORTER, Esq., Steward.
A. H. THOMAS, Pursuer.

The vacancies will be filled by competent persons.

RATES OF TUITION PER SESSION.

